When the Governor General introduced to the Board, the propoſition of ſending the deputation to Nudjiff Cawn, the formidable alliance of the Seiks, of the King, and of the Rohillas, were alledged as the motive. Whilſt the rains laſt, ſuch a bugbear might be held out, as it could not be contradicted; but at preſent, that we know from Nudjiff Cawn himſelf, that he is marching againſt the Seikes, to exterminate them as he had done before the Jauts, and that we are informed from Colonel Goddard, that the Nabob's dominions are likely to remain in profound peace, ſome other motive ſhould be aſſigned for the propoſed treaty, inſtead of the reaſon which was given two months ago: I call thereſore on the Governor General once more, before the departure of the ſhip under diſpatch, to declare his public reaſons for wiſhing to purſue this treaty; a treaty, if it is ever to have any effect, it muſt be by affording Nudjiff Cawn the means, with the Company's money, of oppreſſing his neighbours, or of invading Bengal with his banditti, under the pretence of defending it.

This is the only light I can ſee it in; but if the Governor General has better reaſons to aſſign, it is proper that he ſhould declare them, in order that the Company may judge on the fulleſt information, whether they will chuſe to ratify it or not. I have been all along ſingular in my opinion in the Council on this buſineſs; but the full conviction I have of the rectitude and propriety of it, perſuades me, that the Company will not diſapprove the different ſteps I have taken to avert the pernicious effects this treaty muſt p oduce.

I deſire that this Minute may be ſent a number in the packet, accompanied with any anſwer that the Governor General may pleaſe to give to it.

(Signed) J. Clavering.

The Secretary having waited on General Clavering with a draft of the general letter for his approval, was deſired by him to add the following information, in the paragraph which treats of the Nabob Aſoph ul Dowlah; viz. Appendix. No. 167.

"Indeed Colonel Goddard informs us, that the Seiks "have not come to any agreement with Zabiter Cawn, "and that he now apprehends no danger from that quar- "ter; he therefore the more ſtrongly recommends, that "the Nabob be adviſed to grant aſſiſtance to the Rhana "of Gohud, who has been attacked by the Marattas."

Which having done, the Secretary again ſhewed the letter to the Governor General, who made a further addition to the ſame paragraph; viz.

"Although the diſtracted condition of the Vizier's "Government, the reduced ſtate of the finances, and "his extreme and known weakneſs of mind, will ſtill "afford too much encouragement for the attempt."

The paragraph, as above corrected, was circulated for the approbation of the other Members of the Board, and the following Minutes were received upon it.

General Clavering—I object to the part introduced by the Governor General, as it ſeems only introduced to deceive the Court of Directors, without any authority from Mr. Briſtow's letters, in order to juſtify the propoſed treaty with Nudjiff Cawn.

(Signed) J. Clavering.

Mr. Barwell—I acquieſce to the Governor General's addition. (Signed) R. Barwell.

Mr. Francis—I am by no means ſatisfied that the dominions of the Nabob of Oude are in a ſtate of ſecurity, or that Nudjiff Cawn might not be uſefully engaged in the ſervice of our ally. If he will not previouſly diſmiſs Madoc and Sumroo, of courſe there can be no negociation of any kind with him. If he complies with the preliminary demand, I then think that we ought to avail ourſelves, in ſome ſhape or the other, of the renewal of his penſion, (againſt which I ſtood ſingular in Council) and not give it him for nothing.—This was the ground of my aſſent to Major Hannay's appointment; and I adhere to my opinion.

2d December 1776.

The Governor General delivered to the Secretary the following Minute, with directions that it ſhould make a number in the Naſſau's packet; which, after having been circulated for the information of the other Members of the Board, was accordingly done.

Governor General—I hope it will not be expected from me, that I ſhould give up my time to a minute diſcuſſion of all the arguments, or to refute all the perſonal inſinuations which occur in the numerous minutes, diſſents, and proteſts of General Clavering, which have been entered in the Conſultations of the public, ſecret, and revenue departments, in the courſe of the laſt two months.

Though the meaſures of the Board have been chiefly confined in that period to the diſpatch of current buſineſs, yet in the daily progreſs of it they have been oppoſed by the General with a vehemency, ſuitable only to meaſures in which the vital intereſts of the Company were at their laſt hazard.

The appointment of Major Hannay to negociate the terms of an alliance with Nudjiff Cawn, though the inevitable conſequence of my own recommendations made to the Court of Directors ſo long ago as the year 1773, and approved by them, is aſcribed to the deſign of procuring a lucrative commiſſion for Major Hannay. To this end I am charged with ſacrificing the honour and reputation of this Government; of loading the Company with an unprofitable expence, and devoting nations to deſtruction; to thoſe reflections I ſhall not reply. While I remain in charge of the Company's intereſts, I ſhall endeavour to ſecure them by the cloſeſt engagements that can be formed with Nudjif Cawn, as the only reſource, beſides our own army in that quarter, which can guard our ally the Nabob of Oude, where alliance is become both an embarraſſment, and a danger to us; and eventually the political intereſts of the Company, which are unfortunately connected with him. I regret that it is not in my power to complete the political barrier to this country: my influence and authority are too circumſcribed.

Whether a zeal for the intereſts of the Company, or a deſire to obſtruct and embarraſs thoſe operations of Government which he can no longer direct, is the motive which actuates the General in his oppoſition to every meaſure which has been adopted ſince his abſence from the Council, I leave to the judgment of my ſuperiors.

The death of Colonel Monſon, whoſe memory I reſpect for the military talents which he poſſeſſed, and the ſervices which he formerly rendered to the Company, and whoſe good will amidſt the unfortunate diſagreements which ſubſiſted between us, I ſtudiouſly endeavoured to conciliate, having placed the ſuperior weight of authority in that ſcale which ſhould conſtitutionally preponderate, but clogged with ſuch diſadvantages of inſtability and oppoſition as to render the reſponſibility annexed to it peculiarly difficult and hazardous. I had determined to avoid all kind of innovation, and to confine the influence which had thus unexpectedly devolved upon me, to the current and ordinary occurrences of Government, and to ſuch extraneous objects as might eventually ariſe and occupy our deliberations. I flattered myſelf, that the only inſtance in which I ſhould be obliged to depart from this reſolution was in the revenue, which the approaching period for forming the new ſettlement, and the time required for the neceſſary preparations of it, made unavoidable; and as a deciſion muſt ariſe before this can be effected, and the meaſures dependant on it carried into execution, no poſſible ill conſequences can be apprehended from it. But the ſtudied and vehement oppoſition of the General upon every occaſion, as it increaſes the reſponſibility with which I am charged, muſt force me in many inſtances to purſue a more deciſive conduct, and to act where I might otherwiſe only deliberate. Drawn into this ſituation, I ſhall no longer think myſelf bound to obſerve that regular attention which I have hitherto paid to every minute of controverſy, but reſerving to myſelf the privilege of replying only to ſuch as I may judge important enough to merit it, I ſhall paſs the reſt in ſilence.

I expect to meet with oppoſition and obſtruction in every ſtep that I take. It will therefore be the more incumbent on me to ſhun every occaſion which may divert me from my immediate duty, by a waſte of time in uſeleſs diſputation.

It is now the third year that I have endured a ſtate of the moſt mortifying and unmerited humiliation; my conduct arraigned, my character aſperſed, and my authority annihilated.

Impreſſed with the deepeſt ſenſe of obligation to the Company whom I have progreſſively ſerved during a ſeries of 26 years, in the moſt important ſtations: to the Parliament which inveſted me with the diſtinguiſhed office which had been aſſigned me, and to my Sovereign who nominated me to it, I reſolved, though with inexpreſſible reluctance, to ſacrifice my repoſe, and expoſe myſelf to that perſecution and unavailing toil which I ſaw prepared for me, and which has continued without the ſmalleſt remiſſion from the arrival of my colleagues in adminiſtration till the preſent hour; perſuading myſelf that the firſt reference of diſputes of ſo alarming a nature, would produce a final deciſion, and if not determine the victory in my favour, at leaſt relieve me from a ſituation equally painful and degrading. The diſappointment of this hope has been deeply aggravated by the harſhneſs of the cenſures which have been conveyed through the general letters of the Court of Directors, in terms of ſeverity, greatly exceeding thoſe which have been experienced by any, even the moſt obnoxious of my predeceſſors; how merited, it does not become me to ſay, nor will the reſpect and ſubmiſſion which I owe to their decrees, permit me either to examine the facts or principles upon which their reproaches are founded.

I can ſafely aver, that I have proſecuted the Company's intereſts with the moſt ardent and diſintereſted zeal, and with an unremitted labour. If this be profeſſion, let my adminiſtration be judged by its effects. In what period of the Company's exiſtence have they experienced a ſtate of proſperity, I will not ſay ſuperior, but equal to that in which I had their affairs in charge?

Notwithſtanding the diſcouragements I labour under, and the difficulties I muſt ſtill expect to encounter, I will adhere to my former declaration, of remaining in the Government, until I ſhall be removed from it by authority, which I confeſs I ſhall regard as a more deſirable event than to continue under the preſent circumſtances of a feeble and diſputed influence.

With the aſſiſtance of Mr. Barwell, on whoſe ſupport I moſt confidentially rely, and I will hope for that of Mr. Francis, I ſhall endeavour to diſcharge the reſponſibility ſo pointedly thrown upon me, ſo as to promote the neceſſary diſpatch of current buſineſs, and leaſt to embarraſs thoſe into whoſe hands the adminiſtration may be hereafter committed; wholly regardleſs of perſonal conſequences, and aſſured of leaving this country, whenever I leave it, with the good wiſhes of its inhabitants, and meeting the juſt applauſe of my conſtituents, and of every diſcerning and impartial man in the whole country.

PRESENT,

The Honourable Warren Haſtings, Eſquire, Governor General, Preſident.

General Clavering indiſpoſed.

Honourable Sir, and Sirs,

IN my addreſs of the 25th of November laſt, I expreſſed my opinion of the ſecurity of his Excellency's dominions from foreign attacks, and I really thought, that however well inclined Nudjif Cawn might be to come to a breach with the Vizier, the diſtreſſed ſtate of his affairs, and the conviction of the inferiority of his troops to the Vizier's, would deter him from ſuch an attempt. There is, however, no poſitively ſpeaking on a point of this nature, as Nudjiff Cawn's people did, within theſe few days, commit depredations on the Vizier's territories. The circumſtances were, that Nudjif Cawn had beſieged the fort of Marſaan, the poſſeſſor of which made his eſcape, and ſome Marattas in Nudjif Cawn's ſervice purſued him to Saſſy, which is in the Vizier's dominions, and they plundered the country; but Colonel Goddard, through whom the information of the circumſtances came, imputes this to the licentiouſneſs of the troops, and not to Nudjif Cawn himſelf. The Colonel has wrote to Nudjif Cawn that he was convinced the depredations were committed without his knowledge, and therefore requeſted reſtitution, and the offenders to be puniſhed. A copy of the inſtructions his Excellency was pleaſed to iſſue on this occaſion to Colonel Goddard, I have herewith the honour to incloſe.

Appendix. No. 168.

In my addreſs of the 25th of November, I mentioned to the Honourable Board my opinion of the probability, that the Sikes would not abide by the peace they had made with Nudjif Cawn; but I now underſtand it is moſt likely to laſt, as the chiefs, Gadjeput Sing and Ummer Sing, deſpair of any reinforcements from their own countrymen, and they conſider Nudjiff Cawn's force ſuperior to their own and Sabiter Cawn's united. Nudjiff Cawn ſtill declares his intention of proceeding to the preſence, and afterwards to bring his whole force againſt Sabiter Cawn. He purpoſes to ſolicit his Majeſty to diſpoſſeſs Sabiter Cawn of the office of Myr Buxſhy, and grant it to Saadit Ally, to whom he now profeſſes the ſtrongeſt attachment. In lieu of wanting him to give up Byaana, he has promiſed to grant him Futty-Abad, and the diſtricts aſſigned to Sumroo, for the ſupport of his party; but this only appears a pretence, for it is a doubtful caſe if he will be able to diſpoſſeſs Sumroo.

In regard to Saadit Ally's return, the Vizier is ſtill extremely averſe to it, and I am afraid my hopes of getting the better of his Excellency's objections, will not be accompliſhed; however, I ſhall refer Mr. Middleton to the inſtructions the Honourable Board were pleaſed to give me on this head. His Excellency excuſes himſelf principally on account of his inability to grant a jaghire ſuitable to Saadit Ally's rank, and that from the ſituation of affairs, he has nothing to apprehend from any foreign enemies. His arguments may in ſome meaſure be juſt; he however might with greater propriety beſtow a jaghire on Saadit Ally than many others who poſſeſs them; and although there is nothing to apprehend at preſent, ſtill this tranquillity may not laſt; and whenever it ſhould be interrupted Saadit Ally will always be a tool in the hands of the Vizier's enemies. In my humble opinion, both for Saadit Ally's own ſecurity, and the intereſts of the Company, he could not be better ſituated than to reſide under the protection of the Engliſh, where, in caſe of accidents, the Government would alſo without difficulty be able to conclude their own terms with him, and he be convinced of the propriety of them; but in the preſent ſituation of affairs, the ſucceſſion not being poſitively determined, and Saadit Ally conſidering himſelf independant, it might coſt ſome trouble to induce him to comply with the Company's intereſts in the manner he ought. I doubt if now Saadit Ally would wiſh to return without at leaſt a jaghire of three lacks of rupees; however, I have endeavoured to aſcertain this point by getting his vackeel to write to know his real ſentiments upon it.

The power of the Jauts appears now to be on the eve of being entirely extirpated, as Runjeet Sing remains in the poſſeſſion of the fort of Commone alone, and he cannot make the leaſt head againſt Mahomed Beg Hammedany, Nudjiff Cawn's officer in that part of the country; and it ſeems he alſo deſpairs of obtaining any aſſiſtance from the Marattas. The Rana of Ghode is likewiſe in a very bad ſituation: he had but a ſhort triumph; for the Marattas have at length fallen upon the moſt effectual means for ruining him. They have carefully avoided coming to action, turning all their views to plundering the country and cutting off his ſupplies, in which they have ſucceeded ſo well, that a few days ago they carried off from two conſiderable towns, money and effects to the amount of three lacks of rupees, and flour ſells in his camp for two ſeers a rupee.

Rajah Hindooput having died ſome time ſince, his eldeſt ſon Sumud Sing ſucceeded to nine lacks of his dominions, and his ſecond ſon Umrud Sing, to the remainder, without any diſturbance or material occurrence.

Philip Francis, }

Honourable Sir, and Sirs,

Since I laſt addreſſed the Honourable Board, I have received intelligence, the authenticity of which there is no reaſon to doubt, that Seadut Allee, who was beſieging Beeb, in the Beaunah province, with an army of about three thouſand men, having attempted to ſtorm the place, was repulſed with great loſs, and after his repulſe ſurrounded by a party of Marattas, brought by the Rana Kiſhoorey to the aſſiſtance of the Jauts, and a detachment of Pertaut Sing's troops. After a ſhort and moſt unequal conflict, Saadut Allee's forces were totally defeated, and he, with his people, obliged to retreat precipitately towards Deig, leaving moſt if not all his artillery, ammunition, and baggage behind him; he has reached a place called Candoo, a few coſs diſtant from Deig, where it appears he means to wait until he receives a reinforcement from Nudjif Cawn's army.

By the public accounts it appears, that Saadut Ally has loſt upwards of a thouſand men in the repulſe at Beeb and ſubſequent attack, in which are numbered many of his Sirdars and principal officers, but as the intelligence was ſent off immediately after the action it may in this particular be defective.

I ſhall do myſelf the pleaſure to addreſs the Honourable Board to-morrow, on the ſubject of my negociations with Zyne ul ab deen Cawn.

I am, &c.
Lucknow, (Signed) Nath. Middleton,
20th March 1777. Reſident Vizier's Court.

Honourable Sir, and Sirs,

I acquainted the Honourable Board, in my letter of the 20th inſtant, of the arrival of Zyne-ul-ab deen Cawn, Naib of the Doab; and I was in hopes I ſhould have been able long before this, to have informed them, that ſome ſatisfactory adjuſtment had been effected with him, by which I might hope to relieve the large balance due from him, and ſecure the punctual payment of his future kiſts; to this end I propoſed to him the raiſing a ſum of money on loan among the merchants of this place, at a moderate intereſt, and making over a certain proportion of his revenue, to be appropriated in monthly kiſts, to the liquidation of this debt; to which he was very willing to conſent. But his credit among the merchants and men of property was ſo low, that even with the ſecurity offered them none would liſten to his propoſals, unleſs I would become a party in the agreement, and pledge the faith of the Honourable Company for the ultimate ſecurity of the debt; this was an expedient I could by no means agree to, for beſides the riſk there might be in taking any degree of reſponſibility on myſelf, and the impropriety of engaging the Honourable Company in any private engagements of this nature, it might poſſibly be ſuppoſed to invalidate their claim upon the Vizier, to whom, as the tuncaws he has given I preſume can only be conſidered as collateral ſecurity, we muſt ultimately reſort for any balances ariſing upon them. Upon the failure of the expedient I propoſed, I could think of no better method of guarding againſt the fatal conſequences of Zyne-ul-ab deen Cawn's miſmanagement, than endeavouring to get from him jaydaards to the amount of the balance now due upon my tuncaw, and obliging him to enter into an obligation with me, that the revenue of the diſtricts thus aſſigned over ſhall be ſolely and entirely appropriated to the payment of my tuncaw; which he, after much altercation, conſented to; and I have the pleaſure to incloſe the Honourable Board a copy of his written obligation to that effect, marked marked N° 1. In order that I may have a ſufficient check upon him to prevent any deviation on his part, from the terms of the obligation he has entered into, I have appointed a Sezanwul over each of the Naibs on whom the aſſignments are given, who, with the conſent of Zyne-ul-ab deen Cawn, is inveſted with authority to call upon the Naib for an account Waſil Bakee of his diſtrict, to require regular information of the daily receipts of revenue from every Pergunnah, and to take effectual care that no part of it is appropriated to other uſes. For the more particular information of the Honourable Board, I beg leave to incloſe a copy of my inſtructions to the Sezanwuls, N° 2, which I flatter myſelf will evince to them that I have omitted no precaution whatever, which could tend to the ſecurity of the very heavy demand I have upon Zyne-ul-ab deen Cawn. The people I have ſent in the capacity of Sezanwuls are all men of credit and ability, and as they will by their ſtations gain a local knowledge of the preſent ſtate and capacity of the Doab, I apprehend they will be the propereſt men to ſucceed Zyne-ul-ab deen Cawn, ſhould it hereafter be found neceſſary to diſmiſs him his aumildary, which I am of opinion muſt be the caſe, as he appears to poſſeſs neither integrity nor ability equal to ſo important a charge, nor has he been able to account in any ſatisfactory manner for the appropriation of the money he appears to have collected; but an inveſtigation into this matter would have taken up many days, and have kept him from his buſineſs at a moſt critical period, and whatever proofs of delinquency might appear againſt him in the courſe of ſuch an inveſtigation, it would ſtill be impoſſible to diſmiſs him from his office, without riſking the moſt miſchievous conſequences, for at this ſeaſon of the year no men of credit or reſponſibility would take the country but upon the moſt advantageous terms to Government; I therefore thought it moſt prudent to appear ſatisfied myſelf, and to adviſe the Miniſters to content themſelves with taking every means in their power for the ſecurity of the future collections, ſuſpending an enquiry into Zyne-ul-ab deen Cawn's paſt conduct until a more favourable opportunity. I beg leave to incloſe the Honourable Board a liſt of the diſtricts which have been aſſigned over to me in Jaydaad, N° 3.—I have to remark that I have made choice of thoſe Pergunnahs which have been repreſented to me as the moſt flouriſhing and the moſt likely to yield the revenue at which they are eſtimated; but until the Sezanwuls arrive in the diſtricts I cannot poſitively aſcertain how far my hopes may be realized, as I have little more than Zyne-ul-ab deen Cawn's own report to form my judgment upon. If however upon a local inveſtigation it ſhould appear that theſe diſtricts have been over-rated, I will inſiſt on their being exchanged, or having the revenue of others aſſigned over to me to make good the deficiency. As the mode of taking ſeparate jaydaards ſeems beſt calculated to obviate large balances upon my tuncaws, I have adopted it in every diſtrict where I thought it likely the collections would fall ſhort, which I am ſorry to ſay comprehends almoſt every one upon which I have any demand, and the deſcription, with a very few exceptions, might juſtly be extended to every diſtrict in the Vizier's dominions. It is with concern I exhibit to the Honourable Board ſo unfavourable a picture of his Excellency's affairs, but I ſhould ill acquit myſelf of the duty I owe my employers, were I to conceal my ſentiments upon a matter which appears of ſuch ſerious conſequence to this Government. By the accounts and ſtatements which Mr. Briſtow tranſmitted the Honourable Board a few days after my arrival, they would perceive that the Nabob's diſburſements, at the rate he is now going on, exceed his annual income many lacks; but if thoſe ſtatements are juſt, which from the beſt information I have been able to obtain, I have no reaſon to doubt, the deficiency will be far more conſiderable than Mr. Briſtow has ſuppoſed, he having formed his eſtimate upon the jummabundy of the country, without making any allowance for balances, which I believe I may venture to affirm will, at the cloſe of the year, be little ſhort of one fifth of the whole eſtimated revenue at the time; as I have already obſerved, there is ſcarcely a diſtrict throughout the Nabob's dominions that is not conſiderably in balance. In this and the enſuing month, 'tis true large collections will be made, and the arrears to that time probably nearly paid up; but it is alſo equally true, that after that period the collections will bear no proportion to the kiſts. In this ſituation I ſubmit it to the conſideration of the Honourable Board, how far it may be proper to interfere in preſſing the Nabob to regulate his expences, either by a reform in his military eſtabliſhment, or a retrenchment in his civil diſburſements, ſo as to bring them more upon a footing with the probable income.

Honourable Sir, and Sirs,

Accompanying I have the honour to tranſmit you my caſh account for the month of February laſt. Honourable Sir, and Sirs, Incloſed I have the honour to ſerward you the Paymaſter of the 3d brigade's receipts for the two laſt remittances made him, as charged in my caſh account for February, tranſmitted the Honourable Board with my addreſs, under date 20th inſtant.

I am, &c.

Lucknow, 24th March 1777. (Signed) Nath' Middleton, Reſident Vizier's Court.

Honourable Sir, and Sirs,

I have juſt received intelligence through an authentic channel, that the Jauts under Runjeet Sing, reinforced by the body of Marattas which lately defeated Saadut Ally's party, have purſued their conqueſt to the walls of Deek, and were actually preparing to beſiege that place. Nudjiff Cawn ſome days ago detached Mahommed Beg Amdany with three battalions and ſome irregulars, to ſuccour Saadut Allee, but this force is by no means equal to the united army of the Jauts and Marattas now aſſembled at Deek; and it is ſuppoſed, that he himſelf will be obliged to march immediately with the greateſt part of his army, to maintain his poſſeſſions in that quarter.

Nudjiff Cawn is uſing all his influence to perſuade the King to accompany him to Deek, but his endeavours have hitherto proved ineffectual, and all accounts ſeem to agree his Majeſty will ſhortly return to his reſidence in the capital, being wearied with fruitleſs negociations, and more diſtreſſed than ever by the cabals and oppoſite intereſts and views of his Miniſters and Nudjiff Cawn. His Majeſty's expectations were raiſed to the higheſt pitch by the flattring aſſurances of Nudjiff Cawn on his arrival at court; and the extremity of his diſtreſſes would probably have induced him to ſacrifice the cauſe of his favourite Miniſter to any means of immediate relief, but he ſoon diſcovered that Nudjiff Cawn had not the power, nor, as he ſuſpected, the inclination to afford him effectual ſupport, and being taught to ſuppoſe, that his views were directed to an arbitrary and independant controul over every department, he choſe rather to confide in the attachment of his old Miniſter, than to throw himſelf at once into the hands of one who he ſuſpected would aſſume the entire reins of government, and leave him not even the ſhadow of Majeſty.

Theſe

Theſe are the principles on which the King profeſſes to have ſuppoſed the influence of the Nudjiff Cawn, but I apprehend he has ſuffered his ſuſpicions to counteract what would appear to be his true intereſt, for however Nudjiff Cawn may in his preſent ſituation be unable to aſſiſt his Majeſty, he is certainly the only perſon he can ultimately look to for ſupport. I have, &c.

Extract of the Secret Letter from Bengal, dated 25th November 1776.

2. At the period we wrote that letter, we had received news of the death of Elich Cawn, the Nabob of Oude's chief Miniſter. Sirut Sing, the Naib of Rohilcund, was the perſon deſigned by the Nabob to ſucceed to the vacant appointment, but he declined that truſt, and it has ſince been conferred upon Huſſen Reza Cawn, a man who Mr. Briſtow aſſures us is well inclined to promote the intereſts of the Company, and to cement the friendſhip which ſubſiſts between them and the Nabob's government.

3. The regulation of the Nabob's domeſtic affairs appears to be the chief object at preſent which requires the attention of the new Miniſter, as the late apprehenſions of danger ſuggeſted to us from that quarter, on account of combinations ſaid to be forming between the different Powers whoſe territories lie adjacent to thoſe of the Nabob's, have not been mentioned in the letters we have received from thence ſince the concluſion of the rains. The low ſituation of the Nabob's treaſury, the diſſentions in his army, the ſubſequent reduction of his forces, and the animoſities which at that time ſubſiſted in his Court, no doubt combined to raiſe the expectations of the enemies of his Government, and to cauſe in ſome meaſure his own alarms on the ſmalleſt appearance of warlike preparations, or ſecret negociations among the States in his neighbourhood.

Conſ. 24th October.

4. The fair ſeaſon being advanced without any attack on the Nabob's dominions, or any immediate probability of ſuch an event, we hope it will not happen; indeed Colonel Goddard informs us, that the Seiks have not come to any agreement with Zabita Cawn, and that he now apprehends no danger from that quarter; he therefore the more ſtrongly recommends, that the Nabob ſhould be adviſed to grant aſſiſtance to the Rana of Gohud, who has been attacked by the Marattas. Colonel Goddard's attention is taken up with training the Nabob's army under his command to military diſcipline, and eſtabliſhing the different corps after the plan of the Company's ſervice, which will ſoon give them conſequence in the eyes of the country Powers, and conſequently make an attack on his territories the more difficult, although the diſtracted condition of the Vizier's Government, the reduced ſtate of his finances, and his extreme and known weakneſs of mind, will ſtill afford too much encouragement for the attempt.

5. We have recommended to Colonel Goddard to be particularly careful that the pay of the troops under his command be regularly iſſued and paid to them without any ſtoppages or deductions. We have alſo forbid the officers in the Nabob's ſervice from taking any concern in the collections of his revenues, under colour of the Nabob's tuncaws or otherwiſe, from lending money to any of the Nabob's ſubjects, and from dealing in any pecuniary or mercantile tranſaction with them.

6. Colonel Goddard has made an application to us for an officer to be appointed to the chief command of the Nabob's artillery; but the eſtabliſhment of our own corps of artillery being too ſmall to admit of our ſparing any more officers from it to the Nabob's ſervice, we were under the neceſſity of refuſing our compliance. The Nabob alſo deſired an officer to hold the poſt of Quarter-maſter General to his troops; and Colonel Goddard having mentioned this application in one of his letters, the Commander in Chief propoſed Captain Primroſe Thomſon, whom you had recommended to his notice, for the appointment; but as we are not yet convinced of the neceſſity of ſuch an appointment in the Nabob's ſervice, Colonel Goddard not having recommended it, and the Nabob who applied for it not being, in our opinion, a competent judge of the propriety of it, we have for the preſent agreed that his requeſt ſhall remain ſuſpended for further conſideration. Appendix. No. 169.

8. Major Hannay, who is now at Chunar, and has written to Nudjiff Cawn from that place on the preliminary conditions of his propoſed deputation to him, will wait there till he obtains a final anſwer reſpecting the diſmiſſion of Sumroo. We have alſo directed Major Hannay to urge to Nudjiff Cawn, in the ſtrongeſt terms, the neceſſity of his prevailing on Saudit Ally to quit his court.

10. The Perſian correſpondence ſent home by the Syren, will have furniſhed you with copies of an extraordinary and peremptory requiſition from Shaw Allum, for the amount of his tribute on the Dewanny lands. Our reply, which firſt imparted to him your ſentiments on this ſubject, was founded on your letter of the 3d April 1775, directing the ſuſpenſion of all payments on this account till further orders. Mudjeed o'Dowla, the King's Prime Miniſter, has lately renewed his application in a letter to the Governor General, in which he alſo deſires an interview at Benares, promiſes that he will perform the journey himſelf, to accompliſh it, on the condition of our remitting 15 lacks of rupees in part, to the preſence; and he endeavours to make this propoſal as ſpecious as poſſible, by aſſurances that "if we will attend to his councils for the ſpace of one year, the affairs of all Hindoſtan ſhall be diſpoſed of ſo properly, that the Company will reap two-fold the advantages they now receive."

APPENDIX, No. 169.

Extract of a Letter from Lieutenant Colonel Goddard.

Gentlemen,

IN a former letter I had the honour to addreſs you, I mentioned the ſituation of the Ranna of Gohud, and how much he appeared to me an object worthy the attention of this Government. I again requeſt to recommend this matter to your conſideration: the Marattas have entered his country, and threaten to make themſelves maſters of it, which they will eaſily be able to effect if the Ranna is left to himſelf. He has implored aſſiſtance from the Vizier, and as his country is ſo ſituated as to form a barrier betwixt the Marattas and the Nawab's dominions, it muſt ſurely be policy to aſſiſt a man whoſe intereſt will always prompt him to be faithful to the Power that ſupports him.

The intelligence from Delhi mentioned, that the King, diſappointed in his wiſhes of protection and countenance from the Engliſh, propoſes throwing himſelf into the arms of the Seiks, who have never yet come into any actual agreement with Zabita Cawn, as he cannot comply with their demands of a ſum of money, the payment of which they inſiſt upon as a preliminary article. Indeed, there now appears no grounds to apprehend the Vizier's dominions will be attacked from that quarter; and I am led to mention this as a further inducement why protection ſhould be given to the Gohud Ranna, in which his Excellency will only act as an auxiliary, and by a timely interpoſition muſt probably prevent his becoming a principal on ſome future occaſion, when the Marattas having conquered Gohud, ſhall find themſelves powerful enough to make incurſions into the Vizier's dominions.

I alſo beg leave to repreſent to you the preſent ſtate of the Nawab's troops, which I can with ſatisfaction affirm, from their ſubordination and obedience to their officers, as well as the degree of diſcipline they have obtained, to be capable of executing every ſervice that may be required from them with ſpirit and fidelity. That part of

of the army in Robilcund was the laſt which ſubmitted properly to authority, nor was it till after the diſmiſſion of one of Captain Hoggan's battalions, that the remainder ſtationed in that quarter, intimidated by ſuch an example, made thoſe profeſſions of attachment and ſubmiſſion mentioned in Captain Erſkine's letter to the Commander in Chief; and it is even ſince that period, that they have conſented to receive their pay by the calendar month, to a reduction of it, to ſtoppages for cloathing, &c. and to ſome other regulations I thought it neceſſary to make on my firſt arrival, putting them upon a level with the Sepoys in the Company's ſervice.

PRESENT,

The Honourable Warren Haſtings, Governor General, Preſident,
Lieutenant General John Clavering,
Richard Barwell, Philip Francis, } Eſquires.

Read the following letter from Mr. Middleton:

Honourable Sir, and Sirs,

By intelligence juſt received from the weſtward, I underſtand that the Rana of Goad has concluded a peace with the Marattas; in conſequence of which he has reſtored to them all the countries, elephants, guns, &c. which he had taken from them in the courſe of the campaign. It does not appear from the accounts tranſmitted me, what are the conditions of the peace, or whether any compenſations have been made the Rana for the advantage he has relinquiſhed; it is certain, however, although he has ſupported himſelf with great credit and ſucceſs againſt the Marattas, during the whole campaign, he has long wiſhed for peace, and probably was glad to purchaſe it on any terms, more eſpecially as a detachment of ten thouſand men with twelve guns were on their way from the Decan to reinforce Baboo Hulcar, at the time the peace was concluded, and have ſince actually joined him. This army will now probably be turned againſt Nudjiff Cawn in the Jaut country, with which view it is ſuppoſed the peace was ſo haſtily concluded with the Rana of Goad. Mahomed Beg Amdarny, who was ſome time ſince ſent with a detachment againſt the Jauts and Marattas, in the neighbourhood of Dieg, has had ſeveral ſkirmiſhes with different bodies of them, and been tolerably ſucceſsful; but two other of Nudjiff Cawn's battalions, which were employed ſeparately upon the ſame ſervice, have been defeated, with a conſiderable loſs of blood and the whole of their cannon, which they were obliged to leave behind them in their precipitate retreat.

In my addreſs to the Honourable Board of the 6th inſtant, I mentioned the improbability of Zabita Cawn's obeying the King's ſummons; but it ſeems likely that he will ſoon make his appearance at court; a deputation having been appointed by the King to meet and eſcort him to the preſence. Lettafut Ally Cawn, from whom I derive my information, is one of the deputies.

I have, &c.

Lucknow, (Signed) Nath^{l} Middleton, 16th April 1777. Reſident Vizier's Court.

To the Honourable the Court of Directors for Affairs of the Honourable United Company of Merchants of England trading to the Eaſt Indies.

Honourable Sirs,

1. Our laſt Addreſs from this department, under date the 27th March, was diſpatched to you by the Aſhburnham; we have now an opportunity of forwarding a duplicate of it by the Hotter from Madras.

2. We had juſt received the news of Colonel Goddard's having ſubdued the fort of Minpory in time to communicate this event to you by our laſt diſpatch. Although the Nabob's troops had hitherto been ſucceſsful in their operations againſt the refractory Jemindars in the Doab, yet it was not without loſs on both ſides; and we conſidered that ſuch violent meaſures might tend to alienate the affections of the Nabob's new ſubjects from his government, and at the ſame time affect the credit of the Engliſh name; we therefore recommended it to him to try the effects of more lenient and conciliatory proceedings. We have however the pleaſure to obſerve, that the reduction of the above-mentioned fortreſs has put an end to the campaign, and that all the remaining Zemindars have come to an amicable adjuſtment with the Nabob's Aumils.

3. We are informed that a peace has been concluded between the Rhana of Goad and the Marattas, by which the former has engaged to reſtore all the countries which he has taken from the Marattas, ſince the commencement of their late differences. Mr. Middleton ſuppoſes, in conſequence of this pacification, that the Marattas will turn their arms againſt Nudjiff Cawn in ſupport of the Jauts, who had renewed the war with him, and gained ſome advantages over a part of his army in the neighbourhood of Deig.

4. The laſt advices which we received from Major Hannay were dated at Lucknow, to which place he had gone for the ſake of a more ready communication with Nudjiff Cawn on the preliminary articles of his deputation; and becauſe Mirza Kaleel, a perſon high in the confidence of that Chief, reſided there in the capacity of his vackeel at the Vizier's Court, and might be uſeful in promoting the ſucceſs of the negociation. On receipt of this information we debated on the propriety of Major Hannay's conduct in quitting Chunar, and we beg leave to tranſmit you a copy of our minutes on this occaſion.

5. The Governor General has laid before us a plan for the regulation of the Nabob's troops commanded by Britiſh officers, which is now under our conſideration; we beg leave to ſend a copy of it for your information.

6. Mr. Briſtow having brought down to the Preſidency a parcel of jewels, invoiced at 2,35,451 rupees, which remained of a quantity received of the Nabob on account of the Company, we have ordered them to be ſold at public auction on the 15th inſtant, and ſhould give the Nabob credit for the amount of their produce, according to an agreement made by Mr. Briſtow with him for that purpoſe.

7. We underſtand from private advices, that Colonel Upton left Poonah on the 7th March, on his way back to Bengal, and that he was at Hydrabad on the 5th ultimo.

We have the honour to be,
Honourable Sirs,
Your moſt faithful humble ſervants,
Warren Haſtings,
Fort William, J. Clavering, the 9th May 1777. Rich^{d} Barwell.

END OF THE FIFTH REPORT.

SIXTH REPORT

FROM THE

COMMITTEE OF SECRECY,

APPOINTED TO ENQUIRE INTO

THE CAUSES OF THE WAR IN THE

CARNATIC,

AND OF

THE CONDITION OF THE BRITISH POSSESSIONS IN THOSE PARTS.

Reported by the LORD ADVOCATE of SCOTLAND (HENRY DUNDAS, Esq.)
6th March, 1782.

SIXTH REPORT FROM THE COMMITTEE OF SECRECY, &c.

6th March 1782.

The Second Maratta War.

The COMMITTEE of SECRECY, appointed to enquire into the Cauſes of the War that now ſubſiſts in the Carnatic, and of the preſent Condition of the Britiſh Poſſeſſions in thoſe Parts, and to report the ſame to the Houſe, with their Obſervations thereupon, and who were inſtructed to enquire into the Riſe, Progreſs, Conduct, and preſent State of the Maratta War, and all other Hoſtilities in which the Preſidency of Bengal now are, or have been, engaged, in the Support of that War; and of the Effects which the ſaid War and Hoſtilities may have produced in Bengal, and the other Settlements and Poſſeſſions of the Eaſt-India Company;

HAVING in their preceding Report upon this ſubject, taken a curſory view of the general ſtate of politics, and probable diſpoſition of the ſeveral Powers in any degree intereſted in the diſputes between the Britiſh Governments in India and the Maratta Nation, at the period when Colonel Upton returned from Poonah to Fort William, in July 1777, deſire now to carry back the attention of the Houſe, to examine whether thoſe differences were effectually compromiſed and peace reſtored with a likelihood of permanency, between the Company and the Poonah Government.

It appears that a vackeel from the Maratta Court accompanied Colonel Upton on his return to Calcutta; and it will be remembered, that the Miniſters had expreſſed an earneſt deſire to prepare for him a welcome reception by the Governor General and Council, in the view of thereby forming a ſtronger cement to the reconciliation of the two governments. But we have diſcovered very early proofs that the final ſettlement of all differences was not yet accompliſhed. This is very ſtrongly manifeſted by letters and papers of mutual complaint interchanged between Mr. Moſtyn and the Poonah Durbar, ſoon after his arrival there, and by accounts from the agents who had been ſent to Broach, in order to agree upon the allotment of a country of three lacks. And we have further obſerved, that the Maratta Miniſter, Siccaram Baboo, after recapitulating many ſubjects of complaint, in a letter to Colonel Upton, deſired at the ſame time to inform the Supreme Council of the arrival of ſome gentlemen on the part of the King of France, in one of their Maratta ports, and of the real motives which had induced the Miniſters to permit their approach to the preſence, and to explain the ſubject of their miſſion, being aware, "that the Governor and Council of Bombay would repreſent that "matter to them in an injurious light."

And your Committee have indeed found that the accounts tranſmitted by the Bombay Government, and alſo by Mr. Moſtyn from Poonah, of the welcome reception given to the French agents and of their ſuppoſed deſigns, convey a very different idea of the miniſterial views in this tranſaction. It appears by theſe letters, that the principal perſon of the embaſſy called himſelf the Chevalier de St. Laub, and that their viſit was in conſequence of an application from the Maratta Governor to the French Chief at Surat during the late troubles: that they came in a large frigate to Choul, and it was ſaid with a commiſſion independent of the Government of Pondicherry: that the real object of their deputation was not known, but was ſuſpected to aim at the ſettling a factory in Poonah, and obtaining a ſea port in ſome part of the Malabar Coaſt under the Maratta dominions. And though Mr. Moſtyn, in anſwer to his remonſtrances to the Durbar, was aſſured that nothing was intended to the prejudice of the Company, the Preſidency of Bombay were apprehenſive of very bad conſequences to their trade, and of a dangerous influence to their diſadvantage in caſe of a national war, ſhould the French ſucceed in obtaining ſuch conceſſions from the Maratta Government; and they had therefore inſtructed Mr. Moſtyn, that he ſhould endeavour "to excite their jealouſy, by repre- "ſenting the ambitious views and encroaching diſpoſi- "tion of that nation, and their attachment to Hyder Ally, "and

" and at the ſame time to make it his ſtudy himſelf to " preſerve the moſt amicable correſpondence with the " Durbar." The Chevalier, who had obtained an early permiſſion to lay up his ſhip for the bad ſeaſon at Choul, and to land a conſiderable quantity of artillery and military ſtores, appears to have had his audience of the Peiſhwa on the 8th of May, and to have then delivered a letter, purporting to be from the French King, and another from his Miniſter; on which occaſion Mr. Moſtyn renewed his repreſentations and remonſtrances, and ſeems not to have been fully ſatisfied with the anſwer returned to him; but obſerving ſoon afterwards a change of behaviour in the Miniſters towards the Chevalier (whom he now found to be Monſieur de St. Lubin) he imputed it to a ſuſpicion which had ariſen, through the Nabob of Arcot's vackeel, of his having acted without authority, and having preſented fictitious letters to the Peiſhwa.

Your Committee find that the Governor General and Council had ſuſpended their conſideration and judgment upon all theſe matters till Colonel Upton's return; though General Clavering appears to have previouſly declared, that as all the acts of the Bombay Preſidency had been ſo manifeſtly hoſtile to the Maratta State, he was not ſurpriſed at their endeavour to form connections with the French, to protect themſelves againſt ſuch unfriendly and unjuſtifiable proceedings; and he wiſhed to induce the Court of Directors to enforce a change of conduct by their authority. Upon Colonel Upton's arrival, the Board ordered all letters and incloſures which they had received from Bombay and from Poonah, to be delivered to him; and deſired his opinion as well upon the difficulties which ſtill retarded the execution of the treaty, as upon the probability of ſucceſs to the intrigues of St. Lubin. The anſwer of Colonel Upton to theſe references, which will be found in the Appendix, N° 11, is very full, aſcribing to the Preſidency of Bombay, almoſt in every inſtance, the blame of wilful delay, and other unwarrantable obſtructions to the concluſion of the treaty; and declaring a firm opinion, that when all the conditions of it ſhould be carried into execution, the French intrigues at the Maratta Durbar would no longer give any alarm, and that if a Miniſter from the Superior Council was ſent to reſide there, which the Peiſhwa and the Miniſters had ever requeſted, the intereſt of the Company with the Poonah Government would be ſecured againſt every attempt to ſupplant it.

Appx. No. 10. See Appx. in the Fifth Rept. Ben. Sec. Conſ. 17 July 1777. D° 11 Aug. 1777. Appx. No. 11.

Theſe remarks, together with an abſtract, prepared by order of the Board, of ſuch other particulars as had not been decided upon by them, became the ſubject of their conſideration on the 14th Auguſt; and their letter of the 18th to the Preſident and Council of Bombay, contains their general ſentiments on thoſe ſubjects; to which, in conſequence of another letter then received from that Preſidency, communicating freſh advices in regard to the adjuſtment of mutual ſtipulations, particularly in the province of the Guzerat, they added, in reply, additional obſervations and inſtructions.

It ſhould be here obſerved, that a letter was afterwards received by Colonel Upton, from Futty Sing, in which he declared that he had found himſelf compelled, by the circumſtances of his ſituation, to make the alienations, which he was at the ſame time conſcious he had not a right to do, of the diſtricts in the Guzerat Province.

27 Oct. 1777. Appx. No. 13.

Your Committee have obſerved, that many reports, in addition to thoſe ariſing from the projects of St. Lubin, of the inimical deſigns of the French, had for ſome time paſt been brought from different parts to the Supreme Council; and the Governor General had himſelf ſuggeſted ſome ſuſpicions of them, although he did not think ſufficiently ſtrong to cauſe any immediate alarm for the provinces of Bengal, or the neceſſity of removing ſome battalions of the brigades from their ſtation in the Vizier's country, which General Clavering had propoſed. But he afterwards adviſed that a letter ſhould be ſent to the Preſidencies of Fort Saint George and Bombay, requeſting them to tranſmit a return of the actual ſtate of their forces, together with their ſentiments upon the beſt preparatory ſteps to be taken for reſiſtance, in caſe of invaſion on any of the Company's ſettlements.

With regard to the progreſs of Monſieur de St. Lubin's negociations, our Committee have found, that the Supreme Council, in a letter to the Preſidency of Bombay, complained of the want of information from them on this ſubject, though it had appeared by a paper, which had accidentally fallen into Mr. Moſtyn's hands, written by St. Lubin's Secretary, that he was certainly charged with a commiſſion from France, and that his ſucceſs muſt of courſe be attended with conſequences very detrimental to the intereſts of the Company. This complaint was afterwards ſtill more ſeriouſly repeated, upon account of Mr. Moſtyn's ſudden return to Bombay, and the delay of the Preſident and Council in communicating the propoſals which he brought from the Maratta Government. But by other accounts tranſmitted from Poonah in Mr. Moſtyn's abſence, we perceive that not only Monſieur de St. Lubin appeared to have a greater influence than ever with the Miniſters, but that his intereſt prevailed ſo far as to procure encouragement alſo for the agent of another foreign Power, who was lately arrived, and who was likely to be allowed to fix an Auſtrian ſettlement on the Maratta Coaſt, by the particular favour of Nanna Furneſe. At the ſame time, a quarrel which happened between Monſieur de St. Lubin and ſome perſons of his ſuite, opened a ſource of further information relative to the origin and advancement of his ſcheme. Theſe perſons, it ſeems, pretending an alarm at the reſentment of their principal, had ſought an aſylum under the protection of Mr. Lewis (the Aſſiſtant Reſident) which he readily afforded them. The Government of Bombay, when informed of the circumſtances, aſſured him of their approbation, and directed that he ſhould ſend the two gentlemen to the Preſidency. The Miniſter however (Nanna Furneſe) refuſed the Duſtuck to paſs them out of the Maratta territories, which Mr. Lewis attributed to the influence of St. Lubin. It appears to your Committee, that the Governor General and Council highly condemned this whole tranſaction, as a probable cauſe of new diſſentions with the Miniſters; intimating alſo their ſtrong ſuſpicion of impoſture and ſtratagem in colluſion with St. Lubin, for the purpoſe of fomenting diſunion between the Engliſh and that Government.

Ben. Sec. Conſ. 29 Dec. 1777. Appx. No. 21.

But your Committee have found further accounts of theſe proceedings in a letter from Mr. Farmer, who happened to be then at Poonah, to the Bombay Government, which the Preſident and Council incloſed on the 7th of December in a long Diſpatch to the Calcutta Board; and tranſmitting alſo therein the propoſals which had been delivered to Mr. Moſtyn, by the Maratta Miniſters, they declared, that if Ragoba ſhould not chuſe to accept the conditions proffered to him, which were certainly more ſpecious than ſolid, they could not prevail on themſelves to remove him by force from their ſettlements, eſpecially " as the Honourable Company, " in a letter dated 16th April 1777, juſt received, con- " ſidered the perſonal ſafety of Ragoba of ſo much im- " portance, as to make it one of the conditions of their " acquieſcing in the late treaty." The plain tenor and drift of this Addreſs to the Superior Council, enforced by a copy of the general letter (both of which we have placed at length in the Appendix, No. 23, for the particular attention of the Houſe) was calculated to inſpire a diſtruſt of artifice and duplicity in the Maratta Miniſters, and of their combination with the French to invade the Britiſh ſettlements. It diſcovers alſo the further deſign of perſuading the Superior Council to an anticipation of theſe hoſtile machinations, by a prior attack on the projectors; and endeavours to evince the certainty of ſucceſs againſt a divided Government and a weak, ill-paid army, hard preſſed by Hyder Ally; concluding with a repreſentation of the limited powers and unprovided reſources of their own Preſidency, which left them unauthorized and unequal to the undertaking, without the advice and ſupport of the ſuperintending Government, to whom they had done their duty in ſubmitting theſe neceſſary recommendations.

Your Committee indeed obſerve, from the contents of the General Letter of the 16th April, referred to above, that the Court of Directors, though they gave their ſanction to the treaty concluded by Colonel Upton, were not entirely ſatisfied with the terms of it, as it had not procured the ſurrender of Beſſein to the Company; and alſo that they did not approve of the mode of interference by the Superior Council in ſending an Ambaſſador to Poonah, but plainly pointed out a more limited ſenſe, in which they ſhould expect the ſuperintending power to be for the future regarded; amounting to little more than a reſervation of the right of final approval and ratification of treaties, which the other Preſidencies, in matters affecting their dependencies, ſhould be authorized to negotiate. And your Committee have further obſerved, that the Court very ſtrongly intimated the preference which they ſhould have given to an alliance with Ragoba, and eſpecially in the following directions: "If "the Conditions of the Treaty of Poonah have not been "ſtrictly fulfilled on the part of the Marattas, and if "from any circumſtances our Governor General and "Council ſhall deem it expedient, we have no objection "to an alliance with Ragoba, on the terms agreed upon "between him and you."

Ben. Sec. Conſ. 26 Jan. 1778. Appex. No. 24. No. 24. Extract of General Letter to Bengal, 5 Feb. 1777.

Your Committee find, that on the 26th January the Governor General delivered in a Minute to the Board, which having been prepared before the arrival of the advices juſt mentioned from Bombay, was not deſigned as an anſwer or aſſent to them, though turning upon the ſame ſubject, it will of courſe be found in many reſpects applicable to them. And we ſhould not indeed omit to remark, that a letter from the Court of Directors, under date 5th February 1777, to Bengal, was received in the month of November following; and as it contains obſervations and directions ſimilar to thoſe addreſſed to Bombay in the Diſpatch of the 16th of April, the Governor General was of courſe aware of the Company's ſentiments at the time he drew up this Minute for the conſideration of the Board, and he evidently formed his general plan in obſervance of the Company's orders.

It contains a ſtrong recommendation to adopt deciſive meaſures, either for the purpoſe of final pacification or open hoſtility, between which alternatives it was become neceſſary to determine upon a poſitive choice or offer; that mutual infractions (real or ſuppoſed) of the treaty of Poorunder, and the certainty of engagements having been entered into between the Maratta Miniſters and the French Agent, made it incumbent upon the Company's ſervants to be at leaſt prepared for either event, and induced him to propoſe a plan for accommodation, which ſhould be held concluſive.

Your Committee obſerve in this plan material alterations and amendments of the treaty of Poorunder; the principal objects of it appear to be a ſtipulation of more advantageous conditions in favour of Ragoba, and the eventual or immediate acquiſition of Beſſein to the Company, providing againſt the further effects of the French intrigues at the Court of Poonah, and propoſing to detach a ſtrong reinforcement of troops to the Preſidency of Bombay, with the ſupport of which they might the more confidently inſiſt upon the propoſed terms of accommodation, or make the beſt advantage of any change of government in Poonah; but that above all, they might be enabled to reſiſt any attempts which the French ſhould make to the prejudice of the Company's intereſts on that ſide of India.

Ben. Sec. Conſ. 29th January 1778. Appx. No. 25. See Letter from Bombay, dated 12th December 1777.

But your Committee find, that a few days after the delivery of theſe propoſitions, and before the opinions of the ſeveral Members of the Council had been given upon them, advices were received by the Board from the Preſident and Council of Bombay, containing intelligence of new events, and an alteration of circumſtances, which ſuperſeded the further conſideration of them. It appears, as well by the records of the ſecret proceedings of the Preſident and Council of Bombay, on the 10th and 12th December 1777, as by their letter to Bengal of that date, that overtures had been made to Mr. Lewis, Deputy Reſident at Poonah, on the part of Siccaram Baboo, Moraba Furneſe, Burcheba Pronder, and Tookajee Holkar, for the Company's aſſiſtance, to bring Ragoba to Poonah, and that the Preſident and Council of Bombay had unanimouſly agreed to encourage the plan, in caſe Siccaram Baboo and the other Chiefs would make the application under their own Siccas and hand writing: that they had commiſſioned Mr. Lewis to communicate their reſolutions with all poſſible ſecrecy and expedition to the confederates; and that they had requeſted the Preſidency of Fort Saint George to order 200 European infantry, half a company of artillery, with their officers, and a battalion of Sepoys, to be held in readineſs to march to Anjengo on receipt of further advices from Bombay; and that they hoped the Governor General and Council would give their hearty concurrence and ſupport to the meaſures which muſt be adopted in conſequence of their reſolutions.

Ben. Sec. Conſ. 10 and 12 December. Appx. No. 26

The conſultations and debates which aroſe in the Supreme Council from a conſideration of this ſubject, are placed together in the Appendix, N° 27, and entirely merit the attention of the Houſe. By theſe it will be found, that although much oppoſition was made to propoſals of approbation and encouragement to the Preſidency of Bombay, on account of their deſigns in favour of Ragoba, it was reſolved by the majority of the Board (which the caſting voice of the Governor General decided) as follows:

Sec. Conſ. 29 January and 2 February 1778. Appx. No. 27. See alſo the Minutes referred to in Appendix, No. 29.

"Reſolved, 1ſt, That it is the opinion of the Board, "that the Preſident and Council of Bombay are warranted, by the Treaty of Poorunder, to join in a plan "for conducting Ragonaut Row to Poonah, on the application of the ruling part of the adminiſtration of "the Maratta State.

"2d. Reſolved, That it is the opinion of the Board, "that the Preſident and Council of Bombay are warranted, by the orders of the Court of Directors, to "give their ſupport to the pretenſions of Ragonaut "Row, if they can afford it without a violation of the "Treaty.

"3d. Reſolved, That the plan which the Preſident "and Council of Bombay have agreed to form with the "Maratta Government, as explained in their proceedings of the 10th December, and in their letter of the "12th December 1777, be approved.

"4th. Reſolved, That the ſanction of this Government be given to the plan, which the Preſident and "Council have agreed to form with the Maratta Government, as above expreſſed; and that they be authorized to carry the ſame into execution by ſuch means "as they ſhall judge moſt adviſable, provided theſe be "conſiſtent with the treaty, and the orders of the Court "of Directors.

"5th. Reſolved, That the Company not being bound "by the Treaty of Poorunder to take part in the diſputes "of the Maratta Government, are therefore entitled to "any further advantages that may be obtained by negociation, as a compenſation for the hazard and expence of their interpoſition and aſſiſtance.

"6th. Reſolved, That it is the opinion of this Board, "that the following are proper objects to be required as "a compenſation for the interpoſition of the Company, "and that it be recommended to the Preſident and "Council of Bombay, to obtain them accordingly; "viz.

"1ſt. That ſuch reaſonable and practicable ſecu"rity be obtained for the perſonal ſafety of Ra"gonaut Row, as he ſhall require.

"2d. That a ſpecific ſum be required to reimburſe "the Company for the military charges which "may be incurred by their interpoſition.

"3d. That

" 3d. That the fort and diſtrict of Baſſein be ceded " in perpetuity to the Company.

" 4th. That an additional grant of territory be " made to the Company, adjacent to Baſſein or " to Bombay, in exchange for Broach, and the " lands ceded to the Company by Futty Sing, " Guicawar, and for the Pergunnahs of Hanſood, " Ahmood, and Deſhorah.

" 5th. That no European ſettlements ſhall be al- " lowed on any of the maritime coaſts of the " Maratta dominions, without the conſent of " the Governor General and Council of Bengal " previouſly obtained.

" 7th. Reſolved, That a ſupply of money, to the " amount of ten lacks of rupees, be immediately " granted to the Preſident and Council of Bombay, for " the ſupport of their engagements above-mentioned, " independent of the ordinary annual ſupply to that " Preſidency.

" 8th. Reſolved, That military aſſiſtance be ſent to " the Preſidency of Bombay.—In explanation of the " grounds of the 3d Reſolution, the Board think it ne- " ceſſary to remark, that they underſtand the plan of " the Preſident and Council of Bombay to be confined " merely to the objects of ſecurity to the Engliſh poſ- " ſeſſions in India, and to the excluſion of the natural " enemies of the Britiſh Government, from any influence " or connection with the Marattas."

Appx. No. 28. Letter to Bombay, 2 Feb. 1778.

And it appears by the letter, which in conſequence of theſe reſolutions, was then written to the Preſident and Council of Bombay, that the ſanction of the Superior Council was given to their plan, upon the ſuppoſition that the Chief Miniſter of the Maratta State had particularly ſolicited their interference to compoſe the inteſtine diviſions of that empire; and that the object of their own policy was to prevent the growth " of an influence " dangerous to the Company's intereſt, to defeat the " intentions of a party adverſe to the Company, and to " promote the ſecurity of the Company's poſſeſſions." And it ſhould be remarked, that the Governor General propoſed, that the reſolution in regard to ſending reinforcements to Bombay, ſhould not be carried into execution until the Board received further advices from thence, which would be neceſſary to warrant it: and he further deſired to lay before them, ſtronger evidence than had yet been recorded of the extent and danger of the French intrigues at Poonah, becauſe " they formed the " principal grounds for the ſuppoſed reſolutions of the " Preſident and Council of Bombay." To theſe letters and papers, which we have put in the Appendix, N° 29, we deſire to refer the Houſe, and would only further obſerve, that the Governor General added a declaration of his real opinion, that the Preſidency of Bombay were in a ſtate of ſufficient force to enter upon the meaſure they had propoſed, under all the preſent circumſtances and diſpoſitions of the Maratta armies; but that, however, he thought it neceſſary to appriſe and warn them, " that the Superior Council deemed them ſolely reſpon- " ſible to the Company and the nation for all the con- " ſequences of the meaſures they had taken, or might " take on that occaſion, without their conſent and ap- " probation."

Appx. No. 29. See ſeveral Letters on this ſubject, particularly one from Mr. Elliot. N. B. No date to Mr. Elliot's Letter.

Your Committee find, that the Governor General and Council tranſmitted an account of all theſe circumſtances to the Court of Directors, in their ſecret letter dated 4th February; in which they added, that the Preſidency of Fort Saint George having declined to comply with the requeſt of the Bombay Government for a ſupply of troops, they had expreſſed their deſire, that they would not continue to refuſe it. And it appears by another ſecret letter, dated 16th February, from the Governor General and Council, that the death of the Ram Rajah, which happened in the beginning of December 1777, was expected to occaſion ſome difficulty and diſorder in the nomination and eſtabliſhment of a ſucceſſor; and that the defeat of the Maratta troops by Hyder Ally, would alſo prove to be an event very favourable in its conſequ to the Company's tranſactions with that Governme

Secret Letter, 16 Feb. 1778. Appx. No. 31.

Your Committee find, that on the 11th January, Mr. Moſtyn, who had returned to Poonah, wrote from thence to the Governor and Council of Bombay, informing them of his apprehenſions, that though Siccaram Baboo would privately aſſiſt the furtherance of their plan, he would not yet be induced to give it under his hand. Whereupon the Bombay Board appear to have made the following reſolution, " That nothing further can be done in " the buſineſs, unleſs Siccaram Baboo joins in making " application to us for the aſſiſtance of the Company to " reinſtate Ragoba; as we cannot think of acting in any " manner contrary to the late treaty, unleſs by expreſs " deſire of the principal perſons with whom it was con- " cluded."—But the Preſident having on the 19th laid before the Board a paper of information, tranſmitted to him by Ragoba, wherein it was aſſerted, that an actual agreement in writing had taken place for giving up of Row Dauda or Choul to the French, though the ſunnuds had not yet been iſſued, they immediately recorded an unanimous opinion, " that nothing but a change in " the preſent Adminiſtration at Poonah, could ſecure " the Company from the danger and bad conſequences " of an alliance between the French and the Marattas, " and that there was no method to avert the impending " evil, but by the Company's immediately taking a " deciſive part." And in further confirmation of theſe ſentiments, they communicated their reſolutions to the Governor General and Council, by a letter dated the 20th January, in which alſo they deſired to receive a direction for their conduct, in caſe the French ſhould attempt to take poſſeſſion of the ſea port which was ſaid to have been ceded to them.

Bom. Sec. Conſ. 19 Jan. 1778. Appx. No. 33.

Bom. Sec. Conſ. 20 January 1778. Appx. No. 34.

This letter appears to have been taken into conſideration by the Calcutta Board, in their ſecret department, on the 23d February, at the ſame time with diſpatches from Mr. Moſtyn, dated the 19th and 24th January, in which he mentions his having been informed by good authority, that no agreement had yet taken place between the French and the Maratta Durbar. In conſequence of theſe advices, and of the application for inſtructions from Bombay, the Governor General propoſed an immediate reply, in which they ſhould acquaint the Preſident and Council of their reſolution to ſend a ſtrong military force to act under the direction of that Government, which would aſſemble at Calpee, and march by the moſt practicable route to Bombay, as ſoon as all neceſſary preparations could be expedited, and before their progreſs ſhould be retarded by the coming on of the rainy ſeaſon. Your Committee obſerve, that this propoſition was ſtrongly oppoſed, as will be ſeen by the ſeveral Minutes of the Board, placed in the Appendix N° 35, whereby the Houſe will be fully informed of the arguments uſed in objection to, and in ſupport of, the meaſure. It was at laſt reſolved to ſend the anſwer, recommended by the Governor General, with an additional paragraph, in the following words: " As we " have no property, or pretenſions to property, in the " port of Choul, we cannot authorize you to uſe any overt " meaſures for preventing the French from forming an " eſtabliſhment at that place, however dangerous their " neighbourhood may be to your Preſidency. This " muſt be effected by other means, that is, by an appeal " to that power which alone can give them the right " of poſſeſſion. We think it neceſſary alſo to add the " following injunction, that you do not on any pretence " become the aggreſſors, by commencing hoſtilities againſt " the French directly, nor againſt the Maratta State, " but that you continue to adhere, as you aſſure us you " will do, to the ſtrict letter of the treaty ſubſiſting be- " tween the Company and the preſent adminiſtration of " the Maratta State."

Appx. No. 36.

Your Committee find, that the Board having thus reſolved to detach a reinforcement to the Preſidency of Bombay, went into a conſideration, in their military department, partment of the number and quality of the troops they ſhould ſend, and of other neceſſary ſteps to be taken relative to the ſubſtitution of a force, which might be judged ſufficient for the defence of their own immediate dependencies, in the abſence of ſo conſiderable a detachment. The opinion of General Stibbert, who had been conſulted on this ſubject, and to whom ſeveral papers of information had been referred on the 2d of this month, was on this occaſion laid before the Board by the Governor General.

Ben. Mil. Conſ. 23 Feb. 1778. Appx. No. 37.

And your Committee obſerve, That he (the Commander in Chief) diſapproved of the plan ſuggeſted for increaſing the Sepoy battalions to 1,000 men each, and recommended that four battalions ſhould be formed by drafts from the four brigades, which with two field pieces attached to each, he thought to be full as great a force of diſciplined troops as could be well ſpared from their eſtabliſhment for the ſervice of the Preſidency of Bombay, and that no Europeans, either of artillery or infantry, could be added to them; that as this detachment muſt go by land, it would be expedient to ſecure the friendly aſſiſtance of the different Powers through whoſe territories they muſt neceſſarily paſs; and that among theſe, the permiſſion and favour of Tookajee Holkar and Madhajee Scindia, would be of the greateſt conſequence, and remove every material difficulty.—But we perceive that the Governor General was of opinion that this method of drafting would take up too much time, and therefore ſubmi ted the following propoſitions to the conſideration of the Board.

" Firſt, That a detachment be formed of ſix battali" ons of Sepoys from the firſt brigade, with their ord" nance; one company of native artillery, with its com" plement of ordnance, to be furniſhed from the field
" train of the firſt brigade at Allahabad, and two how" itzers to be ſupplied from the ſame ſtation.

" Second, That the troops which are to compoſe this " detachment, be directed to aſſemble at Korah, or in " the neighbourhood of Calpee.

" Third, That the ſtores of this detachment be fur-
" niſhed from the magazines neareſt to the place of " rendezvous; and that the commanding officer be fur-
" niſhed with unlimited authority to indent for ſuch
" ſtores and in ſuch quantity as he may deem neceſſary
" for the ſervice to be performed.

" Fourth, That Colonel Leſlie be appointed to com" mand this detachment, with one field officer from the " firſt brigade, and one from the temporary brigade;
" and that Major Baillie be nominated to the charge of " the artillery, with two additional ſubaltern officers
" of that corps to join the company ordered upon this " ſervice.

" Fifth, That Colonel Leſlie be directed to make " the neceſſary preparations to conduct the detachment
" by the moſt practicable route to Bombay, or to ſuch
" other place in that neighbourhood as he ſhall be guided " to by the Preſident and Council of Bombay; and that " it be particularly recommended to him to provide the " moſt effectual means of anſwering a ſufficient ſupply
" of proviſions during the courſe of the march."

Theſe propoſitions appear to have been agreed upon by the majority of the Board—Mr. Francis however proteſting againſt the march of the propoſed detachment to the Malabar coaſt, from an opinion, that ſo great a force could not be ſpared conſiſtently with the defence of the Bengal provinces, and of the dominions of their ally the Nabob of Oude; and that a reinforcement, if neceſſary, might be ſpared with more ſafety, and proceed with greater expedition, from Fort Saint George.

Mil. Conſ. 9 March 1778. N° 37. And we obſerve, that other leſſer arrangements relative to this expedition, being propoſed by the Governor General on the 9th March, were aſſented to by the Board; Meſſrs. Wheler and Francis declaring, that having objected in vain to the general meaſure, they would not interfere with details.

Your Committee however find, that a packet having arrived on the 12th from the Court of Directors, containing alſo a copy of their diſpatches, dated 4th July 1777, to the Preſidency of Bombay, Meſſrs. Francis and Wheler on that occaſion renewed their inſtances of diſlike to the expedition, and addreſſed a letter to the Governor General on the ſubject; in which, adverting to the reſolutions of the Court, and their directions to the Preſident and Council of Bombay, they declared, that, conſidering all meaſures taken by them, in conjunction with Ragoba, againſt the ruling power of Poonah, to ſtand in direct violation of the Company's inſtructions, they deſired to ſubmit an opinion, that all orders already iſſued for the march of the intended detachment to Bombay, ſhould be immediately countermanded. The Minutes of the Governor General and other Members of the Board, at a meeting in their ſecret department, in conſequence of this addreſs from Meſſrs. Francis and Wheler, are placed in the Appendix No. 38, together with an extract from the Company's general letter: on the contents of which, and the proper acceptation of them, aroſe the debate in queſtion, and which terminated in a negative given by the majority to the propoſition made by Meſſrs. Francis and Wheler.

Appx. No. 38.

Appx. No. 38.

Your Committee find, that on the 23d March the Governor General propoſed a draft of a letter to Bombay, which purported to be an explanation of the ſentiments of the Superior Council on the laſt paragraph of the Company's general letter above-mentioned to that Preſidency; and to give ſuch inſtructions and authority for their guidance, as appeared neceſſary, on a ſuppoſition that the ſame adminiſtration remained at Poonah, and that the treaty continued on the ſame footing as that on which it had ſtood for two years paſt. The great objects pointed out in this letter to the attention of the Bombay Board, appear to be, that they ſhould principally endeavour to defeat the ſecret or open machinations of the French with the Maratta Government; ſhould inſiſt upon the definitive execution of the treaty by the ruling Powers of that State; and ſhould take advantage of every change in its adminiſtration to negociate beneficial conceſſions to the Company.—With regard to their conduct towards Ragoba, we obſerve the following explicit direction: " But if the preſent or future Members of the " Adminiſtration ſhall either directly infringe the treaty, " or permit it to be infringed by perſons acting under " their authority, or ſhall refuſe to fulfil the conditions " of it, we, as authorized by the Company, do inveſt " you with authority to form a new alliance with Ragoba, " and to engage with him in any ſcheme you ſhall deem " expedient and ſafe for retrieving his affairs." In the ſame letter however they informed the Preſident and Council that they had written to deſire the Peiſhwa and his Miniſters would allow a free paſſage to the troops with which they intended to reinforce the Bombay eſtabliſhment, and they directed them to make the ſame application immediately from themſelves. But your Committee think it proper here again to refer the Houſe to the Appendix N° 41, for an inſpection of the inſtructions at large, and for the general reaſonings of the Board upon them, and the objections of the minority, with the ſubſequent reply of the Governor General in defence of them, recorded on the Secret Conſultations of the 6th April; and alſo a further Minute of the Governor General's, recorded in the proceedings of the 15th of the ſame month; and Mr. Francis's Minute, recorded on Conſultations 27th April, in reply and in confirmation of his objections; being all particularly directed to invalidate or ſubſtantiate the evidence of the dangerous tendency of the French deſigns in conjunction with the Maratta Government, and the neceſſity or propriety of the meaſures adviſed for counteracting them.

Ben. Sec. Conſ. 23d Mar. 1778. Appx. No. 39.

See alſo Letter to the Peiſhwa, dated 23 March. Appx. No. 40. Ben. Sec. Conn. Corr. No. 6. Letter written at the ſame time to other Powers, particularly to Moodajee Bouſla, are placed in the ſame Appx. Appx. No. 41.

Your Committee having moreover obſerved, that the inſtructions propoſed by the Governor General on the 6th April to be ſent to Colonel Leſlie, and a letter in conſequence of them to the Preſidency of Bombay, were not resolved upon by the Board without opposition, have put the proceedings upon that occasion also in the Appendix N° 42, and only take a cursory notice in this place of the general purport of those orders; by which it appears that Colonel Leslie was directed to proceed to Bombay, taking his route preferably through the province of Berar, on account of the friendly disposition of the Rajah, unless any unforeseen prevention should arise: that if after endeavouring to gain the consent of the chief of any district through which he might wish to pass, he should meet with a refusal from him, he was to pursue his march nevertheless in opposition to any such impediment, paying regard however to certain prescribed restrictions: that in advancing through the different countries, he should be attentive to the state and interests of the several petty Chiefs; that he should be careful in preventing any mischief to the inhabitants; and that he should not suffer himself to be diverted from the steady prosecution of his march, by any new object, however plausible, excepting only for the safety or subsistence of his troops: that he was to consider himself to be under the command of the Presidency of Bombay from the time of beginning his march, which he should do as soon as he could be fully provided for it.

And your Committee observe, that the Governor General and Council transmitted accounts of these proceedings to the Court of Directors, on the 20th March and the 23d April; and we have subjoined the extracts from their secret letters of those dates in the Appendix N° 43.

Appx. No. 43. See extracts of letters from Ben. 20 March and 23d April 1778. Appx. No. 44. Letter from Bombay.

And it appears to your Committee, that on the 11th May, Mr Francis took occasion, in consequence of a letter from Bombay, dated 5th April, to repeat his attempts to put a stop to the expedition under Colonel Leslie, as no longer necessary even on the principles on which it was undertaken. Your Committee observe, that the President and Council of Bombay informed the Superior Board of a change in the administration of the Government at Poonah, by which the supposed friends of Ragoba had displaced Nanna Furnese, the decided enemy to his interests, though a compromise was since likely to be effected between that Minister and his opponents. They made an inference of regret from this event, that while they had, for want of powers, been unable to take a part, Ragoba's friends had found their own strength sufficient to procure them success without their assistance; and any favourable stipulations for the Company must of course be more difficult to be obtained. They seemed however to feel a consolation in another probable consequence of the revolution, that the designs of the French would be absolutely defeated. Yet they at the same time mentioned the appearance of Monsieur Bellecombe, the new Governor of Pondicherry, upon their coast, and the report of his having landed 300 Europeans at Mahe: that Sir Edward Vernon however had sailed with a superior force to attend his movements up the coast; and that they had ordered all the force which they could detach from their Presidency, to be ready to march at a moment's warning, and take advantage of any call for their interposition.

See the proceedings of the Governor General and Council, in their Secret Department, 11th May 1778. Appx. No. 45.

In consequence of these informations, and the probable effects of a change in the Poonah politics, Messrs. Francis and Wheler argued on the inutility and inexpediency of continuing the design adopted of detaching a considerable body of their troops, and moved, that immediate orders should be sent to suspend their march; but the Governor General deduced from the same grounds of reasoning an entire contrary conclusion, and sought to convince the Board of the necessity of prosecuting with vigour the measures which they had begun, until the designs of them should be fully accomplished. Mr. Barwell did not think the reasons assigned by Mr. Francis would warrant his assent to the proposition, and it was of course resolved in the negative, by the majority of the Board.

Your Committee find, that the same subject occasioned new debates on the 21st, in which there appeared a like disparity of sentiments, from the same premises. Mr. Francis, taking notice of letters received that day from Fort Saint George, and from Mr. Mostyn, expressed his opinion, that the Board must judge it wise to suspend the march of the detachment; that having no great idea of apprehension from the supposed influence of the French at Poonah, and the last accounts from Europe shewing no probability of a French war, he thought the measure, against which he was remonstrating, to be most likely in its tendency to cause a rupture with that Power. The Governor General, on the contrary, declared it to be his persuasion, that the whole tenor of the letters proved the necessity of confirming their former resolutions, as he was not convinced that any complete effects had followed from the resolution at Poonah, or that there was any diminution in the influence of the French, or of their desisting from their hostile designs.

And we perceive, that in a subsequent Minute, recorded on the Secret Consultations 1st June, upon this subject, the Governor General used the following argument: "I think it proper to observe, that an alliance "with Ragoba is not the object of the measures which "have been lately undertaken by this Government for "the support of the Presidency of Bombay; their de- "clared object is to give security and permanency to "the peace of that settlement. It fortunately happened, "that while we were in pursuit of this object, Rogoba "was offered to us as an instrument. The Company "have warranted us to accept him as such, and he is "the most likely to prove effectual of any that we could "have chosen; we have accepted him, and while his "agency shall be necessary to the above end, and can "be employed with a sacred observance of every other "engagement, I hope we shall continue to employ it." The observations made by Mr. Francis in reply to this Minute, and others which followed upon the same subject, are put together in the Appendix. Appx. No. 47.

No. 47. Dated 29 April 1778. See Appx. 46.

Your Committee find, in the letter above mentioned from Fort Saint George, the following reasons assigned for their granting assistance of troops to the Presidency of Bombay: "In consequence of your letter to us of the "4th of February, we ordered the number of troops re- "quested by the gentlemen at Bombay to be in readi- "ness to march, if it should be thought necessary on a "further application from them." And it appears that in their letter of the same date to the President and Council of Bombay, copy of which they also transmitted to the Superior Council, they informed them, at the same time, of their motives for having at first declined a compliance with their requisition, and of the reasons which had since induced them to grant it, and which they explained as follows:

"We assure you, Gentlemen, that we paid every at- "tention to your request, and should have been happy if "the situation of affairs here had permitted us to comply "with it, in the extent you wished; but circumstanced "as we then were, the measure appeared too unsafe and "imprudent to be adopted: however, upon hearing "from the Governor General and Council of Bengal, "that their sanction and assistance would be given to "your proceedings, and upon their opening and recom- "mending the design more fully to us, we then deter- "mined, notwithstanding the incomplete state of "our establishment, to order the troops you had before "requested, to hold themselves in readiness to march. "They are now under these orders; but as the season is "too far advanced to send them to Anjengo, we shall "keep them in readiness to proceed to your assistance "the first opportunity that offers, if your absolute want "of them should continue, and no material change shall "happen here in the mean time. But we must observe "to you, that the number of our Europeans fit for duty "is so small and disproportionate, that we deem it unsafe, "even in the most favourable times, to detach any part "of them upon so distant a service; and we wish therefore that Sepoys only may be required, as we can with much leſs difficulty replace their loſs."

Your Committee find, that the Governor General directed the Secretary to prepare the draft of a letter in anſwer to that from the Governor and Council of Fort Saint George, and which he laid before the Board for their approbation. This letter contains reflections and information ſo cloſely relating to every ſubject of the enquiry committed to our inveſtigation, and throws ſo much light on the general ſituation of the Company's ſettlements, as well as on the particular object of their actual attention, that your Committee have thought proper to inſert it here at length, in the body of their report:

" Gentlemen,

" We have received your letter of the 29th April, " incloſing copy of one addreſſed to you by the Preſi- " dent and Council of Bombay, with your reply to it:

" We deſire to make our acknowledgments to you, " for the very uſeful informations which are contained " in your letter of the 16th January laſt, reſpecting the " ſtate, exigencies, and reſources of your Preſidency. " To the repreſentations therein repeated, of the neceſſity " of your being provided with a fund of money, which " may enable you to anſwer any extraordinary calls in a " time of war, or other public diſtreſs, we can only return " the ſame anſwer that we made in our letter of the 19th " January, to a ſimilar requiſition contained in your's " of the 30th December. We conſider the aid of the " Company's reſources, whereſoever they may exiſt, as " due to the exigencies of all their ſettlements: on this " principle we ſhall always be ready to contribute every " means in our power to the relief of your's, whenever " they ſhall indiſpenſably require it, and we can afford " it without ſubjecting the intereſt of our common em- " ployers to a greater inconvenience in one place, than " that which we ſhould attempt to avert in another. " The diſtance between the two Preſidencies is not ſo " great, nor will the means of remittance, we hope, be " ſo difficult in any ſeaſon of emergency, as to pre- " vent our ſupplying you with money, when there ſhall " be an abſolute call for it. On the contrary, we are " of opinion, that if ever the Carnatic ſhould be threat- " ened with a war, it will be the intereſt of every wealthy " individual at Madras, to tranſfer his property to " Bengal, through the channel of your treaſury; and the " merchants of Bengal, who have property at Fort " Saint George, will certainly be glad to avail them- " ſelves of the ſame means to withdraw it, on ſuch an " occaſion. At preſent no ſuch neceſſity exiſts, to re- " quire an extraordinary aid from us; nor is the proſpect " ſo alarming, as to juſtify us in providing againſt it " in future; for whenever we grant you pecuniary ſup- " plies from Bengal, it muſt be attended with one bad " effect, which, under any circumſtances, will afford us " regret; namely, it will tend to impoveriſh this country, " by draining it of the ſpecie neceſſary for circulation.

" To theſe conſiderations we muſt add, that we ſhall " not think ourſelves warranted, even under the moſt " preſſing ſituation of your affairs, to offer our relief, if " it ſhall appear to us that you have the means of it " left in your own hands unapplied. The protection " of the Carnatic, while it depends on the Company, " requires that no private claims ought to be ſuffered to " interfere with their right to the ſhare of its revenues, " which may be indiſpenſably neceſſary for its ſafety and " defence.

" We are ſorry that you ſhould have thought it ne- " ceſſary, on the ſlight grounds of private information, " to intimate to the Preſident and Council of Bombay, " that the detachment ordered by us was to winter at " Corah, and afterwards proceed on their march. Such " an information from you, however qualified, muſt " have the effect of authority; and we ſee great reaſon " to apprehend, that it will tend to diſcourage their " adherents, and to retard, if not diſcredit, their ope- " rations, by throwing a damp upon their undertakings. " To this end their diſappointment in the hope of aſſiſt- " ance from your Preſidency, though latterly unavoid- " able, will naturally have contributed. We now " think it proper to inform you, that the detachment " which we have formed for the ſervice of the Preſi- " dency of Bombay, began its march from Corah to " Calpee on the 4th inſtant; and unleſs the future ad- " vices which we may receive from Bombay, ſhall aſſure " us that its aſſiſtance will not be wanted, it is our in- " tention to proſecute the undertaking without any " delay or intermiſſion. This force conſiſts of ſix bat- " talions of Sepoys, one company of native artillery, " and a ſmall body of cavalry. The command of it " has been aſſigned to Colonel Leſlie, an active and ex- " prienced officer; its route to Bombay will be through " Bundlecund and the dominions of Moodajee Booſla, by " his permiſſion, which has been obtained, with a pro- " miſe of ſupplies and proviſions, and every other " aſſiſtance that may be required in the courſe of its " march.

" We rely upon your promiſe to co-operate with us on " this important occaſion, ſhould the ſtate of affairs on " the other ſide of India require it at the ſeaſon of the " year, when you will be able to ſend the Preſident and " Council of Bombay the reinforcement of men in- " tended for their ſervice; and from the lateſt advices " we have received, we apprehend that their preſence " there may be eſſential.

" We requeſt that you will attend the motions of " Hyder Ally, and the Nabob Nizam Ally Cawn, and " adviſe us if they ſhall take any ſteps which may affect " our concerns with the Maratta State."

Your Committee obſerve, that this letter was much diſapproved of by Meſſrs. Francis and Wheler, particularly on the ground of refuſal to grant a ſupply of money, " conſidering (to uſe their expreſſion) the un- " exampled profuſion with which we have ſupplied " Bombay." And when the Governor General afterwards propoſed the following additional paragtaph to the letter—— Appx. No. 48.

" If you ſee a proſpect of the continuance of troubles " at Poonah, we beg leave to recommend that you cauſe " a part of your forces to be aſſembled near the northern " frontier of the Carnatic, for the purpoſe of affording " either direct aſſiſtance to the Preſidency of Bombay, " or a diverſion in their favour, in any way that you " may judge moſt adviſable"—

——It appears that thoſe gentlemen enforced their remonſtrances againſt it with ſtill greater energy:— Their Minutes upon this occaſion, with the replies of the Governor General, are placed in the Appendix, No. 48, and recommended to the notice of the Houſe. No. 48.

But your Committee think proper to obſerve, that the Governor General, in juſtification of his motives for the refuſal of a preſent ſupply of money to the Preſidency of Madras, for the purpoſes aſſigned by them, prepared and laid before the Board an exact account of the ſtate of their own treaſury; by which he made it appear " that they could not at that time command a larger ſum " than three and a half lacks of rupees, were they diſ- " poſed to comply with the application from the Pre- " ſidency of Fort Saint George, unleſs they ſhould break " in upon the fund which they had appropriated for " their own extraordinary occaſions." Yet when Mr. Francis, in conſequence of this account, expreſſed his apprehenſion that they might be deficient in the means of ſupporting their ordinary expences, and he would therefore be againſt ſending ſupplies of money either to Madras or Bombay, the Governor General would not allow that he meant to repreſent the Company's reſources as exhauſted, ſince thoſe could be only ſeen in the collective ſum of all the treaſuries, and in the eſtimate of their growing reſources and diſburſements, and he alluded only to their two principal treaſuries. See this account and the Minutes which followed it. Appx. No. 49.

But

Ben. Sec. Conf. 21 May 1778. Appx. No. 50. Dated Lucknow, 8 May 1778, and Letters from Col. Leslie, 28 and 29 April.

But your Committee find, that the Governor General and Council were at this time made acquainted, by a letter from Mr. Middleton, Resident at the Vizier's Court, inclosing a copy of Colonel Leslie's estimates for the service of this expedition, that very considerable disbursements would be necessary on that account, and that he had already forwarded to him the sum of 12 lacks upon his pressing requisition, though not strictly conformable to the orders he had received. The extract from Colonel Leslie's letter to Mr. Middleton upon this subject is as follows: "My estimate for the current expences of one "month amounts to one lack 70,000 rupees; therefore "I suppose that no less than 30,000 will be necessary "for contingencies, or that two lacks will be barely sufficient, exclusive of the first expence of supply. As "the Government have thought that six months ought to "be provided, 12 lacks will be necessary, which I hope "will be sent away as soon as possible."

Appx No. 51. It appears by the answer which the Board upon this occasion sent to Mr. Middleton, that they admitted the extraordinary charge on account of the cavalry, which was not provided for in the first estimate of the expence; disapproving however of his having taken upon himself to exceed his original orders.

See Ben. Mil. Conf. 27 March 1778. Appx. No. 52. It may be proper to observe, with regard to the cavalry here alluded to, that the Governor General and Council, in their military department on the 27th of March, had agreed to a requisition made to them by Colonel Leslie, for a corps of cavalry to attend his detachment; though it will be seen, by referring to the proceedings on that occasion, placed in the Appendix, No. 52, that the opinions of the Board were not unanimous, and that the Commander in Chief had signified to the Governor General his disapprobation of the measure.

Ben. Sec. Conf. 8th June 1778. Appx. No. 53. Your Committee find, by a letter from Colonel Leslie, dated in Camp near Calpee, 20th May, that notwithstanding his professions of amity to the Chiefs, and protection to the country through which he was marching, he had met with much opposition, and some instances of Appx. No. 54. declared hostility from the Marattas, by which, after much forbearance, he had been obliged to make some use of force, and had taken possession of the fort of Calpee, which he found evacuated. And your Committee further observe, that the Governor General proposed a draft

No. 54. of an answer to Colonel Leslie, in which the Board should approve of his conduct, recommending however a continuance of the utmost caution, and directing him to advise Mr. Mostyn at Poonah, of any occurrence which might require explanation to the Maratta Government, or the interposition of its authority, to prevent further interruptions to his march. It appears, that Messrs. Francis and Wheler considered the intelligence transmitted by Colonel Leslie as a fit ground for the repetition of their instances against the prosecution of the plan; and that the Governor General complained, with some degree of resentment, against their perpetual opposition to the execution of measures already resolved upon, and declared his unalterable determination to prosecute the expedition, to the utmost of his power, to its conclusion. The several minutes upon this occasion, containing much information of the general situation of those countries, and the supposed connections or dependencies of the several Chiefs with each other, or upon the Poonah Government, are therefore placed in the Appendix, No. 54, and recommended to the attention of the House. It is necessary only to add, that the letter proposed by the Governor General was agreed to by the majority of the Board, who also unanimously consented to his proposition, of informing the Peishwa and Mr. Mostyn of these occurrences, and desiring the former to give orders for securing an unmolested passage to their troops through the several districts through which their march lay, as the Board had given the strictest injunctions to their Commander to observe, on his part, the most friendly conduct and regular discipline.

Letter to the Peishwa. Appx. No. 55.

Your Committee find, that on the 11th of June, a letter was received at Calcutta from the President and Council of Bombay, dated 2d May, which informed them that affairs remained still in a state of uncertainty, from the long and mysterious silence of the new Durbar at Poonah; that the dismission of the French was yet in promise only, and that they had therefore "out of their "desire to save the Honourable Company from the "heavy expences, and their troops from the danger "and difficulties of a march from the provinces of Bengal "to their side of India, been led to send an order to "the officer in command of the forces, not to advance "any further until he should again hear from them." That at the time they came to that resolution, they had expectation of a reinforcement from Madras: that two Members of their Board did not concur with them in their resolution: That Monsr. Bellecombe was returned to Pondicherry, after having landed at Mungalore several artillery officers, two hundred men, and a large quantity of military stores for the service of the Nabob Hyder Ally; but that the Sartine was ordered from the river off Goa up to Choul. And it also appears to your Committee, that the Board received on the same day a letter from Mr. Mostyn, dated 12th May, filled with complaints against the equivocation of the Durbar, both before and since Moraba Furnese had the executive authority, in regard to the dismission of St. Lubin, and to the Dustucks which he had demanded for the passage of the Bengal detachment, in both which points he much doubted of success.

Appx. No. 57. See Mr. Lewis's Journal of his Deputation to the Maratta Camp near Currect. No. 58.

Your Committee observe, that the Governor General hereupon proposed that the order from the President and Council of Bombay to Colonel Leslie, should be confirmed by an order from their Board, but that they should at the same time direct that officer to complete the preparations which he had been making, and hold himself in readiness to march on immediate warning. Messrs. Francis and Wheler made objections to this proposition, and considered the order from Bombay as a rebuff upon the whole expedition, and the proceedings of Monsieur Bellecombe as a proof of the fallacy of supposing that the French were forming plans of hostility in conjunction with the Marattas, and therefore declared their opinion, that the troops should be brought back from the other side of the Jumna, and remain in cantonments till the season would permit them to be reconducted into their own territories. The Governor General, in support of his proposition, urged, among others, the following arguments:

Appx. No. 59.

"I am in possession of materials, received through "channels too remote for the possibility of their having "been suggested by the knowledge of what has happened on the other side of India, by which I learn that "the destination of the troops which were landed from "the Brilliante at Mangalore, were for Chouls. The "additional sentence of the Bombay letter which Mr. "Barwell has desired to be inserted, may serve in part "to explain the apparent inconsistency of troops intended "for the service of the Marattas, being converted to "that of the enemies; nor will it be difficult to comprehend the cause of so sudden a change in the conduct of Monsieur Bellecombe on the difficulties presented to him, if we suppose him to have been reluctantly compelled into the support of a system formed "independent of his authority, and that his own inclinations led him to prefer another alliance, which I "have reason to believe was the case."—Your Committee think it proper here to remark, that by subsequent information from Tellicherry it was discovered that the number of men landed at Mangalore, were only 12 artillery, 12 infantry, and one officer, instead of two hundred men, as had been reported.

Letter from Bomb. 31 May, on Ben. Sec. Conf. 11 July. Appx. No. 60.

Three letters appeared to have been written in the terms of the Governor General's proposition, to Colonel Leslie, to Bombay, and to Mr. Mostyn, which will be found in the Appendix, No. 61.

Appx. No. 61.

And

Bomb. Sec. Conſ. 15 June 1778. Appx. No. 62.

And your Committee find, that on the 15th of June the Board received a letter from Colonel Leſlie, dated 30th of May, communicating the particulars of an agreement which he had entered into with the Maratta Chiefs, for the ſafe paſſage of the detachment under his command through their country; but that having received orders from the Preſident and Council of Bombay, poſitively forbidding his advance, as unneceſſary in the preſent ſtate of affairs at Poonah, and directing him to wait their further orders, he had taken a ſtation on the banks of the Bettowar river, as moſt convenient for putting in execution any ſubſequent directions he might receive. And we obſerve that the Board ſignified to him their approbation of his conduct.

Ben. Sec. Conſ. 22 June 1778. Appx. No. 63. Letter from Mr. Moſtyn, dated 11 May.—Letter from Bomb. dated 4 May.—Letter from Col. Leſlie, dated 5 June 1778.

But it appears to your Committee, that he had before this time received freſh diſpatches from Bombay and from Mr. Moſtyn, by which he was required to proſecute his march towards that Preſidency in countermand of their former orders; and that in conſequence of them, he intended immediately to ſet forward, under ſome doubt however of the ſincerity of the Maratta Chiefs in their late engagements with him; upon which ſubject it is to be obſerved, that Mr. Moſtyn in his letter had thus expreſſed himſelf: "It will be neceſſary to be ſtrictly on "your guard, and to avoid as much as lays in your "power the giving any cauſe of complaint, though from "the diſtracted ſtate of this Government, and the diſ"ſentions amongſt the heads, I do not believe they will "dare to oppoſe your march."

And your Committee find, that the Preſident and Council of Bombay informed alſo the Superior Board of their having taken off the reſtraint they had laid on the march of the troops from Calpee, and directed them to advance "agreeable to the orders of the Governor Ge"neral and Council," acknowledging at the ſame time the receipt of the Bengal letter dated 23d March, and promiſing future information of their reſolutions in conſequence of it. And it appears that Mr. Francis took occaſion hereupon to preſent freſh remonſtrances againſt the march of the detachment upon new grounds, inſiſting that the Government of Bombay having in this inſtance acted ſo capriciouſly, and without reaſon aſſigned, common prudence dictated to them the impropriety of leaving the army under ſuch directions, eſpecially as the Preſident and Council, by their conduct and expreſſions, endeavoured to fix the reſponſibility upon them. He preſſed alſo a further argument, drawn from the complication of the national engagements and the dangerous deſigns of France and Spain, which ſhould induce them to have regard to their own defence, and not to weaken or divide their force. It further appears, that the Governor General perſevered in recommending the proſecution of the expedition; and that, allowing the original meaſure and the reſponſibility to be theirs, he declared his opinion that all their reſolutions concerning it ſhould proceed from their own knowledge of the circumſtances which had any relation to it.

See the Debate at large on this day, 22 June 1778. No. 64.

On the 29th June a letter was received from the Preſident and Council of Bombay, which your Committee find to contain the reaſons for their contradictory orders to Colonel Leſlie; which aroſe from their firſt expectation, that by the revolution at Poonah, the French influence would have been deſtroyed, and from their diſappointment in finding that the new adminiſtration ſeemed inclined to tread in the footſteps of their predeceſſors, as well with regard to the Chevalier de St. Lubin, as to Ragoba, and the execution of ſeveral articles of the treaty of Poorunder. That theſe reflections had determined them not to wait any longer in expectation of propoſals from Poonah, but to direct Mr. Moſtyn to make a categorical demand on the Durbar, agreeable to the directions received from the Superior Council, in their letter of 23d March; and they deſired to have timely information of the meaſures which, in the ſuppoſed caſes of aſſent or refuſal from the Poonah Court, the Governor General and Council meant to purſue; ſuggeſting at the ſame time, that if it ſhould be found expedient to ſend any further reinforcement of troops to them, the eaſieſt and beſt method would be to order them directly from Madras, and to replace them, if neceſſary, from their eſtabliſhment.

Ben. Sec. Conſ. 29 June 1778. Letter from Bombay, dated 20 May. Appx. No. 65.

Appx. No. 39.

See Mr. Francis's Minute in Appx. 76.

By a letter from Mr. Moſtyn, dated 29th of May, and recorded on this Conſultation, it appears, that, doubting of the proſpect of obtaining paſſports from the Durbar, he had applied immediately to Madojee Scindia and Tookajee Holkar for a free paſſage to the detachment, in caſe their march ſhould lead through the dominions of theſe chiefs; and having obtained the conſent of the former, he had diſpatched information of it to Colonel Leſlie. He added, that although Monſ. de St. Lubin had received an oſtenſible diſmiſſion from the Miniſters at Poonah, he had many reaſons (which he communicated) for believing that the Chevalier would not depart, or that if he did, it would be only with the intention of an early return with the ſuccours of troops and ſtores, which he had engaged to procure; and he ſuppoſed that merely in order to gain time for this purpoſe, and to amuſe the Company's ſervants till the rains ſhould ſet in, by which time, (if ever) St. Lubin could perform his promiſe, the Miniſters had lately renewed their pretended deſign of ſending an ambaſſador to Bombay.

Appx. No. 66. See alſo Inclo-ſure in that letter.

It muſt be obſerved, that the Governor General, on account of this intelligence, fearing leſt Colonel Leſlie might in conſequence of a paſſport from Scindia, be induced to prefer a route through his and Holkar's territories, propoſed on the 6th of July a letter of poſitive inſtructions to him, that he ſhould march through the province of Berar, "as that Chief might be more ſafely "truſted than any other Power between that and the "other ſide of India, on account of the long and friendly "intercourſe which had ſubſiſted between his family and "their Government; and becauſe they had no connec"tion with Madajee Scindia, who was always repre"ſented as a partizan of Nanna Furneſe, which might "render his offers ſuſpicious."

Ben. Sec. Conf 6 July 1778. Appendix, No 67

But it appears, that before the diſpatch of the propoſed letter, information of an event was received at Calcutta, which occaſioned the Board to have regard to a convenient ſtation for the return of the troops, if it ſhould appear expedient to recall them for the defence of the provinces. The following letters were therefore written to Colonel Leſlie, and immediately diſpatched.

Ben. Sec. Conf. 7th July, No. 67.

"Sir,

"We have received intelligence by the way of Suez, "that war was declared by the Court of France againſt "England on the 30th March laſt; we think it neceſ"ſary, therefore, to give you peremptory orders to "proceed with the detachment under your command, "by eaſy marches on the road to Berar, but not to paſs "beyond that province until you ſhall receive further "inſtructions from us, notwithſtanding any orders to "the contrary which may be ſent to you from the Pre"ſident and Council of Bombay.

7th July 1778.

"Sir,

"As it is of the greateſt importance that the con"tents of the incloſed letter ſhould be kept a profound "ſecret, we think it neceſſary to incloſe it in this cover, "and to direct that you ſuffer no perſon whatever to "peruſe it, nor to know the purport of it through your "means.

7th July 1778.

Your Committee find, that the Governor General, ſtating the war with France as a fact of undoubted certainty, introduced a very long Minute upon that ſubject, with the following obſervations, which, as they ſhortly ſtate his idea of the condition and reſources of the different preſidencies, and the probable deſigns of the enemy enemy at such an interesting period, we have thought proper to insert in the body of this Report.

" It is the part of this Government to consider in what " manner it is likely to affect the British possessions in " India, and to provide accordingly for their security. " This must comprise and limit all our operations. In " the view of this opening scene, the relative conditions " of the parties engaged in it, will merit our first atten- " tion, and cannot fail to engage it by the striking con- " trast which appears between them; and I mention it " because I think it an essential point in the considera- " tion of our first and perhaps our future measures.

" Great as the power is, which the British Nation has " acquired in India compared with that of its rival, " its general line of action is and must be purely de- " fensive. It can gain, the French lose nothing. Even " the capture of Pondicherry, and of the other possessions " of the French, will yield no positive advantage to the " English, although it will deprive the French of their " instruments of attack, and thereby effect our own " safety.

" From this point, therefore, all our conclusions " must originate, and all our measures be so laid as to " obviate or to oppose the probable designs of our ene- " mies. Their first attempts will be against Bombay " or Fort St. George. Bengal will be their last—at least " their distant object.

" The Presidency of Fort St. George possesses in it- " self the complete means of defence. We can add " nothing to them but in the effects of our political ar- " rangements. We have already yielded it a large sup- " ply of treasure—it requires no other present aid.

" Bombay requires every thing. Weak in itself, and " entangled rather than strengthened by its dissipated " possessions on the Continent, it can only defend itself " against a direct invasion, and to that it is perhaps " equal, if it has to contend with the French alone. " But this is unlikely. The last advices from Poonah " contain such evidence, as the event itself must soon " refute or realize, of an engagement actually made by " the French Minister there to bring a large military " force to Poonah, professedly designed to act with that " Government against Ragoba, who at that time resided " at Bombay under the English protection.

" In effect, this is the obvious policy which the " French ought to adopt, if they seek to regain their " influence in India; and it is no longer to be doubted " that they have adopted it. They have, besides, an an- " cient claim to the alliance of Nizam Ally, which is in- " sured by their accidental union in a common cause, " the defence of the ruling administration at Poonah, of " which his letters to Mr. Rumbold and the Nabob of " Arcot, afforded an undoubted proof."

But the great objects which the Governor General appears to have had in view, and on which he dwelt in the bulk of his Minute with much historical and political reasoning, was, in the first place, to point out the immediate necessity of forming an alliance with some great country Power, to counterbalance the supposed confederacy between the French and the Marattas, and then to recommend a deputation to the Court of Berar as the most confidential and powerful ally with whom they should wish to enter into the closest bonds of league and amity. That in order to accomplish this end, they had to propose two advantageous inducements to the Rajah; the first being the support of his pretensions to the sovereign power over the Maratta State; the second, the recovery of the capture made on his dominions by Nizam Ally; while on their parts they should, by such connection, possess a powerful barrier to their frontiers. The Governor General at the same time offered several other proposals, which were agreed to by the Board, conducive to the augmentation of their military force, and the preparatory defence of their Presidency, among which, one particularly relating to the present subject of our enquiry, was as follows:—" That the Commander " in Chief be requested to furnish the Board with such " a general plan of defence as he shall judge necessary, " in addition to the present disposition of our army, " and in the supposition that the detachment now em- " ployed under Colonel Leslie, may not return for a " length of time into the provinces."

Your Committee find, that at the next meeting of the Board Mr. Francis delivered his sentiments upon the arguments and proposals contained in the Governor General's Minute of the 9th, and strongly declared his unalterable opinion, that the safety of Bengal, which they had been always directed to make the first object of their attention, required the recall of Colonel Leslie's detachment, though however it might be advisable to send a reinforcement of 2 or 3 battalions of Sepoys to Bombay, which should proceed from Madras, and be replaced, if necessary, from Bengal; that the Presidency of Bombay should be instructed to make concessions to the ministerial party at Poonah, as the most effectual course for defeating the designs of the French, and most agreeable to the plan of defence to which he thought they should confine their views; and on which principle they had also given orders to the Presidency of Fort St. George to cultivate the friendship of Hyder Ally. That therefore he should have no objection to a treaty of peace and alliance with Moodajee Boosla on usual terms, but was afraid of the proposed engagements with him, because " he did not know whither such engage- " ments might lead the Company's arms, or how long " they might implicate them in the political contests of " the Country Powers," which they were taught to avoid. Ben. Sec. Cons. 11 July 1778. Appendix, No. 69.

The Governor General declaring that the measure which he had proposed was formed on grounds purely defensive, and that the present question was only whether a negociation should be entered into, the conditions of which would be proper subject for future debate, it appears that the majority of the Board assented to that proposition; and also that his recommendation of Mr. Elliot to be employed on that commission, was unanimously agreed to.

On the 18th July the Governor General laid before the Board the instructions which he proposed to be given to Mr. Elliot for the management of his embassy to the Court of Berar. Your Committee have placed them, and the arguments of the several Members of the Board, both in objection and support of them, in the Appendix, No. 70, to which we desire particularly to direct the attention of the House for a full examination of them; it will therefore be necessary in this place merely to observe, that the proposition of the Governor General was resolved in the affirmative, and that the instructions to Mr. Elliot, and the Minutes thereon, were sealed up and deposited in the Secretary's office; and that in consequence of a second proposition made by the Governor General, it was agreed to inform the President and Council of Bombay, Mr. Mostyn, and Colonel Leslie, of Mr. Elliot's deputation, and to request them to give him their assistance by advice and intelligence of every occurrence or circumstance which might advance the success of his negociation, adding to the Presidency of Bombay this special direction—" The " success of the measures we have entrusted to Mr. " Elliot, must depend in a great measure upon their " present secrecy. He will, however, notify to you " such articles as he may agree to with the Rajah. In " the mean time, to prevent any steps of a contrary " tendency on your part, we request that you will re- " frain from forming any engagements of a nature hos- " tile to the actual administration at Poonah, excepting " such as may appear absolutely necessary for the de- " fence of your own possessions." And to Colonel Leslie as follows:—" You will conform to such articles " and engagements as he (Mr. Elliot) may conclude on " behalf Appx. No. 70. Appx. No. 71.

" behalf of this Government with Moodajee Booſla, as " far as they may reſpect the forces under your com- " mand."

It appears that on the 20th of July, the Governor General moved for the notification of Mr. Elliot's appointment to the Preſidency of Fort St. George, and that they ſhould be requeſted " to inform him of any " events relating to peace or war, but particularly of " any changes in their political ſituation with the " Nizam." Several matters of arrangement, in regard to allowance of ſalary and attendants, being then ſettled, your Committee find, that the Board agreed to Mr. Elliot's credentials, by which he was intruſted with full powers, and a declaration on the part of the Superior Council, that they would ratify and confirm whatever ſhould be concluded by him in their names, and on their behalf, according to the inſtructions with which they had furniſhed him for that purpoſe.

Appx. No. 72. Secret Letter, 17th Auguſt 1778.

And your Committee further obſerve, that the Governor General and Council communicated to the Court of Directors, in their ſecret letter dated 17th Auguſt, an account of all theſe proceedings, as well in regard to the ſituation of the detachment under Colonel Leſlie, and to their own deſign of forming an offenſive treaty with Moodajee Booſla, as to the advice " which they had " given to the Preſidency of Fort Saint George, to " open a negociation with the Nabob Hyder Ally, who " had lately made repeated applications, ſoliciting an " alliance with the Company."

With regard to the ſituation of affairs at this important period in other quarters, connected in any degree with thoſe we have conſidered, your Committee have obſerved, that Moodajee Booſla, whoſe alliance appears to have been conſidered as of ſuch importance to the Company's intereſt, had, by his letters, expreſſed in general terms the aſſurances of friendſhip and attachment; and had in particular promiſed to furniſh every kind of ſupply neceſſary for the convenience of the detachment which was to paſs through a part of his dominions. It appears, moreover, that he had addreſſed ſome enquiries to the Government of Poonah, relative to the nature of their correſpondence with the French, and had communicated the anſwer he received, which will be found in the Appendix, to the Governor General, but did not add any opinion upon it.

No. 21 and 22. Received 4th July 1778. See alſo other letters.

It has been remarked, that in notifying to the Preſidency of Fort St. George the intended deputation to the Court of Berar, the Governor General and Council had particularly requeſted them to communicate to Mr. Elliot any changes in their political ſituation with the Nizam; and it appeared, from the letters referred to in the Governor General's Minute of the 9th July, that the ſupport of the Poonah Adminiſtration was an undoubted object of the Soubah's policy; and alſo, that his enmity againſt Ragoba was as determined. In his letter to Governor Rumbold, received 21ſt June, he concluded with theſe words: " If the Gentlemen of Bengal, in ſupport- " ing Ragonaut Row, are determined to make war with " Pundit Purdhaun Madharow, I ſhall be obliged, in " conſideration of the treaty ſubſiſting between him and " me, to give him every poſſible aſſiſtance on my part. " You, Sir, will be pleaſed to communicate theſe par- " ticulars to the Government of Bengal, and acquaint " me with the reſult of it."

Appx. No. 74.

Letter from the Nizam to Governor Rumbold, received 21 June 1778.

Your Committee have further obſerved, that in the following month a letter was received at Calcutta from Nizam Ally himſelf; in which he very explicitly declared his ſentiments and intentions concerning the diſputes with the Marattas, and the probability of his interfering in them.

Appx. No. 74. Letter received 23 July 1778.

This ſeemed wholly to depend on the nature of the ſupport which the Britiſh Government might give to the pretenſions of Ragonaut Row; againſt " whoſe bad faith " and invincible villainy," he expreſſed a moſt ſettled reſentment; and adverting to the treaty formed between himſelf and the Preſidency of Madras, by which the Company engaged not to protect the enemies of his Government, he ſaid he had formerly aſked Colonel Upton, " Whilſt ſuch a treaty ſubſiſts, what is the motive of " giving refuge to Ragonaut Row, the inveterate enemy " of my Government, and labouring at his eſtabliſh- " ment?"

Being ſtill ſuſpicious of the ſame deſign, he now aſked the Governor General, if he was ignorant of that treaty, or if, being made by the Company at Madras, it was not binding on the Company at Bombay? But that his meaning might not be miſtaken, he thus recapitulated it:

" If you have any quarrel with Pundit Purdhaun on " any other account than that of Ragonaut Row, it " matters not to me, I have nothing to do with it; but " if you engage in hoſtilities with Pundit Purdhaun on " account of Ragonaut Row, as I am inviolable in my " engagements, and am bound by a firm treaty to " Pundit Purdhaun in caſe Ragonaut Row makes war on " him, it becomes my indiſpenſable duty, in conſe- " quence of ſuch engagement, to give my aſſiſtance to " Row Pundit Purdhaun. You will in ſuch caſe refer " to the treaty I have before alluded to. It was neceſ- " ſary to intimate theſe particulars to you, and I have " accordingly done ſo."

In concluſion, he aſſured the Governor General he needed entertain no ſuſpicions or apprehenſions on account of St. Lubin, for whoſe diſmiſſion from Poonah he had himſelf importuned, and did not doubt but he was already ſet off.

And it appears, that the Governor General, in his anſwer written the following day, ſtrongly inſiſted on the certainty of an alliance formed between the French and the Marattas, " the fore-knowledge of which (he ob- " ſerved) has induced me to prepare a force to be ſent " to Bombay, not for the ſupport of Ragonaut Row, to " whom this Government is under no engagements, " nor to make war with the Miniſters with whom we are " in friendſhip, but in conformity to the duties incum- " bent on this Government, charged with the care and " protection of all the Engliſh poſſeſſions in India, for " the purpoſe of ſecuring the Preſidency of Bombay, " which is now expoſed to a war with our declared ene- " mies the French, and may be alſo involved in one " with the Marattas, for ſuch are their apparent deſigns. " We are the friends of the Peiſhwa and of the Mini- " ſters, and ſhall continue ſo whilſt they are our friends. " We ſhall be their enemies, if they compel us to be " ſuch."

Having given this explanation of his conduct, he did not doubt of the continuance of the Nizam's friendſhip.

With this anſwer the Nizam, as far as may be judged by his own expreſſions, was apparently well ſatisfied. " The good faith I have found in the Company, exceeds " what I have experienced from any other Power. With " reſpect to what you write of Ragonaut Row, the con- " duct you have purſued is ſuch as the faith of treaty " required. I formerly, in the ſtrongeſt terms, deſired " the Poonah Miniſters not to give encouragement to " the French vackeel. They are now aſhamed of their " conduct, and have not the leaſt idea of connecting " themſelves with the French. But ſhould the leaſt " ſymptoms of ſuch a deſign be proved on them, I will " give immediate information to you, and withdraw " myſelf from my engagements with them."

Received at Calcutta January 1779. Appx. No. 76.

It ſhould ſeem indeed, by a ſuppoſed letter from Ballajee Janaurdon to the Nizam, copy of which Mr. Moſtyn tranſmitted to Calcutta, that the Miniſters applied for his aſſiſtance againſt the Engliſh ſo early as June 1778, and at the ſame time avowed the treaty which they had made with the French vackeel in the month of May preceding.

No. 42. Received 21ſt July 1778. Appx. No. 77.

Hyder Ally, however, in this interval had been making ſome ſucceſsful inroads upon the Maratta dominions, and reduced ſeveral of their forts. It has been ſtated in a former Report, that the Governor General ſolicited the aſſiſtance assistance of Hyder Ally to expedite the march and the success of the Bengal detachment; but Hyder declined engaging in that expedition, because his operations against the Marattas required the exertion of his whole force; so that from these informations, he appears at this period to have been earnestly bent upon hostilities against the Marattas, and apparently desirous of the English friendship, though strongly suspected of a closer attachment to the French.

Appx. No. 79. 11th July 1778, to Chite Sing. N. B. His answer. Appx. No. 80. Letter to Chite Sing, 17 Aug. 1778.

With regard to the lesser Powers in the neighbourhood of Bengal, your Committee find, that in consequence of the rupture with France, orders were given, upon the resolution of the Supreme Board, to General Stibbert, Commander in Chief, to cause three battalions of Sepoys to be immediately raised and maintained at the expence of Chite Sing; which the Governor General informed that Rajah, would amount to five lacks per annum; a sum which he, not without earnest representation of his poverty, agreed to pay.

Appx. No. 81. Letter from Lucknow, 10 April 1778. Sec. Letter, 17 August. Letter from Nudjif Cawn, Sec. Corr. Appx. No. 82. See Appx. No. 72, par. 34. See paper of intelligence from Delhi.

A renewal of the treaty between the Vizier and Fizoola Cawn had been made under the guarantee of the Company.

Nudjif Cawn having made peace with the Seiks, had expressed his desire of receiving Major Hannay as an agent from the Government of Bengal; and the Governor General and Council had in consequence directed the Major, who appears to have then had the command of the Vizier body guard, to visit Nudjif Cawn with the Vizier's consent, and to report to them any proposals which he might have to offer.

The Vizier was intent on the defence of his own frontiers, and had consented to a plan proposed by Captain Osborn, for raising a battalion of Sepoys for the protection of the Douab, which the Governor General and Council had recommended to him. Appx. No. 72.

Colonel Leslie was arrived at Chattapore, where he was obliged to halt for the purpose of repairing his artillery carriages; and from whence he had thought it necessary to direct an attack upon the principal station of the Maratta Chief, Ballajee Punt, who had given him much trouble on his march, and who, having assembled his men on the banks of the river Kane, still threatened to oppose the progress of the troops. Appx. No. 84. Ben. Sec. Conf. 31 Aug. 1778.

By the last accounts from Poonah, a second revolution had taken place in the administration of that Government, at the head of which Nanna Furnese was again replaced, by the powerful intervention of Madajee Scindia. But the Government of Bombay had resolved to close with the proposals of the opposite party, and to pursue the most practicable way of placing Ragoba in the Regency, by means of their own forces, aided by Colonel Leslie's detachment, and supported by the troops of that party. See Sec. Letter to Court of Directors, 17 August 1778. Appx. No. 72.

And it appears that the Governor General and Council had taken into consideration these advices from the Select Committee of Bombay, and had approved of and given a sanction to their resolutions under certain provisoes. Letter to Bombay, 17 August 1778. Appx. No. 85.

Your Committee have thus endeavoured ſhortly to ſtate an account of the proceedings of the Supreme Council, in regard to the nature of their latter interference in the diſputes between the Preſidency of Bombay and the Maratta Durbar. We have referred the Houſe to very ample documents and authorities in the ſeveral Appendixes, for fuller information of the declared principles and reaſons of their conduct upon that ſubject. We have made it appear, that they had not only ſent very conſiderable aſſiſtance of men and money from their own Preſidency to that of Bombay, but had alſo prevailed upon the Government of Fort Saint George to give their aid, by detaching a body of troops from their eſtabliſhment to ſtrengthen the army on the Malabar coaſt, and had ſince applied to them for a preparation of further eventual reinforcements for the ſame ſervice. We have alſo ſhewn the difficulties and impediments which the Bengal detachment met with in the outſet of their march, and the contrariety of orders which the Commander of it received from the Preſident and Council of Bombay, before his arrival at Chatterpore in the end of June. To theſe we have added the opinions and propoſitions of the ſeveral Members of the Superior Council in conſequence of thoſe incidents; till, on the receipt of apparently authentic intelligence of a rupture with France, that Board directed their attention to a new object, by deputing an Embaſſy to the Court of Berar, which they expected to produce in its ultimate conſequences an effect ſeemingly inconſiſtent with the purſuit of their former views and deſigns upon the ſubject; though it is to be obſerved, that the Governor General intimated in his Minute, that he had already "employed the Agency of Moodajee Booſla's vackeel to "excite the ambition of his maſter to aſpire to the "Sovereign authority of the Maratta Empire upon the "death of the Ram Rajah." We have explained the tenor of the inſtructions which they ſent to Bombay, when they communicated to that Government their intention of forming an alliance with the Berar Rajah; and we have finally reported their laſt reſolutions of approbation and concurrence with the Preſidency of Bombay, in a meaſure which, being in ſupport of Ragoba, appears moſt calculated to claſh with and to counteract the accompliſhment of their deſigns in favour of Moodajee Booſla. It is at the ſame time however to be remembered, that the advancement of the pretenſions of Ragonaut Row was expreſsly denied to be the object of the detachment under Colonel Leſlie, or that it would prove the cauſe of any diſpute with the Poonah Government.

Your Committee therefore find it neceſſary to proceed in queſt of information which may tend to explain or reconcile theſe appearances of political contradiction; but we ſhall firſt lay before the Houſe, the reſult of our examination into ſeveral records of the Preſidency of Bombay concerning theſe matters, that it may be ſeen what ſteps they, who were upon the ſpot, and moſt immediately intereſted in theſe tranſactions, took in this interval, to make the beſt exertion of their own faculties of power or policy, to bring them to a termination beneficial or honourable to their employers; but particularly, that it may be explained what were the circumſtances which led to, and what was the purport of thoſe propoſals of Moraba, and thoſe ſubſequent anſwers of Nanna, which occaſioned the reſolutions taken by the Select Committee of Bombay, and the confirmation of thoſe reſolutions by the Superior Council.

Your Committee, however, in the firſt place, deſire to refer the Houſe to an inſpection of the papers hereunto immediately annexed, that they may ſee and examine the ſtate of the revenues, and of the military force under that Preſidency, at the period in queſtion.

Sec. Letter from Bombay, 14 March 1778. Appx. No. 86.

Your Committee will next proceed to point out the following extract of a secret letter, dated 14th March 1778, from the President and Council of Bombay to the Court of Directors, which appears to have been written a few days after the receipt of the Governor General and Council's letter of 2d February: "We have had the "satisfaction of receiving the most complete sanction "and approbation of the Governor General and Coun- "cil to the plan and principle upon which we are de- "termined to proceed. The failure of this promising "scheme may in a great measure be ascribed to the dis- "trust entertained by Ragoba's friends, of our want of "power to fulfil our engagements. Moraba's words to "Mr. Lewis were, 'If we enter into business, let us "go through it heartily; let there be no excuse on the "part of the Governor and Council afterwards, that "they have received orders to make a peace, as they "did before.'

N. B. The overtures made by Moraba through Mr. Lewis.

"The necessity of taking some measures to anticipate "the designs of the French, and to counteract the party "in the Poonah Government inimical to the Company, "appears every day more eminent. The Governor "General and Council's approbation is too much con- "fined to the particular plan proposed to them, with- "out giving us any more general latitude to act as cir- "cumstances might require, which we had very strongly "pressed them to do; so that at last we may be obliged "either to hazard the consequences of acting without "authority from them, or passively behold the very "existence of the Company endangered, without "making an effort to preserve it."

Bom. Sec. Conf. 29 March 1778. Appx. No. 87.

But your Committee observe, that when Mr. Mostyn, in his letter dated 27th March, to the President of Bombay, gave an account of the revolution (which he had long expected), whereby Moraba, who made use of the name of Ragonaut Row, became vested with the Sirpaw of Duan by Pertwetta Boy, to whose care the person of the young Peishwa had been entrusted, he (Mr. Mostyn) applied at the same time for advice and direction; suggesting however the following doubts: "Should "Nanna condescend to make up matters with his op- "ponents, it may induce the party not to comply "wholly with Ragoba's treaty, and should Ragoba re- "fuse to accept of their invitation on any other terms, "Moraba and his party might look upon themselves as "absolved from the oath they gave to Ragoba, which is "the reason of their having made this effort, and think "no more of them. Our consideration seems now to "be, whether it would not be more advantageous to the "Company to recede something, and thereby fix Ra- "goba in the Government with a body of our troops, "and remain in strict friendship with the Maratta State, "and consequently entirely shut out our natural enemies "the French, and all other Europeans, than, by per- "sisting in a full compliance with the treaty, have Ra- "goba thrown upon our hands, without any further "prospect, at variance with the Government, leave all "hopes of any further advantage from them, even by "the present treaty, than what we are in absolute pos- "session of, and give them an opening to admit the "French, or any other Power they please?"

Bom. Sec. Conf. 6 April 1778 Appx. No. 88.

And your Committee find, that these doubts were further confirmed by another letter from Mr. Mostyn, in which he expressed much mortification at the probability of a reconciliation between Nanna and the opposite party; who being expected at Poonah in a few days, would then probably make proposals respecting an agreement with the Company and Ragoba. The President and Council of Bombay resolved thereupon to instruct Mr. Mostyn not to recede from any article of the treaty of Surat; adding, "that it would be time enough to "relax in their demands hereafter, if they should find "it necessary." And we observe, that the Board having at the same time considered the contents of the letter received the day before from Bengal, dated 26th of February, complained of being confined by it from taking the more active measures they had recommended; and therefore acquitting themselves, they declared the responsibility to rest upon the Superior Council, should the French succeed in getting an establishment at Choule.

Your Committee find, in several of Mr. Mostyn's letters recorded on the Secret Consultations of the Bombay Board, repeated intelligence of the probable designs of the French, of the promises made by the new Durbar to dismiss Saint Lubin, of their subsequent evasions on that subject, and also in regard to any certain proposals for an agreement with the Company and Ragoba. On the 14th of April he wrote that Tambucker was to be dispatched with full powers to treat with the Presidency and Ragoba. On the 18th he informed the Board, that at the Durbar, where he found assembled Butcheba, Proonder, Morabah, Chintoo Wittall, Tookajee Holkar, and others, Morabah assured him that they all confirmed the agreement formerly made with Ragoba; but their arrangements with the Company would be best settled after Dada Sahib's arrival at Poonah, which delay Mr. Mostyn was disposed to approve of, thinking that Ragoba would consider the treaty of Surat as the only legal one.

See letter from Mr. Mostyn, dated 10 April, on Bom. Sec. Conf. 11th April 1778. Appx. No. 89.

Bom. Sec. Conf. 16th April 1778. Appx. No. 90. Ibid. 20 April 1778.

It appears, however, that the President and Council of Bombay did not think it proper that Mr. Mostyn should come with any proposals whatever from the Ministers, unless they would first deliver to him in writing the particular stipulations which they were willing to agree to. And your Committee observe, that it was at this time that the majority of the Board being of opinion, that from the present situation of affairs, there was no prospect of having any occasion for the Bengal troops that season, and in order to avoid the heavy expence by their marching forward, agreed to write to the Commanding Officer at Calpee, to remain there till further orders; and upon this occasion Messrs. Draper and Stackhouse dissenting from the rest of the gentlemen, declared that they did not think their situation so much altered, either with respect to the Marattas, the probable designs of the French upon Choule, or their own military resources, as to justify the countermanding the march of the troops. Whereupon the majority thought it necessary to observe, in their vindication, that the difficulties of the march from Calpee to Bombay were so great, as to make the attempt next to impracticable; that they would not upon any account expose the Company's troops to such dangers, without the most absolute and imminent necessity; that they were assured, by later accounts from Europe than the Governor General and Council could have had, that there was no probability of a rupture with France.

Bom. Sec. Conf. 22 April 1778. See the proceedings on this Consultation, Appx. No. 91. See Appx. No. 56.

It has been seen how soon these resolutions were altered, and what reasons of absolute and imminent necessity were assigned for commanding the advance of the detachment. To those letters, which are referred to above, your Committee have added, in the Appendix, No. 92, a secret letter from the President and Council to the Court of Directors, dated 26th April, by which will be discovered the idea they then entertained of the situation of those affairs; and wherein we find an observation, which proves that Ragoba did not well brook any delay, and that it had been necessary to hold a conference with him, to moderate his impatience. And it appears, that on that occasion he particularly insisted on his alarm, lest delay should weaken the resolution of the party in his favour; to which he added the further stimulative of an earnest profession of his hope to gain an earlier opportunity of putting the Company in possession of Bassein.

Appx. No. 92. See extract of Secret Letter, dated 26th April 1778 No. 92.

See report of the conference, Bom. Sel. Cont. 22 April. Appx. No. 93.

Your Committee find, that Mr. Mostyn communicated to the President and Council of Bombay, in his letters of the 25th and 28th May, several pieces of information which he had gained, in further proof of the favourable attention still paid to the French agent by the new Durbar, and of their endeavours to prevent the advance of the the detachment under Colonel Leſlie, for which purpoſe it was ſaid that they had written to Moodajee Boojla, deſiring him to ſtop their march either by friendly intervention or by force, in which latter caſe he ſhould be ſupported with aſſiſtance from them, if he ſhould require it. And Mr. Moſtyn appears to have openly declared to perſons deputed to him from the Durbar, that he conſidered all the pretences of ſending propoſals to Bombay as mere fineſſe, calculated only to gain time, and to check the progreſs of the troops from Bengal. And your Committee obſerve, that the Preſident and Council of Bombay expreſſed on the 3d June the ſame opinion in theſe words: " Any offers the Durbar may now " make to Ragoba, can only be intended to gain more " time, and the more important object we have in view " cannot be put to the hazard upon the mere hopes of " advantage to him."

Letter from Bombay to Bengal, dated 5 June 1778. Appx. No. 95.

It appears, that on the 16th May the Preſident and Council apprized Colonel Leſlie that the rainy ſeaſon on their coaſt might be expected to ſet in about the 10th or 15th of June: that on the 5th of June they ſent inſtructions to him to direct his march to Surat, unleſs he ſhould think it more expedient to proceed to Broach. And we perceive, that on the 19th June, having received information of the commencement of hoſtilities between Great Britain and France, they repeated their directions to him to purſue his march with the utmoſt diligence on that account. And it appears, that on the 22d of the ſame month, Mr. Moſtyn forwarded to him Duſtucks which he had received from Moraba and Butcheba, for the free paſſage of his corps through the Maratta dominions.

Appx. No. 96.

See Ben. Conſ. 23 July.

But your Committee find by Mr. Moſtyn's letters, and by the Secret Conſultations of the Preſident and Council of Bombay, and by their ſecret letters of the 17th June and 8th of July, that Mr. Moſtyn had preſented on the 4th of June to the Miniſters a formal paper of demands with the Company's ſeal annexed, in obedience to the directions which, as has been before taken notice of, he had received from the Preſident and Council of Bombay: that he had deſired an immediate and explicit anſwer likewiſe in writing, allowing only a delay of fourteen days; that he had not however been able for a conſiderable time to obtain any reply to thoſe requiſitions, till by the aſſiſtance of Scindia and Holkar, Nanna Furneſe again appeared in formidable competition with Moraba and his party, and ſoon after regained the aſcendancy of miniſterial power; during which ſtruggle it appears that Moraba and his friends at laſt delivered to Mr. Moſtyn every neceſſary paper and credential for ſettling the demands of the Company upon that ſtate, and bringing Ragoba again into the Government; that with theſe, at their particular requeſt, and not having received any anſwer from the new adminiſtration, he determined to proceed to the Preſidency, in order to lay them before the Board; which he accordingly did on the 13th day of July: and on the 21ſt the Select Committee took them into conſideration.

See letters from Mr. Moſtyn, to Bengal, 10 and 30 June; Letters from Bombay to Bengal, dated 12 and 18 June; Letter from Mr. Moſtyn to Bombay, dated 21 June. Do. 27 June.

Appx. No. 97. See Appx. No. 65.

Letter from Mr. Moſtyn to Bombay, 3d July. Appx. No. 98.

Letter from Mr. Moſtyn, dated 13th July, with the Inclo-ſures. Appx. No. 99. Letter of 27 June from Mr. Moſtyn. Appx. No. 100.

It is however to be remarked, that Mr. Moſtyn, in his letter of the 27th of June to the Board, expreſsly mentioned that Nanna had more than once ſent Maderow Jaderow to deſire to ſee him, which he had declined to comply with, having aſſigned as a reaſon, that the articles did not require explanation, and if there was any other propoſition to make, it ſhould be delivered in writing; to which Maderow had replied, " That the " buſineſs Nanna wanted him for, was to talk on the " articles and the increaſe of their friendſhip." Hereupon Mr. Moſtyn makes the following reflection in explanation of his reaſons for having ſtill perſiſted to avoid a meeting with Nanna:

" This more fully points out their view in ſending for " me to be nothing more than to delay time, and to " evade giving an anſwer to the paper in writing. And " as, from the exceſs of time, your honour, &c. may " judge it a refuſal, I have thought it moſt prudent to " evade going, and from experience I am convinced it " is the only method of drawing any thing from them " in writing."

And your Committee find, that a few hours after Mr. Moſtyn had quitted Poonah, a reply, very different indeed from that delivered by Moraba and his party, was ſent in writing to Mr. Lewis by the Durbar, and by him tranſmitted to the Board; whoſe ſentiments upon it will be taken notice of, as having been the principle of thoſe reſolutions, which were proviſionally approved and confirmed by the Superior Council.

See Mr. Lewis's letter, dated 20 July 1778. Appx. No. 101. This appears to be a miſtake; the letter from Mr. Lewis is dated 17th July, but is found on Bom. Sel. Con. 20 July 1778. See Appx. No. 85. Appx. No. 102.

But your Committee obſerve, that previous to the meeting of the Select Committee upon this ſubject, they received advice from Poonah of ſome violent proceedings againſt Moraba and his party by Nanna, in conjunction with Madajee Scindia, who had employed a body of horſe in ſeizing and confining the perſons of Moraba and Butcheba; had obliged Holkar to give up his Duan, and accept one of their appointment, and were ſuſpected of deſigns againſt the liberty of Siccaram Baboo, who had not been conſulted in any of theſe meaſures.

On the 21ſt July the Select Committee of Bombay, which your Committee find to have conſiſted of Governor Hornby, Mr. Carnac, Colonel Egerton, and Mr. Draper, aſſembled to take into conſideration the ſituation of affairs with the Marattas; and having conſidered the Durbar's anſwer to the requiſitions preſented by Mr. Moſtyn on the 4th of June, they judged it neceſſary to conſult him on ſeveral points before they took their reſolutions on the papers before them; which will be found together in the Appendix No. 104.

Appx. No. 103. Appointment of a Sel. Com. 10 April 1778.

Appx. No. 104.

And your Committee further find, that Mr. Moſtyn attending accordingly, delivered his ſentiments; in which, after inſiſting upon the danger of Nanna's inimical intrigues with the French, and on the ſtate of the different parties at Poonah, he declared it to be impoſſible in his judgment to chuſe any other alternative than that of taking part with Moraba, and that it ſhould be done without the ſmalleſt delay, conſidering the actual ſituation of affairs with France. And on his further examination by the Select Committee on theſe matters, he gave them every encouragement to make a vigorous attempt from a conſideration of the ſtate and diſpoſition of the Maratta armies, from the aſſiſtance to be expected by acting in concert with the confederate Chiefs, and from the little difficulty there would be in ſecuring all the paſſes between the Preſidency and Poonah.

And it appears that the Select Committee thereupon proceeded to conſider the Durbar's anſwer tranſmitted by Mr. Lewis, ſince Nanna Furneſe had reſumed his place in the adminiſtration; and they came thereupon to the following unanimous reſolutions:

Appx. No. 105.

" That the anſwers are in the higheſt degree vague, " evaſive, and unſatisfactory, and amount to a refuſal.

" That we are authorized by the Governor General " and Council's letter of 23d March, to declare the " Durbar's anſwers a violation of the treaty of Poorunder, " and conſequently that we are free from all obligation " laid on us by that treaty, and at full liberty to take " meaſures for ſubverting that party in the Poonah Go- " vernment which is connected with the French in " ſchemes hoſtile to the Engliſh Company; and for " eſtabliſhing an Adminiſtration at Poonah, with which " we can maintain a permanent alliance.

" That the ſituation of public affairs in Europe, and " Nanna's reſtoration to the executive power at Poonah, " render it indiſpenſably neceſſary to effect thoſe two " points with all poſſible expedition.

" That for accompliſhing thoſe purpoſes, the moſt " practicable meaſures be purſued for placing Ragoba " in the regency at Poonah, with this ſpecial proviſo, " that the Government and Sicca be conducted in the " Peiſhwa's name during his minority, and ſurrendered " to him on his obtaining legal age."

The plan of future meaſures appears to have been the next ſubject of conſideration; which terminated in other unanimous reſolutions (the particulars of which Appx. No. 106. are placed in the Appendix, No. 106) to engage with Moraba and his party, and to make neceſſary preparations (without imparting their intentions to Ragoba) againſt the ſeaſon of action, before which time they might expect to receive advices from Europe, and obtain the ſentiments of the Governor General and Council.

Letter, dated 21 July 1778. Appx. No 107. And we perceive, that in order to ſecure the co-operation of Colonel Leſlie's detachments, they ſent new directions for the courſe of his march; and that, with a view of engaging the neutrality at leaſt, if not the aſſiſtance of Moodajee Booſla and the Nizam, they recommended it to the Governments of Bengal and Madras to prefer demands of that tendency upon thoſe Powers.

See the letters to Bengal and Madras on this occaſion. Appx. No. 108

And your Committee find, that the Preſident and Council of Bombay tranſmitted an account of theſe circumſtances and proceedings to the Court of Directors, in their ſecret letter dated 31ſt of July, which concludes with the following paſſage:

"Moraba and his party have engaged to join Ragoba with all their forces as ſoon as he paſſed the Ghauts, but we cannot place much dependance upon them, at leaſt for any immediate aſſiſtance, as Nanna Furneſe, upon ſuſpicion of their deſigns, has ſeized and confined moſt of this party, and even ſecured the perſons of Moraba and Butcheba themſelves. Yet ſo much is the Poonah Government weakened by the inteſtine diviſions which have ſo long ſubſiſted, that we hope we ſhall be able to effect our point without much difficulty, even if Moraba ſhould not be able to join us; and we doubt not, when it is ſeen that we openly eſpouſe Ragoba's cauſe, but many principal Maratta officers will declare for him, as his claim and family are in general favoured by them, and Nanna's oppreſſive Government deteſted.

"In the terms to be made with Ragoba for the Company, we propoſe to look for nothing further than the performance of the Treaty of Surat, the total excluſion of the French, and payment of our expences."

Your Committee think it proper in this place to remark to the Houſe, that we have found, among the various records and documents which we had called for, in order to gain all proper materials for the proſecution of our enquiry, a report of the Committee of Correſpondence of the Eaſt India Company; which appears to have been appointed by the Court of Directors to examine into the affairs of Bombay, and particularly the circumſtances previous to and during this expedition undertaken in favour of Ragoba. And your Committee intend to place an extract of the moſt material parts of this Report in an Appendix, from which the Houſe will derive much information; and as we muſt neceſſarily, in the courſe of our Report, conſider many of the ſame points which have been the objects of their attention, we ſhall occaſionally annex to our obſervations any deciſive opinion which the Committee of Correſpondence appear to have ſubmitted to the Court of Directors upon each of ſuch points. And in obſervance of this deſign, your Committee will here inſert the opinion, which was given upon the reſolution of the Select Committee above-mentioned, of the 21ſt July;

Comm. of Cor. March 1780. "And the Committee having duly attended to the whole of the proceedings previous to the expedition under conſideration, are of opinion, that the reſolution of the Select Committee of Bombay, of the 21ſt of July, for placing Ragoba in the regency at Poonah, was not improper, under the favourable circumſtances ſet forth in their proceedings at that period."

Bom. Sel. Conſ. 12 Oct. 1778. Your Committee have not found in the records of the Preſidency of Bombay, any proceedings which tended to a further proſecution of theſe meaſures, till the 12th of October, when the Select Committee, compoſed of the ſame Members, reſumed their conſideration of Maratta affairs. But it will be proper to obſerve, that previous to this meeting of the Committee, a letter from the Governor General and Council, dated 17th Auguſt, had been received, containing their approbation of the reſolutions of the Select Committee of the 21ſt of July, on the following expreſs proviſions:

Received 29 Sept. 1778. See Appx. No. 85.

"Firſt—That it do not interfere with any engagements formed with Moodajee Bouncello by Mr Elliot, and previous notice to you by him.

"Second—That your lateſt advices from Europe ſhall be equal to an aſſurance, that the force required for this ſervice may be ſpared, without endangering the ſafety of Bombay, in the event of a French invaſion.

"Third.—That the engagement you may form with Ragoba himſelf, or Moraba and his aſſociates, be not contrary to thoſe concluded with Moodajee by Mr. Elliot, and noticed to you, nor of any hoſtile tendency to the Government of Berar."

Appx. No. 109. See alſo Appx. No. 111, 112, 113. And it appears, that there was much difference of opinion in the members of the Bombay Board, upon the exact interpretation of the Governor General and Council's meaning, in the reſtrictive proviſion relative to the engagements with Moodajee Bouncello, whether they ſhould not conſider it as an inſtruction to delay execution of their reſolutions, till they might be informed by Mr. Elliot of the particular articles of the alliance entered into with that Power, which in effect would amount to a virtual prohibition of their intended enterprize.

Your Committee having obſerved that the Committee of Correſpondence delivered an opinion upon theſe inſtructions from the Governor General and Council, here inſerted it as follows:

"The Committee find, that when the Governor General and Council approved the reſolution of the 21ſt of July, they could not have been informed of the confinement of thoſe Maratta Chiefs, who were ſuppoſed to be well inclined to Ragoba, and capable of affording him the aſſiſtance above-mentioned."

And it further appears, by the advices tranſmitted in this interval by Mr. Lewis from Poonah, that Moraba Furnuſe and Butcheba Proonder had been transferred from the cuſtody of Madajee Scindia to that of Nanna Furneſe, who kept them in cloſe confinement. That "the Durbar had been conſulting how they ſhould oppoſe Colonel Leſlie's march, but were much puzzled what Appx. No. 110. officer to ſend, as Siccaram and Nanna, being mutually afraid of each other, would not conſent to Scindia's going, as they conſidered him as the umpire between them; that Hurry Punt had declared his reſolution of not ſtirring without the Miniſters, who were afraid to truſt Holkar with the command: that Purſeram Bhow muſt return to Meritz, Hyder's army being in camp on the other ſide of the Kiſtna, with a determined reſolution of attacking it as ſoon as the ſeaſon opened." That they had therefore contented themſelves with having privately written to the different Rajahs and officers through whoſe diſtricts the Colonel muſt neceſſarily paſs, to uſe every endeavour to prevent his advancing; but that in caſe their efforts ſhould prove ineffectual, they were directed to deny having received any orders from Government.

And it is to be obſerved, that by the laſt accounts received at Bombay, of Colonel Leſlie's ſituation, he had not advanced much beyond Chatterpore.

Bom. Sel. Conſ. 12 Oct. 1778. Appx. No. 112. And your Committee find on the Select Conſultations of 12th October, a minute of Mr. Carnac, in which he lamented, that not a ſingle ſtep had yet been taken in proſecution of their reſolutions of the 21ſt of July, or to avail themſelves of the opportunity offered by the diſtractions in the Brahmin miniſtry to exclude Nanna from any ſhare in the Government; that moſt ſerious evils might enſue to the Company by any longer delay; that they were not neceſſarily retarded by any circumſtances ariſing from the reſtrictions contained in the Governor General and Council's letter of approbation; that the party of Moraba was not ſo depreſſed as to be incapable of rendering very material ſervice; and that their conduct muſt be liable to a charge of inconſiſtency by their honourable employers, ſhould they remain inactive after having received a full latitude from the controlling Preſidency to act with vigour and effect.—And we perceive that Mr. Moſtyn, whoſe opinion was again conſulted upon this occaſion, repeated every encouraging aſſurance of the certainty of ſucceſs, and of the preſent criſis being the moſt favourable that could offer for the execution of their deſigns. And in ſupport of this opinion he offered ſeveral reaſons, which will be found in the Appendix, No. 111. It appears that at the cloſe of the debate, the majority of the Committee, Mr. Draper only diſſenting, reſolved to carry into immediate execution the plan agreed to under 21ſt of July.

Bom. Sel. Conſ. 19th Oct. 1778. Appx. No. 112.

Your Committee find, that Mr. Draper delivered in his minute of diſſent to the foregoing reſolution on the 19th of October; in which he aſcribed to the difference of circumſtances the reaſon of his changing his opinion ſince the 21ſt of July, and of his objecting to the proſecution of thoſe meaſures at the preſent juncture; to which he added the following inducements:

" Firſt, Becauſe of the expreſs conditions contained in " the Governor General and Council's letter of 17 " Auguſt.

" Secondly, Becauſe of the reſtraint Moraba and " Butcheba, and their adherents, ſeem to be under.

" Thirdly, Becauſe of the very great deficiency in " our European force to the laſt eſtabliſhment ordered by " the Honourable Company."

On theſe heads he enlarged in long explanatory arguments, which are placed in the Appendix, No. 112, and are judged well deſerving the attention of the Houſe. But in concluſion he declared his concurrence of opinion in the neceſſity of removing Nanna from the adminiſtration of affairs, and of reinſtating Ragonaut Row in quality of Regent, for the welfare of the Preſidency, though he thought it adviſable to delay the attempt for a few months.

Bom. Sel. Conſ. 26 Oct. 1778. Appx. No. 113.

On the 26th of October your Committee obſerve, that the other Members of the Select Board declared, in anſwer to Mr. Draper's objections, that they conſidered the ſucceſs of the intended expedition to depend entirely upon its being immediately undertaken to prevent a junction between the French and the Maratta forces; and that it was in no way likely " the degree of ſupport they " meant to give Ragonaut Row could be at all affected " by a negociation with Moodajee Boonſla, even ſuppoſing " it ſhould have been recommended to him to aſſert his " pretenſions to the Rajahſhip of Sattarah." The majority of the Committee having thus confirmed their firſt opinion, an immediate expedition to Poonah, in ſupport of Ragoba, was reſolved upon.

Upon this reſolution, and the ſubſequent execution of it, the Court of Directors, in conformation of the report made to them by the Committee of Correſpondence, conveyed their opinion to the Select Committee in the following words:

" Your reſolution of the 21ſt of July was not im- " proper, under the favourable circumſtances ſtated by " you at that period: but the change which happened " ſoon afterwards in the ſituation of Ragoba's friends, and " the lapſe of time from the 21ſt of July to the 22d of " November, rendered it extremely imprudent to un- " dertake the expedition at that time."

Bombay, 26 Oct. 1778. Appx. No. 114.

And your Committee find, that the firſt preparatory meaſure which the Select Committee took toward the accompliſhing of their deſigns, was to order a letter to be drawn up in the name of Ragoba, to the principal Maratta officers, with a view, when he ſhould have approved it, to cauſe it to be circulated on his landing on the Continent. And it appears, that on the 4th of November it was reſolved to appoint a Committee, as a method the beſt ſuited for the purpoſe of carrying their plans into execution; and upon the Preſident's propoſal, Meſſrs. Carnac, Egerton, and Moſtyn were appointed accordingly, and immediately directed to conſider the further arrangements neceſſary for the intended ſervice; and to wait upon Ragoba to communicate their intentions and the conditions to be previouſly ſtipulated with him; in which they ſhould enjoin him to obſerve the utmoſt ſecrecy. But we perceive, that on the 7th of the ſame month Colonel Egerton declaring that he had, through miſapprehenſion, aſſented to the appointment of a Committee, which he ſince accidentally found was intended to accompany the army to Poonah, deſired to withdraw his aſſent, and to ſubſtitute his proteſt againſt it, for reaſons then delivered by him in writing, the principal of which appears to be, becauſe he deemed it diametrically oppoſite to the intentions of the Company, and becauſe he doubted whether in the abſence of the Commander in Chief, the power of the Select Committee could exiſt without the preſence of the other three Members. Whereupon the Preſident put the following queſtion, in which Meſſrs. Carnac and Egerton declined voting:

Appx. No. 116. Bom. Sel. Conſ. 7 Nov. 1778.

" Whether two Members of the Committee can be " detached from the Preſidency at the ſame time upon " any temporary ſervice, and whether the two remaining " Members are, in their abſence, competent to form a " Committee?"—We perceive that Mr. Draper thought himſelf obliged, from his idea of the Company's meaning to vote in the negative; but the Preſident being of opinion, that in caſes of great contingency, even his own preſence might be diſpenſed with, the queſtion was decided in the affirmative, by his caſting voice.

But your Committee obſerve, that Mr. Carnac afterwards explained his ſentiments on that point, according with thoſe of the Preſident; and that on a ſubſequent day, he was replied to by Colonel Egerton, who repeated his objections to the Committee, as interfering with the military command, and as being a deviation from the Company's orders.

Bom. Sel. Conſ. 11 Nov. 1778. Appx. No. 117. Do. 18th Nov. Do.

The animadverſion of the Court of Directors on this meaſure, is in theſe words:

" Your appointment of a Member of the Select " Committee to accompany the Commander in Chief to " Poonah, was highly improper. By the departure of " the Commander in Chief and Mr. Carnac, the Gover- " nor having a caſting vote, became poſſeſſed in fact of " abſolute authority for tranſacting all political, military, " and naval affairs, and ſuch as require ſecrecy, at " Bombay; and as this tranſaction militated againſt the " letter and ſpirit of the Court's orders of the 10th of " April 1778, the appointment of a Member of the " Select Committee at Bombay to accompany the Com- " mander in Chief to Poonah, muſt have our diſappro- " bation, and we declare the majority of the ſaid Com- " mittee very reprehenſible for their conduct in that re- " ſpect. We find the Commander in Chief proteſted " againſt the meaſure; and we exempt Mr. Draper " from this cenſure, becauſe, juſtly ſuppoſing it to be " the intent of the Company, that none of the civil " members of the Committee ſhould be detached from " the Preſidency, if the Commander in Chief was to be " abſent alſo, Mr. Draper very properly delivered his " opinion in the Select Committee accordingly."

And your Committee find that Ragoba made ſeveral objections to the terms of the circular letter above-mentioned, particularly to the clauſe reſpecting his carrying on the Government as Regent only during the minority; and that his behaviour in this inſtance was not without ſymptoms of evaſive diſſimulation, in firſt pretending compliance, and afterwards attempting to obtrude ſeveral very material alterations, which the Committee held to be inadmiſſible, and therefore reſolved (in conſideration alſo of the dangers of delay) to make a very explicit declaration to him, that on his compliance muſt depend the continuance of their ſupport. This appears to have had its effect; by inducing him to ſign the original letter on the 16th of November, having previouſly obtained a promiſe from the Committee to inform the Court of Directors of his ſolemn allegation and engagement to prove the young Peiſhwa to be a ſuppoſititious child, and that moreover, if he failed in that proof, he was nevertheleſs ſtill entitled, according to the Gentoo law, to an equal partition of the Government and country. And we perceive, that the Select Committee at the ſame time reſolved to gratify him in his requeſt for a ſupply of arms and ammunition, and for a loan of 3 lacks of rupees " which (they obſerved) " the ſtate of their treaſury at Bombay and Surat would " enable them very conveniently to grant." But they would not admit the validity of his pretended engagements with Mr. Shaw, relative to the ceſſion of Ahmood, nor conſent to accept that place as well as Hanſood, but as a free gift from him. Yet they afterwards allowed that plea to prevail ſo far as to induce them to add another lack to the loan, which they promiſed to make him.

Your Committee think it proper here to ſtate, that the amount due from Ragoba to the Company the 30th day of April 1777, was rupees 24,72,775; that in November 1778, the Governor and Select Committee paid to the executor of Mr. William Shaw 80,000 R^s^ on account of Ragoba, and lent beſides 15,000 to two of his ſervants, which, with the four lacks mentioned above, amounted in the whole to 4,95,000 rupees; and that the Committee of Correſpondence reported it to be their clear opinion that theſe loans were unjuſtifiable; and that the Court of Directors announced to the Select Committee their ſentiments and reſolutions on this point to be as follows:

" Your payment of 80,000 rupees to Mr. Shaw's ex- " ecutors, and your loan of four lacks to Ragoba, and " 15,000 rupees to his ſervants, beſides arms and mi- " litary ſtores furniſhed for his uſe, were unjuſtifiable " meaſures, more eſpecially as ſo large a ſum as 1,50,000 " was ſent with the troops, and as authority was alſo " granted to the commiſſary and paymaſter to paſs " drafts on the Select Committee for their neceſſary " diſburſements during the expedition; and we find " that bills have actually been accepted on that account, " to the amount of rupees 2,28,529: unleſs therefore " you ſhall be able to produce better reaſons for having " made the above loans and payment, amounting to " 4,95,000 rupees, than appear to us at preſent, you " muſt expect to be made reſponſible to the Company " for the ſaid amount."

Appx. No. 121.

On the Select Conſultations of the 18th of November, your Committee find recorded the draft of the propoſed treaty with Ragoba, which had been approved of by the Committee; but it is proper to remark, that the Preſident on the next day ſignified to the ſeveral members his opinion, that the 16th article appearing to him to be a greater conceſſion than the Gentlemen at Bengal were by law entitled to, and not only unneceſſary but a dangerous precedent, he had ordered it to be new modelled.

No. 121.

The article in queſtion ſtood as follows:

16th Article—" When the contracting parties have " mutually interchanged this treaty, it will be ſent to " Bengal for the ratification of the Governor General " and Council."

The amended article we find to ſtand as follows:

" If any article of the preſent treaty ſhould interfere " with any engagements formed by the Governor " General and Council not yet known to the Select " Committee of Bombay, ſuch article may be altered or " amended as may be neceſſary."

It appears that Mr. Draper returned an anſwer in diſapprobation of the amendment, becauſe he conceived the Act of Parliament obliged them to ſubmit the propoſed treaty to the controul of the Governor General and Council; but Mr. Carnac thinking that the queſtion ſhould be fairly debated in the Committee, it was accordingly conſidered there on the 21ſt; when Mr. Draper appears to have been abſent, and the reſt of the Board agreed, that as they had obtained the conſent and approbation of the Superior Council, and expreſsly mentioned that circumſtance in the firſt article of the treaty, it would be ſuperfluous and humiliating to the dignity of their Government if they ſhould declare that they had no authority to conclude a final engagement.

Bom. Sel. Conf. 21 Nov. 1778. Appx. No. 122.

But your Committee find, that the proceedings of the Select Committee were preſſed forward to a concluſion of theſe preparatory agreements, upon ſudden intelligence that the Miniſters had got intimation of their intentions, and were making preparations to receive them. Whereupon it was determined to ſend off one diviſion of the troops immediately, and that the remainder of the forces ſhould proceed afterwards with all expedition. Yet it appears to your Committee, that another unexpected interruption aroſe from Ragoba, who objected to ſeveral parts of the treaty, particularly thoſe regarding the ſecurity of the young Peiſhwa's perſon, and the promiſe of future protection and favour to Moraba and the other Chiefs of his party; and he refuſed to ſign the circular letters (though wanted for immediate uſe) till he had executed the treaty, which he was at laſt, after a conference of ſeven hours, hardly prevailed upon to agree to, though he was indulged in his earneſt deſire to make ſome ſmall alterations in it. And we perceive, that in conſequence of this apparent accommodation of all the remaining differences, Colonel Egerton ſet off the ſame day to Bellapore to put himſelf at the head of the forces; and the other Members of the Select Board being aſſembled in the Preſident's chamber, executed the treaty and ſent it that evening by Mr. Moſtyn to Ragoba, who, however, notwithſtanding his promiſe, again refuſed to ratify it, unleſs ſome addition was made to the clauſe regarding the cuſtody of the child, and the ceſſion of the Autguns depending upon Salſette. And we perceive, that in order to remove all doubts, the Board agreed to make ſome explanatory conceſſions in thoſe inſtances, adding however a reſolution, in conſequence " of their having experienced ſo much evaſion and delay " on his part," to ſend a threatening meſſage to him, that if he ſhould not agree to the treaty with the above additions " they would drop all connection with him, " and take poſſeſſion of the Government at Poonah in " the name of the Peiſhwa, and carry it on in his name " until they ſhould receive orders from Bengal whom to " appoint Regent."

Appx No. 124.

Still however your Committee obſerve, that the deſire of having a negative in the appointment of Guardians to whom the care of the Child's perſon ſhould be entruſted, encouraged Ragoba to expreſs a further diſſatisfaction; and that the Select Board thereupon made yet a further conceſſion to him, " as they were very anxious " to have the Treaty concluded, and unwilling it ſhould " be known at Poonah that any diſagreement ſubſiſted " between them;" to all which they added a formal exculpation of his pertinacity, as ſuppoſing it " not to pro- " ceed from any evil deſign againſt the infant, but to " be occaſioned entirely by his fears that they ſhould " place it under the charge of Moraba or ſome of the " Chief Officers, which would give them great aſcen- " dancy." And it appears that theſe apprehenſions were not yet ſubdued; for though the Committee, in hopes of accommodating matters without delivering the meſſage agreed upon, approved of Mr. Moſtyn's conduct in having ſuppreſſed it, Ragoba lingered out his arguments and objections till the 27th, and in the evening of that day at laſt reluctantly put his hand and ſeal to the treaty in the Appendix No. 126.

Appx. No. 126.

And your Committee find, that Ragoba left Bombay very ſoon after this; and having landed upon the Continent, followed the army with very little expedition, attended by a detachment of the Company's troops and a ſmall body of his own: That on the 7th, Meſſrs. Carnac and Moſtyn ſet out to join the army, carrying with them their commiſſion and inſtructions for concerting and conducting, in conjunction with Colonel Egerton, all the neceſſary operations, political and military, of the the expedition, and alſo circular letters which were diſperſed as a manifeſto, being addreſſed to the Mutſeddes, Sirdars, Jaghierdars, and ſubjects of the Maratta State. Theſe papers are dated 5th of December 1778, and placed in the Appendix, No. 127.

Appx. No. 128. On the 29th of December, a ſecret letter was diſpatched from Bombay to the Court of Directors, which your Committee find to contain a brief account of theſe meaſures, and alſo congratulations on the proſpect of retrieving the valuable acquiſitions loſt by the treaty of Poorunder; ſtating the force detached on the expedition to conſiſt of making in all a body of - - 3,910 men, all officers included; with which force they truſted (all circumſtances conſidered) to bring the buſineſs to a happy concluſion, relying with ſanguine hopes on a general diſpoſition among the Maratta officers and people in favour of Ragoba and of his pretenſions, on the advancement of the Bengal detachment, and on the damp thrown, by the fall of Pondicherry, upon the expectations of Nanna Furneſe, of aſſiſtance from the French.

See Appx. 112. It will have been obſerved, that Mr. Draper, in his Minute of the 19th of October, in the Select Committee, reſted much of his argument of objection againſt the immediate execution of their deſigns in favour of Ragoba, upon the deficiency of their European force, which he called a lamentable one, compared with the laſt eſtabliſhment ordered by the Company in April 1775, of 312 artillery and 1,200 infantry, and that it could not be better deſcribed than in their own letter of Appx. No. 129. the 8th of September, to Sir Edward Vernon; in which your Committee find it repreſented, "That they had "no other reſources for defence than their own garriſon, "with the further diſadvantageous circumſtance, that "their force conſiſted almoſt wholly of Sepoys, though "they had drained every European they poſſibly could "from their ſubordinate ſettlements." And it is further to be obſerved, that the body of European artillery and infantry, with a battalion of ſepoys, which the Preſidency of Fort St. George had held in readineſs to aſſiſt the Bombay operations, were not arrived, and that no other reinforcement of Europeans had been received but thoſe which were recalled from the ſubordinates. And

No. 129. it ſhould not be omitted, that in addition to the force as ſtated above to have been at firſt detached on the expedition, upwards of 400 rank and file, with officers in proportion, appear to have been afterwards ordered on that ſervice, and that a conſiderable part of the additional force conſiſted of Europeans.

Report of Com. of Correſ. And your Committee find, that the Court of Directors thus expreſſed their diſapprobation of the conduct of the Select Committee, in riſking ſuch an enterprize under theſe circumſtances of their military force.

"The ſtate of your garriſon, as repreſented by your- "ſelves to Sir Edward Vernon, in your letter of the 8th "of September 1778, could not warrant your ſending "ſo large a force on foreign ſervice at the commence- "ment of an European war; more eſpecially when ſpeedy "ſuccour was rendered precarious, and conſequently "ſucceſs very doubtful, by the very diſagreeable alteration "which had happened in the ſituation of Ragoba's "friends. Under the above circumſtances, the under- "taking was evidently become hazardous, and not to "be juſtified; the reaſons urged by Mr. Draper againſt "it were ſolid and judicious; and you ought certainly "to have waited the arrival or near approach of the "Bengal detachment, before you attempted to reinſtate "Ragoba at Poonah."

But your Committee obſerve, that after having thus paſſed a declaration of cenſure on ſeveral diſtinct parts of the conduct of the Select Committee, the Court of Directors adopted alſo the opinion of the Committee of Correſpondence, upon ſumming up the whole, and tempered their final rebuke with ſome qualification in reſpect of the intention.

"Although this Committee cannot concur in the "reaſons offered by the Select Committee of Bombay ſo "far as to approve their conduct, they are nevertheleſs "of opinion that the ſaid Select Committee appear to "have acted according to the beſt of their judgment in "undertaking to place Ragoba in the Regency at Poonah "in November 1778."

And the Court of Directors, in their letter to the Select Committee, made uſe of nearly the ſame ſtyle of reprehenſion. "Although we are willing to hope, for "the reaſons offered by the majority in anſwer to Mr. "Draper's diſſent, that you acted according to the beſt "of your judgment in undertaking to place Ragoba in "the Regency at Poonah in November 1778; we never- "theleſs conſider you as having proceeded with great "indiſcretion on that occaſion."

It is to be remembered, that theſe cenſures were paſſed upon the previous reſolutions which ſet forward the undertaking of that expedition, and that this was the puniſhment inflicted upon the adviſers of them, viz. the Governor and Select Committee of Bombay.—Your Committee find, that a failure in the ſucceſsful execution of the plan met with rougher cenſure and more ſenſible puniſhment.

In what manner the accompliſhment of the ſanguine expectations formed by the Governor and Select Committee was fruſtrated, and changed into a ſad reverſe of difficulty and diſtreſs, and by what ſteps, and under what circumſtances the Bombay army was led on towards Poonah, till it was obliged to ſubmit to an acceptance of the enemy's permiſſion for its return to the Preſidency, under the ſtipulations of a diſgraceful Convention at Worgham on the 17th day of January 1779, will be fully explained to the Houſe by a peruſal of the Poonah diary, Appx. No. 130. which your Committee have thought it proper to point out in the Appendix No. 196; to which we have ſubjoined an extract of a letter, dated 27 March 1779, from No. 130. the Select Committee to the Court of Directors, wherein a fuller account is given of theſe events, accompanied with their obſervations, and a detail of their proceedings No. 130. thereupon. To theſe your Committee have added, the material parts of the Reports of the Committee of Cor- No. 130. reſpondence, from which we have already made ſome extracts, and wherein moſt of the eſſential papers tranſmitted from Bombay are referred to, and made uſe of as evidence, for the direction of their opinion on the matters ſubmitted to their inveſtigation; and, in order to complete the weight and authority of the relations and remarks which we have met with on this ſubject, we think it proper to anticipate our regular return to the conſideration of Bengal proceedings, and place in the Appendix, No. 130, the opinion of Sir Eyre Coote, which Ben. Sec. Conſ. 24 May 1779. indeed appears to relate chiefly to the military conduct Sir Eyre Coote's Minute. upon that occaſion, and preſents an exculpation of the No. 130. ſoldiery from the ſlur thrown upon them by Mr. Carnac, whom, as the Preſident of the Field Deputies, he conſidered the moſt reſponſible and moſt guilty perſon of all who were concerned in the Council, or conduct of theſe tranſactions.

And as your Committee have found that Sir Eyre Coote, before he was informed of the event of this expedition, had expreſſed his ſentiments upon the undertaking, and at the ſame time upon the political conduct of the two Preſidencies of Bengal and Bombay, in regard to their differences with the Marattas; we ſhall here lay before the Houſe an extract of his letter from Fort Saint George to the Committee of Correſpondence, wherein he Dated 18 Jan. 1779. communicated thoſe opinions.

After giving a very ſatisfactory account of the ſtate in which he found the Company's affairs at his arrival at Madras, and which he aſcribed to the great exertions of the Preſident and Council, he wrote as follows:

" I wiſh I could give as favourable an opinion upon " the proceedings of the Preſidencies of Bengal and Bom- " bay; but it appears to me, that they ought, at this " critical time, to have united againſt the national " enemy, and given due aſſiſtance to this ſettlement, " which has hitherto borne the whole burthen of the " war: inſtead of which, a large army is ſent from " Bengal, at an immenſe expence, into the heart of the " country, where, if I can judge from the information " I have received, they can produce nothing but diſ- " treſs to the Company, not to ſay diſhonour to the " nation, whether ſucceſsful or otherwiſe. And Bom- " bay is left defenceleſs by ſending their whole force " upon a Maratta expedition, which, beſides the danger " to which the is expoſed, brings upon us the inconve- " nience of tranſporting troops from hence to Mahi, " the attack upon which ought naturally to have fallen " upon the ſettlement ſo nearly in its neighbourhood. " Indeed I may ſay the ſending troops upon this expedi- " tion, is rather calculated for the ſecurity of Bombay, " in its preſent weak ſtate, than any great proſpect of " ſucceſs we have againſt Mahi; as I am apt to ſuppoſe " Hyder Ally will interfere in defending that place againſt " any attempts we may make upon it; however, it is " determined that no improper riſk ſhall be run, as they " are to wait at Anjengo, in readineſs either to purſue the " plan againſt Mahi, if adviſeable, or to embark for " the defence of Bombay, if neceſſary."

It will be remembered, that your Committee, in their Firſt Report, took notice of the opinions on this ſubject, which appear on the Select Conſultations of the Madras Preſidency in the month of February 1779.

Your Committee will, in this place, confine themſelves to a few obſervations, and a curſory recital of the moſt material incidents of the expedition, for the ſake of the narrative.

See Appx. 127. It is to be remarked, that when Meſſrs. Carnac and Moſtyn arrived in the Camp on the 15th of December, and required the publication of their Commiſſion by the Commander in Chief in general orders, Colonel Egerton abſolutely proteſted againſt it, making objections both to the tenor and terms of the commiſſion itſelf, and to the competency of two Members (Mr. Moſtyn being abſent from indiſpoſition) to do any act of authority. And we obſerve, that the Select Committee of Bombay, (which it is to be remembered conſiſted only at that time of the Preſident and Mr. Draper) in anſwer to a reference which had been made to them for a deciſion of this diſ- pute, expreſſed their ſurprize to find an idea could be entertained that the powers of the Committee were ſuſ- pended by the ſickneſs or accidental abſence of one of the Members. It is proper therefore to add a further remark, that Mr. Moſtyn, who died ſoon after, never once attended any meeting of the Poonah Committee. On the 20th of December Mr. Carnac appears to have remonſtrated with the Commander in Chief upon the ſlow progreſs which the army made in its advance; and repreſented, in ſtrong terms, the neceſſity of haſtening their march with all poſſible expedition; and that Co- lonel Egerton declined making any anſwer at that time to theſe complaints. Your Committee have found, that the enemy gave at firſt no oppoſition to the march of the troops till the 22d of December; and from that 1779. 4 Jan. time till the 4th of January their cannonading was diſtant and ineffectual, except that two good officers were ac- cidentally killed by it. That on the 5th Colonel Eger- 5th January. ton ſignified by letter to the Preſident, his deſign of attempting to ſurprize the enemy next morning in their encampment, which however he did not carry into exe- cution; but indeed, on account of his ill ſtate of health, reſigned on that day the command of the army, to which Lieutenant Colonel Cockburn ſucceeded.

And your Committee obſerve, that the Court of Directors expreſſed the ſevereſt diſpleaſure at the con- duct of Colonel Egerton in theſe particulars: " The firſt " object that ſtrikes us, is the ſlow progreſs of the army; " this we deem an irreparable injury to the ſervice; and " in this reſpect the conduct of the Commander in Chief " appears extremely defective. The conſequence was " obvious; the enemy had full opportunity to collect " their ſtrength. The friends of Ragoba, inſtead of " being encouraged by the ſpirited exertion of our force " to join his ſtandard, muſt, as we conceive, have been " deterred from declaring in his favour by the languor " of our military proceedings." It appears, however, January 6. that Colonel Egerton, not being able, becauſe of the number of the enemy's horſe in the Conkan, to effect his return to Bombay, continued with the camp, and acted throughout as a Member of the Committee; in which capacity he ſigned, together with Mr. Carnac, a letter to the Select Committee of Bombay, containing a deſpon- dent repreſentation of their diſappointment in not meeting with any appearances of aſſiſtance or ſupport from the Maratta Chiefs, upon whoſe co-operation with them they had been taught, both by Mr. Moſtyn and by Ragoba, to reſt their principal reliance: that every thing indeed gave proof of a general determination to oppoſe the eſtabliſhment of Ragoba in that degree of authority which January 7. the Select Board had, from falſe aſſurances, been led to engage for:—that they (the Poonah Committee) had on that account explicitly announced to him " the too great " reaſon they had to believe, that there ſubſiſted a total " want of confidence on the part of the Maratta Chiefs, " in his promiſes and aſſurances; and that no nego- " ciations would ever be ſet on foot with them, unleſs " commenced by the Committee, who therefore found " themſelves under the neceſſity of taking ſuch mea- " ſures as appeared moſt eligible to them, without fur- " ther dependence upon him." Your Committee have indeed found, that the conduct of Ragonaut Row had given too much ground for theſe intimations, as there were ſtrong reaſons to ſuſpect that, truſting to ſubdue every one by force of arms, he had not only neglected to conciliate the reſpectable Chiefs to his cauſe, but was even ſuſpected of having given orders to the Killedar of Ah- medanagur not to releaſe Moraba himſelf till he got fur- ther poſitive orders from him on his arrival at Poonah. And by his own repreſentation of the real circumſtances of affairs, he acknowledged himſelf to have been de- ceived, and gave no encouragement to hope for better ſucceſs as they ſhould advance, either from the junction of powerful adherents, or reſources of proviſions, unleſs they ſhould defeat the forces of the enemy. And we find, that the leaders of the Maratta army gave no op- portunity for that event, by ſtrictly obſerving the plan, which, according to early report, they had reſolved upon, of avoiding any regular action, and of burning the towns, and laying waſte the country, in order to deſtroy the means of ſupply to the Britiſh forces. That theſe having advanced on the 10th of January as far as Tullegaun, about 16 miles from Poonah, and found that large and populous town in aſhes, and all the grain carried off or deſtroyed, it was thought imprudent and hazardous to attempt any further advancement; and upon a report of the ſtate of proviſions, and upon Colonel Cockburn's declaration, that without a ſupply of horſe, he could not engage to protect the baggage, the Committee reſolved to order preparations for a retreat, which was begun on the night of the 11th.

Your Committee obſerve, that the Court of Directors Com. of Corref. appear to have felt much indignation at this retreat—" When the army was ſo far advanced, and the troops " full of ſpirits and intrepidity; when Moraba's horſe " were reported to be in the Conkan, to act in favour of " Ragoba; when 18 days proviſion were in ſtore, and " Ragoba had promiſed a further ſupply"—It is how- ever proper to remark on this promiſe, that Mr. Holmes See Diary. the Commiſſary had, by his own inſpection, ſeen that Ragoba could not perform it. They complained, " that " no Council of War was called at Tullegaun, to take " the ſenſe of the officers of the army, on the neceſſity " of retreating; that although the order for the retreat

" of the army on the 11th of January was the joint act " of Mr. Carnac and Colonel Egerton, yet as Mr. Carnac " had a caſting voice in the Poonah Committee, and poſ- " ſeſſed in fact ſupreme authority in Camp at the time, " he was particularly reſponſible for that meaſure."

It appears, that the enemy having intelligence of their deſign, attacked them before day-break, cut off part of their baggage, and killed a good many men. On the 13th the Committee finding their ſituation become more alarming (the army having not ventured upon any fur- ther movement from Worgam, where they had halted the day before) deputed Mr. Farmer to the Maratta camp to negociate for their peaceable return; directing him to repreſent to the Miniſters, that having been de- ceived by confident aſſurances of the general deſire among the Chiefs of the Maratta State, for the re-eſta- bliſhment of Ragoba in the Regency, they had been induced to accompany him with a detachment of their troops, for the purpoſe of replacing him in that rank of government; but finding by experience that they had acted under the miſguidance of falſe information, they had determined to deſiſt from that attempt, and were deſirous of returning to Bombay, under agreement of a mutual ceſſation from hoſtilities:—That the Durbar, in anſwer to this application, appear to have inſiſted upon the delivery of the perſon of Ragoba into their hands, as the only terms on which any accommodation ſhould take place; and that the Committee at once reſolved not to make his ſafety an impediment to their quiet return, eſpecially as he had already declared his intentions of Diary, 10 Jan. giving himſelf up to Madajee Scindia. And it is ob- ſervable, that in the overtures which he had made to that Chief upon this occaſion, he endeavoured to per- ſuade him to a belief, that his motives for addreſſing him did not ariſe from any ſenſe of inability to accom- pliſh his aim by the aid of the Europeans alone, but becauſe "thoſe Europeans, in taking part in his quarrels, " ſought only their own aggrandizement, and to obtain " the Country; which neither ſuited his views nor " Scindia's." And as ſome explanation was hereupon neceſſary to ſatisfy the doubts of thoſe Europeans, he told Mr. Sibbald, "that his ſcheme in this was, by a " total compliance with the demands of Scindia, to " gain him over for the preſent, and afterwards he " would do as he pleaſed."

But we perceive, that when the compliance of the Committee was communicated the next day by Mr. Farmer to the Durbar, in which Madajee Scindia pre- ſided, and evidently took the lead, he (Scindia) received the offer of that conceſſion with marked indifference; and, reproaching the Company's ſervants with a breach of Colonel Upton's treaty, he inſiſted upon the conclu- ſion of a new agreement while the army remained on that very ſpot. This new demand being tranſmitted to the Committee, they conſulted Colonel Cockburn upon Diary, 15 Jan. the practicability of making a ſucceſsful retreat; and on his report of the impoſſibility of effecting it, they ac- quieſced in his opinion; though it is proper to remark, that Mr. Carnac declared his real ſentiments to be in favour of an attempt to force their way; and that the Committee of Correſpondence, after examining every evidence relative to that queſtion, highly condemned the contrary reſolution.

"It is aſſerted by the Select Committee, that Cap- " tain Hartley declared he could rely upon the men he " commanded, and urged every argument in favour of " forcing a retreat, and even formed and preſented " Colonel Cockburn the neceſſary diſpoſition for con- " ducting it. It cannot be doubted that Mr. Carnac " continued in poſſeſſion of authority without controul, " except to make treaties. He was confident, if the " officers and men did their duty, that the army was " ſufficiently numerous, and ſo well provided with " artillery, as to be able to force their way back againſt " all oppoſition; he had no doubt, that the attempt " ought to be made."

In conſequence, however, of a reſolution to return by ſufferance only, the Committee directed Mr. Farmer to inform the Durbar, that having no power to negociate or agree to any treaty without the ſanction of the Supe- rior Council, they ſhould only deceive the Maratta Go- vernment in pretending to ſubmit to their demands; and that by giving up the cauſe and perſon of Ragonaut Row, they acted to the utmoſt of their power, and that thereby all diſputes would effectually be put an end to. But we perceive, that this repreſentation drew the fol- lowing pertinent remark from Madajee Scindia:—"If " you had not powers to make new treaties, I wiſh to " ſee by what power you broke that made by Colonel " Upton, by the aid given to Ragoba; and deſire an " explicit anſwer, whether or not it was by virtue of " any direct authority from the Governor General and " Council; if it was, I deſire to ſee that authority, " in order that I may look to them about it." And he aſſured Mr. Farmer, that till a new treaty was made be- tween the Engliſh and the Maratta State, the army muſt remain where it was, whatever might be the conſe- quence.

It appears, however, that previous to the receipt of this determination, the Committee had diſpatched an- other Gentleman, "with full powers to ſettle with the " Durbar for the peaceable return of the army, upon " ſuch conditions as he might be able to obtain, ſince " it was the opinion of the Commander in Chief, that " a retreat was impracticable." And your Committee will conclude this account with the report of Mr. Holmes (the Gentleman laſt deputed to the Durbar) and the obſervations of the Committee thereupon, in their own words.

" This night, about 10 o'clock, Mr. Holmes returned 15 January. " from the Maratta Camp, and adviſed us, that he has " ſettled matters with Madajee Scindia, and the reſt of " the Durbar, for the peaceable return of the army to " Bombay, on the only conditions they would hear of, " and which are ſuch as cannot fail to fill us with the " deepeſt concern, being humiliating in the higheſt de- " gree, and which nothing but the avowed opinion and " declaration of the principal officers, as to the im- " practicability of effecting our retreat, could juſtify " our acceding to. We muſt, however, obſerve, that " Madajee Scindia and the whole Durbar cannot plead " ignorance of our want of powers to conclude ſuch a " treaty as they have now preſcribed to us, they having " demanded both a true explanation and tranſlation of " our letter of yeſterday to Mr. Farmer, wherein we " expreſsly direct him to acquaint them, that we have " no powers to enter into any treaty whatever; that " were we to pretend ſuch powers, we ſhould be only " deceiving them;—ſo they have evidently compelled " us to enter into a treaty they were appriſed we had no " power to agree to."

Your Committee find, that the Court of Directors inveighed againſt this Convention, and againſt all the circumſtances attending it, with particular indignation; and herein ſeem to have directed their chief reſentment againſt Mr. Carnac. His words are, "At all events, " rather than ſubmit to the terms preſcribed by the " enemy." Yet, under all circumſtances, rather than preſs a retreat, he ventured to pledge the Engliſh faith, in the moſt ſolemn and ſacred manner, for the obſervance of treaties, of which he owns he did not at the time ex- pect a confirmation. He ſtipulated to obtain the Go- vernor's duſtuck for delivering up the Company's poſ- ſeſſions to the Marattas, and gave hoſtages for the due performance of extraordinary agreements, under mental reſervations, and pre-conceived ideas that they were of no validity, and would never be ratified by his ſuperiors.

Your Committee have thought it proper to place theſe extracts thus immediately in the eye of the Houſe, that they might at the ſame time, in ſome of the moſt ſtriking points, ſee and conſider the conduct of the Company's ſervants, and the judgment of their employers. But we muſt nevertheleſs deſire to refer the Houſe to the Appendix, No. 130, from which they will receive much more ample information, by conſulting theſe documents at large; and we ſhall therefore here ſimply mention the fact of the further cenſures and puniſhments which the Court inflicted on thoſe whom they eſteemed delinquents.

Your Committee obſerve, that they commended the charge which was brought by Governor Hornby againſt Colonel Egerton and Colonel Cockburn; and, upon the moſt impartial review of their conduct, they diſmiſſed thoſe officers from their ſervice. In regard to Mr. Carnac, upon whom, they obſerved, no cenſure had been paſſed, nor any enquiry made by the Select Committee, into his conduct and behaviour during the late expedition, which, however, they found not leſs exceptionable than that of Colonel Egerton, they, after duly conſidering all the circumſtances relative thereto, reſolved to diſmiſs him from his office as one of the Council and Select Committee of Bombay.

Your Committee having thus taken notice of the diſapprobation which the Court of Directors expreſſed of the reſolutions taken by the Select Committee, and remarked, that all their ſeverer marks of diſpleaſure were fixed upon thoſe who failed in the execution of theſe reſolutions, it remains only to obſerve, that the Court beſtowed alſo ſome tokens of their approbation and ſome rewards for the meritorious conduct of others of their ſervants; though it would be premature in this place to mention any but one, which regards Mr. Draper, whom they named to be ſecond of Council, and of the Select Committee, upon the removal of Mr. Carnac and Colonel Egerton; and "as a further teſti-
" mony of their approbation of his conduct, they ap" pointed him to ſucceed to the office of Preſident and " Governor of Bombay upon the death, removal, or
" reſignation of Governor Hornby;" it ought, perhaps, to be obſerved, that the Select Committee of Bombay, had raiſed Captain Hartley, who, as has been ſeen, diſtinguiſhed himſelf greatly in the expedition, and endeavoured to perſuade an attempt of forcing a retreat, to the rank of Lieutenant Colonel, which gave umbrage to ſeveral officers over whoſe heads he was thus lifted; and that the Court of Directors corrected this hardſhip, joining however in high approbation of the conduct of Captain Hartley, by directing that he ſhould receive only Captain's pay, till the officers who had been his ſeniors ſhould riſe regularly to the ſame advanced rank, and again take their places above him.

Your Committee find, that Mr. Farmer returned to
Jan. 17, 1779. the camp on the 17th, with the papers of agreement executed on the part of the Durbar; by the one of which, all the Company's acquiſitions in thoſe parts, made ſince the treaty with the late Peiſhwa Maderow, in 1756, were to be given up; and by the other (being a private article of advantage to Madajee Scindia) that Chief was to be put in complete poſſeſſion of Broach, as it was held by the Moguls, Ragoba was ſurrendered into his cuſtody, and Mr. Farmer and Lieutenant Stewart were alſo to remain with him as hoſtages for the full performance of the ſtipulation in his favour;—a circumſtance which the Court of Directors mention with great concern and anxiety for their ſafety.

And it appears, that the army on the 20th moved down the Ghauts on its return to Bombay, and Meſſrs. Carnac and Egerton received that evening at Campoly a letter, dated 11th January, from Bombay, addreſſed to them as the Poonah Committee; in which they were exhorted to preſs forward with vigour and expedition towards Poonah, "as the likelieſt and moſt effectual way
" to improve their ſituation, and to induce Ragoba's
" friends to declare openly in his favour." It is ſcarce neceſſary to remark, that their real ſituation was not known to the Preſident and Select Committee when they wrote that letter of encouragement, which certainly arrived in a moſt unlucky moment. It muſt however be obſerved, that there was deſtined to the Select Committee alſo a ſhock not leſs mortifying in the circumſtances which enſued; for, at the moment of the return of the diſcomfited army, Colonel Capper arrived, and App. No. 131. brought with him a letter from the Committee of Secrecy of the Eaſt India Company, dated 31ſt Auguſt 1778; acknowledging the receipt of thoſe from the Preſident and Council of 25th of January and 14th of March, and Poſtſcript of the 15th, 1778, and copy of their proceedings of the 10th of December 1777, and of the letters and reſolutions of the Governor General and Council of Bengal, dated 2d of February 1778, and containing the following directions of encouragement to their projects:

" Your vigilance reſpecting the French hath our fulleſt " approbation.—In regard to Ragoba, it would have af" forded us much ſatisfaction if the overtures you expected
" from Sicearam Baboo, the prime Miniſter, and other
" Maratta Chiefs, had actually taken place, and in con-
" ſequence thereof Ragoba had, under proper condi" tions, been eſtabliſhed in the Government of Poonah;
" and as you attribute the failure of this ſcheme to a " diſtruſt entertained by Ragoba's friends of your ability
" to fulfil your engagements, we authorize you to de" clare in our name, that we will not only ratify and " confirm the meaſure, if carried into execution at the " requeſt and with the aſſiſtance of the Maratta Chiefs,
" but alſo to aſſure them that we will uſe all means in " our power to effect it, though refuſed the concurrence
" of thoſe perſons who have lately manifeſted an atten" tion to the French, inconſiſtent with the friendſhip
" ſubſiſting between the Maratta State and the Eaſt
" India Company.

" The neceſſity of counteracting the views of the " French at Poonah, and of taking immediate and de" ciſive meaſures to prevent their eſtabliſhment at " Choul, appears to us ſo very ſtriking, that we not only " direct you to fruſtrate their deſigns of obtaining a " grant of the port of Choul, but alſo to oppoſe, by " force of arms if neceſſary, their forming a ſettlement
" at that or any other place which may render them
" dangerous neighbours to Bombay.

" As the reſtoration of Ragoba to the Peiſhwaſhip is a " meaſure upon which we are determined, and as the " evaſions of the Maratta Chiefs reſpecting the treaty of " Poonah, juſtify any departure therefrom on our part,
" we therefore direct, that if, on the receipt of this " letter, you ſhall be able to obtain aſſiſtance from the " friends of Ragoba, and with ſuch aſſiſtance find your-" ſelves in force ſufficient to effect his reſtoration with" out dangerouſly weakening your garriſon, and thereby
" riſking the ſafety of our poſſeſſions under your Go" vernment, you forthwith undertake the [illegible] and
" we further direct, that in ſettling the [illegible] of com-
" penſation to be made to the Company for their ſervices
" on ſuch account, you conform [illegible]
" to the propoſitions laid [illegible]
" General and Council, in their letter of the [illegible]
" February 1778.

" As the co-operation of your other ſettlements will be " neceſſary to enſure ſucceſs [illegible] important enter-
" prize, we have communicated the contents of this " letter to our Governor General and Council, and to " our Preſident and Council of Bombay, and en-
" joined them to afford you ſuch immediate aid as may " be required to enable you to re-eſtabliſh Ragoba, pro" vided it can be done without affecting the inſtructions
" iſſued by the Committee of Secrecy, in their letters " of the 15th of April 1778, of which they are forthwith
" to give you information.

" We think it however abſolutely neceſſary to inform " you, that no order in this letter is to operate further " than is conſiſtent with the ſafety of the iſland of Bombay;
" and that in all your proceedings, you are to conſider
" a rupture between Great Britain and France as inevit" able,

" able, although war has not yet been formally declared
" between the two Crowns.

" Having given you this cautionary inſtruction, it is " proper for us to add, that you may depend upon your " having your European military eſtabliſhment fully " completed by the ſhips this ſeaſon, and in your deci-
" ſion on this important ſubject you muſt govern your-" ſelves accordingly.

Appx. No 131. * No. 1. " Incloſed you will receive copies of our preſent
" * inſtructions to the Governor General and Council
" of Fort William, and to the Preſident and Select " Committee at Fort St. George, and alſo of our † No. 2. " † orders, dated 15th April 1778. The former muſt
" be ſent to their addreſs immediately."

Your Committee have thought it proper to inſert the above letter at length, and to add the incloſures in the Appendix, No. 131, becauſe it contains information of the ſentiments of the Court of Directors, not only on the circumſtances of the Maratta diſputes, but of other political matters, which marked this as a very intereſting period of the ſtate of India affairs.

No 131. We ſhould not omit in this place to obſerve, that while the unfortunate expedition to Poonah was in proſecution, ſeveral letters arrived concerning the ſituation and deſigns of the Bengal detachment, both from the Commander of it, and from the Governor General and Council, to the Preſident and Select Committee of Bombay, and alſo to the Poonah Committee; to which anſwers were returned, containing a variety of information and change of directions in conſequence of the different turn of affairs during the progreſs and the return of the Bombay army, and therefore properly to be taken notice of at the cloſe of the relation which has been made of the events of that expedition.

1778. Appx. No. 132. Your Committee find, that the Preſident and Council of Bombay received, on the 18th of December, a letter from the Governor General and Council, dated 15th October, by which they were informed of the death of Mr. Elliot, and that no ſucceſſor would be appointed to him for the purpoſe of carrying on the intended negociation with the Rajah of Berar, till it could be ſeen whether Moodajee himſelf, who had expreſſed much ſatisfaction at the overtures made to him, would not on this event make ſome advances for a renewal of that plan. They were alſo informed of the removal of Colonel Leſſie from the command of the Bengal detachment, and the appointment of Colonel Goddard in his place, with the orders given to him to make application to the Rajah, on his entering the province of Berar, for a conjunction of forces, and leaving him a diſcretionary power to ſuſpend his proceedings in caſe of inattention or refuſal from that Chief.

In regard to his co-operation with the Preſidency of Bombay, the following inſtructions were ſignified to them: " If the plan which you had reſolved to adopt " and to carry into execution in September, for the re-
" ſtoration of Rugoba, and which you notified to us in " your letter of the 25th of July, ſtill ſubſiſts; or if " you ſhall have formed any other for the ſame, and
" conſiſtently with the terms preſcribed for our aſſent
" to that meaſure; or if you ſhall judge a ſtrong rein" forcement immediately and indiſpenſably neceſſary to " enſure the ſafety of Bombay againſt a French invaſion;
" and ſhall deem it requiſite or adviſable, in either of " theſe caſes, to command the detachment at all hazards
" to proceed further towards Bombay, even without the " junction of the troops of any Power in alliance with " us; you will in ſuch caſes, and ſuch only, require
" Colonel Goddard to advance with it; but in all other
" caſes you will give him notice of your intentions, and
" leave him to act under our directions."

See Diary. Appx. No. 130. And your Committee find, that the Select Committee diſpatched a letter the next day to Colonel Goddard, which they incloſed in a packet to the Poonah Committee, and left it open that they might be made acquainted, by its contents, of their having taken advantage of the Governor General and Council's permiſſion, to require him to advance (according to their former orders of the 15th November and 6th inſtant) even without the junction of any allied troops, in hopes that mutual advantages might ariſe to both detachments from the progreſs of each.

See Diary. On the 26th December, a letter from Colonel Goddard, dated 6th of December, addreſſed to the Select Committee of Bombay, was read by the Poonah Committee, and found to contain an account of his arrival on the South ſide of the Nerbuddah, where he meant to halt for a few days, in order to ſound the inclinations of Moodajee Boonſla, before he determined on his future route, which would alſo depend on information from Bombay; he had not received any letter from thence of a later date than the 21ſt of July, and by a confuſion of cyphers, could not read the letters ſent by Mr. Lewis from Poonah, ſo that he was at a loſs for proper intelligence, which became the more neceſſary, as the Marattas began to collect forces in oppoſition to his march, and he was apprehenſive they would be ſtrengthened by thoſe of the Nizam. With a view to counteract them, he ſuggeſted an attempt to influence, if poſſible, the motions of Hyder Ally, and to make them co-operate with theirs.

See the Diary. Your Committee do not find that the Poonah Committee wrote to Colonel Goddard before the 10th of January 1779, when they were juſt about to fall back from Tullegaun, and they then appear to have intimated their doubts of his being able to ſecure proviſions, or to repel the continual and harraſſing attacks of the enemy (to which he would certainly be liable in his march), deſiring him, however, if he thought himſelf ſecure of force and ſupplies, to proceed towards Broach and Surat, but to halt on the frontiers of Berar or elſewhere, if he was apprehenſive of imminent hazard in the attempt to advance under thoſe circumſtances.

But when the convention took place at Worgam, your Committee obſerve, that the return of the Bengal detachment was one of the ſtipulations to which the Poonah Committee conſented, and were in conſequence obliged to write a letter to Colonel Goddard on the 15th January, with poſitive directions to march back to Bengal with the army under his command. Yet here again we perceive they diſcovered an advantage in having no authority, and that they made uſe of it on the 19th, as will appear by the following letter:

" To Colonel Goddard.

" Sir,

" We diſpatched you on the 16th a letter containing " orders, which, upon recollection, we do not think our-" ſelves authorized to give you—you are therefore to pay
" no regard thereto. We are, Sir,

" Your obedient ſervants,

" John Carnac,

" Charles Egerton."

Your Committee indeed remark, that they had more authority to write this letter than they were aware of at the time they ſent it; for in the diſpatch before mentioned, which they received on the 20th of January from the Select Committee, there was mentioned the receipt of a letter from the Governor General and Council, and the following account given of its contents:

At Campely. See Diary.

" The contents in ſhort are, that they have given " Colonel Goddard full powers to conclude a treaty with " Moodajee Bouncello, for which reaſon they think it
" neceſſary to revoke the controul they had given us over
" that detachment, though they obſerve their intention is " not to withdraw the ſources of the detachment entirely " from the ſupport of any meaſures we might have form" ed in reliance of ſuch ſupport, if thoſe meaſures ſhall
" not prove incompatible with the inſtructions given to " Colonel Goddard, and with the engagements he may " form in conſequence. We ſhall, however, immedi-

This letter itſelf is placed in the Appendix, dated 23 Nov 1778, received 10 January 1779, at Bombay. Appx. No 133.

" ately describe our present situation to Colonel Goddard, " who, on the 12th ultimo, was still at Huffingabad, and " press him to march towards Poonah."

Bom. Sel. Cons. 19 Feb. 1779. Appx. No. 134.

Your Committee find, that after the disgraceful return of the army from the late unfortunate expedition, the Governor and Select Committee of Bombay did not immediately take any material step in regard to the situation of their affairs, except by the removal of Colonel Egerton and Colonel Cockburn from the command of the forces, and by making some promotions of other officers in order to distinguish those whose merit was acknowledged to have been most conspicuous on the late service; that on the 19th of February, however, the President laid before the Select Board a Minute, containing a review of Maratta affairs, and several resolutions proposed by him in consequence. These your Committee perceive to have for their principal object, the necessity of preparations for a defensive war with the Marattas, who were assembling troops in the neighbourhood of Caranja and Salsette, and were said to be determined on an immediate invasion of those islands, if they were not peaceably yielded up to them, together with all the cessions stipulated for in the convention of Worgam. The President observed, he had already taken care to apprise the Durbar, that the convention was not valid, and that he had informed the superior Board of the circumstances of it, and would do nothing further in it without their orders; that however he did not think it would be fair and consistent conduct towards the Governor General and Council themselves, who had certainly furnished them, in their letters of the 23d March and 17th August, with ample powers for the war they had begun, if they failed of making an exertion towards extricating their own affairs from their present embarrassments, which, though humiliating, had not reduced them wholly into contempt: That Colonel Goddard being arrived, on the 29th of January, at Berampore, was there probably secure from all hostile attempts; but he thought it advisable, that in their directions to him they should leave it to himself to take his own opportunity for coming on to Surat and Broach, informing him at the same time of the urgent occasion the Presidency had for his army, and how much they thought their safety might depend on its safe and speedy arrival.—But it appears that the President's chief design in this Minute, was to recommend an endeavour to engage Madajee Scindia in their interests, explaining the reasons why he thought such an attempt would prove successful, and insisting particularly on his known aversion to the French, and partiality to the English, to which they were much indebted for the more favourable terms of the convention at Worgam; " as it was owing " to him that the point of detaining the whole army as " hostages, which Nanna had required, was given up, " and by that means they had it in their power to disavow " the convention; and that in regard to the private " article stipulated with him for his own advantage, he " could not but well know, that the performance of this " article could be no ways effectually secured by him, " but by the very means he rejected, the detention of " their army as hostages." That to these inducements for an application to Scindia, there might be added the considerations of his power, and the objects of his policy; that in respect of the first, an alliance with him might be preferable even to that, which appeared to be a favourite of the Governor General and Council, with Moodajee Boosla, because Scindia was in effect in possession of the Peishwa's domains and the person of Ragoba, and entirely guided Nanna, the Duan, as his mere instrument: with regard to the second, an alliance with the Company might be useful to him as a protection to his own territories against the designs of the King, who had already began to take advantage of his absence, and to make attacks upon him; that for these and other reasons (which will be found in this Minute, placed in the Appendix) he proposed to write to Scindia, and even desire him to send 1,000 horse to meet their army, and accompany them to Surat, as a witness of the friendship that should subsist between them; and he also recommended, that a connection with the Guicawars should not be neglected, because it offered another resource to them in the present posture of their affairs.—The several propositions then made by Governor Hornby, and the subsequent observations upon them by Mr. Draper, will be found together in the Appendix, No. 134, in which it will be also seen, that the most of them were agreed to by the majority of the Committee; and that Mr. Horsley was appointed to go immediately with their advices to Bengal, " in order to supply the Governor General and Council " with such information and detail of local knowledge as " they might require, or the support of their present " plan might render necessary."

No. 134.

Bom. Sel. Cons. 23d Feb. 1779. Appx. No. 134.

And your Committee find, that Governor Hornby sent, together with the dispatches from the Select Committee, a letter from himself, addressed to the Committee of Secrecy of the Court of Directors, wherein he inclosed a paper containing his sentiments, as well on the actual posture of affairs, as on the prospect before them, between the time of his writing and the end of the following October, being the form in which he had prepared to bring the matter before the Select Committee as soon as their dispatches were sent off. Your Committee having placed this letter, and the inclosed paper in the Appendix, No. 135, desire to refer the House to them, and will therefore in this place make only a very few observations. It appears by these papers, that no resolution had yet been taken with regard to the necessary measures for their conduct at that juncture; that previous to this date, the Governor and Select Committee had received a copy of the instructions given to Mr. Elliot by the Superior Council, for the management of his intended embassy to Berar; that they had been made acquainted with the subsequent powers deputed to Colonel Goddard, for completing the treaty with Moodajee Boosla; that Colonel Goddard had informed them of the Rajah's declining to proceed any further in the negociation, after he knew of the Bombay troops being in the field in favour of Ragoba, and of his own determination to march forward without waiting to hear further from them; and that he was actually arrived at Surat: from a knowledge of which circumstances, Governor Hornby observed there was a very material change made in their affairs, and as there was no reason to doubt of the determination of the Governor General and Council to proceed in their design of alliance with Moodajee Boosla, they must look to that as the leading circumstance in their political transactions with the Marattas in future.—It appears further, that no answer had yet been received from Madajee Scindia to the letter which the Governor, in consequence of the resolutions of the Committee, had written to him, though he had, in the name of the Poona Durbar, on the 2d and 6th of March, [illegible] several cessions stipulated [illegible] gam, and his agent had taken leave without [illegible] self as to the particular [illegible] steps he was suspected of [illegible] a more advantageous [illegible] mittee observe, that the [illegible] Governor Hornby, of [illegible] and resources, with [illegible] should require for a [illegible] was truly distressful, especially as he seemed apprehensive of a deficiency in those of Bengal, from the immense expence of Colonel Goddard's detachment, and the drafts which would probably be made upon them by the Presidency of Madras, whose distress for money was said to have been the cause of their delaying so long to carry into execution the projected expedition against Mahé. Notwithstanding these difficulties, however, he argued, that as the defence of their settlements absolutely required that they should find means of keeping up their present force, it was become necessary to take immediate measures for that purpose, which could only be effected by ſecuring ſuch revenue under their own collection as might be nearly anſwerable to their expences. With this view he propoſed the plan which will be found in the Appendix, No. 135, for obtaining a determinate knowledge of Moodajee Booſla's reſolutions, to which they ſhould pay their firſt attention, and for temporizing in the mean time with Scindia and the Maratta Chiefs; while Colonel Goddard, with the command of the forces to the northward, ſhould ſeize upon the ſhare of the rich diſtricts about the Mahé and the Tappy rivers, and endeavour to eſtabliſh an agreement with the Guicawar brothers under the guarantee of the Company, and to conciliate the other Northern Chiefs. Nor did he deſpair of their being able, with the remaining force of their garriſon, to make a ſucceſsful attempt upon Baſſein itſelf, and afterwards effectually to thwart the French deſigns, by taking ſudden poſſeſſion of Choul. Theſe he recommended as preparatory ſteps to their defence againſt a French invaſion, or in furtherance of the plan to be concerted with Moodajee Booſla; ſtating the improbability of any material oppoſition to their ſucceſs, and urging the danger of their inaction, as an argument againſt any objections which might be made to their proceeding without freſh authority and ſanction from the Supreme Council.

Your Committee have thus taken a view of proceedings under the Government of Bombay, and pointed out the reſolutions of the Select Committee in favour of Rugoba, the iſſue of which proved ſo very calamitous, as by his captivity to have apparently extinguiſhed his cauſe, and by the terms of the convention to have reduced the Company's power within a very narrow line of defence; but it has alſo been ſhewn, that the barrier of the convention was immediately puſhed down, almoſt before it was attempted to be ſet up; that the fate of Rugoba was conſidered only as a perſonal loſs, for which the Committee firſt ſought a ſubſtitute in Madajee Scindia, and afterwards in adopting the Governor General and Council's plan in favour of Moodajee Booſla; and that the arrival of Colonel Goddard with the Bengal detachment at Surat, revived even the hope of acquiring a territory ſufficient for the expences of a war, which the decided enmity of Nanna, and the undoubted projects of the French, were ſuppoſed to render abſolutely unavoidable. The plan which was conceived by the Preſident, for making the war a means of retrieving their affairs, has been alſo laid before the Houſe, and it has appeared that it was deſigned to wait for the opinion and direction of the Superior Council, before every part of the plan ſhould be carried into execution.

The annexed papers, to which we deſire to refer the Houſe, preſent an account of the general ſtate of the revenues, and of the military eſtabliſhment under the Preſidency of Bombay, at the period in which the Preſident appears to have formed the plan of meaſures which your Committee have ſhortly explained.

Your Committee will now return to a conſideration of the meaſures which the Governor General and Council may be found to have adopted in this interim, and will endeavour to inveſtigate the motives of their conduct, particularly in regard to the change which it has appeared was made in the command of the Bengal detachment, and to the variety of their reſolutions and directions for the purpoſe of completing the intended connection with the Berar Rajah. And we ſhall afterwards in regular order attend to the effect which the news of the unfortunate events on the Malabar coaſt had upon their councils and proceedings. Your Committee will, however, in the firſt place, deſire the Houſe to recollect the account given in the former Reports, of the ſituation and management of the Company's affairs in other parts at this very important period, by which means they will be better able to judge of the wiſdom and expediency of the meaſures at preſent in queſtion, as conſidered on the larger ſcale of regard to the general intereſt and welfare of the whole. And it ſhould not be omitted to point out the concluding part of the letter from the Select Committee, dated 27th March, to the Secret Committee of the Court of Directors, as it contains material information relative to the expedition againſt Mahé, and the ſuſpicions then entertained, and communicated by the Government of Bombay, of the hoſtile diſpoſition of Hyder Ally towards the Company, and of his open attachment to the French.

And your Committee find, that the Select Committee of Bombay, in the letter juſt mentioned of the 27th March, adverted to the ſlowneſs with which the Bengal detachment had at firſt advanced, and to the conſequent uncertainty of its arrival on the Malabar coaſt, as a reaſon, in exculpation of their own conduct, for having undertaken the Poonah expedition without waiting for a more immediate co-operation with it.

It has been ſhewn, that on the receipt of news in June 1778, of a rupture with France, the Preſident and Council had written to Colonel Leſlie, in terms of much anxiety, to preſs forward his detachment; and that on the 21ſt of July, when the Select Committee came to their firſt reſolution of undertaking effectually the ſupport of Ragoba, they had again addreſſed him in ſimilar terms, and gave him particular directions for his route. And it appears that Colonel Leſlie, in his letter to Bengal of 25th of July, acknowledged the receipt of the firſt order, and declared his intention of immediately obeying it in the following words: "You may depend on my "utmoſt attention to the wiſhes expreſſed in the Preſi- "dency of Bombay's letter, in uſing all expedition; and "every faculty of mine ſhall be exerted to effect as "ſpeedy an advance as can be made through a tract of "country yet but little known, and the delays I muſt "expect to encounter at this ſeaſon of the year, by the "ſwelling of the many nullahs and rivers which the "country abounds with."

Ben. Sec. Cons. 31 Aug. 1778. 3 e. Orig. Let.

But your Committee find, that the Su[illegible] were not ſatisfied with his long delay at Ch[illegible] wrote a letter to him on the 31ſt of Aug[illegible] him to ſtate the cauſe of his continuance [illegible] dered him to purſue his march to Berar wi[illegible] nient expedition, agreeable to their comma[illegible] on the 2d of September 1778, the Governor General laid before the Board ſome letters from Colonel Leſlie; by which it appeared that he was ſtill at Chatterpore on the 14th of Auguſt, and was engaged in negociations with the Rajahs of the Bundlecund country; but he thought no diſadvantage or delay had attended his halt there, from which however he reſolved immediately to purſue his march by way of Rajegur; and we perceive that the Governor General expreſſed his own confidence, and hoped the Board would be ſatisfied, "that no con- "ſideration would have induced Colonel Leſlie to enter "into engagements of a nature to retard his progreſs, "or to divert the ſervices of the troops under his "command a moment from their deſtined courſe or "preſcribed objects."—The further diſcuſſion of this ſubject, in Minutes between the Governor General and Mr.

Appx. No. 138. Mr. Francis, will be found in the Appendix, No. 138; by which it appears, that the Governor General acknowledged, that if Colonel Leſlie had delayed his march in order to interfere in any unneceſſary negociations with the country Chiefs, he would be unworthy of any further truſt; and he repeated his obſervations, that the Colonel ought not to have been retarded by the rains, as that ſeaſon was certainly the moſt favourable for the proſecution of his march.

Ben. Sec. Conſ. 28 Sept. 1778. Appx. No. 139. And your Committee find, that Colonel Leſlie arrived at Rajigur the 17th Auguſt, and found the enemy prepared to diſpute the paſſage of the river Kane; that he had previouſly received advice from Mr. Lewis at Poonah, not to put too much confidence in Madajee Scindia's paſſport, as he was the moſt deceitful of all the Maratta Chiefs; that on the 22d of Auguſt he received the orders from the Select Committee of Bombay, to march by way of Berampore and Juneer, through the Duglana country, inſtead of his former deſtination to Surat or Broach; that on the 4th of September, he wrote from Rajigur to the Governor General and Council, acquainting them that he had with the utmoſt caution avoided interfering with the Bundella Chiefs, either in their private or public diſputes, except in the inſtance of Surnaut Sing, in which he hoped for the approbation of the Board, as he acted from motives of advantage to his detachment and to the expedition; that his troops were healthy; and that the moment the rains would admit, he would continue his route.—It appears that he wrote again from the ſame place on the 7th of September, incloſing a ſatisfactory letter from Moodajee Booſla, who was pleaſed at the intended embaſſy to his Durbar; and complaining of the weather as the principal obſtruction to his immediate progreſs, as he had completed an interchange of friendly engagements with the Rajahs Gohaun and Comaun Sing and himſelf, on account of the Company.

Appx. No. 142. And your Committee find, that on this occaſion, Mr. Francis delivered a Minute, in which he expreſſed much doubt and diſſatisfaction in regard to the conduct of Colonel Leſlie, fearing that the objects of the expedition might be defeated, while he delayed his march to make treaties with the Princes of the country; and he therefore moved for an enquiry upon that ſubject. And we perceive, that the Governor General was alſo diſpoſed to condemn his conduct, remarking on the ſlow advance of 120 miles in the ſpace of 4 months, and at an expence of 12,00,000 rupees; but wiſhing not to enter precipitately into a meaſure of ſuch importance, he recommended a delay till they ſhould be furniſhed with every proper material, and be able to form their reſolutions upon direct proof of miſconduct. The Board appear to have acquieſced in his reaſoning.

But your Committee find, that the Board at this time received information of the death of Mr. Elliot, which event appears to have been regretted as a heavy misfortune, and eſpecially in reſpect to the embaſſy with which he was charged, as on his perſonal qualifications the confidence of the Government was particularly repoſed. And we obſerve, that the Governor General immediately propoſed that a perſon ſhould be appointed to repair to the court of the Rajah of Berar, and furniſhed with the ſame inſtructions as were delivered to Mr. Elliot, for concluding a treaty with that Government; but on account of Mr. Barwell's abſence, he deſired to ſuſpend for a day ſuch propoſitions as might be neceſſary for the further proſecution of the ſubject.

And it appears to your Committee, that at the next meeting of the Board, the Governor General declared, that having more thoroughly conſidered the ſubject of the propoſed commiſſion, he was induced, for many reaſons which he then aſſigned (particularly from the hope of receiving advances from Moodajee Booſla himſelf) to requeſt the permiſſion of the Board to withdraw his motion; which was accordingly agreed to: but a conſiderable debate aroſe, as will be ſeen in the Appendix, No. 144, about the declaration of their future views in the further advance of the detachment, either for for the purpoſe of alliance with the Rajah of Berar, or of promoting the deſigns of the Council of Bombay for the reinſtatement of Ragoba; which, however, they all believed to be a project now entirely relinquiſhed by that Preſidency. Nothing explicit ſeems to have been declared by the Board upon this occaſion; the Governor General, who was particularly called upon, only profeſſing in general terms, that the reinſtatement of Ragoba had never been the object of their Government, and that he entirely looked up to Moodajee Booſla. In regard to the detachment, he confined himſelf to the following argument: "Whether the detachment ſhall be required "to act in the proſecution of any engagements with "Moodajee, or for the reſtoration of Ragoba, or in direct "oppoſition to the French, or even ſhould it be found "neceſſary or expedient to recal it at a future period, "ſtill the preſent continuance of its march is proper, "until the criſis ſhall arrive which ſhall call upon us "to make our option of its ultimate deſtination. Its "ſituation in Berar will be central to all our ſettlements "in India: it will be a check on the Poonah Govern- "vernment, if it only meditates deſigns againſt us: it "will be at hand to oppoſe them, if they ſhall be actually "formed; and that ſuch deſigns are formed, I am mo- "rally certain."

Letter from Governor General to Moodajee dated 11 Oct. No. 62. Ben. Sec. Perf. Corr. 1778. Appx. No. 145.

And it appears, that at the concluſion of the debate, the Governor General offered propoſals to the conſideration of the Board, for forming ſuch orders as ſhould be given Colonel Leſlie for the future march of the detachment, and for ſettling what information or inſtructions ſhould be written to the Preſident and Council of Bombay; upon which we obſerve, the ſeveral Members of the Board delivered in very intereſting Minutes on the 12th and 15th. And we therefore wiſh the Houſe to conſider them at large in the Appendix, No. 146, in which they are placed, and wherein they will ſee the reaſonings of Meſſrs. Francis and Wheler in objection to the further march of the detachment, on every ground which the Governor General and Mr. Barwell had taken for recommending the proſecution of the expedition. And it is proper to remark, that the Board were unanimous in their reſolution of not any longer intruſting the command of thoſe forces to Colonel Leſlie, whoſe conduct they deemed a direct violation of his orders; and he was therefore directed to return to the Preſidency with all expedition, after giving up the care of his command to Lieutenant Colonel Goddard, who was the next ſenior officer. The Board alſo thought it proper to diſavow the treaty which he had taken upon himſelf to conclude with the two Rajahs, and alſo to appriſe him, that they ſhould conſider any other engagements to be invalid which he ſhould have ſince entered into, contrary to the tenor of his inſtructions. At the ſame time, a letter appears to have been written to Colonel Goddard, containing orders to him to receive the charge of the forces from Colonel Leſlie, and immediately to direct his march into the province of Berar; adding other inſtructions, which have already been explained to the Houſe, when your Committee before took notice of the letter diſpatched in conſequence of the Governor General's propoſals on the 15th of October, to the Preſident and Select Committee of Bombay, and which was received by them on the 18th of December.

But your Committee find, that the account of this diſgrace did not reach Colonel Leſlie, for the Board on the 19th received a letter from his Secretary, incloſing one from the Colonel, dated the 28th of September, but not ſigned by him, as he had been prevented by an attack of a fever, which in a few days after put an end to his life. This event appears to have been communicated by Colonel Goddard, on the 3d of October, who at the ſame time obſerving, that the command of the detachment had devolved upon him, promiſed to execute the inſtructions tranſmitted to his predeceſſor with the moſt implicit attention and expedition. We perceive by another diſpatch from him, dated the 11th of October, that he had kept his word, and was already advanced to Chowkey, and hoped ſoon to reach the Nurbuddah river; and in a private letter to the Governor General, of the ſame date, we find the following obſervations: "I have "the ſatisfaction to think that I have fairly bid adieu to "the regions of Bundlecund, at leaſt for the preſent, "and to the tempting prize which the diviſions and "family conteſts of poſſeſſors offer to an invader. I "have left them profeſſing amity to each other, "and reſpect and friendſhip to the Engliſh nation, "whoſe power and proweſs they have at leaſt learnt to "dread. Sec. Conſ. 2 Nov. 1778. Appx. No. 150.

Your Committee obſerve, that the Governor General, on the 16th of November, propoſed, in order to complete the conſultations for the approaching diſpatches, to record the inſtructions which had been given to Mr. Elliot, and the Minutes of the Board upon that occaſion, all which your Committee, for obvious reaſons, had anticipated, and have already laid before the Houſe.

Sec. Conſ. 16 Nov. 1778. Appx. No. 151.

It appears to your Committee, that a letter, dated the 22d of October, was received from Colonel Goddard, giving an account of his progreſs towards the Nerbuddar, and at the ſame time letters arrived from Moodajee Booſla and his Dewan, in which they lamented the death of Mr. Elliot, but hoped that unfortunate event would not prove the means of diſcontinuing the plan for a negociation of alliance between the two Governments; the ſame of which had gone forth and alarmed the fears of the Peiſhwa and the Nizam, to whom Moodajee had avowed, that the "ties of connection between him and "the Engliſh, by reaſon of the Bengal tribute, and the "vicinity of their territories, were ſo firmly bound, that "no circumſtances had or ſhould looſe them;" and indeed, in proof of it, he had cauſed M. Chevalier to be intercepted in the Cuttack, and delivered up to Mr. Elliot. The Governor General ordered theſe letters to be circulated among the Members of the Board, with propoſitions on his part in conſequence of them. Theſe your Committee find to contain a motion, which was agreed to by the majority of the Board, for the appointment of Colonel Goddard to carry into execution thoſe deſigns which had been the object of Mr. Elliot's embaſſy; that they ſhould adviſe the Preſidencies of Fort Saint George and Bombay of this commiſſion, and require their conformity to it. It is however to be remarked, that many forcible objections, which will be ſeen by turning to the Appendix, No. 153, were urged againſt this reſolution, both on account of the impolicy of the alliance, as amounting to a declaration of war with the Nizam, very dangerous to the Carnatic, and in reſpect of perſonal and profeſſional impropriety in the [illegible] intended negociator, and alſo from a [illegible] uncertainty in which the Superior C[illegible] the deſigns of the Bombay Governme[illegible] goba, and of the orders they might [illegible] occaſion much embarraſſment and [illegible] Goddard, from a poſſibility of his re[illegible] tory directions. And we perceive, that on this occaſion a copy of Mr. Elliot's inſtructions were incloſed in the diſpatch to Bombay, which however it has been obſerved did not reach that Preſidency by this conveyance, but was firſt communicated to them by Colonel Goddard on his arrival.

Your Committee find, that ſtrong evidence of a connection, hoſtile to the Company, between the Maratta adminiſtration and the French power in India, was at this time tranſmitted by Mr. Lewis from Poonah, in copies of letters from the Governor of Pondicherry, who therein engaged to co-operate with them on the Malabar coaſt, as ſoon as the Britiſh troops ſhould be defeated before Pondicherry. It appears however alſo by theſe accounts, accounts, that Hyder Ally was likely to draw off a chief part of the Maratta troops to oppoſe him in the Carnatic.

No. 81, 82, 83, 84, 86, 87, 88, 90, Ben. Sec. Conſ. Corr. Appx. No. 155

Your Committee have indeed found letters, however, from the Peiſhwa and the Miniſters, immediately addreſſed to the Bengal Government, which convey unqueſtionable proof of their uneaſineſs and reſentment, charging the Bombay Preſidency with having purpoſely thwarted every plan of reconciliation, and complaining of the Superior Council for ſuffering it, and ſending a detachment of troops to their aſſiſtance.

The following paragraph concludes one of theſe letters:—"From the commencement of the authority "of the family of the Peiſhwa, they have entered into "treaties with many of the Chiefs both of the Eaſt and "Weſt, and have never before experienced ſuch a "want of faith from any one; nor even to the preſent "time deviated in their engagement, or been wanting "in their duties of friendſhip and alliance. The blame "reſts with you."

Your Committee have further obſerved, that they carried their complaints to foreign Courts, and eſpecially endeavoured to move Moodajee Booſla with them, but in vain, as appears by a letter from Beneram Pundit, who at the ſame time having received the news of the capture of Pondicherry, declared his conviction, that the influence of the Engliſh fortune would at all times effect the ruin of their enemies; and he thereupon added an aſſurance to the Governor General, that the Rajah waited impatiently for the arrival of a ſucceſſor to Mr. Elliot.

No 90, Ben. Sec. Conſ. received 16 Dec. 1778. Appx. No. 156.

And it appears to your Committee, that the Governor General turning his principal attention to that quarter, and conceiving the original plan upon which aſſiſtance was deſtined to Bombay, to have been defeated by the ſecond revolution at Poonah, now propoſed that the detachment ſhould no longer act under the orders of that Preſidency, leſt they might eventually counteract the ends of the negociation lately given in charge to Colonel Goddard. And he ſubmitted to the Board, drafts of letters to Bombay and to Colonel Goddard, ſignifying their revocation of the powers delegated to the Preſident and Select Committee, and the returning to themſelves the direction of that corps, not, however, ſo entirely as to prohibit its co-operation in the deſigns of Bombay, under certain proviſions of compatibility with any engagements formed at the Court of Berar. Theſe letters being agreed to by the majority, appear to have been then diſpatched; and your Committee have before had occaſion to mention one of them, which arrived at Bombay on the 10th of January following. It was not, however, we perceive, without much animadverſion on the inconſiſtency of this change of reſolution, that theſe propoſals were carried, and it was particularly remarked, that the plan in favour of Ragoba being ſet aſide (though no advices of the fact were received) did not put an end "to the caſe of an invaſion of Bombay by the "French," which had been ſo much inſiſted upon by the Governor General, as the ground of giving powers to that Preſidency to direct the motions of the detachment. And it ſhould not, perhaps, be here omitted to remark, that previous to this reſolution, a letter from Mr. Lewis, dated 27th of October, had been received, in which he informed the Board that he was in hourly expectation of being recalled, as the Governor of Bombay wrote to him, that the Select Committee had determined to act againſt the Poonah Durbar.

No. 157.

See letter from Bengal to the Court of Directors, 30th Nov. No. 164.—Alſo letter to Rogonaut Row, No. 84. Appx. No. [illegible]

But your Committee find, that the Rajah of Berar had on the 23d of November written a letter to Colonel Goddard, in which, though he repeated his profeſſions of friendſhip, and promiſes of ſupplies to the detachment, he did not manifeſt the ſame degree of impatience as he had done to conclude engagements, which ſhould require the immediate junction of his troops. And having communicated to the Colonel a paper of intelligence received from Poonah, wherein intimation was given of the advance of a conſiderable force under Scindia and Holkar to oppoſe the proſecution of his march, he betrayed ſymptoms of alarm from the approaching parties of the Maratta troops, and thoſe of the Decan; which, he obſerved, had been, by Colonel Leſlie's unneceſſary delays, ſuffered to collect themſelves at the Paſſes; and he reſolved himſelf to wait for freſh advices from Calcutta, in anſwer to his letters, before he would enter into any overtures of negociation; recommending it alſo to Colonel Goddard, to halt upon the banks of the Nurbuddar in the like expectation, and in the mean time ſeek to conciliate the diſpoſition of the Peiſhwa by written aſſurances, which he would forward with an addreſs from himſelf, of the pacific purpoſes of the expedition. Attention will certainly be given to the entire contents of this letter, which is placed in the Appendix, 159, and by that means it may be judged, how far Mr. Francis was well grounded in propoſing the following queſtion, to which Mr. Wheler only appears to have joined him in giving an affirmative anſwer:

No. 2.—See Pol. Corr. Appx. No. 160.

"Whether it does not appear to the Board, from the "whole tenor of this letter, that Moodajee Booſla is not "inclined to join Colonel Goddard, or to co-operate in "any enterpriſe againſt the Poonah Government?—"Secondly, whether it does not at this time appear to "be the opinion of Moodajee Booſla, that Colonel God-"dard's proceeding on his march will expoſe the de-"tachment to the greateſt difficulties and dangers?"

The negative given by the Governor General and Mr. Barwell, were accompanied with reaſons, which will be found in the Appendix, No. 161, and which, turned chiefly upon the impropriety of the diſcuſſion, till they could receive the comment of Colonel Goddard upon the ſubject, and the leading circumſtances to it; the Governor General, however, ſeeming to allow that there might be danger in the march of the detachment, if unſupported by the Berar forces; and that, indeed, there would not otherwiſe be an adequate object to warrant ſuch a riſk. It may be proper here to remark, that in a letter to Moodajee, dated 29th December, the Governor General exhorted him to be ſteady in his friendſhip and diſpoſition to firm alliance with the Company; and ſeemed to think it neceſſary to preſs upon him, for that purpoſe, the force of his own expreſſions, which he had uſed immediately upon Mr. Elliot's death, and which his later language appeared to contradict.

Appx. No. 161.

Appx. No. 162.

And it appears, that a few days after the debate above-mentioned, the Governor General recommended it to the Board, that in conſideration of the probable diminution which the detachment muſt have ſuffered in its ſtrength, from the unexpected and unneceſſary delays before the death of Colonel Leſlie, and becauſe of the like contingencies which would naturally increaſe with the length of the march, they ſhould provide a proper reinforcement; and for that purpoſe ſhould detach, under the command of Major Camac, an additional corps, conſiſting of two battalions of Sepoys, amounting to 1,632 men, which might proceed immediately without their artillery, to the extremity of the weſtern frontier, and there wait the directions of Colonel Goddard, either to form a junction with the chief detachment, or to preſerve the communication with the provinces. And we perceive, that this propoſal was agreed to by the majority of the Board, though not without oppoſition, on the ground of a deficiency of information by which the fact of the diminution might be eſtabliſhed, and becauſe the point of expediency appeared more urgent for the recall of thoſe troops which had already been ſent out of their province, than for a further weakening of their eſtabliſhment, in order to increaſe Colonel Goddard's corps, and for other reaſons, which, as well as the arguments adduced in ſupport of the propoſition, may be conſulted in the Appendix, No. 163; wherein alſo will be found the inſtructions given to Major Camac, on the 14th of January; and a letter to Beneram Pundit, in which the Governor General communicated the reſolution of ſending the reinforcement, and aſſigned, as a motive for ſo doing, that it might obviate every poſſible inconvenience apprehended by the Maha Rajah, in the proſecution of the march of their joint troops.

7 Jan. 1779. Ben. Sec. Conſ. Appx. No. 164.

Your Committee find by ſeveral letters from Colonel Goddard, that he had ſucceſsfully preſſed forward his march to the banks of the Nerbuddar, and croſſed that river in the beginning of December, which being ſooner than he was expected by the agents from Berar, he propoſed halting there for ſome days, as well to wait the receipt of advices from the Rajah, as to refreſh his troops. It appears, that his progreſs had been frequently interrupted by the harraſſing attacks from the troops of Ballajee, and other Chiefs in the intereſt of the actual adminiſtration at Poonah, who had alſo threatened vengeance to the Nawal of Bhopal, for acting in contradiction to the Peiſhwa's orders, of preventing, if poſſible, the march of the detachment acroſs the Nerbuddar.—From this Chief, Colonel Goddard appears to have had very friendly aſſiſtance, and alſo to have paſſed through a diſtrict of Madajee Scindia's country without oppoſition.

Appx. No. 165.

But your Committee obſerve, that though Colonel Goddard was thus ſafely arrived on the borders of the Berar dominions, he was not likely to have immediate ſucceſs in accompliſhing the intended plan of alliance with the Rajah; for we perceive by a letter from Moodajee himſelf to the Governor General, received at Calcutta on the 2d of January 1779, that he conſidered all their deſigns to have fallen to the ground by the death of Mr. Elliot; and that the negociation muſt be ſuſpended till another opportunity, and a further knowledge of the ſentiments of the Government General. He declared it to have been the object of his own views to have removed, if poſſible, the mutual ſuſpicions and apprehenſions of the Engliſh on the one part, leſt the French were to be aſſiſted by the Poonah Government in hoſtilities againſt them; and of the Peiſhwa and the Nizam on the other, leſt Ragonaut Row was to be ſupported by the Company's forces in his pretenſions to the Regency of the Maratta State; and he lamented, that although the Durbar had repeatedly denied all idea of ſuch connection with the French as might in any way juſtify the complaints of the Engliſh; and notwithſtanding the Governor General had himſelf formally aſſured the Berar vackeel there was not, or ever had been, any intention of giving ſupport to Ragonaut Row, thoſe jealouſies ſtill remained; and he added, that in order to put an end to them, he had written to Colonel Goddard to remain in a ſtation near Huſſungabad till freſh advices and information ſhould be received from Calcutta, and from the Poonah Durbar. No progreſs, he foreſaw, could be made through the territories of the Peiſhwa without fighting, and a junction of a body of his forces with thoſe under Colonel Goddard would avail nothing in the face of ſuch large armies of the Marattas, but would only involve himſelf in the greateſt loſſes. In the concluſion of his letter Moodajee thus expreſſes himſelf:—

"As he (the Peiſhwa) pleads a prohibition in the treaty "to the march of forces overland, and likewiſe com- "plains reſpecting the money that Colonel Leſſie col- "lected in his territories, what anſwer can be made "thereto?

"As the times require that a conciliation take place "with the Poonah Miniſters, you will conſider and de- "termine what reply ſhall be given to theſe two points, "of which they complain, and by what means they "may be ſatisfied, and communicate your reſolution to "me, that I may write conformable thereto, and re- "move all doubts."

See Sec. Sec. Pers. Corr. 1779. No. 123, 3, to 5. Appx. No. 165. Ben. Sec. Conſ. 11 Jan. 1779. Appx. No. 160.

It appears that this letter, and others received at the ſame time, from the Berar Miniſters, and which are all placed in the Appendix, No. 165, became the ſubject of a Minute delivered by Mr. Francis, in which your Committee find, that he expreſſed great apprehenſion of duplicity and ill deſign in the affected delays of the Rajah, and that his alarm for the ſafety of the Bengal detachment, which he thought incapable of ſurmounting the dangers and difficulties of a further progreſs towards Bombay, made him ſolicitous for its return to the Preſidency with all expedition, notwithſtanding the avowed diſcredit which would thereby fall upon the wiſdom of their Councils, and the power of their arms; and he recommended, that for this purpoſe letters ſhould be written to the Peiſhwa, to inform him of that alteration, and to deſire permiſſion for the army to return without moleſtation, inſiſting, that at all events, ſome clear and deciſive orders ſhould be immediately diſpatched to Colonel Goddard. In theſe repreſentations and advices, Mr. Wheler appears to have ſupported Mr. Francis; and though the Governor General declined bearing any part in the debate, as there was no queſtion propoſed in the Minutes of the other members, your Committee obſerve, that at a ſubſequent meeting of the Board he delivered in a Minute, in which, though the direct object of it ſeems to be an addreſs to Mr. Barwell, to prevail upon him to alter his reſolution of returning to Europe, and thereby abandoning his ſhare in the ſupport and reſponſibility of the meaſures, which the majority had hitherto purſued, he took occaſion to advert to Mr. Francis's minute, with ſome degree of indignation at his advice about the ſafe retreat of their army from Berar to their own confines. It is to be obſerved, that Mr. Barwell ſuffered himſelf to be perſuaded, by the arguments of the Governor General, to make a declaration of his reſolution to continue at the Preſidency as long as his ſupport might be neceſſary towards effecting the execution of the Governor General's plan of public meaſures. And that Mr. Francis, in part of his reply to the Governor General's obſervations, ſtrove to enforce his former remarks on the ſtudied tardineſs of Moodajee Booſla, by pointing out expreſſions in a ſubſequent letter from him, when he had been fully informed by Colonel Goddard of all the particular objects of the proffered alliance.

And though he was convinced that they did not mean to give up the advancement of their own ſchemes hereafter in concert with the Engliſh, and had reſolved to ſend Baneram Pundit back to Calcutta with a freſh commiſſion, they ſtarted many obſtacles againſt the immediate commencement of any active operations, and principally from the part taken by the Council of Bombay in favour of Ragonaut Row; that Letter from Bombay to Col. Goddard, 6th Dec. 1778. No. 170.

Ben. Sec. Conſ. 9 Feb. 1779. Appx. No. 171.

Your Committee find, that a few days after the receipt of theſe advices, the Governor General delivered in a very long Minute, in which he examined the conduct of the Bombay Committee, with a reference to the inſtructions they had received from the Superior Council, and to the ſubſequent circumſtances under which they had at laſt reſolved upon the execution of their plan; and though he ſeemed to think them warranted by the letter of their inſtructions, he was not inclined to hold them free from blame, in that, after ſo long a delay of proceeding to action, and ſuch entire neglect of timely notification, they had not continued to wait for the reſult of the depending meaſures which the Superior Government had reſolved to purſue as an indemnification for the ſuppoſed diſappointment in accompliſhing their original plan. In regard to a remedy for this confuſion of meaſures, he preſumed it to be clearly within their power; that their duty required them to apply it; that their own plan having been rendered impracticable by that which the Bombay Committee had reſumed, they could find no option left, but muſt give the latter the aid that could be effectually beſtowed on it; in doing which, they ſhould ſtill however have regard to the ſuperiority and indemnification of their Government, by aſſerting the independency of the command given to Colonel Goddard, and by ſecuring a proviſion for the reimburſement of their expences. The ſeveral propoſitions into which the Governor General then reduced and arranged the ſubſtance of his reaſonings, will be found in the Appendix, No. 171, wherein are alſo placed the different opinions of the Board expreſſed in their Minutes upon them, and the letters ſent to the Governor and Select Committee of Bombay, and to Colonel Goddard, incloſing his credentials as Miniſter to the Poonah Government, in conſequence of the affirmative reſolutions of the majority; all which are pointedly recommended to the Houſe.

Intelligence of theſe events and proceedings appear to have been tranſmitted to the Court of Directers, in diſpatches from the Board of 31ſt and 11th of February.

Appx. No. 172.

And your Committee obſerve, that on the 9th of February the Governor General wrote to Moodajee Booſſa in terms of concern and regret bordering upon complaint, at his preſent reluctance to act up to his former profeſſions and invitation, aſſuring him, that had he accepted of the terms offered him through Colonel Goddard, and concluded a treaty thereupon, the obligation of it would have been held ſuperior to that of any engagements formed by the Government of Bombay. With reſpect however to the future, the Governor General ſtill ſignified his aſſurances, that his diſpoſition and wiſhes would remain the ſame, and that nothing was yet loſt, although the proſpect might be removed to a greater diſtance.

Ben. Sec. Per. Correſ. No. 7. 9th Feb. 1779. Appx. No. 173.

Your Committee will in this place deſire to direct the attention of the Houſe to two Minutes, which we have placed in the Appendix, No. 174; the one delivered by Mr. Francis, being a cloſe examination of the conduct of the Governor General, and direct charge againſt him, for the inconſiſtency of his meaſures and arguments relative to the different plans and terms of alliance with Ragonaut Row and Moodajee Booſſa; the other being the Governor General's defence of his conduct in theſe particulars; on which we ſhall only remark, that the Governor General pointed out two ſeparate and unconnected ſchemes of alliance, which it had been the object of their Government to form with the Rajah of Berar, for different purpoſes, and at different periods; the one defenſive, for the mutual and perpetual ſupport of their reſpective territories immediately bordering upon each other; the other offenſive, for other purpoſes; that the deſign of the firſt had exiſted ever ſince the year 1773, and that a fair opportunity preſented itſelf of accompliſhing it, when the Preſidency of Bombay called their attention to another object. He ſought, however, to reconcile the offenſive plan in favour of Moodajee, with the ſteps taken in ſupport of Ragoba, by the following obſervations: "The profeſſed object of "the alliance with Moodajee, was to put him in poſſeſſion of the ſovereignty of the Maratta State, to which he had fair and legal pretenſion, and which he might have certainly held without prejudice to the rights of Ragonaut Row, as Peiſhwa; and Ragonaut Row might as conſiſtently have exerciſed the office of Peiſhwa under his authority, as his predeceſſors in the ſame office did before the uſurpation of Ballajee in 1740; which has been ſupported under all the forms and avowed rights of the Conſtitution: therefore the two plans, viz. that formed at Bombay for the reſtoration of Ragoba to the office of Peiſhwa, and that projected by us for the advancement of Moodajee Booſſa to the ſovereign authority of the Maratta Empire, are compatable in their nature, and may really exiſt together."

See the preceding Report.

Your Committee find, that letters from Bombay, dated 13th January, which appear to have reached Calcutta on the 25th February, brought advice of the ſlow progreſs which their troops had made in the expedition towards Poonah, and of the backwardneſs of Ragoba's friends in declaring themſelves in his favour; that they (the Preſident and Select Committee) had in theſe circumſtances, notwithſtanding the receipt of the Governor General and Council's letter of 23d November, ventured to preſs and enjoin Colonel Goddard (to whom they had ſent a copy of their treatry with Ragonaut Row) to march directly to Poonch without a moment's loſs of time, as they thought the aid of his detachment, on which they had always depended, was neceſſary to enſure ſucceſs. The news, however, which your Committee obſerve was on the ſame day laid before the Board by the Governor General, entirely took away all hopes from that proſpect, and convinced them of the diſaſtrous failure of that expedition, and of the captivity of Ragonaut Row. It is to be remarked, that the Nabob of Arcot, from whom alſo intelligence of this event was then received, concludes his letter in theſe words: "I have "taken every opportunity of pointing out to my friends "ſuch meaſures as appeared to me to be proper. I in- "cloſe you a copy of a letter containing my advice, in "conſequence of information which I have ſome time "ago received from Poonah, addreſſed to the Governor "and Council of Madras, under date 3d December "1778, and alſo of one I wrote them with the intelli- "gence received from Poonah. Had they purſued my "plan, the affairs there had been well ſettled. Will "you, my friend, who are endowed with wiſdom, even "now take ſuch meaſures as ſhall be moſt adviſable?" And it is further obſervable that in a paper containing the like intelligence from the Durbar of the Nabob Nizam ul Dowlah, it is mentioned, that when his Highneſs received from the Maratta vackeel an account of this event, he ſaid to him, "It is well, the right has "prevailed, in that your enemies have of their own ac- "cord delivered themſelves into your hands. But the "Naig has reduced the fort of Chittledurk to great extre- "mity. If you now take meaſures to raiſe the ſiege, it "is well; otherwiſe you will loſe it in a month or two. "From the poſſeſſion of the ſingle fort of Cottee the "Naig made himſelf ſo powerful; ſhould he be ſuffered "to reduce the fort of Chittledurk, it will be attended "with the worſt conſequences."

Your Committee find, that the Governor General did not think it adviſable upon this occaſion to propoſe any immediate meaſure, till accounts ſhould be received from Colonel Goddard of his movements, upon being informed of the calamity in queſtion. But we perceive that Mr. Francis ſuggeſted the expediency of providing againſt any conſequential danger upon the weſtern frontiers, by ſending orders to General Stibbert to be upon his guard. This propoſition appears to have cauſed a debate, the particulars of which will be found in the Appendix, No. 177; and we ſhall only here remark, that it turned in great meaſure upon the probable effect which this event might have upon the neighbouring country Powers, and upon the neceſſary precautions to be taken againſt their deſigns, and eſpecially of thoſe of Nudjif Cawn, who was reported to have entered into a treaty with the Marattas; which however did not ſeem to be allowed in its full extent by all the Members of the Board; though the Governor General declared, that he did not mean to hold forth Nudjif Cawn as the friend of the Bengal Government, as he conſidered all the Powers around them to be their friends or enemies merely as their intereſts impelled them. It appears that the reſolutions of the Board, in the terms of Mr. Francis's motion, with an additional amendment propoſed by Mr. Barwell, occaſioned a letter to be written to General Stibbert, which will be found at the end of the Appendix, No. 177.

But your Committee think it proper to inſert here in the body of this Report, the letter from the Governor and Council of Fort Saint George, among whom Sir Eyre Coote will be obſerved to have ſigned his name, which incloſed the papers of intelligence above-mentioned; becauſe, though it has been taken notice of before in a former Report, it ſeems adviſable to place it immediately before the attention of the Houſe, while they are conſidering the connection between the circumſtances of the Maratta war and the enſuing misfortunes in the Carnatic.

Dated 7 Feb. 1779.

"Incloſed we have the honour of tranſmitting to you "a paper of intelligence, received by the Nabob from "his agent at Poonah. Its authenticity is too ſtrongly "marked to leave any doubts on our minds concerning "the particulars; and we have now only to hope, that "the effect of ſo conſiderable a check on the progreſs of "the Company's arms may not create ſome immediate "attempts to diſturb our poſſeſſions on this ſide of "India, or to fruſtrate the expectations we had formed "of putting a final and ſpeedy period to the power of "the French.

"The ſubject indeed is of ſuch a nature, as to awaken "all our reflections; and we ſhall beg leave here to ſtate "to you briefly what occurs to us, from a review of our "ſituation with reſpect to the Powers around us, and a "conſideration of the probable effects that may have "been cauſed by the unfortunate enterpriſe in ſupport "of Ragonaut Roto.

"It will admit of no doubt, that Hyder Ally at "preſent bears no favourable inclination towards the "Company, and that he is very ſtrongly in the intereſts "of the French. Had we not commenced the war in "this country with ſo great a ſuperiority, Hyder would "moſt likely have appeared, and taken an active part "againſt us in the beginning. The ſucceſs of our arms "againſt Pondicherry, probably determined him to per"ſevere in the line of neutrality he had adopted; and we "have every reaſon to think we might have purſued our "operations to the point at which we aimed, without "any moleſtation whatever from him, had not the miſ"fortune of the Bombay troops cauſed ſo material a "change in the face of affairs. Hyder now perceiving "ſo glaring an inſtance of weakneſs and diſgrace, may "be encouraged openly to reſiſt our propoſed attempt "on Mahé; which he conſiders, in ſome ſort, as under "his protection.

See Appx. No. 74.

"With reſpect to the Nizam, his avowed attachment "to the Poonah Miniſters, and the warmth with which "he remonſtrated to your Board and to this Government "againſt the deſigns which he underſtood had been form"ed in favour of Ragonaut Row, ſufficiently ſhew how "he muſt have received the news of our diſaſter, and "how materially this misfortune will contribute to "ſtrengthen the inclinations he will naturally have re"ceived to our prejudice.

"The diſpoſitions of the Peiſhwa and the Miniſters "at Poonah upon this event, may be eaſily conceived. "The effects of this reſentment may be ſuſpended for "a time, but we can never ſuppoſe they will reſt ſatiſ"fied with the advantage they have acquired; much "leſs can we expect they will unite in friendſhip or in "meaſures with thoſe who have attempted ſuch danger"ous deſigns againſt them.

"Thus, by one ill-timed and unfortunate enterpriſe, "the reputation of our arms is ſullied, and the friend"ſhip of the principal Indian ſtates hazarded or loſt for "ever, and that too at a period when we are engaged "in a war which calls for the exertion of all our force, "and the good-will of every ſtate in alliance with us.

"In the midſt of theſe unpleaſing reflections, we feel "no ſmall degree of ſatisfaction at the ſucceſsful mea"ſures which have been purſued againſt the French. By "removing them from our neighbourhood, we are at "liberty to act with much greater ſpirit and ſecurity; "and we yet flatter ourſelves, that it is within the power "of the two Preſidencies of Bengal and Madras, by "prudent and vigorous meaſures, to repair the miſchiefs "that have been occaſioned by the miſcarriage of the "Bombay troops, to wipe away the diſcredit that has "fallen on the Company's arms, and to keep in awe "thoſe Powers who may be diſpoſed to take advantage "of our ill ſucceſs on that ſide of India.

"On receipt of intelligence from Poonah, it became "a queſtion with us, whether it would be ſafe or pru"dent to purſue the expedition we had ſet on foot againſt "Mahé. We ſaw the additional riſk to which it was "expoſed, and the inconvenience of ſending ſuch a body "of troops at this time out of the Carnatic; but we per"ceived alſo the particular advantage that would reſult "from the ſucceſsful execution of our meaſures. We "ſaw that this was the only opportunity that might "offer for removing the diſadvantageous impreſſions "which have been occaſioned every where by the late "defeat; that the appearance of diffidence or timidity on "this occaſion would ſtrengthen and confirm theſe "impreſſions, and probably operate more to our pre"judice than any failure that could happen from the "proſecution of the enterprize; and laſtly, that the with"drawing our troops will be inevitably followed by the "capture of Tellicherry, which though perhaps not im"portant in itſelf, would in the eyes of the country "Powers be conſidered as a victory of no ſmall conſe"quence to the French, and perhaps induce thoſe who "are now wavering, to declare openly in their favour. "Upon the whole, our concluſion was, that the expe"dition ſhould be proſecuted; and we came [illegible] that reſo"lution accordingly.

"We have ſome hopes that Hyder Ally [illegible] "favoured and wiſhed well to the cauſe of [illegible] "ſeeing the danger to which he may [illegible] "the reſentment of the Maratta State, [illegible] "avail himſelf of our ſupport; in that caſe we [illegible] "able to detach him entirely from the intereſt [illegible] "French, and render him a uſeful [illegible] "Indeed we are ſo convinced of the [illegible] "uniting cloſely with Hyder in a defenſive [illegible] "we ſhall embrace every opportunity [illegible] "have lately appointed one of the Company's ſervants "to proceed to his Durbar, and have written to him "for the neceſſary paſſports, which we [illegible]

"Your northern Circars lay ſo open to [illegible] "the dominion of Nizam Ally, and as there is [illegible] "much reaſon to doubt the ſincerity of his friend[illegible] "for the Company, we think it highly expedient at this "juncture to have the beſt intelligence of his deſigns, "and to be timely informed of any motions he may "make towards theſe provinces. For this purpoſe, as "well as to ſettle every thing that may be neceſſary for "obtaining the Guntoor Circar for the Company, and "procuring the diſmiſſion of the French from the ſervice "of Bazalet Jung, we have appointed one of the Com" pany's ſervants to proceed to the Court of Nizam Ally

" in quality of Reſident; he will have inſtructions to cor-
" reſpond with your Board, and to communicate every " information you may require from that quarter.

" The northern Circars being too extenſive to be " properly defended by the ordinary force maintained
" there; and the protection of the Carnatic and Tanjore re" quiring all the troops that are ſtationed for their ſecu-
" rity, we are apprehenſive, were any ſudden attack
" made upon our poſſeſſions to the northward at this " juncture (while we have ſo large a detachment em" ployed in the expedition to Mahé) we might not be " able to collect a ſufficient force in time to repel it.
" Conſidering the value and importance of thoſe poſſeſ-
" ſions to the Company, we think it our duty to attend
" particularly to their ſafety; and with that view we beg " leave to communicate a thought which has occurred
" to us, and which may poſſibly be improved by you to " ſome uſeful purpoſe.

" We underſtand that Colonel Goddard's detachment,
" by the laſt advices, was ſituated near the confines of the " Berar Province; ſhould it be found neceſſary to with" draw that detachment from the object to which it was " deſtined, we would propoſe to your conſideration,
" whether it would not be an eligible meaſure to march
" it towards the coaſt of Oriſſa, ſomewhere about the " Chicacole Circar. How far it might be practicable
" to direct the progreſs through the countries dependant
" on the Rajah of Berar, we cannot determine, but we " are of opinion, if that could be done without much dif" ficulty, the plan may be deſerving your attention.
" The march of the detachment by that route will be the " moſt effectual means of checking any hoſtile deſigns
" of the Seuhah upon the Circars, or of repelling any " actual invaſion that may be attempted on our poſſeſ-
" ſions there; and we think it poſſible too, that by march" ing your troops towards the coaſt they might reach
" Bengal nearly as ſoon, if not ſooner, than by any other
" route."

Fort St. George, 7 Feb. 1779.

Your Committee find, that Colonel Goddard, ſtill ignorant of the fatal diſaſter which had befallen the Bombay army, had however received a letter from the Poonah Committee, which gave him ſome uneaſineſs, as he was thereby no longer invited to advance towards Poonah;
and in being directed to turn his march to Surat or Broach, he was at the ſame time warned of great difficulties which would probably obſtruct him in his endeavours to effect it. He appears alſo to have been in great diſtreſs for a ſupply of treaſure, and the Governor General thereupon made a motion to ſupply him with ſix lacks of rupees, which the Board appeared willing to agree to, though ſome of the Members expreſſed great doubts about the means of tranſporting them to him: It was however reſolved, that ſuch a remittance ſhould be made, and bills obtained for that purpoſe on the moſt advantageous terms.
And we perceive, that the Governor General followed this with another motion upon the ſubject of eſtabliſhing a mode of defence for the countries immediately dependant upon their Government, and with this view, ſubmitted to the conſideration of the Board, " the expediency
" of ordering General Stibbert to cauſe the firſt brigade
" to croſs the Jumna, and to encamp in the moſt con" venient ſtation in the neighbourhood of Allahabad, and " of the high road leading from thence to Berar, and to
" the ſouthern parts of Hindoſtan."

Ben. Sec. Conf. 2d March 1779. Appx. No. 181.

The conſideration of this propoſal appears to have been deferred till the next day, at the deſire of Mr. Francis, at which time the Governor General renewed his propo-ſal with this alteration, that he now recommended an encampment on the Bengal ſide of the Jumna, in a ſtation the moſt convenient for paſſing that river; aſſigning, among others, the following reaſon: " As we may " hope ſoon to be aided by the preſence of Sir Eyre Coote,
" I ſhall be better pleaſed to wait his arrival, than to " propoſe any decided operations for which there is not " any very urgent cauſe." And it appears that a letter was agreed to be written to General Stibbert, in the terms of this corrected motion, though we find recorded on the ſame conſultation, and have placed in the ſame Appendix,
No. 181, a joint Minute of Meſſrs. Francis and Wheler, containing their reaſons for refuſing their aſſent to it.

See Col. Goddard's letter, No. 179.

Appx. No. 180.

No. 180.

And your Committee find, that Mr. Francis thought it proper to offer ſome remarks on Colonel Goddard's probable ſituation, and to ſubmit a propoſal relative to his future deſtination, as the Governor General had not, in conſequence of the late intelligence, recommended any orders or conditional inſtructions to be ſent to him.
The motion was as follows:

Appx. No. 182.

" That if at the time when Colonel Goddard ſhall re" ceive the preſent orders, he ſhall not have arrived at " Surat, Broach, or Bombay, or if he ſhall have been " obliged to halt at Barampore, or at any other ſtation
" in the Maratta dominions, he do immediately retire
" to Berar, and demand a paſſage from the Rajah
" through his country, towards the coaſt of Oriſſa; or " if he ſhall have been already obliged to retire into
" Berar, that he continue his march towards the coaſt
" of Oriſſa, and the Chicacole Circar."

Ben. Sec. Conf. 4 March 1779. No. 182.

And your Committee obſerve, that Mr. Francis declared, that in the terms of this motion he intended to adopt the meaſures recommended by the Preſidency of Fort Saint George, and probably there propoſed by Sir Eyre Coote. And it appears to your Committee, that the Governor General, among the objections which he exhibited againſt the propoſition, contended, that they had not yet received ſuch authentic information of all the circumſtances of the late diſaſtrous event, as might warrant their taking any active part with ſafety; that the aid required by the Preſidency of Fort Saint George, was not neceſſarily to be furniſhed by Colonel Goddard; that the ſtep adviſed might tend to render abortive any negociation which Colonel Goddard might poſſibly have returned with Moodajee Boolla; and that " the propoſed route of the " detachment would be through a conſiderable part of " the dominions of Nizam Ally Cawn; and it was not " to be expected, from the known and avowed diſpo-
" ſition of that Prince, that he would conſent to their " paſſage; nor was it a time to furniſh him with a pre" text for open hoſtilities againſt them." It appears that much debate afterwards enſued; when Mr. Francis pro-poſed to leave out the latter part of his motion, and to retain ſo much of it only as might occaſion the retreat of the detachment from a ſituation of danger into the country of a friend. But this too we perceive to have been overruled by the majority, after much diſcuſſion of the force and purport of the orders Colonel Goddard had already received, and of the probable motives which had induced him to proſecute his march towards the other ſide of India. It ſhould however be remarked, that Mr. Francis argued upon a ſuppoſition that the Bombay army had ſurrendered at diſcretion, and were therefore hoſtages in the hands of the enemy, whoſe treatment of them might be much influenced by the advance or recall of Colonel Goddard's detachment. But it is alſo to be obſerved, that at a ſubſequent meeting of the Board, he delivered in another Minute upon the ſame ſubject, in anſwer to the Governor General's obſervations on the uncertainty of the real ſtate of affairs under the Bombay Government; and reflected upon the weakneſs of thoſe arguments, when adduced as objections " to conditional orders,
" expreſſing clearly the ſeveral caſes in which they were
" or were not to operate."

No. 182.

No. 182.

Ben. Sec. Conf. 8 March 1779. Appx. No. 182.

But your Committee having placed all theſe documents in length in the Appendix, No. 182, deſire, in juſtice to their ſeveral authors, to recommend to the Houſe an attentive peruſal of them; for which we acknowledge and adopt an additional motive, in the following reaſons urged by Mr. Francis on the introduction of the preſent Minute:—" But ſince I am convinced, that the " late political meaſures of this Government, and of " the Preſidency of Bombay, will ere long be the ſubject
" of a parliamentary enquiry, and that every part of our " proceedings, which has occaſioned or led to the late " diſaſter, will be ſubmitted to the judgment of the " public, it highly concerns my reputation, if not my " ſafety, that my conduct through the whole of the " tranſaction ſhould be fairly repreſented, and in no " inſtance miſunderſtood."

Dated 27 Jan. 1st and 5th of Feb. 1779. Appx. No. 183. Bom. Sec. Conſ. 22 March 1779. No. 183.

But your Committee find, that Colonel Goddard, in ſeveral letters, informed the Governor General and Council of his advanced march beyond Berampore into the Maratta dominions, without having received any certain intelligence from Bombay, or from the Army Committee, by which he might deciſively regulate his judgment on the preferable expediency of any particular object for the direction of his detachment, though ſeveral reports of an unfavourable nature had reached him; that deeming it however neceſſary to make an early and determined choice, he had, on full deliberation, and for reaſons which he aſſigned, reſolved to haſten forward with all expedition to Surat, and he had been confirmed in this reſolution by a ſubſequent, though ſtill inexplicit letter from the Select Committee of Bombay.

Ben. Sec. Conſ. 15th Mar. 1779. Appx. No. 184.

And it appears, that on the 15th of March, when no accounts immediately from that Preſidency had yet reached Calcutta, Mr. Francis took occaſion to make ſome jealous remarks on their ſilence, conceiving it, as well as this letter of the 22d January to Colonel Goddard, to be ominous of an intention, ſhould he reach Bombay, to break their laſt engagement with the Poonah Government, and to renew the war at all events; and under that impreſſion he moved, " that a letter ſhould be im- " mediately written to the Preſident and Select Com- " mittee, to expreſs concern and ſurpriſe at their pro- " found ſilence on the late operations and defeat of their " army, and to prohibit them in the moſt preciſe and " poſitive terms, and as they would anſwer the contrary " at their peril, from commencing or renewing hoſtilities " againſt the Marattas, or any other Indian Prince or " Power, except in their own immediate defence, with- " out our conſent and approbation firſt had and obtain- " ed."

No. 184.

This motion however was objected to and negatived by the Governor General and Mr. Barwell, on the ground of its being only a repetition of orders already ſent under the 4th of February, and premature, becauſe in all probability more authentic and circumſtantial accounts would arrive in a few days.

Ben. Sec. Conſ. 18 Mar. 1779. Appx. No. 185.

And your Committee find, that on the 18th advices were at laſt received from the Preſident and Select Committee of Bombay, dated 3d February, giving a ſhort relation previous to a more ample diſpatch promiſed by an expreſs veſſel, of the mere fact of the convention, with an attendant remark on the invalidity of the ſtipulations agreed to; and giving notice, that they ſhould endeavour to treat with the Marattas on another footing; and had directed Colonel Goddard to march to Surat.

Appx. No. 186.

And we obſerve, that Mr. Francis hereupon renewed his motion made on the 15th, alleging, that from the terms of this letter, he found himſelf confirmed in his idea that the Select Government of Bombay " had " it in contemplation to renew hoſtilities with the Ma- " rattas, and it was for that purpoſe they had ordered " Colonel Goddard to proceed to Surat." But the Governor General and Mr. Barwell would not allow that this reſolution was to be deduced from the letter, or any thing more than a diſavowal of the treaty, as far as regarded the ſurrender of their poſſeſſions, which might indeed draw on into a renewal of hoſtilities, but of the propriety or juſtice of which the Superior Council were as yet incompetent to judge, till they ſhould ſee the treaty and the written declaration of the Military Committee—They therefore put a negative on the motion. And your Committee obſerve, that the Governor General at this time propoſed a draft of a letter to Colonel Goddard, which the Board acquieſced in (with an expreſs reſervation of former opinions) and in which they aſſured him of their approbation of his conduct in proceeding to Surat; and gave him a diſcretionary power of employing his detachment in the ſervice and protection of the Preſidency of Bombay, with a caution not to involve himſelf or their Government in the reſponſibility of the acts of that Preſidency, entirely independent of which he was to conſider the authority of his command.

Appx. No. 187.

Appx. No. 188.

And it appears by a letter from Colonel Goddard, dated February 9th, and received a few days after the preceding diſpatch was ſent to him, that he gave reaſons for a perſeverance in his reſolution of marching forward, notwithſtanding he had received from the Peiſhwa's vackeel the inſtructions of the Military Committee for his return to Calcutta, thinking himſelf releaſed from the obligation of obedience to them by their letter of a ſubſequent date, before received; and thereby alſo relieved from any alarm on account of the perſonal ſafety of the Gentlemen left as hoſtages.—That he was anxious for a knowledge of the meaſures which the Superior Council might decide upon, in conſequence of the late unfortunate event, as the ſteps to be purſued would reſt ſolely upon them in the probable inability of the Bombay Government to form at preſent any plan of military operations. It is proper here to obſerve, that Mr. Wheler at this time delivered in a Minute, in which he enforced a repreſentation of the neceſſity of adopting pacific meaſures, by a melancholy picture of the general poſture of the Company's affairs in India; and he particularly dwelt on the alarming ſituation of the Preſidency of Fort Saint George, to which he thought this Government could not in ſafety or prudence refuſe a ſupply of money, though it would be proper to recommend the ſtricteſt economy to them, accompanied by an aſſurance that there was no probability of being able to continue ſuch ſupplies in future; and that they muſt exert their own efforts, and regulate their expences accordingly. And it appears, that a promiſe of 15 lacks was made to the Preſidency by the Governor General and Council, though your Committee find that five of them were afterwards witheld, in conſequence of the reduced ſtate of the Bengal treaſury by the loſs of the Stafford, on board of which was ſent 10 lacks for the uſe of that Preſidency.

An account of the reſolutions and proceedings of the Board upon the partial information which they had hitherto received from Bombay, appears to have been tranſmitted to the Court of Directors in a ſecret letter, dated 29th of March 1779. But your Committee find, that in the beginning of the enſuing month, when Lieutenant General Sir Eyre Coote had taken his place in Council, the Governor General thought it neceſſary, on account of the advanced ſeaſon of the year, to wait no longer for more circumſtantial intelligence before they proceeded to conſider of ſuch meaſures as might be preſent ſituation of their affairs, it might [illegible] upon; and with that intent he laid [illegible] the 5th of April, a long Minute [illegible] conſideration of the ſubject. And it appears, that theſe propoſitions were agreed to by the Board, and that letters were accordingly writ-ten; all which will be found in the Appendix, No. 191. And your Committee have thought it proper to inſert therein, for the obſervation of the Houſe, the letters previouſly received from Moodajee Booſla and his Mi-niſters, upon the ſubject of the propoſed alliance with him, and upon the event of the Poonah expedition, as alſo a letter received from Siccaram Baboo, on the 28th March 1779.

Ben. Sec. Perf. Corr. No. 40. Appx. No. 191.

And as it appears to your Committee, that in conſe-quence of theſe reſolutions of the Board, letters were written to the Maratta Durbar, and to Madajee Scindia, in diſavowal of the Convention Treaty, aſſuring them however of a diſpoſition to accommodation on the part of the Bengal Government, if they would give it on theirs a proper encouragement, by relinquiſhing any claims ariſing from the late ineffectual engagements, and by a promiſe of ſeparating themſelves from the French, either for traffic or otherwiſe; we have placed theſe letters in the Appendix, No. 192, to which we refer the Houſe for further examination of their particular con-tents. And as it alſo appaers that the Berar Rajah and the Nizam of the Decan were alſo informed, by letters from the Governor General, of the ſentiments and reſo-lutions of the Superior Council, in regard to the late tranſactions between the Marattas and the Preſidency of Bombay, your Committee have thought it proper to put them too in the Appendix, No. 192, for the inſpec-tion of the Houſe.

Appx. No. 192. See Ben. Sec. Perf. Corr. dated 6 April 1779, No. 15, 16—April 28th, 18—May 7th, 19—6 April, 14—12 May, 21—3 June 23, 1779.

Your Committee find, that on the 12th of April a letter was received from Bombay, accompanied with a copy of the proceedings promiſed in their former letters of the 12th and 13th of January. Of theſe we having before taken notice, it will be neceſſary in this place only to make a reference to them in the former Ap-pendix, No. 130, &c. And your Committee further obſerve, by ſeveral letters received from Colonel God-dard, that he arrived at Surat on the 25th February, and had encamped his troops, whoſe good behaviour he highly recommended, upon a convenient and healthy ſpot of ground, two miles above the city, upon the banks of the river: that having afterwards received a letter from the Select Committee of Bombay, expreſſing their deſire to ſee him, he ſet out for that Preſidency, and arrived there on the 15th of March, when he informed the Select Board of ſuch matters as might explain to them the nature of the intended connection with Moodajee Booſla: that in the beginning of April he received his credentials, appointing him Miniſter to the Court of Poonah, but had deferred appriſing the Durbar of the powers with which he was inveſted, till the receipt of further orders from the Superior Board; in expectation of which, in conſequence of their repreſentations tranſ-mitted by Mr. Horſley, the Select Committee of Bombay alſo had ſuſpended all operations: that during the receſs from public buſineſs, he propoſed joining the troops at Surat, in order to put them in a ſtate of readineſs for employment in ſuch ſervice as he hoped might be ſoon required of them.

Ben Sec. Conſ. 3 May 1779. Letters dated 26 Feb. 1779. 3d and 22 March, 4 April, 1779. Appx. No. 193.

And your Committee find, that the Governor General, on 3d of May, notified to the Board the arrival of Mr. Horſely, who, it has been before obſerved, was deputed from the Bombay Preſidency to give the Superior Board an exact information of the late tranſactions and events of their Government. And it appears that he brought with him a letter from the Select Committee, dated 4 April, in which they referred the Board to a variety of documents contained in their diſpatches, and alſo to Mr. Horſely himſelf, for more complete and circum-ſtantial information, and by which the Board might be enabled to decide on the conduct of their Government, which they declared had been guided " by the beſt of " their judgments, according to the ſituation of affairs " and the powers given to them."

Appx. No. 194. Ben. Sec. Conſ. 3 May 1779.

No. 194.

It further appears, that they laviſhed the higheſt en-comiums on the judicious and deciſive behaviour of Co-lonel Goddard, whom they had admitted to have a de-liberative voice in their councils; and being happy to find his conduct had alſo met with the approbation of the Superior Government, they begged to ſolicit for him from them ſome diſtinguiſhed mark of their mutual ſenſe of his ſervices.

Your Committee obſerve, that the Board employed ſeveral days in reading all the papers ſubmitted to their conſideration by the Governor and Select Committee of Bombay; and ſuch of them as have not been already placed in a former Appendix, No. 130, to which we refer, are put in another, and will conſequently attract the notice of the Houſe.

Appx No. 195.

Your Committee find, that on the 24th of May, the Governor General laid before the Board an arrangement of the ſeveral queſtions, which they might propoſe to themſelves, as ſubjects of diſcuſſion, and which he had taken the pains to extract and put in order from the contents of the voluminous diſpatches lately received from the Government of Bombay; and that he proceeded afterwards to make his obſervations on the principal circumſtances of the various matters in queſtion, as in-troductory to the deciſion and directions which they were to pronounce upon them. Among theſe we find prin-cipally, that he thought their diſavowal of the Treaty of Convention to be ſtrictly juſtifiable in every particular, except the ſeparate article of ſtipulation in favour of Madajee Scindia, which he found himſelf compelled in conſcience and in duty to declare ought to be ratified by them, unleſs Madajee Scindia ſhould have forfeited his right by any ſubſequent act. The remaining hope therefore was, that he might be prevailed upon to depart from the letter of his ſtipulation, and to accept of what he might deem an equivalent for it: that the ſeaſon and circumſtances of affairs ſhould prohibit them from loading the paſt conduct of the Preſident and Select Committee with any harſh and unoperating reproaches, but ſhould rather induce them to excite their zeal to exert themſelves for the retrieving of their paſt misfortunes; and to arm them with means adequate to that end, reſtricting their powers where the object was determinate, and permitting a more liberal extenſion of them in caſes too variable and uncertain for poſitive injunctions. And in the draft of the letter which, we obſerve, he then propoſed to convey their inſtructions to the Preſidency of Bombay, he ſuggeſted a general caution, to which their ſtricteſt attention ſhould be required; "that their engagements ſhould be offenſive only for the objects of "their immediate operations, and in all other reſpects "purely defenſive." The whole diſcuſſion of a ſubject ſo important as this is, will of courſe be attentively examined by the Houſe. And your Committee having therefore thought it proper to place this Minute, and propoſition of the Governor General, in the Appendix, No. 196, together with the ſeveral Minutes and propoſitions of the other Members of the Board, will confine ourſelves in the body of the Report to a very conciſe ſtatement of the moſt ſtriking points. With this view, we ſhall here only take notice of the principal objects recommended to the obſervance of the Select Committee in the very words of the Governor General's recapitulation: "To ſum up what we have written; our firſt "deſire is to obtain peace on the terms propoſed by our "inſtructions to Colonel Goddard on the 5th of April, "and it is only in the event of the failure of this deſign, "that we have formed the ſubſequent inſtructions, or "will allow of their operations. In theſe, the plan of "military operations recommended by your Preſident, "is to have the firſt place, with its dependant engage"ments with the Guicawars; the next in order is the "negociation with Moodajee Boofla; and the laſt, the "propoſed engagement with Madajee Scindia."

The execution of the projected treaty of peace with the Poonah Miniſtry, and the negociation of alliance with Moodajee Boofla, were to be left to the ſole management of Colonel Goddard; whom it was recommended to the Preſident and Select Committee to conſult upon all proper occaſions, as the Superior Council would be glad, by inveſting him with the chief command of the Bombay eſtabliſhment, whenever that office ſhould be vacant, to give him an effective voice in the Councils of that Government.

Appx. No. 196. Your Committee obſerve, that Sir Eyre Coote delivered in a Minute upon this occaſion; the principal part of which we have already adverted to, and ſhall therefore here ſimply remark, that he beſtowed the higheſt commendations upon Colonel Goddard, whom however he did not think it in their power to appoint to the chief command of the Bombay eſtabliſhment, though he could wiſh to have him conſulted upon all military and political points. He declared himſelf averſe from ever concurring in the meaſure of deſtroying the Bramin uſurpation, by reſtoring the original Ram Rajah Government in the perſon of Moodajee Boofla, conceiving the real intereſts of the Company to be concerned in keeping up diviſions among the Maratta Powers. He remarked, that the natural diminution of Colonel Goddard's force, and ſome ſymptoms of diſaffection among the Sepoys, made it neceſſary to loſe no time in exerting their utmoſt vigour to ſupport their military reputation; and he pointedly recommended an alliance with the Country Powers, eſpecially with Hyder Ally, whoſe more particular intereſt it was to join them in any hoſtile attempts againſt the Maratta State. In regard to the plan of military operations, he thought that the Commander in Chief, who was principally reſponſible, ſhould have a diſcretionary power to adopt, or not, Governor Hornby's plan, as he might think moſt adviſable. And on the queſtion of ſupply of treaſure, he was willing to make ample grants, if proper reſtrictions were provided for the particular uſe of it.

Your Committee find, that Mr. Francis alſo gave in a Minute, which appears, as he profeſſed it, to be an examination and opinion upon the reſolutions and tranſactions of the Bombay Government, both in the Council and in the field, relative to the Poonah expedition; and he ſeems therein to agree materially with the ſentiments of Sir Eyre Coote. But your Committee further obſerve, that Mr. Francis alſo preſented ſome propoſitions to the conſideration of the Board, which he recommended to be made part of their letter to Bombay. Theſe, which are placed with the other papers in the Appendix, No. 196, regard only the circumſtance of reference from the Select Committee of Bombay to the Superior Council, on the military conduct of Colonel Egerton and Colonel Cockburn; and convey opinions of condemnation on the proceedings of the Committee in reſpect to the treatment of thoſe Gentlemen.

It appears on the contrary, that Mr. Barwell avoided any diſcuſſion of the queſtion on the demerits of individuals, and meant to confine himſelf to the important ſubjects of peace or war; on which he delivered an opinion correſponding chiefly with that of the Governor General, except that he ſeemed, in the point of alliance with Moodajee Boofla, to incline more to an agreement with Sir Eyre Coote, with whom alſo he concurred in adviſing the Brevet of Brigadier General to be given to Colonel Goddard.

Your Committee find recorded upon the Conſultations of the 31ſt of May, 7th and 10th of June, ſeveral Minutes and propoſitions on this important ſubject, introduced by the different Members of the Board; in referring to which the Houſe will perceive what alterations and amendments the Governor General was induced to offer, in order to qualify and accommodate the different opinions which had been formed on the original draft of the letter to Bombay: they will obſerve the nature and the reaſons, the terms and the extent, of the oppoſition or approbation given to them; they will ſee and conſider the arguments of Mr. Francis upon the neceſſity of pacific meaſures, from an expoſition of the charges attending a war eſtabliſhment, and the avowed ſtate of poverty of the Company's treaſuries. Appx. No. 197. Ben. Sec. Cons. 31 May, 7 and 10 June, 1779.

From a further examination of theſe Conſultations, the Houſe will have an opportunity of regarding the draft of a letter to Bombay, propoſed by Mr. Francis, and rejected by the majority; and they may review the ſcrutiny and deciſion which the ſeveral Members of the Board paſſed upon each paragraph of the amended letter drawn up by the Governor General, till on the 14th, the further corrected copy was entered in the form herein under tranſcribed, and being approved by the majority, was ordered to be diſpatched to the Preſidency of Bombay. Ben. Sec. Cons. 14 June 1779.

"Gentlemen,

"We have received your letter of the [illegible] "with its enclоſures, by the hands of [illegible]

"We do not think it neceſſary to enter [illegible] "of your proceedings, but [illegible] "enquiries to the choice of [illegible] "conduce to retrieve their unhappy [illegible] "ing the paſt to the ſcrutiny of a [illegible] "effectual authority.

"Having given full powers to [illegible] Goddard to "negociate and conclude a treaty of peace with the "Maratta Government, and having no cauſe to alter "the terms which we have preſcribed in our inſtructions "for that purpoſe, we have only to repeat that we look "to the iſſue of that commiſſion as our primary object, "and the termination of all our political views on your "ſide of India, if it ſhall prove ſucceſsful.

"But if the Miniſters ſhall reject the propoſals which "we have ordered to be made to them, and ſhall reduce "us to the neceſſity of defending the rights and intereſts

" of the Company by an open war, we leave a latitude of " action to Colonel Goddard, under your inſtructions, to " avail himſelf of the ſituation which fortune may " preſent to him; and if a war ſhould be indiſpenſably " continued, it muſt alſo reſt with him, who is reſpon- " ſible to us for his conduct, to adopt any part or the " whole of Mr. Hornby's plan laid down in his Minutes " of the 30th of March, or not at all, as he may think " moſt adviſable for promoting the diſtreſs of the enemy. " Should this plan be carried into execution, we require " your ſtricteſt attention to the following cautions: that " your engagements ſhall be offenſive only for the ob- " jects of your immediate operations, and in all other " reſpects purely defenſive; that your engagements with " the Guicawar family ſhall be made with the head of it, " and with him excluſively; that you ſhall not aſſume " a mediation between the brothers, or take any part " whatever in their domeſtic diſputes, further than to " ſupport the party in alliance with the Company, and " his poſſeſſions againſt foreign invaſion; and that you " do not commit the dignity of the Company, or pledge " the national faith, in formal treaties with perſons of " rank or power unſuitable to ſuch a diſtinction.

" We are ſenſible of the attention which you have " ſhewn to our views with the Government of Berar, " concerning the overtures lately made to Moodajee " Boofla by Colonel Goddard, and in your reſolutions to " avoid whatever might again interfere with this nego- " ciation. We confeſs, we at this time entertain little " hope of his concurring with our deſigns; he will wait " for proofs of our ſuperiority before he will hazard the " conſequences of a decided connection with us; and " every offer made to him while he is under the in- " fluence of ſuch a policy, will but ſerve to increaſe his " reſerve, as he will naturally conſtrue it to proceed " from the conſciouſneſs of our own inability to ſupport " ourſelves without foreign aſſiſtance; and that it is " an additional motive for our preferring a ſcheme of " military operations, practicable by our own forces, " unincumbered with the weight of a timid ally. If " notwithſtanding Moodajee Boofla ſhall have anſwered " the letters which have been written to him, by a " willingneſs to accept of the proffered alliance, we " ſhall leave it to be concluded under the inſtructions " already given in charge to Colonel Goddard. If on " the contrary, as we expect, he ſhall directly refuſe, " or heſitate, or make new references to us, we have in " ſuch caſe ordered Colonel Goddard to break off the " negociation.

" We think ourſelves ſtrictly juſtifiable in refuſing to " ratify even the ſmalleſt tittle of the treaty or conven- " tion of Worgam; and we have already intimated our " ſentiments on this head to Colonel Goddard, and given " him our final inſtructions upon it; but, as we had " not at that time before us the ſeparate ſecret engage- " ments entered into with Madajee Scindia, we could " not take it into our conſideration, nor judge of the " obligation we were under to expreſs our ſenſe of his " ſervices at the inſtant we diſclaimed the acts of the " Committee. Though we abſolutely deny any vali- " dity to the acts of the Committee, and will not admit " of any pretenſions founded on thoſe acts, yet they " cannot cancel any rights, which have their baſis in " eſſential and intrinſic benefits reaped by our nation. " This right we muſt acknowledge to be poſſeſſed by " Madajee Scindia, and muſt therefore declare, that, " unleſs he ſhould have forfeited it by any ſubſequent " act, he his entitled to a full compenſation for any " diſappointment he may ſuffer by our denial of the " acts of the Committee.

" We have therefore inſtructed Colonel Goddard " to expreſs the ſenſe in which this Government is " pleaſed to regard the ſervices of Madajee Scindia at " Worgaum, by offering him ſuch a gratification as may " be afforded him by your Government, or from means " which he may poſſeſs from the operations of war, in " caſe peace is not concluded upon the inſtructions he is " already furniſhed with.

" In the event of a war, if Madajee Scindia ſhall be " diſpoſed to take part with us, we have authorized " Colonel Goddard to enter into ſuch engagements with " him as ſhall not be contrary to any before concluded, " and which he may judge moſt adviſable; making " our future ſecurity, peace, and an adequate revenue, " his chief and indiſpenſable objects, and the grounds of " our engagements with him.

" To ſum up what we have written; the firſt deſire " is to obtain peace on the terms propoſed by our in- " ſtructions to Colonel Goddard of the 5th of April, and " it is only in the event of the failure of this deſign, that " we have formed the ſubſequent inſtructions, or will " allow of their operation.

" The execution of the projected treaty of peace with " the Poonah Miniſters, we leave to the ſole charge of " Colonel Goddard, according to the inſtructions which " we have already given him.

" The ſeparate negociation with Madajee Scindia bears " ſuch a connection with the foregoing, that we have " therefore thought it neceſſary to leave this alſo to his " charge. The negociation and treaty of alliance with " Moodajee Boofla we alſo leave to the ſole management " of Colonel Goddard, in the authority of his inſtruc- " tions of the 16th of November, until the period of " their ſuſpenſion, by the refuſal, or ſuch heſitation of " Moodajee Boofla as he ſhall deem ſufficient to warrant " his declaring the negociation ſuſpended. The future " renewal of this negociation we reſerve to be deter- " mined by our expreſs orders, but without revoking " the credentials and inſtructions already granted to " Colonel Goddard reſpecting it. In all other nego- " ciations, treaties, and plans of military operations, it " is our wiſh ſo to blend the powers of your Govern- " ment with our own, in the direction of them, and in " every formal or occaſional inſtrument which they may " require for their ratification, as to preſerve the credit " and diſtinct reſponſibility of both, and to make both " the pledges for the faithful obſervance of them. For " this purpoſe we need not recommend that Colonel " Goddard be conſulted, when his preſence or the nature " of the ſubjects will admit of it, on all meaſures which " have a relation to our preſent inſtructions, as you " have been already pleaſed to allow him a deliberate " voice in your Councils; and we are happy to find that " you are ſo well ſatisfied with his conduct, and his " ready diſpoſition to aſſiſt in the execution of your de- " ſigns, as to leave us little occaſion to lay down a clearer " line for the employment of the forces under his com- " mand, than that we have already deſcribed.

" We have directed Colonel Goddard to execute what- " ever you ſhall think practicable, and which ſhall not " be contrary to our inſtructions, or to any exiſting en- " gagements; a caution which we hope will be unneceſ- " ſary, but with which we do not conſider ourſelves at " liberty to diſpenſe, while the principal reſponſibility " reſts with us; and for the ſame reaſon we require, " that all treaties which ſhall be concluded by you in " virtue of theſe inſtructions, be referred to this Go- " vernment, for its final ſanction and formal ratification " of them; and that a clauſe be inſerted in every treaty " you conclude, to that effect.

" We ſhall heartily join with you, in recommending " Colonel Goddard to the Court of Directors, for the " appointment of Commander in Chief at your Pre- " ſidency on the firſt vacancy; and in the intermediate " time we think it abſolutely neceſſary, in the preſent " diſtreſſed ſituation that the military upon your eſta- " bliſhment are reduced to, that he ſhould have the rank " given him of Brigadier, in order to enable him to " carry on the public ſervice with more weight and dig- " nity; for which purpoſe we have granted him a Brevet " Commiſſion of Brigadier General for the ſervice on " which he is now employed."

See Report of Committee of Correſpondence.

It may be proper here to remark, that the recommendation of Colonel Goddard to the Court of Directors had its effect, and procured him the appointment ſolicited for, and a confirmation of advanced rank.

Your Committee obſerve, that all objections and oppoſition to this letter did not then ceaſe; for, beſides a very earneſt proteſt from Mr. Francis, grounded on a variety of reaſons, which may be conſidered in the Appendix, No. 198, and which drew from Mr. Barwell an immediate explanation of a paſſage in his former Minute, and from Sir Eyre Coote a reply on a ſubſequent day, to which Mr. Francis then gave an anſwer, we perceive that Mr. Horſley, who had applied before to the Board for permiſſion of general acceſs to the records of the Governor General and Council reſpecting Bombay, and ſeems not to have been well ſatisfied with the refuſal of his demand in its full extent, tranſmitted a letter on the 14th June to the Board, wherein he aſſured them, that though the Bombay Government were unanimous in wiſhing to have the line of their conduct reſolved on for them by the Superior Council, laid down as clearly as poſſible, and were determined to give it every aſſiſtance in their power, yet he thought it neceſſary to interfere with his repreſentations, that the reſolutions of the Board, in continuing or extending the powers conferred on Colonel Goddard, might not be inconſiſtent with thoſe reſerved to the Government of Bombay by Act of Parliament, and eſpecially entruſted to the Select Committee by the Court of Directors; and he entreated to be heard whenever thoſe points might come under conſideration. And it appears, that having been admitted to peruſe the letter addreſſed to the Preſident and Select Committee of Bombay, and being indulged with a further permiſſion on his requeſt to carry a draft of it home with him, he returned it on the 18th, with a long paper of remarks, expreſſive of much diſſatisfaction and complaint, and even of indignation, at the reſolutions and inſtructions contained in it, conſidering them as direct encroachments upon the powers of that Government. And it further appears, that the Governor General hereupon thought it proper to take ſome notice in diſapprobation of Mr. Horſley's arguments, as well as of the manner in which they were conveyed, and propoſed a reſolution to the Board, which they confirmed, that the Secretary ſhould be deſired to inform Mr. Horſley, "that they did "not require his animadverſions upon their meaſures, "although they ſhould have been pleaſed to have re- "ceived any lights from him which he could have af- "forded them, and for which they were referred to him "by the Preſident and Select Committee, upon the ſub- "ject of affairs at Bombay."

Sec. Conſ. 21 June 1779. Appx. No. 200.

Appx. No. 201.

To this rebuke was added a notification, that their records would no longer be open to him, and that he was at liberty to return to Bombay "whenever he had "fulfilled the terms or objects of his miſſion."

It ſhould be obſerved, that a letter of inſtructions to Colonel Goddard, propoſed by the Governor General, was acquieſced in by the Board, on the ſuppoſition that they correſponded with the contents of the letter to Bombay, which they will be found to do.

Having thus explained to the Houſe the ultimate reſolutions and orders of the Superior Government, on which were to depend the re-eſtabliſhment of peace, or re-commencement of war with the Ruling Powers of the Maratta Empire, your Committee think it proper to introduce in this place, a view of the ſtate of their revenues, and of the military force on their eſtabliſhment, at that intereſting period.

Memorandum. No Diſtribution of the above Troops was received.

Ben. Sec. Conf. 28th June 1779. Appx. No. 202.

It appears to your Committee, that Colonel Goddard wrote to the Governor General and Council from Surat, on the 20th of May, and that his letter reached them on the 21ſt of June; and that he therein informed them of his own ſituation while attending the arrival of their inſtructions before he entered upon any active meaſures, and the diſſentions which, by confirmed advices from Poonah, he was convinced ſubſiſted among the principal leaders of the Maratta ſtate, whereby a favourable opportunity might perhaps be opened to them for a ſucceſsful interference in the affairs of that empire, conducive to the reeſtabliſhment of their own; that without looking to ſchemes of conqueſt ſo extenſive as the ſettling the adminiſtration, or diſpoſing of the chief authority of the Maratta empire, many advantages might be taken of its confuſion, and particularly in the quarter near which he was ſtationed, namely, the Guzerat province, whoſe ſituation and preſent ſtate of divided government expoſed it an eaſy prey to an invader.

Letter dated 2 June 1779, on Ben. Sec. Conf. 2 Auguſt 1779. Appx. No. 203. Letter to the Peiſhwa, &c. Appx. No. 204

And it appears, that on the receipt of the inſtructions from the Governor General and Council, incloſed in their letter of the 5th of April, the Colonel immediately addreſſed the Peiſhwa and Nanna Furneſe on the ſubject of his appointment to negociate with them; but he at the ſame time obſerved to the Board, that he apprehended much difficulty in ſettling the diſpoſal of Ragoba, whom it could not be expected the Miniſters would ever conſent to reſtore into their hands, and without which however he could not foreſee any ſure proviſion for his perſonal ſafety.

Ben. Sec. Conf. 8 July 1779. Appx. No. 205.

But your Committee find by another letter from him, dated the 6th of June, and received at Calcutta the 8th of July, that a moſt unexpected event had fallen out, which was likely, by removing this obſtacle, to cooperate with the other circumſtances above-mentioned in favour of the Company's affairs in that quarter, and to lead to a more advantageous accommodation with the ruling powers of the Poonah Government. And we perceive that with obſervations of this nature, Colonel Goddard accompanied the intelligence of Ragonaut Row's eſcape from the cuſtody of Madajee Scindia, and of his application to him for an aſylum and protection, which he had thought himſelf authorized, in good policy and from the ſpirit of the Board's inſtructions of the 5th of April, to afford him, and to promiſe that he would write to the Governor General and Council for further orders how to act upon this occaſion. And your Committee obſerve, that this immediate anſwer was returned to Colonel Goddard by the Board: "We entirely ap- "prove of the offer you have made to Ragonaut Row, and "direct that you continue to afford him the protection "of your camp, provided he ſhall not forfeit his right "to it by any act of infidelity, or attempt to defeat the "effects of your negociations, to which you will give "your entire attention without regard to any other con- "ſideration. For the reſt, we leave you to act under "our inſtructions of the 5th of April, in which we ſee "no cauſe to make any alterations on account of this "event."

Letter 12th June 1779. Appx. No. 206.

Information of theſe occurrences appears alſo to have been tranſmitted by the Preſident and Select Committee of Bombay; who at the ſame time acquainted the Board, that in order to avoid any obſtruction to the negociations which the Superior Government had been pleaſed to commit to General Goddard, they had ſent directions to the Chief of Surat to deſire Ragoba to ſeek an aſylum in ſome other place, unleſs the General ſhould think proper to receive him, and be reſponſible for the conſequences. And we obſerve, that the Board returned an anſwer to the Preſident and Select Committee in ſimilar terms to thoſe which they had made uſe of to General Goddard.

No. 206.

See Ben. Sec. Conf. 2 Auguſt 1779. Appx. No. 207.

It appears, that more particular accounts of Ragoba's eſcape, and more minute obſervations on certain advantageous points, which the poſſeſſion of his perſon would put in their power to inſiſt upon in addition to thoſe preſcribed by the inſtructions of the Superior Board, were communicated by General Goddard on the 12th of June, before which time Ragoba was arrived at Surat, and had paid a viſit to the General, bringing with him his adopted ſon, Amrut Row, and a child of four years old, born to him ſince the adoption of the other.

The conduct of Madajee Scindia in taking ſo little precaution for ſecuring the perſon of Ragoba, ſeems to have been a ſubject of aſtoniſhment to General Goddard; who obſerved, that by accounts from Poonah, the Maratta Chiefs were greatly incenſed with him, and declared they ſhould conſider him as reſponſible for that loſs. And we perceive, that General Goddard thought it properupon this occaſion to write again to the Peiſhwa, informing him and his Miniſters of this event, and of his deſire to have a confidential perſon ſent from Poonah, with whom he might adjuſt all matters of difference, as well with regard to the perſonal intereſts of Ragoba, as to the more immediate concerns of the Company.

Letter, dated 12th June. Appx. No. 208.

It is obſervable, that the General, after giving an account to the Select Committee of Bombay, of the circumſtances of Ragoba's eſcape and retreat till he came under the protection of his camp, preferred a complaint againſt the Chief of Broach for having received him in that city, and thereby preſumed to encroach upon the reſerved powers of the Supreme Council, and to offer an affront to them in his diſrepect ſhewn to their Miniſter. And your Committee have remarked, that Mr. Gambier had taken ſome pains to perſuade Ragoba not to advance to Surat, till inſtructions could be received from the Preſident and Select Committee; and obſerved in his letter to them, that he believed Ragoba would himſelf, if he thought his buſineſs could be effectually done by them, without throwing himſelf into the hands of General Goddard, prefer much the putting the management of his affairs under their directions.

Appx. No. 209.

Letter from Mr. Gambier, dated 6 and 9 June. Appx. No. 209.

And your Committee find, that General Goddard addreſſed another letter upon this ſubject to the Superior Board on the 18th June, incloſing one from Ragonaut Row to the Governor General, and giving an account of the information he had derived, from a conference with him, of the ſtate of parties in the Maratta Government, of his reaſons for delivering himſelf up to Scindia, of his having diſcovered the perfidious intentions of that Chief, and of certain overtures which had been made to him by the Nizam, as an encouragement to attempt his eſcape. And we obſerve, that General Goddard added ſome remarks of his own on this circumſtance, by which he ſought to reconcile it with the probable line of intereſted policy which the Nizam might be ſuppoſed inclinable to purſue; and he further took notice of another ſource of hope in the enmity which Hyder Ally bore to the ruling adminiſtration of the Maratta empire, and in the marks of attachment and favour which he had ſhewn to the perſon and the cauſe of Ragoba. He enforced this obſervation by an account of the late proceedings of the Peiſhwa and Madajee Scindia, who had written to the Preſidency of Bombay, and apprized them of their intentions to march againſt Hyder, and to puniſh him for his inroads upon their country, ſignifying at the ſame time their deſire of ſettling all differences with the Britiſh Government.

Ben. Sec. Conf. 2 Aug. 1779. Appx. No. 210. Do.

And your Committee find, that at this time ſome alarms of a French invaſion were ſtarted by Sir Eyre Coote, from the information he had received of their force and preparatory armaments at the iſlands, which were probably deſigned for an attack upon Bombay; and he thereupon propoſed that the Governments of Fort Saint George and Bombay ſhould be recommended to reinforce General Goddard's army with the following troops:

Ben. Sec. Conf. 2 Aug. 1779. Appx. No. 211.

From Madras, One Battalion of Europeans,
3 Ditto Sepoys,
50 Artillery.
From Bombay, 300 Europeans,
2 Battalions of Sepoys,
100 Artillery.

And

And upon this ſubject he appears to have added the following advice and remarks: "As the works of Pondicherry are now deſtroyed, the quota from Madras may the more eaſily be ſpared. The troops they have at Mahé; 1,100 ſepoys, one company of grenadiers, and 50 artillery, may immediately embark to join General Goddard; the reſt may be completed from the ſouthern ſtations, and will certainly be with him before any operations of the enemy can be commenced.

"The forces of Madras and of this eſtabliſhment are, in my opinion, fully ſufficient to protect our poſſeſſions on this ſide of India; moreover, we are in daily expectation of great addition to our ſtrength from Europe. I therefore alſo recommend that drafts be ſent from hence to complete the original number of General Goddard's detachment."—The debate which enſued hereupon, and the ſeveral Minutes of the Members of Council, as well upon this point as upon a following propoſal made by the Governor General for a letter of inſtructions to General Goddard, on account of the intended reinforcement to him, are all placed in the Appendix, No. 211. And your Committee think it proper to expreſs their particular recommendation to the Houſe, to give them an attentive peruſal, as they ſo very directly treat upon that ſubject, which we eſteem to be the moſt immediate aim and ſcope of our enquiry. It will be therein ſeen how far the opinion of the Commander in Chief was declared to have influenced the judgment of ſome of the other Members to an acquieſcence in his propoſals, and in what terms of explanation the Governor General defined his own intentions, and thoſe of the Board, in recommending to General Goddard (without enjoining him) to acquire the addition of any other advantageous articles beſides thoſe which by his inſtructions of the 5th of April he had been directed to inſiſt upon. The letters of the Superior Council diſpatched in conſequence of theſe reſolutions to the two other Preſidencies, and to General Goddard, are ſubjoined to the other records in the ſame Appendix, and will of courſe be conſidered with them by the Houſe.

No. 211.

No. 211.

And as your Committee obſerve that Mr. Francis delivered a ſubſequent Minute of his diſapprobation to ſome part of the letter to General Goddard and a partial debate afterwards aroſe upon the mode in which the recruits ſhould be ſent from Bengal to join the army at Surat, we have annexed thoſe alſo to the reſt of theſe documents.

Ben. Sec. Conſ. 16th Aug. 1779 Appx. No. 211.

In regard to the advancement of the negotiations with the Marattas, your Committee have found, that on the 13th September the Governor General ſuggeſted the poſſibility, that the Miniſters might have wiſhed and have found means to protract them, and that thereby General Goddard might ſtill remain in a ſtate of ſuſpence; to put an end to which he recommended an immediate direction to him to repeat their offers to the Peiſhwa and Miniſters, and to demand their final determination upon them in the ſpace of twenty-four hours from the time of their being preſented, declaring that their refuſal, or the delay of their anſwer beyond that time, would be conſidered as a declaration of war.

Ben. Sec. Conſ. 13 Sept. 1779. Appx. No. 212.

Inſtructions conformable to the terms of this propoſal appear to have been ſent to General Goddard, and at the ſame time the Select Committee of Bombay were adviſed of them, and deſired to grant them every aid in their power, if he ſhould be reduced to the extremity of engaging in hoſtilities. And by a letter from General Goddard, dated the 15th July, which reached Calcutta a few days after the diſpatch of theſe inſtructions, your Committee obſerve, that he alſo expected to meet with delays in the buſineſs of accommodation, although the language of the Poonah Miniſters, in anſwer to his addreſs, breathed throughout a manifeſt inclination for peace, and in further teſtimony of which they had immediately conſented to ſend a confidential vackeel to him for that purpoſe. He explained many reaſons however why he was diſpoſed to doubt the ſincerity of theſe profeſſions, from the information he had received of Nanna's preparations for war, and his ſolicitude to engage the aſſiſtance of the neighbouring Powers, particularly the Nizam, from whom he had recently received a very favourable anſwer. He declared himſelf therefore particularly anxious for preciſe inſtructions how far, upon a conviction of the duplicity and deceit of the Poonah Government, he ſhould make known a juſt reſentment of their behaviour, the hoſtile part he was authorized to take, and the particular meaſures he was to purſue in conſequence of the political advantages that might ſuggeſt themſelves from the ſituation of affairs already ſubmitted to the conſideration of the Board.

In the reply which the Governor General and Council immediately returned to General Goddard, your Committee perceive, that they referred him to the contents of their letter of the 13th inſtant, and to the tenor of their former inſtructions; but that he might not be at a loſs with reſpect to the plan of his future conduct, they added the following directions: "That you conform literally to thoſe orders in all caſes where they are expreſs; and that in any other, where no proviſion is made, or an option left you to uſe your own diſcretion, you adhere as nearly as poſſible to the ſpirit of them, without waiting the reſult of further references to us."

Appx. No. 214.

In the mean time however the negociations in queſtion appear to have been retarded even beyond expectation, as the agents from Poonah did not arrive at Surat before the middle of Auguſt, when a long converſation enſued on the points of difference between the two Governments. The particulars of this, as tranſmitted by the General to the Superior Board, your Committee have placed in the Appendix, No. 215, to which we deſire to refer the Houſe. We perceive, that the Miniſter's perfect diſpoſition to make peace with the Engliſh was not doubted by the General, though he ſuſpected that the late ſucceſs againſt the Bombay troops had given them hopes of better terms than he had offered to them: doubting therefore whether ſome more conceſſions, and even the perſon of Ragoba, would not be demanded, he had declined conferring upon that head till two preliminary articles, upon the acceptance or refuſal of which the future negociation would depend, were fully adjuſted. The reaſons which induced General Goddard to ſuppoſe that the Maratta Miniſtry was at this time ſolicitous for peace, your Committee find to reſt chiefly upon their avowed or pretended wiſh to be at liberty to check the progreſs of Hyder Ally, and upon the diſſentions ſubſiſting between Nanna and Madajee Scindia, who was become, by the ſupport of the other military officers of the Government, ſince the confinement of Siccaram and Marabah, the only bar to the abſolute power of that Miniſter.

It appears that the General expected to receive anſwers to the letters then diſpatched to Poonah in eight or twelve days, when the reſult of the negociation would be certainly known. But your Committee find, by another letter from him, dated the 12th of September, that being diſappointed of receiving any reply, he thought it expedient to obviate the inconveniencies of further delay, by diſpatching Lalla Nehaul Chund, one of the Maratta agents, expreſs to his maſter, at his own ſolicitation, and on his promiſe to return in twenty days at fartheſt. The opinion which he had formed of Nanna's inclination to make a peace, was not altered, but on the contrary he declared his perſuaſion, that whatever obſtacle might be thrown in their way, would originate from Madajee Scindia, whom, notwithſtanding the ſentiments of the Gentlemen at Bombay, he conſidered as their moſt inveterate foe. And he had thought it moſt conſiſtent with the object of the Board's inſtructions, not to commence any excluſive intercourſe with that Chief, unleſs the anſwers which might arrive from Poonah ſhould point it out for the intereſt of their affairs to do ſo.

Sec. Conſ. 28 October 1779. Appx. No. 216.

Ben. Sec. Com. 29th Nov. 1779. Appx. No. 227.

On the 4th of October, General Goddard appears to have written again to the Governor General and Council, informing them, that though he had received no direct answer from the Durbar, intelligence had been communicated to him from Poonah, which he had reason to consider most authentic, that the expected reply would in all probability be such as to preclude him from the opportunity of renewing the old, or making any fresh demands; that the event of the rivalship and dissention between Madajee Scindia and Nanna, had taken a different turn from what was foreseen, and that they were both then in concert making every preparation for hostilities, and settling the plan for an ensuing campaign; which coalition on the part of Nanna he attributed to the prospect of assistance from the French: He had, consequently, thought it necessary to be himself in readiness for the alternative of war, and had appointed the rendezvous of the troops, which were destined to make an accession to his force from the Presidencies of Fort Saint George and Bombay, to be at Surat, which he thought the most convenient situation on many accounts, but particularly in the view of being an effectual check upon the Guicawars.

Appx. No. 218.

On the 20th October, having received the Governor General and Council's instructions of the 13th September, the General in his answer to them observed, that he had then waited twice the stipulated time for advices from Poonah, from which delay he augured more unfavourably than ever of the real designs of that Court, especially as the Maratta agent remaining with him had received in the interval repeated dispatches from thence. That on this account he had judged it expedient to make this final notification to that agent, "That I would "wait only fifteen days more: in which time he said a "letter might arrive in reply to one he would dispatch "that instant, at the expiration of which, if Nebilchund "did not arrive, or a satisfactory answer to the proposals "I had transmitted by him in the name of my Govern-"ment, I should consider this delay as a declaration of "war, and act accordingly."

This point, of such material importance to the affairs of the Company in those parts, being thus on the eve of decision, and, as appears from the representations of General Goddard, likely to terminate in an open rupture with the Maratta nation, your Committee think it proper here to consider the condition and dispositions of the parties immediately concerned (in which are included Ragoba and the two other Presidencies) as far as from the materials before us we are enabled to discover them, and also to take a short view of the state of the Country Powers, and of the probable effect which this event might have upon their political conduct.

No. 67, Ben. Sec. Perf. Com. Sec. Appx. No. 210

Your Committee have already taken notice of an address from Ragonaut Row to the Governor General, soon after his escape to the English camp at Surat; and we find, that on the 19th of August, the Governor wrote to him, informing him of their disavowal of the

Appx. No. 219.

Convention of Worgam, and their refusal "to abide by "a tittle of the terms contained therein;" adding however, "that it was the invaried practice of the Rulers "of the English Government, to adhere most rigidly "to the faith of public treaties;" and concluding with expressions of satisfaction at his escape, and of approbation of the protection which General Goddard had afforded him. It has been shewn, that the Superior Board, in their instructions to General Goddard, had not thought it necessary to make any alterations in them on account of Ragoba's return under their protection; and it appears that the General, in his conversation with the Maratta agent deputed from Poonah to negociate with him, had been so far explicit on this point, as to declare, "that the English would never consent to "any restraint being used towards the person of Ragoba; "that he must be permitted to reside wherever he might "chuse, with a sufficient allowance from the Maratta "State; and on those conditions he should not be "suffered to carry on any improper correspondence, "raise any commotions in their dominions, or if he did, "he should forfeit the allowance from them, and the "friendship of the English." But we perceive, that from apprehension of the interpretations which might be put on the disorders of Ragoba's necessitous partizans, at so critical a juncture as the moment of negociation with the opposite party, the General having ventured, in order to obviate this evil, to advance him, since his arrival in June, 50,000 rupees per month, for the quiet of his people and the supply of his family, he incurred thereby the disapprobation of the Superior Council, who desired it to be understood, that their orders concerning Ragoba were merely confined to protection; and added the following signification of their sentiments and intentions on this head: "If Ragoba's influence is so far sunk, "that he cannot procure for himself the necessaries, we "cannot consent to supply him with the superfluities of "life; nor can we see how the Company's affairs will "be benefited by an intimate connection with a man, "from whose influence no advantages can be derived; "and we already find so many difficulties in answering "the demands made upon our treasury, for the "necessary and unavoidable expences of your detach-"ment, that we cannot agree to authorize any unne-"cessary disbursements."

Letter to Gen. Goddard, 29 Nov. 1779. Appx. No. 220.

In regard to the opinion and interference of the Bombay Government, on the subject of protection granted to Ragoba, your Committee have already noticed their conduct, by which they evidently wished to throw the responsibility of that measure upon General Goddard. It appears that they were not well pleased with the powers and rank granted by the Governor General and Council to him, considering them as infringements of the rights immediately inherent in themselves; that they also disapproved of the instructions given him for the line of his military operations, and especially of the rendezvous at Surat, as an ill-judged measure for the professed purpose of the defence of Bombay against a French invasion, of which however they did not seem very apprehensive. But it is proper to remark, that notwithstanding such symptoms of dissatisfaction in these particulars, they determined, first making due reservation of their rights, not to oppose the execution of those orders, but on the contrary to unite with the General with the same confidence and cordiality as before, in promoting the success of whatever measures circumstances might render it necessary to adopt; adding, that they would hold their quota of forces in readiness to join the army upon the earliest occasion or demand; and that they had dispatched vessels to Mahé, to bring up the reinforcement of troops and stores from that quarter also; having only further requested him to proceed to Bombay, to concert with them on the final measures proper to be resolved upon in case of war.

See Appx. 206.

See letter from Bombay to Gen. Goddard, dated 17 Sept. 1779, and General's answer, dated 29 Sept. 1779. See also letter from Bombay to Bengal, dated 6 Sept. Appx. No. 221.

In regard to the sentiments and proceedings of the Presidency of Fort Saint George on these matters, your Committee have already laid before the House, a letter from the Governor and Select Committee, in which they made a full communication to the Superior Council of their political state, and the state of their finances; and we have also shewn the requisition made upon them by the Superior Board, on the motion of the Commander in Chief for a reinforcement of troops to be sent from their establishment in addition to the detachments on service at Mahé, to strengthen General Goddard's army. But indeed the circumstances relative to these points have been so fully expatiated upon in our former reports, that your Committee hold it more than useless to add any thing to a reference, which we make to them, except by a few necessary observations. It will be remembered that the Government of Madras agreed to the transportation of the detachment under Colonel Braithwaite at Mahé, to join General Goddard at Surat, but they apprehended, that their situation would not admit of affording any further assistance. It will not be forgotten gotten, what ſuſpicions they expreſſed of the purpoſe for which theſe reinforcements were demanded, while the apprehenſions of a French invaſion were the only oſtenſible motives, and how ſtrongly they enforced their earneſt wiſh to contribute any thing in their power to bring about an accommodation with the Marattas, as one of the ſureſt means to prevent the execution of Hyder Ally's hoſtile deſigns againſt the Carnatic, and that they generally accompanied theſe repreſentations with a repetition of their diſtreſs for want of money to anſwer the extraordinary demands of their Government. The Houſe will alſo recollect the degree of concern which the Bengal Council expreſſed at the diſappointment of not being furniſhed with the whole of the military aſſiſtance they had required from them, and alſo the complaints which they urged in very ſtrong terms againſt the gentlemen of Fort Saint George, for detaining the recruits from Europe, the loſs of which they ſaid they had ſenſibly felt, and would continue to do ſo, for the ſupport of their part in the war with France and the Maratta State, which they now regarded as inevitable.

Letter from Bengal to Madras, 29 Nov. 1779. No. 222.

The negociations with Moodajee Booſla had been now for ſome time diſcontinued; and your Committee have referred the Houſe to the letters from the Governor General to that Chief, wherein he expreſsly declared, that he relinquiſhed all future thoughts of accompliſhing a treaty with him, retaining ſtill a laſting remembrance of his kindneſs. And it appears, that on this ſubject General Goddard wrote as follows on the 12th of September: "The anſwers I have received to all my letters "written to Moodajee Booſla ſince my arrival at Surat, "and particularly to one, informing him of the com- "miſſion you had been pleaſed to entruſt me with at the "Court of Poonah, as they contain nothing but general "expreſſions of friendſhip, and earneſt wiſhes for an "accompliſhment of a peace with the Marattas, ſeem "to warrant my conſidering the negociation at Naigpore "ſuſpended, until ſuch time as you ſhall honour me "with your inſtructions for its revival."

It is very evident, that Moodajee's politics were much influenced by the misfortune which had attended the efforts of the Bombay Government againſt the Marattas, whoſe power and atchievements he thereupon repreſented in very elevated terms, in a letter to the Governor General; and he added the following obſervation, on the propoſed union between him and the Bengal Government:

Sec. Perf. Corr. No. 88, 1779. Appx. No. 223.

"Yet notwithſtanding all this, the Engliſh propoſe, "without having made preparations, or collected the "neceſſaries of war, to overcome them by a trifling "effort, and to reduce them to obedience. This is "really ſurpriſing. You write me, that one line was "ſufficient to have given an anſwer to the propoſed "deſigns, and that there was no neceſſity to have written "voluminouſly; that is to ſay, 'your forces are ar- "rived at Huſſingabad; my troops ſhall join them, and "ſhall ſettle the buſineſs.' This cauſes me real ſur- "priſe, and the end of it would have proved a parallel "to that of the plan of the Engliſh at Bombay. To "oppoſe a mountain, a mountain is requiſite. What "effect would be produced by throwing pebbles at it? "By the bleſſing of God, you are known to have "great experience in buſineſs. Regard what I have "above written, as dictated ſolely by warm friend- "ſhip; and on conſidering maturely, you will approve "thereof."

See letter No. 88, received 31 Oct. 1779. Letter from Dewagur Pundit to Ram Bhadra Pundit. No. 223.

And your Committee obſerve, that the Rajah had, during theſe tranſactions, repeated his recommendation of an agreement with the Marattas, and offered his mediation and guarantee. It is alſo to be obſerved, that he had ſent his own Dewan, Dewagur Pundit, in embaſſy to Poonah, at the deſire indeed (as he informed the Governor General) of the Miniſters, and that he had been there received with marks of great diſtinction. And we gain from Dewagur's own account to the Berar vackeel at Surat, the following information of his proceedings:

"It having been judged adviſable that I ſhould come to "Poonah, I have had ſeveral interviews with Row "Pundit Purdhaun and Nanna Purnaveeſe, and long "converſations with them on the ſubject of the Engliſh "Chiefs. Nanna is ſteadily fixed in friendſhip to- "wards the Engliſh, and I have therefore written to Co- "lonel Goddard, very fully, my ſentiments on what is "moſt adviſable and conſiſtent with the ties of friend- "ſhip. As I have the moſt warm and hearty friendſhip "for the Engliſh Chiefs, I have expreſſed my ſenti- "ments with that warmth and zeal which my regard to "them dictated, which you will further explain. It "is highly proper that Mr. Weatherſtone ſhould repair "to Poonah; this you will declare. I have diſpatched a "pair of Sirkar Coſſids to you, to obtain anſwers from "General Goddard and Mr. Weatherſtone as ſoon as "poſſible, and forward them hither. They are earneſtly "expected."

It is however to be obſerved, that your Committee have found a different repreſentation of his real views in the conferences he held at that time with Nanna Furneſe, over whom he ſeemed to have much influence. "The Engliſh nation (he was reported to have ſaid) is "a thorn in our ſide, which it is neceſſary to get rid of." Nanna replied, "I am not inattentive thereto, and ſhall "leave no means untried for that purpoſe." It was moreover remarked that Moodajee Booſla had a vackeel with Pateel Sahib *, with whom he kept up a conſtant correſpondence. And it appears by a letter from Dewagur Pundit to the Governor General, that he repreſented, in rather a pointed ſtile, the infringements of treaty of which the Government of Bombay were accuſed by Nanna Furneſe, whom he at the ſame time extolled as a pattern of wiſdom and ſincerity; and he concluded his letter in theſe words: "Notwithſtanding their† repeated "breaches of treaty, I am ready to accommodate mat- "ters through General Goddard, and will never, as long "as attention is ſhewn to the honour and dignity of this "family, relinquiſh my hold of their friendſhip. From "all that I have heard from the Poonah Miniſters, it "appears they are inclined to peace. It is therefore in- "cumbent on you to accommodate matters in an ami- "cable manner."

Your Committee will here take notice of the ſentiments of the Court of Directors on the ſubject of an alliance with Moodajee Booſla, expreſſed in their letter of 14th of May, to the Governor General and Council. "At preſent we ſhall only remark, that the undertaking "appears to us contrary to the Company's former policy "to our engagements with Ragoba and Nizam Ally, "and doubtful reſpecting any reaſonable proſpect of "advantage to ariſe therefrom." And in a letter on the ſame ſubject, dated 27th of May 1779, to the Preſident and Select Committee of Bombay, having then heard of Mr Elliot's death, and that no other perſon was to be immediately appointed to ſucceed him; and having been alſo informed of the intended expedition to Poonah, in favour of Ragoba, they obſerved, "We "earneſtly hope, that upon your negociation and treaty "with Ragoba being communicated to our Governor "General and Council, they would concur with you "in giving full effect thereto, and deſiſt from entering "into any new connections which may ſet aſide or "counteract your recent agreements with Ragoba." It has already been ſhewn what opinion the Court delivered at a ſubſequent period, upon the failure in the execution of that plan.

Appx. No. 227. General letter from Court of Directors, 14 May 1779.

Appx. No. 228.

The connection of the Nizam with the miniſterial party at Poonah, and tokens of his preſent animoſity againſt Ragoba, have been frequently noticed in this and our former Reports. The Nabob of Arcot in particular, in his advice of accommodation with the Marattas, has been found frequently to have given intimations of that connection; and that any marks of ſupport ſhewn to Ragonaut Row, would increaſe the Soubah's diſinclination to the Engliſh. It appears alſo, that Moodajee Boofla ſuggeſted apprehenſions of the ſame nature, by apprizing the Governor General, "that the Nabob Nizam, and "others alſo, who were all alarmed at the incroach- "ments of the Engliſh into the Decan, were waiting a "favourable opportunity to repel them." And we have ſeen, in the letter from the Nizam himſelf to Nanna Furneſe, the moſt explicit declaration of theſe facts; "I have therefore determined, as ſoon as the rains are at "an end, I will ſend a diſtinguiſhing Chief, with a re- "ſolute army and good train of artillery; or, if I find "it poſſible, I will repair in perſon to you, and rouze "that bad race from the dream of ſecurity, and over- "throw all their ambitious deſigns. You will therefore "depend on my friendſhip for Pundit Purdhaun, which "is univerſally known." But of the Nizam's diſpoſition in theſe reſpects, there can be no ſtronger evidence than what your Committee find in his letter to the Governor General, written during General Goddard's negociations with the Poonah Miniſtry. In this he upbraids the Engliſh with breach of treaty and good faith to him, by ſupporting Ragonaut Row, who was known to be his enemy: that he had nevertheleſs, truſting to their declarations, withheld his aſſiſtance from Row Pundit Purdhaun againſt all ſolicitation, though bound by the laws of friendſhip to have afforded it to him: that he had effected the diſmiſſion of the French ambaſſador from Poonah, nor would give any countenance to the advances they had likewiſe made to himſelf: but he now found that new deſigns were formed for the ſupport of Ragonaut Row, and that General Goddard was come to Surat from Calcutta, and joined with the Bombayer in the ſame plan.—To theſe complaints he added others, relative to the conduct of the Madras Government towards him in regard to the Peſcuſh; and on that head he uſed theſe expreſſions: "I have anſwered Mr. Hollond, that ſuch "propoſitions are inconteſtable proofs of a hoſtile diſ- "poſition; that if it is determined to break the treaty, "it matters not to me; I am prepared for all events that "may happen, and thank God that the breach of treaty "falls on them." The moſt material points indeed relative to this part of the ſubject, having been fully made known in our former Reports, need not here be repeated; and are only alluded to with a view of reminding the Houſe that there exiſted at the ſame time ſeveral conjunctive cauſes of the Nizam's diſſatisfaction with the Engliſh.

Of Hyder Ally and his hoſtile deſigns againſt the Company's poſſeſſions at this time, your Committee have already reported ſufficient proofs. But we have alſo diſcovered, that during theſe negociations under the management of General Goddard, the Nabob of Arcot communicated the following information relative to his further projects: "I have received certain advice, that "Hyder Ally Khan has ſent an agent to Poonah to ſolicit "the Maratta friendſhip, who preſſes the Poonah Mi- "niſters to keep up their enmity to the Engliſh, and "proffers his maſter's zealous aſſiſtance, and offers the "payment of forty lacks of rupees, to ſettle his former "accounts, and an annual peſhicuſh of eleven lacks of "rupees, and to reſtore the country on the other ſide "of the Barmadder, which he wreſted from them. "The Marattas have not yet agreed to the terms, nor "have they refuſed. They wait, meaning, if a firm "peace is concluded with the Engliſh, in conjunction "with them, to chaſtiſe the ſaid Khan; or, if the En- "gliſh ſhould not chuſe to enter into that ſcheme, to exe- "cute it in conjunction with Nizam ul Dowlah; but, if peace ſhould not take place, then they will, through "neceſſity, agree to the terms propoſed by Hyder "Ally."

Your Committee have alſo found, that reports of this nature had reached General Goddard from Poonah, and that he communicated them, as in his opinion authentic, in a letter dated 30th September, to the Preſident and Select Committee of Bombay. It does not appear that he at the ſame time gave intimation of them to the Superior Council. "The particulars of it are, that the Mini- "ſters and Scindia, in conjunction with Hyder, Nizam "Ally, and Moodajee Boofla, mean to make a general "attack upon the Engliſh at their ſeveral ſettlements, "and have entered into and ſealed written agreements "for that purpoſe." The Bombay Committee ſeem to have given little credit to the account of this combination, and regarded it as an artifice of Maratta politics. It is obſervable, that no mention is made of the French in this confederacy; yet we have remarked, that the deſign of a coalition of all theſe Powers againſt the Engliſh, was the object of the French intrigues at the end of the year 1777. The Nabob of Arcot, in a letter to the Governor General, obſerved, "that the French "had vackeels with the Nizam and with Hyder, as well "as with the Marattas, and by means of their con- "nection with theſe ſeveral Powers, were employing "every act to bring them into an entire compliance "with their views." And it may be proper to add upon this ſubject, a further remark; that ſuch an union was diſcovered in the end of the year 1778, to be among the projects of Mr. Bolts, the Auſtrian agent; and that in a letter to St. Lubin, he ſtrongly recommended to him to preſs Nanna Furneſe on that head, promiſing himſelf to effect it with the utmoſt ſecrecy. And it appears that Meſſrs. Carnac and Moſtyn took ſo much notice of it at the time, as to warn the Select Committee of Bombay againſt receiving ſo dangerous a perſon within that Preſidency.

With reſpect to the other Powers neighbouring on Bengal, not hitherto engaged in the great ſcene of the war, but liable to be affected by predatory conflicts with the Marattas on the frontiers, your Committee have intimated the ſuſpicions entertained of Nudjif Cawn, and we may add, that ſome doubts appear to have been conceived about the King.

It has been ſeen, that the Government of Bengal had, in the year 1778, obliged the Rajah Cheit Sing to contribute a ſubſidy of five lacks of rupees towards the expences of the war; and your Committee find, that the ſame demand being made upon him for the preſent year, he had repeatedly urged, in hopes of being exempted from that payment, a plea of inability; which the Governor General, in his letter to him, dated the 25th of September, treated as futile, and threatened, in caſe of further refuſal, to force him to compliance, by ſummoning two battalions of ſepoys to Benares. And it appears that this menace had its effect, and produced the reluctant diſcharge of that incumbrance.

But your Committee find, that a difficulty of this kind aroſe in an adjoining quarter, of more material conſequence, and not ſo eaſily to be accommodated. Mr. Purling, in a letter from Lucknow, dated the 19th November 1779, informed the Board, that the Vizier had abſolutely refuſed, upon a plea of inability, to grant any tunkars for the ſufficient ſupplies of the preſent year; and notwithſtanding every repreſentation to him, perſiſted in the refuſal, and in his intention of diſmiſſing part of the troops under Britiſh officers, attributing the failure of his revenues to the drought which had deſtroyed the harveſt of his country, and which Mr. Purling acknowledged to have been very fatal:—"While he had the "means (he ſaid) of providing for the demands of the "Company, he had never refuſed it, and he did not "believe the Council meant to ſeize the expences of his "table and houſehold, which was all that was now left "him."—The whole amount, as it appears, required for the expences of the year, were, rupees 1,36,12,188.12.

and the amount granted rupees 68,82,000. And Mr. Purling ſtrongly repreſented the neceſſity of ſome immediate directions, "as upon the preſent principle, "no bill from the Preſidency could poſſibly be anſwered; "ſince the demands on the treaſury upon the preſent "eſtabliſhment exceeded the expected incom, and the "laſt drafts of the Board, and their order for the pay- "ment of two lacks and a half to Captain Popham, "which had been complied with, had ſo effectually "drained the treaſury, that he had not been able to pay "the firſt brigade for October;" and upon the eſtimate of the preſent year, there was a great exceſs on that of the laſt for the payment of troops. The Vizier, in his letter upon this ſubject to the Governor General, appears to have complained heavily of harſh treatment in the mode of negociating with him, and earneſtly ſolicited to have the particular directions of the Government thereupon. And we obſerve, that the Governor General, in his anſwer to him, remonſtrated with him on the ill conſequences of his behaviour, concluding with the following peremptory warning: "At all events, the de- "fence of your country is the firſt object to be attended "to, and the regular payment of a well-diſciplined body "of troops is indiſpenſably neceſſary for this end: add "to this, that your engagements with the Company "are of ſuch a nature, as to oblige me to require and "inſiſt on your granting tuncars for the full amount of "their demands upon you for the current year, and on "your reſerving funds ſufficient to anſwer them, even "ſhould the deficiency of your revenues compel you to "leave your own troops unprovided for, or to diſband a "part of them to enable you to effect it."

No. 35, dated 25 Dec. 1779. No. 230.

Your Committee think it proper however to add to this, an obſervation of Sir Eyre Coote, who was at this time viſiting the military ſtations in thoſe parts. After mentioning an interchange of viſits between him and the Vizier, and the profeſſions of his attachment to the Engliſh, he adds, "It is to be wiſhed we had employed the in- "fluence which ſuch favourable ſentiments muſt have "given us, more to the benefit of the country and our- "ſelves. But I fear the diſtreſſes which evidently ap- "pear on the face of the one, and the failure of revenues "to the other, are not to be wholly aſcribed to the "Vizier's miſmanagement."

Appx. No. 237. Dated Camp, near Allahabad, 21 Dec. 1779.

It is proper that your Committee ſhould take notice in this place of a negociation (the object of it being pointed particularly againſt the Marattas) between the Government of Bengal and the Ranna of Gohud, which appears to have been propoſed by the Governor General on the 12th of November, when he laid before the Board an account of the overtures made by the Ranna, and the draft of a treaty of alliance, offenſive and defenſive, which he had arranged in conformity to them. The further conſideration of this affair was however deferred till the 2d of December, when the Governor General preſented an amended draft of the treaty; which your Committee find to have been agreed to by the majority of the Board, after much diſcuſſion, and ſeveral Minutes of oppoſition, and others in ſupport of it, which are placed together in the Appendix, No. 239, and wherein it will be ſeen, that many remarks were made upon the inſignificance and obſcurity of the Chief, with whom the Company's Government were to enter into alliance for a ſcheme of conqueſt beyond the Jumna, thereby tranſgreſſing the line of preſcribed policy;—that theſe motives and reflections were on the other hand contradicted, and it was aſſerted that the treaty ſecured the ſupport and aſſiſtance of a powerful Prince, whoſe dominions adjoined to their frontiers, and lay in one of the principal roads through which the Marattas muſt paſs to invade them; and that the objects propoſed by the alliance were ſuch as were moſt likely to weaken the Maratta State, by depriving it of its reſources, and dividing its attention; for which purpoſe, however, Mr. Francis thought, that an offenſive union with Hyder Ally, or the Nizam, or even with the Rajah of Berar, if he could be ſeparated from his countrymen, might, on the principles of the preſent war, be of more importance to its ſucceſs.—Your Committee, in order to place in one view all the opinions delivered on this treaty, have ſubjoined to the Minutes of the Members who were preſent on this occaſion, the proteſt of Sir Eyre Coote, which he afterwards tranſmitted to the Board, and we have added the anſwer returned by them to him on the irregularity of his remonſtrance. And it appears to have been further reſolved on, a ſubſequent day, after much difference of opinion, that a perſon ſhould be deputed, on the part of the Bengal Government, to the Ranna of Gohud, for the purpoſe of ſeeing the treaty executed, and for exchanging the ratifications. And we obſerve, that Captain Palmer, Military Secretary to the Governor General, was afterwards appointed to that deputation, and permitted to draw the ſame allowance as Mr. Elliot had on his embaſſy to Berar.

Your Committee have indeed obſerved, that theſe applications on the part of the Ranna, ſubmitted to the Board by the Governor General, were not the firſt he had received from him. In the beginning of the year 1776, the fears of the Ranna for the probable attacks of the Marattas, occaſioned a requeſt from him, that he might be ſupported with an army, for which he was ready to agree to ſuch terms as ſhould be intimated to him. He had ſome time before received a royal firmaund, and alſo a ſunnud from the Vizier of the empire, for the poſſeſſion of the fort of Gualier.

No. 65. Sec. Perf. Corr. 1776. Appx. No. 241.

The Governor General informed him, that it was not at that time in his power to grant him any aſſiſtance, but recommended him to cultivate the friendſhip of the Vizier. The Ranna's vackeel remained at Calcutta, and theſe ſolicitations appear to have been afterwards frequently repeated. Colonel Goddard, we have ſeen, pointed out the advantages of an alliance with him; and we perceive, that in the beginning of the year 1779, the Ranna wrote to Mobareck ul Dowla, the Subadar of Bengal, and deſired his interceſſion in his favour, acquainting him, that the Governor General had promiſed him aſſiſtance whenever he ſhould require it.

No. 57, dated 16 May 1776. Appx. No. 242.

Immediately after the reſolution of the Board, by which the propoſed treaty was aſſented to, and while the arrangement of ſeveral collateral points was yet incomplete, the Governor General laid before the Board intelligence conveyed in a letter from Sir Eyre Coote, dated 20th November, of an irruption into the territories of Gohud by a party of Marattas, who had taken one fort, and were likely to poſſeſs themſelves of the whole country, as the Ranna's troops were few, diſpirited, and mutinous for want of pay: that the Governor General thereupon remarking that this was probably the prelude of a general plan of attack on the Company's poſſeſſions, of which he had lately received good information, propoſed to tranſmit immediately a copy of the treaty to the Commander in Chief, with inſtructions to comply with any immediate requiſitions which the Ranna might make for a detachment of the Company's forces, proportioned to the exigency of the ſervice required by it, of which he would be the judge.

6 Dec. 1779. Appx. No. 243.

This motion alſo met with the like oppoſition, but was carried by the ſame majority, and a letter was in conſequence of it, diſpatched to Sir Eyre Coote; who, however, before he could have received it, had written to inform the Board, that Captain Popham's detachment was ready, and would be joined by the reſt of the Vizier's Candahar horſe, which he had, on the application of the Governor General to him, very readily conſented to lend; and that final orders reſpecting their movement were then waited for. But we perceive that Sir Eyre Coote at the ſame time expreſſed a wiſh to receive previous advices from General Goddard, as at that late ſeaſon, and when the deſign was now too well known, it might be neceſſary to advance great part of the troops from the camp on the Jumna, to ſecure the junction, they meditated with him; and upon this ſubject he concluded in theſe words:

Sec. Conf. Dec. 23d 1779. Appx. No. 245.

" Indeed, if war is to be continued with the Ma-
" rattas, other and more conſequential ſteps muſt be " taken, than merely the ſupplying General Goddard's
" army from hence, and I ſhould hope the Gentlemen
" of Madras have taken into conſideration, before this " time, the letter we addreſſed to them on that ſubject."

Your Committee find, that on the day on which this letter was read by the Calcutta Board, accounts were brought from Europe, by way of the Porte, of a rupture with Spain; and what was perhaps more intereſting to them, intelligence from Colonel Goddard, that the Maratta agent having " in plain and direct terms de" clared, in the name of his maſter, that he would not " accede to the propoſals made to him, or conclude a " peace with the Engliſh, unleſs Ragonaut Row was de" livered up to him, and Salſette reſtored to the Ma-
" ratta Government;" he had broken off the negociation, as not being able, conſiſtently with his inſtructions, to agree to either of thoſe points; and that he ſhould ſet out immediately for Bombay, in order to concert with the Committee a plan of future operations. He alſo obſerved to the Board, that finding Madajee Scindia to be the moſt hoſtile of any of the Maratta Chiefs, he thought it a very unfavourable moment to addreſs any overtures to him, and ſhould therefore defer it till he received further inſtructions on that head. It appears, that the Board immediately ordered a copy of General Goddard's diſpatches to be ſent to the Commander in Chief; and with reſpect to the expediency of ſending Captain Popham's detachment to reinforce the army on the Malabar coaſt, they deſired him to give ſuch orders for its march or detention, as he might judge neceſſary.

See this Letter in the Appx. No. 246. See Ben. Sec. Conf. 17 Jan. 1780. Appx. No. 247.

On the 14th January, a general letter was ſigned and diſpatched to the Court of Directors; but your Committee obſerve, that previouſly to an agreement on the draft of it, ſome diſſentient minutes paſſed between the Members of the Board on certain articles of information which ſhould be inſerted in it, and particularly, that the Governor General differed with Mr. Francis on the propriety of acquainting the Court with the intelligence received of Hyder's accommodation with the Marattas; to which Mr. Francis gave credit, and the Governor General did not ſeem to deny, though " he was con" vinced from the whole tenor of Hyder Ally's conduct
" and diſpoſition, that he would never moleſt the Eng-
" liſh, while they endeavoured to preſerve a good un-
" derſtanding with him."

Appx. No. 248.

The intelligence indeed, which appears to have been at this time tranſmitted from the Decan, and laid before the Board by Mr. Francis, was particular, not only in this reſpect, but in regard to the motions of other country Powers, and eſpecially of Moodajee Boofla, whoſe Dewan, Dewagur Pundit, was reported to have made an engagement with Nanna, before his departure from Poonah, that in ſix weeks he would march towards Bengal, and lay waſte the whole country. And it is obſervable, that the cauſe herein aſſigned for the unſucceſsful concluſion of the negociation between General Goddard and the Poonah Durbar was on account of a demand of money, which the General was ſaid to have inſiſted upon as an indiſpenſable preliminary to the treaty. And we find, that the Governor General and Council imparted to General Goddard the circumſtance of this pretended charge, deſiring his anſwer to it, which he returned with an abſolute and indignant denial of the fact.

See Letter to General Goddard, 24 January 1780, and his anſwer to this point, on Conſultations 25 July 1780. Appx. No. 249. Letter from him, Jan. 6th 1780. Appx. No. 250. A.

Your Committee find, that Sir Eyre Coote took no immediate ſtep in regard to Captain Popham's detachment, upon receipt of the letter 23d of December, from the Governor General and Council, which incloſed a copy of General Goddard's diſpatch, but complained of the impoſſibility of making any attempt for want of information reſpecting the reſolutions of the Board in conſequence of the tranſactions with the Marattas, and the recommencement of hoſtilities. He incloſed a paper, intituled, " Strength of the Army under Brigadier General
" Goddard," upon a ſuppoſition that the detachment from Mahé had joined him. It appears, however, that the junction of that corps had not taken place, of which the Board informed the Commander in Chief in their anſwer to his letter on the 24th January; at the ſame time conveying their opinion, that the ſeaſon was too far advanced to make the march of Captain Popham's detachment to the other ſide of India an adviſable meaſure, though the corps might be kept embodied, and perhaps be advantageouſly employed on the weſtern frontier of the Vizier's dominions, either to repel an invaſion from the Marattas, if they ſhould attempt it in that quarter, or to proceed againſt them on the weſtern ſide of the Jumna.

Appx. No. 252. A.

In regard to the proceedings of General Goddard and the Select Committee of Bombay, after the abrupt termination of the conference with the Maratta agents till the General's return to Surat in the beginning of December, your Committee have found, that the Select Board very readily furniſhed the reinforcements which they could prudently ſuffer to quit the iſland, though not in number equal to the proportion directed by the Superior Council. They conſiſted of 200 European infantry (including two grenadier companies), 100 artillery, one battalion of ſepoys, and eight companies of grenadier ſepoys, ſelected from the different battalions, to be increaſed to ten companies when the opportunity ſhould permit; a force with which the General ſeems to have been well ſatisfied, and to have eſteemed ſufficient for the firſt plan of conqueſt, even without the aſſiſtance of the Madras troops, either from Mahé or the Preſidency, of whoſe arrival he had not any early expectations. The ſeveral propoſals, with the reaſonings upon them, which paſſed between the General and the Committee on this occaſion, for the arrangement of their whole ſcheme of proceedings, are put together in the Appendix, No. 253, to which your Committee deſire to direct the attention of the Houſe. It will therein be found, that the Committee was at firſt reluctant to ſtep forward into active operations, from an apprehenſion of their inability to raiſe a fund adequate to the expences of a war; and it will be ſeen by what arguments the General endeavoured to overcome their backwardneſs and alarms, till it was agreed to make it the firſt object of action to ſecure an immediate territorial revenue, both to reimburſe them for paſt expences, and to ſupport the future exigencies of the ſervice, as well as to eſtabliſh a certain fund of ſolid and ſubſtantial benefit to the Company hereafter. The mode of proceeding upon theſe deſigns being reſolved on, they furniſhed him with powers and inſtructions to treat with Futty Sing Guicawar, on which buſineſs he meant immediately to enter; foreſeeing however the neceſſity of much art and addreſs to compaſs the acquieſcence of Ragoba in the line marked out for him on a diviſion of the ſpoils, and placing, in the meanwhile, a confident reliance on the ſupport of the Superior Government, till by ſucceſs they could acquire the means within their own reach of command. Ragoba had already applied to General Goddard for an increaſe of his monthly ſtipend, which was not granted to him; but it appeared to be of ſo much importance to have him dependant on the Company, that the General thought it proper to feed him with a proſpect of future favour and aſſiſtance, eſpecially as Hyder Ally had lately made ſome ſecret overtures to him, notwithſtanding the new connection he was himſelf believed to have formed with the miniſterial party, and which the General however ſuſpected to be deceitful.

tions of Futty Sing to an acceptance of the terms of alliance proffered him, for which he had before been rather backward in ſhewing a due acknowledgment. At the ſame time, the deſigns of reducing the fortreſs of Dubhoy, which was within twelve or thirteen coſs of Brodera, furniſhed a good reaſon to ſatisfy Futty Sing on account of that advance.

This was the only principal diſtrict South of the Mahé, belonging to the Poonah Government, which was not already taken poſſeſſion of in the name of the Eaſt India Company, and delivered over to the Chiefs of the Surat or Broach to be collected. The difficulty of humbling the lofty ideas which Ragoba had entertained from the entrance upon active operations, and of quieting his ſolicitations for money, or for a ceſſion of ſome of the conquered diſtricts, made the General very anxious for inſtructions how far it was the intention of the Superior Council, in any event, to aſſiſt his fortune or claim of power, and what degree of ſupport ſhould in the mean time be given to him and his troops. And the diſtreſs for caſh to pay his own forces, made him alſo very ſolicitous for an effectual mode of ſpeedy and regular ſupply. No reinforcement from Madras or Mahé had joined the army; and indeed there was no proſpect of early aſſiſtance from the detachment under Colonel Braithwaite, which he had been obliged to re-land at Tellicherry, for the ſafeguard of that ſettlement.

Letter from Fort St. George to Bengal, 31 Dec. 1779. See Ben. Sec. Conſ. 14 Feb. 1780. Appx. No. 255. A.

It will, however, be remembered, that much has before been reported by your Committee of the military aſſiſtance given by the Preſidency of Fort Saint George to ſtrengthen Colonel Goddard's army; and that when the accounts reached them of the detention of the troops at Tellicherry, they came to a reſolution of ſending at all events a reſpectable reinforcement; and therefore, in the cloſe of the year 1779, they ordered a complete battalion of Europeans, a company of artillery, and a battalion of ſepoys, to be embarked and to ſail immediately for Surat, and held another battalion of ſepoys in readineſs to the Southward to embark from Anjengo; declaring at the ſame time, that by this exertion they reduced themſelves to the neceſſity of a mere defence in caſe of a powerful invaſion of the Carnatic.

The Bombay Government, it has been obſerved, had promiſed a zealous ſupport in the vigorous proſecution of the war, but they could ſupply nothing towards the expences, and diſclaimed all ſhare in the reſponſibility of it.—In their letter, dated 2d of January 1780, to the Governor General and Council, which we have placed in the Appendix, No. 256, will be found a ſtriking picture of their zeal and their poverty.

Appx. No. 256. A.

The letter which they diſpatched on the 31ſt of December preceding, to the Select Committee of the Court of Directors, contains a ſhort ſtate of proceedings; on which, however, they obſerve, that "to give an idea of "their political ſituation with reſpect to the Marattas, "they muſt principally take their accounts from General "Goddard's letters, as no degree of agency being left "to them, they could give no direct account from "themſelves." And upon the agreed plan of operations, they further remark, that, having diſclaimed all further reſponſibility, "what they might have to offer "to General Goddard in the courſe of the ſervice, could "only amount to advice or recommendation; neither "were they warranted by the Governor General and "Council to give him direct orders for his conduct."

See this Letter in the Appx. Appx. No. 257. A.

In regard indeed to the expences of the war, it has clearly appeared from the avowed ſtate of the treaſuries under the other Preſidencies, that they were to fall altogether upon the Superior Government, and were likely to prove a heavy drain upon that treaſury alſo. In the general letter from the Governor General and Council to the Court of Directors, the 14th January 1780, they ſtated the ſums which General Goddard had drawn for ſince his arrival at Surat, beſides what they had remitted in bullion; which mode of ſupply they intended for the future to purſue, on account of the diſadvantage ſuffered by the Company in the low rate of exchange.

Appx. No. 252. A.

And your Committee find, that the Governor General and Council very openly took upon themſelves the reſponſibility of the war, ſince the recommencement of it by the breaking off the conferences at Surat; and in their directions to General Goddard, of 24th January, very directly avowed, that they conſidered Ragenaut Row himſelf as a mere inſtrument, whom alſo they could not ſuffer to become a chargeable one. On this ſubject having remarked, that they had found no probability of acceſſion of force or influence from him, they clearly declared the motives and rules of their conduct as follows: "We are determined to ſtand forth as the prin-"cipals in the war, and to maintain that character "through the whole courſe of it; as the miniſters, by "rejecting the terms of accommodation which we pro-"poſed to them, have in effect made us ſo. For this "reaſon we think it neceſſary further to direct, that "you do not ſuffer Ragoba to become of too much "importance in your preſent operations, and to caution "you againſt entering into any ſpecific engagements "which may entitle him to a participation in your "ſucceſs, unleſs he is able, contrary to our expectations, "to afford you ſuch effectual and actual ſupport, as ſhall "juſtify his admiſſion to ſuch benefits." And it appears that they communicated the ſame ſentiments and reſolutions to the Court of Directors in their Secret Letter of 3d March, in which they alſo gave ſome account of the ſtate of the war.

Appx. No. 250. E.

Your Committee do not find at this period, that the effects of the ſuppoſed combination between the Marattas and the great Country Powers, had began to appear by any open act of hoſtility againſt the Company's poſſeſſions, though indiſputable proofs of its exiſtence had been tranſmitted to the Superior Council from various quarters, and eſpecially in letters from the Nizam, from Moodajee Boeſla, and his Miniſter. It is obſervable that each of theſe Chiefs endeavoured to convince the Governor General, that the other was the firſt inſtigator of this confederacy; which however both of them avowed, though they accompanied that intimation with profeſſions of friendſhip to the Engliſh, and of their deſire for a general pacification. It appears indeed, that the Rajah of Berar had already marched out his troops under the command of his ſon Chimnajee, with orders to remain at the ghaut of Andary till anſwers to his letters ſhould arrive from Calcutta and Fort Saint George. But as your Committee have put together extracts of the principal parts of theſe letters in the Appendix, No. 251, we deſire to refer the Houſe to them for more complete information on the ſubject.

In regard to Hyder Ally, the accounts of his menaces and his hoſtile preparations at this time have been fully ſtated in a former Report; and therefore your Committee will only here obſerve, that the Governor General addreſſed a letter to him on the 17th of February, touching in part on his ſuppoſed combination with the Rulers of the Maratta State at Poonah, and other Powers, againſt the Engliſh Government; and declaring, that he wrote on purpoſe to remove all falſe conceptions which might diſturb the good underſtanding which he believed it to be their mutual deſire to perpetuate between them; and he added further overtures towards improving the connection by nearer ties.

Your Committee find, that in the mean time the operations of General Goddard in the field, and by negociation, had been carried on with great vigour and ſucceſs;—that on the 19th January the army appeared before Dubhoy, which was evacuated the next day by the enemy, when that fortreſs and the whole diſtrict, yielding an eſtimated value of two lacks of rupees, were taken poſſeſſion of in the name of the Company; —that on the 26th January Futty Sing was at laſt brought with ſome difficulty to an agreement, in a treaty of alliance

It appears, that after the concluſion of this treaty with Futty Sing, General Goddard being joined by the cavalry of that Chief, moved forward to the attack of Ahmadabad, the capital city of the province; before which he arrived on the 10th of February, and carried it by ſtorm on the 15th of the ſame month, with ſome ſmall loſs on his ſide. On the 28th he put Futty Sing in poſſeſſion of the city and its collections, and received from him grants for the ſeveral Pergunnahs ceded by him to the Company.

Your Committee have obſerved, that General Goddard recommended a delay in the final ſettlement of the province, till all the great objects of the war ſhould be ſecured, leſt any diſputed claims might excite jealouſy and apprehenſion in Futty Sing, for whoſe ſervices they had preſent occaſion, and who had juſt granted them for the Company the privilege of having a factory at Ahmadabad; for the eſtabliſhment of which, however, no immediate meaſures were taken by the Preſident and Select Committee, nor did they deem it neceſſary to have a fixed reſident at the Guicawar Court. And we perceive, that in their letter to the Governor General and Council, dated 7th of March, in which they gave an account of theſe tranſactions, and tranſmitted copies of the treaty concluded with Futty Sing for their confirmation, they made ſeveral remarks on the diſproportionate ſhares of the province allotted to the Company, and thought it neceſſary, from a knowledge of Futty Sing's character, to ſuggeſt an advice, that the Board would not give a haſty and definitive ratification to it without a guarded reſerve, that a new and equitable ſettlement might be provided for hereafter according to the 5th article. And we further obſerve, that when General Goddard ſome time after this applied to the Select Board for a loan of five or ſix lacks of rupees for Futty Sing, on the ſecurity of aſſignments on his Pergunnahs, and recommended a compliance with his requeſt on grounds of political benefit, the Committee declared it to be a meaſure utterly impoſſible, from the ſtate of their finances, and from the ſmall reſources which their northern acquiſitions would as yet afford them.

Your Committee obſerve, that General Goddard, in his letter of the 1ſt of March to the Select Committee, informed them of the arrival of Scindia and Holkar in thoſe parts with an army of 40,000 men, and that they were advancing their march towards Surat, and that he intended immediately to proceed with the forces under his command, in the hope of intercepting them, after leaving a body of ſepoys for the defence of Ahmadabad. And it appears, that by the rapidity of his movements he reached the neighbourhood of their encampment near Brodera on the 8th of March, and had intended to attack them in the night, but was prevented by a letter from Mr. Farmer (who it will be remembered was left with Captain Stewart as hoſtages with Scindia for the performance of the ſtipulations in the Convention Treaty of Worgam), containing information of the profeſſions which thoſe Chiefs made of their wiſh to be on amicable terms with the Engliſh; and of which they gave a favourable preſage next day, by reſtoring Meſſrs. Farmer and Stewart to their liberty. They ſent them to the General's camp, accompanied by a vackeel, who aſſured him, that Scindia declared his enmity to Nanna Furneſe to be equal to that which the Engliſh bore him, and that he was only anxious to know what deſigns were formed againſt the Peiſhwa and himſelf: wiſhing to receive propoſals from the General, for an accommodation on ſuch terms as might be conducive to the views and intereſts of both parties. This the General thought it proper to decline, but ſignified his deſire of being made acquainted with the ſentiments of Scindia, who was the beſt judge in what manner a new ſettlement of the Government at Poonah might be effected with moſt eaſe and advantage. After ſome inexplicit letters of friendly profeſſion, Scindia at laſt commiſſioned his vackeel to explain his propoſitions; which being evidently calculated to get Ragoba and his ſon into his own power, and thereby to aggrandize himſelf in the State, without any regard to the intereſts of the Engliſh, were immediately rejected by the General, who diſmiſſed the vackeel, with an aſſurance that the Engliſh would put no reſtraint upon Ragoba, or riſk the ſafety of his ſon; and before they put the power of the State into his maſter's hands, would expect ſome conditions in their own favour, though they were entirely diſpoſed to a fair accommodation. Your Committee however obſerve, that at this time the General had reaſon to ſuſpect the intentions of Scindia to be more than dilatory, as he had ſecretly made overtures of aſſiſtance to Govind Row, the diſaffected brother of Futty Sing, and actually received him in his camp. That being afterwards ſtill more convinced of his duplicity, the General ſought an opportunity, but in vain, of attacking him, as he conſtantly retreated upon his advance, and was guarded againſt all ſurprize.

But it appears that General Goddard at laſt ſucceeded, on the 3d of April, in bringing their whole army to an action with a part of his, in which he totally defeated and drove them off the field with a very conſiderable loſs. This advantage ſeems to have given great ſatisfaction to the Select Committee; who, however, from the advancement of the ſeaſon, began to be anxious for the return of their detachment ſerving under General Goddard, as neceſſary for the defence of Bombay: and therefore, in conſequence of an unanimous opinion upon this head, they wrote to the General, requiring him to ſend back that corps, ſhould he not determine himſelf to come to the ſouthward before the ſetting in of the rains; and they expreſſed ſome concern to find that their hopes of an attack upon Baſſein, which they had earneſtly recommended, would hardly now be gratified in the courſe of the preſent campaign.

Letter to Gen. Goddard, dated 30 April 1780. Appx. No. 264.

Your Committee have found, that in addition to theſe ſucceſſes under the immediate conduct of General Goddard, ſome operations directed by the Select Committee, were attended with fortunate events. On the 8th of April, the Committee reſolved to take poſſeſſion of the village of Culwa, and the fort of Bellapore, with a view of commanding an extent of ſhore on the Continent, and thereby obtaining a means for better ſupply of grain and proviſions. On the 13th of the ſame month, an account was received at the Preſidency, that this deſign had been accompliſhed, and that a detachment under the command of Captain Campbell had poſſeſſed themſelves of Parſeck Fort, which was deſcribed to be very advantageouſly ſituated for defence; and it appears to have been afterwards reſolved to repair and ſtrengthen it. An attempt upon Bellapore and Panwell was alſo ſucceſsful on the 12th and 13th of April, and by this means the Preſidency conſiderably extended their command along the Coaſt, and towards the paſſes of the hills in the way to Poonah.

Your Committee do not find, that during all theſe tranſactions, the enemy made any very material attempt upon the poſſeſſions of the Company on the Malabar coaſt, except thoſe (which we have taken notice of) by the forces of Scindia and Holkar. It appears indeed, that a conſiderable body of their troops aſſembled in the neighbourhood of Fort Victoria; and that ſome of their veſſels of war appeared off the port, without however making any attack. And a ſtraggling party under Gunni Punt committed frequent ravages in the neighbourhood of Surat, and and gave ſome little alarms to that garriſon, and to

In regard to the Madras detachment, your Committee find, that on the 24th of February, Colonel Browne arrived at Surat with a reinforcement from Madras of ſix companies of European infantry and a company of artillery, and encamped there to wait the General's

Bom. Sel. Conſ. letter was received from the Preſidency of Fort Saint

A peace "with them would have kept him in awe, and delivered "this Preſidency of every idea of trouble from that "quarter; but it will be difficult to ſay what line he "will purſue, now that the negociation is at an end, "and hoſtilities commenced; for we ſuppoſe it muſt "be known to you, that a treaty has been concluded "between the Marattas and him, with a view of increaſ-"ing our difficulties, and that the Nizam has been from "the beginning of theſe diſputes directed ſolely by the "influence of the preſent Powers at Poonah." The reſt of this letter, with the anſwer of the Select Committee, will be found in the Appendix, No. 270.

It ſhould not be here omitted to obſerve, that ſeveral new regulations, reſpecting the European corps, and the augmentation of the ſepoy eſtabliſhment, were ſuggeſted by General Goddard, and conſidered by the Select Committee; and it appears, that the reſt of the Board agreeing with the Preſident in the opinion which Appx. No. 271. he delivered on the 29th April, reſolved to carry into Sel. Conſ. 29 April 1780. execution at that time no more of General Goddard's plans than what related to the raiſing ſeven new battalions, in order to complete the eſtabliſhment to fifteen battalions of ſepoys. The plan itſelf, and the ſentiments of the Board upon them, are placed in the Ap- No. 271. pendix.

Theſe are the principal circumſtances which your Committee have found recorded in the conſultations of the Bombay Preſidency, relative to the conduct and events of the war during that campaign; the remaining materials, from which we ſhall endeavour to extract a brief account of the ſubſequent tranſactions, conſiſt chiefly in detached papers and diſpatches from the ſeveral Preſidencies.

Sel. Letter dated 30th April 1780. Appx. No. 272.

In a letter dated 30th April, to the Secret Committee of the Court of Directors, which was diſpatched with the records above referred to, the Select Committee gave an abridged account of theſe proceedings; and in concluſion obſerved upon the ultimate objects of their own wiſhes from ſucceſs in the war (not pretending to judge to what extent the GovernorGeneral and Council carried their views) "that after eſtabliſhing themſelves "in Baſſein, and the Company's ſhare of Guzerat, "which would afford a revenue equal to their expences "on that ſide of India, their views ſhould be merely "defenſive." And your Committee find, that in a ſubſequent letter to the Select Committee of the Court of Directors, dated 25th of July, they repeated the ſame ſentiments, and again lamented the want of communication from the Governor General and Council with their Government on thoſe objects. They at the ſame time informed the Court, that by ſome late ſucceſſes in the neighbourhood of Surat over the army of the Marattas, and by the reduction of ſome forts of importance, they had got clear poſſeſſion of the Country to the very border of the Portugueſe diſtricts, which alone now ſeparated the frontier of the Surat province from the diſtrict of Baſſein; and Baſſein itſelf was to be the firſt object of attack at the opening of the enſuing campaign. General Goddard had aſſured them, that Scindia and Holkar had certainly retired into their own territories; to detain them in which he had ſuggeſted to the Governor General the expediency of cauſing a powerful diverſion to be made on both the ſides of Malwa; that having put his troops into cantonments, he had ſent back the Bombay detachment to their own garriſon, from which a ſmall party under Captain Campbell had lately taken the town of Callian, where the Committee afterwards ſtationed a reſpectable force, hoping that it would prove a beneficial acquiſition.

Appx. No. 275. Ben. Sec. Conſ. 24 July 1780.

And your Committee have obſerved, that the Select Committee of Bombay, before they communicated to the Court of Directors the obſervations which we have remarked above, on the doubtful intentions of the Superior Government in regard to the extent and objects of the war, had written in ſimilar terms to that Preſidency, and intimated a ſuppoſition that their views might depend, perhaps, upon the efforts which the French might make in India. They explained the limits of their own ambition, and the ſteps they were taking to put their army on ſuch a footing as would render their ſchemes for future defence practicable, independantly of ſupport, either in men or money, from the other Preſidencies.

In regard to the oſtenſible views, at leaſt, of the Governor General and Council in the proſecution of the war, as far as may be collected from their own declaration and proceedings, your Committee have already laid before the Houſe the overtures which they had directed to be made for an accommodation with the Marattas, after they knew of Ragoba's eſcape, and of his arrival at Surat. And we have alſo referred to their letter of the 24th of January to General Goddard, wherein they declared their intentions in reſpect of Ragonaut Row, and their approbation of every other part of the plan agreed upon between the Select Committee of Bombay and the General.

Ben. Sec. Conſ. 24 July 1780. Appx. No. 276.

And it appears that General Goddard, in his anſwer to the Governor General and Council's letter of 24th January, after ſtating the detail of his military obſervations, obſerved to them, "that knowing the earneſt "wiſh they had to bring the war to a ſpeedy concluſion, "he ſhould readily liſten to, and encourage every over-"ture the Maratta Government might make for that "deſirable end;" but he was afraid, that notwithſtanding the uniform ſucceſs of the Britiſh army during the campaign, the enemy was not yet ſufficiently humbled to grant it upon terms ſo honourable and advantageous as they had a right to expect. And your Committee find, that on the 23d of March the Governor General and Council again ſignified their approbation of the plan adopted for conducting his operations in the Guzerat Country, directing him to do all in his power to ſecure the quiet poſſeſſion of thoſe countries in perpetuity to the Company, and repeating their commands to him againſt entering into any engagement whatever with Ragoba, in regard to whom the General explained the motives of his conduct (in a letter dated 17th of February) on the ground of compaſſion and policy. And we perceive, that when the Board wrote on the 20th April to the General, in commendation of his good conduct at Ahmadabad, they concluded their letter with expreſſions of hope, "that by the decided ſuperiority of their arms, "he might be able to accompliſh the object which they "had invariably in view—an honourable and advanta-"geous peace; which ſervice they ſhould eſteem of "more importance, nor leſs honourable to him, than "the moſt ſplendid operations in the field. They "authorized him to accept any propoſals which might "be conſonant to their former inſtructions, and war-"ranted by the preſent ſtate of the war, and even to "make overtures for peace on ſuch conditions, if he "ſhould have any reaſonable ground to believe that "they would be immediately accepted, and not em-"ployed to amuſe and deceive. In the mean time, they "relied on his activity for the proſecution and improve-"ment of the advantages with which his campaign had "been ſo happily begun." Your Committee find recorded on the conſultations of that day, a Minute of the Board, introductory to a letter to Sir Eyre Coote, requeſting to be favoured with his preſence and aſſiſtance in the deliberations on that ſubject, which they ſhould ſuſpend till his arrival.

D°. Appx. No. 281.

But it appears to your Committee, that a letter dated the 5th of May, from Sir Eyre Coote, was received at Calcutta on the 29th of the ſame month; wherein, after repeating his propoſals of ſome vigorous meaſures being taken from thoſe quarters where he then was, as ſoon as the ſeaſon would admit, he obſerved, that he found, ſince he left the Board, they were become principals in the war; that the preſent plan promiſed nothing but an endleſs and ruinous expence; and he deſired to repeat, that in recommending the moſt vigorous "exertions, "it was only with a view to accelerate a peace, which, "in the preſent ſtate of politics at home, would be, in "his opinion, the happieſt event that could happen to "them." And in a letter dated a few days after the laſt, he ſignified his intention of waiting the commencement of the rains before he took his departure for the Preſidency; but he ſtated fully his opinion with regard to the proſecution or termination of the Maratta war, for the particulars of which, together with the Board's orders thereupon, your Committee deſire to refer the Houſe to the Appendix, No. 282, and to No. 286.

Appx. No. 282. Ben. Sec. Conſ. 29 May 1780.

Your Committee obſerving that Sir Eyre Coote being at that time in the upper ſtations in the Vizier's country, had from thence recommended an alteration in the mode of carrying on the war, have examined the records of the Preſidency, in order to diſcover what had theretofore been the conduct and event of tranſactions in thoſe parts more immediately under his eye. And your Committee find, that in obedience to the inſtructions of the Board, the Commander in Chief had in the beginning of February directed Captain Popham to march and join the Rana of Ghode; and that the Board afterwards ordered him to demand from the Rana, the regular and punctual payment of the ſubſidy. On the 21ſt of April Sir Eyre Coote wrote to the Board, giving ſome account of military operations, and the force of the enemy in the country of Ghode, which he had received from Captain Popham; and taking occaſion at the ſame time to explain his ſenſe of the diſgraceful dangers and difficulties with which he foreſaw the buſineſs of Ghode to be beſet. That the obſtacles which the detachment had met with before the mud fort of Lahar, were convincing arguments of the folly, under the preſent circumſtances, of attacking Guallier. From the whole of this letter, which is placed in the Appendix, No. 284, together with the Board's reply, the Houſe will perceive how very diſſatisfied the Commander in Chief was with the plan of action, as unequal to the critical ſituation of affairs, and the dignity of that character which the Britiſh arms had ſupported in India: how ſenſibly he ſeemed to feel the want of information and of authority from the Supreme Council to execute what might appear to him proper at the time of exigency; and with what reluctance he paid obedience to their commands. It appears, however, that in the beginning of May, he had an opportunity of tranſmitting to the Board ſome more favourable accounts from Captain Popham, who had ſucceeded in an attack by ſtorm on the fort of Lahar, and whoſe conduct upon that occaſion he extolled in the higheſt terms, and recommended him and his deſerving attachment to the countenance and notice of the Board. And we perceive that they immediately teſtified their warm approbation of the ſpirited behaviour of the officers and men, to whom they deſired Captain Popham to communicate their thanks; and they at the ſame time wrote to Sir Eyre Coote, requeſting that he would ſupply the Captain with ſome artillery and ſtores, "whenever "he ſhould receive advice from him, that he was re- "quired by the Rana to perform any ſervice which "ſhould render them neceſſary." In regard to the fort itſelf, they directed it to be delivered over to the Rana.

No. 285.

In conſequence of repeated repreſentations made by the Commander in Chief, of the inequality of Captain Popham's force to anſwer all the purpoſes required of it; and in conformity to his frequent advices for more vigorous efforts in that quarter, and particularly againſt the territories of Tookajee and Scindia, with a view of making an uſeful diverſion to favour General Goddard's operations in the Guzerat, your Committee find, that the Governor General propoſed ſeveral plans for the change, the augmentation, and direction of the force employed in the territories of Ghode, or upon its frontiers. Theſe, with the reaſonings and reſolutions of the Board upon them, are placed in the Appendix, No. 286, and we ſhall here only ſtate very briefly the principal heads of each propoſal, and the deciſion of the Council upon them. On the 29th May, the Governor General moved for the relief of Captain Popham's detachment, by three battalions, with their guns, under the command of Major Camac, and a battalion of light infantry under Captain Browne. To this propoſition the Board aſſented, and orders were ſent accordingly to the Commander in Chief. On the 12th June, having previouſly recommended ſome ſteps towards a peace with the Marattas under the mediation of the Rajah of Berar, and at the ſame time however ſuggeſted the neceſſity of improving their pretenſions to better terms by an interval of ſucceſsful exertion in the war, the Governor General adviſed the reduction of Captain Popham's corps into three regular battalions, and that they ſhould be added to thoſe under the command of Major Camac, for the purpoſe of an invaſion on the territories of Madajee Scindia; and as the ſubſidies from the Rana of Ghode would of courſe be diſcontinued by that ſcheme of operations, he ſuggeſted the expedient of appropriating the annual contribution of Cheit Sing, amounting to five lacks, as a military fund for the payment of the detachment. And he concluded his propoſals on this occaſion with an earneſt entreaty addreſſed to the Board for their ſupport in a meaſure, upon the conſequences of which he would venture his life. But it appears that Meſſrs. Francis and Wheler objected to the expence of this force, as well as to the diſtance at which it was to be employed, the diſcretionary latitude of action given by the intended inſtructions to the Commander of it, and the danger of any pretence for invading the diſtricts of Bundecund; obſerving, moreover, that they believed it "to be an "evil inſeparable from the diſtant military operations "in that country, that the charge of them could neither "be limited or controlled." The oppoſition to theſe meaſures propoſed by the Governor General, was not leſſened by his offer of taking upon himſelf the expence of the contingencies, which he ſuppoſed to be the only one that could reaſonably be charged to the expedition, and which he rated far below two lacks of rupees. The inſtructions to Major Camac were drawn up agreeably to the Minutes of the majority, and recorded on the conſultations of the 13th of July. A change, however, in theſe took place a few days after, when, Mr. Francis being indiſpoſed, Mr. Wheler acceded to the regulations propoſed by the Governor General relative to Captain Popham's corps; and though he oppoſed the inſtructions to Major Camac, the voice of the Governor was then double, and decided the queſtion.

On Sir Eyre Coote's return to the Preſidency, theſe reſolutions underwent ſome alterations, but the principal ſcheme of action by the united detachments under Camac and Popham, againſt the territories of Scindia and Holkar, was confirmed; the different aſpect of affairs, however, after the certain knowledge of Hyder Ally's deſigns, and the probable attempts of the Marattas on the Bengal provinces, gave riſe to a more large and general plan of prevention from the Commander in Chief, which met with the approbation of the Board; and when it was found neceſſary to ſend a large reinforcement to the coaſt, he recommended the recal of Major Camac's detachment—which was alſo agreed to by the Board. The points of controverſy and diſſention at the Board, eſpecially between the Governor General and Mr. Francis, appear to your Committee to have daily increaſed, and at laſt to have riſen to a very great exceſs; in the courſe of which the Governor accuſed Mr. Francis of having ſeduced him, by falſe promiſes of acquieſcence in his meaſures, to part with the ſure means of eſtabliſhing them by the ſupport of Mr. Barwell, who left Calcutta in the month of March on his return to Europe. But your Committee recommend to the Houſe a peruſal of all theſe diſcordant Minutes, which we have placed in the Appendix, No. 288, chiefly becauſe there may be collected from them a great body of remarks and information on the general poſture of affairs, comprehending opinions and arguments, not only on the view of political and military ſituations and incidents, but on the ſtate of ability, particularly in pecuniary reſources, on which the Preſidency might be ſuppoſed to rely for the execution and ſucceſs of their complicated ſyſtem of operations.

The means by which the happy accompliſhment of theſe deſigns might be attained, were at leaſt the oſtenſible cauſe of the difference of ſentiments and the diſtractions of their Councils, till the news of misfortunes in the Carnatic induced ſome ſort of union into their proceedings, as the object at which they were to aim became more certain, and other accidental circumſtances weakened or broke the ſprings of oppoſition.

But before we conſider the tranſactions of that exact period, your Committee muſt relate to the Houſe ſome military events which happened, and ſome overtures of negociation which were ſet on foot previouſly thereto.

Captain Popham, who, upon firſt receiving the orders of the Board to retire to Cawnpore with his detachment, ſeemed apprehenſive of the conſequences of retreating in the face of a Maratta army, was afterwards however relieved from this alarm, and appears to have exerted an unuſual degree of vigilance and activity in order to gain advantages over the enemy. By theſe means he was enabled to conceive and to compaſs a plan for the ſurpriſe of the fort of Gualier, which had been pronounced by the Princes of Indoſtan to be impregnable. The enterprize appears to have been attended with ſuch difficulty and hazard, as to render the ſucceſs uncommonly brilliant. The Board came to the immediate reſolution, ſolution of keeping poſſeſſion of the place by their own troops, as, during the continuance of the war, the ſafety of this acquiſition might be hazarded if it were left to be protected by the Rana; to whom they wrote on the occaſion, and aſſured him, that as ſoon as peace ſhould take place, the fort ſhould be delivered up to him. And as a reward for the ſervice of the deſerving Commander, he was promoted to the rank of Major, and recommended to the notice and favour of the Court of Directors, who confirmed his appointment. The conſequence of this atchievement was the retreat of the Marattas from the whole circumjacent country, and the alarm ſeems even to have reached Scindia in his capital, to which he was retired from the Guzerat.

This Chief ſeems to have been repreſented at this time to be full of animoſity againſt the Engliſh, and that the Poonah Miniſter himſelf was leſs inimical to them. The reſentment of the Nizam appears, during the courſe of this year, to have been more inflamed by the proceedings of the Madras Government, in regard to the Guntoor Circar and the Peſcuſh, than by any immediate alluſion to the Maratta war, except in his letter received 24th February, wherein he again ſtates the cauſe of his diſpleaſure on account of Ragonaut Row. The Governor General and Council thought it neceſſary to endeavour to appeaſe him, yet were apprehenſive of appearing to form any confidential connection with him, leſt it might tend to alienate from them the Court of Berar; "which "the Board obſerved, by a natural oppoſition of intereſts, "was and ever muſt continue in a ſtate of variance with "that of Hyderabad." It was however afterwards found expedient to appoint Mr. Hollond to be their Reſident there, and they thereupon declared their opinion, "That "he had been the means of preventing the breach of "the alliance ſubſiſting between the Company and the "Nizam." But your Committee have in a former Report explained the ſteps taken by the Governor General and Council, to conciliate the mind of the Nizam: and it has appeared by a letter from Mr. Hollond, under date 12th Auguſt, that although he avowed his connections with the Courts of Poonah and Berar, and declared his having formed the intention of making an attack in conjunction with them on the Company's poſſeſſions, directing his own force againſt the Chicacole Circar, yet Mr. Hollond nevertheleſs believed him to be, upon the whole, inclined to remain on pacific terms with the Company, provided that ſome ſatisfaction was given to him on the ſubject of the Peſcuſh and the Guntoor Circar. Yet it muſt be obſerved, that the Dewan of the Rajah of Berar ſeemed at that time to conſider the Nizam as the great obſtacle in the way of peace.

The Rajah himſelf and his Miniſters, by their letters, received on the 12th of June, were found to be ſtill forward in offering their mediation, and in explaining the motives of their conduct. The Governor General propoſed to the Board, in conſequence of theſe advances, that the offer ſhould be accepted, and that Dewagur Pundit ſhould be invited to a conference at Calcutta, in order to expedite the means of accommodation; and the Board gave a ready aſſent to the propoſition. This return of acknowledgment and acceptance ſeemed to have been received with much ſatisfaction by Moodajee and his Duan; who thereupon ſuggeſted certain articles of agreement, to which it would be proper for the Engliſh to conſent, recommending in the mean time poſitive orders for a ceſſation of hoſtilities on the part of General Goddard and the Government of Bombay.—In further explanation of the Rajah's conduct and deſigns in ſending an army into the Cuttack, the Dewan aſſured the Governor General, that this was done merely to keep up appearances with the Nizam and the Poonah Durbar; that the march of their troops had been purpoſely protracted, till the ſeaſon for action was over; and that they were ſince directed to abſtain from all offenſive meaſures. The plauſibility at leaſt of this pretext was admitted by Meſſrs. Francis and Wheler, who ſeemed alſo to think, that the Rajah's deſire of peace might be ſincere, as it appeared to be founded in the conſideration of his own intereſt, and conformable to the language he had uniformly held: But it was thought adviſeable not to ſuffer the appearance of perfect confidence in his good faith to carry them ſo far as to neglect the proper precautions which their ſituation dictated.

Sir Eyre Coote indeed ſeemed to entertain doubts of their deſigns, and was at all events of opinion, that the Maratta army on the confines of Cuttack muſt have a bad effect on the ſtate of the Company's affairs. He was earneſt therefore for their removal, and propoſed, that an immediate application ſhould be made to them, to retire, as their remaining where they were, diſturbed the peace of the Provinces. But he was prevailed upon by the repreſentations and arguments of the Governor General to wait further intelligence reſpecting the intentions of the Government of Berar, before any appearance of ſuſpicion ſhould be manifeſted; and the only ſtep of that ſort which appears to have been taken, was the appointment of Captain Macpherſon to watch the motions of the Berar army with a ſmall detachment under his command.

Your Committee have indeed obſerved, that the Bengal adminiſtration thought it proper alſo to aſſent to an application from Chimnajee Booſla, who commanded the army in Cuttack, for a ſupply of proviſion, of which they were in great want; and it was indeed remembered by the Board as an inducement for their aſſiſtance in this particular, that the hoſpitality which the Rajah afforded to their army under General Goddard, for many months, had been of eſſential ſervice to them.

But it appears that the Dewan, after he had been informed of the ſupplies of grain with which the Calcutta Board had furniſhed the Berar troops, in a letter of acknowledgment upon that ſubject to Beneram Pundit, made an obſervation, that "there was no money with "the army, and that as by the loweſt calculation four "lacks per month was the leaſt which could defray their "exigencies, it was adviſeable that ſixteen lacks ſhould be "ſent for their aſſiſtance, twelve of them ſecretly;" and in order to remove all heſitation about compliance, he added, "Let not the Governor apprehend that this money "will thereby be thrown away, for the Bhooſila and "Engliſh intereſt will then be but one, and much benefit "muſt flow from this. To bring this about is neceſſary, "extremely neceſſary. I do not write for myſelf. This "is the advice to be followed moſt certainly, certainly; "or the army will be no longer governable. If the "army remains till Poos and Maug, the fear of the "Engliſh will be upon all, and therefore this ought to "be effected."

By the terms of a letter from the Governor General to Chimnajee Baboo, dated the 13th October, it was to be ſuppoſed, that he ſent him by the bearer, Biſſembeer Pundit, the brother of Beneram Pundit, ſome pecuniary aid, the amount of which however did not at that time appear. But a letter from the Governor General to the Court of Directors, dated 29th November, has explained the matter to your Committee, and ſhewn that the Governor General, for reaſons which he aſſigned, had privately, without the knowledge of the Council, given three lacks of rupees to the Rajah's vackeel, two-thirds of which was raiſed by his own credit, and to be charged in his official accounts; and he intimated ſome ground of expectations to Chimnajee "of the remainder of the "amount required for the arrears of his army, proportionate to the extent to which he might put it in his "power to propoſe it, as a public gratuity, by effectual "orders for the recal of the troops, or for their junction "with thoſe of the Company."

In reſpect to Hyder Ally, your Committee find that the Governor General received a letter from him on the 14th of July, in which he complained of the breach of treaty by the Madras Government; obſerving, that he was before well convinced that the treaties and engagements of the Engliſh were inviolable, but he had found that whenever a new Governor arrived he would not conform to the agreements of the Council, but acted as he pleaſed, making many innovations in the eſtabliſhed friendſhips. In concluſion he uſed the following expreſſion: "what dependance therefore can be placed on "the engagements and treaties of the Chiefs of the Com- "pany? Do you however act as ſhall ſeem beſt to you."

Hyder does not appear to have given at that time any further explanation of his intentions with reſpect to the Company. But his actions almoſt immediately after fully interpreted them by an invaſion of the Carnatic.

Appx. No. 310. The proceedings of the Superior Council upon receipt of the unfortunate news from the coaſt of Coromandel, have been already taken notice of by your Committee in our former Reports; by a reference to which, the Houſe will perceive that immediate overtures for a peace with the Marattas were among their firſt reſolutions, and that they were encouraged by the vackeel of Moodajee Booſla to hope, that they ſhould meet with effectual aſſiſtance from his maſter's friendly mediation and guarantee. The articles for this pacification propoſed by the Governor General on the 25th September, and afterwards amended by him, were unanimouſly agreed to by the Board on the 2d of October; and meaſures were immediately taken to forward the accompliſhment of this deſign, by tranſmitting a copy of the projected treaty, with powers of mediation, to the Rajah of Berar.

Appx. No. 310. Letters were at the ſame time written to the Nizam, to the Peiſhwa, to Madajee Scindia, and to the Miniſter at Poonah, containing the propoſals which were offered, with additional aſſurances of zeal to put a ſtop to all hoſtilities. And a few days afterwards other letters were diſpatched under the ſame addreſſes, informing the ſeveral Powers of Sir Eyre Coote's embarkation for the Preſidency of Fort Saint George, and deſiring them to communicate to him any circumſtances of a progreſs towards pacification, as they ſhould ariſe.

13th and 15th Oct. 1780. Appx. No. 311

Previous however to his departure, your Committee find that Sir Eyre Coote gave in to the Board a ſtate of the forces, and the diſtribution which he recommended of them, according to the ſituation of affairs, and the requiſite plan of operations. Theſe are to be found in the Appendix; and your Committee will only add to them a remark, that the Vizier was upon this occaſion deſired to require from Fizoolla Cawn the quota of troops ſtipulated by treaty to be furniſhed for his ſervice, being 5000 horſe, to be put under the immediate command of Lieutenant Colonel Muir, commanding the detachment of Futty Gur. And at the ſame time the Rajah Cheit Sing was required to furniſh ſuch part of his cavalry as he could ſpare for the ſervice of the Britiſh Government, and to inform the Governor General what number he could ſupply.

No. 313.

Appx. No. 314. 30th Oct. 1780.

Your Committee have indeed found, that complaints had been made, that Fizoolla Cawn did not fulfil his engagements to the Company, when required to give aſſiſtance in the defence of the Rohilcund againſt the Seiks and other borderers who were infeſting it; and there appeared great reaſon to believe, that Nudjif Cawn had been tampering with thoſe people, and he was certainly making preparations for war.

Sir Eyre Coote's Minute, 4 Sept. 1780. See Appx. No. 304.

It is to be obſerved, that the Commander in Chief did not apprehend any danger to the dominions of the Vizier, as the troops ſtationed in thoſe parts, when properly arranged, would, he thought, excluſive of cavalry, be more than ſufficient to prevent the Marattas from entering them. He however judged it neceſſary, that it ſhould be ſtrongly recommended to the Vizier, to be attentive to the keeping up a reſpectable body of horſe, and that the Reſident ſhould be directed to urge the neceſſity of their being regularly and punctually paid.

Joint Minute, 29 June 1780. See Appx. No. 286.

Of this indeed, if the deſcription which Meſſrs. Francis and Wheler ſome time before gave of his country was allowed to be juſt, there might much doubt be entertained. "The condition to which we have reduced the "Vizier's country, makes the connection rather a bur- "then than an advantage to this State. We have now "to defend the extended frontier of a ruined country, "which at preſent barely pays the troops that defend it, "and which, according to all appearance, will not do "even that much longer."

It has indeed appeared to your Committee, that before the diſtreſſing news of Hyder's ſucceſsful progreſs in the Carnatic had made an accommodation with the Marattas the object of their greateſt and moſt immediate attention, the burthens of the war were acknowledged by the Superior Government to have become intolerable. Early in the courſe of this year, they had expreſſed their ſenſe of them in the moſt pointed language.—In a letter to General Goddard, under date 20 April, they wrote as follows: "Our reſources are no longer equal to the "payment of your army, without draining Bengal of "its ſpecie; nor can any acquiſition on the other ſide "of India compenſate for the diſtreſs which a con- "tinuance of war at the preſent expence would bring "upon the Company. We therefore earneſtly recom- "mend to you, to obſerve the ſtricteſt œconomy in your "future diſburſements."

See Appx. No. 280.

Among the ſavings which the Board then pointed out to the General, was the reduction of the firſt regiment of cavalry, which they did not think had or would in future compenſate by any ſervice for the expence of keeping it up.

But your Committee find, that General Goddard afterwards earneſtly interceded for the maintenance of that corps, as he attributed the ſucceſs of one very advantageous action entirely to its exertions; and it appears, that the Board afterwards, in conſequence of this repreſentation, revoked their order for reducing it.

Sec. Conſ. 24th Aug. 1780. Appx. No. 318. Do. 9 Oct. No. 318.

They alſo directed him to call upon Futty Sing to fix a ſubſidy for the full expence of any troops left in garriſon at Ahmedabad, or employed in the defence of the countries ceded to him, independent of the general plan of the campaign. On this head indeed the General explained the motives of his not having anticipated theſe orders, as he was afraid of unfavourable conſequences from it, before the affections and diſpoſitions of the allies had been fully put to the teſt.

See Appx. No. 274.

The neceſſity of acquiring ſome certain fund for the ſupport of the war, ſeems to have influenced the reaſonings and reſolutions of the Board, relative to the articles of the treaty with Futty Sing, and the appropriation of the revenues ariſing from thoſe diſtricts of which their army had taken poſſeſſion in the Guzerat. And in a letter to the Preſident and Council of Bombay on that ſubject, under date the 15th May, they warned them againſt any reliance on continued ſupply from Bengal, as they feared "that neither their reſources, nor the currency "of the Provinces, would in any degree endure a con- "tinuance of the vaſt drains which had been made from "it in remittances to that Preſidency, to Fort Saint "George, and to China, ſince the time at which they "came into the Company's poſſeſſion."

Ben. Sec. Conſ. 15 May 1780, fol. 160. See alſo Conſ. 5 June. Alſo 26 June 1780. Appx. No. 320.

See alſo Letter to General Goddard. No. 320.

It has indeed appeared to your Committee, that General Goddard, who had recommended the appro tion of the revenues of the conquered countries to the expences of his detachment, did not approve of any alteration in the articles of the treaty; giving it as his opinion, "that the exchange of territory with Futty "Sing was equitable, and proportioned to the claims of "each party, and calculated to promote the true in- "tereſts of the Company." But we obſerve, that the Calcutta Board were not induced by his reaſonings to make any change in their former orders reſpecting the demand on Futty Sing; and although in regard to Ragoba, they at laſt hardly conſented to ſuffer the General to allow him 10,000 rupees per month, which was repreſented to be neceſſary for the bare ſubſiſtence of himſelf and family, they accompanied this indulgence with a ſevere reprimand for the deviation from their directions about ſuch allowances.

Appx. No. 318. See alſo Appx. No. 318. 2 Oct. and 9 Oct. 1780.

But we perceive, that even the acquiſitions made in the rich country of the Guzerat were not univerſally eſteemed in the clear and undiſputed light of benefit and reſource. Upon this point Meſſrs. Francis and Wheler wrote as follows in their Minute of 29th June: "An "open country has been conquered, which at ſome "future day, if the promiſed collections from it ſhould "be made, is to return 30 lacks a year to the Com- "pany. Againſt this acquiſition the permanent expence "of an increaſe of eſtabliſhment to regulate and defend "it muſt be placed: and the value of the remainder "compared with the charge of the expedition. The "Company will then know at what price they have "acquired a new territory on the Malabar coaſt. At "the end of February laſt, the ſums remitted to this "detachment alone, amounted to almoſt ſeventy-ſix "lacks of current rupees; and we are convinced, that we "are much within bounds in computing that a crore "of rupees will not clear it to the end of October."

Minute of Meſſrs. Francis and Wheler, 15 June—and Gov. General, 25 June—and alſo Meſſrs. F. and W. on Major Camac's Firſt Expedition, 29 June. 1782. See Appx. No. 286.

The charge of the other detachments, which had been or were ſtill in actual ſervice, were at various times ſtated by different Members of the Council to have amounted to a great and inconvenient addition of expence, in caſe of which alſo it did not appear that the Ranna of Ghode had diſcharged any part of the ſubſidy ſtipulated by the treaty.

And your Committee find, that in the month of Auguſt, when the calamities of war had ſpread themſelves ſtill wider and with greater ruin over the Company's poſſeſſions, it became expedient to propoſe the taking up money at intereſt to ſupply the increaſing neceſſities of Government. The Governor General introduced that propoſition with the following unpleaſing compariſon of times paſt and preſent: "When I "took charge of this Government under the former "ſyſtem of it, I found it loaded with a bonded debt of "one crore and one lack of rupees, which amount "in a very ſhort time after grew to one crore and "twenty-five lacks. It was my good fortune and happineſs to ſee this enormous debt wholly reduced, "and a ſum accumulated in our treaſuries, which, as "I recollect, amounted at one time to two crore and "twenty-one lacks of rupees. Since that time our expences have been increaſing, our means declining "(I will not in this place enumerate the cauſes of both), "and it is now my hard lot, and a painful duty impoſed "upon me by the neceſſity of the times, to propoſe, that "we ſhould again have recourſe to the means of ſupplying "our growing wants, and provide againſt the multiplying "exigencies not of this State only, but of the other preſidencies, whoſe exiſtence muſt depend upon our "care of them, by taking up money at intereſt. The "ſum I do not propoſe, becauſe I think it ſhould not "be limited."

Gov. General's Minute, 28 Aug. 1780. Appx. No. 324. See alſo Appx. No. 304, and 310.

It is needleſs here to repeat the obſervations made upon the Maratta war by the Preſidency of Fort Saint George, and their frequent remonſtrances againſt the continuance of it. In the beginning of this year Sir Thomas Rumbold drew up a large body of remarks on the actual ſyſtem and ſtate of politics in India, in which, as the copy of it in the Appendix No. 325 will ſhew, he made very ſevere animadverſions on the conduct of the Bengal Government in that reſpect, by an examination and cenſure of every proceeding relative to the Maratta war; and he further charged them with the acculation of a wilful continuance of it by their exceſſive demands, and by neglect of the proper opportunities for accommodation. The Select Committee of Fort Saint George, in their letter of the 3d April, ſeem to have held very nearly the ſame language.

Appx. No. 326

It will be remembered how earneſtly ſolicitous the Nabob of Arcot declared himſelf about this time for a pacification with the Marattas, and what were the conceſſions he recommended to be offered to them; but it will alſo be remembered how great were his alarms on account of Hyder Ally.

The opinions of Sir Eyre Coote while abſent from the Board have been alſo referred to, and have ſhewn how ſtrongly he inforced the neceſſity of pacification, at the ſame time that he recommended a more vigorous proſecution of the war; and your Committee obſerve, in his letter of the 11th May upon this ſubject, ſome ſtriking marks of the ſenſe he then entertained of the danger, as alſo of the value of the Company's poſſeſſions: "The "utmoſt of my ambition is to co-operate with you in "every meaſure of public benefit, and to be enabled by "that means ſucceſsfully to ſupport the honour and in- "tereſt of the nation in this part of the world, at a time "when the event of affairs at home may render theſe "poſſeſſions of ſtill more eſſential conſequence to us "than we have yet had occaſion, valuable as they really "are, to eſtimate them at."

See Appx. No. 282 and 286.

The arguments and reaſonings of the Superior Government, and of the ſeveral Members of it, on the origin and proſecution of the Maratta war, have been laid before the Houſe in ſufficient detail. But your Committee have alſo found, that at the cloſe of this year, when the ſteps we have related had been taken for the more ſpeedy termination of it, and while they were waiting in expectation of an anſwer from the Court of Berar, for the approbation of the terms of the treaty which Moodajee was to mediate and to guarantee, the Governor General took occaſion to expreſs his ſentiments of it to the Secret Committee of the India Company; and he appears to have been induced to do ſo by the provocation of a charge upon himſelf, as being the author of it; to contradict which, he obſerved, the Court of Directors were in poſſeſſion of the fulleſt evidence: and "that the occaſion of the war was planned "and executed without the knowledge or previous con- "currence of the Bengal Government, which had no "other participation in it, than in providing, by an ex- "traordinary exertion, for the ſupport of the meaſures "undertaken by the Preſidency of Bombay, if they ſuc- "ceeded; and for its preſervation, if they failed." And he remarked, how ſeaſonably their detachment had arrived for the laſt of thoſe objects, and the redemption of the national honour, which had been without it irretrievably loſt. He had flattered himſelf, that the war would have been ſoon terminated in ſuch advantages as would have amply atoned for the paſt calamities which had attended it. The ſubject was now reduced to an argument of unavailing ſpeculation, "in which every "perſon was at liberty to form his own opinion."

Letter dated 24 Dec. 1780. Appx. No. 328.

The war, at leaſt in the Carnatic, which was the preſent object of their anxiety and exertion, could not, he ſuppoſed, be imputed to the Government of Bengal. For the occaſion of that event he accounted by the following explanation: "If the extorted and palliated con- "feſſion of the Nabob Nizam Ally Cawn may be credited, "and we have the evidence of the moſt public notoriety "to confirm it, it was the ſole effect of a confederacy "formed at his inſtigation, and dictated by his reſent- "ment of the infringements made by the Select Com- "mittee of Fort Saint George, on his rights obtained by "the treaty ſubſiſting between him and the Company, "and his natural apprehenſion of hoſtilities intended by "that Government againſt him. Whatever be the "cauſe, ſuch have been the effects; and it is our duty "to do all that may be in our power to avert them."

Your Committee indeed find, that the effects of this extenſive ſcene of warfare were at this time moſt ſeverely felt; and that, in addition to the neceſſity of borrowing money at intereſt, by which the ſum of R^{s} 64,44,601. 1. 6. had been raiſed, the alarming expedient of making a large reduction, or poſſibly a total ſuſpenſion of the Company's inveſtment for the enſuing year, ſeemed to be inevitable. Of this probable event the Governor General gave notice to the Court of Directors in the letter referred to; but at the ſame time he endeavoured to leſſen the ſhock, by aſſurances of the care which had been taken, in conjunction with the Board of Trade, to prevent the inconveniencies to which the buſineſs of inveſtment might be liable on its renewal; and by the further encouragement of hope, that the mediation of the Court of Berar would be entirely conſonant to his own wiſhes; and that the example of that Government would contribute to turn the ſcale, in which the Poonah Adminiſtration might be ſuppoſed to balance their determination in favour of the Engliſh;—to that quarter, indeed, he appears to have looked with peculiar intereſtedneſs and anxiety. "With the aid, or "even neutrality of this Power, I have no doubt of "being able to make the reſources of this Government "equal to every ſervice which may be exacted from "them, both for the maintenance of the actual peace of "theſe Provinces, and the reſtoration of your affairs in "the Carnatic, however deſperate they may now appear, "if they continue under the conduct of your preſent "Commander in Chief."

Your Committee obſerve theſe to be the outlines of the picture drawn by ſome of the principal actors in the great ſcene of troubles, which marked this as perhaps the moſt awful and intereſting period that has yet been preſented of the political ſtate of the Company's affairs in India; eſpecially when it is recollected that Sir Edward Hughes, at that time upon the Coaſt of Coromandel, had received accounts of a very powerful French ſquadron, which was naturally imagined to have for its object an attack upon ſome of the Britiſh ſettlements in thoſe parts. See First Report.

To render this repreſentation of their political circumſtances, and particularly under the Preſidency of Bengal, more complete, your Committee have made up ſuch accounts of the revenues and military force as the defective return of the materials would allow, in the papers hereunto annexed.

We ſhall now properly carry our attention from this view to ſee and examine the circumſtances and condition of things on the other coaſt, which was the chief theatre of action. And your Committee find, that while theſe ſteps were taking by the Superior Council, to put an end to hoſtilities with the Maratta Government, General Goddard, who had cantoned his army during the rainy ſeaſon, after taking effectual poſſeſſion of the Guzerat Province, was making preparations for an enſuing campaign. By the orders of the Court of Directors, under date of the 12th April 1780, which were received at Bombay on the 1ſt day of October following, and were immediately tranſmitted to General Goddard, he found himſelf confirmed in the local rank of Brigadier General, appointed Commander in Chief of the forces under the Government of Bombay, and to a ſeat as third in the Council and Select Committee of that Preſidency.

Appx. No. 329.

But your Committee deſire to refer the Houſe to the Appendix, No. 330, wherein we have placed General Goddard's Letter to the Governor General and Council, under date 6th September, which incloſed ſeveral papers, containing a full deſcription of the poſture of affairs under that Preſidency, and of the plan of operations propoſed for the campaign. And it appears, that the deſign of an attack upon the important fortreſs of Baſſein was impatiently preſſed forward by the Select Committee of Bombay; who, about the middle of September, received intelligence from their Reſident at Goa, of the ſecret intrigues of the Portugueſe Government with the Court of Poonah; and that they had actually received orders from thence to the Governor of Baſſein, for admitting mitting a Portugueſe garriſon therein, and were making haſty preparations to be before-hand with the Engliſh in getting poſſeſſion of it.

Appx. No. 332. See Letter from General Goddard to the Governor General and Council, 15 Oct. 1780.

It alſo appears that General Goddard, after his return from Bombay to Surat, had been delayed in commencing the ſiege of that place, merely by the badneſs of the roads, which had continued impaſſable longer than was expected; that however, on the 15th October, he wrote to the Governor General and Council, informing them that he ſhould move forward the next day directly to proſecute that object, and that he had taken all neceſſary precautions for the protection of the Guzerat, which was likely to yield a very large acceſſion of revenue in the courſe of that ſeaſon: that he had no apprehenſions of any formidable oppoſition in that quarter, except from the united forces of Scindia and Holkar, from which alſo he hoped to be relieved by their neceſſary attention to the defence of their own northern poſſeſſions againſt another detachment of troops reported to have been ſent from Bengal into the territories of Gohud. Your Committee do not find that the deſigns of the Portugueſe went beyond report; and indeed we have obſerved, that the Governor General and Council at once regarded it as a vain and imaginary alarm. The General appears to have arrived before Baſſein, on the 13th November, and finding the place very ſtrong, and defended by a numerous garriſon, he determined to carry on his operations with regularity and precaution. But the account of his proceedings, during the proſecution of the ſiege, till it ſurrendered at diſcretion on the 11th December, will be found in the letter to which we refer in the Appendix, No. 334, with other particulars of the advantages derived from this acquiſition, which had been ſo long the favourite object of ambition to the Company, and to their ſervants in India.

Appx. No. 333. Extract of a Letter from Bengal to the Court of Directors, 15th Jan. 1781.

Extract of Letter from Select Committee of Bombay to Court of Directors, 11th Jan. 1781. Appx. No. 334.

See Appx. No. 329.

Your Committee find, that in conſequence of orders from the Court of Directors, dated 12th April 1780, received the 1ſt October, the diſmiſſion of Mr. Carnac from the Council and Select Committee of Bombay took place immediately, and Mr. Stackhouſe ſucceeded to the youngeſt ſeat in the Committee; General Goddard, as has before been obſerved, being appointed to a conſtant ſeat as third. And we perceive, that immediately after the reduction of Baſſein, the General repaired to Bombay, to conſult with the Board reſpecting the further operations of the army. But that a very material change had then taken place in the political ſituation of the Company's affairs, as an account had been ſome time before received from Fort Saint George, of the irruption of Hyder Ally into the Carnatic; and the Admiral, Sir Edward Hughes, on his arrival with the fleet on the 19th December, brought a confirmation of the diſaſter which had befallen a part of the Madras army under the command of Colonel Baillie, and at the ſame time a letter from Sir Eyre Coote to General Goddard, adviſing an attack upon Hyder's poſſeſſions on the Malabar coaſt, which the Preſident and Select Committee of Fort Saint George had on the firſt notice of Hyder's invaſion before recommended to the Bombay Government, and hoped they would be in a ſituation to act with vigour in it. With theſe alarming accounts, however, from the coaſt of Coromandel, it appears that the Select Committee of Bombay received advices, dated the 9th of October, from the Governor General and Council, communicating their determination to offer peace to the Marattas on certain conditions, a copy of which was incloſed; containing alſo directions to the Committee to ſuſpend all hoſtilities againſt the Marattas, on receipt of a requiſition in writing from the Miniſter to that effect, and a notification that the like order had been given on his part to the officers commanding the Peiſhwa's armies; and recommending it however to them, and to General Goddard, that until the receipt of ſuch requiſition and notification, they ſhould make a vigorous proſecution of the war againſt them.

Appx. No. 335. N° 9, 10, and 11, in Sir Edward Hughes's Packet, dated 2d Jan. 1781.

See Gen. Sec. Conf. 9th Oct. 1780. Appx. No. 336.

And your Committee find, that a body of Hyder's troops, in concert with the Maratta Powers, had made a joint attack on the ſettlement of Tellicherry immediately after Hyder's open declaration of hoſtilities; and that the Government of Bombay, thinking themſelves bound to give their principal attention and exertions to the Marratta war, found it expedient to abandon Tellicherry altogether; that this reſolution, however, had been ſuſpended till the receipt of the opinion of the Madras Preſidency, for which they had applied, declaring themſelves unequal to the maintenance of the place by any further contribution of either men, money, or ſtores. It appears however, that the Admiral, in his paſſage round to Bombay, had touched at Tellicherry, and had prevailed upon the Chief and Council, with the Commandant of the garriſon, to come to an unanimous reſolution of defending it, and had provided them with a reinforcement of men, and ſupplies of ammunition and military ſtores, proviſions, and money; and in his account of theſe proceedings, which will be found in the Appendix, No. 338, he inſinuated ſome complaint againſt the Committee of Bombay, perceiving by their letters, that notwithſtanding the known diſtreſs of the Company's "affairs on the coaſt of Coromandel, and "of their own ſettlement of Tellicherry, the Maratta "war was ſtill uppermoſt in their minds." Your Committee obſerve, that in the letter alluded to, the Gentlemen of Bombay expreſſed great anxiety for ſucceſs in the operations againſt Baſſein, which were at that time on the eve of commencing: and we further obſerve, that the Select Committee, in their account of the Admiral's proceedings at Tellicherry, remarked, that he was then in poſſeſſion of the Governor General and Council's intentions of offering peace to the Marattas.

Letter from Bombay to Sir Edward Hughes, dated 13 Nov. 1780. No. 338.

Such appears to have been the information which the Select Committee of Bombay were poſſeſſed of relative to the ſtate of political affairs, when, on the 23d of December, they held a meeting, at which the Admiral aſſiſted, (General Goddard being alſo in his place) to conſult on the proper meaſures which would be taken at that juncture: and the reſult of their deliberations appears to have been, that although the Admiral at firſt pointed out the great neceſſity of aiding the operations of the Madras Government, by a powerful diverſion againſt Hyder's territories on the Malabar Coaſt, and urged the expediency of an immediate peace with the Marattas, for the more effectual purpoſe of diſtreſſing the invader of the Carnatic; he at laſt concurred, that a vigorous proſecution of the Maratta war, as recommended by the Governor General and Council, promiſed to promote a ſpeedy accommodation, which they all wiſhed for, ſooner than any other plan of conduct. But they, however, at the ſame time reſolved to maintain the ſettlement of Tellicherry, as the only place of ſtrength they poſſeſſed in Hyder's dominions, and the attack whereof occupied a part of his force. And we perceive, that on the 24th, the Select Committee applied to the Admiral for the aſſiſtance of two of His Majeſty's ſhips, on an expedition againſt the Maratta town and fort of Arnaul, ſituate on a ſmall iſland at the entrance of a river of that name, which formed the northern boundary of Baſſein; and that he, in conſequence of this application, ordered the Worceſter and Coventry upon that ſervice. The meaſure which your Committee find was principally recommended by General Goddard, and which the Select Committee, out of reſpect to the Governor General (with whoſe authority he was inveſted) did not oppoſe, though they had at firſt ſuggeſted a different plan, was to ſecure the paſſes of the Ghauts, and to carry the terror of their arms as near the enemy's capital as poſſible, without riſking too far the ſafety of the troops, or endangering their return.—And it appears to your Committee, by a letter from Bombay to the Court of Directors, dated 31ſt March, that the expedition againſt Arnaul was attended with with complete ſucceſs, and that the General forced the enemy's poſts on the hills, and gained poſſeſſion of the paſs of Bhore Ghaut.

Appx. No. 342. Letter from General Goddard to Bombay, dated 13 Feb. 1781.

And we perceive, that while the army was encamped in that ſituation, a Maratta Agent came to the General, though without any formal credentials of deputation, and pretending ignorance of any overtures which had been made to the Court of Poonah, deſired to know the terms which the Engliſh would expect in any plan of pacification. The General, with the advice of the Select Committee, tranſmitted a copy of the articles in a letter to the Miniſters, containing the moſt friendly profeſſions; and received in reply, a poſitive refuſal to accede to them, with an intimation, that they had been diſapproved of by the Rajah of Berar, who had for that reaſon ſent them back to the Governor General and Council. In conſequence of this aſſurance, that hoſtilities were not to be terminated, and having accompliſhed every object which they propoſed to acquire in the courſe of the war, the Select Committee, in concert with General Goddard, reſolved to direct their future attentions to a mere ſyſtem of defence, in the protection of their preſent acquiſitions, and the reduction of their great military expences, in which view they made preparations to ſend back all the Madras troops ſerving on that coaſt. And the paſs of Bhore Ghaut, where the General had at firſt propoſed to fix a fortified poſt, being upon more mature reflection abandoned by him in the beginning of April, he effected his retreat, though not without loſs, to Panwell, and from thence to the neighbourhood of Callian, which, as a centrical ſituation, was held the moſt optionable for the cantonment of the troops during the rainy ſeaſon. The Europeans and Bombay troops only were to be brought into their own garriſon.

Appx. No. 343. Select Letter from Bombay, 30 April 1781, and 27 May Do.

In the article of finances, your Committee have obſerved the great and diſtreſſing deficiencies of which the Government of Bombay had conſtantly complained, from the low ſtate of their treaſury, and the want of reſources of any kind for a ſupply. We have found that they had been deſirous to procraſtinate the recommencement of hoſtilities with the Marattas, and complained of the ſmall aſſiſtance they had received or were promiſed from the Superior Government. They had forbidden General Goddard to draw any more money from the Surat Treaſury, whence he had taken 4 lacks of rupees, becauſe of their own diſtreſſes; and repreſented the advance of 6 lacks to him, between September 1779 and January 1780, as a moſt heavy deduction from their limited income; and that upon his preſſing ſolicitations, they had been obliged to make the remittance of two lacks of that ſum out of a loan of 5 to 6 lacks, which they had raiſed for their own immediate expences, by the negociation of their Chief at Surat. It has appeared, that from the ſame ground of neceſſity, they had refuſed to give countenance to a loan for the uſe of Futty Sing, and had expreſsly announced to the Government of Bengal, that not only the reſponſibility, but the expences of the war muſt reſt upon them. And we perceive, that the ſcarcity of grain which was much apprehended at Bombay, in the beginning of the year 1780, became a more alarming evil, from this circumſtance, that the Company's treaſury was not able to furniſh money for the purchaſe of any.

It is proper to obſerve, that the expences of the Bombay troops ſerving under General Goddard, were increaſed beyond the uſual allowance of that eſtabliſhment, the Select Committee having unanimouſly agreed with the General, that it would be expedient to raiſe their pay to an equality to that of the Bengal forces, while they ſhould ſerve together, explaining however to the army, that this indulgence was not to be conſidered as a precedent; and at the ſame time the Paymaſter and Commiſſary were directed to make their drafts on General Goddard, for the expence of the Bombay detachment.

See Appx. No. 253. A. Bombay Sel. Conſ. 16 Nov. 1779.—See alſo Mr. Hornby's Minute, 1 Aug. 1780. Par. 6. See Appx. No. 330.

It will be remembered, that when they found the war to be inevitable, the principal object of the plan which they recommended for the conduct of it, was to ſecure a territorial poſſeſſion, yielding a ſufficient revenue not only to anſwer the preſent, but alſo the paſt and future expences of their Government. But your Committee find, that an alarm of a diſappointment to their hopes in this reſpect, by a letter from the Governor General and Council, upon the appropriation of the revenues ariſing from the conquered countries, was very ſtrikingly marked in the following paragraph of their letter, dated 25th July 1780, to the Secret Committee of the Court of Directors.

"We have the moſt alarming apprehenſions of the "difficulties we ſhall experience the enſuing ſeaſon for "want of money; having lately received a letter from "the Governor General and Council, acquainting us, "that their own diſtreſs will put it out of their power "to make additional remittances equal to the ſupport "of this Preſidency, and the pay of the large army "under General Goddard; and therefore, deſiring that "every acceſſion of income which may ariſe to the "Company from the ſucceſs of that army, may be ſet "aſide, and appropriated excluſively to that; and thus "cutting off the principal reſource we had dependence "on for our immediate exigencies, we have only the "hope, that when they receive our propoſal for the "reduction of theſe intolerable military charges, and "ſee the ſtrong meaſure we have actually taken to "make it practicable, which of courſe will require an "extraordinary proviſion for the preſent, they will at "leaſt leave us in poſſeſſion of our own reſources; and, "encouraged by the proſpect of ſome end to ſuch "heavy drains, that they will make a vigorous effort to "give ſucceſs to our plan, and exonerate us from the "charge of maintaining ſuch ruinous auxiliaries."

Your Committee have however obſerved, that General Goddard had himſelf, in a letter dated 28th of March 1780, to the Governor General and Council, ſuggeſted and recommended this mode of ſupply for his army, by the appropriation of the acquired revenues to it.

Appx. No. 3[illegible] Ben. Sec. Conſ. 15 May 1780.

It appears, indeed, that the Select Committee received, the end of July, a letter from the Governor General and Council, dated 10th of May, who therein requeſted them "to tranſmit, as ſoon as poſſible, "an eſtimate of their probable receipts and diſburſe-"ments for the enſuing year, included between the "30th April 1780 and 1ſt of May 1781, with an ac-"count of the actual receipts and diſburſements of their "Government for the preceding year; alſo a ſeparate "eſtimate of the groſs revenue and charges of collection "of the pergunnahs or diſtricts ceded to the Company "by the treaties of Poorunder, and that lately concluded "with Futty Sing; likewiſe an account of their bonded "debt, with the amount of intereſt due thereon, up to "the lateſt period."

Appx. 347.

The Select Committee, in anſwer, promiſed that they would ſend a more full reply to their letter; but in the mean time, returning to the plan they had formed for the reduction of military expences, and to the ſupport neceſſary for its firſt eſtabliſhment, they expreſſed their earneſt hope in theſe words: "that you will exert your "extenſive reſources to the utmoſt, to ſend round the "neceſſary ſupplies this ſeaſon, to give full efficacy to "your plan, and put an end to ſuch inſupportable "drains from your treaſury in future."

No. 347.

The return made to the general account above demanded, appears to have been received at Calcutta on the 3d October, accompanied with a letter of ſolicitation for ample and ſpeedy ſupplies, as they (the Bombay Government) were then in the utmoſt diſtreſs for money to defray even their ordinary expences.

Your Committee, in the proſecution of their enquiry on this part of the ſubject, have been much ſtruck with the the ſympathetic tale of diſtreſs which they found in the following extract of a letter from General Goddard to the Select Committee, dated 24th Auguſt 1780. "I "obſerve with real concern and diſappointment the diſ- "treſs for money which you ſtrongly repreſent, becauſe "my own cannot be inferior; and the Honourable Go- "vernor General and Council have depended upon the "reſource of the new acquired revenue, for the greateſt "part of my ſupply. I have been compelled for ſome "time paſt, to draw bills upon them at a conſiderable "loſs (which nothing but the moſt urgent and extreme "neceſſity could juſtify) to provide for the mere ſub- "ſiſtence of the troops; but even this reſource has pro- "ved inadequate, and the army is greatly in arrear. It "is now no longer to be depended on."

Sel. Letter, 22 Jan. 1781. Appx. No. 344.

But your Committee obſerve, that at the beginning of the next year, the ſituation of the Preſidency became ſtill more indigent and intolerable, and this appears with additional weight from the introductory obſervation on the undiſturbed tranquillity in which their poſſeſſions to the northward had remained, and from which they expected to receive a conſiderable revenue the enſuing ſeaſon.—"This however (they added) will be far from equal "to our neceſſities, now preſſing to a degree never be- "fore experienced, as we are obliged to appropriate a "part for the expences of the Bengal army."

Your Committee have already obſerved, that the Government of Bombay found a ſerious addition to their expences in the defence of Tellicherry, firſt againſt the native Powers of the Malabar Coaſt, and afterwards againſt the united forces of Hyder Ally and the Marattas. It appears, that early in the year 1780, the Select Committee had been obliged to direct the Chief and factory to reſerve the whole balance of the treaſure in their hands for defraying the charges of the garriſon, and to lay out none of it in the purchaſe of pepper, as it would be impoſſible for the Preſidency to ſupply them with any further aſſiſtance of money. It has been remarked above, that various reſolutions had been taken and changed, at one time for abandoning and at another for defending that ſettlement; and it was mentioned in a former Report, that after the misfortunes in the Carnatic, the Preſidency of Madras had reſolved to withdraw all the troops from thence, and entirely to relinquiſh the poſſeſſion of it. The increaſed difficulties of the Bombay Government to furniſh ſufficient ſupport of money or grain, obliged them finally to agree in a like determination; the time was fixed, and within two days of completion for the departure of the fleet, in order to bring off the troops and ſtores, when the receipt of a letter from the Governor General and Council, dated the 7th January (which ought to have reached Bombay ſix or ſeven weeks ſooner) gave to the Committee an aſſurance of a preſent ſupply of five lacks of rupees, and a permiſſion to draw upon them for ſuch further ſums as they might ſtand in need of; a large quantity of rice was alſo promiſed, and part of it arrived. The knowledge of theſe reſources appears to have had the immediate effect of reviving the reluctance they had ſhewn to quit the poſſeſſion of that place, and made them once more alter their reſolution, and take immediate meaſures for preſerving it, by ſupplying the garriſon with a reinforcement of troops and ſtores; the Admiral, who was ſtill upon the coaſt, cheerfully complying with their requeſt to aſſiſt in the execution of this deciſive meaſure; and it appears by a letter from him to the Earl of Hillſborough, dated 15th May 1781, that on the 8th of that month, having arrived the day before at Tellicherry, and found it cloſely inveſted by the enemy under the command of Sadur Cawn, an officer of rank in Hyder Ally's ſervice, he diſembarked from on board his ſquadron the Bombay reinforcement, conſiſting of 40 European artillery and 60 European infantry, and 1,160 Sepoys, with 40 artillery laſcars; and that 500 men in addition to that number arrived on the 10th; he alſo delivered to the garriſon a conſiderable ſupply of proviſions and ſtores, and having afterwards embarked the detachment of Madras under Major Cotgrave, amounting to 1,180 men, Europeans and Sepoys, he intended immediately to proceed to ſea, and make the beſt of his way to the Coromandel coaſt.

Appx. No. 352.

It may not be improper here to remind the Houſe, that the Bombay Government had, long before their knowledge of the unfortunate events which had happened in the Carnatic, being very deſirous of ſending back both the Bengal and Madras detachment, in order (to give their reaſons in their own words, contained in their letter dated 6th June, to Bengal) "to relieve the Com- "pany from the moſt heavy expence which muſt be "incurred by their ſervice on this coaſt, but which "cannot be done until we put ourſelves in a condition "to defend our own poſſeſſions, without their aſſiſtance." See Appx. No. 273.

But your Committee obſerve, that in the ſame letter, purſuing their remarks on the intended plan for the augmentation of their own force, and ſtarting a difficulty which would ariſe from the deficiency in their European Corps, they expreſſed a hope of remedy even for that, in the following ſuggeſtion: "We hope the reinforce- "ments received this ſeaſon at Bengal and Madras, will "enable you to ſupply even this deficiency; the moſt "ready method of doing which will be to transfer the "privates and non-commiſſioned officers of the Madras "detachment now with General Goddard to this eſtab- "liſhment, which we hope that Government will be now "in a condition to ſpare."

It muſt however be remarked, that the Governor General and Council had, ſo early as the 20th April 1780, (which was a few days after the Europeans from Madras had really joined General Goddard, and before the ſepoys had reached him) expreſſed their wiſh, in a letter to him of that date, that he would return the whole or a part of the Fort Saint George detachment as ſoon as the ſeaſon would permit, and he could diſpenſe with their ſervices. But in his anſwer under date the 20th of June, being then at Surat, and about to canton his troops for the rainy ſeaſon, the General aſſured them, "that as far "as poſſible he would comply with their wiſhes reſpect- "ing the Fort Saint George detachment;" adding however this remark, "the reinforcements that have at this "time joined me from that Preſidency, conſiſt only of "one company of European artillery, ſeven of infantry, "and one battalion of Sepoys." See Appx. No. 280. See Appx. No. 274.

It does not appear that on the irruption of Hyder Ally, the Preſidency of Madras, or afterwards Sir Eyre Coote, on his arrival, demanded the return of their troops from the Malabar Coaſt; but rather, as has been obſerved, recommended a diverſion againſt Hyder's territories in thoſe parts: and the Commander in Chief, in his letter to General Goddard, dated the 12th November 1780, ſtrongly enforced this advice, conſidering the ſituation of affairs with the Marattas as a very ſecondary buſineſs; and expreſſed a hope, that if an attack on any principal place belonging to Hyder Ally could be ſucceſsfully undertaken in concert with the Admiral, ſo as to oblige him to ſend ſome part of his vaſt force from the Carnatic to the defence of his own country, he ſhould think he might be able, even with the force he then had, to drive him out of the Carnatic. See Appx. 335.

Your Committee have explained the reſult of a conſultation on this ſubject at Bombay, on the 23d of December, and the ſubſequent tranſactions of the army under General Goddard. It appears, that Sir Eyre Coote incloſed in his own letter to General Goddard, another alſo addreſſed to him from the Governor General and Council, wherein they ſignified their commands for placing his detachment under Sir Eyre Coote's orders; and it will be remembered what directions and authority they had given relative to the proſecution of the Maratta war, which Sir Edward Hughes remarked, "they (the "Select Committee of Bombay) appear to me more "diſpoſed to do, than to march the army under General "Goddard into the dominions of Hyder Ally, to make "the diverſion Sir Eyre Coote thought ſo neceſſary for the See Appx. 339. No. 353.

" the preſervation of the Carnatic againſt him, and " which indeed they cannot do till a reconciliation with " the Marattas takes place."

On the 31ſt of March however, your Committee find the Bombay Government " having then loſt all imme- " diate proſpect of a peace with the Marattas," and every object thay had propoſed to acquire in the courſe of the war being accompliſhed, informed the Court of Directors, " that they had taken meaſures in concert " with General Goddard, to yield what aſſiſtance they " could to the Preſidency of Fort Saint George, and were " preparing to ſend back all the Fort Saint George " troops ſerving on that coaſt, by which their own " military charges would be greatly reduced, and the " army under General Coote ſtrengthened with a very " conſiderable reinforcement."

See letters from and to Gen. Goddard, Appx. 356. See Appx. No. 343.

The alterations which the reſolution of defending Tellicherry, and other circumſtances after the deſcent from the Ghauts, occaſioned in theſe meaſures, are explained in a letter from the Preſident and Select Committee to the Secret Committee of the Court of Directors, under date 27th May 1781; and it appears, that the Admiral carried with him in the middle of that month to the Coromandel Coaſt, only the detachment under Major Cotgrave from Tellicherry. Yet it is to be obſerved, that the Ponſborne was detained at Bombay till the Committee ſhould come to ſome final determination reſpecting the European Corps under Colonel Brown; and though no mention is made of its being embarked on board that ſhip, or on two others, which at laſt ſailed from thence on the 11th of July for Madras, yet there is ſome reaſon to believe it was then really ſent in them.

Letter dated 28 July.

Your Committee ſhould not have omitted to obſerve, that Sir Edward Hughes, in his way round to Bombay, in the months of November and December 1780, made two ſucceſsful attacks on Hyder's naval force at Calicut and Mangalore, where he deſtroyed and took ſeveral ſhips, though one of his own frigates (the Sartine) had the misfortune to run upon the rocks at the former place, and was entirely loſt.

Letter from Sir Edw. Hughes, 2 Jan. 1781. See Appx. No. 318.

2 Dec. Do.

After the departure of Sir Edward Hughes from that coaſt, and the reduction of their military force by the arrangements above-mentioned, the ſyſtem of defence, which the Government of Bombay had reſolved upon, became apparently yet more adviſeable; and your Committee perceive, by a letter from the Select Board to the Secret Committee of the Court of Directors, under date 28th July 1781, that they perſevered in the ſame intentions, not having received or offered any new overtures for accommodation with the Marattas. But it appears, that this plan did not ſeem to be agreeable to the ſentiments of the Governor General and Council, who had informed the Select Committee in a late diſpatch, that the unwillingneſs of the Miniſters to accept the offer of a treaty, did not diſappoint, but on the contrary, had rather pleaſed them, as it left them at liberty to ſecure to the Company the important poſſeſſion of Baſſein, and the other advantages acquired at the time the propoſed treaty was written. Under this impreſſion, they intimated their wiſhes for a vigorous proſecution of the war, and that the utmoſt aid might be offered to General Goddard's operations, the plan however of which had not yet been conſidered and ſettled.

Appx. No. 358. See alſo Appx. No. 351. Sec. Letter, dated 10 May, 1781.

The Bombay Committee appear alſo in this letter to urge many arguments in their defence againſt the imputation the Governor General and Council had brought againſt them, of a ſudden alteration of ſentiment with reſpect to the mode of proſecuting the war, which however they aſcribed to the failure of their expectations of bringing it to a happy termination, by the utmoſt exertion of their force during the interval allowed for the determinate anſwer of the Marattas to the propoſals for a pacification: and in ſupport of this explanation, they refer to their former reſolutions and proceedings. It ſeems indeed that the Superior Government had alſo communicated to the Bombay Committee, another motive of objection againſt any freſh advances to accommodation with the Poonah Durbar, becauſe " they had " formed a connection with the Berar Government, " which (they obſerved) they had every reaſonable hope " would be attended with a very eſſential change in their " political influence."

Advice of the rupture with Holland having been received at Bombay, your Committee find that orders were given to diſpoſſeſs the Dutch of their Factories at Broach and Surat. The latter ſervice had been executed, and there was reaſon to believe, that a conſiderable property would be found belonging to the Dutch Eaſt India Company, which would be ſecured for the benefit of the Engliſh Company.

This appears to be the amount of information which the laſt diſpatch brought from the Preſidency of Bombay. The papers immediately annexed will ſhew the ſtate and diſtribution of the forces on the Bombay eſtabliſhment, and exhibit ſome repreſentation of the ſtate of Revenue, as far as can be judged from the condition of the treaſuries and the amount of the Debt of that Preſidency. Your Committee have placed a more complete Account in an Appendix.

(Signed) L. Nilſon,
Lieut. Colonel in Command of the Army.

Your Committee will now proceed to trace the ſource of ſome of the material incidents, of which we have yet made only a ſlight mention, under the adminiſtration of Bengal, beginning with the courſe of events that may appear to have immediately attended the offer of pacific propoſals, which (it has been obſerved) were ſent to the Court of Berar, as the moſt promiſing channel for the acceptance of them by the Government at Poonah.

Ben. Sec. Letter, dated 7 Jan. 1781. Appx. No. 360.

But as it has appeared to your Committee, that before the receipt of any anſwer from Moodajee Booſla, the Superior Council thought it neceſſary to conſider of other means alſo, by which they might poſſibly acquire an acceſſion of ſtrength to repel the attacks of the enemy, particularly in the Carnatic, we ſhall very briefly ſtate the meaſures which were the immediate conſequence of this policy. In addition to the ſupply of treaſure for the military expences of the Preſidency of Fort Saint George, which they had remitted at the time of Sir Eyre Coote's embarkation, they, in the opening of the year 1781, ordered to them the further ſum of CR[r] 4,23,672. 10. 3. and had taken ſteps to continue to that Preſidency ſupplies of grain and other articles of which they were in need; but as it was not in their power to furniſh them with a military force which appeared to be ſufficient for the immediate expulſion of the enemy, they were induced to propoſe a treaty of alliance with the Dutch, whoſe poſſeſſions at and adjacent to Cochin had lately been invaded by Hyder Ally. This negociation ſeems to have been formed under the advice of the Director and Governor of the Dutch Eaſt India Company's ſettlements in Bengal: and the object of it was to obtain the aſſiſtance of a body of troops from the Government of Cochin: but as neither the Governors of Colombo nor Cochin could engage their aſſent without great perſonal reſponſibility, they having no regular powers to bind their Company in ſuch an act without the ſanction of the Superior Government of Batavia, for which there was no time to wait, the offer of ſome additional conceſſions appeared neceſſary, both to indemnify them and to win the concurrence of their ſuperiors. Urged by theſe conſiderations, the Governor General and Council propoſed the ceſſion of the Tinivelly country to the Dutch, which, for reaſons aſſigned, they thought might, without great loſs or danger, be ſeparated from the Government of the Carnatic; and they were alſo perſuaded that they had a right to expect ſuch a ſacrifice from the Nabob Walaw Jaw of part of his dominions, for the ſhare they took in the preſervation of the whole. The draft of the treaty, and the conſequences reſulting from it, and particularly the reception which the whole ſcheme met with at Madras, have been laid before the Houſe in the Supplement to the Firſt Report.

Ben. Sec. Conſ. 4 Jan. 1781. Appx. No. 360.

And your Committee find, that the Superior Government was alſo at this time attentive to ſome proceedings of a ſimilar nature, by which they ſought to give ſupport to their affairs on the Malabar coaſt. We have already obſerved, that the ſuppoſed deſigns of the Portugueſe upon Salſette and Baſſein were not thought worthy of their ſerious attention, becauſe, indeed, whatever connection might ſubſiſt between the Portugueſe and the Marattas, its effect could not, from the condition of the party, become important, nor be ſuppoſed to weigh againſt the ſtrong conſideration of the alliance which had long ſubſiſted between the Engliſh and them; but as the hoſtilities and ambition of Hyder Ally, as well as thoſe of the Marattas, required now the full exertions of oppoſition and controul, and as Hyder had repeatedly offered inſults to the Portugueſe ſettlements, the Governor General and Council took occaſion upon that ground to make overtures to the Government at Goa, for an union with them in diſtreſſing that Prince by ſending a body of forces into his country. For this purpoſe a deputation was given to Mr. Auriol, with inſtructions, which will be found in the Appendix, No. 361; but it appears that the expectations of ſucceſs from theſe propoſals were not very ſanguine, though the adminiſtration declared themſelves not willing to neglect even the remote chance of ſuch an advantage.

It will be remembered, that a reſolution had been taken by the Governor General and Council, when they ſent the reinforcements to Madras under Sir Eyre Coote, to detach alſo over-land a conſiderable body of Sepoys with their guns, and a company of European Artillery, the command of which was given to Lieutenant Colonel Pearce. This force, to which was afterwards added a company of Golandaaze and a troop of horſe, was collected near Naraingbur in Midnapore, but the movement of it from thence was delayed, till the anſwers from Naigpore ſhould arrive, leſt by a precipitate march into the Cuttack, before ſome terms of agreement were ſettled, that corps and the Berar troops might be expoſed to mutual hoſtilities. It has indeed appeared, that one great object of the application made to Moodajee Booſla, was not only to remove all alarm or impediment ariſing from the ſituation and number of his cavalry in the province of Oriſſa, but alſo to profit in ſome meaſure by that circumſtance, and to bring about a junction of a part of them, with the detachment of Bengal, in the expedition to the Carnatic, and an attack upon Hyder Ally. By this means, if accompliſhed, an immediate acceſſion of military ſtrength would not be the ſingle advantage to the Company's affairs, but the great confederacy between the Country Powers againſt the Engliſh might thereby be broken, and this the moſt formidable member of it be obliged afterwards to unite himſelf more cloſely with the new ally.

See alſo Letter and Narrative, dated 30th April.—Vide. infra.

But your Committee find, that on the 9th January 1781, the expected anſwers from Nagpore were received, and ſeem to have greatly diſappointed the hopes of the Board, as they contained ſo many objections to the propoſed treaty, that little room was left to hope for an immediate accommodation with the Government of Poonah; and it indeed further appears, that they contained a variety of claims and propoſitions aſſerted by Moodajee on his own account, "which, though they "were not wholly new (to uſe the expreſſion of the "Board) were recapitulated in a ſtyle that impreſſed us "with doubts regarding the ſincerity of Moodajee's "former profeſſions and aſſurances."

See theſe Letters in Book of Appendix, accompanying the Letter of 30th April, marked No. 1, 2, 3, 4. Appx. No. 363.

Theſe replies, which in another letter the Board termed a total rejection of their propoſals, they ſuppoſed to be founded on an opinion, that their affairs were reduced to ſo deſperate a ſtate, as might render it too hazardous for the Berar Government to take a decided part in their favour, and afforded no hope of ſucceſs in the mediation required.

Sec. Letter, 27 April 1781. Appx. No. 364.

Your Committee, however, find, that the Governor General and Council thought it yet more incumbent upon them to proſecute the deſign of ſending Colonel Pearce's detachment into the Carnatic, againſt every oppoſition it might meet with, though at the ſame time they took meaſures to provide for its unmoleſted march, "and to mark that attention which was due to the rela-"tion in which they had till that time ſtood with the "Government of Berar," by deputing to Rajah Chimnajee Booſla, a confidential perſon, who ſhould endeavour to prevail upon him, at leaſt to remove his troops from the road of Colonel Pearce's paſſage, if he would not be induced to take a more friendly part, and ſend a body of cavalry to accompany the Colonel, and act under his command.

This reſolution led to a ſeries of negociations with Rajah Chimnajee, and alſo with Rajah Ram Pundit, the Naib of Cuttack, the particular detail of which was conveyed to the Court of Directors in a detached narrative, accompanied with a collection of letters. The moſt material parts of them we have placed in the Appendix, No. 365, and entirely recommended them to the attentive peruſal of the Houſe, as they contain the fulleſt information on theſe points, and many curious and inſtructive remarks on the general poſture of affairs, and the ſituation of other Powers, by which the Court of Berar might be probably influenced in its preſent conduct towards the Engliſh. The ſchemes of policy by which the Governor General ſeems to have dictated the inſtructions he gave to Mr. Anderſon (the Gentleman deputed) will alſo appear in the document, as well reſpecting the particular ſucceſſion to the Rauje, as alſo the mode of accommodating the demand of Chout, the eſtabliſhment of which was apparently the great aim of Moodajee's political manœuvres, while the Governor General's wiſh to defeat it was avowedly more intent on the removal of a nominal diſgrace, than on the anxiety or reſolution to be freed from an expenſive if an unavoidable incumbrance. The effect of theſe tranſactions appears to have been, that Mr. Anderſon returned to Calcutta, bringing with him Rajah Ram Pundit; when an engagement was formally concluded on the 29th of March, in the name of his maſter Rajah Chimnajee; by which it was ſtipulated, that a body of 2,000 effective horſe ſhould be detached from the army at Cuttack, and placed under Colonel Pearce's command; their pay to be iſſued by the Engliſh pay-maſter, at the rate of one lack of rupees per month; that a party of the Company's forces ſhould aſſiſt the Government of Berar in aſſerting its pretenſions to the diſtricts of Gurra Mundela, a ſmall territory lying on the banks of the Nerbudda, and under the actual poſſeſſion of the Peiſhwa. We perceive that Major Popham was accordingly ordered to command a detachment of the Company's troops upon that ſervice.

It was at the ſame time reſolved, that a gratuity "of "13 lacks of rupees, being the remainder of a ſum "of 16 lacks propoſed as a contribution for the relief "of the forces in the province of Cuttack, in the event "of the acquieſcence of the Government of Berar in "the propoſals which were tranſmitted in October laſt "to them, ſhould be granted, and delivered to Rajah "Ram Pundit on the behalf of Chimnajee, for the re"lief of the army, repreſented to be in the greateſt "diſtreſs, and as an acknowledgment for the paſt, and "ſeaſonable inſtances afforded of the friendſhip of that "Government. A loan of 10 lacks, requeſted for the "ſame purpoſe, was alſo granted to Chimnajee, on the "part of the Government of Berar, on the ſecurity of "Rajah Ram Pundit for payment."

The narrative to which your Committee have referred the Houſe, will ſhew them how far the extreme diſtreſs of his ſituation for want of money to ſatisfy his troops, might be ſuppoſed to operate as an inducement with Chimnajee to make theſe agreements; and how far alſo ſuch a ſum was likely to quiet the murmurs of thoſe to whom it was ſaid five times as much was due; and who were repreſented to be with difficulty reſtrained from depredation and plunder on the provinces of the Company. It is alſo to be remarked, that this tranſaction was concluded without the knowledge and concurrence of Moodajee Booſla, or his Duan, who had before refuſed to allow of any agreement on thoſe terms. But it appears by the following obſervation of the Governor General and Council, that they nevertheleſs reckoned upon the moſt confirmed effect of it:—"We have "laboured, and we think with a ſucceſs now decided, "to detach the moſt powerful member of the Maratta "State, and in its relation to Bengal the moſt capable "of any in India to do it either ſervice or hurt, from "the general confederacy which has been formed againſt "us, and have converted it, oſtenſibly at leaſt, into a "party to our cauſe. The event will ſhortly prove the "truth of our concluſions."

Of this, indeed, your Committee do not find that any other aſſurance had yet been indicated, than the ſafe and unmoleſted paſſage of Colonel Pearce's detachment, which Rajah Chimnajee himſelf attended to the borders of the Cuttack, and ſhewed much attention to the commander. It further indeed appears, that the Rajah had ſeverely puniſhed the only inſtance of any hoſtile attempt, which a party of his troops had made by an incurſion upon the frontiers of Midnapore.

It was aſſerted towards the end of April, that he was then on his return to the capital of Berar. The laſt letters from thence appear to have been received at Calcutta on the 8th March, and in them your Committee perceive no encouragement to the Superior Council, to hope for ſpeedy aſſiſtance of any kind from that quarter. The treaty had not been forwarded to Poonah: profeſſions of friendſhip indeed were made, but they were attended by an expreſs declaration, "that there "were other treaties and engagements which circum"ſcribed them; that the Maha Rajah was connected by "treaties with Pundit Purdhaun; and that the family of "Booſla never did or would vary a hair's breadth from "any engagements."

Your Committee find, that Colonel Pearce's detachment reached Ganjam at the end of March, but was long prevented from much further advance, by the violence of an infectious diſorder, which, added to a great deſertion among the Sepoys, much weakened the force of the battalions. No certain account ſeems to have been received of its arrival at Madras, or of its junction with Sir Eyre Coote's army. Another detachment under the command of Colonel Camac, the ſcene of whoſe operations lay on the weſtern ſide of the Jumna, ſeems for a time to have been expoſed to great hazard and diſtreſs, being ſurrounded by the forces of Madajee Scindia; but before any ſuccours could reach it, Colonel Camac worked his own relief, by a bold and ſucceſsful attack on the enemy's camp, the whole plunder of which, with the guns, ammunition, and ſtores, fell into his hands.

A third corps, under the conduct of Colonel Morgan, was ſent againſt Calpee. The firſt profeſſed object of this plan, was to protect the rear of Colonel Camac's detachment, and to be a check upon Nudjiff Cawn; but the commander of it was alſo inſtructed to uſe his efforts to gain ſuch command over the adjacent country, as to be able to collect thoſe revenues which had before been paid to the Maratta Government. The fort appears to have been abandoned on his approach, and he of courſe took an eaſy poſſeſſion of it; but the chief who held the diſtrict not having appeared ſo ready to obey a requiſition for the transfer of his tribute, the Board approved of Colonel Morgan's deſign of placing an aumil over it, in the hope of drawing a conſiderable revenue therefrom.

Theſe are the principal military tranſactions, of which your Committee have found information in the lateſt diſpatches from Bengal. Yet, although theſe were attended with ſucceſs, there was intelligence of other matters from thoſe parts, which did not bear ſo favourable an appearance. The diſtreſſes of the Vizier had increaſed to ſo great a degree, that they would not permit him to make complete payment of the Company's claim upon him, and it became therefore neceſſary to be content with a great part of it in aſſignments, which, however, by Mr. Middleton's calculation, exceeded the demands for the ſervices of the year by above ſix lacks. A proſpect of troubles alſo aroſe from the conduct of Fizoola Cawn, who continued to refuſe the ſtipulated number of troops, and the Bengal Government had, as guarantees of the treaty, ſent a formal requiſition to him, inſiſting upon the performance of his engagements.

The troops which compoſed the garriſon of Guallier, your Committee have obſerved, were ordered to march under the command of Major Popham, and to aſſiſt in the reduction of the Gurra Mundela country; and he was inſtructed by the Governor General and Council, to deliver up to the Rana of Ghode the fort itſelf; their motives for which they declared to be, that the Rana had repeatedly urged his claim to it, that he had given great proof of his fidelity and attachment to the Company; to which they added, that, "they thought it pe"culiarly

" culiarly neceſſary at a time when they were endea-
" vouring to form new alliances of the firſt conſequence
" to their intereſt, to remove every circumſtance that " might tend to throw doubt upon the Company's fide-
" lity to their public treaties."

15 May. In regard to thoſe alliances, which they were deſirous of forming with the two European Powers, the Dutch and Portugueſe, your Committee find, that neither of them terminated agreeable to the firſt wiſh and intention of the Board, though it is obſervable that they expreſſed a pleaſure in the rejection of the former by the Madras Government, ſince the plan itſelf, founded on the deſperate neceſſity of the affairs on the coaſt, was one of the great and numerous exertions which the Government of Bengal had made for their relief, but was rendered unneceſſary by the change to a more proſperous ſtate.

See Appx. No. 379. Letter dated 29 April 1780. It ſhould, indeed, be obſerved, that previous to the date of the letter here referred to, the Governor General and Council had received accounts from home of ſome ſteps which tended to a rupture between Great Britain and the republic of Holland.

27 April, Par. 10. It appears, however, that the Governor General and Council thought a ſupply of European ſtrength of ſo much importance to the ſucceſs of the war in the Carnatic, that they wrote, on the 22d January, to the Preſident and Select Committee at Fort Marlborough, to deſire that they would ſpare the European force at that Preſidency, conſiſting of 400 men; and they ſeemed to think, that this requiſition might be properly complied with, becauſe the remaining force, conſiſting of Coffrees and Malays, would be ſufficient for the defence of that place againſt the enemies of the country, and the ſmall force in Europeans was at all events unequal to its protection againſt an European enemy.

Par. 44. Dated 15 May. See alſo Letter from Mr. Auriol to the Governor General dated 20 March 1781. Appx. No. 367. With reſpect to the overtures intended to be made to the Portugueſe Government at Goa, the Governor General and Council, in their letter of the 27th April, manifeſted their indifference about the further proſecution of them; but it appears by the poſtſcript to that letter, that the enemy had been beforehand with them, and that a treaty offenſive and defenſive was formed between Hyder Ally and the Captain General of Goa, ſo long before as the month of September, eight or ten days after the unfortunate defeat of Colonel Baillie's detachment, and that there was great reaſon to ſuppoſe that the troops which the Captain General had engaged to ſupply, were actually on the road towards the place of rendezvous.

See Sec. Letter, 3 Feb. 1781. Appx. No. 368. And ſee alſo Appx. No. 365. The line of conduct which the Nizam appears to have purſued, was hitherto neutral. The Guntoor Circar which had been delivered up by the Madras Government, he retained in his own poſſeſſion; and the Calcutta Board do not ſeem to have been diſpleaſed at it. Your Committee indeed perceive, that ſome hopes were entertained of being able to draw him to the Engliſh party, from the circumſtances of his known jealouſy of Hyder's ſucceſs and aggrandizement, and more particularly when he ſhould be informed of what the Governor General believed to be true, that Hyder Ally had obtained from the King a grant of his dominions. And we have indeed perceived, that according to the information of Mr. Hollond, the Nizam had ſome time before expreſſed his readineſs to join the Engliſh againſt Hyder on certain conditions, the firſt of which was ſaid to be that the ſupport of Ragonaut Row ſhould be for ever abandoned; and the Board directed Mr. Hollond to aſſure his Highneſs, that Ragoba was not ſupported by them in any claim upon the Government at Poonah, and that indeed they were not by any alliance connected with him, though they ſhould think it diſhonourable to deliver him up into the hands of his enemies.

Appx. No. 368. Letter from the Governor General and Council to Mr. Hollond, dated 22 Jan. 1781. Your Committee have remarked, that one of the principal objections which Meodajee Booſla and his Duan made to the articles propoſed for an accommodation with the Poonah Government, was in regard to the future diſpoſal of Ragoba, whoſe place of reſidence, as well as his ſtipend and number of attendants, they expected ſhould be fixed at the diſcretion of the Maratta Miniſtry; and it does not appear that the Governor General and Council declared any other motives for their interference in his favour, than the ſafety of his perſon, which they thought required a free choice as to the place of his reſidence.

15 May 1781. The proſpect of peace, through the mediation of the Court of Berar, between the Britiſh Governments in India and the Maratta Empire, appears to have been repreſented under this ſtate of ſuſpence which your Committee have explained, when the laſt official diſpatches were tranſmitted from Bengal. It is indeed to be obſerved, that the Governor General and Council very plainly declared their ſatisfaction in the unwillingneſs of the Miniſter to accept the offer of a treaty, ſince it left them at liberty to ſecure to the Company the important poſſeſſion of Baſſein, and the other advantages acquired by their troops in the Weſt of India.

Extract of Sel. Letter from Fort St. George, 17 Feb. 1781. Appx. No. 369. N. B. The two Letters from the Peiſhwa, referred to as inclofures, are not to be found. Par. 33, Sec. Letter, 27 April. Some greater hopes indeed of pacification ſeem to have been entertained by the Preſidency of Fort Saint George, as the Nabob Walaw Jaw, who alſo was employed, at the deſire of the Governor General, in a mediation with the Poonah Durbar, had received advices from them, by which it was ſuppoſed they diſcovered a ready diſpoſition to ſettle proper terms of agreement; and it further appears, that a letter had been written to Sir Eyre Coote by the Miniſter, and the purport of it was a declaration, that the Peiſhwa would willingly agree to any plan for accommodation, the advantages of which ſhould not be entirely on the ſide of the Engliſh.

The Government of Bengal however, who acknowledged their curioſity to have been raiſed to a knowledge of the terms by which the peaceable intentions of the Poonah Government were to be proved, expreſſed their ſurprize when they found the following to be the conditions recommended:—" That they ſhould deliver " up to the Marattas the Iſlands of Salſette and Baſſein,
" the fort of Gualtier, the forts in Guzerat, and all the " countries taken from them in Concan, &c. and fur-
" render to their pleaſure the perſon of Ragonaut Row."
—And the Governor General and Council thereupon obſerved, that although they wiſhed for peace with the Maratta State, they would not make peace on terms diſhonourable to themſelves, or diſgrace the Engliſh name by ſubmitting to conditions which could not be complied with without a ſacrifice of the honour and intereſt of the Company. In their laſt letter, under date 15th May, they further declared their fixed reſolution in theſe words:—" Reſpecting other conditions, (being de" termined not to part with the valuable acquiſition of " Baſſein) on which we might be willing to accede to a
" peace, the ill ſucceſs with which our advances have been " hitherto attended, and the preſumption which they
" ſeem to have given birth to, in the arrogant conduct " of the Miniſter, diſcourage us in looking to any fa" vourable determination of the war, but as we have " adviſed you in our laſt addreſs, by the moſt vigorous
" and ſucceſsful proſecution of it."

And in the ſame letter they again take notice, with ſome chagrin, of the ſyſtem of defence adopted and recommended by the Preſidency of Bombay, expreſſing however a hope, that the remonſtrance which had been made againſt it, " would have the good effect they in" tended, in altering a plan of conduct as oppoſite to " their late opinions, as they deemed it hoſtile to the " attainment of that object, which both of them pro-
" feſſed to aim at; an honourable and advantageous
" peace."

With theſe accounts of the preſent political ſituation of the Britiſh Governments in India, reſpecting thoſe Powers immediately or more remotely intereſted in the war, which has been the ſubject of our enquiry, your Committee had nearly concluded their narrative and obſervations; having only reſerved ſome remarks on the orders which the Company have lately ſent to their adminiſtrations in thoſe parts, for the more regular and complete termination of them. We have thought it proper, for reaſons which appeared to us moſt juſt and forcible, to draw from no other ſource than the records of the Company, or the official diſpatches of the Miniſters, thoſe materials which we have endeavoured faithfully, though perhaps without ſufficient method and perſpicuity, to digeſt and arrange for the information of the Houſe. The laſt regular advices from Bengal which were received by the Bellmont, contained thoſe papers already taken notice of; and your Committee upon enquiry found, that the Neptune, on board of which the only copies of conſultations and other proceedings were ſuppoſed to be ſent, had been obliged, by having ſprung a leak, to put back, ſo that we looked for the beſt remaining authority in the letters from the Governor General and Council of the 27th April and 15th May, wherein the Houſe will have ſeen what was the apparent proſpect of pacification at that time, and what little encouragement for hope of tranquillity, aroſe from the mediation of the Court of Berar. No mention of freſher advices from Nagpere has been found therein, than thoſe which were received on the 8th March. The letter from the Superior Council to Bombay, which ſtimulated only the ſpirit of offenſive war, was dated on the 10th May, and the language of it appears corroborated by that of the 15th to the Court of Directors.—But it has been ſince ſtated to your Committee, that by the ſame conveyance which brought this diſpatch of the 15th May, Major Scott, who appears to have been appointed by the Governor General his agent at home, for managing his political intereſts, received a private packet, wherein were incloſed ſeveral revenue papers which had not been tranſmitted in that ſhip to the Court of Directors; and alſo a letter from the Duan of Moodajee Booſla to the Governor General, which was dated 5th April, and received by him on the 10th May 1781. The exiſtence of this letter appears to have been accidentally made known to the Court on the 26th February laſt, when it was immediately called for by them; and on the firſt of March, they communicated a copy of it to your Committee, which we lay before the Houſe, in the Appendix No. 372. The Houſe will judge what alteration this letter may be ſuppoſed to make in the proſpect of accommodation, as far as that object may depend upon the earneſt interference of the Court of Berar. The force of the reaſons aſſigned, why, amidſt the ferment of war and paſſion, the treaty proffered by the Government of Bengal had hitherto remained in ſuſpence, will be duly conſidered, as will alſo the manner in which the articles relative to Ragonaut Row, the ſort of Gualier, and Futty Sing, are now alone mentioned as grounds of objection. Attention will be paid to the probable motives and ſincerity of that apparent warmth with which the Duan urges his new invitation to the re-eſtabliſhment of peace, after making remarks on the various events of the war; whereby he obſerves, "That as full "revenge had been taken for the diſgrace of the Bombay "detachment, and the Engliſh name was a hundred "times greater than before, and the dread and reſpect "of the Engliſh ſo eſtabliſhed over all, that if any one "ſhould hereafter be at enmity with them, the ſame conſequence would be expected to follow; they therefore "ſhould be thankful that ſo ſmall a force had been able "to prevail againſt ſuch numerous hoſts in every part, "and ſhould by all means open the door to peace and "friendſhip, and uſe their utmoſt power to root out the "French and Hyder Naig."—Upon this point of reconciliation with the Maratta State, and the moſt efficacious means of accompliſhing it, the Duan will be found to write in more explicit terms, as follows: "What is "paſt is paſt. At this time, in which I am writing, the "ſcale of ſtrength between the forces of both parties "hangs equal. No time can be better than the preſent, "for the work of peace. You ſhould look upon this as "propitious, and not let it ſlip; ſince the wiſe never "let opportunity paſs, for it is impoſſible to be re-"called. Therefore you ſhould begin a negociation "through the mediation of the Nabob Nizam ul Dowlah, "who is one of the moſt principal Chiefs of the Decan. "He will repreſent here whatever you ſhall think pro-"per to write to him, without diminution or exaggera-"tion; and in return by the ſame channel, whatever is "to be written, will be written; and let the Nabob "Mobarig ul Mulk be applied to in reſpect of this nego-"ciation, who is the firm pillar of the fortune, and "greatneſs of the Aſoſean race, and to whom you have "heretofore written; ſo that the Raja, the Nabob Ma-"boriz ul Mulk, and the Nabob Nizam ul Dowlah, may "join in a mediation, and obtain from Pundit Purdhaun "ſuch a treaty as may prevent any diſputes in future, "and a plan be laid for the extirpating the power of "Hyder and the French."

And he concludes his letter in theſe words: "From "the emotions of my heart therefore, and the impulſe "of friendſhip, which attracts me towards you, I have "been induced to write ſo fully. I have not omitted a "ſingle point in this letter, that could contribute to "ſet matters in the fulleſt light, either in weighing the "preſent circumſtances, or looking forward to future "conſequences. I have the ſtrongeſt hope, that you "will examine the whole by yourſelf, word by word, "and approve of all that I have ſaid. And after the "foundation of peace is thus laid, and I am relieved a "little from my diſorder, I will certainly do myſelf the "honour of having one time an interview with you."

It is remarkable, that no mention whatever is made of Chimnajee Booſla, or of the troops in the Cuttack, of whoſe forbearance under great diſtreſſes for money, the former letters had been filled with very pointed repreſentations.

It may indeed be proper to obſerve, upon the general tenor of this letter, as well as upon ſome particular paſſages in it, that they certainly diſcover the ſtrong effect which change of circumſtances had upon the diſpoſition and language of the Berar miniſter. The conqueſts of General Goddard in the Guzerat and the Conkan, and his ſuppoſed eſtabliſhment on the top of the Ghauts; the unexpected reverſe in favour of Colonel Camac, againſt the very ſuperior forces of Madajee Scindia; the reviving credit of the Britiſh arms in the Carnatic, under Sir Eyre Coote, to which however ſhould be added a mixture of dread and jealouſy of Hyder's ambition, fomented and ſupported by the French, have apparently contributed to turn the balance of political doubt, ſo far at leaſt on the ſide of the Engliſh, as to have removed ſome of the difficulties before ſtarted in the way of pacification. There will not eſcape the attention of the Houſe, the lead which is given to the Nizam, in the propoſed renewal of a mediation for peace, and the recommendation of ſoliciting the interference of Nudjif Cown, of whoſe preparations and deſigns we have noticed the jealouſy of the Bengal Government in the plan of an expedition under Colonel Morgan.

It muſt not however be omitted at the ſame time to remark, that the alarms then evidently entertained by the Duan for the fate of Poonah, would be ſoon afterwards removed by the retreat of General Goddard; a meaſure which Dewagur had certainly not expected, as appears by this expreſſion in his letter: "As it will not "be proper for him (General Goddard) to retreat, he "will deſcend from the Ghauts upon Poonah."

It is alſo to be remembered, that the Calcutta Board ſuppoſed the General to be ſtill in poſt on the ſummit of the Ghauts.

What degree of influence the ſubſequent knowledge of the difficulty with which he had effected his retrograde deſcent to Callian would have upon the politics of either Government, may be a ſubject for ſpeculation. Your Committee think it proper to confine themſelves to the ſimple remark of the fact. Yet it may be added, that the the Superior Council have in their laſt letter manifeſted a quickneſs of alarm at any circumſtance which might tend to betray a ſlackneſs or remiſſion in the vigorous 15 May 1781. proſecution of the war; for beſides the diſlike of the defenſive ſyſtem which the Preſidency of Bombay had reſolved upon, they expreſſed ſome apprehenſion, leſt the meaſure of ſending back the Fort Saint George troops, though conformable to their inſtructions, "might "have an unfavourable influence on their affairs at that "time, (which might be conſidered at their criſis) by "impreſſing the minds of the public with an opinion "that ſome neceſſity, or a conſciouſneſs of their inabi-"lity to proſecute the great advantages which they had "acquired, had compelled them to ſtop at the inſtant of "their completion."

Reflecting, however, with confidence on their remaining ſtrength in thoſe parts, and with attention to the neceſſities of the ſervice on the coaſt of Coromandel, they added, "Yet in other reſpects we have no reaſon "to be diſſatisfied with it, ſince the troops of this Pre-"ſidency and that of Bombay are ſufficient for the pro-"ſecution of the war, and the defence of our poſſeſſions "on the Malabar coaſt; and the ſervices of the Madras "detachment in the Carnatic, may be of great uſe and "importance to the ſucceſs of the war in which you "are engaged with Hyder Ally Cawn."

Your Committee find, that mutual complaints and accuſations continued to paſs between the two Preſidencies of Bengal and Fort Saint George, in regard to the cauſes of the diſtreſsful war in the Carnatic. On the 1781. Appx. No. 375. See alſo Letter dated 17 Feb. 1781. 9th of January, the Preſident and Select Committee wrote to the Court of Directors, and in terms of great diſcontent at the imputation thrown upon the conduct

No. 374. of their government by that of Fort William, endeavoured to fix the charge upon the latter, on account of the obſtinate ſupport they had given to the war againſt the Marattas, to which was to be aſcribed every enſuing misfortune that had befallen the reſt of the Company's poſſeſſions. From this opinion however, your Committee obſerve, that Sir Eyre Coote declared a very explicit diſſent, becauſe, whatever reaſon there might be to allow that the meaſures taken againſt the Marattas had given birth to the idea of a general combination of the powers of Indoſtan againſt the Engliſh, he could not for many reaſons admit, that the formidable incurſion of Hyder Ally into the Carnatic, was owing to that cauſe alone; well knowing that the deliberate umbrage given to the Nizam, by their behaviour concerning the Peſcuſh and the Guntoor Circar, had been the provocation which had incited him to become an agent in fomenting the offences taken by Hyder, and which he himſelf acknowledged to have been the reaſons for his encouraging a combination of the powers againſt them. While at the very time the treaty was carrying on with Bazalet Jung, it was a thing certain, that Hyder would have entered into an offenſive and defenſive alliance with them.

Appx. No. 375. 1ſt March 1781. See alſo Letter to Sel. Committee of Bombay. Yet it is obſervable, that on the 1ſt March, Sir Eyre Coote wrote to General Goddard, and expreſſed much uneaſineſs at the apparent delay of proper means for an accommodation with the Marattas, which he thought might have been ſooner effected, and which, as the cure of all their diſtreſſes, could not be juſtifiably procraſtinated. His own words upon this ſubject will beſt point out the idea he entertained of the origin of the war, of the continuance of it under their preſent circumſtances, and of the neceſſity of putting an end to it.

"Although I ever conſidered the policy of warring "againſt the Maratta State a moſt ruinous one to the in-"tereſts both of the Company and the Engliſh nation, "ſtill, on the eve of your late ſucceſs, if we had no other "power to combat againſt, I might have ſubſcribed to "the plan you adviſed me as laid down for the ope-"rations of your campaign, as the moſt likely to pro-"cure us honourable terms of accommodation; but, "engaged as we are in a ſcene of contention, I may ſay "with every power of any conſideration in India, all "ſteps, the event of which could not be clearly aſcer-"tained as an unfailing remedy, muſt be exceptionable. "By proſecuting the war our difficulties muſt be in-"creaſed, and the proſpect of obtaining peace become "daily more diſtant. Our reſources, anticipated by "the current demands of our military eſtabliſhment, to "which they are unequal, and burthened with a heavy "debt, cannot long ſupport the preſent ſyſtem. I muſt "therefore impoſe it upon you as a duty you owe to "your King, your Country, and your Employers, to "leave no means which may depend upon you, untried "to effect a peace with the Marattas, and which may "enable you ſpeedily to carry into execution my orders "for entering, and creating a powerful diverſion in "Hyder Ally's country on the Malabar ſide."

It has appeared to your Committee, that the Preſident and Select Committee of Bombay excuſed their conduct to Sir Eyre Coote, in a letter dated 26th April, wherein Letter from Bombay to Sir Eyre Coote, 26 April 1781. Appx. No. 376. they attributed the particular line of it to the recommendation of the Superior Government, adding thereupon, that General Goddard alſo acted under ſimilar authority and inſtruction.—In further exculpation of themſelves, with regard to the object againſt which he adviſed the particular direction of their hoſtilities, they aſſured the Commander in Chief, that though they were convinced of the neceſſity, and were ſincerely deſirous of bringing the Maratta war to a concluſion, yet until that enemy would conſent to an accommodation, it would be as impracticable and as unſafe for them to employ the army againſt the poſſeſſions of Hyder Ally, as it would be for him to make a diverſion in their favour againſt the Marattas. They had already done their utmoſt in having reſolved to reduce their plan of military operations to a mere ſyſtem of defence; and as there was no doubt of Hyder and the Marattas being bound by mutual engagements which they would probably abide by ſo long as they might find it to their intereſt or ſafety, proviſion muſt be made to reſiſt the attempts of both thoſe powers, until one or other could be detached from their engagements, or effectually depreſſed.—It will be hardly neceſſary to remind the Houſe, that the remonſtrances of the Superior Council, under date 10 May, again entirely claſhed with the wiſhes and conceptions of the Commander in Chief, as much as they were repugnant to the ſyſtem of that Government to which they were addreſſed.

It is remarkable, that Sir Eyre Coote intimated, from See Poſtſcript to his Letter. information he had received, that Hyder was ſo anxious to defeat their views of peace with the Marattas, and had carried his intrigues ſo far as to authorize Ragonaut Row to employ his credit in the expenditure of whatever ſum might be neceſſary to that end. Your Committee have indeed, in vain ſought for any accounts of Ragoba's proceedings in the lateſt records of the Company, and can therefore give no certain relation of his behaviour under the reduced circumſtances which the orders of the Superior Government had preſcribed for him. He has been diſtinguiſhed by no other apparent conſequence, or even notice in the late tranſactions, than what the ſuſpicions of the Poonah Miniſtry, and the perſonal animoſities of the Nizam have given to him. The ſingle remaining object of hoſtilities againſt the Marattas, was declared to be the hope of accompliſhing a pacification, on more advantageous and honourable terms to the Company, than had yet been offered, or liſtened to, by the enemy. It has appeared, that the Superior Government had taken chiefly upon itſelf the neceſſary ſupply of force and treaſure, as well as the direction and reſponſibility of the war, which was now ſpreading, by a variety of active operations, from the banks of the Jumna to the coaſt of Malabar. The affairs of the Carnatic were alſo in a great meaſure dependant for ſupport and recovery on the efforts of the Government of Bengal, as the ſtrength and reſources of the Madras Preſidency, and of their ally the Nabob Wa'aw

Jaw, were confeſſedly unequal to reſiſtance. The ſituation indeed of the latter, was by himſelf repreſented to be moſt deplorable, not only from the deſolation of his country, but from the weight of his debts, particularly to European creditors, and from the reduction of his authority. Under the preſſure of theſe diſtreſſes, he ſought for a partial relief by an extraordinary application to the Superior Council, for their ſtill further interference in the affairs of the Carnatic, and in the regulation of his public and private intereſts.—Some account of this addreſs, and the conduct of the Calcutta Board thereupon, is given in their letter, under date 27th April, to the Court of Directors; and the papers ſubjoined in Appendix, No. 376, will further explain this ſingular repreſentation and tranſaction. The Nabob had ſent his Dewan, accompanied by an Engliſh gentleman (Mr. R. Sulivan) to Calcutta (where they arrived in the middle of March) having given them full powers to propoſe and ſettle an interchange of articles, upon which might be founded an agreement by the immediate influence and authority of the controlling Government; and it appears, that the Governor General and Council, in aſſenting to theſe propoſals, conſidered them as a ſort of temporary engagement, which they hoped might ſerve as the baſis of another treaty, to be concluded under the orders and directions of the Company, and even with the ſanction of the Engliſh Parliament. It will be ſeen by an examination of the original papers, what were the apparent motives of the Nabob's ſolicitation, and how anxious he ſeemed for a more formal avowal of his right to nominate a ſucceſſor to his dominions, as well as to extend them by the annexation of ſeveral Talooks in the Balagaut, and by a reſumption of the Zemindary of Tanjore. There will alſo be found the reaſons which ſeemed to influence the Superior Government, when they conſidered the neceſſity of ſome arrangement, for ſecuring a more certain reſource from the revenues of the Carnatic, towards the expences of the war; and for that and other purpoſes, thought proper to ſend back Mr. Sulivan, as the Miniſter of the Bengal Government, to reſide at the Nabob's Durbar, for the repreſentation of ſuch matters as might at any time require his interpoſition in that character, and in their name, either with the Nabob, or with the Preſident and Council, or Select Committee of Fort Saint George; and they granted him credentials to that effect in the uſual form.

See Appx. No. 364. Appx. No. 376. B.

Your Committee have now ſubmitted to the Houſe, the full extent of information which we have been enabled to collect upon the ſubject under our enquiry, in as much order and detail as the quantity and variety of it would readily permit. We deſire to point to the annexed Papers, for ſuch a view of the ſtate of the Revenues and the Military Force of Bengal, as we could make out from the irregular materials with which we have been furniſhed, and to refer at the ſame time to the Appendix, No. 377, for ſome additional information upon the ſubject.

Your Committee indeed think it proper here to remark, that the accounts of the Revenues and of the Military Eſtabliſhments, which we have occaſionally exhibited in the courſe of theſe Two Reports, are only intended to convey a general idea of the ſtate of thoſe objects at different periods, and to ſerve as a ſort of table of reference for the reader, during his conſideration of each ſeries of thoſe political tranſactions and events, upon which it was our particular duty in this place to expatiate. At the end of this Report, we deſire to place a general Review of the ſame objects for a courſe of years, from 1771, to the lateſt accounts received; and have added comparative balances of the receipts and diſburſements at annual periods in that interval, as well upon the articles repreſented in the charts before exhibited, as on other ſources of profit or expence ariſing from the commercial tranſactions of the Company's Governments. The more full and more exact inveſtigation of thoſe points, as well as ſeveral others, may become the ſubjects of ſome future reports, when it ſhall be thought adviſable to purſue them. We have here only to add, that we ſhall ſubjoin in the Appendix, No. 378, the particulars of thoſe charges, which we can diſcover to have attended the ſeveral expeditions and armaments occaſioned by the war with the Marattas. It is evident, that the expence of the detachment under General Goddard alone, has conſiderably exceeded one crore of rupees.

Appx. No. 378.

Your Committee will now conclude the whole ſubject of our enquiry, with ſome account of thoſe orders of the Company, which do not appear to have reached their Governments in India to whom they were addreſſed, before the laſt diſpatches were ſent from thoſe diſtant provinces. This muſt be eſteemed an indiſpenſable addition, not only for the purpoſe of explaining the ſentiments of the Court of Directors on preceding tranſactions, and on the line of conduct which they point out for future obſervation, but alſo in the view of directing the judgement of the Houſe upon the degree of probability which the influence of thoſe inſtructions, if properly obeyed, might be allowed to add to the hope, that a ſpeedy termination would be put to our unfortunate diſſentions with the native powers of India.

Appx. No. 379. There has indeed been communicated to your Committee, a letter from the Secret Committee of the Court of Directors to the Governor General and Council under date 12th April 1780, which appears not to have reached Calcutta, before the month of March, in the following year. It ſeems to have been written under the immediate impreſſion of alarm from the powerful armaments and ſuppoſed deſigns of the French againſt our ſettlements in India, and to have contained an earneſt recommendation of peace with the Marattas on any terms, by which the excluſion of the French from all eſtabliſhment within that empire, might be ſufficiently determined and confirmed.

Before the arrival of this diſpatch at the place of its deſtination, the circumſtances of affairs were certainly very much altered; and the Houſe will immediately recollect, from the information they have ſeen, what the nature of thoſe changes was, and what influence they had on the political ſituation of the Company's Governments. On the 27th April 1781, the Governor General and Council acknowledge to have received this letter, with two others of ſubſequent dates, on the 13th March preceding, and make this ſhort reply to them: "We have nothing to ſay in anſwer to the letters we "have the honour to acknowledge, and in addition to "the information already ſent to you, but that the "orders given to us have received, and always will re- "ceive our punctual execution of them."

See Appx. No. 364. 29 April, and 17 May 1780.

On the 2d February 1781, the Court of Directors having then, as it appears, received accounts of General Goddard's firſt campaign in the Guzerat, and of the deſign and proſpect of ſucceſs againſt Baſſein, wiſh a fortunate event to that enterprize, and ſeem to agree with the ſentiments of the Bombay Preſidency upon the defenſive plan to which they intended to confine their ſubſequent views. But it appears, that the great ſource of anxiety to the Court was ſtill the excluſion of the French from the Maratta dominions; and they remind their Council of Bengal, that the firſt plan of operations, when they ſent military aſſiſtance to Bombay, was "confined merely to the objects of ſecurity to the Engliſh "poſſeſſions in India, and to the excluſion of the na- "tural enemies of the Britiſh Government, from any "influence or connection with the Marattas."—Theſe ideas they declare to be conſonant to their own wiſhes on the ſubject, and expreſsly point out the conditions which they ſhould eſteem deſirable in any treaty of accommodation:—"The open and avowed predilection "of the Court of Poonah, in favour of French "agents, was the only ground upon which we coun- "tenanced hoſtilities againſt the Marattas. Upon the "removal of European influence, we repeat our moſt "anxious ſolicitude to have a ſpeedy termination put "to the war. And as conqueſt is by no means our "object, we deſire no other benefit from the late ſuc- "ceſs of our arms, than a full compliance with the "ſtipulations of the treaty of Poorunder, and the ceſſion "of Baſſein, as a neceſſary appendage to Salſette."

See the Extract from this Letter, 2d Feb. 1781. Appx. No. 380

On theſe terms they had no objection to reſtore the conqueſts in the Guzerat.—But they add, that if contrary to their expectations, unfortunate circumſtances ſhould have rendered it impoſſible to make peace on ſuch conditions, "and if ſupporting the war ſhould be "found impracticable, without reducing their inveſt- "ments, and depriving them of thoſe aids which Bengal "had uſually furniſhed to their China trade," a ſpeedy accommodation would in ſuch caſe become neceſſary upon the beſt terms poſſible, conſiſtently with the honour of the Company, and the ſecurity of their poſſeſſions.

When the firſt imperfect intelligence arrived in England of the invaſion of the Carnatic by Hyder Ally, your Committee find that the Court on the 11th April diſpatched letters to their ſeveral Preſidencies containing their inſtructions to them upon that alarming event.

1781. Letter from Court of Directors, 11 April. Appx. No. 381. See alſo Letter of that date from Committee of Secrecy.

They particularly exhorted the Superior Government to an harmony and unanimity in their Councils, which they more confidently expected, becauſe (to uſe their own words) "it does not appear to us that you have "differed in ſentiment concerning thoſe tranſactions on "the coaſt, which, we fear, have been the immediate "cauſe of the troubles in the Carnatic."

In order to counteract as much as poſſible the effect of theſe new hoſtilities with Hyder, the Court appear to have ſtrongly recommended an endeavour to put an end to thoſe with the Marattas, and to prevail upon the Poonah Government to quit their engagements with Hyder, as an unnatural alliance on their part, except againſt the Engliſh, with whom their cauſe of quarrel was temporary. But we perceive, that the Court, obſerving further on the impoſſibility of giving deciſive inſtructions, without a certain knowledge of events, leave a diſcretional power with the Governor General and Council, and only add, "that a ſafe and immediate "peace, both with Hyder and the Marattas, was to be "their primary object:" And indeed, your Committee find, they recommend this principle of pacification to be extended to a general reſtoration of tranquillity with all the neighbouring powers, "on terms of the moſt per- "fect moderation, in order to be able to abridge their "own inſupportable charges, and to relieve their "friends and allies from additional expences incurred "on account of the war, and alſo, that they might be "able to exert their whole force againſt the national "enemies, if the continuance of European troubles "ſhould render it neceſſary."

The fall of Baſſein, the news of which reached the Court of Directors after the diſpatch of the letter above-mentioned, occaſioned ſome particular orders relative to that acquiſition, and to the adviſeable terms of peace with the Marattas.

General Letter from Court of Directors, dated 31 May 1781. Appx. No. 382. See alſo Letter from Committee of Secrecy.

"As the fall of Baſſein was an event expected by our "Governor General and Council, and by our Select "Committee of Bombay, we hope, according to their "own ideas, and agreeable to the tenor of our inſtruc- "tions of the 2d of February, that upon giving up the "other diſtricts lately obtained to the Marattas, Baſſein "may have been preſerved to the Company; but we "are nevertheleſs clearly of opinion, that if peace could "not be re-eſtabliſhed with the Marattas without giving "up Baſſein, and if their aſſiſtance in repelling the in- "curſions of Hyder Ally could be obtained by the ſacri- "fice of that fortreſs, in ſuch caſe Baſſein ſhould be "forthwith reſtored. And indeed, the ſtate of affairs at "Fort Saint George by the laſt advices, is ſo very diſ- "ferent from what we had reaſon to expect when we "wrote the before-mentioned letter, that if peace be "purchaſed by the reſtitution of Baſſein, and of other "conqueſts made from the Marattas, Salſette and Car- "ranga excepted, we are convinced that the abſolute "neceſſity of the meaſure muſt have been evident before "it would be adopted; and in ſuch caſe it will have "our approbation."

And your Committee find, that the Court, in letters of the ſame date with thoſe we have now taken notice of, direct their adminiſtration at Bombay to conſider the orders ſent to the Governor General and Council on political affairs, as addreſſed to themſelves in all caſes which required their co-operation, particularly with the view of reſtoring a ſpeedy, ſafe, and honourable peace; and further enjoined them, "that all inſtructions given, and "requiſitions made by the Governor General and "Council, for the accompliſhment of that deſirable "purpoſe, ſhould be duly obſerved and carried into "execution."

2 February, 11 April, 31 May 1781. Appx. No. 383.

Par. 10. Letter 31 May 1781.

In regard to Ragoba, your Committee obſerve, that his perſonal ſafety and the ſecurity of a proviſion for his ſupport during his life, were objects uniformly recommended to the attention and care of the Governor General and Council, by the Court of Directors; and they appear to have given ſimilar aſſurances to Ragoba himſelf, in a letter dated 19th June 1781, and expreſs their hope, that ſuch proviſion would in all reſpects be ſuitable to his dignity, though they were not able at this diſtance of time and place, to ſay how far it might be in the power of their Governor General and Council to gratify all his expectations.

Letter to Ragoba, 19 June 1781. Appx. No. 384.

It having thus appeared, by the letters referred to, and by another under date 11th December 1781, that the re-eſtabliſhment of peace with the Marattas, and with all the Indian Powers, has been the principal object of the inſtructions which the Company have lately ſent to their Governments in India, your Committee will expreſs a hope, that ſo deſirable an end may be forwarded to a happy accompliſhment by the circumſtances of Sir Eyre Coote's ſucceſs in the Carartic, and by the very conſiderable addition of European force, which may probably have joined the Britiſh armies in thoſe parts, ſince the laſt diſpatches were ſent from thence.

Appx. No. 385

Your Committee cannot put an entire concluſion to theſe Reports, without endeavouring to remind the Houſe of the great maſs of materials from which we have been obliged to ſelect theſe points of information, now ſubmitted to their attention in the preſent form. This, we muſt hope, will be admitted as a ſufficient excuſe for the length of them; becauſe, though much was laid aſide as uſeleſs or impertinent, there remained a great deal which could not be rejected. For any deficiency of method or conciſeneſs, we have only to plead the nature of the ſubject and the neceſſity of the times, which called for as ſpeedy a return as could be faithfully made to the orders and inſtructions of the Houſe. In this laſt point, we truſt, there will be found no material, as there aſſuredly was no intentional failure; and we therefore ſubmit the other defects to the candour and indulgence of the Houſe.

No. 1.

Extract of Bengal Secret Conſultations, dated the 26th May 1777.

PRESENT,

The Honourable Warren Haſtings, Governor General, Preſident,
Lieutenant General John Clavering,
Richard Barwell, Philip Francis, } Eſquires.

READ the following letter from Lieutenant Colonel Upton:

Gentlemen,

I did myſelf the honour to addreſs you laſt on the 6t March, and adviſed that I ſhould leave Poorunder on th next day.

Mr. Moſtyn had not at that time left Bombay, but hear he arrived at Poonah about the 20th of March.

The Peiſhwa's Vackeel accompanies me on the journey to Fort William. We expect to get to Baliſore by the 19th or 20th of June; and from thence, if a veſſel can be procured, ſhall proceed by water to the Preſidency.

I have, &c.

Coſſem Cotta, near Vizagapatam, 15th May 1777. (Signed) J. Upton.

APPENDIX, No. 2.

Bengal Secret Conſultations, 16 June and 17 July 1777.

Tranſlates of four Papers, delivered by the Poonah Durbar to Mr. Moſtyn, and marked as follows:

5th.

THE Punt Pradan and his Miniſters agree, by way of friendſhip, to give for ever to the Engliſh Company a country of three lacks, according to cahmil or ancient ſtatement of revenues, near or adjoining to Broach; on which there is to be no claim of chout, or any other demand whatever; two carcoons belonging to the Peiſhwa, and two perſons on the part of the Engliſh, to proceed and ſettle exactly the places and boundaries, when the Peiſhwa will give the ſunnuds: This is according to the treaty. But the Governor and Council of Bombay refuſe to accept them agreeable to cahmil or former ſtatement; therefore the Governor and Council of Bombay ſhould write to Mr. Carnac and the other Gentlemen at Broach, to ſettle according to the ancient ſtatement of revenues, which they may learn from the Jamedars of the pergunnahs, and receive the countries of three lacks.

IT is very extraordinary, that ſo long as Mr. Upton remained at this Durbar, and in ſo many letters which have paſſed on this ſubject between the Governor and Council of Bombay and him, he never ſhould have mentioned a word about Cahmil; but on the contrary has always declared that it is to be a country of three complete lacks, which if Cahmil is admitted can never be the caſe. In this caſe Mr. Upton and the Governor General and Council muſt have been much deceived by you; for neither in the tranſlates of the letter to the Colonel from you, under the 18th October, your inſtructions to Madajee Ramchunder, your agent at Broach, dated 1ſt December 1776 (both of which were tranſlated by Mr. M'Pherſon, Colonel Upton's Perſian Interpreter) nor in the treaty concluded by Colonel Upton, copy of which has been tranſmitted by the Governor General and Council of Calcutta to the Governor and Council of Bombay, is there a word mentioned concerning cahmil; but on the contrary, in the 5th article of the treaty it is expreſsly ſaid, "The Marattas "do agree (by way of friendſhip) to give for ever to the "Engliſh Company a country of three complete lacks of "rupees, near or adjoining to Broach," &c. and in your letter to Madajee Ramchundra you expreſsly write, "It is en-"tered in the treaty, that pergunnahs of a complete revenue "of three lacks ſhall be given to the Engliſh."

I do therefore demand, in the name of the Engliſh Eaſt India Company, a full compliance with the 5th article of the treaty concluded by Colonel John Upton with the Maratta State, and ratified by the Governor General and Council of Calcutta; for which purpoſe I require that the proper ſunnuds and orders to your agent at Broach, drawn out in the moſt explicit terms, be immediately ſent me.

This Article is exactly conformable to the 7th Article of the Treaty of Peace entered into by Colonel Upton, except the following addition:

When ſuch was the treaty, and two letters from Futty Sing to Colonel John Upton, declaring he had no authority to alienate any country, and incloſing copy of a former Peiſhwa's ſunnud, yet the pergunnahs of Chickley, &c. are detained by you; theſe ought to be reſtored.

7th.

This Article, as far as depends on the Governor and Council of Bombay, has been fully complied with; as will the remainder, as ſoon as the proper certificates from Futty Sing, declaring he has no power to alienate any part of his poſſeſſions, are produced: but, notwithſtanding you ſay Colonel Upton has received two letters from Futty Sing, with copy a of ſunnud from a former Peiſhwa, declaring he had no authority ſo to do, I can only declare, neither theſe letters nor the ſunnud were ever ſent to the Governor and Council of Bombay. I cannot however help obſerving, that it is very extraordinary Futty Sing ſhould give ſuch letters, after his vackeel had denied to the Governor and Council of Bombay your having the power to alienate any part of his territories, and making a formal demand in the name of his maſter for the reſtitution of theſe very pergunnahs. This aſſertion of the vackeel in the name of his maſter appears to have ſome foundation; for if the whole of the Guicawar poſſeſſions were at the will or diſpoſal of the Peiſhwa, where was the neceſſity of the Peiſhwa Badjerow, commonly called Nanah, to enter into a partition treaty with Damajee Guicawar, by which the Guzerat dominions were divided nearly half and half between the Peiſhwa and Guicawar families? In the ſhare which fell to the latter were included the above diſtricts. It is further remarkable, that at the very time Mr. Price entered into a treaty with Futty Sing at Broach in the year 1773, and I was at Poonah, the Peiſhwa ſhould make no objections thereto. From theſe circumſtances, your claiming the ſole right of diſpoſing of the Guicawar's territories appears very extraordinary.

The treaties between the Government of Bombay and the Marattas, dated July 1739, and the 12th October 1756, are to be held and continued in as full force as when they were firſt entered into, unleſs any article or articles, or either of them, ſhould in other meaſures be provided for by this treaty; in ſuch caſe, ſuch article or articles are to be rejected, and thoſe of this treaty to be abided by. And it is mentioned in a former treaty, that the Engliſh will give no aſſiſtance at any rate to my enemies, even though in friendſhip with them; accordingly, the Peiſhwa ſhall give no aſſiſtance to the enemies of the Engliſh. In another treaty, it is agreed, that orders ſhall be given to the officers of the Circar, to ſtop all ſervant, ſoldiers, or great men belonging to the Engliſh, who ſhould deſert, and acquaint the Governor or Chief of the neareſt ſettlement where ſuch perſon ſhall be taken, and when the Company's people come for them, they ſhall be delivered up to them; accordingly, the ſervants or great men belonging to the Circar, except that man who may have gone to Bombay, or any ſettlement under their juriſdiction, ſhall be delivered up again. To this both parties agreed on promiſe of pardon: this is the agreement; notwithſtanding which you ſent boats for Dada Saib, carried him to Bombay, and gave him protection, as you alſo did the people of Tooteya, with the Circar's elephants, horſes, jewels, money, &c. they carried with them. Agreeable to this treaty, our friendſhip had long ſubſiſted, but you knowing a diſpute had ariſen in my houſe, and that my Officers and forces were gone towards Brampore, took that opportunity to attack and take Salſette, and other forts, from whence the Engliſh carried away all the valuable effects. You alſo gave aſſiſtance to Ragonath Row, which has put me to the expence of a crore; but through the means of the Supreme Council of Calcutta, a new treaty of peace and friendſhip has been concluded, notwithſtanding which you have given protection both to Ragonath Row and the Impoſtor's people, which obliges me to keep forces in the Conkan. Of whom am I to expect payment of this expence? and how is the treaty obſerved by the Engliſh? In former treaties the Circar's enemies were to be delivered up.

This Article ſeems principally to refer to the 3d article of the treaty made at Bombay the 14th September 1761, which runs as follows: "That all Europeans and natives, "either ſoldiers, ſeamen, or others, in His Britannic Majeſty's "or the Honourable Company's pay, who may hereafter "deſert from Bombay, ſhall be immediately ſecured and re-"turned to the neareſt Engliſh ſettlement to ſuch place where "they may be apprehended upon landing in any part of the "Maratta country, the Governor having promiſed ſuch a "free pardon, and to pay any reaſonable charges that may "be incurred upon the occaſion: in like manner ſhall be "delivered up all deſerters in the Engliſh pay from Surat, on "their being drawn, or immediately on receiving notice of "them within the Maratta limits, it not being in their power "to ſpeak more poſitively with reſpect to thoſe of Surat, as "the country thereabouts is open, and numbers go through "it without being known. It is alſo agreed, that whatever "people, Europeans of all nations excepted, who are in the "ſervice of Maderow, and may deſert therefrom to the Eng-"liſh, ſhall be delivered up on the ſame terms and condi-"tions." This certainly only relates to people who are immediately in the ſervice, and receive pay from either State, as menial ſervants or ſoldiers; but cannot in any ſhape be conſtrued to mean gentlemen or principal men of either. Therefore the Governor and Council of Bombay, giving mere perſonal protection to Ragonath Row, does not infringe any one article of the treaties entered into with the Maratta State; and I do poſitively deny any boats being ſent for him, for he eſcaped from Terrapore in boats provided by himſelf, and by mere accident met our veſſel at ſea. Your now ſtarting this objection appears more extraordinary, as Colonel Upton, in a letter to the Governor and Council of Bombay, dated no longer ago than the 12th December laſt, writes them, that he had informed you how very deſirous the Governor and Council of Bombay were to give all poſſible ſatisfaction to the Poonah Government, and to remove, as far as they could, all doubts the Miniſters might entertain in conſequence of Ragoba's reſidence at Bombay; for which purpoſe the Colonel had aſſured your Miniſters in their name, that Ragoba only reſided there as a private perſon for the ſecurity of his perſon, that they would not in any ſhape countenance or ſupport any ſchemes or deſigns to your prejudice, or in the leaſt infringe the late treaty, of which they could not allow their affording Ragoba mere perſonal protection to be any breach; with which he ſaid your Miniſters ſeemed well pleaſed, and for the preſent ſatisfied. After Colonel Upton having written this, what am I to think of your making objections? The Governor and Council of Bombay were induced by humanity alone to receive the people of Sudaba into Salſette, to preſerve their lives, and to prevent their being killed immediately before their faces. They would have acted in the ſame manner by your forces, had they been reduced to the ſame ſituation. The Governor and Council gave themſelves no further trouble about them; they went where they pleaſed, and carried away whatever they had brought with them. The Engliſh certainly do not oblige you to keep forces in the Conkan, as they have given you every proof in their power of their ſincere deſire ſtrictly to adhere to the late treaty, of which my being ſent to you ought to be a moſt convincing one; you muſt therefore, I ſuppoſe, have ſome other reaſons than your apprehenſions of what the Engliſh may do for your keeping forces there. You have conſequently brought the expence on yourſelf.

When you have fully complied with that part of your letter to Colonel Upton of the 18th October 1776, relative to this Pergunnah, it will be delivered up to you; but as the true intent and meaning of the late treaty is, that the Company ſhall receive the complete ſum of 12 lacks of rupees for the expences of the war; the charges attending the collections muſt, of courſe be deducted, which the Governor and Council of Bombay have given ſtrict orders ſhall be confined within the moſt moderate bounds that prudence or the ſafety of the Pergunnah will permit, and you may ſend a truſty perſon to reſide there, and take receipts from the Engliſh reſident for the balance.

According to the treaty, it is agreed the Sircar ſhall pay to the Engliſh the ſum of 12 lacks of rupees, and until that amount is diſcharged, the revenues of Jambooſeer, as agreed with Colonel Upton, is given up to the Engliſh; when the whole is paid off, the Engliſh to return the ſaid Pergunnah to the Circar, with every thing belonging to it. For my ſatisfaction, I propoſe to the Governor and Council of Bombay two conditions, the firſt, that the amount revenues ſhould be ſettled and recovered by the Circar's man, Madajee Ramchundra, who would pay it to the Engliſh on their giving a receipt; the ſecond condition, that the Jemmabundy of the ſaid Pergunnah ſhould be made by Madajee Ramchundra, for which amount, the Engliſh to give a receipt and recover the revenues. Of theſe two conditions, the Governor and Council of Bombay accepted the latter; but the Gentlemen of the ſaid Pergunnah has not yet given any account of the revenues to Madajee Ramchundra. Without the Circar's man makes the ſettlement of the revenues, how is he to know the amount to be recovered from the ſaid Pergunnah, and take the receipt for it? therefore I deſire a letter to the Gentleman at Jambooſeer from the Governor of Bombay, to permit that the Jemmabundy be ſettled by Madajee Ramchundra, and the Carcoons belonging to the ſaid Madajee, to ſet at the Cuſtom Chowkey, to know what is recovered; the Engliſh will recover the revenues of the ſaid Pergunnah, and at the Chowky's giving a receipt of the ſaid Pergunnah to the Circar's man for the amount.

Having now replied to the ſeveral papers you have ſent me, in ſuch manner as I hope, and indeed make no doubt, will convince you with what punctuality the Engliſh have on their parts complied with every article of the treaty entered into by Colonel Upton, I cannot help expreſſing my wiſh that no further delay may be made in performing the ſame on your parts. I muſt in turn lay before you ſome complaints and demands in behalf of the Honourable Company, and the merchants trading under their protection.

Firſt. Notwithſtanding the treaty of peace had been ſigned by Colonel Upton, ſix boats with Engliſh paſſes and colours, in their paſſage from Goa to Bombay, which had been under convoy of the Company's ſhip the Gatton, but by ſome accident had been ſeparated from her, were attacked and taken by your fleet on the 4th April 1776; the Terrible, one of the Company's cruizers, fell in with your fleet, and while your ſhips ſurrounded her, your ſmall veſſels not only carried off two botellas with Engliſh colours, which were under her protection, but attempted taking two others, but did not ſucceed; theſe matters were written to Colonel Upton, who in his anſwer, informed the Governor and Council of Bombay he had repreſented them to you; that you had aſſured him you would ſend orders for the immediate reſtitution of theſe eight botellas; that you had declared your orders had been very poſitive to the commanders of your veſſels, not to moleſt any veſſels, boats, &c. with Engliſh paſſes or colours, and that you would repeat theſe orders in the ſtrongeſt manner. If you have repeated theſe orders, it is very extraordinary that your fleet no longer ago than the month of March laſt ſhould take ſundry boats, particularly one loaded with timber, coming from Cullicut, belonging to the Honourable Company, which had both Engliſh paſs and colours, or that your orders for the reſtitution of the eight boats before mentioned ſhould never have been obeyed, for to this day neither of them have been returned; I therefore again, in the name of the Honourable Company, not only repeat the demand made by Mr. Upton for them, but likewiſe demand the botella laſt mentioned; and I expect that you will ſend for and puniſh the officer in command of your fleet for the inſult he offered rhe Company's cruizer; and that you fall upon ſome method for preventing the like in future, for the Engliſh cannot, nor will not, ſuffer their flag to be inſulted with impunity.

Second. In the month of Auguſt laſt the Governor and Council of Bombay ſent Colonel Upton a liſt of the cargo of the Engliſh ſhip Aurora, loſt near Rhutnagburry, to demand reſtitution thereof from you; this liſt muſt have been dielvered to you, for in your letter to him him of the 18th Oct. you write, "Attentive to the friendſhip between the Circar and the Engliſh, after chaſtizing the ſeditious, and ſettling the diſturbances in Conkan, ſtrict orders ſhall be iſſued in regard to reſtoring the ſhip's cargo from the ſaid receivers, and they will be made to give it." The ſeditious have been overcome a long time ſince, yet no reſtitution has been made; I therefore require your compliance therewith, or your finding ſome method to make good the loſs to our merchants, conformable to the 13th article of the late treaty.

Third. I demand reſtitution of the Bombay Shybar Sacre, Tindal Gunnoo Cooley, belonging to an Engliſh Gentleman, taken by two gallivats of your fleet, and carried into Gheriah, after the ceſſation, with her cargo, agreeable to the liſt now delivered; her ſalt was ſold at Canapatan, and the other articles taken for the Circar's uſe; the boat was ſold to ſome Goa merchants.

Fourth. Notwithſtanding, ſo long ago as the year 1768, I adjuſted ſome diſputed articles with your predeceſſor, Madarow, and received ſeveral orders from him, copies of which I now incloſe, for the payment of the ſum of rupees thirty thouſand nine hundred fifteen three quarters, and thirty reas (R^{s} 30,915. 3, 30.) and the delivery of two boats, one belonging to Naſſerwanjee Moody, and the other belonging to Byramjee Homjee, your officers have not to this day complied with either of them; I therefore now again demand freſh orders from you, in ſuch manner that your officers may not have it in their power to evade complying therewith.

Fifth. You quote the 3d article of the treaty of September 1761, as having been broken by the Engliſh, on account of their giving mere perſonal protection to Dahda Saib; when at the ſame time I cannot help obſerving, you are daily breaking it, by receiving every European that deſerts from Bombay; a glaring inſtance of which I had the very day I arrived at Panwell, ſeven of them coming into my camp and ſetting me at defiance. I could eaſily have ſecured them, but to prevent diſputes, I thought the propereſt method was to apply to Criſtnajee Punt, the officer in command of your troops there, to whoſe artillery they belonged, which I accordingly did; when he replied that he could not deliver them up without the orders of Bhimroo Panſee, his commanding officer, who was then abſent. I therefore now in virtue of the before-mentioned treaty, demand that you ſend me an order for their being delivered up and ſent to Bombay.

True Copies.

T. Moſtyn.

Tranſlate of the Poonah Durbar's anſwers to the demands made on them by Mr. Moſtyn, the 30th April 1777.

1ſt. I obſerve what you ſay regarding the Shybars: but who has paid me the crore of rupees you cauſed me to expend before the late treaty, in order to enable me to pay you? However I will make enquiry about any boats which have been taken ſince the late treaty, and if there are any ſuch I will deliver them.

2d. At the bar of Rhutnagurry your ſhip was plundered by the ſeditious, who with your goods, and ſome belonging to the Circar, ran to Salſette, where you gave them protection; you ſhould therefore demand the cargo from them. The Circar anſwered Colonel Upton, that I would order the people of the ſeditious, to deliver the cargo belonging to the ſaid ſhip. If you would deliver theſe people to the Circar, I ſhould not only be able to make them give back your goods, but alſo recover thoſe they took from the Circar. If you protect theſe people, you ſhould order the Circar's goods to be returned.

3d. I have not till this time heard any thing of the Shybar of ſalt taken by my fleet; but as you have now mentioned it, I ſhall enquire whether it was before or after the war, or whether it was or was not taken, and will write you about it.

4th. After you have ſettled matters agreeable to the treaty, I will ſettle about the orders from Mhaderow for rupees 30,915.3.

5th. You have given protection to Ragonaut Row: In his room you make a demand for ſeven Europeans, who met you in the Circar's juriſdiction. An order ſhall be given for the Circar's people to go along with yours, to ſhew them, when they ſhall be delivered according to the treaty, and you may carry them away. You give protection to the Circar's enemies, putting me to the expence of a crore of rupees; you ſhould deliver them into my hands according to treaty.

True Copies.

Tranſlate of the Poonah Durbar's replies to Mr. Moſtyn's anſwers to the papers delivered by them, the 20th April 1777.

5th. You ſaid more in your anſwers than is neceſſary. There was no occaſion to mention the letters of Colonel Upton, as proofs of what you alledge. How can you ſay that Colonel Upton, Macpherſon, and the Governor, General and Council, have been deceived?—for theſe Gentlemen, acting as Sirdars, how could they be deceived? Nobody but you will ſay ſo. You beſt know what is written in Engliſh. The Engliſh treaty, ſealed with the Company's ſeal, and ſigned by the Council, was ſent here, of which the Moonſhee at Calcutta made the Perſian tranſlate, wherein the word Cahmil is mentioned, according to which you ſhould act. You ought therefore to take the country of three lacks of rupees, agreeable to the Cahmil Jama, to which I have no objection.

7th. You have given for anſwer about Chickley, &c. country, that it is agreed in the treaty, when it is proved by the writing of Futty Sing, that he has no power to give away any of his country, according to the copy of the Circar's ſunnuds, you will reſtore the ſaid country. Two letters from the Guicawar, and copy of a former Peiſhwa's ſunnud, were delivered to Colonel Upton, for which we took a receipt from the ſaid Colonel, acknowledging that he had received theſe two letters, and the copy of the ſunnud; a copy of which receipt I now ſend you. The Circar has complied with the treaty, but you have not yet reſtored the ſaid pergunnah. You mention the diviſion of the Guzerat country, between the Peiſhwa and Guicawar, but all the world knows the Guicawar is a ſervant of the Circar; if he was not a ſervant, why would the Circar take half his country? or why would he ſerve them? According to the agreement then made, he gave a writing to the Circar. Beſides, for what reaſon ſhould he ſend a letter with his ſeal to Colonel Upton? Or, why ſhould he ſuffer the Circar to take from him part of the country given him by that treaty, and keep it, or return it to him, at their pleaſure? Damajee Sayajee, Govind Row, and Futty Sing Guicawars, made a treaty with the Circar, in which they acknowledge themſelves to be the ſervants of the Peiſhwa, and that their country is at his diſpoſal, which treaty was ſhewn, and even a copy thereof delivered to Colonel Upton; notwithſtanding which, you doubt the Peiſhwa's authority. Suppoſe any of my officers, who have a command at a diſtance, ſhould enter into a treaty with another power, giving away part of the country under his command, and write to me he had done ſo, but when he comes before me, he acknowledges himſelf to be my ſervant, and denies that he has a right to give away any of his country: This is exactly the caſe with the Guicawars, as appears by the letters, and copy of the ſunnud ſent by Futty Sing to Colonel Upton. You ſhould therefore reſtore Chickley, &c. agreeable to the treaty.

14th. You are very particular in your anſwer, with regard to the 3d article of the treaty of 1761, but ſay nothing of the firſt treaty entered into. If you will examine that which you have got with the Circar's ſeal, you will find it mentioned as I have written; in the firſt treaty it is mentioned, that the Engliſh will not give any aſſiſtance, even to their friends, againſt this Government. In another treaty it is mentioned, whether they are ſmall or great men who deſert, they ſhall be delivered up, notwithſtanding which you have written a long anſwer. You alſo mention that Ragonaut Row is not a ſervant; but the cuſtom of this Government is, that every one is a ſervant, whether young or old, except one: Sadaſew Row and Ragonaut Row were under the command of the Peiſhwa, as all the world knows. Colonel Upton wrote to you, that he had mentioned to me regarding your keeping Ragonaut Row at Bombay; if Colonel Upton has any writing from me regarding it, I wiſh you would produce it. You ſay you protected the people of the ſeditious, to prevent their being killed before your face; but notwithſtanding they have deſtroyed many lacks of rupees of country belonging to the Circar, you have given them protection. If you do protect ſuch rebels, where is the uſe of the treaty? and where is your friendſhip? Though there is a treaty, you are taking every opportunity to raiſe diſputes, and bringing the Circar into loſs and danger, by protecting the ſeditious people. If this is the caſe, there can be no dependance on treaties; therefore you muſt deliver back the Sircar's enemies, and for the future never interfere in ſuch matters. By your acting in this manner our friendſhip will be firm.

Anſwer regarding Jambooſeer.

Jambooſeer is not mentioned in the treaty, but the Circar agreed to give twelve lacks of rupees; for the diſcharge of which the Circar gave the revenues of Jambooſeer, and wrote to the Governor and Council of Bombay, propoſing two modes for the recovery thereof, when they agreed to the ſecond, that the Jamabundy ſhould be made by the Circar; a receipt for which to be taken from the Engliſh, and they to recover the revenues. According thereto I gave directions to the Amildar; but you now write about the charges, which is a new thing. What method is this? I am indebted to you the aforeſaid ſum, but you want to have the recovery of the revenues at your pleaſure. The ſaid pergunnah ſhould be delivered up to the Circar's Amildar, who will recover the revenues, and pay you the amount; but if you chuſe to collect, the Jamabundy ought to be made by the Amildar, for which amount you ſhould give him a receipt. What buſineſs have you with the recovery of the Jamabundy? You have only a right to the money; therefore you ſhould receive it from the Amildar at the proper ſeaſon, and give him a receipt. The Circar's Commawſidar, is ſufficient to take care of the pergunnah. You write me, that I may ſend an honeſt man to reſide there, which ſurprizes me: When that honeſt man is obliged to ſit quiet, and not permitted to make the Jamabundy, how will he know, or what proof has he of the amount thereof? This is not the buſineſs of an Amildar: he is to recover the revenues, and pay it to you; or elſe permit the Jamabundy to be made by the Commawſidar, when you may recover the amount. It ought not to be leſs than it formerly was; therefore let the Circar ſend a Commawſidar. You will receive the money, but you have no buſineſs with the Jamabundy.

Letter from Broach, dated 12 March 1777.

To Lieutenant Colonel John Upton, or to the Engliſh Reſident for the time being at Poorunder

Sir,

WE have received your favour of the 18th ultimo, incloſing copy of a letter from Bombay Preſidency to our addreſs, the original whereof reached us ſome time before.

In obedience to their orders, we have repeatedly aſſured the Maratta agents, that we are ready to conform to the tenor of the inſtructions communicated to them from the Peiſhwa, agreeable to the copy tranſmitted by you to the Governor and Council the 1ſt December laſt, viz. to accept the propoſed diſtricts of Ahmood, Hanſoot, and Desborah, and give and receive according as they may exceed or fall ſhort of the ſtipulated amount of three lacks, which we propoſed to have aſcertained by the average produce of the three enſuing years; but the agents inſiſt on our abiding by their eſtimate of R' 3,33,000, and that there muſt be a deduction from Ahmood for the ſurplus of R' 33,000; and they will admit of no alternative, although our commiſſioners here, who have accurately inſpected the revenues for a ſeries of years paſt, maintain they will not exceed R'2,10,000.

Appendix. No. 4.

We are ſorry to obſerve, there muſt be ſome colluſion on the part of the Miniſters, as the inſtructions conveyed directly to the agents, differ widely from the copy tranſmitted by you, and ſeem to authorize their ſervants in their obſtinate refuſal to accede to our reaſonable propoſals.

We have the honour to be, &c.

Extract of Bengal Secret Conſultations, the 16th June, 1777.

PRESENT,

The Honourable Warren Haſtings, Governor General, Preſident,
Lieutenant General John Clavering,
Philip Francis, Eſquire.
Mr. Barwell indiſpoſed.

READ a letter from Lieutenant Colonel Upton, as follows:

Gentlemen,

I have the honour to incloſe for your peruſal a letter, from Siccaram Bapoo, which I received yeſterday.

Ganjam, 31ſt May 1777. I am, &c. (Signed) J. Upton.

From Siccaram Pundit to Colonel Upton, incloſed in the above.

The particulars of the conduct of the Governor and Council of Bombay have already been written to the Governor and Supreme Council of Calcutta; ſince which, though five months are elapſed, no anſwer has been received thereto: How am I to account for this?

As it is a laudable cuſtom, that every condition ſtipulated in a ſolemn treaty between chiefs of rank on the reconciliation of differences, be ſtrictly fulfilled, and their friendſhip daily increaſed; notwithſtanding which, the Governor and Council of Bombay to this preſent time keep Seremunt Dadu Sahib with them, afford their protection to fugitives, who carried with them in their flight, effects and money of the Circar; and have alſo procraſtinated the affair of the Talooks of three lacks of rupees; and notwithſtanding the arrival of two letters from Futtah Sing Row Rankwar, diſavowing his authority over Chilklee, &c. (Mahals of the Circar ceded by him) have not yet relinquiſhed them, but are negligent and inattentive in fulfilling of every article; I muſt therefore requeſt that you will ſtate theſe matters in a clear and explicit manner to my friend Amud ul Dowla Bahadre and the Supreme Council, and procure the moſt poſitive injunctions to the Governor and Council of Bombay, that all theſe points may be finally ſettled, and the treaty ſtrictly fulfilled. Meſſrs. Chevalier and Shantrolle, on the part of the King of France, lately arrived on board a ſhip on this coaſt, and landed at Rio Dunda, belonging belonging to this Government, from whence they tranſmitted a letter to the preſence of Seremunt Row Sahib Row Pundit Purdhan, containing a requeſt of an audience to treat with him; which if granted they would wait on him, and fully explain to him the ſubjects of their miſſion.

As friendſhip had ſubſiſted from time immemorial between the French nation and the illuſtrious family of Seremunt Sahib; and moreover, as hoſpitality is due to the envoy of a great Prince, an order for their approach was ſent from the preſence: when the aforeſaid gentlemen arrive, the ſubjects of the negociation will be explained.

The Governor and Council of Bombay will repreſent this matter to the Supreme Council in an injurious light: I have therefore written you and the Supreme Council, the relation of what has really paſſed. Friendſhip is now eſtabliſhed between us; which ſhall never be interrupted in the ſlighteſt degree.

Do you, my friend, amply repreſent the particulars to the Governor and Council.

APPENDIX, No. 5.

Bengal Secret Conſultations, 16th June 1777.

READ a letter from Mr. Moſtyn, as follows:

Honourable Sir, and Gentlemen,

I did myſelf the honour of addreſſing you laſt under the 4th inſtant: on the next day I was informed, that the Durbar had ſent palanqueens, an elephant, camels, and a few horſemen, to eſcort ſome French gentlemen hither, who had landed at Choul, from a forty gun frigate. This frigate had brought a letter from the new Governor of Pondicherry to the Preſidency of Bombay, and ſailed from that place with the Governor and Council's anſwer to it a day or two before I left it. I have thus long deferred adviſing you of this matter, as from reports I expected they would have arrived at Proondur ſome time ſince, when I ſhould have been at ſome certainty as to their intentions in coming to this Durbar; but finding they are longer on their journey than could be imagined, and not knowing how much more time they may take before they meet the Durbar, I cannot defer any longer adviſing you of ſuch intelligence regarding them as I had been able to learn.

Immediately on my receiving the above information, I repreſented to the Durbar, how inconſiſtent their conduct was, with the profeſſions of friendſhip they had made to Colonel Upton, both at and ſince ſettling the late treaty; where I was informed by one of the perſons appointed to tranſact the buſineſs between me and the Durbar, that their viſit was in conſequence of an application from this government to Monſieur Briancourt, the French Chief at Surat, during the late troubles (that as they had advanced ſo far, the Durbar could not with propriety refuſe ſeeing them; but I might depend nothing was intended to the prejudice of the Company, and that the principal gentleman of the embaſſy was named the Chevalier de St. Laub). I am now informed that he, with five other French gentlemen, accompanied by a Portugueze gentleman from Goa, arrived at the foot of Dew Gaut, within a few coſs of Proondur, five days ago, where they ſtill remain; and that they have brought a letter to this Durbar from France. What may be their real views, it is difficult to ſay; but from what has tranſpired, their principal object ſeems to be a factory at Poonah, and a ſea-port on ſome part of the Coaſt of Malabar, under the Maratta dominion. You may depend, Gentlemen, that my utmoſt endeavours ſhall be exerted to gain the moſt perfect intelligence of every tranſaction that paſſes at the Durbar, regarding the French, as well as to prevent their carrying ſo deſtructive a ſcheme to my Honourable Employers' intereſts into execution, and giving you the earlieſt intelligence in my power; this may not perhaps be ſo early as I could wiſh, owing to the ſtrict watch they have kept over me, to prevent, I ſuppoſe, my having any communication with thoſe whom they ſuſpect will give me certain information, no one having hitherto been near me.

In my laſt I adviſed you, that I was to have had my firſt audience of the Durbar that evening, but Nanah Furneſe, who had been ſome days abſent on account of a wedding, not returning until the 12th, and Siccaram Bapoo being taken ſick, I could not ſee the Peiſhwa until the 15th. On the 16th, at the deſire of the Miniſters, I met Madarow Jadaroi and Byroo Punt, who are appointed by them to tranſact the buſineſs between me and the Durbar tent, near Proondur. After the uſual compliments had paſſed, they aſked me, if the Governor and Council of Bombay had accepted the treaty of peace concluded by Colonel Upton, and ratified by you? Upon my anſwering that they undoubtedly had; of which my being ſent to them at their own requeſt, ought to be the moſt convincing proof, they preſented me a paper to ſign to that effect, but which I declined, not thinking it either neceſſary or proper; and repreſented to them, that their requiring it was doubting the authority you had, Gentlemen, to ratify that treaty, as well as the veracity of the Bombay Board. In conſequence of my refuſal, ſome altercation enſued; therefore to convince them of the ſincerity of the Bombay Preſidency ſtrictly to adhere to the treaty, and to obviate, as far as in my power, every objection they might make, I propoſed their delivering me what they had to ſay in writing, which I would anſwer in the ſame manner; to which they agreed; and accordingly on the 20th following, I received four ſeparate articles from them, tranſlates of which, together with my anſwers thereto, delivered them this day, I have now the honour to incloſe for your obſervation.

I am, &c.

Curreet, near Proondur, 30th April 1777.

Ordered, That the incloſed in the above letter be entered after the conſultation.

Received a letter from Bombay as follows:

Honourable Sir, and Gentlemen,

Having lately received from Mr. Moſtyn ſome very alarming accounts of the proceedings of the French with the Poonah Government, we think it our eſpecial duty to loſe no time in tranſmitting you copies of his letters, that you may take what meaſures you may judge proper for guarding againſt the bad conſequences which muſt enſue from too cloſe a connection between thoſe powers.

If the French ſucceed in obtaining the port of Choul, or any other ſo immediately in our neighbourhood, it will totally ruin the Company's trade at this ſettlement, and materially injure the commerce of Great Britain, excluſive of the advantage ſuch an eſtabliſhment would afford them in caſe of a national war; much therefore, in our opinion, ought to be hazarded to ſubvert their ſcheme, whether on further intelligence it ſhould prove to be directed to views of trade only, or to the forming a treaty of alliance with the Poonah Government; but we have only conſidered ourſelves authorized to direct Mr. Moſtyn to expoſtulate with the Miniſters on the impropriety of their giving encouragement to the French, our natural enemies, after the peace ſo lately concluded by Colonel Upton, and to demand from them the nature and deſign of Mr. St. Laub's deputation; we have alſo inſtructed him to endeavour to excite their jealouſy, by repreſenting the ambitious views and encroaching diſpoſition of that nation, and their attachment to Hyder Ally; and at the ſame time to make it his ſtudy himſelf to preſerve the moſt amicable correſpondence with the Durbar.

Mr. Moſtyn will, by our directions, continue to keep you conſtantly and fully adviſed of ſuch of their proceedings as may come to his knowledge.

Whilſt

Appendix No. 6.

Whilſt we have ſuch reaſon for ſuſpicion of the deſigns of the French, we beg leave to ſubmit to your judgment, how far it is expedient we ſhould remain in our preſent defenceleſs ſtate. The incloſed return will ſhew you the great diminution of our European corps; and until the diſpute with America is ſubſided, we have no reaſon to expect any conſiderable recruit from England; at any rate it is good to be prepared againſt every event, and the appearance of a reſpectable force will at leaſt have a good effect on the conduct of the Poonah Government, and may deter the French from deſigns, which our weakneſs might otherwiſe tempt them to undertake. From the ſame motives, and as they have lately had ſeveral ſhips of force upon this Coaſt, we have applied to Sir Edward Hughes, or his ſucceſſor in the command, to bring round His Majeſty's ſquadron to Bombay as early as he poſſibly can.

Extract of a letter from Mr. Moſtyn, Reſident at the Maratta Court, to the Select Committee at Bombay; dated from Curreet near Poorundur, the 20th April 1777, and received the 24th following.

On my way to Poonah, I received from the Honourable Preſident copy of a letter, and ſubſtance of a meſſage to him from Ragojee Angria, informing that a French forty gun ſhip had arrived at Colabby, from which ſeveral gentlemen had landed, and intended proceeding to Poonah. I immediately directed Gungadar Punt, who was formerly vackeel from this Government at Bombay, and had orders to accompany me, to inform the Durbar thereof. In anſwer to which, Nanah wrote him that Ragojee Angria had ſent the ſame intelligence to the Durbar; and that in conſequence of letters they had likewiſe received from thoſe gentlemen, leave has been given them for proceeding to Poonah. On my arrival here, I was acquainted the principal gentleman was the Chevalier de St. Laub, to eſcort whom, the Durbar had ordered 25 Arab ſepoys, an elephant, 20 camels, a palanqueen, and ſome horſe, to Logur: only one, whoſe name and ſtation I have not been able to learn, is yet arrived; he entered Poonah the 6th inſtant, and had an audience of Nanna, then there on the 10th, but that nothing paſſed except compliments; this perſon arrived and encamped at a tope, at a little diſtance from this place on the 17th, and the next day I am informed went up to the Maſhy, where the Peiſhwa reſides, accompanied by Couſtrow Ballot, who is appointed to tranſact the French buſineſs. The Chevalier, by the intelligence I have received, is daily expected at Poonah; your Honour, &c. may depend my utmoſt endeavours ſhall be exerted to gain information of every thing that paſſes at the Durbar regarding them, as well as to prevent their carrying ſchemes into execution, to the prejudice of our Honourable Employers; I may not, perhaps, receive this intelligence ſo early as I could wiſh, from the ſtrict watch that is kept over me to prevent, I ſuppoſe, my having any communication with thoſe on whom I can depend for certain information; no one having hitherto been near me, and my own people are obliged to be very cautious with whom they converſe.

Upon my repreſenting to the Miniſters the impropriety of their conduct in permitting the French to come to this Durbar, I was credibly informed, that their viſit was in conſequence of an application from this Government to Monſ. Briancourt at Surat Bunder, about a year and an half ago; and as they had advanced ſo far as the Durbar, could not with propriety refuſe ſeeing them.

Copy of a letter from Mr. Moſtyn to the Select Committee at Bombay.

Honourable Sir, and Gentlemen,

I addreſſed you laſt under the 20th ultimo. This is purpoſely to inform you, that Byroo Punt and Gungedar, paying me a viſit this afternoon, informed me that the French gentlemen were arrived, and encamped within half a coſs from our camp; and I aſked them, if they were ſo dilatory in their proceedings, how theſe gentlemen were to return to Choul, and the ſhip to clear the coaſt before the rainy ſeaſon? when they replied, That it was ſettled they ſhould ſtay at Poonah during the rainy ſeaſon; that the ſhip was unrigged, her guns and ſtores landed in order for her coming into Choul, and that the French had likewiſe landed from one hundred to one hundred and fifty pieces of ordnance for ſale, ſome of which, by Byroo Punt's account, are of a very large callibre, beſides a large quantity of copper and broad cloth. Byroo Punt likewiſe informed me, that Monſ. St. Laub had written to the Durbar, acquainting them, that he expected two more ſhips upon the coaſt, which he requeſted might have permiſſion to winter in ſome of their harbours: this, he ſays, was granted them, but did not mention what harbour they were to go to. This I think, Gentlemen, puts the intentions of the Durbar beyond a doubt, and muſt have been determined on before the ſhip's arrival; for it is impoſſible to have been ſince the Chevalier landed at Choul, as he has not yet had an audience of the Peiſhwa or Miniſters.

RECEIVED the following letter from Fort St. George.

Honourable Sir, and Sirs,

We beg leave to incloſe herewith a copy of a letter juſt received from Mr. Moſtyn at Poonah. We cannot, from the accounts we have yet been able to obtain, add any thing certain to the intelligence communicated in that letter; but we think it proper to obſerve to you, that private letters from Bombay mention that French colours have been hoiſted at Choul, and that Mr. St. Lubin (called Laub in Mr. Moſtyn's letter) came from France in a frigate of 36 guns, with a ſeparate commiſſion, independent of the Government of Pondicherry.

We take this opportunity of acquainting you, that Lord Pigot, after a long fit of illneſs, departed this life the 11th inſtant.

We have the honour, &c.

Honourable Sir, and Sirs,

I addreſſed you laſt under the 4th inſtant, acquainting you of my arrival in quality of the Company's Reſident at this Durbar. This is purpoſely to inform you, that the Chevalier de St. Laub, with four other gentlemen who had landed from a French frigate at Choul, are arrived within a few coſs of Proondur, on an embaſſy to this Government, and are furniſhed, as I am informed, with letters from France and Pondicherry. This viſit is in conſequence of an application from the Miniſtry here to the French Chief of Surat during the late war. What may be the real motive of this embaſſy it is not in my power at preſent to ſay: your vicinity to Pondicherry will enable you to get more certain and earlier intelligence regarding it than I can give you. From what has tranſpired their views ſeem to be the ſettling a factory at Poonah,

I ſhall again addreſs you on this ſubject as ſoon as I can receive any certain information of what paſſes between the French and this Durbar, and ſhall eſteem myſelf obliged by any information you can give me on this point. I am, &c.

APPENDIX, No. 7.

Bengal Secret Conſultations, 17th July 1777.

READ the following letter from Mr. Moſtyn:

Honourable Sir, and Gentlemen,

My laſt addreſs, dated the 30th April, informed your Honour, &c. of the arrival of the Chevalier St. Laub within a few coſs of Poorunder: on the 2d inſtant he arrived and encamped within half a coſs of this place, and on the 8th had his audience of the Peiſhwa, when he delivered two letters, the one from the French King and the other from his Miniſter.

On the 2d inſtant I received certain information that the Durbar had granted permiſſion for the ſhip in which the Chevalier came from Pondicherry, to lay the rainy monſoon in Choul river, where I have lately learnt ſhe actually now is; but as my packet to your Honour, &c. was made up, I took the liberty of incloſing an extract of my addreſs to the Preſidency of Bombay on this ſubject to the Honourable the Governor General.

I have taken the opportunity of Sacaram Bapoo, Madarow Jadarow, and Byroo Punt, paying a viſit to me, to repreſent to them the extraordinary conduct of this Durbar in giving ſo much encouragement to the French; and uſed every endeavour to excite their jealouſy, with reſpect to the view the Chevalier undoubtedly has to get poſſeſſion of ſome ſea harbour or port in the Maratta dominions, on the coaſt of Malabar, by ſetting forth the ambitious and encroaching diſpoſition of the French, as the cloſe connection there was between them and Hyder Ally, with whom it is ſaid they have concluded an offenſive treaty, which has for one of its odiums the reduction of the Maratta Power. They all aſſured me, but Sacaram in particular, that nothing had yet been concluded on; who likewiſe ſaid, he was not ignorant of the diſpoſition of the French, nor of their connection with Hyder, for which reaſon the Durbar would be very cautious in complying with any requeſts the Chevalier might make to them, until they know what this Government was to expect from them: notwithſtanding theſe aſſurances there is the greateſt reaſon to fear, from the particular attention this Durbar have paid to the Chevalier ever ſince his arrival, that he will accompliſh his grand object, in obtaining a ſettlement at Choul, and a factory at Poonah.

In my laſt I forwarded to your Honour, &c. the tranſlates of four papers delivered me by the Durbar, with my anſwer thereto. I have now the honour to incloſe tranſlates of the Durbar's replies to my anſwers, and the demands I at the ſame time made on them. The copy of the receipt from Colonel Upton to this Durbar, mentioned to be incloſed in theſe replies, has not yet been delivered me, although I have frequently applied for it. I am, &c.

APPENDIX, No. 8.

Bombay Secret Conſultations, 23 May 1777.

Honourable Sir, and Gentlemen,

ON the 15th inſtant I was honoured with your commands of the 10th.

It afforded me much ſatisfaction, to find that my anſwers to the Durbar's papers has met with your Honour, &c. approbation. My reaſon for not mentioning therein the obſtacle thrown in the way of our trade, was my having particularly repreſented it to Saccaram Bappoo, on my firſt audience; when he aſſured me the communication was open, which I believe to be true; but from the diſtreſſed circumſtances the Government are in for want of money, the merchants are fearful, if they make any conſiderable purchaſes, that loans will be required of them.

On the 8th inſtant, the Chevalier St. Laub had his audience of the Peiſhwa; at which the principal Miniſters were preſent, when he delivered his credentials, being letters from the King and the Miniſters of France, and made a preſent. I cannot help obſerving the difference of his reception and mine on this occaſion—Saccram Bappoo and Nannah Furneeſe going without the tent walls to receive him as he alighted from an elephant the Durbar had ſupplied him with, and introduced him into the Durbar; but they only ſent Mhadarow Jadarci and Byroo Punt to receive and introduce me. Indeed, in every reſpect, they pay the greateſt attention to the French.

Your Honour, &c. may depend on my continuing to exert my endeavours, not only to penetrate into the true object of Monſ. St. Laub's deputation, but alſo to prevent his carrying any ſchemes into execution to the prejudice of my Honourable Employers. His real views are undoubtedly to obtain a port on this coaſt in the Maratta dominions, and a factory at Poonah. In ſeveral converſations I have had with the Miniſters, I have always endeavoured to excite the jealouſy of the Durbar, by repreſenting to them the ambitious diſpoſition of the French; particularly, ſo long as ſince the 5th of April, I repreſented to Mhadarow Jadaroi, one of the people appointed by the Miniſters to tranſact our buſineſs with the Durbar, the impropriety of their permitting the French to ſend an ambaſſador to this Durbar; and that I doubted if they conſidered the ill conſequences which might attend this conduct; for that I was well aſſured the French had not only this year founded the harbours of Collala and Choul, but laſt year that of Gheriah; which, in my opinion, clearly pointed out their views, notwithſtanding any profeſſions of friendſhip they might make, to be on one of thoſe ports; and deſired him to make a proper repreſentation of it to the Durbar, that they might not hereafter blame us for not giving them a timely caution: I at the ſame time mentioned to Mhadarow the connection between the French and Hyder.

On the 12th inſtant Mhadarow Jadarci and Byroo Punt waited on me with the Durbar's replies to my anſwer to the papers delivered me on the 20th ultimo, and to my demands made on them; tranſlate of all which I now incloſe. I repeated to them the above-mentioned converſation, and addreſſing myſelf principally to Mhadarow, demanded, in the name of my Honourable Employers, to know the real intentions of the Durbar regarding the French; having been informed the Chevalier was to ſtay here during the rains; that orders have been given for their ſhip being brought into Choul river; and that there was ſome talk of giving them a ſettlement on the coaſt, which, if true would certainly cauſe a breach in our friendſhip, as we could conſider ſuch behaviour in no other light than an intention to injure the Company, it being ſo contrary to the real intent of the treaty, and the profeſſions of friendſhip the Durbar had made both to Colonel Upton and me. To which he replied, That he now ſpoke to me as the Peiſhwa's vackeel, and as ſuch aſſured me, that nothing had yet been determined on by the Durbar; that they were to have a meeting with the French in a few days, in order to ſettle matters; but I might depend nothing was intended which might cauſe a difference between us.

Saccarum Bapoo paying me a viſit on the 7th inſtant, I took the opportunity of again repreſenting the extraordinary conduct of the Durbar reſpecting the French; when he gave me the ſame aſſurance that Mhadarow had before done; but confeſſed the French had obtained permiſſion for bringing their ſhips into Choul river, and for landing their goods and ſtores, but were on no account to land their warlike ſtores. I then informed him of the cloſe connection there was, and had for a long time been, between the French and Hyder; when he replied, that he was not ignorant thereof, and that the Durbar would not comply with any views the French might have, until they knew what this Government was to expect from them. I likewiſe again repreſented to him the obſtructions thrown in the way of our trade, which I hoped would have been entirely removed on my arrival here; in anſwer to which he aſſured me the communication had been ordered as free as heretofore, but ſhould he on enquiry find any obſtacle had ariſen thereto, they ſhould be removed.

By the tranſlate of the Durbar's replies, your Honours, &c. will obſerve, that they really have no intention of carrying any one article of the late treaty into execution, until we have complied with every demand they may chuſe to make on us.

Ragojee Bouncello took his leave of the Durbar on the 5th inſtant, when he was preſented with a Sirpaw: he the next day broke up his camp here and marched to Saſſwer, is now returning to his own Government. By the laſt accounts from the Carnatic, Hyder Ally and Hurry Punt's armies were about thirty coſs diſtant from each other, when the latter was much diſtreſſed for money, which this Durbar is uſing every endeavour to ſupply him with.

I ſhall ſtrictly obey your Honour, &c.'s orders with reſpect to ingratiating myſelf with the Miniſters; but whilſt they continue in the fort, where I am not permitted to go, it is impoſſible for me to have the free intercourſe with them I could wiſh, or that I might have, were they to reſide in Poonah.

The copy of the receipt from Colonel Upton to the Durbar, mentioned in their replies to be incloſed, and for which I have waited theſe two days, has not yet been ſent me.

I am, with reſpect,
Curreet, near Poorunder, Honourable Sir, and Gentlemen, Your moſt obedient ſervant, Thoˢ Moſtyn.

Received the following letter from Mr. Moſtyn:

Honourable Sir, and Gentlemen,

I addreſſed your Honour, &c. laſt under the 21ſt May from Curreet, but the rains ſetting in I have ſince been obliged to retire to Poonah.

Shortly after my arrival here, I received certain accounts, from a man who ſaid he was a carpenter of the French ſhip now at Chowle, that the French gentleman I formerly acquainted your Honour, &c. had arrived on an embaſſy to this Durbar, was not the Chevalier St. Laub, as already adviſed, but Monſieur St. Lubin; and within theſe few days I have been informed by the Nabob of Arcot's vackeel, that by letters he has received from Arcot, he is aſſured this gentleman is not authorized to come here either from France or Pondicherry, therefore the letters he delivered at his firſt audience of the Peiſhwa muſt have been fictitious; of which this Government, from their preſent behaviour to him, ſeem convinced. Appendix. No. 9.

Hurry Punt Furkia, who commands the forces of this Government againſt Hyder Ally, I am informed, has lately had an engagement with Tippoo Saib, who commands the advanced part of Hyder's army, in which Hurry Punt was entirely defeated, and has retreated to the northward of the Tongebedra. I have likewiſe received information that the Nizam is on his return to Hyderabad; that Downſa having received ten lacks of rupees from Hyder, was retreating to his own Government with a determination not to interfere again in the preſent diſputes between this Government and Hyder; and that ſeveral Maratta officers had gone over to Hyder, particularly Monackjee Panerea and Mallajee Rajah, who had carried off with them twelve thouſand horſe and foot, and were actually with Tippoo Saib in the above-mentioned action.

Poonah, the 15th June 1777. I am, &c. (Signed) Thoˢ Moſtyn.

APPENDIX, No. 9.

Extract of Bengal Secret Conſultations, 16th June 1777.

ORDERED, That the ſubject of the foregoing letters lie for conſideration until the arrival of Lieutenant Colonel Upton.

Ordered alſo, That the return for the troops at Bombay be entered after the conſultation.

Mr. Francis—On the 26th of laſt month, the Commander in Chief laid a propoſition before the Board for bringing three battalions of the brigade in the field within the provinces, and for ſome other arrangements; which I concurred in, from a ſtrong conviction of the neceſſity of looking to the defence of this part of Bengal. The Governor General deferred giving his opinion, and the ſubject has ſince lain over for conſideration: I would now beg leave to move for a reſolution upon that propoſition. The letter which we have juſt read from Bombay tends to confirm my former opinion, that the views of the French are hoſtile to ſome part or other of the Company's poſſeſſions; and that at all events ſome meaſures ought to be taken for the ſecurity of Bengal, from any poſſible attempt on their part: it appears to me, that our preſent force diſperſed as it is, we are not in a ſtate of defence againſt any ſudden attacks from the ſouthward; this is an object which I wiſh might be taken into the early conſideration of the Board: previous to ſuch conſideration, I would beg leave to move that the Governor would be pleaſed to lay before us the ſubſtance of any intelligence he may have received of the deſigns or proceedings of the French, on which I preſume he founded his opinion, that the French are meditating ſome deſigns againſt the Britiſh poſſeſſions in India.

The Governor General—I will deliver my opinion and anſwer to the enquiries of Mr. Francis on the next council-day; I think what I ſhall have to ſay on the ſubject will be ſhort; however, ſhould it lead me to a fuller diſcuſſion than I apprehend, and other affairs intervening, prevent my having it ready by the next Council, I will requeſt a further time; but I have reſolved within myſelf to prepare it, if poſſible for the next meeting of the Board.

Extract of Bengal Secret Conſultations, the 14th July 1777.

PRESENT,

The Honourable Warren Haſtings, Governor General, Preſident,
Lieutenant General Sir John Clavering,
Richard Barwell, } Eſquires.
Phillip Francis, }

The proceedings of the 7th inſtant read and approved.

Mr. Francis—I deſire that my minute, recorded on the 16th of laſt month, and the Governor's anſwer to it may be read. The importance of the ſubject, and the declaration made by the Governor on the 26th of May, that it was his opinion that the French were meditating ſome deſign againſt the Britiſh poſſeſſions in India; to which he added in diſcourſe, that his opinion was founded on very good authority, oblige me to remind him of his engagement. Having now repeatedly endeavoured to bring the defenceleſs ſtate of this part of Bengal into the conſideration of the Board, it will reſt with the majority of the Board to determine on ſuch meaſures as the importance of the caſe may appear to require, or to be anſwerable for the conſequences that may enſue.

Governor General—I know not for what reaſon Mr. Francis has thought it neceſſary to bind me to the performance of my promiſe to furniſh the Board with my opinion, which when given will be but ſpeculative, and can be of no uſe. The promiſe which I made on the 16th June I meant to have fulfilled on the next council-day; the materials I had then ready; I have them ſtill; they are now in my hands; but they conſiſt of many looſe and undigeſted ſheets, which I have not had time to arrange and reduce to a conſiſtent ſubſtance. The day on which by my promiſe I ſhould have anſwered Mr. Francis's enquiries, was the day on which the packets arrived from the Cormorant, and the other diſpatches from the Secretary at the India-houſe. Since that time many other important objects have engaged, and ſtill continue to divide my attention. But urged as I now am, I will give my opinion in very brief terms and ſuch as I think ſufficient for the preſent upon this ſubject. It has been my opinion, even from a time ſo diſtant as the year 1770, that the French have meditated the re-eſtabliſhment of their former power in India. This deſign, ſuſpended for ſome time before the death of the late King of France, I believe ſtill to exiſt; but I am now of the ſame opinion that I have all along entertained from the period which I mentioned before, that there is little danger of any attempts they may make in Bengal, and leſs probability that they will make any, until they ſhall have obtained ſome ſtrong footing in ſome other part of India. The ſeaſon of the year in which it would be neceſſary for them to embark were they to ſet on foot an expedition againſt Bengal, during their preſent ſtate, ſo as to arrive in time to begin their operations with effect, would lay them under great diſadvantage: the multitude of tranſports which would be required for the men, ammunition, and victualling ſtores of ſuch an armament, would exceed any preſent means they have in India; the length of the voyage under ſuch circumſtances would fill them with diſtempers; and even if it could be ſuppoſed poſſible for them to bring a force into Bengal ſuperior to that which may be collected to oppoſe it, the advantages which we derive from the poſſeſſion of the country and the command of its reſources, would more than counterbalance that inequality. It would be impoſſible for them to fit out ſo great an armament without making their deſigns known to all India. I am myſelf in poſſeſſion of the means of knowing with certainty what is publicly tranſacted at the French iſlands. But for ſuch intelligence there is no need of private emiſſaries; it would inevitably make itſelf known many months before the ſhips could arrive at their deſtination.

I will ſuppoſe the earlieſt period in which it is probable they would arrive, to be the month of November; long before this our forces might be collected, even from the remoteſt parts of the Vizier's dominions. Were it neceſſary to draw them altogether on ſuch an occaſion, I will venture to affirm, on an authority which I can implicitly credit, that the boats now with the brigade in the province of Oude would be ſufficient to tranſport all the Europeans to Calcutta in a very inconſiderable ſpace of time.

On ſuch a conjuncture, I preſume that this Government would be warranted even to take poſſeſſion of the town of Chandernagore, and to make a ſeizure of the ſhips which might lie there, even before a public declaration of the intentions of the French, if any of their acts afforded certain indications of it; if they did not it would be unneceſſary.

I have enumerated the foregoing circumſtances, and many others might be added to them, to ſhew the improbability on the one hand, that the French ſhould undertake an expedition at ſuch unequal hazards againſt Bengal, and on the other, that it would be the cauſe of much danger to the Company's poſſeſſions in it; but I muſt mention one more circumſtance which had eſcaped my recollection: Mr. Chevalier has, it is generally believed, in his correſpondence for many years paſt with his conſtituents in Europe, ſtrongly recommended this point; and from his long and local knowledge would be the moſt uſeful inſtrument in their hands for conducting it. I know, from an authority which I regard as certain, that he has ſolicited his recall. In a word I am perfectly convinced that we are ſafe from the attempts of the French in this quarter: I am equally convinced that they will break out in ſome other part of India, though the period may yet be diſtant. The language of defiance held out by the French Commiſſary at Pondicherry, and the very myſterious appearance of the Chevalier St. Lubin on the Maratta coaſt, with his reception at the Court of Poonah, then, I believe not publicly known, were the principal authority on which I grounded my opinion, delivered the 26th of May: I have other authorities which it might not be proper to put upon record. Since that time I have received no freſh intelligence of conſequence, which might ſerve to confirm that opinion; but I have read in a ſpeech lately made by the King to his Parliament, aſſurances of a pacific diſpoſition in the Court of France, which leads me to believe that the time of their hoſtilities is not ſo near as I then conjectured; I therefore think it unneceſſary and premature to withdraw any part of the forces belonging to this eſtabliſhment from their ſtations, until we have better grounds for ſuch a meaſure than we are at preſent poſſeſſed of, unleſs other cauſes ſhall require it, and it may be effected without creating dangerous alarms in the country. I think, indeed, that the preſent ſtation of the brigade is too diſtant, and that it might with propriety be brought nearer to the ſouthern line of the province of Oude; at preſent a better ſituation does not occur than the Fort of Allahabad. This is all I think at preſent neceſſary with reſpect to Bengal. I ſhall not now take up more of the time of the Board; I regret that I have employed ſo much of it, in propoſing the means which may be required for the general ſecurity of the Britiſh poſſeſſions in India, and in particular the ſafety of Bombay; in theſe points I would rather take the lead from the Commander in Chief, than offer my ſeparate opinion upon them.

Mr. Francis---I beg leave to take notice on one point in the Governor's minute, that after the meeting of Parliament on the 31ſt October, it is well known that advices had been received in England, I believe about the beginning of December, in conſequence of which orders were iſſued for a very great naval armament; and that this this was underſtood to ariſe from ſome apprehenſion of the deſigns of France. It is poſſible that theſe apprehenſions may have ſince ſubſided.

General Sir John Clavering—It will be no conſolation to the India Company, or to the Britiſh nation, in caſe a diſaſter ſhould happen to this country, that Mr. Francis and myſelf have made unavailing efforts to take but common precautions, without alarming the country, to be prepared againſt an unexpected appearance of a French armament at the mouth of the Ganges. I cannot pretend to controvert the fidelity of the intelligence which Mr. Haſtings mentions he has, without knowing the means by which he obtained it, of what is publicly tranſacted at the French iſlands, and on which he founds his ſecurity, that no armament can be fitted out there, which would not be known here many months before the ſhips could arrive at their deſtination. But uninformed as I am, and as I believe the Commander of the King's ſquadron is, of what is doing at the iſlands, I confeſs I have felt much uneaſineſs at the unguarded and expoſed ſituation in which this Preſidency has been ſuffered to remain ever ſince the breaking out of the troubles in America. Under this anxiety, on the 25th April 1776, I propoſed to the Board to bring down the brigade in the field to Allahabad; and on the 26th of laſt May, I again propoſed to withdraw three of the battalions from thence to Dinapore, and to order one battalion from that place to Mongheir, and to bring the two battalions now ſtationed there to Berhampore. This movement could have occaſioned no alarm in the country; but would have enabled us to have collected, on a notice of ten or fourteen days, nine or ten battalions at the Preſidency, when at preſent we have only three of Sepoys, excluſive of five or ſix hundred Europeans. I likewiſe pointed out the neceſſity I think there is of eſtabliſhing and keeping up a ſmall naval force at the mouth of the river, for the purpoſe of intelligence, and, in caſe of neceſſity, for cutting away the buoys. Theſe are precautions which this Government ſhould always take, though it has no particular reaſon to be ſuſpicious of any immediate deſigns of an invaſion from the French; it is a precaution that the King's ſervants at home never fail taking, however perſuaded they may be of the good intentions of the French Court; but more particularly ſo, when the French are fitting out armaments, though perhaps only to exerciſe their fleet. As the Governor General is pleaſed to refer himſelf to my opinion for the meaſures that may be proper to be taken for the ſecurity of the Britiſh poſſeſſions in India, I can only reply in general, that if I may depend on the ſecurity which he profeſſed to have, that the period at which the views that he is convinced the French have on other parts of India is yet very diſtant, I am at a loſs to give any other advice upon, and particularly for the ſecurity of Bombay, than to recommend in the moſt ſtrenuous terms to the Preſident and Council of that Preſidency, to cultivate as much as they can a firm union with the Marattas, and to recommend to the Court of Directors to enforce this advice by their authority. The receiving Ragoba on board of the Company's veſſels; the admitting him to take an aſylum in Bombay; the offer of admitting Sudaba; the demand they made of his perſon from Angria, a dependant of the Maratta State; and the actual protection they afforded to the forces of this adventurer, after he was defeated, are all acts ſo apparently hoſtile to the Maratta State, that it does not appear ſurpriſing to me, that this power ſhould endeavour to form connections with the French, in order to protect themſelves againſt the unfriendly and unjuſtifiable actions of that Preſidency. But as Lieutenant Colonel Upton is now arrived here, and for whoſe return the Board waited, in order to conſult him before it was thought proper to reply to the letter of the 10th May from Bombay; I am of opinion that he ſhould be directed to attend on the next council-day for that purpoſe. I am further of opinion, that a letter ſhould be written to the Court of Directors, to acquaint them with the opinion that we may adopt, and to repreſent to them the feeble ſtate of the garriſon of Bombay. Appendix. No. 11.

Mr. Francis—In anſwer to the firſt part of the Governor's minute, I ſhall only declare, that the motion I have made has no other object than that which I profeſs. The Commander in Chief will witneſs for me, from ſeveral converſations I have had with him, how ſeriouſly I have had it at heart. I did not mean to impute blame to the Governor, for having delayed his anſwer to this time, or to bind him precipitately by any former engagement. The circumſtances which have happened here ſince the 16th of laſt month, excuſe him for having ſo long delayed the accompliſhment of his offer, as I hope it does me, for not having reminded him of it ſooner. I did not even mean to preſs for an anſwer on this particular day; but I am very well ſatisfied that the queſtion ſhould now be determined.

Agreed, That Lieutenant Colonel Upton be requeſted to attend the Board on Thurſday next.

PRESENT,

The Honourable Warren Haſtings, Governor General, Preſident.
Lieutenant General Sir J. Clavering,

READ the following letter from Lieutenant Colonel Upton:

Honourable Sir, and Gentlemen,

I have with the utmoſt attention peruſed the ſeveral letters and papers regarding the tranſactions at Poonah, communicated by the Select Committee of Bombay and Mr. Moſtyn; I have taken extracts of the moſt material parts of theſe letters and papers, and have remarked upon them; which I have now the honour to lay before you.

In

Appendix. No. 11.

In compliance, Gentlemen, with your directions, to give my opinion on theſe papers, which though fully done in my remarks on them, yet, to avoid giving the trouble of collecting this from ſo many ſheets, I have taken the liberty to give my ſentiments in the moſt conciſe manner, on the ſubject of the differences and difficulties between the two Governments, in carrying the treaty of Poorunder into execution. My long reſidence at Poonah had made me well acquainted with the diſpoſitions and intentions of the Peiſhwa's Miniſters: concluding theſe to be nearly the ſame as when I left Poorunder, I ſhall eſteem myſelf ſpeaking upon almoſt certain grounds.

The Peiſhwa's Miniſters, in concluding the late treaty of peace with the Honourable Company on the part of the Maratta State, had principally in view the ſettling the Peiſhwa's family diſputes, in which the whole Maratta Chiefs were more or leſs concerned; they imagined they could have eaſily defeated the ſmall army we had in the field ſupporting Ragonaut Row (the returns of this army from Bombay, of January and February 1776, will ſhew our numbers) but they well knew this could have produced only a temporary relief, and that a general war with the Engliſh muſt have been the conſequence; they conceived by ſecuring a peace with the Company, and by ſtipulating that we were to give no aſſiſtance to Ragonath Row, or any of the rebellious or diſaffected ſubjects of the Peiſhwa, that little trouble would remain to them in ſettling their domeſtic diſputes, and reconciling the jarring intereſts of the other Chiefs; and they accordingly acceded to many of the ſtipulations ſo very beneficial and honourable to the Company.—Amongſt theſe muſt be particularly reckoned the twelve lacks of rupees granted to defray the expences of our army then in the field againſt the Peiſhwa, the Maratta ſhare of the collection of Broach, and the country of three lacks, ceeded to us in that neighbourhood. I do not mean to enumerate the advantages gained by the treaty of Poorunder, which I hope has been found to have put an honourable end to a war undertaken in a bad cauſe, againſt the moſt formidable power in India.

It now reſts to enquire, how far the views of the Maratta State, for entering into this treaty, have been anſwered. I have already obſerved what was their principal object in concluding this peace, which the Peiſhwa's Miniſters thought fully obtained by the four following articles. The remarks on them, however, will ſhew how very poſſible it is for different people to put different conſtructions on the plaineſt language.—Theſe articles therefore which remained with the Preſidency of Bombay to ſee accompliſhed, have not been carried into execution in the manner either expected or intended at the concluſion of the treaty, of which the Council of Bombay were by me frequently adviſed; and alſo, that the Peiſhwa's Miniſters had frequently declared them guilty of infringements of the late treaty.

Article 9th.

" It is agreed that Ragonaut Row is to " diſband his army within one month of " this date," 1ſt March.

Article 10th.

" If Ragonaut Row refuſes to diſband " his army, the Engliſh are to withdraw " their forces, and are not to aſſiſt him."

Remarks, Articles 9th and 10th.

Ragonaut Row did not diſband his army: We did not, according to treaty, immediately withdraw our forces. Ragonaut Row took refuge under the walls of Surat, and theſe very forces remained in the field to cover him.

Article 12th.

" It is agreed, that no aſſiſtance is to " be given to any ſubject or ſervant " of the Peiſhwa that ſhall cauſe diſ- " turbances or rebellion in the Maratta " dominions."

The Preſidency of Bombay have ever ſince the date of the treaty been giving aſſiſtance to Ragonaut Row, and other rebellious ſubjects of the Peiſhwa. Ragonaut Row was received into Bombay on the 11th or 12th November 1776, and yet continues there. The Peiſhwa's Miniſters were convinced of his being received and kept there to ſerve on a future occaſion, and informed me of his being allowed by the Preſidency of Bombay 10,000 rupees monthly to defray his charges. His cauſe is appealed (as Colonel Keating expreſsly wrote me) to His Majeſty and Council, and to the Honourable Company: The Miniſters know this, it was very publicly made known. Replies were to be waited for, and the Council of Bombay conducted themſelves, in hopes of theſe replies being favourable to the cauſe of Ragonaut Row, accordingly, and have and do act in direct oppoſition to the 12th article.

Article 16th.

It is agreed, that " the Marattas are " not to cauſe any diſturbance in any of " the ceded countries, nor ſhall the " Engliſh occaſion any diſturbances in " the Marratta dominions."

Remarks.

The perſon who was called Sedaſhew Row, whilſt in open rebellion againſt his country, was permitted to have vackeels in Bombay: Theſe men had of courſe in charge their maſter's intereſt at that Preſidency, where they were well received. A ſurgeon from Bombay was ſent to cure him of his (old) wounds; and the Miniſters alledged, that every mark of favour was ſhewn to this man (called Shedaſhew Row) during the rebellion. After his defeat, his diſperſed troops were received into Salſette, and are ſtill kept there; many of the Maratta Chiefs who followed this man's fortunes were received (and I underſtand yet continue) at Bombay. The preceding remark will fully ſhew, that much diſturbance has been occaſioned by us to the Maratta dominions, and very heavy charges have been brought on that Government by the active part taken by the Preſidency of Bombay, in the Maratta diſputes.

The Government of Bombay complain of their loſs of trade, by the communication to Poonah being ſhut, and the very great injury that will be ſuſtained thereby to the Honourable Company and Engliſh nation. If the Council of Bombay will carry the 12th article of the late treaty into execution, by withholding every aſſiſtance to Ragonaut Row, either by preſent means or promiſes of future; by obeying the repeated orders of the Superior Council, in inſiſting on his not reſiding at their Preſidency, or any of its dependencies; if the Council of Bombay will oblige the diſaffected ſubjects of the Peiſhwa, who to his great loſs have taken refuge in Bombay and Salſette, to quit theſe ſettlements, they will then ſoon find that harmony and confidence reſtored, the loſs of which in their conſequences they ſo ſeverely feel: And then the trifling differences in diſpute, regarding the country of three lacks, would be eaſily adjuſted; for I conceive, whilſt we are keeping back ſo many and ſuch material articles to them, they may have determined in turn, to be tardy in making over this ceſſion: Beſides, it ſhould appear that the Miniſters may be ſomewhat alarmed about Jamboſeer. Whilſt Ragonaut Row reſides at Bombay, in expectation of being ſupported, the Miniſters can place no confidence in the Council there; which muſt now be productive of the greateſt inconveniencies, and perhaps in the end of fatal conſequences. The Poonah Government ſeemed ever diſpoſed to comply with the wiſhes of the Superior Council. A requeſt, Gentlemen, from you to the Peiſhwa's Miniſters, for a proviſion being made more ſuitable to the wiſhes of Ragonaut Row, would I am perſuaded be attended to, and if carried into execution, would remove every obſtacle to the accompliſhment of the late treaty. Should ſuch requeſt be made, the Council of Bombay will of courſe be required to exert themſelves in perſuading Ragonaut Row to accept the propoſals made to him. And as objections are made by theſe gentlemen to his reſidence, or rather his going to Banares, ſome other place of reſidence ſhould be named; though the Miniſters ſaid, if he choſe to travel there by land, Scindia and Tuccojee would become the guarantees. I ſhould imagine, however devoted Ragonaut Row may be to his religion, a method might be found of removing him to Benares, and not prevent his indulging in the full ceremonies of it, and with abſolute ſafety (as his fears from the Miniſters are not to be overcome) to his perſon.

When the treaty in all its conditions ſhall be carried into execution, and confidence reſtored between the Government of Bombay and Poonah, the French intrigues at the Maratta Durbar will no longer alarm us. A Miniſter immediately from the Superior Council to reſide at Poonah, which the Peiſhwa's Miniſters were ever requeſting, would ſecure our intereſts with the Poonah Government, againſt every attempt that might be made to ſupplant us there: farther, we have it in our power to form an alliance with the Marattas, ſhould it be thought expedient, almoſt on our own terms, to the total excluſion of all other European Powers; and this does not appear to have been provided for by any treaty now exiſting between us and the Marattas.

I truſt, Gentlemen, you will excuſe the freedom with which I have given my opinion on the papers you were pleaſed to order to be laid before me: to elucidate to the utmoſt of my power ſuch parts of them, as from my reſidence at Poonah have come within my immediate knowledge, is a duty I owe not only to your commands, but to our Honourable Employers, to whom the differences now ſubſiſting between the Governments of Bombay and Poonah, are, in whatever light conſidered, of the greateſt conſequence.

I have the honour, &c.

Fort William, July 31ſt 1777. (Signed) John Upton.

A Letter from the Chief and Council of Tannah, to the Select Committee of Bombay, dated 30th October 1777.

Extracts from the Conſultation of the Select Committee of Bombay, dated 30th October 1776.

Early this morning it was reported, that Sudaba with four or five hundred of his followers were in ten or twelve boats at anchor off Croſs Iſland, oppoſite to Fort George; and that Sudaba propoſed coming on ſhore: about noon a meſſenger waited on Mr. Draper, to acquaint him that Sudaba had been defeated at Rajematchee, and requeſted to be received here; which Mr. Draper therefore agreed to; informing the meſſenger that he might immediately return to his maſter in a bunder boat, accompanied with Manordoſs Rupjee and Bowaney, the Gentoo Interpreter, whom he ordered to wait on Sudaba with his compliments, to acquaint him with Mr. Draper's compliance with his requeſt, and that he had given orders for tents being pitched in Manordoſs's oaſt, with a Subedar's guard to attend him; but in the afternoon Manordoſs and Bowaney returned with Sudaba's compliments to Mr. Draper, acquainting him that as the Governor was abſent at Salſette, he had determined to go to Mandvem for two or three days, when he would return hither. He accordingly proceeded thither about two o'clock in the afternoon.

Remarks.

This letter does not require to be remarked upon, as no part had then been taken by the Chief, &c. of Salſette, in the Maratta diſputes.

Extracts from the Conſultation of the Select Committee of Bombay, dated Friday the 1ſt November 1776.

Read the letter received the 30th ultimo from the Chief and Council at Tannah, giving an account of a moſt ſudden and unexpected revolution in the affairs of Sudaba, and requeſting our directions with reſpect to ſome of his people who have arrived near that place after their defeat at Rajematchee, and have ſolicited our protection.

On conſideration of the latter point, it is agreed to ſend directions to the Chief and Factors, that in caſe Sudaba's people ſhould be attacked and driven over the river into the Company's territory, they ſhould be received upon Salſette in order to ſave their lives; and ſhould this happen, their arms muſt be taken from them, and permiſſion given them to reſide upon Salſette, or depart whenever they may think proper.

Mr. Draper's having conſented to receive Sedaſhew Row, &c. (in rebellion againſt the Maratta Government) is in direct oppoſition to the 12th Article of the late treaty, conſequently muſt have tended to widen the breach between the two Governments (Bombay and Poonah) and keep the communication to Poonah ſhut; but Sedaſhew Row's not having being received into Bombay renders any obſervation on this extract almoſt unneceſſary.

Remarks.

It is here only to be obſerved, we were to take no part in the Maratta diſputes.

Extracts from the Conſultation of the Select Committee, Bombay, dated Monday the 4th November 1776.

The Preſident acquaints the Board, that he has received information that Sudaba is put in confinement in the fort of Colabba, by Ragojee Angria, who prevailed on him to land there to refreſh himſelf, with profeſſions of the utmoſt friendſhip and regard for his perſon; but getting him into his power, ſtripped him of jewels to a large amount, and, as before ſaid, impriſoned him in his fort of Colabba: that Ragojee had wrote him an account of this tranſaction, which he now lays before us; and that he intended to deliver him up to the Miniſters in caſe he ſhould prove not to be the real Sudaba.

The Preſident then proceeds to relate, that on receiving this intelligence he immediately wrote a letter to Ragojee Angria, a copy of which he now lays before us, together with tranſlation of the anſwer ſent him by Ragojee Angria; both of which being accordingly read, it is conſidered what meaſures are to be purſued upon the occaſion.

Appendix. No. 11.

After mature conſideration, we are clearly of opinion that it is incumbent on us to exert ourſelves for the preſervation of Sudaba, ſo far as we conſiſtently can, as he may in ſome degree be conſidered as under our protection, from the circumſtances ſet forth in our Diary under the 30th ultimo, and his death or perpetual impriſonment muſt be the inevitable conſequences of his being ſent to Poonah; but circumſtanced as we are, we do not think we can interfere in his favour further than by ſending a verbal meſſage to Ragojee Angria to repreſent how diſhonourable it will be for him to deliver up a perſon whom he had engaged by the moſt ſolemn obligation not to injure, which we are aſſured was the caſe; and likewiſe that as Sudaba was waiting there with an intention of proceeding to this place, we expected he ſhould be permitted to depart whenever he might think proper: which meſſage the Preſident is accordingly empowered to ſend to him, and we hope it will be attended with the deſired effect.

Remarks.

Suppoſe the perſon called Sedaſhew Row had intended to have gone to Bombay, did this authorize that Government to demand him from the Maratta State? The Marattas ſeized on him in their own dominions; whether by ſtratagem or otherwiſe cannot concern us. What could induce the Council of Bombay to give aſſurances of friendſhip, &c. to this man previous to his defeat, perhaps even as early as his firſt being in arms againſt the Poonah Government, in violation of the treaty of Poorunder?

Tranſlation of a Letter from Ragojee Angria to the Honourable the Preſident, dated the 1ſt November 1776, and received in Bombay the following day.

After compliments:

Bhow Pundit (or Sudaba) marched his army from Rhutnagery, and after taking many forts got as far as Rajamatchy upon the Gauts, where he had a battle with the army of Row Pundit Purdhaun, in which, by the bleſſing of God, the latter were victorious. After this Bhow Pundit fled to Belapore, and his army deſerted him: he went to your bunder, but was not received there, and therefore came to Thull, a village belonging to me, and ſent a carcoon to me with a meſſage, that as friendſhip had alway ſubſiſted between us, he deſired I would carry him to Poonah; and that after he got there "what God pleaſed "would be." I thereupon went to him, and brought him to Colabby. He had ſome rebels with him, who wanted to uſe force; whereupon I did take their arms from them, and turned them out, and intend to carry the ſaid Bhow Pundit ſhortly to Poonah. On account of my friendſhip for your Honour I acquaint you of theſe circumſtances, and Mhadjee Bullol will inform you more fully on this ſubject.

Letter from the Honourable the Preſident to Ragojee Angria, in anſwer to the above.

After compliments:

I have received your letter by your vackeel Mhadjee Bullol who communicated all you had to acquaint me, regarding Bhow Saheb, who, you ſay, is ſafe with you; but when he left this bunder, he promiſed to return in a day or two, or as ſoon as I returned; I therefore expect him here very ſoon. Mhadjee Bullol will give you every other information on this buſineſs.

Remarks.

This information ſhould have been related; Ragojee Angria has declared, that the Government of Bombay threatened to take his fort if he did not ſurrender his priſoner.

Tranſlation of a Letter from Ragojee Angria to the Honourable the Governor of Bombay; dated the 4th November 1776, and received the ſame day.

After compliments:

I wrote a letter to your Honour, to which you ſent me an anſwer by Mhadjee Bullol, and I have obſerved its contents. I did not deſire that Bhow Pundit ſhall come to my place; but after weighing the matter, he did come, of which I adviſed you; notwithſtanding which your Honour writes me, that he promiſed to return to Bombay in a day or two; and that you therefore expected him there. I never underſtood from him, that he meant to return to Bombay. I ſhould have adviſed him to go, and would have conducted him to any place he deſired, had it not been publicly known that he had landed in my dominions; upon which the Poonah army, came to Pen, Nagotan, and Aſtamy. I had a conference with the miniſterial officers, in which it was agreed to carry Sudaba to Poonah: I therefore write your Honour this, and beg to know what I am to do; if my going to Poonah is prevented; and by what method I can preſerve my ſtate. If your Honour will ſecure me from the conſequences, I will ſubmit to your pleaſure. Ambaram Bhuff and Mhadjee Bullol will inform you verbally of all other particulars; your honour will therefore pleaſe to give them a ſatisfactory anſwer, and diſpatch them immediately.

Remarks.

In the next letter written by Ragojee Angria, dated the 4th November, how comes he, if threats towards him had not been uſed by the Gentlemen of Bombay, to write thus to the Honourable the Preſident? "I therefore write your "honour this, and beg to know what I "am to do, if my going to Poonah is "prevented; and by what method I can "preſerve my ſtate. If your Honour "will ſecure me from the conſequences, "I will ſubmit to your pleaſure. Am-"buram Bhuff and Mhadjee Bullol will "inform you verbally of all other par-"ticulars; your Honour will therefore "pleaſe to give them a ſatisfactory an-"ſwer, and diſpatch them immediately."

From what motive could Ragojee Angria ſubmit to the pleaſure of the Government of Bombay, but to have his ſtate preſerved to him, which it is evident had been threatened.

Extracts from the Conſultation of the Select Committee of Bombay; dated the 14th November 1776.

Read, the letter received this morning, from Lieutenant Colonel Upton.

He muſt be acquainted, in reply, with the circumſtances reſpecting Sudaba, and our application in his favour to Ragojee Angria, exactly in the manner they happened; which will obviate the miſrepreſentations made by the Miniſters; and that we were induced by humanity alone to receive Sudaba's people into Salſette, merely to ſave their lives, as we ſhould have done to the miniſterial forces in the like ſituation.

Remarks.

The Miniſters people received few indulgencies from the Preſidency of Bombay during my reſidence at Poonah. The vackeel ſent by the Peiſhwa to Bombay complained he could ſeldom get an audience; and when he did, the Governor expreſſed himſelf on every buſineſs relative to his miſſion, either very cooly or angrily. The vackeel conſtantly wrote to the Miniſters, that he had the mortification to ſee the vackeels of Ragonath Row and Sedaſhew Row careſſed and heard upon all occaſions, and himſelf treated with the greateſt indifference.

The peace was concluded with us by the Peiſhwa, that we ſhould take no part in the diſputes of the Maratta Government; we were to aſſiſt no Maratta ſubjects in rebellion againſt him: is not a very active part taken here? humanity might have induced the Council of Bombay to receive part of the diſperſed army of Sudaba; ſo it might to have marched an army into the field to have covered him: had this humanity brought on a general war between the Honourable Company and the Marattas, this would have been an unhappy conſequence of our humanity.

I conclude humanity alſo induced the Gentlemen of Bombay to cover Ragonath Row with their whole force, in breach of the treaty juſt before entered into with the Maratta States; and obliged the Marattas to keep up a very large army, great part of which ſtill remains watching the motions of Ragonath Row, who is yet (July 1777) in Bombay; and to guard the communication to Poonah, to prevent any ſurprize, and I fear, to the total excluſion of all trade between the two Governments; which muſt happen unleſs Ragonath Row is otherwiſe provided for, as the Peiſhwa's Miniſters and the Maratta Chiefs in general are firmly perſuaded, he is kept in Bombay, to be produced at a proper opportunity to be placed on the Muſnud.

At the ſame Conſultation, 14th November.

It is therefore agreed, That he (Ragonath Row) be permitted to reſide here till ſome other reſidence can be obtained for him, to which he can be reconciled.

In violation of treaty and contempt of authority.

Extract of a letter from the Select Committee of Bombay to Lieutenant Colonel Upton; dated 20th November 1776.

"Ragoba has put himſelf under our protection, and he now reſides "in Bombay."

Not another word in this letter reſpecting Ragonath Row, though it was written in anſwer to a letter from me, requeſting to know the truth of ſuch report. What had I to ſay to the Miniſters in vindication of this meaſure? The Council of of Bombay ſeemed as little to have conſidered my ſituation as what they themſelves were bound to obſerve by the late treaty.

Extract of a Conſultation of the Select Committee of Bombay; dated Saturday the 23d November 1776.

Read, the letters received the 20th inſtant and this morning from Lieutenant Colonel Upton.

Colonel Upton perſiſting in urging us not to protect Ragoba, and to rely on the aſſurances of the Miniſters for his ſafety is to us very extraordinary. We cannot refrain expreſſing the utmoſt aſtoniſhment that any gentleman who has been in the leaſt converſant with the natives of Aſia, can be ſo totally unacquainted with their genius and diſpoſition, as not to know that treachery and perfidy are their peculiar characteriſtics, and that the Marattas are the moſt treacherous and perfidious of all Aſiatics. No one poſſeſſed of this knowledge can ſuppoſe for a moment that Ragoba's life would not be in danger, were he to truſt himſelf in the power of the Miniſters, his profeſſed enemies, who have ſo much reaſon to wiſh his deſtruction, and ſurrounded as he would be by people in their pay, and entirely at their devotion. Convinced by experience of the juſtice of theſe ſentiments, the Board in general, and particularly the gentlemen who ſubſcribed the treaty, thought themſelves bound by every tie to afford him the protection he ſolicited; eſpecially conſidering that he is reduced to his preſent ſituation in conſequence of that very engagement. We only mean to extend this protection to ſecure him from perſonal danger, until the Miniſters can ſettle ſome terms that are ſatisfactory to him, as it is very far from our deſire that he ſhould reſide here; and we ſhall be very glad whenever he can be removed from the Company's ſettlements without danger to himſelf.

If therefore the Miniſters will ſettle any terms that may be agreeable to Ragoba, it would afford us real ſatisfaction, and Colonel Upton muſt be deſired to acquaint them that we will with great readineſs not only communicate to him, but uſe our influence to perſuade him to accept any conſiſtent offers they make him.

And as we are very deſirous of giving all poſſible ſatisfaction to the Poonah Government, and of removing as far as we can all doubts they may entertain in conſequence of Ragoba's reſidence at Bombay; aſſurances muſt be given to the Miniſters that Ragoba reſides here as a private perſon, and that we will not in any ſhape countenance or promote any ſchemes or deſigns to their prejudice, or in the leaſt infringe the late treaty; of which we have before repeatedly obſerved, we cannot allow our affording him mere perſonal protection to be any infringement.

Remarks.

I cannot ſee how my perſiſting to urge the Council of Bombay not to protect Ragonath Row, and to carry the 12th Article of the treaty into execution, ſhould imply my being ſo totally unacquainted with the genius and diſpoſition of the natives of Aſia, as not to know that treachery and perfidy are their peculiar characteriſtics. This obſervation is as great a matter of aſtoniſhment to me, as my requeſting the gentlemen of Bombay to facilitate the completion of the 12th Article of the Treaty, by deſiring Ragonath Row might quit Bombay in obedience to orders ſent from the Superior Council, could have been to them. It was propoſed that Ragonath Row ſhould reſide at Benares. Why theſe gentlemen talk of Ragonath Row's being truſted in the power of the Miniſters; but no ſuch requeſt "as "urging the Council of Bombay not to "protect Ragoba, and to rely on the "aſſurances of the Miniſters" was in November 1776 made by me, as ſet forth in this Conſultation. Further, I am convinced his perſon was in no danger from the Miniſters; they could have poſſeſſed themſelves of it during the whole time of his being encamped near Terrapore, but their repeated orders to the officer commanding the troops obſerving his motions, were, never to attempt to ſeize upon Ragonath Row, unleſs it could be done with ſafety to his perſon. The Council of Bombay in this ſituation, for reaſons beſt known to themſelves, choſe entirely to forget the very advantageous terms (of which they were adviſed adviſed in my letter of the 22d Auguſt) made by the Miniſters for Ragonath Row, and then conſenting to his reſiding at Benares; he was not there to be ſurrounded by people in the pay of Miniſters, and at their devotion. The Council of Bombay at this Conſultation ſay, "We only mean to extend this "protection to ſecure him from perſonal danger, until the Miniſters can ſettle ſome terms that are ſatiſ- "factory to him, as it is very far from our deſire that he ſhould reſide here; and we ſhall be very "happy whenever he can be removed from the Company's ſettlement without danger to himſelf."

Appendix. No. 11.

Why then did the gentlemen of Bombay not adviſe Ragonath Row to accept the terms forwarded by me, from the Miniſters, on the 22d Auguſt? He is there allowed a jaghire of five lacks a year, and to reſide at Benares: but on the contrary, when the vackeel went to talk to the Governor of Bombay on the ſubject of Ragonath Row's jaghire, &c. the demand made by the Governor on the part of Ragonath Row, as the vackeel wrote to the Miniſters, was very large, conciſe, and peremptory.

I was informed by the Miniſters, that Ragonath Row was, and I ſuppoſe ſtill is, allowed ten thouſand rupees monthly to defray his expences; he will be in no haſte therefore to change his place of abode.

It is alſo ſaid at this Conſultation, that the Board in general, particularly the gentlemen who ſubſcribed the treaty, thought themſelves bound by every tie to afford him the protection he ſolicited, &c. After this declaration, what remains, but to take the earlieſt and beſt meaſures for carrying on a war againſt the Maratta States? The Government of Bombay think themſelves bound to prevent the treaty of Poorunder being carried into execution.

Again, they ſay, "and as we are very deſirous of giving all poſſible ſatisfaction to the Poonah Govern- "ment, and of removing, as far as we can, all doubts they may entertain in conſequence of Ragoba's "reſidence at Bombay, aſſurances muſt be given to the Miniſters, that Ragoba reſides here as a private "perſon, and that he will not, in any ſhape, countenance or promote any ſchemes or deſigns to their "prejudice, or in the leaſt infringe the late treaty; of which, as we have before repeatedly obſerved, "we cannot allow our affording him mere perſonal protection to be any infringement."

The all poſſible ſatisfaction here mentioned to be given to the Miniſters, muſt have fallen very ſhort of theſe gentlemen's wiſhes; for the Miniſters knew that Ragonath Row was publicly received at Bombay, and they concluded in order to be ſupported as the replies from Europe ſhould direct: an allowance was accordingly fixed to defray his expences.

General Gordon enters a Minute on the Conſultation of this day; he points out the dangerous tendency of receiving Ragonath Row; and ſays, he is not informed of the cauſe that induced Ragonath Row to come to Bombay, nor of the mode of his conveyance. The Council of Bombay remark, that the General was not preſent at the Conſultation of the preceding day. The ſame remark might have been frequently made during the Conſultation on the buſineſs of my deputation.

Extract from the Conſultation of the Select Committee of Bombay; dated Wedneſday the 18th December 1776.

It is our earneſt wiſh and deſire to maintain a moſt friendly intercourſe and correſpondence with the Maratta State, of which the Preſident is requeſted to aſſure the Miniſters by letter, to be incloſed to Colonel Upton according to his deſire, and we ſhall expect the like friendly conduct on their part.

As a proof of the ſincerity of our intentions, Colonel Upton muſt be deſired to acquaint the Miniſters, that we are ready to depute a gentleman to reſide at Poonah, the moment they expreſs a deſire that we ſhould; and provided they will give us aſſurances that they will receive and treat him in a manner ſuitable to the character he will be inveſted with, of Repreſentative for the Honourable Company.

Remarks.

Is this a proof of the ſincerity, or the contrary, in the Council of Bombay? The Miniſters knew the order for ſending a Reſident from Bombay to Poonah had arrived from the Superior Council to Bombay near a month before: in keeping him ſo long back the goodneſs of their intentions towards the Poonah Government did not ſhew itſelf in any ſtriking manner to the Miniſters, who had been moſt preſſingly, for ſome months before, requeſting a Reſident might be ſent.

Extracts of a letter from the Select Committee of Bombay to the Honourable Warren Haſtings, Eſquire, Governor General, &c. Council at Fort William; dated the 14th April 1777.

The extracts we have now the honour to tranſmit from our Secret Conſultations, will place in their proper light the circumſtances mentioned in your letter, of our giving protection to ſome of the defeated adherents of Sudaba, our interpoſition with Ragojee Angria in his favour, and our receiving into Bombay the perſon of Ragonath Row. We are perſuaded that when you have given theſe extracts a candid peruſal the impreſſion made on your minds by the repreſentation you have received from Poonah on theſe points, will be entirely removed; and that you will no longer conſider our preventing a handful of wretched ſepoys from being ſlaughtered under the walls of a Britiſh fortreſs, as repugnant to any treaty, but as an act directed by humanity, and warranted by the law of nations. We ſend the meſſage mentioned in our Minutes to Ragojee Angria after he had by treachery got Sudaba into his poſſeſſion, becauſe the latter has been promiſed our protection; and we eſteemed it our duty to endeavour to ſave him from being murdered, which we concluded would be the caſe if he was ſent to Poonah by the perfidious Angria; but we diſclaim any declaration of war, in caſe of his refuſal to deliver Sudaba up.

We beg leave to obſerve, that we are not anſwerable for any thing the adherent of Sudaba may have thought proper to write to his confederates.

Without entering into any diſcuſſion of your authority to give us an order to expel Ragoba from Bombay, and putting out of the queſtion the diſgrace and bad conſequences which would have attended ſuch a meaſure,

Remarks.

The Council of Bombay ſeem determined to afford protection to all the Maratta ſubjects, whether in rebellion, or in whatever manner they may be diſaffected to the Maratta State.

The Miniſters on this ſubject have declared, that ſuch behaviour is an infringement on the treaty of Poorunder, and of former treaties; that they are thereby prevented recovering their dues from ſuch people as fly to Bombay, Salſette, &c. or bringing them to juſtice; and if long continued muſt in the end prove fatal.

The former part of the 3d paragraph of this letter is of too intricate a nature for me to remark upon, and the latter part of it requires no other obſervation than that the Secret Committee ſay, they have diſpenſed with putting the orders of the Superior Council reſpecting Ragonath Row quitting Bombay into execution.

meaſure, and every conſideration of honour and humanity, by which we eſteemed ourſelves bound to protect him, it appeared to us quite unadviſable, and warranted by no political neceſſity, to compel him to depart, as Colonel Upton had acquainted us, under the 12th December, that the Miniſters ſeemed well pleaſed, and for the preſent ſatisfied, with the aſſurances he had made them at our deſire, in conſequence of Ragoba's having taken refuge here; and we had reaſon to hope, from the profeſſion they made, that ſatisfactory terms would ſoon be ſettled for him, Mr. Moſtyn being then ſhortly to proceed to Poonah, to whom this point would be given in eſpecial charge: we therefore have not ſignified your orders to Ragoba; and we flatter ourſelves Mr. Moſtyn will meet with ſucceſs, and that your intentions will thereby be anſwered, as it is very pleaſing to us whenever we can promote the execution of them.

Mr. Moſtyn ſet off for Poonah the 14th ultimo, and arrived there the 29th: he had not then had an audience from the Peiſhwa, but was to proceed to Poorunder in two days for that purpoſe. He adviſes the death of the Ram Rajah on the 24th ultimo, which may probably occaſion ſome alteration in the Poonah Government. We incloſe copy of his inſtructions, which we hope you will approve, and that they will convince you of our diſpoſition to preſerve a good underſtanding with the Maratta State.

Much has paſſed between us and Colonel Upton on the ſubject of the evaſive conduct of the Miniſters in complying with the 5th Article of the Treaty. In the beginning of December laſt he adviſed, that he had ſettled with them that the Pergunnahs of Ahmood, Hanſood, and Deſborah, ſhould be made over to the Company; and that if the revenues of theſe places amounted to more than three lacks of rupees, the exceſs ſhould be deducted from Ahmood or Hanſood; on the contrary, if there was any deficiency, it was to be made up by grants of villages from the Pergunnah of Oselaſeer. This was a very fair, equitable agreement, and we then hoped the buſineſs was entirely concluded in an advantageous manner to the Company; but owing to ſome colluſion between the Poonah agents at Broach and their principals, the country is not to this hour made over to the Company. That you may have full information of our proceedings, and be better able to judge what meaſures to purſue, we now tranſmit copies of all the papers on this ſubject ſince the ſettlement made by Colonel Upton, and the letters from Meſſrs. Carnac, Boddam, and Ramſay, now at Broach, and hope that our conduct will be ſatisfactory to you.

In the above papers you will obſerve the demand made by the Miniſters for the poſſeſſion of Jambooſeer, which is equally oppoſite to the agreement made with Colonel Upton, and if complied with, would leave the Company without any ſecurity for the 12 lacks, or the country ceded by the 5th Article.

Since writing the above we have been honoured with your letter, dated the 27th January.

What we have already wrote, and the extracts above referred to, will in a great meaſure ſerve as a reply to one of them; and we can only further obſerve, that we ever underſtood it to be the cuſtom of all nations, and we think it is inconſiſtent with reaſon and common ſenſe, not to permit of hoſtilities being committed within reach of the guns of a fortification; which induced us to give the orders we did to the Chief and Council at Tannah, and not any intention of invading the territorial rights of the Marattas.

By the extracts from our Minutes it will appear, that Ragonath Row eſcaped from the fort of Terrapore, where he was beſieged by his enemies, on board an Engliſh veſſel, and came in perſon to Bombay to ſolicit our protection, without any encouragement or invitation from us. The fort ſoon afterwards was taken by the Poonah forces.

Extract of a letter from Mr. Moſtyn to the Select Committee at Bombay; dated the 20th April 1777.

I may not perhaps receive this intelligence ſo early as I could wiſh, from the ſtrict watch that is kept over me to prevent, I ſuppoſe, my having any communication with thoſe on whom I can depend for certain information, no one having hitherto been near me, and my own people are obliged to be very cautious with whom they converſe.

Extract of a letter from Mr. Moſtyn to the Honourable Warren Haſtings, Eſquire, Governor General, &c. Council at Fort William; dated the 30th April 1777.

After the uſual compliments had paſſed, they aſked me if the Governor and Council of Bombay had accepted the Treaty of Peace concluded by Colonel Upton, and ratified by you? Upon my anſwering, that they undoubtedly had, of which my being ſent to them at their own requeſt ought to be the convincing proof, they preſented me a paper to ſign to that effect, but which I declined, not thinking it either neceſſary

It is next to impoſſible that any alteration in the Poonah Government can be occaſioned by the death of the Ram Rajah, unleſs effected by ourſelves.

Difficulties may ever be thrown in the way to prevent carrying the 5th Article of the Treaty into execution. The advantage being altogether on our ſide, we ought to endeavour at a fair eſtimation to poſſeſs ourſelves of the country to be ceded. I forwarded copies of the orders: the Miniſters ſent their carcons at Broach on this ſubject to the Select Committee at Bombay, and had great hopes, at the time of my leaving Poonah, that the 5th Article of the Treaty would have been inſtantly ſettled. The Miniſters told me, the Zemindars would give an account of their rents in the preſence of the Engliſh and Maratta agents, and the country valued according to former undiſturbed collections, as ſhould appear by the accounts of theſe Zemindars to have been paid by them to the Circar.

It is very likely that the Miniſters, ſeeing our protection ſo long continued to Ragonath Row and the other diſaffected ſubjects, are not deſirous of making over this ceſſion till they ſhall be certain of the intentions of the Preſidency of Bombay regarding theſe people. This however I give as a matter of opinion merely.

If it was propoſed by the Superior Council to the Peiſhwa's Miniſters to receive the country to be ceded, at an average of the collections made in the laſt undiſturbed ten or fifteen years; or ſhould this time be thought too far back, three or five years might ſuffice; this would be too equitable to be refuſed (or muſt bring on explanations;) and a fairer eſtimation, I am humbly of opinion, cannot be deſired.

Till the treaty ſhall have been fully carried into execution, confidence cannot ſubſiſt between the Governments of Bombay and Poonah: a Miniſter (for a time) deputed immediately from the Superior Council, might at a period ſo critical as the preſent appears, recover great ſervices to the Honourable Company.

Remarks.

I do not think the Miniſters aſking Mr. Moſtyn to ſign a paper, ſignifying that the Bombay Council had accepted the Treaty of Peace concluded at Poorunder, implied any doubt of the authority veſted in the Superior Council to ratify sary or proper; and represented to them, that their requiring it, was doubting the authority you had, Gentlemen, to ratify that treaty, as well as the veracity of the Bombay Board. In consequence of my refusal some altercation ensued; therefore to convince them of the sincerity of the Bombay Presidency strictly to adhere to the treaty, and to obviate as far as in my power every objection they might make, I proposed their delivering me what they had to say in writing, which I would answer in the same manner; to which they agreed; and accordingly on the 20th following I received four separate articles from them, translates of which, together with my answer thereto delivered them this day, I have now the honour to inclose for your observation.

Appendix. No. 11.

Translates of four papers delivered by the Poonah Durbar to Mr. Mostyn, and marked as follows:

5th.

The Punt Pradan and his Ministers agree, by way of friendship, to give for ever to the English Company, a country of three lacks, according to cahmil or ancient statement of revenues, near or adjoining to Broach, on which there is to be no claim of chout, or any other demand whatever. Two carcons belonging to the Peishwa, and two persons on the part of the English, to proceed and settle exactly the places and boundaries, when the Peishwa will give the sunnuds: this is according to the treaty; but the Governor and Council of Bombay refuse to accept them, agreeable to cahmil or former statement, therefore the Governor and Council of Bombay should write to Mr. Carnac and the other gentlemen at Broach to settle according to the ancient statement of revenues, which they may learn from the Jamidars of the Pergunnahs, and receive the countries of three lacks.

It is agreed by the Treaty, that the Honourable Company is to receive a country of three complete lacks of rupees, near or adjoining to Broach.

The words in the Persian are jama cahmil, which should mean full or complete collection. It was never understood that the word kamil meant ancient or former, nor was such meaning understood by it in the drawing up the 5th Article, nor do I now learn that it can bear such meaning as ancient or former.

The Peishwa's Ministers objected to making over a country of three lacks, as collected for a few years last past, as the country had been in disturbance, and they were liable therefore by such estimation to give over a country that would greatly exceed the intended value.

This agreement has most certainly reason to support it.

The Ministers consented that an estimation of the districts, either from their former payments to the Maratta Government, or to abide by what they should now offer, when not under their influence, to rent such districts at; and in the estimating these districts, the Ministers declared they had sent private orders to their agents not to let a difference of 5,000 or 10,000 rupees prevent the country being made over.

7th.

This Article is exactly conformable to the Article of the Treaty of Peace entered into by Colonel Upton, except the following addition:

When such was the treaty, and two letters from Futty Sing to Colonel John Upton, declaring he had no authority to alienate any country, and inclosing copy of a former Peishwa's sunnud, yet the Pergunnahs of Chickly, &c. are detained by you; these ought to be restored.

Remarks.

The Letter (for I received but one, another for me is now with the vackeel) and the copies of the sunnuds, I forwarded to the Superior Council, with the treaty; these were not sufficiently satisfactory to me. Futty Sing, or a respectable person on his part, should have been sent to Poonah, and have cleared up the matter in dispute. The Ministers were always promising this; but had it been done, I did not conceive myself authorized, after the ratification of the treaty, to restore the country ceded by Futty Sing. I am, however, of opinion, that Futty Sing has not the power of alienating part of the Maratta Dominions, in which the entire Guzerat Country stands included.

The treaties between the Government of Bombay and the Marattas, dated July 1739, and the 12th October 1756, are to be held and continued in as full force as when they were first entered into, unless any article or articles of either of them should in other manner be provided for by this treaty; in such case, such article or articles are to be rejected, and those of this treaty to be abided by. And it is mentioned in a former treaty, that the English will give no assistance at any rate to my enemies, even though in friendship with them: accordingly, the Peishwa shall give no assistance to the enemies of the English. In another treaty, it is agreed, that orders shall be given to the officers of the Circar, to stop all servants, soldiers, or great men belonging to the English, who should desert, and acquaint the Governor or Chief of the nearest settlement where such persons shall be taken; and when the Company's people come for them, they shall be delivered up to them. Accordingly, the servants or great men belonging to the Circar, except hatmen, who may have gone to Bombay, or any settlement under their jurisdiction, shall be delivered up again. To this both parties agreed on promise of pardon. This is the agreement; notwithstanding which you sent boats for Dada Saib, carried him to Bombay, and gave him protection, as you also did the people of Tooteya, with the Circar's elephants, horses, jewels, money, &c. they carried with them. Agreeable to this treaty our friendship had long subsisted; but you knowing a dispute had arisen in my house, and that my officers and forces were gone towards Brampore, took that opportunity to attack and take Salsette and other forts; from whence the English carried away the valuable effects. You also gave assistance to Ragonaut Row, which has put me to the expence of a crore; but through the means of the Supreme Council of Calcutta, a new treaty that treaty, but certainly implied a doubt of the sincerity of the conduct of the Presidency of Bombay towards the Poonah Government. Ragonath Row is in their thoughts ever uppermost.

The Peishwa is obliged to keep forces in the Cokun Country, whilst Ragonath Row is at Bombay. His adopted Son, with troops and the remains of the Borry army, are in that neighbourhood. The Presidency of Bombay, undoubtedly, in a great measure occasion this expence to the Poonah Government.

of peace and friendſhip has been concluded, notwithſtanding which you have given protection both to Ragonaut Row and the Impoſtor's people, which obliges me to keep the forces in the Conkan. Of whom am I to expect payment of this expence? and how is the treaty obſerved by the Engliſh? In former treaties the Circar's enemies were to be delivered up.

According to the treaty it is agreed the Circar ſhall pay to the Engliſh the ſum of twelve lacks of rupees; and until that amount is diſcharged the revenue of Jambooſeer, as agreed with Colonel Upton, is given up to the Engliſh; when the whole is paid off, the Engliſh to return the ſaid Pergunnah to the Circar, with every thing belonging to it. For my ſatisfaction, I propoſed to the Governor and Council of Bombay two conditions; the firſt, That the Amount Revenues ſhould be ſettled and recovered by the Circar's Man, Madajee Ramchunora, who would pay it to the Engliſh on their giving a receipt. The ſecond condition, that the Jemmabundy of the ſaid Pergunnah ſhould be made by Madajee Ramchunora, for which amount the Engliſh to give a receipt, and recover the revenues: of theſe two conditions, the Governor and Council of Bombay accepted the latter; but the Gentleman of the ſaid Pergunnah has not yet given any account of the revenues to Madajee Ramchunora. Without the Circar's Man makes the ſettlement of the revenue, how is he to know the amount to be recovered from the ſaid Pergunnah, and take the receipt for it? Therefore I deſire a letter to the Gentleman at Jambooſeer from the Governor and Council of Bombay, to permit that the Jemabundy be ſettled by Madajee Ramchunora, and the carcoons belonging to the ſaid Madajee to ſit at the Cuſtom Chowkey, to know what is recovered.

The Engliſh will recover the revenues of the ſaid Pergunnah and at the Chowkies, giving a receipt to the Circar's Man for the amount.

Remarks.

The Peiſhwa's Agent ſhould aſſiſt at the ſettling the lands for the enſuing year, he ſhould be made acquainted and adviſed with: concerning the entire collections at Jambooſeer, we are neither to gain or loſe by the collections; for what is collected or received receipts are to be given to the Peiſhwa's Agent, and if collected by us the Agent to be exactly informed and ſatisfied of the amount of ſuch collections: we retain poſſeſſion and all power in Jambooſeer till the 12 lacks ſhall be paid, and alſo until the country of three lacks ſhall be made over. In this manner it was ſettled by me with the Peiſhwa's Miniſters. It ought to be of little conſequence who makes the collections. If the Marattas had this, it muſt have been with the knowledge and concurrence of the Chief of Jambooſeer; but I underſtood it was preferred by the Government of Bombay, that the collections ſhould be made by the Engliſh Chief and the Maratta Agent to be informed with every particular.

Extracts from the Complaints and Demands of Mr. Moſtyn to the Miniſters.

Second. In the month of Auguſt laſt, the Governor and Council of Bombay ſent Colonel Upton a liſt of the cargo of the Engliſh ſhip Aurora, loſt near Rhuſtnagerry, to demand reſtitution thereof from you. This liſt muſt have been delivered to you; for in your letter to him of the 18th October, you write: "Attentive to the friendſhip between the "Circar and the Engliſh, after chaſtizing the ſeditious, and ſettling the "diſturbances in Conkan, ſtrict orders ſhall be iſſued in regard to re"ſtoring the ſhip's cargo from the ſaid receivers, and they will be "made to give it." The ſeditious have been overcome a long time, ſince which no reſtitution has been made; I therefore require your compliance therewith, or your finding ſome method to make good the loſs to our merchants, conformable to the 13th Article of the late treaty.

Remarks.

The anſwer from the Poonah Durbar to Mr. Moſtyn's demand requires but little to be remarked upon, as they aſſent to the whole of them. The reply to me from the Miniſters, regarding the cargo of the Aurora, was as follows:

Paragraph of a letter from the Peiſhwa to Lieutenant Colonel Upton, October 18th 1776.

"A trading veſſel going to China, was "drove on the ſea-ſhore by the violence "of the contrary winds, and fell in the "hands of the people belonging to the "ſeditious. You are converſing with "the Circar's Miniſters concerning this "ſhip, and the vackeel of the ſeditious "reſides at Bombay, and the Governor of "that place converſes with him: it is extraordinary that they do not demand the ſhip's cargo from the "vackeel: keeping the vackeel there, and not ſpeaking to him about the ſhip, is very ſurpriziog. Atten"tive to the friendſhip between the Circar and the Engliſh, after chaſtizing the ſeditious, and ſettling "the diſturbances in Conkan, ſtrict orders will be iſſued in regard to reſtoring the ſhip's cargo from "the ſaid receivers, and they will be made to give it."

A copy of this letter was ſent to Bombay, October the 19th 1776.

I think, before a demand ſo peremptory had been made by Mr. Moſtyn, ſome method ſhould have been fallen upon to have made ſuch of the plunderers of the Aurora as had fled for protection to Bombay and Salſette refund what they had ſo illegally poſſeſſed themſelves of, and thereby have removed in part the complaints of the Peiſhwa.

Letter from the Select Committee of Bombay to the Honourable Warren Haſtings, Eſquire, Governor General, &c. Council at Fort William; dated the 10th May 1777.

Having lately received from Mr. Moſtyn very alarming accounts of the proceedings of the French with the Poonah Government, we think it our eſpecial duty to loſe no time in tranſmitting you copies of his letters, that you may take what meaſure you may judge proper for guarding againſt the bad conſequences which muſt enſue from too cloſe a connection between thoſe Powers.

If the French ſucceed in obtaining the port of Choul, or any other ſo immediately in our neighbourhood, it will totally ruin the Company's trade at this ſettlement, and materially injure the commerce of Great Britain, excluſive of the advantage ſuch an eſtabliſhment would afford them in caſe of a national war; much therefore, in our opinion, ought to be hazarded to ſubvert the ſcheme, whether on further intelli-

Remarks.

Should the French ſucceed in obtaining the port of Choul, and the Company's trade at Bombay with the Marattas, be totally ruined; to what can it be attributed but to the extraordinary conduct of the Council of Bombay in keeping up Ragonath Row, to anſwer, as ſuppoſed by the Miniſters, the purpoſe of ſubverting the preſent Maratta Government, with whom a treaty of peace has been ſo lately concluded; and on the part of the Marattas, for the very purpoſe of our not taking any gence it ſhould prove to be directed to views of trade only, or to the forming a treaty of alliance with the Poonah Government; but we have only conſidered ourſelves authorized to direct Mr. Moſtyn to expoſtulate with the Miniſters on the impropriety of their giving encouragement to the French, our natural enemies, after the peace ſo lately concluded by Colonel Upton, and to demand from them the nature and deſign of Monſ. St. Laub's deputation. We have alſo inſtructed him to endeavour to excite their jealouſy by repreſenting the ambitious views, and encroaching diſpoſition of that nation, and their attachment to Hyder Ally, at the ſame time to make it, his ſtudy himſelf to preſerve the moſt amicable correſpondence with the Durbar.

Mr. Moſtyn will, by our directions, continue to keep you conſtantly and fully adviſed of ſuch of their proceedings as may come to his knowledge.

Whilſt we have ſuch reaſon for ſuſpicion of the deſigns of the French, we beg leave to ſubmit to your judgment how far it is expedient we ſhould remain in our preſent defenceleſs ſtate. The incloſed return will ſhew you the great diminution of our European corps, and until the diſpute with America is ſubſided, we have no reaſon to expect any conſiderable recruits from England; at any rate, it is good to be prepared againſt every event; and the appearance of a reſpectable force will at leaſt have a good effect on the conduct of the Poonah Government, and may deter the French from deſigns which our weakneſs might otherwiſe tempt them to undertake; from the ſame motive (and they have lately had ſeveral ſhips of force upon the coaſt) we have applied to Sir Edward Hughes, or his ſucceſſor in the command, to bring round His Majeſty's ſquadron to Bombay as early as he poſſibly can.

part in their diſputes, or affording protection or aſſiſtance to any of their ſubjects in rebellion, particularly Ragonath Row, on whom they are willing and deſirous of fixing a jaghire, and permitting his reſiding at Benares, or in fact almoſt any where, except at Bombay or its dependencies? The aſſiſting the perſon called Sadaſhew Row, and receiving his diſperſed troops, muſt have eſtranged the little remaining affection and regard they might have had towards the Preſidency of Bombay: we keep the communication between Bombay and Poonah ſhut by this extraordinary conduct. Will the Marattas ſuffer themſelves to be excluded from all trade with Europeans, becauſe we do not chuſe to trade with them? If they have any commerce with us, circumſtanced as they now are, it is at the riſk of Ragonath Row's getting poſſeſſion of Poonah; though during the late war an invitation to the French might have been given by the Poonah Government, to enter into an alliance, or trade with them; yet I have every reaſon to conclude, from the manner in which the Peiſhwa's Miniſters conducted themſelves during my reſidence at Poonah, from their repeated declarations of how very deſirous they were to be on the beſt and moſt laſting terms of friendſhip with the Engliſh; nay, even their repeated requeſts to cement this by the moſt binding obligations: I ſay, from all theſe circumſtances, I am firmly perſuaded that, had theſe French ſhips arrived during my reſidence amongſt them, the Chevalier St. Laubin had not been permitted to go to Poonah, or had an audience at the Durbar been granted to him, without aſking my conſent. The Miniſters are now drove to ſeek alliance with ſome European Power; if we decline this the French will certainly avail themſelves of the opportunity to eſtabliſh an alliance with the moſt formidable power of India, and we may hereafter find a difficulty in breaking it: were we to remove Ragonath Row, and carry the treaty into execution, and ſend a Reſident immediately from the Supreme Council to Poonah, all might yet be well, and I am convinced would end as we deſire.

It would occaſion great ſuſpicions and alarms to the Poonah Government; were troops at preſent to be ſent to Bombay; but Ragonath Row, &c. removed, the cauſes for theſe alarms and ſuſpicions are alſo removed; and any reinforcement thought neceſſary to that garriſon might then be ſent.

Letter from Mr. Moſtyn to the Select Committee of Bombay, dated the 2d May 1777.

I addreſſed you laſt under the 20th ultimo: this is purpoſely to inform you, that Byrou Punt and Gungadur paying me a viſit this afternoon, informed me, that the French gentlemen were arrived, and encamped within half a coſs from our compound. I aſked them, if they were ſo dilatory in their proceedings, how theſe gentlemen were to return to Choul, and the ſhip to clear the coaſt before the rainy ſeaſon? when they replied, that it was ſettled they ſhould ſtay at Poonah during the rainy ſeaſon; that the ſhip was unrigged, and her guns and ſtores landed, from one hundred to one hundred and fifty pieces of ordnance for ſale, ſome of which, by Byrou Pundt's accounts, are of a very large calibre, beſides a large quantity of copper and broad cloth. Byrou Punt likewiſe informed me, that Monſieur St. Laubin had yeſterday written to the Durbar, acquainting them, that he expected two more ſhips upon the Coaſt, which he requeſted might have permiſſion to winter in ſome of their harbours; this, he ſays, was granted them, but did not mention what harbour they were to go to. This, I think, Gentlemen, puts the intentions of this Durbar beyond a doubt, and muſt have been determined on before the ſhip's arrival; for it is impoſſible to have been done ſince the Chevalier landed at Choul, who has not yet had an audience of the Peiſhwa or Miniſters.

Remarks.

It plainly appears from this letter, that the Preſidency of Bombay are about loſing, or indeed have actually loſt, the trade to Poonah, by keeping up Ragonath Row, &c. and by taking ſo very active a part in the Maratta diſputes, which keeps the communication ſhut between the two Governments.

Extract of a letter from Mr. Moſtyn to the Honourable Warren Haſtings, Eſquire, Governor General, and Council, at Fort William; dated the 21ſt May 1777.

I have taken the opportunity of Sacaram Bapoo, Madaron Jadaroi, and Byroo Pundt paying me a viſit, to repreſent to them the extraordinary conduct of this Durbar in giving ſo much encouragement to the French; and uſed every endeavour to excite their jealouſy with reſpect to the view the Chevalier undoubtedly has, to get poſſeſſion of ſome ſea harbour or port in the Maratta dominions on the Coaſt of Malabar, by ſetting forth the ambitious and encroaching diſpoſition of the French, as the cloſe connection there was between them and Hyder Ally, with whom

Remarks.

How little can avail Mr. Moſtyn's endeavour to excite the jealouſy of the Peiſhwa's Miniſters with reſpect to the views of the French on their country and their encroaching diſpoſition. And have not the gentlemen of Bombay given, and do they not ſtill give, full cauſe for greater jealouſy? Little I fear can be obtained whom it is ſaid they have concluded an offenſive treaty, which has for one of its odiums, the reduction of the Maratta Power. They all aſſured me, and Sacaram in particular, that nothing had yet been concluded on; who likewiſe ſaid, he was not ignorant of the diſpoſition of the French, nor of their connection with Hyder; for which reaſon the Durbar would be very cautious in complying with any requeſt the Chevalier might make to them, until they knew what this Government were to expect from them. Notwithſtanding theſe aſſurances, there is the greateſt reaſon to fear, from the particular attention this Durbar have paid to the Chevalier ever ſince his arrival, that he will accompliſh his grand object, in obtaining a ſettlement at Choul, and a factory at Poonah.

tained from ſuch ſhrewd men as Saccaram Bapoo and Bellajee Pundit, by the arguments made uſe of, were they really diſpoſed to form alliance with the French. Mr. Moſtyn concludes the Chevalier St. Laubin will accompliſh his grand object, in obtaining a ſettlement at Choul and a factory at Poonah, from the particular attention paid to the Chevalier by the Maratta Durbar. This attention would be paid to the Chevalier, or any other foreigner, to ſhew Mr. Moſtyn, that where they did not conceive themſelves ill treated, they could behave with politeneſs, and in turn to occaſion ſome jealouſy to the Preſidency of Bombay. Appendix. No. 11.

The Secretary having been directed to collect from the proceedings ſuch particulars as appears from the Bombay advice to remain ſtill undecided, lays the following abſtracts before the Board for reference.

Abſtract of ſeveral papers relative to the Country of Three Lacks.

Letter from Col. Upton, 26th October, Conf. 9th Dec. 1776.

The Peiſhwa has agreed to make over Hanſood, Occlaſeer, and Deſborah, for the country of three lacks; the ſurplus country, if any, to be returned, or the deficiency to be made up, Jamboojeer mortgaged for the payment of the 12 lacks, alſo the Maratta revenues in, and about Surat.

Letter from the Gov. and Council of Bombay to Meſſrs. Gambier, Perrot, and Cheap, 8th Nov. 1776, inclosed in Letter from Bombay, 14th April entered 17 July 1777.

As the account of the revenues ceded will fall conſiderably ſhort of three lacks, they have deſired Colonel Upton to obtain an aſſignment on ſome other convenient diſtrict for the deficiency.

Letter from Col. Upton to the Select Committee, Bombay, 1ſt Dec. 1776, entered Ditto.

Has urged this to the Miniſters, they have conſented that Ahmood and Hanſood ſhall be the Pergunnahs ceded for the three lacks of revenue, and that any deficiency in that amount ſhall be made up by villages from Occlaſeer.

Inſtructions from the Peiſhwa to the Maratta Agents, incloſed in the above.

The Pergunnahs of Aſhmood, Hanſood, and Deſborah, to be given up to the Company; the Zemindars, &c. to be informed of the above. In caſe the revenues of the ſaid Pergunnahs exceeded three lacks, villages to be reſerved from Aſhmood or Hanſood, and in caſe they ſhould be leſs, villages are to be given from Occlaſeer; in ſhort, a complete revenue of three lacks to be ceded to the Company.

Letters from the Engliſh Deputies at Broach to the Select Committee, Bombay, the 29th Nov. 1776.

The Miniſters account of revenue annually collected by the Peiſhwa from Deſborah Rup^{e} 40,000, Aſhmood R^{e} 1,63,791, Hanſood 1,27,809, Occlaſeer 18,001. Total rupees 5,11,601.

The net revenue of Hanſood, Occlaſeer, and Deſborah, is eſtimated by the Engliſh deputies at only rupees 1,80,000, after deducting the tributes which are paid from theſe diſtricts. The pundits of Occlaſeer and Hanſood are collecting this year's revenues with all poſſible diligence, and ſay they have yet received no inſtructions.

Letter from the Secret Committee of Bombay to the Chief at Broach, 9th Dec.

Incloſing copy of a letter from Lieutenant Colonel Upton, and further inſtructions to the Maratta Agents, deſired to be informed if the Maratta accounts of the revenue of Hanſood and Occlaſeer are juſt.

Letter from the Chief at Broach, to the Select Committee, Bombay, 21ſt Dec.

The Maratta Agents abſolutely deny having received any orders from Poonah, and refuſe doing any buſineſs. Think the revenues of this ſeaſon will be loſt to the Company. Maratta account of the aſſignment, on Occlaſeer and Hanſood not a juſt one. Broach receives 3,800 from Occlaſeer, and 2,200 rupees from Hanſood more than they have admitted.

Have had a conference with the Poonah agents, purport thereof, (vide the letter.) The pundits have received the whole of the revenues of Aſhmood, Hanſood, and Deſborah, in advance. Letter from the Chief at Broach, to the Select Committee, Bombay, 28th Jan. 1777.

Is deputed to take poſſeſſion of Jamboojeer, which by the treaty is to be returned to the Peiſhwa. Complains of Mr. Gambier's delay in not delivering it up to him. Letter from Madajee Ramchunder to Meſſrs. Carnac, Boldam, and Ramſey, 27th February.

The Poonah Agents inſiſt on our accepting Ahmood, Hanſood, and Deſborah, at the rate of Rupees 3,33,000 and delivering back lands for the exceſs of 33,000 from Aſhmood. Their real produce is only R^{e} 2,10,000; we have therefore refuſed to accept them on the Maratta eſtimate, but propoſed to take immediate poſſeſſion, and to determine the value by the average produce of the three enſuing years. Letter from Meſſrs. Carnac, Boddam, and Ramſey, 11th March.

Informing him that Jamboojeer cannot be given up till the 12 lacks are paid, it having been aſſigned as ſecurity for that payment. Letter from Mr. Carnac to Madajee Ramchunder, 27th Feb.

Wiſhes to make the collections of Jamboojeer himſelf, and pay the amount as he collects it to them; if we keep it, the Government charges muſt not be deducted from the collections. Letter from Do. to Broach Committee

More explicit orders were preparing at Poonah, and will be ſent to the Maratta Agents; approve their not accepting the propoſed Pergunnahs on the Maratta eſtimates; Jamboojeer to be kept till the twelve lacks be received, and the charges of collections of courſe to be deducted from the revenues. From the Select Committee to the Committee at Broach.

To obtain clear and poſitive inſtructions to the Agents at Broach; the demand of Mahoojee for Jamboojeer not conformable to Colonel Upton's agreement; cannot conſent to give it up till the conditions on which it was aſſigned are fulfilled. From the Select Committee to Mr. Moſtyn.

They complain of the Engliſh, for refuſing to receive the country of three lacks by the Camil Jumma, which they ſay is the term ſpecified in the Perſian tranſlation of the treaty written at Calcutta. Negociations Mr. Moſtyn with the Miniſters, incloſed in his letters, 30 April and 21ſt May; Conf. 16 June and 17th July.

They aſſert the right of their Agents to collect the revenues of Jamboojeer, in order to liquidate the debt of twelve lacks, or at leaſt to ſettle the Jummabundy of that diſtrict, and to leave the collection to be made accordingly by the Engliſh; they ſay that the latter mode having been accepted by the Government at Bombay, they expect a receipt for the full amount of the Jummabundy. Mr. Moſtyn claims the right of deducting the charges of collection from the Jummabundy, and will only agree that receipts ſhall be given for the net collections.

Appendix. No. 12.

On the reception of Ragoba at Bombay.

Letter from Col. Upton, dated 24th Nov. Ent. 30th Dec. 1776.

Adviſing the Board that Ragonath Row had been received at Bombay, to the great ſurprize and concern of the Peiſhwa's Miniſters, as they had agreed to fix on him the jaghire he requeſted.

The Preſidency at Bombay were immediately written to in the following words:—"If it be true that Ragonath "Row has received the protection of your Government, "and ſhall be at Bombay or in any of its dependencies "when you receive this letter, we peremptorily order "and inſiſt that you immediately require and compel "him to depart therefrom;" and we further required to ſend copies of their proceedings on this ſubject.

Conſ. 17th July 1777. Extract Proceedings of the Select Committee at Bombay, 14th Nov.

By a letter from Captain Fancourt of the Succeſs ketch, it appears, that Ragoba had ſolicited a paſſage in his veſſel from Terrapore to Bombay, and that he had accordingly brought him. On which the Committee reſolved, "As the reaſons we have before ſo fully aſſigned, "for firſt affording protection to Ragoba, ſtill operate "with equal force for our continuing the ſame to him; "Agreed, That he be permitted to reſide here, till ſome "other reſidence can be obtained for him, to which he "can be reconciled."

Read alſo, the preſent letter from Bombay, dated 14th April laſt.

Conditions propoſed or obtained for Ragonath Row.

Conſ. 18 Dec. 1775. Letter from Bombay, and correſpondence with Col. Keating.

Ragonath, when apprized of our intention to treat with the miniſterial party at Poonah, propoſed the following ſtipulations to be obtained for himſelf, viz.

That half the produce of the country, which is reſerved for the maintenance of the reigning Peiſhwa, ſhould be delivered into his poſſeſſion; or that in caſe the infant Peiſhwa's legitimacy ſhould be proved, and that he ſhould be conſequently acknowledged Peiſhwa, the office of Guardian and Protector ſhould be ſecured for Ragoba, as next in conſanguinity to him, with a right to a penſion after the Peiſhwa became of age.

That during the negociation, a ſtipend ſhould be allowed him from the Durbar, of lacks per month, for the ſupport of himſelf and troops.

Treaty of Poonah.

By the Treaty of Peace, the following conditions were obtained for Ragoba:

Art. 9. A full pardon granted to all his adherents, except four, on his diſbanding his army within one month.

10. In caſe of his refuſal to diſband his army, the Engliſh are to withdraw their aſſiſtance from him.

11. A houſehold to be maintained for him, conſiſting of 1,000 horſe and ſome foot, to be paid by; and relieved at the pleaſure of the Peiſhwa's Government; allowed alſo 200 domeſtics, and three lacks of rupees per year, on condition that he will reſide at Cooper-gany.

Letter from Colonel Upton, dated 24th Auguſt. Poſtſcript of the 26th. Conſ. 30. —30th Sept.

Conſent to Ragoba's reſiding at Benares, unattended by any of the Peiſhwa's troops, with an allowance of 5 lacks rupees per year from the Durbar, or that a jaghyre to that amount ſhould be ceded to him in the neighbourhood of Calpee.

Conſ. 30th Dec. 1776. Col. Upton's letter to Bombay, 12th Dec. Conſ. 17 July.

The Miniſters had fixed on Ragoba the jaghyre he had requeſted; they are ſurprized therefore that he ſhould retire to Bombay. The Miniſters will order the Maratta vackeel at Bombay, to lay before the Governor and Council terms for Ragoba to reſide at Benares, with a jaghyre as full as they purpoſed to fix on him, if he had conſented to reſide in the Maratta dominions.

Inſtructions to Mr. Moſtyn.

To endeavour to obtain a ſuitable eſtabliſhment for Ragoba, and re-payment of the Company's expence incurred by his reſidence at Bombay.

Reſpecting the offer of protection to Sudaba, and the aſylum granted to ſome of his adherents.

Letter from the Peiſhwa, in the Perſian Correſpondence, received. Proceedings of the Select Com. at Bombay, from the 30th Nov. incloſed in their letter 14th April.

Complaining that Mr. Halſey, the chief of Salſette, had threatened to fire on the Peiſhwa's forces, if they attempted to carry on their operations againſt the village of Calval; that he had given ſhelter to about 1000 of Sudabah's party from the miniſterial army, and refuſed to deliver them up. And further, that the Governor of Bombay had ſent two deputies to demand the perſon of Sudabah from Ragojee Angria, and to make a declaration of war in caſe of refuſal. A party of Sudabah's vanquiſhed army having drawn themſelves up under the guns of Tannah Fort, and the miniſterial troop approaching to attack them in that ſituation, the Chief of Salſette wrote to their Commander, forbidding any acts of hoſtility ſo contiguous to the Company's fortifications. He alſo received the fugitives, in order to ſave their lives from the purſuits of their enemies; to whom he in conſequence refuſed to deliver them up.

On Sudabah's defeat at Rajamatchy, he ſent a meſſenger, requeſting to be received into Bombay; which 30th Oct. Mr. Draper, in the abſence of the Governor, agreed to. Sudaba in the mean time, underſtanding that the Governor was abſent, was prevailed on by the promiſes of Ragojee Angria, to put himſelf into his power; and the Governor, when he returned to Bombay, being informed by a letter from Ragojee, that Sudaba was then in his poſſeſſion, and that he meant to deliver him up to the Miniſters at Poonah, communicated this intelligence to the Select Committee, by whom it was reſolved to ſend "a verbal meſſage to Ragojee Angria, to repreſent how diſhonourable it will be for him to deliver up a perſon, whom he had engaged by the moſt ſolemn promiſe not to injure, which they are aſſured was the caſe; and likewiſe, that as Sudaba was waiting there with an intention of proceeding to Bombay, they expected that he ſhould be permitted to depart whenever he might think proper."

APPENDIX, No. 12.

Extract of Bengal Secret Conſultations, 11 Auguſt 1777.

ON conſideration of the ſeveral letters from Bombay, and from Mr. Moſtyn, together with the above remarks of Lieutenant Colonel Upton, it appears to the Board that the three following points require particular attention:

1ſt. The protection which the Preſident and Council of Bombay have given to Ragoba.

2d. The differences which ſubſiſt between the Engliſh Deputies and the Maratta Agents in receiving poſſeſſion of the country of three lacks of rupees, ceded to the Company by the 5th Article of the Treaty of Poonah.

3d. The differences between them reſpecting the terms on which poſſeſſion of the diſtrict of Jambooſeer ſhall be retained until the 12 lacks of rupees, ſtipulated by the 6th Article to be paid to the Company, ſhall have been liquidated from it.

The Secretary having collected the general ſentiments of the Board upon theſe heads, is ordered to prepare the draft of a letter to Bombay for their approval.

It being of conſequence to aſcertain the preciſe meaning of the words of the 5th Arcicle of the Maratta Treaty, which in the tranſlation are called complete revenue, becauſe the differences between the Bombay Deputies and the Maratta Agents appear to turn chiefly upon them.

The Secretary is ordered to ſhew that part of the Treaty to Mr. Chambers, junior, who underſtands both the Perſian and Maratta languages, and to report his explanation of the term therein uſed.

Warren Haſtings,
Rich^d Barwell.

Extract of Bengal Secret Conſultations, the 18th Auguſt 1777.

PRESENT,

The Honourable Warren Haſtings, Governor General, Preſident.
Philip Francis, Eſquire,

The proceedings of the 14th inſtant read, and approved.

The Secretary, in obedience to the orders of the Board, having conſulted Mr. Chambers, junior, on the true and literal meaning of the words Kumal Jumma and Jumma Bereeze, uſed in the 5th Article of the Maratta Treaty, and in the letter from the Engliſh Deputies to the Preſident and Council at Bombay, lays before the Board his reply as follows:

Sir,

I have read the Article both in Perſian and Marattas; nor does the latter at all clear up the difficulty, for the ſame Perſian word is adopted in that alſo. The term Jamma Kaumil is, I believe, in uſe all over Hindoſtan and the Decan; but I have not known it occur in matters of Bengal revenue. I believe I can ſafely ſay, it means the greateſt poſſible revenue, as collected at the time, being without any deduction for ordinary or extraordinary charges.

They conſider the revenue under four heads:
The Toomar Jamma, or original amount.
The Jamma Haumil, or complete amount.
The Jamma Naukiſs, or amount of loſs; and,
The Jamma Hauſil, or amount actually received.

The firſt is well known here; the 2d includes the 1ſt, with all the additions that oppreſſion has ſince made; the 3d is the amount of deductions to be made for Sibandy, repairs of bridges, watercourſes, &c. and other occaſional expences; and the 4th is the amount received into the Treaſury. So that the Jamma Hauſil ariſes from deducting the Jamma Naukiſs from the Jamma Haumil.

The term Jamma Bereeje, or Bêrije, correſponds I believe entirely with that of Jamma Haumil. The word Bêrije is an Hindoo word, meaning ſeparate or diſtinct; and I ſuppoſe was firſt uſed to diſtinguiſh the account of additional exactions from that of the original Jamma; as they are now lumped together, it ſignifies the complete amount.

I have been told, that the Zemindars in Bengal do not admit the term Jumma Kaumil, becauſe they entertain an hope, that the modern exactions may be reduced or taken off. I am, &c.

The Secretary lays before the Board a draft of a letter to Bombay, prepared according to the orders of the 11th inſtant, which being reviſed is agreed to.

Gentlemen,

We have received your ſeveral letters, dated the 1ſt February, 14th April, and 10th of May.

Having duly conſidered the contents of theſe letters, and the papers which accompanied them, we perceive three objects, which demand our particular and immediate attention:

1ſt: The protection which you have given to Ragoba.

2dly. The differences which ſubſiſt between the Engliſh Deputies and the Maratta Agents, in receiving poſſeſſion of the country of three lacks of rupees, ceded to the Company by the 5th Article of the Treaty of Poonah: And, 3dly. The differences between them, reſpecting the terms on which poſſeſſion of the diſtrict of Jamboſeer ſhall be retained, until the twelve lacks of rupees, ſtipulated by the 6th Article to be paid to the Company, ſhall have been liquidated from it.

The firſt point has undoubtedly afforded juſt cauſe of offence, and jealouſy to the Maratta Government. We wiſh that Ragoba had been induced to accept the terms of conciliation lately offered to him by the Miniſters, to reſide at Benares, with a jagheer of five lacks of rupees per annum, in the neighbourhood of Calpee. Theſe conditions, though they effectually remove the objections formerly made by Ragoba againſt the terms ſecured for him by the treaty, were excepted to, by him on account of the difficulty of proceeding to Benares, from the danger that he thought his perſon would be expoſed to in a journey by land through the Maratta dominions, and his religious ſcruples againſt a voyage by ſea. Appendix. No. 12.

We can ſee no reaſon to doubt that the preſence of Ragoba at Bombay will continue to be an inſuperable bar to the completion of the treaty concluded with the Maratta Government, nor can any ſincere cordiality and good underſtanding be eſtabliſhed with them as long as he ſhall appear to derive encouragement and ſupport from the Engliſh; on the contrary, we think that although it may not furniſh ſufficient grounds for the actual renewal of hoſtilities, it will ſo far eſtrange the minds of the Miniſters at leaſt, as to compel them to form connections to the diſadvantage of the Britiſh Government; ſo that notwithſtanding the forms of a reconciliation ſhould exiſt, neither party will benefit by the effects of it. We therefore think it incumbent upon us to recommend to your moſt mature conſideration the dangerous effects of your perſiſting ſtill to continue that protection to Ragoba, and to deſire that you will do all that lies in your power to remove the obſtacles which oppoſe his departure from Bombay; for this purpoſe we think that he ſhould be required to make choice either of a journey by land, if Tuckoojee Holcar and Madajee Scindia will give proper ſecurity to conduct him in ſafety, which we have been aſſured they would do, or of a voyage by ſea, which might be accompliſhed, without affecting his religious purity, if he were accommodated with a veſſel, fitted out and manned immediately under his orders, and by perſons of his own ſect, to be accompanied by one of the Company's marine veſſels for his protection. If both theſe expedients ſhould be rejected by Ragoba, we muſt naturally conclude, that it is not his intention to part with his preſent aſylum, but that the objections which he has ſtarted to the terms propoſed to him, are mere pretexts; and on this ground we repeat our injunctions, that he be poſitively required to quit the Company's dependencies; as we ſhall hold you reſponſible for all the conſequences of continuing the Company's protection to him, after ſuch a refuſal on his part.

With reſpect to the ſecond object, it is ſtipulated by the 5th Article of the Treaty of Poonah, that "the Ma- "rattas do agree (by way of friendſhip) to give for ever "to the Engliſh Company, a country of three complete "lacks of rupees, near or adjoining to Broach, on which "there is to be no claim of choute, or any other de- "mand whatever; and that two perſons on the part of "the Company, and two on the part of Row Pundit "Purdhan, are to proceed to and determine the place "and boundaries; when the Peiſhwa will give the "ſunnuds." The diſtricts which have been mutually agreed on, for this puppoſe are Ahmood, Deſhora, and Hanſood; but a diſagreement has ariſen between the Deputies on each part, concerning the valuation of theſe Pergunnahs; by the Maratta Agents they are eſtimated at the annual rent of rupees 3,33,000, and by the Engliſh agents at only R' 2,10,000. We obſerve a further difference between them upon the method of forming this valuation; the former claiming a right to rate them according to the Camaul Berenge (a term which the Engliſh Deputies explain to be the greateſt amount in any year collected) and the latter inſiſting on their being rated either at the medium of the collections made by the Poonah Government during the 25 years which they have been ſubject to their authority, or by the medium of the actual collections to be made for three years to come. The words of the treaty in this case must without doubt be literally adhered to, and we find there expressed both in the Persian and Maratta languages, that the country of three lacks shall be valued according to the Kanul Jumma, a term which we understand to be synonymous with that of gross revenue. But even this explanation of it, will not remove every source of dispute, since it leave the time undecided, at which the gross estimate should be formed. It is impossible for us to be the judges of differences arising from the construction of technical terms, which are not in use in the provinces under our jurisdiction, and which you have the authentic means of ascertaining: we have however employed some pains to obtain the true interpretation of the words above-mentioned, and are satisfied with the sense which we have given to them; for the rest our conclusions must be conjectural, but it appears most reasonable that the gross amount of the actual collections is that implied by the words of the Treaty.

On the third point it is necessary to observe, that Jambooseer, which by the 7th Article of the Treaty was to have been restored to the Maratta Government, having been assigned by them for the payment of the twelve lacks of rupees which by the 6th Article of the Treaty, "the Peishwa and Ministers agree to pay to the Com- "pany, in part of the expences of the English army, in "two payments, viz; six lacks within six months of the "of the date of the Treaty (1st March 1776) and the "other six lacks within two years of the same date;" we are of opinion that, as Jambooseer is mortgaged to us for a specific sum, we have strictly a right to take and retain possession of it, until the net amount of the collections, exclusive of expences, shall have discharged the debt. At the same time, when we consider the great difficulty of satisfying the Poonah Government, that justice is done them, and that the charges of management are not unnecessarily swelled, as long as the collections are in our hands, we think that the easiest and safest course you can follow in this business, will be to accept of their proposal of leaving the collections under the management of an Aumildar appointed by them, but accountable to you for the amount, and that you should give him receipts for the same, until the whole debt of twelve lacks shall be liquidated. By leaving the collections with an officer of the Poonah Government, we do not mean to relinquish our right of possession while the mortgage subsists. The country is in effect our's, until the sum for which it is security is discharged; but we do not conceive that either a military or civil establishment will be necessary, or of any use to maintain the possession of an open country, in the Government of which we have no other concern but to receive the rents, unless an attempt should be made by the Marattas to introduce a military force into it. In the mean time we apprehend that it will be sufficient to depute a Company's servant to Jambooseer, to receive and give acquittances for the collections as fast as they are paid.

We think it necessary to point out to you two passages in your instructions to Mr. Mostyn, dated the 13th of last month, which appear to us very objectionable. In

You direct him "to exert his utmost endeavours to "obtain a suitable establishment for Ragoba from the "Poonah Government, and re-payment of the expence "of the Honourable Company, incurred by his resi- "dence in their settlements, as they have not hitherto "advanced a rupee of the stipend settled by the treaty." The Ministers having complained of your receiving Ragoba into Bombay, as an infringement of the treaty, no advances on that account could be expected from them, during his residence there, or indeed until the conditions annexed to that stipulation should be agreed to, on his part; but your continuing to afford that protection to Ragoba, against which they excepted, and your demanding from the Ministers the amount of the expence incurred by it, can only be considered as a voluntary aggravation of the offence: we therefore request that you will instruct Mr. Mostyn to recede from this article of your instructions to him.

We further observe, that Lieutenant Torriano, who accompanied Mr. Mostyn, is appointed to the office of Surveyor. We do not suppose that the Poonah Government will have given their consent to the survey of any part of their dominions, and without it we hope that none has been undertaken.

Received the following letter from Bombay:

Secret Department.

Honourable Sir, and Gentlemen,

We have already transmitted a duplicate of our last letter, dated the 10th ultimo.

In our letter of the 14th April we acquainted you fully of our proceedings, and the evasive conduct of the Durbar in the execution of the 5th Article of the Treaty. Mr. Mostyn will have communicated to you the further progress of this affair, and the new difficulty the Ministers have started to protract the final cession of the ceded country. On this occasion we referred to the Persian copy of the Treaty, transmitted to us by Colonel Upton, which we find corresponds with the English translation of the disputed article; though the Ministers pretend that, in the copy received from Calcutta under your signature, it is agreed that we shall receive this country according to the ancient statement of the revenues (for so they explain the word Kamil); and they have accordingly selected the highest year they could find, by which they want to ascertain the revenue, instead of giving us a a country of three complete lacks of rupees, according to Mr. Macpherson's translation, or agreeing to our reasonable propolals of taking it at the medium of the last twenty-five years. We inclose an authentic copy in Persian of the 5th Article, taken from the extract signed by Colonel Upton and Mr. Macpherson, that you may compare it with the copy in your office; and we think it our duty to point out to you, that as Colonel Upton settled with the Ministers that the collections from the ceded country should take place from the commencement of the present Maratta year, and the restitutions on our part have long since been made, it seems very unreasonable the Company should sustain any further loss by the caprice and duplicity of the Ministers; and that there would be no impropriety in withholding from the revenues of Jambooseer a sum equal to what would have been received had the above-mentioned settlement been complied with; which with the other points we submit to your consideration, and request to be favored with your instructions.

We also request your directions respecting the restitution of the Guicawar cessions, which the Durbar has demanded. It will be a difficult matter to judge of the authenticity of any proofs they may produce after Futty Sing's vackeel has asserted the independent right of his master over his own share of the Guzerat Country, and we beg you will consider how far it is proper to comply with their demands until they have fulfilled their part of the treaty, and made full restitution of the Aurora's cargo, which they have refused, in direct breach of the 13th Article; for no dependence can be had upon their promises, when we have no longer security in our hands for the performance of them.

We now find that the French Deputy at the Maratta Durbar is no other than the celebrated Monsieur St. Lubin, and not Monsieur St. Laub, as we at first imagined. At his first audience he was received with a respect and ceremony greatly superior to what was paid to our Resident, the two Ministers themselves, Sacaram and Nannah, having gone without the tent walls to meet him on his alighting from an elephant provided for him by the Circar, and introduced him into the Durbar; whereas Mr. Mostyn was only received by two inferior officers, and with much less ceremony. We have remonstrated against the indignity offered to the nation by this diſtinction ſhewn to the French, and the reſtrictions laid upon Mr. Moſtyn and his attendants, ſo contrary to the law of nations, and inſiſted upon their allowing him the ſame privileges and freedom of communication as heretofore.

It appears by Mr. Moſtyn's advices, that a ſurmiſe has been raiſed by the Nabob of Arcot's vackeel at Poonah, that Monſieur St. Lubin does not act by any authority, either from Pondicherry or the Court of France; his foundation for this ſurmiſe ſeems but ſlight, but as it may have a good effect, to inſtil ſuch a ſuſpicion into the Durbar, Mr. Moſtyn has been directed to encourage them in this belief.

Mr. Moſtyn will conſtantly inform you of the operations between Hyder Ally and the Poonah forces. The latter have lately received a ſevere defeat, and were returning towards Poonah to be put in quarters for the rains.

We are, &c.

Bombay Caſtle, 21ſt June 1777. (Signed) Wm Hornby, and Council.

Reſolved, That the following reply be written to Bombay:

Gentlemen,

Since we concluded our letter of this date, we have received your's of the 21ſt June, containing a Perſian copy of the 5th Article of the Treaty of Poonah; which we have compared with the original treaty in our poſſeſſion, and find it in every reſpect conformable to it.

The accompanying letter contains our ſentiments at large on the ſubject of the lands ceded to the Company by the above article, and we conſequently approve of the inſtructions which you have given to Mr. Moſtyn, reſpecting the rule by which the revenues of thoſe lands ought to be eſtimated.

Admitting that the ceſſion of theſe diſtricts, according to the agreement of the Miniſters with Colonel Upton, was to have taken place from the beginning of the preſent Maratta year, we are of opinion, that your claim upon Jamboſeer for an equivalent to the amount of the revenue, of which you may be deprived by any delay on the part of the Maratta Agents in delivering them over to you, is reaſonable.

We incloſe for your information, copies and tranſlations of a letter written by Futty Sing, in reply to a reference made to him by Colonel Upton, on the ſubject of his right to alienate any of the territories dependant on him, and of ſunnuds granted at divers times to the Guicawars; this letter from Futty Sing, though it evades a poſitive and direct anſwer to the point in queſtion, ſeems to diſavow any right in him, to alienate theſe poſſeſſions; but the concern which he has in the queſtion makes his perſonal evidence very ſuſpicious (eſpecially in the preſent inſtance, in which it is oppoſed to his own perſonal act) ſince whatever is relinquiſhed by the Company will revert to him.

By the tenure on which all jaghiery poſſeſſions are held, we doubt whether any part of them can be legally alienated for ever by the Jaghierdar; but we are not ſufficiently informed, if the lands poſſeſſed by the Guicawar family are of this nature. The anſwer to the 7th requeſt, contained in the 4th ſunnud, ſeems to allow of a right in them to diſpoſe of their own diſtricts in any manner they pleaſed, without obtaining the ſpecial concurrence of the Peiſhwa. The requeſt and anſwer are as follows:

7th Requeſt. "I ſhall commence war againſt the independent Moguls, who have eſtabliſhments in my "ſhare, and recover their poſſeſſions from them at my "own expence; let not the Government concern itſelf "with them."

Anſwer. "Should you take any meaſures with reſpect "to thoſe diſtricts, which are your own ſhare, the Go"vernment has no concern with it."

"Agreed accordingly."

Although the inference which we draw from this paſſage is not concluſive, yet we think it is ſufficient to juſtify you in retaining poſſeſſion of the diſtricts ceded by Futty Sing, until clearer proofs ſhall be afforded by him, or by the Miniſters, that he had no right to make thoſe ceſſions. The detention of the country for a few months longer, ſuppoſing it ſhould be at laſt reſtored to Futty Sing, will be no breach of the treaty on our part, as long as any material articles of it remain unexecuted on their's.

THE Governor General—The following letter was delivered to me yeſterday morning by Lieutenant Colonel Upton; and I deſire it may be entered on the proceedings, to which, I ſuppoſe, there can be no objection.

Tranſlation of a letter from Futty Sing Kaukwar to Colonel Upton, dated the 7th Mohurruneor.

After repreſenting my wiſhes for your Company, which exceed the power of expreſſion, be it known to your enlightened mind, that your very agreeable letter reached me, the ſight of which opened all the doors of gladneſs in my friendly heart, and made me perfectly happy. The queſtions which you put to me, relative to the particulars of the country which furniſhes me with the means of ſubſiſtence, whether I am poſſeſſed of all power over the Guzerat country, or hold it as a means of ſupport under the authority of Seremunt Row Pundit Purdhan? I underſtand my ſituation is this:

At the time that Seremunt Dada Sahib, accompanied by an Engliſh army, came into the neighbourhood of Guzerat, and by the terror of his army was become very powerful, and the victorious army of Seremunt Row Pundit Purdhan retreated to the ſouthward, he took the opportunity to incloſe me as in a circle, and diſtreſſed me on every ſide; being without reſource, I gave way to the neceſſity of my affairs; and to deliver myſelf from the hand of power, I gave my country by treaty to the Engliſh, although the power of giving or retaining the country, or any part of it, did not reſt with me, but with Seremunt Row Pundit Purdhan, to whom I am entirely under ſubjection, and a link of the chain of his dependants. I am hopeful that you will continually let me have the pleaſure to receive letters from you on the ſubject of friendſhip.

READ the following letter from Mr. Middleton:

Honourable Sir, and Sirs,

tion made to me by Row Gopaul Row, a principal Maratta Chief in the ſervice of the Vizier, who maintains a regular correſpondence with different Sirdars in the Decan, and who is much intereſted in the cauſe of Ragonaut Row.

As the truth or falſity of theſe informations will be more aſſuredly aſcertained by the intelligence the Honourable Board will receive from the Carnatic, it is unneceſſary for me to add more on the ſubject, than that it has long been a received opinion among the powers in this part of Hindoſtan, that our nation is upon the eve of a war with France, and that a cloſe alliance has been entered into between the Miniſters of Poonah, and the Agents of the latter in conſequence. I believe the report of a war with France was originally ſpread by Madoo, who I underſtand has aſſerted, and produced ſome kind of proofs, of his having received diſpatches from the Miniſter of France, importing the probability of ſuch an event ſoon taking place, and deſiring him to make it known in confidence to ſuch of the Indian Powers as he thought might be prevailed upon to eſpouſe the cauſe of the French, and endeavour previouſly to engage them in that intereſt.

Madoo took his departure from Ghoad, about three weeks or a month ago, leaving his artillery, camp equipage, &c. with the Rana, with a declared intention of returning in the courſe of a few months, at the head of a conſiderable body of his countrymen, who were aſſembling in the Decan, in conſequence of a plan concerted with the Governor of Pondicherry. With reſpect to the deſigns of the French, the Honourable Board will of courſe have better and more authentic information through other channels, than can be in my power to impart. If there is any proſpect of a rupture between our nations, I think it by no means improbable that the French miniſtry ſhould have made an inſtrument of Madoo, inſignificant a character as he may appear to be; as to my knowledge a very conſtant communication was kept up between the Miniſtry and Monſieur Gentil, during the latter part of his reſidence with the late Vizier Shujah ul Dowlah; that even public honours were beſtowed upon him by the King, although his means of rendering the ſtate effectual ſervice were certainly not equal to Madoo's; the latter having not only a well-equipped army at his command, but ſuppoſed to have acquired an influence among the Indian Powers which would make him an uſeful inſtrument in the execution of any deſigns the French might have in this country.

PRESENT,

The Honourable Warren Haſtings, Governor General, Preſident,
Philip Francis, Eſquire,
Mr. Barwell indiſpoſed.

THE proceedings of the 11th inſtant read, and approved.

The Governor General having propoſed, that the following letter ſhould be written to the Preſidencies of Bombay and Madras, it was agreed to by the Board, and diſpatched in cypher to thoſe places:

Gentlemen,

Although we have no immediate proſpect of a rupture between Great Britain and any of the ſtates of Europe; yet, as ſuch as an event is by no means improbable, we think it of the utmoſt conſequence to be prepared againſt it. We therefore requeſt, that you will be pleaſed to tranſmit to us a return of the actual ſtate of the forces at your Preſidency, with your ſentiments upon the means of completing your eſtabliſhment; of co-operating in the moſt effectual manner with this Preſidency and that of Fort Saint George, and mutually ſupporting each other in caſe of an invaſion of either; and of the moſt eligible plan for making a diverſion in favour of your ſettlement, if an enemy ſhould appear on that ſide of India.

APPENDIX, No. 16.

Extract of Bengal Secret Conſultations, 20th October 1777.

THE Governor General—It appears extraordinary that none of the late letters from Bombay take the leaſt notice of the Chevalier St. Lubin, who ſtill remains at Poonah, and his ſhip and cargo, as I underſtand, at Choul. The Maratta vackeel read a letter to me this morning, which he had juſt received from the Peiſhwa, containing an apology which he was directed to make to this Government, for the countenance which had been ſhewn to Monſ. St. Lubin, in terms, which as they were read to me, appeared ſtrongly to indicate a conſciouſneſs that their conduct reſpecting him was ſuch as required an explanation: he has promiſed me a copy of the letter, which when I have received, I will cauſe a tranſlation to be made and laid before the Board. I underſtand Mr. Moſtyn was arrived at Bombay before the St. Helena ſailed, which ſhip brought the laſt advices; that they ſhould not have adviſed us of his arrival, which circumſtance, connected with his ſudden call to Proonder, indicate ſome negociation of importance going forward, that they ſhould leave this Government in the dark; with reſpect to the other events and operations of that quarter, I mention not intending to charge that Government with neglect, but as I think it ſtrongly urges the neceſſity of obtaining ſome ſurer means and channel of information, by a proviſion made directly from this Board, than to truſt entirely to the Preſidency of Bombay. I ſhall leave this obſervation without following it with any immediate propoſition to the preſent conſideration of the Board.

Agreed, That the following letter be written to Bombay:

Gentlemen,

We have this day received your letters of the 22d, 30th Auguſt, and 10th September.

After the intelligence which you tranſmitted to us of the arrival of the Chevalier de St. Lubin at Poonah, and of the favourable reception he had met with from the Miniſters there, which circumſtances were alſo reported to us from other quarters, we waited with impatience for further advices from you, or Mr. Moſtyn, of his tranſactions at that Durbar; but we have been greatly diſappointed, in all the letters which we have received from you ſince that of 21ſt June, to find no further information on the ſubject. The papers of intelligence obtained by Mr. Moſtyn, from a perſon lately in the ſervice of Monſieur St. Lubin, and incloſed in your letter of the 3d Auguſt, has left no room to doubt of the commiſſion with which he is charged from the Court of France; and the ſecret conferences which he has been admitted to hold with the Poonah Government, too ſtrongly indicate that they may have liſtened to negociations of a hoſtile nature to the Company. Monſieur St. Lubin remains ſtill at the Maratta Court, and may poſſibly by this time have entered into engagements with the Peiſhwa, of a dangerous tendency to the Company's eſtabliſhment; at ſuch a criſis, therefore, every circumſtance is of conſequence, and we are under great anxiety to learn the progreſs and event of his negociations.

In your letter of the 22d Auguſt, you acquaint us with the ſudden call of Mr. Moſtyn to Proonder, and we underſtand that previous to the departure of the St. Helena, which brought us his letter, he was actually arrived arrived at Bombay. Connecting theſe two circumſtances together, which have ſuch an intimate relation with each other, we muſt conclude that he was charged with ſome very important commiſſion from the Poonah Durbar to your Government. We wiſh for the ſake of our mutual intereſts, that you had taken this opportunity of communicating it to us, or of apprizing us of the reſult of his interview at Proonder; and as you muſt be ſenſible of the neceſſity of a ſpeedy and unreſerved communication of any ſerious political intelligence which may in its conſequences affect the Company's affairs, we requeſt that you will continue to give us the earlieſt and fulleſt information in your power on theſe ſubjects.

In the general return of the troops on your eſtabliſhment, dated 30th June, which was tranſmitted by Colonel Egerton to our late Commander in Chief, we obſerve, that though your force in Europeans is very defective of its complement, yet it is conſiderably weakened by the manner in which they are diſtributed among your different garriſons; leſs than one half being left for the garriſon of Bombay, where the whole ought to be collected. We cannot but conſider your whole military ſtrength as expoſed to great danger by ſuch a diſſipation of it; and moſt earneſtly recommend to you to withdraw all your Europeans both infantry and artillery to the Preſidency, ſubſtituting Sepoys and Native Artillery for the defence of all your other garriſons without exception. We need not uſe arguments to prove the expediency of giving the greateſt poſſible ſtrength to that part of your poſſeſſions, on which the exiſtence of the Company in that part of India muſt eſſentially depend, or of collecting into the body that part of your military eſtabliſhment, which is as eſſentially neceſſary to the preſervation of the reſt. We perſuade ourſelves that you will ſee equally with us the force of this advice, and allow it to prevail, although we offer it only as ſuch, and ſhould have avoided even this kind of interference in the detail of your Government on a point of leſs importance to the ſafety of the Company's poſſeſſions.

The Governor General has written to the Peiſhwa upon the ſubject of the Aurora; the original letter will be ſent directed to the Peiſhwa; a duplicate goes incloſed in this, with a copy for your information; we hope it will obtain the due effect.

Extract of Bengal Secret Conſultations, 20th October 1777.

Received the following letter from Bombay:

Gentlemen,

We have more than once repreſented to Colonel Upton the caſe of the owners of the ſhip Aurora, which was wrecked in the month of June 1776 on the Maratta Coaſt, near Rutnagherry; and deſired him to demand full reſtitution of the ſhip and cargo from the Poonah Government, agreeable to the expreſs tenor of the 13th Article of the late Treaty. We alſo inſtructed Mr. Moſtyn on his proceeding to that Durbar to make a peremptory demand to the like effect, but we have not to this hour obtained the ſmalleſt ſatisfaction for the ſufferers; neither does the Durbar appear in the leaſt inclined to comply with our requiſition, though Colonel Upton acquaints us ſo long ago as the 27th Auguſt laſt, "that he had obtained the Peiſhwa's Perwannah for releaſing the crew "of the Aurora, reſtoring the ſhip, and what was ſaved "of the cargo, to the owners." We before mentioned the matter to you in our letter, dated the 20th Auguſt 1776, when we tranſmitted copy of a letter from the ſupracargo, giving a particular account of this accident; and the gentlemen concerned having lately made another application to us, we now incloſe copy of their letter; and beg leave warmly to recommend their caſe to your attention, that redreſs may be procured for them, either by the method they have ſuggeſted, or by any other you may judge more proper.

The ſettlement regarding the country of three lacks ſeems quite at a ſtand.

Mr. Moſtyn has been lately ſent for to Poorunder by the Miniſters, but we are not yet informed upon what account.

We incloſe duplicate of our laſt letter, and triplicate of that dated the 21ſt June; and are

RECEIVED the following letter from Bombay:

Gentlemen,

This ſerves to incloſe copy of a paper we have received from the Reſident at the Durbar: it is ſaid to be part of a memoir intended to be preſented to the Court of France by the perſon who came out Secretary to Monſieur St. Lubin, but who has lately left him in diſguſt, and was obtained by Mr. Moſtyn through the means of an Engliſhman in Monſieur St. Lubin's ſuite, who ſeems deſirous to be received into our protection.

Mr. Moſtyn writes that Gunga Boy, the widow of the late Peiſhwa Narrain Row, departed this life the 12th ultimo, and that the infant Peiſhwa is now put in charge of Gehivetty Bhoy, the wife of Sudaba.

Paper obtained by Mr. Moſtyn at Poonah.

Monſieur St. Lubin's operation was taken in the beginning from Monſieur de Buſſy's memoirs, and propoſed to the Miniſtry by him and Monſieur Dumas, a Commanding Officer in Canada laſt war, and late Governor of the Iſle of France; they both jointly waited till ſuch time as they had obtained Monſieur Sartine's conſent and approbation. Monſieur de St. Lubin by the firſt plan was to embark in Bourdeaux on the Paix, to be commanded by du Santy, and was named to the commercial department, as Miniſter Plenipotentiary to the Maratta Court; Monſieur Dumas, on the other hand, was to embark at Breſt on the ſhip L'Indien, commanded by Monſieur Landé, at the head of 1,500 men; which, joined to 1000 which were to be ſhipped on the Paix, make 2,500 men under the command of Monſieur Dumas, who alone had the department of war in the expedition. Beſides the 2,500 above-mentioned, there were 500 more to be landed at the Iſle of France by a private merchant ſhip, which du Santy immediately after his arrival at this coaſt was to return for, and land where appointed by Monſieur Dumas. This plan was ſo far advanced, that Monſieur de Sartine viſited the ports wherein the above ſhips lay, with a view of examining them, and applying for them to the King. Monſieur de St. Lubin ſeeing Monſieur de Sartine much inclined in favour of Monſieur Dumas, ſeeing that he alone ſtood in the faireſt way of making his fortune, and perhaps fearing that he would deprive him of the glory he expected from ſuch an undertaking, worked underhand with the Miniſter, and in ſeveral memoirs he preſented him, expoſed Monſieur Dumas's incapacity, as well as the bad conſequence of bringing an army here without a certainty of ſucceſs; and propoſed at the ſame time to ſend a proper perſon, acquainted with the country, to try how the Government was diſpoſed in favour of the French nation. Monſieur de Sartine, ſeduced as well by the eloquence as the apparently true proſpects he gave in his memoirs, propoſed him the expedition, as the only man he could find capable of undertaking it; and had orders to ſail in a private ſhip from Bourdeaux, leſt his affair might be diſcovered were he to ſail in a King's ſhip. Monſieur Dumas ſo little expected ſuch traiterous proceedings from Monſieur de St. Lubin, that he believed he had gone to Lyons to ſee his parents, and little thought he was diſpatched for India. Monſieur de St. Lubin in his engagement with Monſieur de Sartine is obliged to ſend an expreſs to Europe, and give an exact account of the affairs he has hitherto tranſacted: if he gives ſufficient hopes of ſucceſs, Monſieur Dumas will be immediately diſpatched with the above force, which he will land before the Engliſh eſtabliſhments on this and the Coromandel Coaſts, and reduce them jointly with the Marattas, who are to ſtrike the firſt ſtroke. Notwithſtanding this is the plan of operation that Monſieur de St. Lubin is come upon, his ambition will certainly ſubvert and ruin the whole of the ſcheme. He is far from coveting a partaker of the emoluments he thinks himſelf entitled to in caſe the affair takes; for that reaſon he has wrote for the above troops, and deſires the command thereof for himſelf. He lays by what I am informed as fair a proſpect before the Miniſters as he has already done.

Received the following letter from Bombay:

To the Honourable Warren Haſtings, Eſquire, Governor General, &c. Council at Fort William.

Gentlemen,

Incloſed is duplicate of our letter, dated the 10th inſtant.

We alſo incloſe copy of a letter received from Mr. Moſtyn after his return from Poorunder, whither he had proceeded at the deſire of the Miniſters, as mentioned in our letter, dated the 22d ultimo. He has ſince arrived at this place; but the propoſals he has brought from the Poonah Government reſpecting Ragonaut Row, have not yet been laid before us.

The Coolies, a ſet of irregular independent freebooters, who poſſeſs a ſmall tract of country to the northward of the river Mybie, lately made an irruption into the Pergunnah of Jamboojeer, and carried off about three hundred head of cattle from one of the villages. Theſe banditti have formerly, at different times, infeſted our diſtricts, and are much dreaded by the inhabitants; we have therefore judged it highly neceſſary to reſent this late attack, and have directed the Chief and Council at Broach, if they cannot by fair means obtain ample ſatisfaction, as well as ſecurity from future inſults, to detach a proper force from their garriſons to chaſtiſe them. Three or four companies of regular ſepoys, with two field pieces, and two hundred irregulars, will, in the opinion of theie gentlemen, effect the buſineſs.

We are, with reſpect, Gentlemen,

Your moſt obedient humble ſervants,

To the Honourable William Hornby, Eſquire, Preſident and Governor, &c. Council at Bombay.

Honourable Sir, and Gentlemen,

My laſt addreſs to your Honour, &c. was dated the 20th ultimo.

On the 12th inſtant Pewelly Bhoy came in town from Proondhur, on account of indiſpoſition, but it is ſaid will return thither as ſoon as ſhe is recovered; and on the 13th, at night, I received a letter from Saccaram Bappoo, requeſting I would proceed to Proondhur as ſoon after the receipt thereof as poſſible, the Miniſters wanting to talk with me on ſome particular buſineſs. I accordingly ſet off for Saſſwer the 15th in the morning, intending to put up there for that night only; but on my arrival finding Saccaram Bappoo had come down thither the night before, I early the next morning ſent a meſſage to him, requeſting, if it was convenient to him, that he would inform me of the buſineſs the miniſters wanted to ſpeak to me about, as I imagined it could be as well done at this houſe at Saſſwar as in a tent at Proondhur; he therefore appointed the next morning for my meeting him.

On the 17th I accordingly waited on Saccaram, where were alſo preſent Mhadarow Jadarow and Byroo Punt, Nanah Furneſe not being able to come down from Proondhur, on account of its being an unlucky day for him; when, after clearing the room, he mentioned ſundry articles reſpecting Ragoba, which he ſaid the Miniſters requeſted I would go to ſettle with him, but deſired that no one elſe might be made acquainted with them. In anſwer to which I informed them, that it would be very improper my going to the Preſidency without your permiſſion, gentlemen, being firſt obtained; however if they inſiſted upon it, I would, upon their writing me a letter, repeating their requeſt, and another to the Honourable the Preſident on the ſubject, willingly oblige them; but with reſpect to the latter part of their requeſt, I told them they muſt be convinced I could do nothing in the buſineſs without the concurrence of your Honourable Board. I at the ſame time mentioned that I thought it would be proper ſome perſon of conſequence from amongſt themſelves ſhould accompany me on this occaſion; but they ſaid they thought it would be better to defer ſending any one, until they heard what effect the propoſals they intended to make would have; they likewiſe declined giving me the propoſals under their own hands, alledging, that in caſe Dada Saib did not accept them, they wiſhed not to have them appear in writing. But upon my telling them, that unleſs I had a memorandum of the articles, ſome of them might eſcape my memory memory, and in ſuch caſe they would be apt to imagine I had acted an unfair part towards them, they ſaid Mhadarow would repeat them to my Linguiſt, who might take them down in writing.

Whatever might have been my opinion with reſpect to the propoſals in queſtion, I did not think it would be for the intereſt of my Honourable Employers to refuſe their requeſt, more eſpecially when I conſidered that my chief errand to this Durbar was to endeavour to conciliate matters with them; had I therefore given them a refuſal, I was apprehenſive it would only have added to the diſguſt the Miniſters have already expreſſed againſt the Bombay Preſidency; nor could my remaining here be of any utility, as the Durbar had reſolved on doing nothing with reſpect to the diſputed articles of the late treaty, until they heard from the Governor General and Council, to whoſe determination they have referred them, particularly thoſe regarding the country of three lacks, and the Chickley, &c. Pergunnahs; and with reſpect to the demands made on them on account of our merchants, they ſay they have already written to Viſagee Punt Lela on the ſubject, and only wait his anſwer for finally adjuſting them: theſe reaſons for my ſo readily complying with their requeſt will, I hope, Gentlemen, meet with your approbation.

From the knowledge I have of the dilatorineſs as well as the fickleneſs in the reſolutions of this Durbar, I was induced to defer adviſing your Honour, &c. of the abovementioned circumſtances until I ſhould receive the promiſed letters, and which were ſent me late laſt night. Nanah Furneſe came to town this day in order to give me my final inſtructions, which he has aſſured me ſhall be delivered to-morrow, in which caſe I intend leaving this place on the 26th inſtant.

After the Miniſters had finiſhed what they had to ſay regarding Ragoba, I demanded to know the final determination of the Durbar with reſpect to the French; when Saccaram aſſured me they ſhould be diſpatched as ſoon as the rains were over, which he obſerved would be about Deſera; in reſpect to which, I told him it would be of little conſequence their diſpatching Monſieur St. Lubin, if the French were permitted to trade to their ports; I muſt therefore inſiſt on the Durbar prohibiting the French as well as all other European nations trading from Vizendroog (or Gheriah) to the ſouthward, all up the coaſt; to which they agreed.

I am, very reſpectfully,

The Board obſerve, That in the letter to the Preſident and Council of Bombay, of the 20th October, they complained of the ſilence of that Preſidency with reſpect to Mr. Moſtyn's arrival, although he muſt have been charged with diſpatches of ſome conſequence. In a letter dated near a month after the date of the one at that time received from them, the Board are duly informed of the arrival of Mr. Moſtyn; but though the buſineſs with which he appears to have been charged from the Miniſters was ſo urgent as to induce him to quit his ſtation without waiting for permiſſion; and ſo important, that the Miniſters could neither commit it to writing, nor truſt it to the channel of an agent of their own; yet, in an expreſs diſpatched by the Preſident and Council, containing no other intelligence of conſequence, they leave this government totally uninformed of Mr. Moſtyn's negociations, and of the particular objects of his viſit to Bombay. All that they write concerning him is,

"He has ſince arrived at this place; but the propoſals he has brought from the Poonah Government, reſpecting Ragonaut Row, have not yet been laid before us."

For the juſtification of this government, which is charged with the firſt reſponſibility of all affairs that have any relation to the peace of the Britiſh poſſeſſions in India, and which cannot act, but from the materials which are furniſhed by the other Preſidencies;

Reſolved, That the Court of Directors be adviſed of the extraordinary reſerve in the communication of the Preſident and Council of Bombay to this Board; and that it be noticed to the Preſidency in our next letter to them.

The Honourable Warren Haſtings, Governor General, Preſident,

Mr. Barwell, indiſpoſed.

The proceedings of the 6th ultimo read, and approved.

The Secretary begs leave to record in this place the following letter to Bombay, which was written in obedience to the orders of the Board at the laſt meeting, and was diſpatched to that Preſidency the day on which it is dated.

Gentlemen,

In our letter of the 20th October, we took notice of the arrival of Mr. Moſtyn at Bombay; which intelligence we had received from private authority, and complained of your ſilence on that head in your letter then before us, dated the 22d Auguſt. We had no doubt that your next advices would bring us full information of the cauſe of Mr. Moſtyn's return from Poonah. But conceive our diſappointment, when we received your letter of the 19th September, dated near a month ſubſequent to the former diſpatch, and containing no other intelligence of any conſequence, to find that you only mentioned his arrival, and that the buſineſs with which he was charged by the Miniſters was ſo urgent, as to induce him to quit his ſtation without waiting for your permiſſion, and ſo important, that the Miniſters would neither commit it to writing, nor truſt it to the channel of their own agent, but that you left us totally uninformed of the particulars of his negociations with them, or of the object of his viſit to Bombay.

Charged as we are with the firſt care of all that reſpects the peace of the Britiſh poſſeſſions in India, and unable to act but from the materials which are furniſhed us by the other Preſidencies, we cannot help expreſſing our own impatience of this occaſion, and obſerving the extraordinary reſerve which you have ſhewn in your communications.

APPENDIX, No. 20 and 21.

Extract of Bengal Secret Conſultations, the 29th December 1777.

RECEIVED the following letter from Mr. Lewis, aſſiſtant to Mr. Moſtyn at Poonah.

Honourable Sir, and Gentlemen,

My ſuperiors have already acquainted you with the cauſe of Mr. Moſtyn's journey to Bombay, I ſhall therefore proceed to acquaint you with ſuch occurrences ſince that time as may merit your notice.

Notwithſtanding the promiſes made by Siccaram Bappoo to Mr. Moſtyn, in the name of the Durbar, that Monſieur de St. Lubin ſhould not be permitted to remain longer at this place than Deſera (the 12th October) and that no European nation whatever ſhould in future be permitted to trade in any port on the Malabar coaſt within the Maratta juriſdiction, I am ſorry to obſerve to your Honour, &c. that Monſieur de St. Lubin ſtill reſides in Poonah; and from the behaviour of Nannah Furneſe on a late occaſion, which will be explained in the courſe of this addreſs, ſeems to have greater influence than ever.

The Durbar, in violation of the above-mentioned promiſes, have alſo lately permitted Mr. William Bolts, of whoſe deſtination your Honour, &c. have already no doubt been adviſed, to proceed to Poonah, where he accordingly arrived the 18th inſtant, and immediately proceeded to the houſe of Monſieur St. Lubin, with whom he now reſides, and through whoſe influence I imagine Mr. Bolts is in hopes of obtaining a ſettlement on the coaſt; but you may depend, Gentlemen, my utmoſt endeavours ſhall be exerted to fruſtrate his ſchemes; though I am apprehenſive they will prove fruitleſs from the encouragement which appears to be given him by Nannah Furneſe, at the inſtigation I believe of Monſieur St. Lubin; for immediately after that gentleman, who paid Nannah a viſit on the 22d in the afternoon, had left him, Nannah iſſued an order for five hundred rupees being preſented to Mr. Bolts, in the name of the Durbar; which I underſtand is a compliment paid only to ſuch perſons as the Durbar acknowledge are come to them in a public capacity, and they mean to countenance.

The reports with reſpect to the armies to the ſouthward are ſo various, that there is no great confidence to be put in them; though this may be depended upon, as I have received it from very good authority, that Hurry Punt has written the Durbar that Monackjee Pooneria, the Nimilcar, Pattencar, and ſeveral other principal Maratta officers being diſguſted with the Government had revolted, and encamped ſome diſtance from him; that in conſequence of this revolt, he, Hurry Punt, had ordered his artillery to go againſt them, in order to bring them back to their duty, but the officer in command thereof had refuſed to obey him, which the revolted officers getting intelligence of, had attacked and plundered his camp. Hurry Punt in ſome ſhape attributes this defection of the Maratta officers being carried to ſo great a height, to ſome promiſes and preſents made them by Badjee Punt Burwah, one of Hyder Ally's officers, who having croſſed to the northward of the Tongebora, was encamped only about thirty coſs from the above Maratta officers, and between whom there was a conſtant correſpondence by means of Dauk Camels. Immediately on receipt of this intelligence Nannah waited on Morabah Furneſe, to requeſt he would take a ſhare in the Government and the charge of the army, offering inſtantly to give him the proper inveſture for that purpoſe; but which I am aſſured Morabah abſolutely refuſed, alledging, that the preſent Miniſters were not authorized to give him ſuch inveſture, nor would he receive it from any other perſon than Dada Saib.

Tookajee Holkar was lately on a viſit to the Peiſhwa at Poonah accompanied by Madjee Scindia's Duan, Scindia himſelf pretending to be ſick at Remutpore, a few coſs from the Cattapore diſtrict; the Miniſters took this opportunity of ordering Holkar to join Hurry Punt, which he abſolutely refuſed, telling them, that his preſence was abſolutely neceſſary in his own country, from whence he had been abſent upwards of two years, and which was running to ruin for want of ſome proper perſon to take care of it. The like orders were given to Scindia's Duan, to forward to his maſter, but he made uſe of the ſame plea for Scindia as Holkar had done. The Miniſters having a ſecond time directed Holkar to join Hurry Punt, he a few days ſince, in contempt of their orders, ſet off on his march towards Chandore, a ſtrong fort belonging to him, about forty coſs to the northward of this place, whither, I am informed, he has written to Scindia to follow him, telling him, he would wait there a certain time for him, when, if he did not join him, he ſhould continue his journey to Indoar.

Late at night on the 1ſt inſtant I received a letter (copy of which is incloſed under No. 2) from Mr. James Madgett, an Engliſh gentleman, who came from France in a ſhip of that nation, which your Honour, &c. have already been adviſed arrived at Choul in March laſt, demanding, as a ſubject of Great Britain, the protection of the Engliſh flag; but about half an hour afterwards he found means to eſcape the guard placed round his houſe, and in diſguiſe came to our factory on the 4th inſtant; likewiſe Monſieur de Corcelli, a French gentleman, belonging to Monſieur de St. Lubin's train, and likewiſe demanded the protection of the Engliſh flag, as you will be pleaſed to obſerve, by tranſlate of a letter he delivered me, now forwarded under No. 3. As I did not deem the affording theſe gentlemen the protection they required any infringement of the treaties now ſubſiſting with this Government, I granted their requeſts; being alſo induced thereto from the hopes of being able to gather ſome further information from them of Monſieur de St. Lubin's real views in coming to this Durbar. I have already acquainted the Honourable the Preſident and Council of Bombay of theſe tranſactions, who have been pleaſed to approve of the ſame, and directed me to ſend the gentlemen to Bombay as ſoon as poſſible.

Immediately on theſe gentlemen taking our protection, I ſent to acquaint the Durbar thereof, but received no reply; on the 6th inſtant however Byroo Punt, one of the people appointed to tranſact our buſineſs with the Durbar, ſent a meſſage, deſiring I would meet him that evening at his houſe, as he had ſomething particular to ſay to me regarding theſe gentlemen; but as I was at that time very ill with a fever, I requeſted he would excuſe me, and at the ſame time recommended his ſending me what he had to ſay in writing, which I would anſwer in the ſame manner; this he promiſed, but has not yet done.

Having requeſted Mr. James Madgett to commit to writing all he knew reſpecting Monſieur de St. Lubin's tranſactions, that they might appear at one view, he on the 9th inſtant delivered me a letter; copy of which is in the packet under No. 4. Permit me here, Gentlemen, to obſerve, that every circumſtance mentioned by Mr. Madgett has ſince been confirmed by Monſieur de Corcelli, and the Captain of the French ſhip. The latter declares he was preſent when Monſieur de St. Lubin and Nana Furneſe reſpectively ſwore to the due obſervance of the treaty; but ſays, he knows no further of its contents, than that Nannah's enemies are to be conſidered as the enemies of France. It appears from Mr. Madgett's letter, that though Monſieur de St. Lubin has no authority to appear at this Durbar as an ambaſſador, it is very probable he was ſent out by Monſieur de Sartine to try the ground, and make his report of the poſſibility of entering into an alliance with this Government. The above mentioned treaty being ſworn to, clearly demonſtrates Nannah's wiſh to introduce a body of French troops into the Maratta dominions; which if he is permitted to do, he will in all probability firſt fix himſelf in the Peiſhwaſhip, and afterwards employ them againſt the Honourable Company's ſettlements to the northward, if not againſt Bombay itſelf; on which ſervices Monſieur de St. Lubin has promiſed to employ the troops he has written to France for, as you will pleaſe to obſerve by an extract of a letter from the French Captain to Meſſrs. Madgett and de Corcelli, under No. 5.

In conſequence of the orders of my ſuperiors for ſending Meſſrs. Madgett and de Corcelli to Bombay, I have frequently applied to the Durbar for a duſtuck to paſs them; particularly, on the 21ſt inſtant I ſent a meſſage to Byroo Punt, requeſting to know if I might expect the duſtuck I had applied for ſo long ſince as the 12th; to which he replied, that Nannah had refuſed granting it, as thoſe gentlemen had been guilty of treachery, for which Nannah inſiſted on their being tried at the Durbar; when, if they were found guilty, he would cut them off, unleſs I made it a particular requeſt to him to pardon them; which perhaps he might comply with. As I was deſirous of getting under his hand on what grounds Nannah founded his plea, I again ſent, on the 22d, to Byroo Punt, acquainting him, if Nannah had any cauſe of complaint againſt the above-mentioned gentlemen, that I thought it would be better to give it me in writing, than to be thus continually ſending meſſages about it, without letting me know what he meant by the gentlemen having committed treachery. This, I told him, I had expected he would have done before, agreeable to his promiſe of the 6th. I at the ſame time told Byroo Punt, if Nannah was deſirous of having the matter cleared up to him, I thought I would do it to his ſatisfaction, and would willingly wait on him for that purpoſe whenever he pleaſed. To this meſſage Byroo Punt replied, that Nannah would neither give his complaint in writing, nor me the meeting on this buſineſs; but inſiſted on the gentlemen being examined at leaſt, by Mudcherow Jadahroi; however, as he, Byroo Punt, was then going to Nannah, he would take him in a cool moment, to ſpeak of the affair, and endeavour to ſettle it to my ſatisfaction; but hitherto I have not heard any thing further from him.

I beg leave to obſerve, here, Gentlemen, that Nannah, on my ſending to him under the 12th inſtant for a duſtuck, replied, As the before mentioned gentlemen had been guilty of fetteur (treachery) againſt the Government, he could not grant one until he had firſt conſulted Sacaram Bapoo, which he obſerved would take up four or five days. But in his ſeveral replies to my meſſages ſince that time, he has taken the whole upon himſelf; from which it may be naturally concluded, that Sacaram has declined interfering in the affair, or countenancing Nannah's conduct in it. Indeed, I ſhould have been greatly ſurprized, had Sacaram interfered; for on peruſal of the incloſed letters (No. 6 and 7) from Meſſrs. Madgett and de Corcelli, and the before-mentioned letter (No. 4.) from the former gentleman, I make no doubt but it will appear to your Honour, &c. than Nannah's perſecution of theſe gentlemen is entirely a private pique, inflamed by the artful inſinuations of Monſieur de St. Lubin.

Byroo Punt, who is a creature of Nannah's, no doubt imagined, by throwing out the lure of pardon being granted the above gentlemen at my requeſt, that I ſhould be induced to acknowledge his right to be ſole judge when Europeans reſiding at Poonah, not in the ſervice of the Government, or under its immediate protection, had been guilty of fetteur (treachery); but as I do not deem myſelf authorized to make ſuch acknowledgment, I have not taken any notice of that part of his meſſage, nor even were I authorized, ſhould I deem it proper to do ſo, particularly at this time, when to all appearances he is guided by the councils of Monſieur de St. Lubin, as it might be attended with dangerous conſequences; for let Nannah have but this one precedent, there is no knowing, in his preſent diſpoſition towards the Engliſh, where he would ſtop. Monſieur de St. Lubin, in order to get a knowledge of what we were doing, might perſuade him, that the Engliſh were forming ſome ſchemes againſt him, and thereby induce Nannah to ſtop and open our packets, when undoubtedly he would conſtrue many expreſſions into treachery, and every Engliſhman in Poonah would feel the effects of his malice.

Poonah, I am very reſpectfully, &c.

Copy of a letter from Mr. James Madgett (No. 2.)

Sir,

The diſmal ſituation I am in, obliges me to trouble you at ſo late an hour, and as a ſubject of the King of Great Britain, claim your protection againſt Monſieur de St. Lubin's unjuſt purſuits.

On his return from Nannah's Durbar this evening, he has made an attempt on ſeizing both me and my fellow companions, who are likely to fall victims to his rage and envy; however, as officers of Monſieur de Norrogne's troops, they expect the Government will ſpare them on his account. As for my part, I expect no quarters if I am delivered into Monſieur St. Lubin's hands; therefore rely ſo far on your goodneſs as to relieve me from his purſuits. My being naked to my ſhirt, has prevented me from eſcaping to your quarters. Be ſo kind as to let me know, whether I may go to your houſe this evening in diſguiſe. I am juſt informed, that Nannah had ordered a German (whom the ſepoys miſtook for me) to be beheaded in his preſence; but that on the German's making himſelf known, Nannah has ordered him back to our houſe bound neck and heels. This new alarm obliges me to implore again in His Britannic Majeſty's name, the protection due to his ſubjects; and your readineſs, Sir, in granting thereof to him that is,

To Mr. Lewis, Chargé d' Affaires on the part of the Engliſh nation at Poonah.

Sir,

Expoſed on every ſide to attempts, and not knowing where elſe to ſhelter myſelf, I throw myſelf into your hands, and demand from you the protection of the Engliſh flag, which I am under the neceſſity of taking, in order to ſhelter myſelf from the unjuſt purſuits of Monſieur de St. Lubin, which give me every reaſon to fear for my life, as he has already attempted to deprive me of it, by twice firing at me with a piſtol.

I hope, Sir, that the ſimple motives of humanity will ſufficiently weigh with you to grant me this protection, aſſuring you that I am in no ſhape either a ſervant or a ſubject of the Marattas. In this perſuaſion I have the honour to be, Sir,

Copy of a letter from Mr. James Madgett,
No. 4.

Sir,

According to your deſire, I now proceed to acquaint you with ſuch circumſtances as occur to me relative to the deputation of Monſieur de St. Lubin. The paper delivered to Mr. Moſtyn was framed almoſt verbally from the information given me by Monſieur de Sautry, who acted as confidential Secretary to Monſieur de St. Lubin.

I had always underſtood, even in France, that ſome overtures, tranſmitted to the Court of France from India, had firſt given riſe to the ſteps taken relative to an alliance with the Marattas. When at Bourdeaux, being in the mercantile line, and having embarked only with thoſe views, I had not an opportunity of becoming intimately acquainted with Monſieur de St. Lubin's deſigns; but even in Bourdeaux it was mentioned and generally believed, that he was deputed from the French Miniſtry, and was to form an alliance which would reſtore the influence of France in this country, be the means of cruſhing the power of the Engliſh, and give riſe to many commercial and other advantages to the French nation. In this light I regarded him when he embarked on the Sartine.

This ſhip, on which we embarked, was originally deſtined for America, and belongs to Monſieur Laffonde, of Bourdeaux; but by the management and perſuaſions of Monſieur de St. Lubin, and the high advantages held out by him to the Owners, ſhe was appointed to the ſervice ſhe came on. Monſieur St. Lubin aſſured the Owner, that ſoon after the cargo was landed, if it was landed according to his directions, he would ſhip five lacks of rupees in ſpecie on board, and ſend her away to China; the orders from the Owner to the Captain, which I have frequently ſeen, are framed in conſequence of this agreement, directing him to endeavour to ſell his cargo on the Malabar coaſt, to ſhip on board what ſandal and pepper he could get, and go off to China; this was to be his great view, but in all things to follow the advice of Monſieur de St. Lubin, to land the cargo wherever he directed him, to leave one of his officers with it, and proceed to China with five lacks, that Monſieur de St. Lubin would put on board him. Unfortunately for the deluded Monſieur Laffonde, he has made contracts for the delivery of tea at Bourdeaux, from the full aſſurance he has of his ſhip's going to China with means to procure a valuable cargo there. The Captain is directed to behave with all poſſible attention to Monſieur de St. Lubin, in conſequence of the moſt pointed recommendations from Monſieur de Sartine.

From the eſpecial confidence repoſed by Monſieur Laffonde in Monſieur de St. Lubin, the articles to form the cargo were entirely left to him; they were choſen according to his views, viz. military ſtores 15,000 muſkets, rejected from the King's ſervice, were ſpared to him at a very low price from the King's ſtores, by means of the influence of Monſieur de Sartine; cloth of different colours, with aſſortments for facings, alſo formed part of the cargo, which I have frequently heard Monſieur de St. Lubin mention was to cloath the troops that might be raiſed in India for the purpoſes of the alliance; having perhaps forgot it in the Owner's cargo, he perſuaded an officer of the ſhip to get made and bring out a conſiderable quantity of buttons; the device of the button was given him by Monſieur de St. Lubin; it is a fleur de luce in a creſcent, which probably Monſieur de St. Lubin, imagined to be the Maratta ſtandard, and therefore intended as emblematic of the alliance. Monſieur de St. Lubin even cauſed to be ſhipped a quantity of gold thread and ſpangles, which he frequently mentioned would be wanting for the embroidering of palanqueens, &c.

Monſieur de St. Lubin embarked with him the two brothers Deſauty, the elder of whom was his Secretary and Monſieur de Corcelli, a young gentleman of family in France; to all of them he held out during the whole paſſage, ſplendid and deluded hopes of fortune; his converſation generally ran on the ſubject of the great objects that were to reſult from the alliance he was coming to form. His accounts of this country were ſplendid, as we have ſince experienced them to be falſe.

During the whole paſſage from France to the coaſt of Malabar he never made known the particular port he was deſtined to; even on his arrival at Mihie, he did not declare his particular intentions; and to deceive Monſieur Piquot, procured Bills from him on Surat for the appointments directed to be paid him by the Court of France during this ſervice, which I underſtand are 30,000 livres per annum.

He was exceedingly alarmed at the news brought off from Cochin by the Captain and Monſieur Warnet the ſupra cargo, that intelligence was received on the Malabar coaſt of his deſtination there; that the Dutch Chief aſſured them he received intimation of it in a letter from Meſſrs. de Bellcombe and Chevrieul, dated Pondicherry; which letter the Dutch Chief ſhewed them. He could hardly believe it, and even took the pains of examining them ſeparately; and when he met the Conſolante frigate, which they had alſo brought word they ſhould meet, he was accordingly alarmed, particularly on the ſcore of the Engliſh. He directed the name of the ſhip not to be mentioned if ſpoke to; the men for three weeks were kept in conſtant alarm, the guns loaded and all ready for engaging. At Mangalore the Captain had advantageous offers made him for part of his military ſtores, and was to receive ſandal and pepper in return; but this not ſuiting perhaps the views of Monſieur de St. Lubin, or his fears interfering, he prevented him from accepting theſe offers in virtue of the power lodged with him by the Owner's orders, at the ſame time telling him he would carry him where they were obliged to cut down ſandal to make roads through the woods of it, and where he would trample pepper under his feet.

Shortly after we left Mangolore, Monſieur de St. Lubin declared his intention of carrying the ſhip into Choul, where ſhe accordingly arrived on the 16th March. From his arrival there he began to aſſume to himſelf, both in public and in private, all the ſtate of an Ambaſſador of the King of France. His confidential Secretary, Monſieur de Sauty, went firſt on ſhore with written inſtructions relative to the points to be inſiſted on for his reception; he inſiſted, that the Subedar ſhould ſend the officer next in rank to him with a letter of congratulation on his ſafe arrival; that the troops of Choul ſhould be under arms, and that the Subedar at the head of them to receive him as he ſtepped out of the boat; that the fort ſhould ſalute him with 21 guns, and an elephant and palanqueens be ready to carry him to the place deſtined for his reception; all theſe points were complied with except the palanqueens: he directed the Commander of the ſhip to ſalute him with 21 guns on his putting off, which was alſo complied with.

From Choul he ſent Monſieur de Sauty to Poonah with a letter to Nannah, expreſſing his impatience to ſee him, and to deliver the letters he had from the King his maſter, and from the Vizier of France: he made a demand of two elephants, 46 horſes, ſix palanqueens, and 40 camels, with ſufficient biggeries and bullocks to carry all his baggage: a part of this demand only was complied with, and the Chevalier, after having ſtipulated ſome arrangements regarding his reception in Poonah, ſet off from Choul the 11th April, and arrived at Poonah the 26th; on the road from Poonah to Proonder he was met by Bhim Row, the Commandant of the Artillery. He remained a few days at Proonder before he had a meeting with the Miniſters; the perſons preſent at his introduction were Nannah Saccaram and Curſah Row. He delivers two letters, one from the King in a gold bag, for the Peiſhwa; and one in a ſilver bag, ſaid to be from the Vizier of France, which was delivered to Nanah: at this meeting nothing material paſſed. He was afterwards introduced to the Peiſhwa; this was on the 14th May, ſhortly after which, being totally diſguſted with him, I left him.

The different meetings he has had with Nanah in the city are two well known to need mentioning: about the latter end of June he ſent a circular order de Parte Roi, directed to every ſubject of the King of France then reſiding in Poonah, and requeſting them to meet at the houſe of Nanah Furneſe, at three o'clock in the afternoon, to bear witneſs to the oaths to be taken by the Miniſters of the reſpective nations (meaning himſelf and Nanah) relative to a perpetual alliance to be formed between the King of France and the Maratta State. Amongſt others this paper was brought to me; but having then declined all connections with Monſieur de St. Lubin, I did not obey it. I have heard it repeatedly mentioned by the different Gentlemen who were there, that there were ſome written inſtrument; on one ſide of which Nanah ſwore by the cow, and to the other ſide Monſieur de St. Lubin ſwore by the Holy Evangeliſts; that Nanah further kept the book Monſieur de St. Lubin ſwore on. Being totally diſconnected with the Chevalier, ſince my departure from Proonder I have never been able to learn the particulars of the agreement with Nanah; but I have heard in general, that the baſis of it was the ſending out a body of troops to aſſiſt againſt the enemes of Nanah. About nine days after that he introduced Monſieur Paſcal du Sauty, brother to his confidential Secretary, to Nanah. This Monſieur Paſcal du Sauty went to Surat about the beginning of Auguſt, as I have learnt, with a pacquet from Monſieur de St. Lubin to Monſieur de Sartine. He was directed to Monſieur Briancourt in Surat and was to follow his advice, in reſpect to getting to Europe as expeditiouſly as poſſible. Suez and Buſſorah were named: the Nanah, I have learnt, made Monſieur Paſcal Du Sauty a preſent of ſeven hundred rupees in money, and about three hundred more in rich piece goods; I have alſo ſince heard, that this Monſieur Paſcal Du Sauty has left Surat, but I do not know where he is gone to.

At different times all his ſuite have quarrelled with him and left him, and ſome joined him again. In theſe intervals I have frequently heard from Du Sauty, his Secretary, and others, that he has ſent home to France the moſt flattering accounts imaginable of the ſucceſs of his negociation here, his having obtained the Port of Ckoul, and great commercial advantages; but above all, his being in perfect intimacy with the Nanah, who is in ſupreme command of the Maratta State, and the great political benefits that may reſult if no time is loſt in ſending here a body of men.

It would be needleſs to recite the various falſities and artifices that the Chevalier de St. Lubin made uſe of to lead the different perſons that embarked with him to his purpoſes: the diſcovery of them, and train of every baſe and unbecoming behaviour, diſguſted every one. The Captain and Supra cargo, after finding themſelves totally deceived in reſpect to his aſſurances to their Owner, took on themſelves the management of the cargo: he himſelf placed ſuch obſtructions, and led them, till they had loſt all confidence in him, into ſuch ſteps, that it was, and ſtill is beyond a doubt with them that inſtead of aſſiſting the Owners, Monſieur de St. Lubin has a view of ſharing the cargo by means of his influence with Nanah; I have heard that he even gave him to underſtand, that the military ſtores were meant as a preſent from the King of France. In ſhort, after much trouble and fatigue, they effected the diſpatch of the ſhip to China the 24th Auguſt laſt, with 150,000 Maratta rupees, the only return they have yet got for an invoice of 900,000 livres, beſides the coſts and charges of the ſhip; and for this they have depoſited the allowed value here of three lacks, and pay twelve per cent. per annum on the one hundred and fifty thouſand, until the ſale of the goods enable them to pay off that ſum. To prevent any accounts of theſe tranſactions, of the real ſtate of this country, and affairs here, from reaching France, Monſieur de St. Lubin had the baſeneſs to open all our letters, which we had delivered to Monſieur Paſcal du Sauty in confidence. Unfortunately in mine ſomething was mentioned diſfavorable to his political purpoſes; it was ſhewn to Nannah, interpreted to him, and inſinuated that ſuch repreſentations might ruin the buſineſs between them, by preventing the troops from arriving: in conſequence of this I have ever ſince been in perpetual alarm for my life, and obliged to keep on my guard. A few days ago Monſieur de St. Lubin went on a viſit to Nanah in the evening; after his quitting him, and about nine at night, a party of Nanah's people, who were conſtantly with Monſieur de St. Lubin, attacked the houſe where I was with Monſieur de Corcelle: I had but juſt time to make my eſcape to the Engliſh factory; it proved a providential retreat to me, for a poor German, who was miſtaken for me, had nearly loſt his life. He was carried to Nanah's; a diſpute aroſe on the manner of his death, whether by an elephant, by opening his bowels, or beheading him: it was decided for the latter. His hair was laid over his head, and the ſword lifted, when luckily a bramin knew him to be one of Monſieur Noronah's men, and belonging to the Tope Khonnah here.

The ſame dread that Monſieur de St. Lubin had of what I might write or do to prejudice him, he alſo entertains of Monſieur de Couronat and de Courcelle, only in a higher degree; becauſe, from their ſuperior intereſt and connections in France, they will be able to do him infinitely more prejudice.

I ſaw Monſieur de Couronat the 6th inſtant on his return from Barramooly, where he had been to endeavour to obtain juſtice from the Durbar on Monſieur de St. Lubin, who has taken to himſelf 100 muſquets, a bag of 1000 dollars, and other effects belonging to the Owners, to the amount of 15,000 rupees. He told me, that had it not been for the interference of the merchant here, with whom he is engaged for his cargo, it was paſt a doubt that he ſhould have been in irons in a fort about five coſs beyond Proonder. It ſeems Monſieur de St. Lubin informed Nanah, that Monſieur de Couronat had wrote to France reſpecting the Maratta nation as a band of robbers, himſelf as a mere uſurper, and that no certain benefit could be derived from an alliance with them, no dependence had on their promiſes, nor any ſafety for merchant veſſels in their ports. It could not be denied that Monſieur de Couronat had wrote this. Monſieur de St. Lubin urged the neceſſity of at leaſt ſecuring Monſieur de Couronat in ſome fort in irons, and fining him one lack of rupees, if he, the Nanah, did not think fit to take away his life. By Monſieur de St. Lubin's influence, orders were given to ſeize him, and the Sepoys ready to ſet off with him; but the beforementioned merchant repreſented the neceſſity of his being at liberty to adjuſt the concerns of his purchaſe, made ſome intereſt with the Miniſters, and procured his diſmiſſion. It may be remembered, that it was confidently reported that the French Captain was in irons.

As to the other gentleman, Monſieur de Courcelle, you have ſeen to what lengths he has been drove. I can myſelf bear witneſs to his aſſertion of the danger his life was in, having been preſent when Monſ. de St. Lubin, almoſt ſurrounded with guards, fired two piſtols at him, one ſhot of which grazed his ſide. The houſe we lived in, after ſeparating from Monſieur de St. Lubin, has been conſtantly ſurrounded by Sepoys, and he had nothing to truſt to but the humanity of Monſieur de St. Lubin and Nannah. This he had every reaſon to believe was but a weak defence againſt the danger that reſults to him from their political views, which may be impeded if either himſelf or his advices can ever reach France.

If I was to enter into the minutiæ of Monſieur de St. Lubin's conduct, it would ſerve to convince you that he is a man capable of inſinuating himſelf into the eſteem and confidence of moſt men, of deceiving, miſleading, and betraying them; every perſon that came out with him have experienced this, and his various arts and falſities have been detected, ſince their ſeveral diſputes with him led them mutually to reveal his ſeveral profeſſions, promiſes, and engagements to them. I ſhould not have thought it neceſſary to mention this, but that I imagine ſome knowledge of his character may enable you to judge how far it is poſſible that he may or may not lead the Court of France into his views. The many deceits and falſities they detected him in with reſpect to themſelves, has frequently led thoſe who embarked with him to conſider, whether even his public character might not be an aſſumed one; but after the ſtricteſt ſcrutiny there has never yet been the leaſt ground to doubt, that in conſequence of overtures from hence, he has been ſent out at leaſt to examine the ſtate of affairs here, perhaps to make ſome definite agreements, and to ſend home his report as ſpeedily as poſſible; how far this may be true I leave you to judge, from the ſimple circumſtances of Monſieur Piquot at Mibie, and Monſieur Briancourt at Surat, having acknowledged him and anſwered his drafts: 'tis true that Monſieur de Belcombe diſowns him as an Ambaſſador Extraordinary from the King of France, but ſtill it ſeems he knew of his coming out. From the ſmallneſs of his appointments, and no Staff being ſent with him, it ſhould ſeem that it was meant he ſhould act as covertly as poſſibly, which was certainly the mode that good policy would dictate, but as the Sieur de St. Lubin is, I believe, very capable of ſacrificing the public benefit to his own private vate views, I believe that he has been led into an oſtentation here, ruinous, perhaps, to the purpoſe he has been ſent out for, the better to impoſe himſelf on this Government as a perſon of great importance, in hopes of attracting ſuch preſents as would make him perfectly eaſy on the event of public affairs. There were unguarded moments during the paſſage out, in which I believe he ſpoke from his heart; and then he was very ſanguine in his hopes of the favourable reception he ſhould meet with here, that the natives of India in general, and particularly the people here, in the ſituation he ſuppoſed them to be, would gladly ſeek a refuge in the arms of France from the oppreſſions of the Engliſh, and therefore muſt certainly receive with particular attention the perſon who offered them that refuge, even after he had found circumſtances altered, and that it was difficult to draw money from a Bramin by mere words: I have heard that as a preliminary to the treaty with Nánah, he inſiſted on two lacks of rupees being paid him; it is too evidently his intereſt that a body of men ſhould be ſent here, to ſuppoſe that he would not make the moſt favourable report to induce the Miniſter of France to that meaſure.

Appendix. Nos. 20 & 21.

Appendix. Nos. 20 & 21.

I have already mentioned the flattering light in which he has ſet forth the advantages that reſult from it in his diſpatches to France, and that above all no time ſhould be loſt in completing his agreement, by ſending out a body of men. He inſtructed thoſe in his confidence what they ſhould write, and you are already informed of the meaſures he has taken, and ſtill ſeeks to take, in order to prevent the detection of his miſrepreſentations; even though he is now perhaps in ſome meaſure diſappointed in his views by the protection afforded to Monſieur de Courcelle and myſelf; yet ſtill it remains a doubt, whether or not it is poſſible to deſtroy at this diſtance that confidence which there is every reaſon to ſuppoſe Monſieur de Sartine places in him: for among many other qualities he poſſeſſes to a great degree the talent of perſuaſion; he ſticks at no aſſertions, and has a pen capable of baffling even truth itſelf, and give whatever impreſſions he may think ſuitable to his views.

Extract of a letter from Captain Couronat to Meſſrs. Madgett and de Corcelle; dated the 21ſt November 1777. (No. 5.)

I muſt inform you, that St. Lubin has made freſh complaints, not only againſt us, but againſt Monſieur Noronho. He has communicated to Nanab the letter this gentleman wrote to Meſſrs. de Corcelle and Barbier; which letter I wrote myſelf in anſwer to one they had written to him. His complaint to this Miniſter (Nanab) was, that Monſieur Noronho had deprived him of his ſubjects in concert with that merchant who lives with him, meaning your humble ſervant; becauſe it was me who wrote this letter. Nanab is entirely taken with this man; believes every thing he ſays, and follows his advice about us. The reaſon is, that he has been confident enough to promiſe him the entire deſtruction of the Engliſh nation; that this was his reaſon for coming to the Marattas, and that they would ſoon ſee fine work.

(No. 6.)

Sir,

It is with the utmoſt aſtoniſhment I have heard that Nánah aſſigns as a reaſon for not granting a duſtuck to Monſieur de Corcelle and me, that we have been guilty of treacherous practices againſt the Government. I will inform you, on my honour, and on my oath, if required, of the circumſtance that might probably have given riſe to this accuſation.

In a letter to my brother at Bourdeaux, I mentioned the adventures we had met with; the conduct, character, and hiſtory of Monſieur de St. Lubin, as I had heard and found them. Among other things I mentioned, that Nanab was ſaid here not to be the lawful Prince of the Country, but an uſurper; and that ſome people alſo ſaid he had got the young King's mother with child, and afterwards cauſed her to be poiſoned; and that others ſaid ſhe poiſoned herſelf to avoid the puniſhment inflicted on Brahmin women who treſpaſs in this manner after the death of their huſbands. To the beſt of my remembrance, theſe are my words; and it was what I heard here from every perſon with whom I could converſe. This letter, I have before ſaid, was delivered to Monſieur Paſcal du Sauty, who ſolemnly promiſed to deliver it to my brother, but afterwards treacherouſly gave it to Monſieur de St. Lubin, who ſhewed it, and had it explained in his manner to Nanab. You have ſeen the conſequences that reſulted to me from it; I was near loſing my life; and ſtill, by the inſtigations of Monſieur de St. Lubin, Nanab, I am well convinced, ſeeks it; and for this reaſon endeavours to keep me here, well knowing, that if the troops which Monſieur de St. Lubin has promiſed him arrive, he may be able to wreak his vengeance on me.

As to Monſieur de St. Lubin, it is eaſy to perceive his views; his fortune, and perhaps his life, depend on inducing the Miniſtry of France to hurry out a body of men. Should accounts different from his arrive, his views may be impeded; but eſpecially, ſhould any perſon go to Paris who can have acceſs to the Miniſter, in order to undeceive him: this, he knows, is the caſe with Monſieur de Corcelle. You have ſeen, with his own hand he attempted his life, and now endeavours to deprive him of the aſylum he would find at Bombay, and of the means of tranſporting himſelf to his native country.

I am, &c. &c.

To Mr. William Lewis, Chargé D' Affaires on the part of the Engliſh nation at Poonah.

Sir,

A perſon, ſenſible of my innocence, may eaſily conceive the aſtoniſhment I was ſtruck with, at the firſt intimation you was pleaſed to give me of the charge brought againſt me by Nanab; and if this ſurprize is ſince any thing diminiſhed, it is only by the reflection that this crime of High Treaſon, of which I ſtand accuſed, can only have been imputed to me by St. Lubin; who well knows the falſity of the accuſation, but who has been impelled by motives it is not difficult to gueſs at; his intention is to prevent me from giving any light into his conduct, either by writing or returning to France, well knowing the harm I might do him, either by divulging the villanies he has committed, or by undeceiving Monſ. de Sartine, in the accounts he has given him of this country; he could take no better pretenſions than by engaging to make me ſuffer the puniſhment due to ſuch a crime, I mean death; but what ſtill ſurprizes me, is to find Nanab give credit to ſuch a thing, on the ſimple word of this man: Nanab perhaps is ignorant that I know nothing either of him or his followers, and that it is of the laſt indifference to me whether ſuch a perſon exiſts or not; in ſhort, what could I ſay of him, who neither know him, or have the deſire or means to be acquainted with him? and what could I ſay about his Government, which ſeems a labyrinth that a man muſt be more uſed to than I am, not to be loſt in reaſoning about it; yet, after all this, Nanah inſiſts that I ſhall appear before him, to be tried, promiſing me my pardon if guilty, at your requeſt. By what right does he ſummon me to his tribunal, perſecuting a ſtranger, or rather a ſubject of him with whom he either believes or hopes to be in alliance; is this the protection which his Government affords? Sir, ſince the time that the ills I had ſuſtained, and the perſecution and violences aimed at me, by Monſ. de St. Lubin, obliged me to quit for a time the protection of my own flag, and have recourſe to yours, I have experienced much effects from the compaſſion with which you beheld my diſtreſs, as leaves me to doubt whether I ſhould have been more humanely received even by my own countrymen; from this experience, I truſt you will not compel me to appear before this man. I muſt confeſs to you, that excluſive of the inſecurity it would bring me into, I ſhould feel it as a ſenſible diſhonour and affront, to appear before him as a criminal, and be obliged to juſtify myſelf; beſides, Sir, I doubt not you will perceive that this monſter, St. Lubin, has adviſed him to this meaſure, in order to make uſe of the power he would then have to deprive me of your protection.

You will perceive, Sir, that it will be impoſſible for me now to embrace the opportunity you mentioned to me of returning to France, both from the impediments ariſing from the refuſal of a paſſport to Bombay, and from the inſecurity there would now perhaps be to my returning to France, without taking ſome previous precautions by writing to my friends.

I have the honour to be, &c. &c.

Reſolved, That the following letter be written to Poonah:

To Thomas Moſtyn, Eſquire, Reſident at Poonah, or in his abſence to Mr. William Lewis.

Sir,

We have received a letter from Mr. Lewis, under date the 29th ultimo, with the ſeveral incloſures which he refers to.

We have no doubt that Mr. Lewis has adviſed the Preſident and Council at Bombay of the protection which he has granted to Mr. Madgett and to Monſieur Corcelle, and that you will be guided in your future proceedings by the directions which you may in conſequence receive from them. We, for our part, do not think it was adviſable for the Reſident at Poonah to afford the protection of the Britiſh flag to the dependants of a foreigner, who had been well received by that Government; ſuch an act as might tend to embroil him with the Maratta Court: indeed, the glaring improbabilities in their own narrative, of the cauſes which obliged them to ſolicit this protection, and the ſtrange manner of their appearance before the Reſident, make us ſtrongly ſuſpect them to be impoſtors: the general character of Monſieur de St. Lubin for intrigue, affords alſo a great probability that he has made theſe men the inſtruments to foment a diſſention between the Engliſh and the Poonah Durbar; we think it neceſſary therefore to adviſe you to be on your guard againſt the conduct and inſinuation of ſuch perſons. Appendix. Nos. 21 & 22.

Bengal Secret Conſultations, 26th January 1778.

Extract of a letter from Mr. William Gamul Farmer, to the Honourable the Preſident; dated from Poonah the 11th November 1777, and received the 16th following.

THIS St. Lubin is a moſt perfect adventurer, and I believe has cheated even the miniſtry of France in this buſineſs. He introduced himſelf to the confidence of Monſieur de Sartine, as to Indian matters, by a memorial he preſented relative to this country, which Monſieur de Corielle aſſures me he has frequently ſeen. In this memorial he has not forgot himſelf. He has made himſelf Generaliſſimo at one time of Hyder's army; the very man who framed the treaty between him and the Marattas, for which he the next day received two lacks of rupees; but what chiefly introduced him to this buſineſs was his particular intimacy with the Rajah of the Marattas. He was the conſtant companion of his children, uſed to learn them to ride; in ſhort, he had not in the world a better friend than the Rajah. There certainly could not be ſo fit a man in France to ſend out to ſound the ground here, and to form an alliance with the Maratta State, if circumſtances ſhould prove favourable. You may partly judge from this, of what the Chevalier is capable of in the way of repreſentation.

Drunk and ſober, jointly and ſeparately, I have examined all the Frenchmen, with whom we have yet had connection, that is Madgett, Monſieur de Corielle, who was to have been made Engineer by St. Lubin, and Monſieur de Coronat, the Captain of the ſhip, whom I found means to get to eat ſoup with us. They are all in ſuch a ſituation with reſpect to Monſieur St. Lubin, that it is the firſt wiſh of their lives that he may prove totally a counterfeit, and not be ſupported by the Miniſtry of France; for in fact their lives may perhaps depend on Lubin's reality, and the juſtifying his conduct. I have turned the matter every way to perſuade them that he was a counterfeit, in order to fiſh out their arguments to the contrary; but they are all perfectly convinced of the facts mentioned in Madgett's letter. The Captain of the ſhip confirmed to me repeatedly what Madgett had often mentioned, that his Owner had given him his orders relative to St. Lubin, in conſequence of recommendations from Monſieur de Sartine. They all agree perfectly with regard to the ideas entertained of him at Bourdeaux: that it was firſt talked of ſending out a body of men under Monſieur Dumas. The fact of the intelligence the Captain and Supercargo received at Cochin, of Lubin's deſtination, the Captain confirmed to me. Picot and Brian Court acknowledged him, and Brian Court has gone ſo far as to requeſt the Conſulſhip of Choul. The Count de Mendave, a man of good family in France, who has been ſeeking his fortunes in this country, and is now with Baſſalut Jung, heard of him; has offered to join him, and makes intereſt for a good employment under him. You will obſerve, Sir, that although it ſeems that de Belcombe diſavows him as an Ambaſſador from the King, yet he takes no effectual meaſures to remove him; and it is a known fact that St. Lubin ſent by a Frenchman a diſpatch to Belcombe in the month of July or Auguſt laſt. They all perfectly agree in the circumſtances of the ſummons given to attend at the Nannah's to witneſs the treaty. Nannah was ſworn by his Brahmin, and St. Lubin by his Padre, and Nannah kept the book. The diſpatch of Monſieur Paſcal du Sauty to Surat, in order to carry from thence his diſpatches for France, is certain. We have learnt by a Frenchman lately arrived here, that he has been ſeen at Brian Court's; his deſtination via Suez. This Frenchman ſays, that he wanted to take his paſſage in an Engliſh ſnow, I ſuppoſe Barrington, but that it was refuſed, and he is now to go in a veſſel belonging to a black man.

You ſee, Sir, how much Lubin has at ſtake; by the total defeat of all his ſchemes, perhaps the loſs of life, or or impriſonment, if theſe fellows find that he is an impoſtor; every thing therefore with him depends on his being able to perſuade the Miniſter to hurry out a body of men inſtantly on the receipt of his diſpatches, or order them from the iſlands. I leave you, Sir, further to judge what he is capable of, when he has wrote, that they are in perfect poſſeſſion of the port and harbour of Choul; and to make the poſſeſſion the more valuable, he wanted the gentlemen who took the draft of it for him, to put ſeven fathom water where there was only three and a half. The flouriſhing ſtate of this country, the power of Nannah, the certain deſtruction of the Engliſh, the great advantage to France; all theſe he has dwelt on, as I am well aſſured, in a manner that cannot fail to make great impreſſions in France.

On the whole, I think you will agree with me, Sir, that we cannot be too alert in endeavouring to parry a blow, which at all events muſt be ruinous to our ſettlements; and therefore, in the firſt place, I think we are right to make the moſt of the diſagreements between him and his ſuite. I look upon it as a very fortunate circumſtances, that Monſieur de Coreille has been drove to the neceſſity of taking our protection; they all allow him to be a young man of very good connections in France; he was juſt entering into the engineer line when St. Lubin met him, and perſuaded his friends that he could make his fortune in India. He is a young man of good parts, and very ſoon found out that Lubin had made a dupe of him, which operating with other circumſtances in St. Lubin's conduct, has fixed in Corceille a rooted enmity to Lubin; there is nothing he would not venture on to ruin him; and there is no one St. Lubin ſo much dreads, becauſe he knows that de Corceille, from his connections, is the moſt dangerous of his enemies here. You will ſee by Madgett's letter the attempt he made on him; it was as cowardly done as it was horrible to attempt; de Corceille was walking up towards him, St. Lubin advanced to meet him between two rows of ſepoys, with his hands behind him, and a piſtol in each; at what he thought an infallible diſtance, he fired them one after the other, and providentially miſſed him; one of the balls grazed his rib, and went through his coat; if he is not ſecured by our protection, well backed, I think his life is yet in danger, for St. Lubin conſtantly inſtils to Nanah the danger to their mutual cauſe if either his advices, or any other of their enemies, that is Madgett and the Captain, reach France, but particularly ſhould they go there themſelves.

Perhaps the fear of the remonſtrances of the preſent Government may be made an objection on the part of ſome to the protection afforded to the French; on this I think you have nothing to fear. By the rights of nations, and by treaty with them, we have a clear right to receive Europeans of all nations, even in their ſervice; they can certainly therefore form no juſt objection to our receiving thoſe who are neither their ſervants or their ſubjects; but their own intereſts ſeem to me your beſt ſecurity for their ſilence on this occaſion. How much ſoever they may diſlike the protection afforded to the French, there is every juſt reaſon to ſuſpect that Nanah ſeeks to fortify himſelf in this Government, againſt his competitors and againſt us, by means of his connection with the French, and his hopes of what St. Lubin may affect are ſtrongly marked in the great protection he afforded him. He muſt feel, that if we were but once convinced of this, that our intereſt would lead us into the neceſſary meaſures to prevent this connection, and the only effectual one is a total change of the Government here, which he cannot but be ſenſible we could effect long before the time that he can expect the French here: his policy therefore muſt be to keep us quiet, and the Bengal Government amuſed and unſuſpicious, till he ſees the event of his negociation with Lubin. Too public and violent an exertion in favour of Lubin, whom they affect to diſown as an Ambaſſador, would be held as clear proofs of a connection with him. Their ſilence hitherto on the ſubject of the protection afforded to de Corcille, confirms, I think, my opinion of the conduct they will obſerve; and the ſignifying it in writing was meant to make them feel, that their conduct in this buſineſs would be ſtated to Bengal in a manner that would leave them no room for evaſion.

APPENDIX No. 23.

Extract of Bengal Secret Conſultations, the the 26th January 1778.

PRESENT,

The Honourable Warren Haſtings, Governor General, Preſident.

Richard Barwell, Philip Francis, Edward Wheler, } Eſquires.

THE proceedings of the 19th inſtant read, and approved.

Received the following letter from Bombay:

Gentlemen,

We have received your letters, dated the 18th of Auguſt and 17th September.

Bombay, 7th December

Before the receipt of theſe lettets Mr. Moſtyn had laid before us the propoſals he brought from the Poonah Government for an accommodation with Ragonaut Row, a copy of which we have the honour to incloſe. Theſe propoſals were communicated to him in form, but he was totally averſe to accepting them, and a very little reflection will ſhew that they are much more ſpecious than ſolid. The offered jaghire of ten lacks being reckoned according to Kamil, or the ancient valuation, will produce little more than ſeven, as we have experienced in the diſcuſſion of the 5th Article of the Treaty; and the five forts diſmembered of the diſtricts appropriated for their maintenance, would only prove an incumbrance upon him inſtead of any benefit, as he could not poſſibly maintain them, provide a ſuitable eſtabliſhment for himſelf, and defray his other expences with ſeven lacks; but there is another much ſtronger objection to theſe propoſals, there not being the ſmalleſt proviſion made for his perſonal ſafety.

We have appointed a deputation of our Board to announce to Ragoba the purport of your inſtructions, under the 18th Auguſt, and to require him to make choice of one of the propoſed expedients for retiring to Benares: he has requeſted time to conſider of them: but ſhould he decline complying, in what manner are we to act? We can never think of expelling him by force from the ſettlement; and the Honourable Company, in a letter juſt received, conſider the perſonal ſafety of Ragoba of ſo much importance, as to make it one of the conditions of their acquieſcing in the late treaty.

We can pronounce on the beſt grounds, that the diſtricts of Ahmood, Deſborah, and Hanſood, will not produce a groſs revenue of more than 2,40,000 rupees, from which muſt be deducted the tributes of 30,000 rupees, before annexed to Broach. This leaves a revenue of 2,10,000 rupees according to the eſtimate of our Commiſſioners, which may be depended on, as Ahmood and Hanſood, the two moſt conſiderable places, were under their immediate management during the time they were in our poſſeſſion. The Maratta agents, by their eſtimate, make the revenues of theſe places amount to R$ 3,33,000, including the tributes, which ought not to be reckoned, and it alſo ſeems to have eſcaped your notice, that the Miniſters propoſe diſmembering from the Pergunnah of Ahmood certain villages to the amount of 33,000 rupees, the exceedings of theſe three lacks according to their account, which added to the deficiency according to our accounts, will make ſo capital a deduction from the ſtipulated ceſſion of a complete plete revenue of three lacks, that we cannot anſwer to the Company to receive theſe diſtricts upon the terms offered by the Durbar, as in our opinion the 5th Article of the treaty would not in that caſe be fulfilled.

The Miniſters, after having by a ſeries of artifice and duplicity protracted the ceſſion of the country of three lacks, may naturally purſue the ſame line of conduct to get Jambooſeer into their poſſeſſion again; that they may take out of our hands the only ſecurity we have for the performance of their engagements: there is not a doubt with us, that the moment the Company's garriſon was withdrawn, the Miniſters would throw in a body of troops; and it is equally clear to us, that they would in that caſe withhold the revenues from the Company, ſo long as any articles of diſpute ſubſiſted between us. We think we may with great reaſon add, that the Company, by ſuch a ſtep, would moſt probably be deprived of all proſpect of benefit from the 5th and 6th articles of the treaty, or be obliged to come to an open rupture with the Marattas, to compel the performance of them.

It is, indeed, neceſſary, that a military force ſhould be kept in Jambooſeer, to ſecure the collection of the revenues, and to protect the country from the depredations of the Coolies, and other banditti, of which the late irruption mentioned in our letter of the 19th September, is a ſufficient proof. It was given in particular charge to Meſſrs. Carnac, Boddam, and Ramſay, when at Broach, and the utmoſt care has been taken to avoid ſwelling the Government charges of Jambooſeer, there being only one civil ſervant kept there, and the garriſon conſiſting of only one company of regular Sepoys, and one of Locals, which is the ſmalleſt that can in prudence be kept there.

We had before conſented, and given orders in conſequence of the Durbar's requeſt, that their Aumildar ſhould be allowed to reſide in Jambooſeer, and receipts given him for all collections; but we were obliged to reſtrict the number of his attendants within proper bounds, as he wanted to introduce ſo large a number of armed men in his ſuite as could not with ſafety have been admitted. Were we to permit him to have the management and collection of the revenues, it would in effect be giving him the poſſeſſion of the province, and it would depend on his pleaſure what part to pay to the Company. However, to conform as nearly as poſſible to your ſentiments, we have given orders that the Maratta Aumildar ſhall be preſent and aſſiſt at the Jammabundy, or annual ſettlement of the revenues, to ſee that all poſſible juſtice is done to his principals; which will anſwer every good purpoſe to the Durbar, as well as if their Aumildar had the collection in his own hands; for we muſt obſerve, that ſince the place has been in our poſſeſſion, the collections have exceeded any hitherto made by the Marattas.

The further demands we ſhall have upon Jamboo-ſeer for the loſs the Company have ſuſtained by the delay of the Miniſters in making over the ceded country, for the ſhip Aurora and her cargo, and other claims of individuals upon the Poonah Government, for veſſels taken ſince the concluſion of the treaty, afford additional and moſt forcible reaſons for not withdrawing the garriſon from that place.

Mr. Moſtyn has been inſtructed to recede from the demand on the Durbar for reimburſement of the charges incurred by Ragoba's reſidence at Bombay.

We were glad of the opportunity of that gentleman's proceeding to Poonah, to gain all the knowledge we could of the country; and for that purpoſe ſent Lieutenant Torriano, an able draftſman, to accompany him, and make his obſervations; and we are aſſured he has conducted himſelf with ſo much circumſpection, as to give no cauſe of complaint.

We are much pleaſed to find that our letter of the 10th May, has excited your attention to the ſtate of our forces. Our eſtabliſhment as laſt ſettled by the Company, conſiſts of one battalion of artillery of four companies, two battallions of European infantry, ſix battalions of Sepoys, and a corps of 500 Sepoy marines for the ſervice of our cruizers; but ſince our late acquiſitions it is become very neceſſary, and we have accordingly recommended it to the Company, to augment the European corps. The incloſed general return will ſhew the diſpoſition of this force, and how greatly deficient the European battalions are of their proper complement, which we have no means or proſpect of completing; and notwithſtanding we give every encouragement, it is very difficult to raiſe good Sepoys on this coaſt. When any occaſion may make it expedient to augment our forces it will require ſo much time to raiſe and diſcipline a further number of Sepoys, ſo as in the leaſt degree to be conſidered as effective troops, that it will be much better in every reſpect to ſend us a reinforcement of diſciplined Sepoys, if Europeans cannot be ſpared. Appendix. No. 23.

Such being the ſtate of our forces, you will readily comprehend our inability to co-operate with the other Preſidencies in caſe of an attack upon either of them; and that on the event of an European war, the ſafety of this place can be no otherwiſe ſecured than by having a ſuperior fleet, or a proper garriſon in actual readineſs to repel an enemy, which our preſent force is by no means equal to. We can have no doubt, but in caſe of a national war with the French, Bombay, from the excellence of the harbour and the convenience of the docks, would be the firſt object of their attempts in India: and the arrival of their fleet off the port in the month of Auguſt or September, being the beſt ſeaſon for a quick run from the iſlands, might probably bring us the firſt notice of their intentions, and neither give us time to receive ſuccours from ſuch a diſtance as Bengal or Madras, or for any diverſion to be made in our favour.

We have thus, according to our duty and your deſire, laid before you a ſtate of our military force, and of our means of defence; and it will reſt with you, Gentlemen, to put into our hands reſources equal to our exigencies, and the importance of the Company's poſſeſſions in this quarter.

We have the pleaſure to acquaint you, that the ſervice againſt the Coolies, is ſucceſsfully concluded, and the detachment returned into garriſon. The Durbar was apprized with the intention and object of our operations, with which they expreſſed themſelves perfectly ſatisfied.

The Honourable Company having given us their ſentiments on the late treaty, and ſome other points conſequent thereto, we incloſe an extract from their letter, which was received the 16th ultimo, by the ſhip York.

Mr. Lewis at Poonah, has, by our direction, adviſed you of the late tranſactions there, and of Meſſrs. Madgett and Corceilli, two of Monſieur St. Lubin's ſuite, having taken our protection. Mr. Madgett has committed to writing all the information he is able to give reſpecting Monſieur St. Lubin; by which it ſeems very evident, that if he has not ſome ſecret powers from the Court of France, he was at leaſt ſent out under the particular countenance of Monſieur de Sartine; but for your more full information, we incloſe a copy of his letter.

The preſent adminiſtration at Poonah is ſo confuſed and unſteady, and the rights of Ragoba either, to the Peiſhwaſhip or the regency of the Maratta empire, are ſo unqueſtionable, that we are convinced that Government can never be ſettled on a firm, permanent, or equitable footing, until he is in poſſeſſion of one of thoſe offices. We need not point out to you of what importance it is that tranquillity ſhould be reſtored to that empire: and that it ſhould be placed under a Government propitious to the Company. The Miniſters, divided and jealous of each other, particularly of Nanah, with an authority not generally acknowledged, a weak, diſaffected, and ill paid army, hard preſſed by Hyder's forces under the command of Badjee Punt, may very probably ſoon behold their Government diſſolved, if not timely timely ſupported by the French; but unleſs we have ſome latitude given us, the Company will be deprived of every advantage they might have reaped by our interference in favour of Ragoba, which at ſuch a time muſt be deciſive with very little danger or difficulty. But this is not the worſt evil we have to apprehend. Mr. Madgett's intelligence, and the information of our Reſident, make it next to a certainty that ſome agreement has been concluded between the Miniſters and Monſieur de St. Lubin; in conſequence of which, he has wrote to the Miniſtry of France, either to ſend from Europe, or to order from the Iſlands, a body of forces to act in concert with the Poonah Government. Nanah no doubt has made great promiſes, and Monſieur St. Lubin will as certainly exert all the addreſs he is ſo well known to be maſter of, to perſuade the French Miniſtry to adopt this meaſure; and if their troops are once introduced into the country, an endleſs ſcene of troubles and dangers will enſue, of which there is no ſaying what may be the event. In the mean time, it muſt be the policy of Nanah and his colleagues, to fortify themſelves as well as they can in their Government, and to amuſe the Engliſh until the arrival of their new allies; but we have the ſtrongeſt hopes, that the materials you will now have before you, will give you a clear inſight into their views and deſigns; and that you will perceive the bad conſequences of our remaining any longer paſſive ſpectators of tranſactions in which the ſafety and welfare of the Company are ſo deeply concerned.

It will depend upon you, Gentlemen, to avert the impending dangers. Limited as our power is, and unprovided as we are with reſources, we cannot exert ourſelves as the occaſion requires. We can do no more than to repreſent our ſituation and circumſtances to you; and we truſt you will be convinced of the neceſſity of our being left at liberty, and furniſhed with the means, to take advantage of circumſtances as they ariſe in the interval that is left us for the ſecurity of the Company; or that you ſend us full and explicit inſtructions for our conduct in this moſt important criſis. Whatever may happen, we have acquitted ourſelves of our duty to the Company by this repreſentation, and cannot be anſwerable for any further conſequences.

The Reſident having received a letter from Mr. William Gamul Farmer, a ſenior merchant upon our liſt, and now at Poonah upon account of his health, which throws ſome further lights on Monſieur St. Lubin's proceedings, we incloſe for your notice the neceſſary extracts therefrom.

The Auſtrian ſhip, under command of Mr. Bolts, arrived at Surat the beginning of September; but we cauſed ſo many obſtructions to be thrown in his way, that he ſoon left that place, and proceeded with the ſhip to Gogo. The ſhip is ſtill there, but Mr. Bolts himſelf is at Poonah, ſoliciting, as we have reaſon to believe, for a ſettlement at Gogo; and though we ſhall exert to the utmoſt the little influence we have with the Durbar to prevent his ſucceſs, he has been ſo well received that we are apprehenſive of the event. We expect this man will be the occaſion of much further trouble and injury to the Company's affairs, as we are adviſed by our Reſident at Tellicherry, that the Auſtrian ſhip is expected at Billiapatam, a port in the territories of the Prince of Cherika, one of the Malabar Powers by no means well diſpoſed towards the Company, and who we ſuſpect will grant Mr. Bolts a factory in his dominions.

We are, &c.

Propoſals delivered by the Miniſters to Mr. Moſtyn, to be made to Ragonaut Row.

Firſt, that Ragoba ſhall have a jaghire of ten lacks annually, to be reckoned at Kahmil; and not agreeable to the preſent revenues; and the following Pergunnahs in part ſhall be immediately delivered up to him, viz.

Dubhoy Pergunnah,

and the balance ſhall be paid him in ready money, deducting only a quarter part for the charge of collecting, as the remainder Pergunnahs they intend giving are in charge of officers at preſent in camp, but which ſhall be delivered up as ſoon as they return.

Second, That the following forts ſhall be delivered up to him:

Third, That the amount of the countries of the above forts, be deducted from the ten lacks, reckoning the revenues at Kamil.

Fourth, That the Duan to attend Ragonath Row, ſhall be appointed by the Durbar, but with his approbation and conſent.

Fifth, That he ſhall engage not to endeavour, directly or indirectly, to raiſe any diſturbance in the country againſt the Poonah Durbar.

Sixth, That the ſeveral articles which Ragonath Row has agreed to, and are now with Babah Row Canah, ſhall be adhered to.

Extract of general letter to Bombay, dated 16th April 1777; received at Bombay 16th November 1777.

Par. 7. By the 39th paragraph of our letter dated the 5th April 1776, you were informed, that we approved, under every circumſtance, of keeping all territories and poſſeſſions ceded to the Company by Ragoba, and that we had given directions to the Preſidencies of Bengal and Fort Saint George, to adopt ſuch meaſures as might be neceſſary for their preſervation and defence; but we are extremely concerned to find, from the terms of the treaty concluded by Colonel Upton at Poonah, that ſo great a ſacrifice has been improvidently made; and eſpecially, that the important ceſſion of Baſſein to the Company by Ragoba, has been rendered of no effect.

8. Though we cannot but diſapprove of the mode of interference of the Governor General and Council, by ſending an Ambaſſador directly to Poonah without firſt conſulting you, and of their determination to diſavow and invalidate the treaty formerly entered into by an agent from your Preſidency, and ſolemnly ratified under the ſeal of the Company; yet we would hope that theſe meaſures will not operate to the prejudice of your conſequence in the eyes of the natives, but that you will ſtill be able to conduct our affairs on the Malabar coaſt with honour to yourſelves, and advantage to the Company.

9. Confiding therefore in the attention of our Governor General and Council to deduce every poſſible benefit from the terms of the treaty concluded by Colonel Upton, and particularly to procure payment of the ſums ſtipulated for the charges of the war, and to take care that proviſion be made for the perſonal ſafety of Ragoba; we acquieſce in the ſaid treaty, provided Salſette and its dependencies be not reſtored; though we are convinced that Baſſein, which is ſo great an object with us, might have been obtained, if they had authorized you to treat either with Ragoba or with the Miniſters at Poonah; reſerving the final approval and ratification of the treaty to themſelves. This is the preciſe line we wiſh to have drawn; and if on any future occaſion our Governor General and Council ſhall think it neceſſary to exerciſe the powers veſted in them by Parliament relative to peace and war, we have directed them to purſue the ſame, and to contribute all in their power to preſerve to our reſpective Governors and Councils that conſequence which may enable them on all occaſions to promote the intereſt of the Company.

We have hitherto ſuppoſed that the affairs of Ragoba are rendered deſperate, and that the Miniſters at Poonah maintain their ground, and conſtitute at preſent the Maratta Government; we are nevertheleſs of opinion, that an alliance originally with Ragoba would have been more for the honour and advantage of the Company, and more likely to be laſting than that concluded at Poonah. His pretenſions to the ſupreme authority, either in his own right, or as guardian to the infant Peiſhwa, appear to us better founded than thoſe of his competitors; and therefore, if the Conditions of the Treaty of Poonah have not been ſtrictly fulfilled on the part of the Marattas, and if from any circumſtances, our Governor General and Council ſhall deem it expedient, we have no objection to an alliance with Ragoba, on the terms agreed upon between him and you.

APPENDIX, No. 24.

Extract of Bengal Secret Conſultations, 26th January 1778.

GOVERNOR General—I informed the Board laſt council day, that I had prepared a plan for an accommodation with the Maratta Government, which I hoped to complete by this day. It is now ready; but as I could wiſh to give it ſome further correction, I hope the Board will allow of its being inſerted in this place. I ſhall ſend it to the Secretary to be circulated for the correction and opinion of the different members of the Board. As it was written before the receipt of the letter above recorded, I have taken no notice of the circumſtances mentioned in that letter, which would have given additional weight to the motives and argument on which the plan is founded; in particular I obſerve, that the Miniſters themſelves have at length departed from their pretenſions, founded on the 11th Article of the Treaty, and made an offer of ſundry aſſignments of lands ſituated in the neighbourhood of Broach, as a jaghire for the ſubſiſtence of Ragonaut Row, and for all the other proviſions intended for him by that article. This relaxation from their original demands, affords an additional reaſon to hope that they will be induced to acquieſce in a ſimilar propoſal which I conſider as the groundwork of the accommodation propoſed in this plan.

On the 12th of Auguſt the Board addreſſed two letters to the Preſident and Council of Bombay, containing full and deciſive inſtructions upon the ſeveral points remaining in diſpute between that Preſidency and the Marattas, and expreſsly referred to this Board for its deciſion upon them. To thoſe letters no anſwer has yet been returned, but we have a moral certainty that they have failed in their effect, ſince Ragonath Row ſtill continues at Bombay, and the letters from Poonah conſiſt of the unvaried repetitions of the ſame complaints which were made by the Miniſters before the diſpatch of thoſe inſtructions.

In a letter from the Preſident and Council of Bombay, dated the 22d Auguſt, this Board was adviſed of Mr. Moſtyn's having been ſent for by the Miniſters to Poorunder on the occaſion of ſome extraordinary buſineſs; and by private letters received at the ſame time, we heard of the return of Mr. Moſtyn to Bombay, although that Preſidency neither apprized us of the ſubject of his commiſſion, nor even of his arrival, which we noticed in our reply to their letter. Three months are ſince elapſed, and if we then thought that we had cauſe to complain of the ſilence of that Preſidency, much more reaſon have we now to regret that they have even to this time withheld from us both the knowledge of the commiſſion entruſted to Mr. Moſtyn, and every other communication which could enable us to judge of the ſtate of their tranſactions with the Maratta Government, and of the progreſs which they had made in accommodating the differences which had ariſen in the execution of the treaty. In this long interval new ſources of uneaſineſs have ariſen, in the extraordinary countenance afforded by the Miniſters to the Chevalier St. Lubin and Mr. Belts, the former an Agent of the Crown of France, the latter a declared repreſentative of the Houſe of Auſtria. Theſe have been both received with marks of diſtinction, which have been never ſhewn to our Reſident, and have been admitted to ſecret conferences; the former has even obtained the dangerous grant of a port of trade in the neighbourhood of Bombay; and if credit may be given to univerſal report, written engagements have been interchanged between him and the Miniſters, the object of which, whatever it be, muſt if attained prove deſtructive to the trade of the Engliſh Eaſt India Company, and to the Britiſh influence in India.

Appendix. No. 24.

To remain longer in this ſtate of ſupineneſs and indeciſion, becauſe we have not been furniſhed with authentic and regular advices from the Preſidency of Bombay, might draw upon us the reproach of ſacrificing to a mere punctilio of office the care of thoſe intereſts which have been in an eſpecial manner, and under the moſt binding ſanctions, committed to our immediate truſt, the maintenance of the peace and policy of the Company's ſettlements in India. I have therefore, as it is my eſſential duty, drawn up ſuch a plan as appeared to me, after a very full conſideration of every ſubject relating to it, moſt likely to conciliate the minds of all parties in the differences which have hitherto retarded the execution of the treaty, and to replace the Preſidency of Bombay on a footing of peace and ſecurity, which were the profeſſed motives of the firſt interference of this Government, and the profeſſed end of the treaty itſelf.

But before I mention the expedients which I mean to propoſe, I requeſt the Board to give their patient attention to the following conſiderations, which have a leading connection with them.

The aſylum granted to Ragonath Row in Bombay, has undoubtedly furniſhed the Miniſters with an oſtenſible argument to impute to that Preſidency as the aggreſſor, all the differences which have enſued ſince the execution of the treaty. Whether the treaty would have been better obſerved on their part, if that pretext had not been given, or whether the reſidence of Ragonath Row, at Bombay, and the poſſibility of a revival of his pretenſions have not proved a check upon the deſigns which they might otherwiſe have entertained againſt the Company, are queſtions on which it is not neceſſary to the ſubject immediately before us to determine, though not altogether foreign from it. An impartial ſpectator might infer from the concurrence of all that has lately paſſed, an exceptionable deſign in each party; in the one, to continue its ſupport of Ragonaut Row, in violation of the treaty by which it is bound to withhold it; in the other, to deſtroy him, in violation of the ſame treaty, and by the very means which it has ſupplied.

I ſhall conſider the preſent conteſts as originating entirely from theſe combined ſources, and depending on them ſolely for their continuance.

The 11th Article of the Treaty ſtipulates, that "The "Miniſters ſhall eſtabliſh an houſehold for Ragonaut "Row, conſiſting of one thouſand horſe and ſome foot, "who are to be paid and relieved at the pleaſure of "Government, but to obey all legal orders given them "by Ragonaut Row; alſo one hundred domeſtics, to be "choſen by Ragonaut Row, and paid by Government; "and that they ſhall cauſe to be paid to Ragonaut Row, "to defray his other expences, three lacks of rupees "per annum, by equal monthly payments, upon con"dition that he reſide at Cooper Gunge, on the banks of "the Gunja Gadawery."

This conceſſion was a cheap and eaſy ſacrifice on our part, and liable to no objection if the conſent of Ragonath Row could have been obtained for its accompliſhment, without which experience has ſhewn it to be impracticable. Whether his fears were real or affected, it was at leaſt a natural effect of his ſituation, that he ſhould feel

feel a ſtrong reluctance to deſcend at once to a private and dependant ſtation, and to ſubject himſelf to the reſtraint of a fixed reſidence in the heart of the dominions of which he had lately poſſeſſed the abſolute rule, at the diſcretion of his enemies for ſubſiſtence, and at their mercy for his life, eſpecially when he found the Preſidency of Bombay diſpoſed to abet and ſupport him in the refuſal. In candor it muſt be added, that the conduct of the Preſident and Council of Bombay, if not warranted by the principles of that conformity, which they primarily owed, both in policy and in duty to the ruling power of that conſtitution of which they were a part, was ſuch as might have been obviouſly expected from a body of men circumſtanced and affected as they were; their paſſions were enliſted in the cauſe of Ragoba; it was in effect their own. The treaty, which had been recently made with his opponents, was an injury to the faith which they had pledged to a treaty executed by them; by engaging his reliance on their protection, they were in ſome meaſure the authors of the deſperate ſtate to which he was reduced by the treaty of Poorunder; every ſentiment of juſtice, humanity, and pride, oppoſed their abandoning him to his fate; under ſuch an influence the moſt rigid integrity might have erred in a caſe, in which it is probable, that men of leſs virtue, but of more caution, would have obſerved a more regular conduct.

We have no means of compelling the Preſident and Council of Bombay to deſiſt from protecting Ragonaut Row, but by a total ſuſpenſion of their authority, which is an extremity that I am perſuaded no member of this Board will venture to propoſe without much ſtronger and ſurer grounds to warrant it; the Miniſters themſelves have relaxed from their claim to Ragoba's reſidence at Cooper Gong, and have conſented to his retiring to Calpee or Benares; but to this propoſition he has objected the perſonal dangers to which it would ſubject him in a journey by land, and his religious ſcruples which would be affected by a voyage by ſea. The firſt is a ſolid objection, which can only be removed by allowing him a a ſtrong military eſcort, which we cannot afford; for the laſt, we have propoſed an expedient, of which I confeſs I at the time entertained doubts, and on enquiry made ſince, I find it to be impracticable—other means, therefore, muſt be tried.

By the letter of the treaty Ragonaut Row is entitled to the monthly ſum of 25,000 rupees for his ſubſiſtence, to a guard of 1,000 horſe and ſome foot, and to an eſtabliſhment of 100 domeſtics. By the ſpirit of the treaty, he is entitled to perſonal ſafety and freedom, or all the other proviſions are uſeleſs and deluſory. The Court of Directors, in the 24th paragraph of their commands of the 5th February 1777, have declared this to be one of two ſpecial and indiſpenſable conditions of their acquieſcence in the treaty concluded by Colonel Upton, that "Proviſion be made for the perſonal ſafety "and maintenance of Ragoba."

I ſee no way by which theſe points can be completely ſecured but by obtaining the grant of a jaghire, equal in its real amount to all the ſtipulations made for Ragoba. This may be reaſonably fixed at ten lacks of nett revenue. The land allotted to him ſhould be ſituated at leaſt ſo near to Bombay, as to place him within the effectual reach of the forces of that Preſidency for his protection. The diſtrict of Baſſein poſſeſſes theſe requiſites, and is perhaps the moſt eligible and the only unexceptionable reſidence that we could chuſe for him. Though the treaty gives us no right to demand ſuch a conceſſion, yet the inſecure footing on which the Miniſters have placed the treaty itſelf, by their late connection with the Chevalier St. Lubin, affords a plea even for the demand, if the confirmation of the treaty and our own ſecurity cannot be effected by any other means.

The eſſential object of the treaty is peace. This was not expreſſed in it ſimply as a condition, but as the ſubſtance of it, and the other conditions follow not as the ends of the treaty, but as the means by which it was to be accompliſhed. To prove this, I ſhall ſubjoin the following extract of the treaty:—

"Whereas differences having ariſen amongſt the "Chiefs of the Maratta State, and the Government of "Bombay having taken a part therein, by ſending forces "into the Maratta dominions, which the Honourable "Governor General and Council of Fort William diſ-"approve, and being deſirous of conciliating theſe "differences, have determined accordingly to enter "into ſuch meaſures as may moſt effectually contribute "to ſo deſirable an end; they have for this purpoſe, "therefore, authorized, deputed, and given full powers "unto Lieutenant Colonel John Upton, in the ſervice of "the Honourable the Eaſt India Company, to conclude a "peace between the Government of Bombay and the "Maratta State; and Colonel Upton having accordingly "arrived at Poorunder, has concluded a ſolid and firm "peace on the part of the Engliſh Company, with the "Miniſters Succeram Pundit and Bellajee Pundit, on the "part of the Peiſhwa Maderow Row Pundit Purdhan, "and all the Maratta Chiefs; and the following are "the articles of convention which they have engaged "in:

Article 1ſt.

"Peace ſhall be eſtabliſhed and take place from this "day between the Honourable the Engliſh Eaſt India "Company in general, and the Government of Bombay "in particular, and Row Pundit Purdhan, and his Mi-"niſters Succeram Pundit and Bellajee Pundit, on the "part of all the Marattas; and the following articles "are to be obſerved inviolably by both parties."

Not one of the means preſcribed have yet taken effect. Even the ſubſtantial part of the treaty has been fruſtrated by one party continuing their protection to Ragoba, and by the other forming hoſtile connections and engagements with an Agent of France. Neither of theſe inſtances are contrary to the letter of the treaty; but the ſpirit of it is infringed by both. The 10th and 12th Articles of the treaty expreſs that the Engliſh ſhall not aſſiſt Ragonaut Row. They have not aſſiſted Ragonaut Row, but they have protected him; and while they continue to protect him, the Miniſters will argue that his pretenſions are kept alive, and that the ſparks of war, though ſuppreſſed, are thus preſerved in a ſtate from which they may break out into a new flame.

In like manner the 1ſt Article, by which both parties ſolemnly declare, that "Peace ſhall be eſtabliſhed and "take place" between them, is virtually though not literally infringed by the engagements formed between the Miniſters and the natural enemies of this ſtate. It is true there is no ſpecific obligation on the Miniſters to abſtain from an intercourſe with the Chevalier St. Lubin, neither are we ſpecifically bound to withhold our protection from Ragoba; but the juſt fear of what each may do in the hands of either party, muſt infallibly produce diſtruſt, and the precautions which apparent danger dictates to common prudence.

That I may not have drawn too forcible a concluſion from the late tranſactions between the Miniſters and the Chevalier St. Lubin, I beg leave to call the recollection of the Board to a paper delivered to them by Mr. Elliot on the 1ſt October laſt. From a compariſon of the intelligence contained in that paper, and brought immediately from Europe, with the information obtained by Mr. Moſtyn and Mr. Lewis at Poonah, and their exact agreement in the moſt eſſential points, I think it appears proved beyond a doubt, that the French Agent there is entruſted with a plan which has for its object the ſubverſion of the Britiſh influence in India; we are in actual treaty of friendſhip with the ruling adminiſtration of the Maratta State, and our Treaty was formed at a time when they were engaged in a war with the Company, from which they were releaſed by the terms which we granted them, and in the proſecution of which, had it continued, they muſt have fallen. The Treaty was concluded by an officer of rank, deputed immediately from this Government, and the attention of every Prince and Chief in Hindoſtan was turned upon this firſt negociation of the Britiſh power, under the direction of a general Government. It is diſgraceful to us that the Government at Poonah ſhould in any ſituation pay more attention, and ſhew more countenance to an Agent of the natural and known enemy of our country, than to ours. But when we are informed that the French Miniſtry have formed the plan of an offenſive alliance with the Maratta State, when we are informed that an Agent of the French Miniſtry has been received at Poonah, has been treated with the greateſt confidence and marks of diſtinction, while our own is diſregarded; that he has received from them the grant of a port of trade within 20 miles of Bombay itſelf, has exchanged mutual engagements with them, of which his part is to ſupply them with arms, and a military force; and even the common news-papers relate theſe tranſactions as tranſactions of univerſal notoriety; what concluſions are we, who are immediately concerned in them, to form from them? are we to regard them as the allowable machinations of political intrigue, and quietly to permit them to operate to their laſt effect, if the Marattas commit no overt act of hoſtility, or direct breach of the treaty? or ſhall we conſider the preparatives to a war as declaratory of an intended breach of treaty, and take ſuch meaſures as the neceſſity of ſuch a ſituation demands, for enſuring and confirming the treaty, and giving it that vigour which it yet confeſſedly wants, or if that ſhould prove impracticable, even to prevent the deſigns of our enemies, by openly counteracting and oppoſing them?

From any thing which I have ſaid in the preceding obſervations, I hope it will not be inferred, that I impute to the Preſidency of Bombay the reproach of having been the aggreſſor, by the protection granted to Ragoba.—This is by no means the caſe. I conſider that protection only as one of two co-relative acts, each (as I have already obſerved) a virtual infraction of the treaty. The protection of Ragoba may admit of that conſtruction, becauſe it was a continuation of the connection which had formerly given birth to the war, and which it was the object of the treaty to diſſolve. But the pertinacy of the Miniſters in requiring that he ſhould be delivered into their hands, was equally oppoſite to the ſpirit of the treaty; and if it did not render that local protection neceſſary, it at leaſt laid an obligation on the Preſidency of Bombay, to inſiſt on ſome proviſion being made for the perſonal ſafety of Ragoba; to conſider the peace as ſuſpended while that point remained undecided, and even the treaty itſelf as broken by the refuſal of the Miniſters to agree to ſo reaſonable a requiſition.

Here I cannot avoid making one general obſervation, which may be applied equally to this and to every other tranſaction which has paſſed between the Miniſters and the Preſidency of Bombay, which, if it does not prove the ſuperior integrity of the latter, will at leaſt ſhew the diſadvantages under which they labour in their concerns with the former. Whatever has been done by the Preſidency of Bombay, and charged to them as contrary to good faith, has been done openly and avowedly. The Miniſters on the contrary, have ſtudiouſly avoided every overt act, working only in covert and by fraud, but ſo thinly veiled, that the whole world has ſeen through the diſguiſe; and even the unintereſted part of it poſſeſſes the ſame knowledge of the circumſtances, and has drawn the the ſame concluſions from them.

Commiſſioners were ſent to make over the ceded lands, with private orders contrary to thoſe which were pretended to have been given. Secret engagements are formed by the Miniſters with a French Agent, which they pretend to be no more than the common intercourſe of civility, and to have no other object than the encouragement of commerce. The unconditional requeſt of the perſon of Ragoba, conſidered with all the circumſtances of his natural influence and pretenſions; their own want of conſtitutional power; the former engagements contracted between him and the Engliſh, which ſtill ſubſiſt ſo far as they reſpected his life, and the ſtipulations made for him in the treaty, are reconcileable to no other principle; and the refuſal to commit to writing the propoſitions laſt made to Mr. Moſtyn at Poorunder, is equal to a direct avowal of it.

On the ſame unequal footing the general intereſts of the Company appear to ſtand with reſpect to the future duration of the peace concluded with the Marattas; they are bound by no ties but their own intereſt and convenience: even the lives of the two only perſons who were the inſtrumental parties in it, one of them an aged man, and worn out by infirmities, will totally deſtroy its obligation on the Maratta State and nation; on the Company and on the Britiſh nation it is binding for ever. We are morally certain, that the Miniſters have already entered on preparations for breaking it, when they can break it with ſafety; and if we ſuffer them to proſecute their deſigns unmoleſted till they are ripe for execution, the treaty which was intended for peace and permanent ſecurity, will become the inſtrument of war, treachery, and of danger to the exiſtence of the intereſt of the Britiſh nation in India.

By what preciſe lines the faith of a treaty yet unaccompliſhed, and exiſting only on paper, is bounded, I pretend not to determine; but while we on our parts ſteadily reſolve to confirm it, while we practiſe no deception, nor cover remote acts of hoſtility by falſe profeſſions, I preſume that no breach of faith can be imputed to us if we endeavour to correct its defects, and to guard the general intereſts committed to our charge even by more ample proviſions, though war ſhould prove the conſequence of the rejection of our demands, and of the implied or even declared reſolution to aſſert them.

I ſtate the extremity of what may happen, but with little apprehenſion of ſuch a conſequence; neither are the men with whom we are to deal in a ſituation to chuſe a revival of the war, nor is it my intention to propoſe any meaſures that are likely to produce ſuch violent conſequences.

If the foregoing arguments are well founded, they will juſtify the additional motive, on which I would recommend that a requiſition be made of Baſſein for the jaghire of Ragonaut Row. I have already obſerved its contiguity to Bombay will prove a ſecurity to him againſt any attempts which may be made to injure his perſon; the ſame advantage will render it a preſent check againſt any dangers which the Miniſters have projected againſt the Preſidency of Bombay; and if they ſhould ever attempt to carry them into execution, it will afford us the ready poſſeſſion of a country extending to the defiles, which lie, as I underſtand, within a very ſhort diſtance from their capital, and lead directly to it; and of an ally whoſe natural intereſt will always enſure him partizans, with ſuch a ſupport as that of the Engliſh to encourage their declaration in his favour.

But though the grant of Baſſein without a further extenſion of it to Ragonaut Row would be an adequate proviſion for his ſafety, it would be by no means ſufficient to obviate the dangers which the Preſidency of Bombay would have cauſe to apprehend on the event of his death, if at the ſame time that we loſt the advantage of his influence we were to be deprived alſo of Baſſein.

For this reaſon, I ſhould propoſe, that the reverſion of Baſſein to the Company be included in the demand. In ſupport of this propoſal, it will be neceſſary to recapitulate many of the arguments which have been already uſed in the courſe of this Minute; but which particularly applying to this ſubject, require for that reaſon to be brought together in one point of view. I have already ſtated the diſadvantages under which the Company labour, from the defective terms of the treaty of Poorunder, and the partial manner in which the Miniſters have thought proper to explain it; that the treaty ſtill remains remains unexecuted after a period of two years, is an undoubted fact; and that our own safety requires a correction of it, is I think as indisputable; the present Chiefs of the Maratta Government, though bound by a treaty to the Company, have attached themselves to the only power from which we can apprehend danger to our possessions in India: the first of these facts affords us more than a plea for doing that which the last renders highly necessary; I mean to provide some effectual means, which may prevent the ill consequences of the combination, which we have reason to believe is either forming or already formed between our allies, the Marattas, and the French. The Company have in their general letters written for a long course of years past, repeatedly expressed their desire to obtain possession of Bassein; and in none so strongly as in their letter of the 5th February last, which was written with the full knowledge of the treaty, and all its obligations before them. Mr. Tayler's letter to this Board on the 9th October 1775, proves the possession of this Country to be not only directly necessary for the safety of Bombay, but equally so to the security of our naval strength in India: we are now to treat with a state, which I am authorized to say is ill inclined to us, and only waits for a favourable opportunity to unite itself with that nation whose object is equally with theirs our overthrow; we are at the same time to treat with a state not in a condition to refuse its acquiescence to our proposals, whatever it may be when supported by an European alliance. The Marattas have not performed any one of the terms stipulated in the treaty; the amount of the expences incurred in the prosecution of the war remains yet unpaid; the country of three lacks is not yet ceded; no provision is yet made for the support of Ragonaut Row; in a word, the same differences subsist between us as prevailed whilst both parties were in actual arms against each other, nor has the treaty yet produced any other effect, than totally to disarm the one, and to leave the other in possession of almost every advantage which it could have required had the war ended in a complete victory on their side, instead of a peace formed on terms of a professed equality. In this situation the honour, interest, and safety, of the Company require that we should possess in our own hands some pledge, both for the faithful observance of the treaty, if it is to stand confirmed, and for our future security, against the designs which may be practised under cover of it: the possession of Bassein offers us the only prospect of such a security; no obligation precludes us from demanding it, nor can any blame be justly imputed to us, if, as the superior power, we prescribe the terms, were they even more unequal than these are, on which we are willing to release both parties from that dangerous point on which they have fluctuated between war and peace, during a long interval of two years, and are likely to continue there unless one side assumes the right of decision.

I know not whether I ought to apologize for the length to which I have been drawn in the discussion of the preceding points, but they were both too delicate and important to be slightly treated; the remaining subjects will require a very short explanation.

The acceptance of Jamboseer in lieu of the payment of twelve lacks of rupees, due by the 6th Article of the Treaty, was in my opinion improper, though perhaps considered by the Presidency of Bombay as a concession of necessity, and a better security for the performance of that article than the faith of the Ministers on which it before depended. It is a direct breach of the treaty on the part of the Ministers, and ought to have been treated as such by a formal protest against it when they failed in their first payment of the six lacks due on the 1st September 1776; the second payment will be due by treaty on the 1st of March next: both ought to be demanded, and Jamboseer restored.

We have already given our opinion very decidedly, both to the Ministers and to the Presidency of Bombay, upon the differences concerning the mode of rating the value of the ceded lands, and upon the cessions formerly made by Futty Sing Guicawar: I see no cause to alter it.

I now proceed to lay the following plan before the Board:

1st. That a demand be made of the perpetual grant of the Fort and district of Bassein to the East India Company, in trust for Ragonaut Row during his life-time, and of such assignments as together with the revenue of Bassein shall make up the sum of lacks of rupees, to be paid in equal monthly payments to Ragonaut Row, in lieu of all the provisions contained in the 11th Article of the Treaty of Poorunder; that the assigned lands shall remain in the immediate charge of Aumils appointed on the part of the Ministers, with an Agent appointed on the part of Ragonaut Row, to receive the collections from them; that on the death of Ragonaut Row, the said assignments shall cease, and the Pergunnahs of Ahmood, Desborah, and Hansood, shall be restored to the Marattas, and Bassein remain the entire property of the Company in their stead, and be considered as a full accomplishment of the 5th Article of the Treaty.

2d. That the Governor General and Council shall engage to guarantee the due payment of the sum of lacks of rupees as aforesaid, annually, to Ragonaut Row, and the safety of his person, against all attempts which may be made against it, contrary to the treaty of Poorunder; and shall engage to join the Maratta State against Ragonaut Row, if he shall at any time either openly assert his late pretentions against the Ministers, or attempt by intrigues to disturb the tranquillity of the present Maratta Government.

3d. That Ragonaut Row shall quit Bombay and reside in Bassein.

4th. That if Ragonaut Row shall refuse to accept these Conditions, the Ministers shall agree to make over to the East India Company for ever the fort and district of Bassein, and to put them in immediate possession of the same, on condition that the President and Council of Bombay shall compel Ragonaut Row to withdraw himself from their protection, and from all the territories of the Company; the Governor General and Council becoming the pledge for their performance of this stipulation; and that the Governor General and Council shall at the same time yield up their rights, obtained under the 5th Article of the Treaty, to a country of three lacks of rupees, adjoining to Broach.

5th. That a remonstrance be made to the Ministers against the countenance afforded by them to the Chevaliers St. Lubin, against the engagements which we understand have been formed with him, and against the grant of the Port of Choul, made as we understand to him, or to the French nation through him; that though we do not insist on any positive right to demand his dismission, nor the exclusion of the French from the port of Choul, yet as we have a right to require a knowledge of the intentions of the Ministers in regard to these points, so far as they respect the Treaty of Peace subsisting between the Maratta State and the British Government in India, a clear and satisfactory explanation be demanded of their intentions, and that a declaration be made to them, that we shall take such measures accordingly as prudence shall dictate for the future safety of the Company's interests and possessions committed to our charge.

6th. That a demand be made for the immediate payment of the balance of the first payment of six lacks of rupees which was due on the 1st September 1776, and for the payment of the remaining six lacks on the 1st of March next; and that the Pergunnah of Jamboseer be thereupon restored to the Ministers, and that if the Ministers shall not comply with this demand, a declaration be made to them in form, that it will be deemed an infraction of the treaty.

7th. That although we have a clear and uncontrovertible right by the 5th Article of the Treaty to a country of three complete lacks of rupees, according to the plain meaning of the word complete in our language, and to the grammatical meaning of the word Caumil in the Arabic tongue from which it is derived; and although we conſider it as an unworthy attempt in the Miniſters to avail themſelves of a technical diſtinction, in oppoſition to the plain and evident intention of the treaty; it being a ſelf-apparent abſurdity to ſuppoſe that we could agree to receive a deſert as a territory yielding three lacks of revenue, becauſe it might be ſo rated in the books to which we have no acceſs: yet from the deſire to remove every obſtacle to the confirmation of the peace between us, it be declared to the Miniſters that we will accept the propoſed ceſſions of the Pergunnahs of Ahmood, Deſhorah, and Hanſood, as a full compenſation for the 5th Article of the Treaty, although their real value, as eſtimated by the Preſident and Council of Bombay, and not diſputed by the Miniſters, is only 2,10,000 rupees, excluſive of the tribute of 30,000 rupees before annexed to Broach, and appertaining to the Company independantly of the treaty; but that if Ragonaut Row ſhall refuſe to accede to the terms propoſed for him, and the Miniſters ſhall in that caſe conſent to the exchange propoſed in the 4th Article, theſe diſtricts ſhall in ſuch caſe be reſtored to the Miniſters as provided in the 7th Article.

8th. That the Preſident and Council of Bombay ſhall retain poſſeſſion of the Pergunnahs of Chickly and Veriow, and of the village of Batta, and the other three villages ſituated in Churcaſſy which were ceded to the Company by Futty Sing Guicawar.

9th. That a letter be written to the Peiſhwa, including the above propoſitions, with ſuch corrections as they ſhall have received, if they ſhall be approved by the Board; that his anſwers be required without condition or reſervation to each article; and that it be declared to him, that this Government will take its final reſolution, either to abide by the treaty as it ſhall ſtand confirmed by his anſwers, or to conſider it as annulled or invalidated by them.

10th. That copies of theſe propoſitions be alſo ſent to the Preſident and Council of Bombay, with directions to communicate the firſt, ſecond, and third to Ragoba, to require his declaration whether he will aſſent to them and to tranſmit the ſame to us; to demand immediate payment of the balance of the firſt payment of the ſix lacks of rupees which was due on the 1ſt September 1776, and payment of the remaining ſix lacks, which will become due on the firſt of March next; to reſtore the Pergunnah of Jambooſeer, if the Miniſters ſhall comply with this demand, and to proteſt againſt them for the breach of treaty, if they ſhall refuſe or neglect to comply with it: to receive the Pergunnahs of Ahmood, Deſhora, and Hanſood, as a full compenſation for the 5th Article of the Treaty, in caſe the Miniſters and Ragonaut Row ſhall reſpectively agree to the propoſitions now offered to them; to retain poſſeſſion of the Pergunnahs of Chickly and Veriow, and the village of Batta; and the other three villages ſituated in Churcaſſy which were ceded to them by Futty Sing Guicawar; to receive poſſeſſion of the fort and diſtrict of Baſſein in truſt for Ragonaut Row, if the Miniſters and Ragonaut Row ſhall reſpectively agree to theſe propoſitions; and in caſe of his refuſal, and of the conſent of the Miniſters, in that caſe to relinquiſh the poſſeſſion of the fort and diſtrict of Baſſein to the Company, to receive poſſeſſion of them for the behalf of the Company, reſtoring the Pergunnahs of Ahmood, Deſhora, and Hanſood, to the Marattas, and compelling Ragonant Row to withdraw himſelf from their protection, and from all the territories of the Company; that they be expreſsly forbidden to negociate on any of theſe points, or further to concern themſelves in them than we have directed, leaving entirely to this Government to take its final meaſures, if the Miniſters ſhall reject the terms which we offered them.

11th. That on the arrival of General Stibbert the Board do proceed to deliberate with him on the beſt and ſpeedieſt means of furniſhing the Preſident and Council of Bombay with a military force, with as little real diminution as poſſible of our own eſtabliſhment, for the purpoſes of enabling that Preſidency to co-operate with this in any general meaſures, which it ſhall be judged adviſable to adopt on the receipt of the ultimate determination of the Miniſters of Poonah, or to make the beſt advantage of any change of Government in Poonah, in caſe of the death or removal of Saccaram Pundit and Ballajee Pundit from the Adminiſtration; but above all to reſiſt any attempts which the French may make to the prejudice of our intereſts on that ſide of India.

(Signed) Warren Haſtings.

P. S. The revenue of Baſſein is eſtimated by Mr. Tayler, in his letter recorded on our Conſultations of the 9th October 1775, at four lacks. We are entitled by the 5th Article of the Treaty, to a country adjoining to Broach, which ſhall produce a revenue of three lacks. Hence it appears, that by the propoſed accommodation, the Company will be immediate loſers of 90,000 rupees in the annual amount of the ceded lands, and eventual gainers of an annual revenue of one lack in the exchange of the lands propoſed to be ceded to us for Baſſein, on the death of Ragonaut Row.

(Signed) Warren Haſtings.

The receipt of this letter in Bengal, is acknowledged by the general letter from thence dated 21ſt November 1771.

Extract of the Company's General Letter to Bengal, dated the 5th February 1777.

Par. 20. By the 48th paragraph of our letter, dated 15th December 1775, you were informed of our intention, under every circumſtance, to keep all territories and poſſeſſions ceded to the Company by Ragoba; and you were directed forthwith to adopt ſuch meaſures as might be neceſſary for their preſervation and defence. Our letter could not be before you at the time of concluding the Treaty of Poonah; but we are extremely concerned to find by the terms of that treaty that ſo great a ſacrifice has been improvidently made, and eſpecially that the important ceſſion of Baſſein to the Company by Ragoba, has been rendered of no effect.

21. In the Fourth Article of your inſtructions to Colonel Upton, you declare yourſelves determined on no account to relinquiſh the poſſeſſion of Salſette and Baſſein; and although it happened that Baſſein was not then in our actual poſſeſſion, we entirely agree with Mr. Francis, that ſuch circumſtance was not in itſelf material, much leſs was it of conſequence ſufficient to warrant a deviation from your former inſtructions to Colonel Upton. But as you muſt have known that it was not poſſible at the time of concluding the treaty with Ragoba for the Country Powers to have been apprized of your authority to controul our other Preſidencies in concluding treaties, or in making peace and war; or that our Governors and Councils reſpectively were reſtrained from acting independantly in thoſe caſes; and as that treaty had been formally entered into by an Agent from Bombay, and ſolemnly ratified by the Governor and Council, under the ſeal of the Company, we cannot but diſapprove of your mode of interference, by ſending an Ambaſſador directly to Poonah, without firſt conſulting the Governor and Council of Bombay; and of your determination to diſavow and invalidate the treaty concluded by them; and alſo of your taking ſuch further ſteps as muſt degrade them in the eyes of the natives, and perhaps make it impoſſible for them hereafter to conduct our affairs on the Malabar Coaſt with honour to themſelves or advantage to the Company.

22. If your direct interference in ſending Colonel Upton to Poonah was improper, as a meaſure deeply affecting the honour of our Preſident and Council of Bombay, and and in them the honour of the Company, we deem it alſo utterly impolitic reſpecting the enemy; for it ſeems very evident, that you treated with the Marattas at great diſadvantage, whilſt the Colonel was at Poonah; as no other circumſtance but that of having him and his party entirely in their power, could have encouraged them to treat you with ſo much diſregard, and your propoſals with a degree of contempt which merited the ſevereſt chaſtiſement.

23. In juſtice to Colonel Upton, we muſt however obſerve, that notwithſtanding his critical ſituation as to perſonal ſafety, his conduct ſhewed the greateſt intrepidity: and when he thought the negociation entirely broken off, though he knew his life was at their mercy, he faithfully informed you, that with a very ſmall force you might ſoon command peace on your own terms, as the Chiefs of the country were at a loſs which ſide to take, until they knew what meaſures would be finally purſued by the Engliſh; and it is with pleaſure we direct you to ſignify to Colonel Upton, our entire approbation of the firmneſs and zeal manifeſted by him on that occaſion.

24. As your letter to Ragoba of the 7th of March 1775, was to be deſtroyed by the Chief and Council at Surat in caſe peace ſhould have been concluded; and we hope was accordingly deſtroyed, we feel the leſs anxiety at your abſolute and unreſerved declarations made in that letter, which were certainly conſidered by yourſelves equally binding as any treaty whatever, and muſt have been ſo underſtood by Ragoba if the letter had come to hand. It was likewiſe particularly fortunate that you were able to prevent the delivery of letters written to the Nizam and Maratta Chiefs; for though the reſtoration of peace is at all times a deſirable object, we ſhould be much concerned if ſuch event had been attended with another breach of faith on the part of the Company, which muſt have happened if your letter had been delivered to Ragoba, or if your inſtability had been formally expoſed to the Country Powers, by their receiving your invitations to take up arms in his favour; becauſe preparations might have been made at your requiſition, for which no doubt you would have been accountable, and by the Treaty of Poonah you would have been obliged to revoke thoſe requiſitions, and to oppoſe meaſures juſt before moſt earneſtly recommended by yourſelves. Hoping however that all theſe inconveniencies have been obviated, and confiding in your attention to deduce every poſſible benefit from the terms of the treaty, and particularly to procure payment of the ſums ſtipulated for the charges of the war, and to take care that proviſion be made for the perſonal ſafety and maintenance of Ragoba, we acquieſce in the ſaid treaty, provided Salſette and its dependencies be not reſtored; though we are convinced that Baſſein, which is ſo great an object with us, might have been obtained, if a good underſtanding had ſubſiſted between you and our Council at Bombay; eſpecially if you had authorized them to treat either with Ragoba or with the Miniſters at Poonah, reſerving the final approval and ratification of the treaty to yourſelves, in the manner directed by you in your letter to Bombay of 7th March 1775. This would have been the preciſe line we wiſh to have drawn; and if on any future occaſion you ſhall think it neceſſary to exerciſe the powers veſted in you by Parliament relative to peace and war, we direct that you purſue the method adopted when you thought Colonel Upton's negociations at an end, and that you contribute all in your power to preſerve to our reſpective Governors and Councils that conſequence which may enable them on all occaſions to promote the intereſt of the Company.

25. You cannot but obſerve, that we have hitherto ſuppoſed the affairs of Ragoba are rendered deſperate, and that the Miniſters at Poonah maintain their ground, and conſtitute at preſent the Maratta Government; we are nevertheleſs of opinion, that an alliance originally with Ragoba would have been more for the honour and advantage of the Company, and more likely to be laſting, than that concluded at Poonah. His pretenſions to the ſupreme authority, either in his own right, or as guardian to the infant Peiſhwa, appear to us better founded than thoſe of his competitors; and therefore if the conditions of the Treaty of Poonah have not been ſtrictly fulfilled on the part of the Marattas, and if from any circumſtances you ſhall deem it expedient, we ſhall have no objection to an alliance with Ragoba, on the terms agreed upon between him and the Governor and Council of Bombay.

APPENDIX, No. 25.

Extract of Bengal Secret Conſultations, 29th January 1778.

PRESENT,

The Honourable Warren Haſtings, Governor General, Preſident,

Richard Barwell, Philip Francis, Edward Wheler, } Eſquires.

RECEIVED the following letter from Bombay:

Gentlemen,

We have the honour to incloſe duplicates of our letters, dated the 2d and 7th inſtant.

Since then we have received a letter from Mr. William Lewis, Mr. Moſtyn's ſubſtitute at Poonah, which being of a very important nature, we loſe not a moment in tranſmitting you a copy thereof, and of our reſolutions in conſequence.

We flatter ourſelves, that after a conſideration of all circumſtances, and of the neceſſity and urgency of the caſe, which would not admit of the ſmalleſt delay in our determination, you will approve of the encouragement we have agreed to give to the party formed in Ragoba's favour, and that we ſhall meet with your hearty concurrence and ſupport in the meaſures we may be obliged to purſue in conſequence.

You may be aſſured we ſhall proceed with the utmoſt caution and circumſpection, and upon the beſt grounds, and adviſe you, as ſoon as we poſſibly can, of what is likely to be the iſſue of this buſineſs.

In the mean time we have judged it expedient to requeſt the Gentlemen at Fort Saint George, to hold in readineſs a body of two hundred European infantry, half a company of artillery, and one battalion of ſepoys, to march to Anjengo upon the receipt of further advices from us.

It is a certain fact that Monſieur Du Paſcal de Sauty, charged with diſpatches from Monſieur St. Lubin for the French Miniſtry, found means to get a paſſage from Surat about the 20th of laſt month, on a dingy bound to Muſcat, from whence he might eaſily proceed to Europe, by the way of Grain and Aleppo; he was accompanied by the Secretary to the French Conſul at Surat.

We are with reſpect,

Gentlemen,

Your moſt obedient humble ſervant,

Bombay Caſtle, 12th December 1777. William Hornby, Council.

APPENDIX, No. 26.

Bombay Secret Conſultations, the 10th December 1777.

PRESENT,

The Honourable William Hornby, Eſquire, Preſident, and Governor,

The Worſh. John Camac, Eſquire,

William Aſhburner, Andr. Ramſay,

Mr. Moſtyn, indiſpoſed.

THE

THE Preſident lays before us a letter from Mr. William Lewis, at Poonah, relating that ſome overtures had been made to him on the part of Saccram Bappoo, Morabah Furneſe, Buchabah Pronder, and Tookajee Holcar, for the aſſiſtance of the Company to bring Ragoba to Poonah.

This letter having been conſidered with the attention the importance of the ſubject requires, the following circumſtances ſtrike us in the moſt forcible manner:

That if the four perſons above-mentioned join in making formal application to us, it may certainly with the utmoſt juſtice be conſidered as an application from the Maratta State, and treated accordingly, as Saccram Bappoo is the Duan or firſt officer in the Government, and the principal perſon with whom Colonel Upton concluded the late treaty in behalf of that ſtate, he being the Miniſter firſt named in the treaty; that Moraba Furneeſe and Buchabah Pronder, are alſo perſons of the firſt conſequence, and the higheſt hereditary officers; and Tookajee Holcar, a very principal Jadhidar, and one of the conſtituent parts of the Maratta Empire.

That it can no wiſe affect our alliance with that ſtate, whether Ragoba or Saccram Bappoo is the Duan.

It is an inconteſtable fact, that Nannah Furneeſe, the colleague with Saccram Bappoo in the adminiſtration, has been engaged in a negociation with Monſieur de St. Lubin; and that ſome treaty or agreement has been concluded between them, in conſequence of which, Monſieur Paſcal du Sauty has actually proceeded to Europe over land, charged with diſpatches from the latter for the French Miniſtry, who we cannot ſuppoſe, as obſerved by Mr. Lewis, will neglect ſo favourable an opportunity of getting a footing in the only part of India which is now open to them; and will doubtleſs make it their firſt object to ſecure a ſettlement and port in our neighbourhood.

If time is given for the French Miniſtry to take their meaſures, and to ſupply Nannah with a body of forces, we can expect nothing but a repetition of the ſcene of wars and troubles formerly acted on the coaſt of Coromandel, which will certainly be fatal to the influence of the Engliſh on this coaſt, and may end in our total ſubverſion.

The circumſtance of Mr. Bolts being now at Poonah, and the encouragement given him by Nannah Furneeſe, has alſo its due weight in our deliberations, as it may probably lead to the introduction and eſtabliſhment of a new and dangerous competitor to the Company's power and commerce in India.

We have now a fair opportunity offered to us of averting theſe great evils without any breach on our part, of the alliance with the Maratta State, though it is obſerved the repeated violations committed by the other party would juſtify any meaſure we might take; if this opportunity is not loſt, we ſhall have it in our power not only to accompliſh the Company's views on this ſide of India, in their fulleſt extent, and in the moſt honourable manner to them, by reſtoring Ragoba to his juſt rights, but alſo to eſtabliſh their intereſt ſo firmly in the Maratta Government, as to prevent the poſſibility of their forming connections with the French, or any other European nation, to the prejudice of the Honourable Company.

The Maratta Chiefs in general are much diſguſted with Nannah Furneeſe, and jealous of his ambitious views, which apparently tend to fixing himſelf at the head of that Government, and the whole body of the people much inclined in favour of Ragoba, from whence there is the greateſt reaſon to conclude he may be carried to Poonah with little or no oppoſition: the moment it appears he is ſupported by the Company, the preſence of His Majeſty's ſquadron, now daily expected, will not only add weight to our interference, but enable us to ſpare a large body of troops to join the forces of Saccaram, &c. to eſcort Ragoba to Poonah; we are alſo well aſſured of Hyder's favourable diſpoſition towards him, and his readineſs to afford his aſſiſtance, if called upon.

The premiſes therefore being duly conſidered, together with the Company's orders received by the York, which expreſs a ſtrong predilection in favour of Ragoba, and his pretenſions; the urgency of the caſe, which will admit of no delay; but above all, the imminent and abſolute neceſſity of ſome immediate meaſures being taken to prevent the French from getting a footing in the Maratta Country. Appendix No. 26.

It is unanimouſly reſolved, That it is our duty to make uſe of the opportunity thus thrown in our way, to avert the dangers, and ſecure the benefits above ſet forth.

It is therefore further unanimouſly reſolved, That in caſe Saccram Bappoo, Moraba Furneeſe, Buchebah Pronder, and Tookajee Holcar, will make application to us under their new Siccas and hand-writing for the aſſiſtance of the Company, we will inſtantly upon receipt of ſuch a letter, and after the neceſſary preliminaries are ſettled, join them in taking every meaſure in our power for the ſupport and benefit of Ragoba, and to carry him to Poonah, agreeable to their wiſhes.

Ordered, That Mr. Lewis be immediately adviſed of our reſolution, and with all poſſible caution and ſecrecy.

The Preſident acquaints us, that he has converſed with Mr. Moſtyn, who is too much indiſpoſed to meet us, on the ſubject of the letter from Mr. Lewis, and he has aſſured him that the utmoſt dependence may be had on Anunt Row's being fully authorized to make the overtures, and upon the ſincerity of the party in Ragoba's favour.

It is remarked that Mr. Lewis has not been explicit in mentioning the ſtation in which Saccram, &c. mean to place Ragoba, which he muſt be deſired to explain; as until the legitimacy of the young Peiſhwa can be clearly diſproved Ragoba can be entitled only to the Regency.

Mr. Moſtyn will proceed to Poonah to negociate this important buſineſs as ſoon as his health will poſſibly permit.

Ordered, That a copy of Mr. Lewis's letter, and of our reſolutions thereon, be immediately forwarded to the Governor General and Council, who we flatter ourſelves will do juſtice to our motives, and afford their approbation and ſupport to the ſtep we have taken, and to the meaſures we may further purſue.

Adjourned.

Sir,

The Preſident has laid before us your letter to him, dated the 5th inſtant.

We have given your letter the conſideration the importance of the ſubject requires; and have reſolved, that if Saccram Bappoo, Morabah Furneeſe, Buchabah Pronder, and Tookajee Holkar, will as a proof of their ſincerity make an application by letter, as propoſed by them, for the aſſiſtance of the Company to carry Ragoba to Poonah, we will inſtantly on the receipt of ſuch letter, under their own Siccas and own hand-writing, and after the neceſſary preliminaries are ſettled, take every meaſure in our power for his ſupport and benefit, and to carry him to Poonah, agreeable to their wiſhes.

You will communicate this reſolution to the party with all poſſible expedition and ſecrecy, and loſe not a moment in ſending us their anſwer.

Mr. Moſtyn will very ſhortly proceed to Poonah.

We are,

Bombay Caſtle, 10th December 1777.

Your loving friends,
William Hornby,
&c. Council.

Appendix. Nos. 27, 28, & 29.

Honourable Sir, and Gentlemen,

This is purpoſely to acquaint your Honour, &c. that Nannah on the 7th inſtant ſent for Mr. Bolts, made him a preſent, deſiring he would leave Poonah in a few days; and that he accordingly ſet off this morning with an intent, as I am informed, of proceeding directly to Bombay.

I am, reſpectfully,

Poonah, 9th December 1777. Honourable Sir, and Sirs, Your moſt obedient ſervant, W^m Lewis.

See Appx. 27.

Signed, the following letter to the Governor General and Council, and to the Preſident and Council, at Fort Saint George:

To John Whitehill, Eſquire, in charge of the Government and Council at Fort Saint George.

Gentlemen,

We addreſſed you on the 7th inſtant, to incloſe a packet for the Governor General and Council, and we now incloſe another, which we requeſt you will forward with the utmoſt care and diſpatch.

As the exigency of the Company's affairs under our management may very probably make it neceſſary for us to have an addition to our military force, we requeſt, Gentlemen, you will pleaſe to give orders for a body of two hundred European infantry, half a company of artillery, with their officers, and a battalion of ſepoys, to be held in readineſs for marching to Anjengo inſtantly on the receipt of further advices from us; we would recommend their being ordered to Palamcotta.

When we are at a greater certainty, we ſhall write more explicitly; but the matter is briefly this, we have had overtures made us from ſome of the moſt conſiderable Members of the Maratta Government, for the aſſiſtance of the Company to replace Ragoba at Poonah, which for ſeveral weighty reaſons we have thought it our duty to give encouragement to; we will adviſe you as ſoon as we poſſibly can, what is likely to be the iſſue of this buſineſs, and whether we ſhall actually want the force above mentioned; but we again requeſt, that it may be held in readineſs to march on a moment's warning. We have adviſed the Governor General and Council of this application.

We are, Gentlemen,

Bombay Caſtle, 12th December 1777. Your moſt obedient ſervants, William Hornby, &c. Council.

APPENDIX, Nos. 27, 28, and 29.

Extract of Bengal Secret Conſultations, 29th January 1778.

THE Governor General—The Minute which I delivered to be recorded at our laſt Conſultation is of courſe rendered of no conſequence; though I may regret the loſs of ſo much time as I have beſtowed upon it, yet I ſhall be much better pleaſed, if the plan which fortune has thrown into the hands of the Preſident and Council of Bombay, ſhall be attended with a better effect than one formed on defective materials, under the diſadvantage of ſo remote a ſituation. The uncertainty of the events which might take place before it could produce its effect, and the neceſſity of a peremptory deciſion, inſtead of a negociation from which this Government is immediately precluded; and which, under the circumſtances ſuppoſed at the time in which it was written, it could not with propriety entruſt to the Preſidency of Bombay, whoſe ſentiments differed very eſſentially from the principles on which it was to be conducted. The letter now before the Board adviſes us of the firſt ſuggeſtion of a plan, the execution of which may have taken place long before this. It may have been attended with immediate and deciſive ſucceſs; it may have ſucceeded immediately in the firſt object, which was to conduct Ragoba to Poonah, but may have entailed a long ſeries of conſequences, which will eventually involve this Government: at all events, much depends on the reſolutions of this Government. The acts of the gentlemen at Bombay will have no validity, nor will any confidence be placed in their engagements unleſs they are ratified by the controlling Power which is veſted in the Governor General and Council of Bengal. The ſubject itſelf therefore neceſſarily demands that our reſolutions upon it ſhould be immediate, and that they ſhould be deciſive: it is equally neceſſary for the information of the Court of Directors, who of courſe will form their meaſures on the line which we ſhall have previouſly laid down, or at leaſt on a principal attention to it, that the ſhip now under diſpatch ſhould convey to them the knowledge of our reſolutions; for this purpoſe, and to prevent the loſs of time in a looſe debate, I have formed all the points which appear to me neceſſary for our preſent deliberation and determination, into diſtinct queſtions; others perhaps may occur; in the mean time I ſhall now propoſe theſe to the Board.

1ſt Queſtion. Is it the opinion of the Board, that the the Preſident and Council of Bombay are warranted by the treaty of Poorunder, to join in a plan for conducting Ragonaut Row to Poonah, in the application of the ruling part of the adminiſtration of the Maratta State?

2d. Is it the opinion of the Board, that the Preſident and Council of Bombay are either bound, or warranted by the orders of the Court of Directors, to give their ſupport to the pretenſions of Ragonaut Row, if they can afford it without a violation of the treaty?

3d. Is it the reſolution of the Board, that they approve the plan which the Preſident and Council of Bombay have agreed to form with the Maratta Government, as explained in their letter now before the Board?

4th. Is it the reſolution of the Board, that its ſanction ſhall be given to the plan which the Preſident and Council of Bombay have agreed to form with the Maratta Government, as expreſſed in their letter now before the Board; and that it will authorize the Preſident and Council of Bombay to carry the ſame into execution by ſuch means as they ſhall judge moſt adviſeable, provided theſe ſhall be ſuch as are conſiſtent with the treaty, and with the orders of the Company?

5th. Is it the reſolution of the Board, that the Treaty of Poorunder not binding the Company to take any part in the diſputes of the Maratta Government, the Company is therefore entitled to ſuch further advantages as may be obtained by negociation, as a compenſation for the hazard and expences of their interpoſition and aſſiſtance?

6th. Is it the opinion and reſolution of the Board, that the following are proper objects to be required, and that it ſhall be recommended to the Preſident and Council of Bombay to require them as a compenſation for the Company's interpoſition? viz.

1ſt. That ſuch reaſonable and practicable ſecurity be obtained for the perſonal ſafety of Ragonath Row as he ſhall require.

2d. That a ſpecific ſum be required for to reimburſe the Company for the military charges which may be incurred by their interpoſition.

3d. That the fort and diſtrict of Baſſein be ceded in perpetuity to the Company.

4th. That an additional grant of territory be made to the Company, adjacent to Baſſein or to Bombay, in exchange for Broach, and the Lands ceded to the Company by Futty Sing Guicawar and for the Pergunnahs of Hanſood, Ahmood, and Deſhora.

5th. That no European ſettlements ſhall be allowed on any of the maritime coaſts of the Maratta Dominions, without the conſent of the Governor General and Council of Bengal previouſly obtained.

7th. Is it the reſolution of the Board, that the Preſident and Council of Bombay ſhall be ſupplied with money money independent of the ordinary and annual ſupply, and to what amount?

8th. Is it the reſolution of the Board, that any military aſſiſtance ſhall be ſent to the Preſident and Council of Bombay?

Mr. Wheler acquaints the Board that he is not prepared to give his opinion on theſe queſtions, and wiſhes to be allowed time to conſider them.

Mr. Francis—Not knowing what ſpecific propoſitions might be laid before the Board, I came prepared to deliver my opinion on that which I ſuppoſed would be the general queſtion for our determination. I believe it will be found to include an anſwer to moſt of the queſtions ſtated by the Governor, and for that reaſon I am ready to record it in this place; at the ſame time, though my general opinion is formed I would wiſh to have an opportunity of giving particular conſideration to each of the queſtions before us, with the reaſons of my aſſent or diſſent; but this I conceive cannot be done by every Member of the Board in the courſe of one day. The Board will be pleaſed to obſerve that the Minute I am going to deliver in has no direct relation to the Governor's propoſitions, as I had not ſeen them.

Mr Francis's Minute.

I feel myſelf equally preſſed by the importance of the queſtion before us, and by the very ſhort time I have had to conſider it: my opinion however of it is formed on principles heretofore carefully weighed and deliberately adopted, and which no new fact belonging particularly to preſent circumſtances has induced me to depart from: I ſhall lay it before the Board without any other introduction, but to requeſt their indulgence for any irregularity in the form, or inaccuracy in the expreſſion. I would propoſe that the Board ſhould proteſt, as I mean to do for myſelf ſeparately, againſt the reſolutions of the Preſidency of Bombay, communicated to us in their letter of the 12th December laſt, for the following reaſons:

1ſt. Becauſe their reſolving to join with a party in the Maratta Goverment in meaſures tending to engage the Company in a war, or to their entering into engagements to that effect, as they declare they will do inſtantly on receiving an application from the perſons who are ſuppoſed to form the above party, without the conſent and approbation of this Council firſt had and obtained, is againſt law.

2d. Becauſe it is equally againſt the Company's inſtructions, in their general letters of April 1777, by which the expediency of any future alliance with Ragoba is expreſsly left to our determination.

3d. Becauſe it is a violation of the 9th and 10th Articles of the Treaty concluded between the Governor General and Council and the Peiſhwa.

4th. Becauſe ſuch violation of a public treaty between two ſtates is not to be juſtified by the reaſons aſſigned for it; (viz.) That a number of individuals in one of thoſe ſtates are inclined to engage in meaſures ſubverſive of all or any of the ſtipulations of ſuch public treaty, and have privately applied for aſſiſtance in carrying ſuch meaſures into execution.

5th. Becauſe even the evidence of ſuch a diſpoſition in the perſons alluded to appears to us very uncertain and defective, being no more than a private verbal meſſage from them to Mr. Moſtyn's ſubſtitute at Poonah, meant perhaps for no other purpoſe but to diſcover our intentions with reſpect to Ragoba, and which they may diſavow at their pleaſure.

6th. Becauſe there are no proofs before us to warrant our giving credit to an aſſertion ſo improbable, as that Sacaram Baboo, whoſe letters to the Governor have been conſtantly, and are to this time filled with complaints againſt the non-execution of the treaty, and particularly of the protection given to Ragoba, ſhould voluntarily enter into private engagements to reſtore Ragoba to the Regency, and ſolicit the aſſiſtance of the Preſidency of Bombay for that purpoſe.

7th. Becauſe, admitting that a party has been formed to ſupport the pretenſions of Ragoba, ſuch party is either ſtrong enough to accompliſh their purpoſe without our aſſiſtance, conſequently our interference is unneceſſary, or if their own ſtrength be in itſelf unequal to the enterprize, they will then want an immediate and continued ſupport, which the Preſidency of Bombay is in no condition to give them. In their letter of the 7th December they tell us, "that their European battalions are greatly deficient of their proper complement, which they have no means or proſpect of completing, and that notwithſtanding they give every encouragement, it is difficult to raiſe good ſepoys on that coaſt; that they are unable to co-operate with the other Preſidencies, in caſe of an attack upon either of them; that, limited as their power is, and unprovided as they are with reſources, they cannot exert themſelves as the occaſion requires—they can do no more than repreſent the ſituation and circumſtances to us." It follows then, that the reſolution of the Bombay Preſidency to carry Ragoba to Poonah may involve us in a war, in which the ſafety our poſſeſſions on the Malabar coaſt may be immediately hazarded, and which can no way be ſupported hereafter but by ſupplies of men and money from Bengal.

8th. Becauſe it is at all times the duty of this Council to give their utmoſt attention to the preſervation of peace in India; but at this conjuncture more particularly than at any other, while a conſiderable part of the national force is employed in America, and while the apprehenſions of a war with France and Spain hangs over the Councils of the nation.

9th. Becauſe the requiſition made by the Preſidency of Bombay to that of Fort Saint George of a body of forces, for any purpoſe but that of immediate ſelf-defence, without our conſent and approbation, appears to us highly irregular, and in its conſequences dangerous, as it tends to defeat the intention of the legiſlature in the inſtitution of this Council, and to make it impoſſible for us to provide for the ſafety of the Britiſh empire in India by any general plan of meaſures. It is not poſſible that the Company's forces ſhould act under a ſteady and united direction for the general ſafety and defence of our poſſeſſions, or move together in any one plan of action, as long as the reſpective diſpoſition of the forces of each of the other Preſidencies is liable to be altered without our knowledge or conſent.

10th. Becauſe the reſolutions taken by the Preſidency of Bombay, not only ſtand in direct contradiction to the authorities and engagements herein-before recited, but more eſpecially to the inſtructions of this Council unanimouſly agreed to on the 18th Auguſt laſt, which they appear to have totally diſregarded, and which it is our duty to ſupport and inſiſt on. I deſire the ſecond paragraph of that letter may be read, viz.

"The firſt point has undoubtedly afforded juſt cauſe of offence and jealouſy to the Maratta Government. We wiſh that Ragoba had been induced to accept the terms of conciliation lately offered to him by the Miniſters, to reſide at Benares, with a jaghire of five lacks of rupees per annum, in the neighbourhood of Calpee. Theſe conditions, though they effectually removed the objections formerly made by Ragoba, againſt the terms ſecured for him by the treaty, were excepted to by him, on account of the difficulty of proceeding to Benares, from the danger that he thought his perſon would be expoſed to in a journey by land, through the Maratta dominions, and his religious ſcruples againſt a voyage by ſea.

"We can ſee no reaſon to doubt, that the preſence of Ragoba at Bombay will continue to be an inſuperable bar to the completion of the Treaty concluded with the Maratta Government; nor can any ſincere cordiality and good underſtanding be eſtabliſhed with them, as long as he ſhall appear to derive encouragement

Appendix, Nos. 27, 28, & 29.

Appendix. Nos. 27, 28, & 29.

" ment and ſupport from the Engliſh; on the contrary, " we think, that although it may not furniſh ſufficient " grounds for the actual renewal of hoſtilities, it will ſo " far eſtrange the minds of the Miniſters at leaſt as to " compel them to form connections to the diſadvantage " of the Britiſh Government; ſo that notwithſtanding " the terms of a reconciliation ſhould exiſt, neither " party will benefit by the effects of it. We therefore " think it incumbent upon us to recommend to your " moſt mature conſideration the dangerous effects of " your perſiſting ſtill to continue that protection to Ra- " goba; and to deſire that you will do all that lies in " your power to remove the obſtacles which oppoſe his " departure from Bombay; for this purpoſe, we think " that he ſhould be required to make choice either of " a journey by land, if Tuckojee Holkar and Madajee " Scindia will give proper ſecurity to conduct him in " ſafety, which we have been aſſured they would do, or " of a voyage by ſea, which might be accompliſhed with- " out affecting his religious purity, if he were accommo- " dated with a veſſel fitted out and manned immediately " under his orders, and by perſons of his own ſect, to " be accompanied by one of the Company's marine " veſſels for his protection. If both theſe expedients " ſhould be rejected by Rogoba, we muſt naturally con- " clude, that it is not his intention to part with his pre- " ſent aſylum, but that the objections which he has " ſtarted to the terms propoſed to him, are mere pre- " texts; and on this ground we repeat our injunctions, " that he be poſitively required to quit the Company's " dependencies, as we ſhall hold you reſponſible for all " the conſequences of continuing the Company's pro- " tection to him after ſuch a refuſal on his part."

If the Board ſhould agree in the preceding reſolutions, I am of opinion that a copy of them ſhould be ſent to the Preſident and Council of Bombay, with an additional declaration, that we deem them ſolely reſponſible to the Company and to the nation, for all the conſequences of the meaſures they have taken, or may take on this occaſion, without our conſent and approbation; and that whereas they have not yet demanded of us any ſpecific ſupply either of men or money to ſupport the execution of the above meaſures, we are determined that whatever aſſiſtance we may be compelled to give them, by the neceſſity of defending the Company's poſſeſſions on that coaſt, ſhall be ſtrictly confined to the object of defence; and that we will never encourage or ſupport any plan of operations, calculated to carry the Company's arms beyond that line, without our conſent and approbation firſt had and obtained, or without the expreſs and ſpecific orders of the Company to that effect; that when we receive the further advices which they promiſe to give us, of what is likely to be the iſſue of this buſineſs, we ſhall communicate to them our opinions and reſolutions thereupon.

Mr. Barwell—I am ready to give my opinion directly on the queſtions propoſed from the chair; but as it would be out of rule to give my vote upon the ſeveral points that are under conſideration, before the ſentiments of the other members are delivered, I ſhall wait their leiſure. The general queſtion on which Mr. Francis ſuppoſed the debate would naturally turn, and which he ſuppoſes to include an anſwer to the queſtions before the Board, may be proper, abſtractedly conſidered with the circumſtances that muſt decide the political meaſures of every Government. The political intercourſe between nations is not to be ſummarily pronounced upon. The variety of intereſts which combine and lead to the greateſt objects ought not to be left unattended to, for ſpeculative ſyſtems of peace; when every inſtance that comes before us, upon the faireſt diſcuſſion, ſtrongly ſpeaks a diſpoſition in thoſe who we may regard our friends, actuated by the moſt hoſtile intentions. I mean not to free the Bombay Government from entire blame, in the courſe of their proceedings ſince the ratification of the treaty of Poorunder, but it is evident to me that they would not have ſtood exculpated to the Company or the nation, had they declined under that treaty to anſwer the expectations of the public, and availed themſelves of the favourable circumſtances that were preſented. I profeſs (however much I may wiſh to ſee a ſyſtem prevail in India that may enſure the public tranquillity of it) I by no means concur in any plan that ſimply profeſſes the object, while it ſows the ſeed of future trouble. The Treaty of Poorunder, and the acknowledgment of the Miniſterial Government, with the meaſures adopted, profeſſing an object they did not ſecure, is now at a criſis. The Government itſelf, I may ſee, invites us to a ſettlement of their own diſſenſions; and though they are all called a party of individuals, the oppoſite is but a ſingle man, who was concerned in the treaty; and he, to protect himſelf, is forming connections with the French. That the party inviting Ragoba are not ſtrong enough to introduce him to power, is not to be imagined, from their calling in a foreign aid. The example ſeems to have been ſet them from the weakeſt faction, and the alarm taken at the intrigues of that faction to introduce the French, to have determined thoſe who have the ruling influence. Theſe obſervations are haſtily made, and I deſire they may meet with that allowance which the expreſſion of thoughts that have ariſen on the inſtant, have a claim to. I ſhall poſſibly take a future occaſion of delivering my ſentiments more fully on this important ſubject.

Agreed, That the conſideration of this buſineſs be poſtponed till Monday next.

Extract of Bengal Secret Conſultations, the 2d February 1778.

PRESENT,

The Honourable Warren Haſtings, Governor General, Preſident,

Richard Barwell,
Philip Francis,
Edward Wheler,
} Eſquires.

Re-conſidered, the ſubject of the laſt Conſultation.

Read the queſtion therein propoſed by the Governor General.

Mr. Wheler delivers in the following Minute:

1ſt. It being agreed by the 12th Article of the Treaty, concluded between the Company and the Maratta State 1ſt May 1776, that " no aſſiſtance is to be " given by the Engliſh to Ragonaut Row, or to any " ſubjects or ſervants who may cauſe diſturbances or " rebellion in the Maratta dominions," I do not think that the Preſident and Council of Bombay are warranted by the Treaty of Poorunder to join in a plan for conducting Ragonaut Row to Poonah; nor can I agree with the Governor and Council of Bombay, " that the appli- " cation of Sacarum Baboo, Morabee Furneeſſe, Batche- " ba Punder, Tolkagee Holkar, may certainly with the " utmoſt juſtice be conſidered as an application from the " Maratta State, and treated accordingly," becauſe thoſe perſons, be their ſtation and influence what it may, can only be conſidered as conſtituting a party in the ſtate, in oppoſition to another party, headed (as it appears from the Bombay proceedings) by Nanna Furneeſſe; and I do not think that we are warranted by the Treaty of Poorunder, to take a part in the diviſions of that Government.

2d. In giving my opinion on the ſecond queſtion, I muſt firſt obſerve, that I entirely diſapprove the conduct of the Governor and Council of Bombay, in coming to a reſolution which may, if the conditions of it are complied with by the other contracting party, involve their Government, and all the Britiſh poſſeſſions in India, in a war with the Maratta State, and this without firſt receiving the ſanction of our Board, as required by the late Act of Parliament. I differ from the Preſident and Council of Bombay, in thinking that the urgency of the caſe would admit of no delay, and "that there was "an imminent and abſolute neceſſity of ſome meaſures "being taken to prevent the French from getting a foot-"ing in the Maratta Country." Their own proceedings ſtate no facts to prove ſuch immediate interference on the part of the French, but expreſs their ſuſpicions only of an agreement being made by the Chevalier St. Lubin with Nanna Furneeſſe, and of an expreſs having been ſent to Europe in conſequence. It follows, that even on the Preſident and Council's own ſtatement of the argument, that they have had the ſame opportunity as the French Agent to make repreſentations to Europe of ſuch negociations, and that even admitting them to take full effect there (which I hold to be very doubtful) the Company will have time to take meaſures at home in conſequence, and to tranſmit their inſtructions for the guidance of their ſervants abroad; and it follows ſtill more ſtrongly, that the Governor and Council of Bombay were not ſo preſſed in point of time, but they might have made application to this Board, accompanied with full repreſentations of the ſtate of affairs, and received our inſtructions accordingly. I do not therefore think that the Preſident and Council of Bombay are either bound or warranted by the orders of the Court of Directors to give their ſupport to the pretenſions of Ragonaut Row, even if they could effect it, without a violation of the treaty; as the conſent of this Board, as directed by the Act of Parliament, was neceſſary to be firſt had and obtained.

3d. It is true that the Company do, in their general letter of the 5th February 1777, ſay, "that if the con-"ditions of the Treaty of Poonah have not been ſtrictly "fulfilled on the part of the Marattas, and if from any "circumſtances you ſhall deem it expedient, we ſhall "have no objection to an alliance with Ragoba, on the "terms agreed on between him and the Governor and "Council of Bombay," yet in all their former orders, though they expreſs the ſtrongeſt deſire of poſſeſſing Salſette, they ſtrictly prohibit the Governor and Council from taking poſſeſſion of it by force, under any circumſtances whatever, without firſt obtaining their permiſſion for that purpoſe; and even, according to the terms of the order firſt quoted, although the treaty ſhould not be ſtrictly complied with, yet the ſanction for our making an alliance with Ragoba, depends on our deeming the circumſtances expedient, which from the incomplete ſtate of the Company's forces upon the Bombay eſtabliſhment, from the total inability of their treaſury to ſupport in any degree the expence of a Maratta war, from the danger and difficulty of affording them aſſiſtance from Fort St. George in caſe the meaſures which the Governor and Council of Bombay have adopted, ſhould terminate in a rupture with the Marattas, and from the ſtill greater hazard of tranſporting troops from hence, added to the ruinous conſequences that muſt follow from draining this treaſury to ſupport a war in a part of India ſo remote from hence, and the uncertainty of affairs in Europe, which require every precaution on our part to avoid even the riſque of adding to the embarraſſments of Government, I am of opinion, from ſtrong and urgent reaſons, why an alliance with Ragoba, or any interference in the diviſions of the Maratta State, is at this particular time dangerous and inexpedient, and in which, if the party we eſpouſe ſucceed in their views, the advantages are ſmall and uncertain; if they fail, the whole burthen of a war with the united Maratta State, muſt fall on the Company, and perhaps be extended to all their poſſeſſions; the conſequences of which are too obvious to make it neceſſary to point them out, and cannot be thought of without the deepeſt concern.

4th. As the plan propoſed by the Governor and Council of Bombay appears to me neither conſiſtent with the treaty, or conformable to the Orders of the Company, I cannot give my conſent to it. Appendix, Nos. 27, 28, & 29.

5th. I think the Treaty of Poorunder is binding to the Company, not to take any part in the diſputes with the Maratta Government, as by the 12th Article it is agreed, that no aſſiſtance is to be given by the Engliſh to Ragonaut Row, or to any ſubject or ſervant of the Peiſhwa, who may cauſe diſturbances or rebellion in the Maratta dominions; conſequently the future advantages which may be obtained by negociation, muſt neither expoſe the Company on the one hand, to the precarious events of a war, nor the Marattas on the other, to the hazard of internal revolutions.

6th. As proviſion for and perſonal ſecurity to Ragonaut Row are implied in the 9th Article of the Treaty of Poorunder, I can have no objection to that part of the Governor General's queſtion, nor that a ſpecific ſum be required to reimburſe the Company for military charges; except that I object to military operations being adopted. If Baſſein can be obtained on the terms mentioned in my anſwer to the 5th queſtion propoſed by the Governor General, I ſhall moſt certainly give my aſſent to it, but not otherwiſe; neither ſhall I object to an additional grant of land to be made to the Company adjacent to Baſſein or to Bombay, in exchange for Broach, and the lands ceded to the Company by Futtah Sing, and for the Pergunnahs of Hanſood, Ahmood, and Deſborah, if it can be obtained in like manner. Neither have I any objection to the reſtriction preſcribed by the Governor General on Europeans ſettling upon the maritime coaſt of the Maratta dominions, without the conſent of the Governor General and Council of Bengal previouſly had and obtained.

7th. I am of opinion that the Preſident and Council of Bombay ſhall have the uſual ſupply of money from this Preſidency, and no more.

8th. If the Preſident and Council of Bombay ſhall involve themſelves in a war with the Marattas, I am of opinion that they will require military aſſiſtance, and that we muſt of neceſſity ſupport them, as far as we can with ſafety, but I am againſt furniſhing them with the means of war.

(Signed) Edwd Wheler.

Mr. Francis delivers in his ſentiments in a Minute as follows:—

Mr. Francis—To the five firſt queſtions propoſed by the Governor General, I beg leave to ſtate two general objections, which, if I meant to inſiſt on them, would I think juſtify me in declining to give any anſwer to queſtions ſo ſtated. The firſt is, that they do not bring directly into our view the great general queſtion, with all its conſequences of approbation or diſapprobation of the meaſures reſolved on at Bombay, that is, of Peace or War; but rather tend to anticipate the deciſion of that queſtion, by engaging the Board in a ſeries of preliminary reſolutions, of which we might not ſee the extent and ultimate reſult. I do not however impute this intention to Mr. Haſtings; on the contrary, I acknowledge his candour, in not inſiſting on the form of debate preſcribed by the queſtions, and agreeing to receive the opinion of each member in any manner he thought proper.

My ſecond objection is, that each of the firſt five queſtions ſuppoſes ſome propoſition to be taken for granted, the truth or poſſibility of which I do not admit; but this failing, the queſtion of courſe is annihilated.

1ſt Queſtion. I deny that the application herein ſtated has been made by the ruling part of the Maratta State: if it has, and if they are the ruling part, they can re-inſtate Ragoba without our aſſiſtance. At all events, the Preſidency of Bombay are not warranted by the Treaty of Poorunder to join in the plan.

2d Queſtion. I deny the poſſibility of their giving their ſupport to the pretenſions of Ragoba without a violation of the treaty, which expreſsly declares, that "if "he

Appendix. Nos 27, 28, & 29.

" he refuſes to diſband his army, we are to withdraw " our forces, and are not to aſſiſt him." But independent of the treaty, the Preſidency of Bombay are neither bound nor warranted by the Company's orders, to engage in ſuch a meaſure, the expediency of which is expreſsly left to our determination alone by the 25th paragraph of the Company's letter to us of the 5th February 1777.

3d Queſtion. No plan is mentioned in the Bombay letter, nor does any ſeem to have been formed with the Maratta Government, unleſs the reſolution to carry Ragoba to Poonah be underſtood in that ſenſe.

4th. The ſubſtance of the third queſtion ſeems to be included in the fourth; I deem it impoſſible to carry into execution the meaſures propoſed by the Preſidency of Bombay of conducting Ragoba to Poonah conſiſtently with the treaty, or with the orders of the Company, who have acquieſced in it. To both theſe queſtions, generally taken, my anſwer is in the negative.

5th. In any treaty whatever, the contracting parties are undoubtedly entitled to as many advantages as they can obtain by negociation: but adhering, as I do, to the principles of that fundamental plan of policy, by which the Company themſelves have limited their views on the Malabar coaſt, and guided by the experience of former times, and ſimilar tranſactions, I do not admit that any advantages we can promiſe ourſelves from a treaty with Ragoba, can compenſate for the hazard and expence of engaging in an offenſive war in his ſupport. But as this queſtion cannot be more pointedly anſwered, than in the words of the Court of Directors themſelves, I beg leave to adopt, and make uſe of them.

In their letter to Bombay of the 12th April 1775, they ſay, "There is no part of your conduct more reprehenſible, " than that of engaging without abſolute neceſſity in military " expeditions. The conſequences of your proceedings " are embarraſſing in the higheſt degree; and after ſuc- " ceeding againſt the place (Broach) it is mortifying to " obſerve, that our affairs are in a much worſe ſituation " than they were before thoſe expeditions were under- " taken."

6th. Having given a negative to the interpoſition itſelf, I need not conſider what terms ought to be required as a compenſation for it.

With reſpect to Baſſein, I ſhall be at all times ready and deſirous to concur in meaſures for obtaining it, becauſe I know it is a favourite object with the Company; but it muſt be on the footing of amicable negociation, by exchange or purchaſe. As for myſelf, I confeſs my opinion of the benefit of obtaining Baſſein is much altered by what I have ſeen of Salſette. This place, ſo far from producing the extraordinary advantages expected from it, I believe does not pay its expences; and this I am convinced will be the fate of every acquiſition we make on the Malabar coaſt.

7th. No.

8th. No.

Mr. Francis—I beg leave to add, that I entirely adopt and ſubſcribe to the arguments urged by Mr. Wheler, deeming them a ſtrong confirmation of my own opinion.

Mr. Barwell—Suppoſing the queſtions propoſed by the Governor General to be regularly put, I ſhall go through them progreſſively.

Queſtion the Firſt.

Is it the opinion of the Board that the Preſident and Council of Bombay are warranted by the Treaty of Poorunder to join in a plan for conducting Rogonaut Row to Poonah, on the application of the ruling part of the adminiſtration of the Maratta State?

Anſwers.

Moſt certainly.

Queſtion 2d. Is it the opinion of the Board, that the Preſident and Council of Bombay are either bound or warranted by the orders of the Court of Directors, to give their ſupport to the pretenſions of Ragonaut Row, if they can afford it without a violation of the treaty?

The orders of the Company are ſuch, that I do not think their Governments in India can decline, under preſent circumſtances, to aid the pretentions of Ragonaut Row.

Queſtion 3d. Is it the reſolution of the Board, that they approve the plan which the Preſident and Council of Bombay have agreed to form with the Maratta Government, as explained in their letter now before the Board?

Anſwer 3d. The ſcene that opens on the weſt ſide of India may I think, engage us too far, I mean if it is purſued to the utmoſt extent, and proſecuted with a ſpirit of conqueſt; but if confined to the ſimple objects of ſecurity to the Engliſh poſſeſſions, and the excluſion to the natural enemies of our Government, there can be no objection to our becoming parties to it, and giving full ſanction to the Bombay Preſidency in the plan it may adopt for ſuch ſalutary purpoſes. Beyond theſe neither preſent neceſſity nor future ſafety require, nor ſhould be allowed to influence our policy. Premiſing theſe objects to bound the Bombay plan, I acquieſce, but no further; and I give the grounds on which I found my acquieſcence, becauſe the views of the Bombay Preſidency are not laid down with that preciſion I think they ought to have been, at a criſis ſo important to the general intereſts of the nation.

Queſtion 4th. Is it the reſolution of the Board, that its ſanction ſhall be given to the plan which the Preſident and Council of Bombay have agreed to form with the Maratta Government, as expreſſed in their letter now before the Board, and that it will authorize the Preſident and Council of Bombay to carry the ſame into execution, by ſuch means as they ſhall judge moſt adviſable, provided theſe ſhall be ſuch as are conſiſtent with the treaty, and with the orders of the Company?

Anſwer 4th. I agree to authorize the Bombay Preſidency to carry into execution their plan, under the deſcription expreſſed in my reply to the Third Queſtion, by ſuch means as it ſhall judge moſt adviſeable.

Queſtion 5th. Is it the reſolution of the Board, that the Treaty of Poorunder not binding the Company to take any part in the diſputes of the Maratta Government, the Company is therefore entitled to ſuch further advantages as may be obtained by negociation, as a compenſation for the hazard and expence of their interpoſition and aſſiſtance?

Anſwer 5th. The Company have a right to compenſation for the aſſiſtance to be given.

Queſtion

Queſtion 6th. Is it the opinion and reſolution of the Board, that the following are proper objects to be required, and that it ſhall be recommended to the Preſident and Council of Bombay, to require them as a compenſation for the Company's interpoſition, viz.

1ſt. That ſuch reaſonable and practicable ſecurity be obtained for the perſonal ſafety of Ragonaut Row as he ſhall require?

2d. That a ſpecific ſum be required to reimburſe the Company for military charges, which may be incurred by their interpoſition?

3d. That the fort and diſtrict of Baſſein be ceded in perpetuity to the Company.

4th. That an additional grant of territory be made to the Company adjacent to Baſſein or to Bombay, in exchange for Broach, and the lands ceded to the Company by Futty Sing Guicawar, and for the Pergunnahs of Hanſood, Ahmood, and Deſborah.

5th. That no European ſettlements ſhall be allowed on any of the maritime coaſts of the Maratta dominions, without the conſent of the Governor General and Council of Bengal, previouſly obtained.

Anſwer 6th. The following are proper objects to be obtained: Appendix Nos. 27, 28, & 29.

1ſt. Perſonal ſecurity to Ragoba.

2d. A ſpecific ſum for the military charges.

3d. The fort and diſtrict of Baſſein.

4th. Territory adjacent to Baſſein and Bombay, in exchange for Broach. The lands ceded by Futty Sing Guicawar, and the Pergunnahs of Hanſood, Ahmood, and Deſborah.

5th. Conſent of the Governor General and Council of Bengal, to any European ſettlements on the Maratta coaſt.

Queſtion 7th. Is it the reſolution of the Board, that the Preſident and Council of Bombay ſhall be ſupplied with money independant of the ordinary and annual ſupply, and to what amount?

Anſwer 7th. The Bombay Preſidency ſhould be ſupplied with ten lacks immediately, independant of the annual remittance.

Queſtion 8th. Is it the reſolution of the Board, that any military aſſiſtance ſhall be ſent to the Preſident and Council of Bombay.

Anſwer 8th. A military force ought to be prepared, and ſent to Bombay without delay.

The Governor General—To the firſt queſtion I am of opinion, that the Preſident and Council of Bombay are ſo far warranted by the Treaty of Proonder, that they are not precluded by it from joining in a plan for conducting Ragonaut Row to Poonah; on the application of the ruling part of the adminiſtration of the Maratta State.

To the ſecond: I am of opinion, that the Preſident and Council of Bombay are both warranted and bound by the orders of the Court of Directors, and particularly to thoſe expreſſed in the 25th paragragh of their general letter, 5th February 1777, to give their ſupport to the pretenſions of Ragonaut Row, if they can afford it without a violation of the treaty.

To the third: I agree with the proviſions expreſſed in Mr. Barwell's anſwer to this queſtion.

I agree to the fourth, with the ſame proviſions.

I agree to the fifth.

I agree to the ſixth.

Agreed to the ſeventh, in the words of Mr. Barwell.

I agree to the eighth; but ſhall not myſelf propoſe that it be carried into execution, until we receive further advices from Bombay, which will be neceſſary to warrant it. But I propoſe, that the Commander in Chief be conſulted upon this ſubject, and that the letter received from Bombay of the 12th December, and their laſt military returns, with ſuch other parts of their correſpondence as may be neceſſary for his information on this propoſition, be communicated to him for that purpoſe.

Reſolved, That it is the opinion of the Board, that the Preſident and Council of Bombay are warranted by the Treaty of Poorunder, to join in a plan for conducting Ragonaut Row to Poonah, on the application of the ruling part of the adminiſtration of the Maratta State.

2d. Reſolved, That it is the opinion of the Board, that the Preſident and Council of Bombay are warranted, by the orders of the Court of Directors, to give their ſupport to the pretenſions of Ragonaut Row, if they can afford it, without a violation of the treaty.

3d. Reſolved, That the plan which the Preſident and Council of Bombay have agreed to form with the Maratta Government, as explained in their proceedings of the 10th December, and in their letter of the 12th of December 1777, be approved.

4th. Reſolved, That the ſanction of this Government be given to the plan which the Preſident and Council have agreed to form with the Maratta Government as above expreſſed; and that they be authorized to carry the ſame into execution by ſuch means as they ſhall judge moſt adviſeable, provided theſe be conſiſtent with the treaty, and the orders of the Court of Directors.

5th. Reſolved, That the Company not being bound by the Treaty of Proonder, to take part in the diſputes of the Maratta Government, are therefore entitled to any farther advantages that may be obtained by negociation, as a compenſation for the hazard and expence of their interpoſition and aſſiſtance.

6th. Reſolved, That it is the opinion of this Board, that the following are proper objects to be required as a compenſation for the interpoſition of the Company; and that it be recommended to the Preſident and Council of Bombay, to obtain them accordingly; viz.

1ſt. That ſuch reaſonable and practicable ſecurity be obtained for the perſonal ſafety of Ragonaut Row as he ſhall require.

2d. That a ſpecific ſum be required to reimburſe the Company for the military charges which may be incurred by their interpoſition.

3d. That the fort and diſtrict of Baſſein be ceded in perpetuity to the Company.

4th. That an additional grant of territory be made to the Company, adjacent to Baſſein or to Bombay, in exchange for Broach and the lands ceded to the Company by Futteh Sing Guicawar, and for the Pergunnahs of Hanſood, Ahmood, and Deſbora.

5th. That no European ſettlements ſhall be allowed on any of the maritime coaſts of the Maratta dominions, without the conſent of the Governor General and Council of Bengal previouſly obtained.

7th. Reſolved, That a ſupply of money, to the amount of ten lacks of rupees, be immediately granted to the Preſident and Council of Bombay, for the ſupport of their engagements above-mentioned, independent of the ordinary annual ſupply to that Preſidency.

8th. Reſolved, That military aſſiſtance ſhall be ſent to the Preſidency of Bombay.

In explanation of the grounds of the 3d reſolution, the Board think it neceſſary to remark, that they underſtand the plan of the Preſident and Council of Bombay to be confined merely to the objects of ſecurity to the Engliſh poſſeſſions in India, and to the excluſion of the natural enemies of the Britiſh Government from any influence or connection with the Marattas.

Appendix, Nos. 27, 28, & 29.

No. 28.

Reſolved, That the above reſolutions be immediately tranſmitted by expreſs Pattamars to Bombay, with the following letter:

Gentlemen,

We have received your letters of the 7th, 12th, and 17th December.

Having taken the laſt of theſe letters, with your proceedings which accompanied it, into our fulleſt conſideration, we have agreed to ſundry diſtinct reſolutions upon the general ſubject of them; a copy of which we tranſmit to you for your authority and guidance.

At the ſame time that we refer you to theſe for our reply to your letter, we muſt requeſt that you will attend particularly to the following explanation of the circumſtances and conſiderations on which they have been formed.

We have ſuppoſed, that your intentions were to act in concert with the Maratta Government; to aſſiſt in compoſing its inteſtine diviſions, at the particular ſolicitation of its chief Miniſter; and by means of ſuch a policy, to prevent the growth of an influence dangerous to the Company's intereſts; to defeat the intentions of a party adverſe to the Company, and to promote the ſecurity of the Company's poſſeſſions. In this view, we give our aſſent and ſanction to the plan which you propoſe to engage in; making it an expreſs condition of our concurrence, that you reſtrict your operations merely to the objects ſo required and defined; and that you withdraw your forces as ſoon as theſe ſhall be fully accompliſhed.

No. 29.

Read the Governor General's propoſition contained in his opinion on the 8th queſtion.

Mr. Wheler—If the Board are determined to ſend troops to Bombay, I agree, that it will be highly proper to conſult the General upon the ſubject; but I abide by my former opinion of the impropriety of that meaſure.

Mr. Francis—I yield to the Governor General's propoſal as a conſequence of a reſolution already taken; but I muſt deſire it to be underſtood, that I ſhall not deem myſelf bound by the anſwer to the enquiry, diſapproving totally of the reſolution itſelf.

Mr. Barwell agrees to the reference.

Reſolved accordingly.

The Governor General—I further propoſe, that the ſentiments of the Commander in Chief be taken upon the propriety of augmenting the ſepoy eſtabliſhment, by new levies of thirty private to each company of ſepoys, and making the ſtrength of each battalion one thouſand men complete: in this caſe our force will not be diminiſhed by any drafts that may be made for the ſervice of Bombay.

Mr. Wheler agrees.

Mr. Francis.—If any force ſhould be ſent from hence to Bombay, I conclude it will be neceſſary to replace it by new levies here; but this is an additional reaſon with me for diſapproving of the meaſure.

Mr. Barwell agrees.

Reſolved, That the ſentiments of the Commander in Chief be taken upon the propriety of augmenting the ſepoy eſtabliſhment by new levies of thirty private to each company, and making the ſtrength of each battalion one thouſand men complete

Mr. Francis—Setting aſide all other conſiderations but thoſe of policy and expedience, I conceive, that the reſolution of the Preſidency of Bombay, to carry Ragobá to Poonah, cannot be juſtified on any principle whatever, but that of the probability of their carrying it into execution inſtanter, or by a ſurprize. Their actual force is not equal to a regular ſeries of military operations, or to contend with a well-concerted reſiſtance; when their force was entire under Colonel Keating, they were unable to make any impreſſion on the army oppoſite to them: but a reſolution to aſſiſt them with money, and ſtill more with a body of troops from hence, which cannot arrive at Bombay till ſeveral months after the commencement of hoſtilities, ſuppoſe the continuance of a war for an indefinite time, and to an unlimited extent. It is in vain for us to ſay, that we conſent to the enterprize under ſuch and ſuch particular limitations: when once we are engaged in it, we can no longer command the event, nor determine how far it will lead us, or at what point we ſhall ſtop. For this reaſon, in addition to thoſe I have already ſtated, I diſſent from and proteſt againſt the reſolutions taken this day, and all the conſequences that may attend them.

Governor General—I muſt beg Mr. Francis's permiſſion to aſk, Whether he means by this diſſent and proteſt, and by the anſwers which he has delivered to the two laſt queſtions propoſed by me on the laſt council day, to declare againſt affording any kind of aſſiſtance to the Preſidency of Bombay, if they ſhould be actually engaged in a war?

However we may differ in our opinions of the paſt conduct of that Preſidency, I would hope, that we ſhall be at leaſt unanimous in our reſolutions to ſupport them; which will be to ſupport the Company's and the national intereſts committed to their charge, in the caſe of a war, and for that reaſon only I propoſe the queſtion.

Mr. Francis—My diſſent and proteſt are meant to be applied generally to all the reſolutions taken this day on the queſtion now ſtated to me by the Governor. I have already declared myſelf very explicitly, in the minute which I had the honour of laying before the Board on Friday: it is a delicate and embarraſſing queſtion, and not to be decided on any principles, however juſt and prudent, when facts, which we cannot alter or reſiſt, may force us into meaſures againſt our moſt deliberate opinions. Defence is the only object for which I would aſſiſt the Preſidency of Bombay; and when I know with certainty, that they have engaged in meaſures of an offenſive nature againſt the Maratta State, my opinion will be, that we ſhould command and require them to withdraw from ſuch meaſures, and return to the defence of their own territories. I cannot give a more preciſe or determinate anſwer to a queſtion, which in its nature muſt in ſome degree be ſubject to events.

Governor General—I beg Mr. Francis will believe that I had no intention to embarraſs him by the queſtion which I have propoſed. I expected the anſwer which he has given to it, but choſe rather to propoſe the queſtion in form, than either to leave his intentions doubtful, as they would have appeared from the minute recorded in this day's proceedings, or to appear to impute to them an inconſiſtency with his former declaration, by referring to it.

As Mr. Wheler, in his anſwer to the ſecond queſtion, ſeems to doubt the reality of the deſigns of the French, as they are repreſented by the Preſident and Council of Bombay, I requeſt that the following extracts of our Perſian correſpondence may be entered in this place, and that Mr. Elliot's letter, which was addreſſed to the Board on the 1ſt of October laſt, may be annexed to them; as I think it now, whatever it might have been before, of no conſequence to withhold it from a place in our records. Theſe evidences, the firſt of which have not I believe been ſeen by Mr. Wheler, will I think remove every doubt of the exiſtence of ſuch a deſign, and of its having been carried into execution, ſo far as it could have been effected by the avowed delivery of the credentials received by the French Agent from the Court of France, and by the written engagements affirmed to have been executed between him and one of the Miniſters.

Mr. Wheler—I do not recollect that I implied any ſuch doubt of the intention of the French interference in my minute. I have, it is true, endeavoured to make it appear that our immediate fears cannot ariſe from any ſuch apprehenſions from the French; as it is ſaid, before they can carry deſigns into execution, they have diſpatched Monſieur de Sauty with credentials to the French Miniſtry.

The Governor General—Mr. Wheler's explanation is perfectly conſiſtent with the words of his minute; but as I think the danger which may ariſe from the French intrigues at Poonah has not been ſufficiently underſtood, and as theſe form the principal grounds for the ſuppoſed reſolutions of the Preſident and Council of Bombay, I ſtill deſire that the papers above mentioned may be recorded in this day's conſultation.

From Row Jee to the Nabob Wallah Jah, dated the 13th May 1777.

I ſome time ago tranſmitted to the Preſence two papers of intelligence; the former written on the 1ſt of Rabbe-ul-awul (11th of April) the latter the 19th of the ſame month (29th of April): theſe you have doubtleſs received, and have communicated the contents to his Highneſs. The particulars relative to the French Sirdar are theſe: Mr. Chevalier, with a train conſiſting of an elephant and ſtandard, and ſeven gentlemen in palankeens, came to Durky, where he remained ten days waiting for his things to come up. On the 24th of Rabbe-ul-awul (4th May) he ſet out from thence, and travelled to Bhaoury: Bheem Row Pauſa went on the part of Seremunt Pundit Purdhaun to meet him. On the 25th Siccaram Pundit and Nanna Purnaveeſe went to the encampment under the walls of the fort, where the French Chief was introduced to them: he had not brought his preſents with him. After the ceremony of the introduction was over he retired with Siccaram Pundit, Nanna Purnaveeſe, Madho Row Sadaſhao, Kiſhen Row Belal, Booſila's vackeel, and Congee the Interpreter, and produced a letter from the Prime Miniſter of the King of France, addreſſed to Seremunt Pundit Purdhaun. As there was no Frenchman belonging to the Circar to read it, Mr. Chevalier read it himſelf, and the Interpreter explained it: the ſubſtance was, that "from time immemorial friendſhip and harmony had ſubſiſted between the two ſtates, which it was expedient to preſerve in time to come, and that Mr. Chevalier would perſonally explain all further particulars." The Miniſters enquired after Mr. Buſſy, and were informed by Mr. Chevalier that he was in health, and employed in an eminent ſtation about the Prime Miniſter, and that he had deſired his compliments to Ramchunder Jaddo Row. They then inquired if the French and Engliſh were friends, or otherwiſe; to which Mr. Chevalier anſwered, that they were at preſent friends, and that the French were not at variance with any power whatever. This was all that paſſed in the firſt meeting; after which he took his leave and retired. Proviſion for 200 men, provender, &c. are daily ſupplied by the Circar. Mulhar Pundit Muttaſuddy; and 20 hircarrahs are appointed to attend on Mr. Chevalier, and procure for him whatever he wants. On the laſt of Rabbe-ul-awul (9th May) Mr. Chevalier was deſired to attend at the aforeſaid encampment, to be introduced to Seremunt Pundit Purdhaun: there was nobody of conſequence preſent at this interview except Seremunt Pundit and the two Miniſters. Mr. Chevalier preſented five paintings on glaſs, a cup, a gun, a pair of piſtols, and a glaſs by which poiſon might be diſcovered. After ſome minutes ſpent in profeſſions of friendſhip, Mr. Chevalier preſented a letter from the French King, addreſſed to Seremunt Pundit: I have not yet been able to learn the contents of it; as ſoon as I do I ſhall inform his Highneſs. After receiving the letter, Seremunt took leave of Mr. Chevalier and returned to the fort; Mr. Chevalier remained in private with the two Miniſters and the Interpreter. Siccaram then deſired him to communicate what he had to ſay; to which he replied, "I have a great variety of matter to treat of, which I will fully explain at a convenient time." Siccaram Pundit then ſaid, "I will appoint ſome perſon to negociate your buſineſs for you; it muſt be a perſon who is well verſed in your affairs. I know of no one qualified for this purpoſe except Madho Row Sadaſhas." Mr. Chevalier, not reliſhing this propoſal, made anſwer, "He is employed in the negociations with the Engliſh, how is it poſſible we ſhould unite?" Siccaram replied, "Be under no kind of apprehenſions on this account; in like manner as I am ſo alſo is he, a Muttaſeddy of the Circar: all negociations are conducted through Muttaſeddies; but I act in ſuch manner as I think right." Mr. Chevalier made no reply, but retired. Siccaram Pundit then went to Shaſhoore to a wedding; Nanna Purnaveeſe is alſo going to Poonah, where he will ſtay ten days or a fortnight: this of courſe occaſions a delay in the negociations of the French, which I underſtand will be concluded on their return. Madho Row is under great perplexity; not knowing his Highneſs's pleaſure in this matter, he is at a loſs what ſteps to take. I have addreſſed frequent arzees to you in the courſe of the laſt month relative to the French, which you have doubtleſs fully explained to his Highneſs: I am aſtoniſhed that I have not yet been honoured with a line in anſwer thereto. It is now neceſſary that you communicate the above particulars relative to Mr. Chevalier to his Highneſs, and write me a full and explicit anſwer; and alſo inform me what conduct I am to obſerve here, that I may accordingly ſatisfy Madho Row. The French have till now remained perfectly quiet, but it appears from theſe late meaſures that they deſign to enter again into the affairs of this part; I have therefore ſent repeated expreſſes to the Preſence. Having made yourſelf acquainted with his Highneſs's pleaſure, write me fully on the ſubject.

Appendix, Nos. 27, 28, & 29.

From the Nabob Wallah Jah to Row Jee, dated the 6th June 1777.

I underſtand from your letter written the 3d Rabeaſſanie (13th May) to Sheeb Row, that one Monſieur Chevalier, a Frenchman, is arrived in thoſe parts, under the pretence of having come from Europe on an embaſſy to Row Pundhit Purdhaun, and that on this news a man of rank went from Row Pundit Purdhaun, met, and conducted him to the preſence of the principal Miniſters, who received him with every mark of friendſhip, gave ear to the repreſentations of that impoſtor, which he himſelf had fabricated, and then produced as coming from the Prime Miniſter of France; and that Madho Row Sadaſhae conceived that a connection between him and the Miniſters muſt give offence to the Engliſh Chiefs. The hiſtory of this Frenchman is this: he was formerly in the ſervice of Hyder Ally Khan, and after waiting ſome time for an opportunity of quarrelling with him, he deſerted him with a party of fugitives, and continued for a long ſpace of time to wander in thoſe parts. Monſieur Bellecombe, who is lately arrived from Europe in the ſtation of Governor of Pondicherry, has not the leaſt knowledge of him, but ſays that he invents theſe impoſitions to procure himſelf a ſupport in the different places to which he wanders. As the firmeſt friendſhip has ſubſiſted for three generations between my family and that of Row Pundit Purdhaun, I deſire you will repreſent to Madho Row Sadaſhae, that ſince friendſhip and union has been firmly eſtabliſhed by treaty between Row Pundit Purdhaun and the Engliſh, the fame of whoſe good faith and ſteadineſs is every where ſpread, and whoſe conſtancy in friendſhip is become a proverb throughout the world; and ſince the Governor General of Bengal, who is the abſolute repreſentative of the Engliſh nation in this country, is the author of this treaty, it is neceſſary that he ſhould reflect how highly diſpleaſing the encouragement of this impoſtor of another nation muſt be to the Engliſh; that it is therefore incumbent on him (as a man of wiſdom, penetration, and fidelity to Row Pundit Purdhaun, and as he was employed, on Colonel Upton's arrival at Poonah, on the part of the Governor General of Bengal, as the channel of that negociation) to paint to the Miniſters of Row Pundit Purdhaun, in the ſtrongeſt colours, the impropriety of ſhewing any countenance to ſuch an impoſtor, and to perſuade them ever to preſerve with the greateſt care the friendſhip of the Engliſh, which is of the greateſt value.

Appendix. Nos. 27, 28, & 29.

Extract of a Letter from Siccaram Pundit to Colonel Upton.

Monſieur Chevalier de St. Lubin, on the part of the King of France, lately arrived on board a ſhip on this coaſt, and landed on Rio-Dunda, belonging to this Government, from whence he tranſmitted a letter to the preſence of Seremunt Row, Sahib Row Pundit Purdhaun, containing a requeſt of an audience to treat with him, which if granted he would wait on him, and fully explain to him the ſubjects of his miſſion. As friendſhip had ſubſiſted from time immemorial between the French nation and the illuſtrious family of Seremunt Sahib, and moreover as hoſpitality is due to the Envoy of a great Prince, an order for his approach was ſent from the Preſence. When the aforeſaid gentleman arrives the ſubjects of his negociation will be explained. The Governor and Council of Bombay will repreſent this matter to the Supreme Council of Calcutta in an injurious light; I have therefore written you and the Supreme Council the relation of what has really paſſed. Friendſhip is now eſtabliſhed between us, which ſhall never be interrupted in the ſmalleſt degree. Do you, my friend, amply repreſent all the particulars to the Governor and Council.

Extract of a Letter from Siccaram Pundit, received the 17th July 1777.

Monſieur the Chevalier de St. Lubin, on the part of the King of France, lately arrived on board a ſhip on this coaſt, and landed at Rio-Dunda, belonging to this Government; from whence he tranſmitted a letter to Seremunt Row, Sahib Row Pundit Purdhaun, containing a requeſt of an audience to treat with him, which if granted he would wait on him, and fully explain to him the ſubjects of his miſſion. As friendſhip has ſubſiſted from time immemorial between the French nation and the illuſtrious family of Seremunt Sahib, and moreover in compliance with the duties of hoſpitality, an order for his approach was ſent from the Preſence. When the aforeſaid gentleman arrives, the ſubjects of his negociation will be explained.

The Governor and Council of Bombay will repreſent this matter to you in an injurious light; foreſeeing which, and poſſeſſing the moſt ſincere friendſhip towards you, I have given you intelligence of this gentleman's arrival, and what has actually paſſed. No interruption ſhall ever proceed from this Circar, of the friendſhip which has been ſo firmly eſtabliſhed between us.

From the Nabob Wallah Jah, 3d September.

I ſometime ago ſent you for your information a newſpaper from Poonah, containing an account of the arrival of Monſieur Le Chevalier, a Frenchman, at that place; and at the ſame time tranſmitted to you a copy of a letter which I wrote to Row Jee, my news-writer, to exert his utmoſt endeavours to prevent the Poonah Chief giving countenance to ſuch a cheat and impoſtor. I now incloſe you an anſwer from the aforeſaid news-writer, addreſſed to his brother. I am induced by the warmth of my friendſhip to ſend you this newspaper. You will keep it under the moſt profound ſecrecy; for ſhould it be known that my news-writer had communicated this intelligence, his life would be in danger.

Extract of a Letter from Row Jee to Sheeſh Row.

You ſent me two letters on the ſubject of the French Chief to this purport: That this perſon who was to come to Poonah, was an impoſtor; that no countenance muſt be ſhewn to him, or any extraordinary appearance of civility kept up with regard to him; for ſhould the gentlemen of the adminiſtration of Bengal ſuſpect ſuch an intercourſe, it will be productive of very diſagreeable circumſtances. This I perfectly underſtand. I repreſented all the particulars to the Miniſters, through the channel of Madho Row Sadaſhae; but Kiſhen Row Billal is the patron of this Frenchman, and makes uſe of every method to perſuade the Miniſters to countenance him. They therefore pretend to Mr. Moſtyn and me, that they are about to give him his diſmiſſion; but their real deſigns are different. They have been three or four different times to the houſe of the French Chief, and I hear that he has promiſed, that in the courſe of eighteen months he will procure them from Europe a reſpectable body of European troops, with all the neceſſary ſtores, &c, and that the Chiefs of all the different ſettlements ſhall likewiſe receive expreſs inſtructions for their conduct from the King of France. He repreſents, that a place on the ſea coaſt will be neceſſary for the reſidence of the forces, and the ſecure anchorage of the ſhips. A ſmall village has therefore been fixed upon near Rio-Dunda. This they will give up to him as ſoon as an anſwer arrives from Europe. He demands at preſent a monthly ſtipend of one lack and a half of rupees for the ſupport of the people he has with him; and that 10,000 additional ſepoys ſhould be raiſed and properly diſciplined. He has brought on ſhore from the ſhips eighty pieces of cannon; and has alſo with him 200 European ſoldiers, with all kinds of arms and ammunition; and is deſirous of diſciplining this ſmall body. The Miniſters ſay amongſt themſelves, theſe troops will be diſciplined under the direction of Europeans, and the ſepoys which we keep in our ſervice are without neceſſaries or diſcipline; but if put under the direction of Europeans, they will be rendered fit for ſervice. Such are their deliberations. I do not know if Madho Row Sadaſhae is acquainted with this circumſtance, and conceals it from me, or whether the Miniſters keep him ignorant of it. I aſked Madho Row Sadaſhae, what was the reaſon that cannon, lead, powder, and ammunition, had been landed at the Ghaut of Rio-Dunda, and orders given for the building of ſtorehouſes, &c.? He replied, That it was the tempeſtuous ſeaſon which rendered it neceſſary to unload the ſhips; that they had therefore been lightened of their cargoes; that after this ſeaſon was over, they would be again carried on board the ſhips, and the French Chief ſhould receive his diſmiſſion. I ſhall communicate whatever I learn in future.

Tranſlate of a letter from Siccaram Pundit, dated the 20th October 1777.

I ſome time ago wrote you information of the approach of a perſon deputed by the King of France to this quarter; Monſieur le Chevalier de St. Lubin has lately been honoured with an audience of Row Pundit Purdhaun Peiſhwa Sahib, when he delivered letters from the King of France on the ſubject of ſtrengthening and confirming the ancient friendſhip which ſubſiſted between the two nations; and he alſo ſpoke on the ſubject of their ancient intimacy and connection.

As the rainy ſeaſon was ſet in violently, Mr. le Chevalier did not deſire his diſmiſſion, and his departure has been delayed on this account. The duties of hoſpitality both to friends and ſtrangers, are incumbent on Chiefs of high rank.

Should this circumſtance be related to you in an unfavourable light, you will not, I am perſuaded, give credit to it. There will never be the leaſt deviation in Government from the duties of the friendſhip eſtabliſhed,

but

but it will take deeper root. I ſend you a letter in a Koreta, from Seremunt Row Pundit Purdhaun, addreſſed to the King of England, on the ſubject of friendſhip; be pleaſed to tranſmit it to England, and procure an anſwer. By this you will much oblige me, give great pleaſure to Row Sahib Pundit Purdhaun, and increaſe the friendſhip which at preſent ſubſiſts.

Extract of a letter from Row Jie to the Nabob Wallah Jah; dated the 30th of September.

The French Chief brought here five lacks of rupees in goods, which he has ſold to the merchants of this place, but he is to deliver them here; he is accordingly gone with his people to Rio to fetch them.

Extract of a letter from Dewagur Pundit, Dewan of Moodajee Booſla, Rajah of Berar. Received 18th December.

Soon afterwards an experienced Ambaſſador arrived on the part of the King of France, with a letter and preſent of various articles, and earneſtly entreated an audience of Pundit Purdhaun, which he obtained: I was alſo acquainted with the diſcourſes they held in private: five perſons only were privy to this matter. The intention of what I have written above, is to ſhew, that as ſoon as the Engliſh entered into alliance with Pundit Purdhaun, the powers of other countries immediately courted his friendſhip, and his Government thereby acquired a freſh degree of ſplendor.

Firſt extract from a letter from Rowjee to the Nabob Wallah Jah; dated the 11th April 1777.

Mr. Moſtyn informed me, that two French ſhips, one carrying 70 guns, and the other 40, were arrived at Rio, and the other at Rio-Dunda; that they had ſent boats to learn intelligence concerning Ingria, who was near to them, with four or five men in a boat from the ſhip, who coming to Rio-Dunda, viſited the Government Gomaſtah, and through him wrote an arzee to the Preſence, to be admitted to an audience. Mr. Moſtyn hearing this, repreſented that the French were in alliance with Hyder Ally Khan, and that it was neceſſary the Government ſhould be on its guard; but the Miniſters paid no regard to him, but ſent orders to the Gomaſtahs at Rio-Dunda to furniſh the French who were arrived there with conveyances to tranſport them to the preſence. On the arrival of theſe orders, three European, two Caffries, with a Writer of Ingria's, and forty-five Peons, ſet out for the Preſence, and arrived at Poonah. On the 28th Nanah Purnaveeſſe returning to Poonah, they waited on him, but what paſſed between them is not known. Madho Row has taken no part in this buſineſs, nor is there any perſon of credit engaged in it except Nanah Purnaveeſſe. I hear that ſome French officer is arrived at Rio-Dunda, and means to proceed to the Preſence: on this account, Nanah Purnaveeſſe continues ſome days at Poonah. This circumſtance has thrown a damp on Mr. Moſtyn's negociations. The French Chief is daily expected; when he arrives I will make myſelf acquainted with the ſubject of his negociation, and tranſmit you an account thereof. I learn from report, that the French officer's name is Monſieur le Chevalier de St. Lubin.

From the Aumil of Windawas, dated 29th Auguſt 1777.

I have already informed you of the arrival of the French officer, and of his engagement with the Miniſters to bring them aid from Europe in the courſe of 18 months, during which time they are to give him the command of 10,000 infantry, to be diſciplined by him. They were ſettling the pay of this body when your Highneſs's letter to me arrived, directing me to explain in the cleareſt manner to the Miniſters, that by giving encouragement to a French Sirdar, the long eſtabliſhed friendſhip between them and your Highneſs and the Engliſh would be deſtroyed; and that they muſt not expect in ſuch caſe any friendſhip, either from you or the Engliſh. This repreſentation occaſioned much reflection and threw a damp on the negociation.

Appendix. Nos. 27, 28, & 29.

I hear that the French Sirdar has written letters to France through the factory of Surat, but the purport is not known. Mr. Moſtyn told me that the King of France ſent him to gain intelligence.

It is very certain he has a letter from the King of France. The Miniſters ſent diſpatches to Europe through the Chief of Surat, in conſequence of which the King ſent this man, and it is probable that whatever he may have propoſed in his letters will be complied with.

For the ſake of appearances, he brought goods with him, and is engaged in commerce, but his real deſigns are different. His expences are great; how ſhould he be able to make ſuch preſents of himſelf? From theſe circumſtances it is evident that he is no impoſtor.

Honourable Sir, and Gentlemen,

Having been fortunate enough to obtain ſome intelligence before I left Europe, in which the intereſt of the Eaſt India Company and the influence of Great Britain in India appear to be deeply intereſted, I think it incumbent upon me to take the earlieſt opportunity of communicating it to your Honourable Board: I am concerned at the ſame time to be under the neceſſity of laying the facts only before you, without having it in my power to point out the channels through which the intelligence was conveyed to me; as my promiſe was moſt particularly taken before I was myſelf entruſted with it, that I ſhould conceal the names of the perſons from whom I received the information. It was not without ſome difficulty that I obtained permiſſion to inform the Governor General and Sir John Clavering of this material circumſtance, and that only upon condition that they ſhould not truſt it to the records of the Company, however ſecret they might be. The opinions which thoſe gentlemen muſt form as to the authenticity of the facts which I now propoſe myſelf the honour of laying before you, will be a ſufficient juſtification of me for addreſſing you in this letter.

It appears by the information to which I allude, that Monſieur Sartine, Miniſtre de la Marine of France, has concerted with three or four of the principal Miniſters of that country a ſcheme, the object of which is, the total overthrow of the Engliſh intereſts in India; that he was ſenſible the force which France could herſelf bring againſt our ſettlements would prove inſufficient for ſo great an undertaking, and had therefore thought it neceſſary to the completion of his views, to begin by intriguing with the country powers, and by endeavouring to ſecure them in the intereſt of France, in oppoſition to thoſe of Britain; that for this purpoſe it was reſolved to ſend a perſon to India with full powers, in the character Agent, and likewiſe to ſend out perſons, who in the information are called des Exerceurs, to diſciplin the natives of India, and a conſiderable quantity of arms and military ſtores. The perſon who was nominated to this office was deſcribed to me as one who had before been in India. He was to go to Pondicherry firſt, but to aſſume no public character, that he might not be ſubjected to the ſuſpicions of the Engliſh; he is furniſhed with letters from the Court of France to all the Country Princes of any note in India, to be uſed at his own diſcretion; he likewiſe carries out preſents of conſiderable value, which he is to diſtribute as he may judge neceſſary. The ſubſtance of his inſtructions are as follows: To treat with ſuch of the country powers as he may have reaſon to think will moſt readily aſſiſt the views of France, and to form alliances with them in the name of the King of France, to endeavour to perſuade the country powers to fall upon the Engliſh ſettlements; and he is authorized to promiſe ſuch as will accede to his propoſal, the warmeſt ſupport of his nation ſecretly till hoſtilities are actually commenced, and then openly. He is warned however however in his inſtructions, that France is not to take the lead in the war, but is to come in, as an aſſiſtant only. The perſon from whom I learned theſe particulars knows for certain that the Agent ſailed from Marſeilles in the beginning of April laſt, but was unacquainted with his name, and unable to inform me for certain what road he had followed to India, but ſeemed to be of opinion that he muſt have paſſed over to Alexandria, in the intention of embarking at Suez for India.

Having informed you of what I venture to ſay may be relied on as authentic, it will not be miſplaced to add an account more in detail of ſome enquiries which my knowledge of the above circumſtances led me to make, which though by no means ſo ſucceſsful as my zeal on this occaſion would make me wiſh, will not, I flatter myſelf, be deemed unworthy of your notice.

A circumſtance which I learned from Colonel Capper, who had paſſed through Egypt in February laſt, and which was confirmed to me by Mr. Dighton, who was in his Company, rendered it very probable that the Agent had paſſed through that Country in his way to India. That the French Conſul at Cairo was in daily expectation of the arrival of a ſhip at Cairo, when they paſſed through that town; and I was told by Mr. Baldwin, an Engliſh gentleman reſiding at Cairo, that when an account was brought of a ſhip's being ſeen off or in the Red Sea, which afterwards proved to be the Swallow ſloop of war; the French Conſul ſaid in his hearing that he was ſure it was a French ſhip, as he had certain intelligence that one was diſpatched from India, which ſhould arrive about that time. I was aſſured nevertheleſs by three or four French merchants at Cairo, from whom I made enquiries upon this ſubject, that they never had any expectation of ſeeing a French ſhip at Suez; and I learnt at Mocha that there has not been a ſingle French ſhip in the Red Sea this year. In paſſing through Marſeilles I made all the enquiries that I could, without rendering myſelf ſuſpicious, but could learn nothing of any conſequence, but that ſome ſhips had ſailed from that port early in the year for India. As there was no ſhip to ſail from Suez under three weeks or a month after my arrival at Cairo, I had an opportuniiy of tracing a gentleman who had left Cairo a few days before my arrival, and who in many particulars anſwered the deſcription given to me of the French Agent on the other ſide of the water. It appears from the intelligence which I received, which was principally derived from Mr. Baldwin, and partly from the gentlemen of the French factory in Egypt, and from a Turk whom I ſhall afterwards have occaſion to mention more particularly, that early in April, a French gentleman wearing a croſs, and calling himſelf the Chevalier de Montagny, arrived at Cairo from France. It was reported upon his firſt arrival that he was going to India, but after having ſtaid at Cairo about a month that report was entirely dropped, and upon my aſking the queſtion of the French Conſul was poſitively contradicted. He aſſociated but very little with the gentlemen of Cairo, which is uncommon where the ſociety of Europeans is ſo ſmall. A Venetian gentleman and a Janizary who attended upon the Chevalier, informed Mr. Baldwin and myſelf, that he had a Perſian maſter whilſt at Cairo, and uſed to ſtudy that language great part of the day. With ſome difficulty the man, a native of Damaſcus, with whom he had ſtudied, was traced, and I had an opportunity of converſing with him more than once. From him I learnt that the Chevalier had ſtudied Perſian with him about ſix weeks or two months before his departure from Cairo; that he underſtood the language a little before he came to Egypt, and was able to converſe in it, though not without ſome difficulty; that he brought Perſian books with him from France, the names of which were mentioned to me, and had likewiſe many Perſian letters, which upon queſtioning the Turk I found were letters of Hindoſtan, as their Alcabs, or complimentary addreſſes were uſed in Hindoſtan only; that his attention was given more to thoſe than to the books; and that he informed this man he was going to India, and offered him advantageous appointments if he would accompany him, which from an apprehenſion of the danger of a ſea voyage was refuſed by the Turk. About the 20th of June he went away from Cairo in a very ſecret manner, taking leave of no one, as is always cuſtomary amongſt the Europeans at Cairo; which was not only obſerved as a ſingularity by Mr. Baldwin and the Venetians, but likewiſe by the French merchants, who expreſſed their aſtoniſhment at what they deemed a want of politeneſs. It is obſervable that he left Cairo the day after the arrival of a mail from France. Mr. Baldwin would have remained ignorant of his departure, as the Chevalier had not been viſible for a month before, had he not by mere accident ſeen a conſiderable quantity of baggage going out of Cairo, which upon enquiry he found to be his, and he was then told by the Arabs, a body of whom always eſcort travellers acroſs the Deſert, that they were going to Suez. The air of myſtery with which every thing was conducted which had any relation to this gentleman, led Mr. Baldwin to be more particular in his enquiries, and the Cuſtom Maſter, a native of Egypt, and who could conſequently have but little idea of the jealouſy ſubſiſting between the two nations obſerved, that there muſt be ſomething very particular in this gentleman, who though there were four Engliſh veſſels at Suez, could not be perſuaded to embark on one of them for India, where he was going, but was reſolved to go to Judda or Mocha on a boat, in which he was ſubjected both to danger and delay. I cannot help dwelling a little upon this circumſtance, becauſe it ſeems to me to be a ſtrong preſumptive proof that the Chevalier is in ſome ſhape employed by the Court of France. It was neceſſary to apply to the Cuſtom Maſter, from his office, for a country boat; and he was the perſon who I conjecture adviſed him to embark on board an Engliſh veſſel; and unleſs the Chevalier's diſlike to this mode had been expreſſed in a manner very marked, it is not probable that a native of Cairo would have drawn ſuch a concluſion from it. The miſfortune which befel Mr. Grand Maiſon, and the ſeizure of his papers after his death on board the Terrible, is a circumſtance with which your Honourable Board muſt be acquainted, and of which the Chevalier could not be ignorant, as I myſelf heard the ſtory related at Cairo; after which it is not to be wondered at, if he would not truſt himſelf in an Engliſh veſſel. The laſt circumſtance which I learned at Cairo, ſeems to be the moſt concluſive, which is, that he was furniſhed with a very large credit by the Court of France; and this circumſtance I rely upon as authentic, becauſe I was informed of it by a French merchant at Cairo, and likewiſe by a French renegado at Suez, who learned it from the Chevalier's own ſervant. It will not be miſplaced here, to obſerve, that Monſieur Grand Maiſon had a ſimilar credit for ten thouſand Venetian ſequins, about 4,500*l*. When I enquired, whether it was cuſtomary for the Court of France to grant ſuch credits, the French gentleman who informed me of it, ſeemed ſenſible that he had committed an imprudence, and ſaid that he imagined the Chevalier de Montagny was employed by the Court as a man of literature and knowledge, to make a journey into Egypt. Upon my arrival at Suez, I found that the Chevalier had been there; and not being able to find a boat that would ſail with him in leſs than three weeks, had made a journey to Mount Sinai, from whence he returned a few days after my arrival at Suez, and had ſailed for Judda about the 15th July. I thought it worth while to enquire, whether he had uſed any mathematical inſtruments in his excurſion to Mount Sinai; and was aſſured by the Arabs who accompanied him, that he had carried none with him, having left his baggage at Suez. Had he been employed as a literary traveller, he certainly muſt have uſed inſtruments. His ſervant told the renegado, that he was a traveller of curioſity, and meant to go from Juddah to Mecca; this was not poſſible, as he embarked avowedly as a Chriſtian; and as it is notorious that the Mahometans allow no Chriſtians to approach a city which they eſteem ſo holy, and which they would conceive to be polluted by the preſence of thoſe whom they call Infidels.

I have thought it neceſſary to be very minute in the account of what I was able to diſcover relative to this gentleman, becauſe it appears to me that he muſt be employed by his Court in ſome ſhape or another, though there are many circumſtances which render it probable that he is not the perſon entruſted with the commiſſion mentioned in the fifth part of my letter. Though the french title of Chevalier is a title which carries little or indeed no importance in it, in any part of Europe, it is not ſo common in India; and if the Chevalier de Montagny ſhould turn out to be the Agent, the Court of France will certainly, in ſome ſhape, have departed from their original plan, which was to give him as little external conſequence as poſſible. I was likewiſe told at Cairo, that he is himſelf a Major in the army, and the ſon of a perſon who either is or has been a farmer general, and that his family, by a late promotion, are become Nobleſſe. There is one part of the intelligence I received at Cairo which does not agree with the information given me in Europe, as it was poſitively aſſerted that he had never before been in India; though the truth of his aſſertion may be doubted, as his talking Perſian, and his being in poſſeſſion of Indian correſpondence, are ſufficient reaſons for ſuſpecting that he had been there. One French gentleman went ſo far as to ſay to me, that he was a perſon, qui vouloit ſe donner du merite envers les bureaus. If the Chevalier de Montagny had been entruſted with ſo important a commiſſion, it is very extraordinary that a veſſel ſhould not have been ready to receive him at Suez; and none having even come into the Red Sea in the courſe of the whole year, affords a ſtrong preſumption that he is not the perſon, though it by no means amounts to a proof, as many poſſible accidents may have occaſioned ſuch a miſtake; and it muſt be obſerved on the other hand, that the French Conſul who is the National Agent there, aſſured himſelf that one would arrive. The French merchants diſagreeing with him in this expectation, leaves room to conjecture that the ſhip he expected was employed by Government, and not upon a trading voyage, as he is himſelf reſtricted from trade. On the whole, I doubt not your Honourable Board will deem the appearances ſufficiently ſtrong to think it worth while to take ſome ſteps to clear up whatever may appear doubtful about this gentleman, and as it is poſſible, and indeed likely, that he ſhould aſſume another name and character upon his arrival at Mocha, I made particular enquiries about his perſon, and venture to add, however uſeleſs it may be, the deſcription I received of it: he is ſhort in his ſtature, ſtoops much, and looks down when he is ſpeaking with any one; his hair is brown, and his complection inclinable to be dark; his legs are remarkably ill proportioned, being nearly as thick at bottom as at top; he is accompanied by a European ſervant, who is a ſtout, tall man. Appendix. Nos. 27, 28, & 29.

He will in all probability make an exceeding long voyage down the Red Sea, and will not be able to reach Mocha till the latter end of Auguſt. He will find no French ſhip at Mocha, and will be reduced to the neceſſity of embarking on board the Alexander, an Engliſh ſhip trading in the Red Sea, or of going over land to Muſcat, on the Perſian Gulph, a journey not to be performed without much difficulty and great delays. It is however poſſible that he may arrive time enough to ſail in a Portugueſe ſhip, which intended to ſail from Mocha to Surat about the 20th Auguſt. At any rate I think it is not poſſible that he ſhould be landed in any part of India ſooner than the end of October 1777.

I have, &c. (Signed) A. Elliott.

The Governor General delivers in the following Minute:

Mr. Francis having drawn up objections to the reſolution of the Preſident and Council of Bombay in the form of a proteſt, with his reaſons ſtated in diſtinct articles, I have thought it proper to copy his Minute entire, and to inſert my reply oppoſite to each correſponding paſſage, for the better comprehenſion of the ſeveral arguments contained in both.

I would propoſe that the Board ſhould proteſt, as I mean to do myſelf, ſeparately, againſt the reſolution of the Preſidency of Bombay, communicated to us in their letter of the 12th December laſt, for the following reaſons:

1ſt. Becauſe their reſolving to join with a party in the Maratta Government in meaſures tending to engage the Company in a war, or their entering into engagements to that effect, as they declare they will do inſtantly on receiving an application from the perſons who are ſuppoſed to form the above party, without the conſent and approbation of this Council firſt had and obtained, is againſt law.

I cannot agree to the motion made by Mr. Francis, for proteſting againſt the reſolutions of the Preſident and Council of Bombay, becauſe I approve thoſe reſolutions, for the reaſons which will occur in the following anſwers to Mr. Francis's objections:

1ſt. This is a partial conſtruction of the Act of Parliament, which admits of two exceptions from the general prohibition. That no doubt may be left upon this caſe, I will quote the clauſe of the Act at large which Mr. Francis alludes to, in pronouncing the reſolution of the Preſidency of Bombay to be "againſt law." It is as follows:

"And be it further enacted by the authority aforeſaid, that the ſaid "Governor General and Council, or the major part of them, ſhall have, "and they are hereby authorized to have power of ſuperintending and "controlling the Government and management of the Preſidencies of "Madras, Bombay, and Bencoolen reſpectively, ſo far and in ſo much "as that it ſhall not be lawful for any Preſident and Council of Madras, "Bombay, or Bencoolen, for the time being, to make any orders for commencing hoſtilities, or declaring or making war againſt any Indian "Princes or Powers, or for negociating or concluding any treaty of peace, "or other treaty, with any ſuch Indian Princes or Powers, without the "conſent and approbation of the ſaid Governor General and Council "firſt had and obtained; except in ſuch caſes of imminent neceſſity as "would render it dangerous to poſtpone ſuch hoſtilities or treaties until "the orders from the Governor General and Council might arrive; and "except in ſuch caſes where the ſaid Preſidents and Councils reſpectively "ſhall have received ſpecial orders from the ſaid United Company."

The reſolution of the Preſidency of Bombay was formed on ſuch a caſe of imminent neceſſity as would have rendered it dangerous to poſtpone the execution of it, till the orders from this Council might arrive; a treaty concluded near two years ago, yet unaccompliſhed, and the grounds of a hoſtile alliance formed by one of the parties to the treaty, Ballajee Pundit, between the Maratta State and the Crown of France; ſuch were the dangers impending over the Preſident and Council of Bombay. A meaſure was offered to their choice, by which theſe dangers might be removed and averted, and it was in its nature ſuch as required their inſtant acceptance or refuſal, for it would have been impoſſible to have kept a deſign, planned by one of the two ruling parties in the Maratta Adminiſtration to diſpoſſeſs the other, in ſuſpence and and ſecrecy, till it could be communicated to the Governor and Council of Bengal, and receive their ſanction for its execution. No other expedient could have occurred, which could promiſe ſo effectually to reconcile the differences ſubſiſting between the Governments of Poonah and Bombay, nor which, if ſucceſsful, could with certainty prevent the effects of French intrigues. It was therefore a caſe of equal danger and neceſſity, and ſuch as juſtified the reſolution taken upon it by that Preſidency, on its own ſeparate authority.

2d. Becauſe it is equally againſt the Company's inſtructions in their general letter of April 1777, by which the expediency of any future alliance with Ragoba is expreſsly left to our determination.

2d. The Company's inſtructions, to which this paſſage refers, are contained in the 25th paragraph of their general letter of the 5th February 1777, which runs as follows:

" You cannot but obſerve, that we have hitherto ſuppoſed the affairs " of Ragoba are rendered deſperate, and that the Miniſters at Poonah " maintain their ground, and conſtitute at preſent the Maratta Govern- " ment. We are nevertheleſs of opinion, that an alliance originally " with Ragoba would have been more for the honour and advantage of " the Company, and more likely to be laſting, than that concluded at " Poonah; his pretenſions to the ſupreme authority, either in his own " right, or as guardian to the infant Peiſhwa, appear to us better " founded than thoſe of his competitors: and therefore, if the condi- " tions of the Treaty of Poonah have not been ſtrictly fulfilled on the " part of the Marattas, and if from any circumſtances you ſhall deem " it expedient, we have no objection to an alliance with Ragoba, on " the terms agreed upon between him and the Governor and Council " of Bombay."

Theſe inſtructions were immediately addreſſed to the Governor General and Council, as they related to a point depending on their general controul; but muſt be ſuppoſed to include the ſame exceptions as the prohibitory clauſe above quoted in the Act of Parliament. The ſame ſentiments are expreſſed in the general letter of the 16th April 1777, to Bombay, and almoſt in the ſame terms, without any direct reſtriction of them, to the excluſive authority of the Governor General and Council, which it is not probable that the Company would have omitted, had it been intended to bind the Preſident and Council of Bombay in the execution of them, further than they were already bound by the Act of Parliament.

Diſobedience of orders neceſſarily implies the exiſtence of orders. Thoſe ſuppoſed in the preſent caſe muſt be orders forbidding an alliance with Ragoba; but the declaration made of orders given to the Governor General and Council of Bengal, to form an alliance with Ragoba, cannot poſſibly admit the conſtruction of orders given to the Preſidency, of Bombay, not to form an alliance with him. The reſolution therefore of that Preſidency, ſo far as it tends to the formation of an alliance with Ragoba is not a diſobedience of orders, nor, to uſe Mr. Francis's words, is it "againſt the Company's " inſtructions." On the contrary, I am of opinion, that the general tenor of their inſtructions, the urgency of the occaſion, and the legal latitude allowed them, amount, by their combined weight, to an obligation on the Preſident and Council of Bombay, to act in ſuch a caſe as they have done.

3d. Becauſe it is a violation of the 9th and 10th Articles of the Treaty concluded between the Governnor General and Council and the Peiſhwa.

3d. The 10th and 12th Articles, which I ſuppoſe to be here meant, expreſs, that the Engliſh ſhall withdraw their forces from Ragonaut Row, and that they ſhall not aſſiſt him; that is, that they ſhall not take his part againſt the Maratta Government, as the 12th Article expreſſes in terms; but if that Government itſelf adopts the party of Ragonaut Row, and ſolicits the aſſiſtance of the Engliſh in his behalf, it can never be inferred from their compliance, that they are guilty of a violation of the treaty.

It will be remembered, that the only perſons who have ſigned the treaty on the part of the Marattas, are Succaram Pundit and Ballajee Pundit, not as principals, but as the profeſſed repreſentatives of the Peiſhwa, who is yet an infant; of theſe, Succaram Pundit is acknowledged to be the ſuperior, being by office the Dewan. To him only all our firſt letters were written; and Colonel Upton's credentials were addreſſed, as to the perſon in whom the legal adminiſtration was veſted. By the conſtitution of all Indian Governments, the executive power is always held by the hands of a ſingle man. The perſon of the Peiſhwa and his ſeal, by which all Acts of Government are authenticated, are in the poſſeſſion of Succaram Pundit; whoſe Acts are therefore the regular Acts of Government, whilſt the Members of it continue divided.

He is ſuppoſed to have invited the Preſidency of Bombay, to unite with him in giving aſſiſtance to Ragonaut Row; and we have received aſſurances from that Preſidency, that they will not comply with the invitation, until they ſhall receive the due evidence of its authenticity. Their aſſiſtance of courſe will be granted equally to the Maratta State as to Ragonaut Row; and to the Peiſhwa, the actual Ruler of the Maratta State. It is not therefore a violation of the treaty concluded between the Governor General and Council, and the Peiſhwa.

4th. Becauſe ſuch violation of a public treaty between two ſtates is not to be juſtified by the reaſons aſſigned for it, viz. that a number of individuals in one of thoſe ſtates are inclined to engage in meaſures ſubverſive of all or any of the ſtipulations of ſuch public treaty, and have privately applied for aſſiſtance in carrying ſuch meaſures into execution.

4th. This objection appears to me to conſiſt of a ſimple denial of an argument erroneouſly ſtated. The propoſition which it introduces, is incompatible in terms. A violation of a public treaty cannot be juſtified by any reaſons aſſigned for it. The reaſons aſſigned to the Preſident and Council of Bombay, are not that a number of individuals in the Maratta State are inclined to engage in meaſures ſubverſive of all or any of the ſtipulations of the treaty, and have privately applied for aſſiſtance, &c. but, that the ruling Member of the Maratta State has himſelf removed the obligation of the treaty which relates to the perſon of Ragonaut Row, by deſiring the Engliſh to grant that aſſiſtance to Ragonaut Row in behalf of the Maratta State, which they had before pledged their faith to him to withhold while he was conſidered as an enemy to that ſtate. The reaſons thus aſſigned appear to me to be a complete juſtification and acquittal of the Preſident and Council of Bombay, in their ſuppoſed acquieſcence from the charge of having violated the treaty.

5th. Becauſe even the evidence of ſuch a diſpoſition in perſons alluded to, appears to us very uncertain and defective, being no more than a private verbal meſſage from them to Mr. Moſtyn's ſubſtitute at Poonah; meant perhaps for no other purpoſe but to diſcover our intentions with reſpect to Ragoba, and which they may diſavow at pleaſure.

6th. Becauſe there are no proofs before us to warrant our giving credit to an aſſertion ſo improbable as, that Succaram Baboo, whoſe letters to the Governor have been conſtantly, and are to this time, filled with complaints againſt the non-execution of the treaty, and particularly of the protection given to Ragoba, ſhould voluntarily enter into private engagements, to reſtore Ragoba to the Regency, and ſolicit the aſſiſtance of the Preſidency of Bombay for that purpoſe.

5th. If the meaſures of the Preſident and Council of Bombay, have been decidedly taken on ſuch weak grounds as are ſuppoſed in this objection, their conduct would have been truly reprehenſible. The contrary appears on the face of their proceedings. I have not either of the copies before me, underſtanding that they are in circulation; but I truſt ſecurely to my memory, in affirming, that their reſolutions are guarded with all the cautions which ſuch a caſe demanded, with perhaps one exception: they had done nothing on the overtures made to them, but had only agreed on what they would do, if theſe were confirmed and authenticated by an inſtrument in writing, ſigned by the Miniſter and his colleagues, and ſealed with their ſeals, and delivered by a perſon deputed by them expreſsly to the Governor. Such evidence will be certain and complete; and on ſuch evidence only, have the Preſident and Council of Bombay reſolved to enter into engagements with the Miniſter. Appendix, Nos. 27, 28, & 29.

6th. We have been long ſince informed of the mutual jealouſies of the two Miniſters. This is an effect which requires no evidence of facts to prove it; it being phyſically impoſſible for two men, ſharing with equal power, and without any conſtitutional right, the chief adminiſtration of a deſpotic Government, to maintain their union entire againſt the competitions excited by their particular intereſts, or the more intereſted ſuggeſtions of their reſpective partizans and dependants; added to theſe cauſes, which are common to all men placed in a condition ſimilar to theirs, their proſpects and diſpoſitions are ſuch as muſt draw them in contrary directions; and this too is a conſequence which ſimple ſpeculation may form independant of formal evidence: one is diſqualified from action by the infirmities of old age, and whatever influence his ambition might have had on his mind when he firſt engaged in a ſcene of troubles, this muſt have wholly forſaken him with the object, which moſt probably excited it in the loſs of an only ſon. To ſuch a man eaſe and perſonal ſafety are the only comforts that life can preſent to him, or that can animate him to any degree of temporary exertion. We are accordingly told, and on the authority of credit, that he reſides entirely in the fortreſs of Poorunder, which is his own property, with the infant Peiſhwa in his poſſeſſion, and (as I have heard) a conſiderable hoard of treaſure, which he refuſed to part with, even at the time when his colleague was involved in great difficulties by the want of money to pay the army, which had mutinied for their arrears. The other is yet in the active ſeaſon of life, ſupported partly by the perſonal intereſt of his aſſociate joined to his own, partly by the attachment of Hurry Punt Furkia, the Commander in Chief of the forces of the Maratta State, and partly by the immediate direction of all the current buſineſs of Government, which he has either aſſumed or his partner has left to his ſole charge. To ſuch a man it was an obvious and neceſſary policy to employ the preſent means of precluding all future competitions, and for ſecuring the firſt place in the ſtate on the event of the death of Succaram Baboo: the means employed for ſuch an end, and eſpecially the proviſion made of a foreign alliance to promote it, could not fail to heighten the ſuſpicions of his preſent rival, and to breed diſaffection in others.

If Succaram Baboo can obtain the aſſured conditions of perſonal ſafety, and the unmoleſted poſſeſſion of his own property from Ragoba, I ſee no cauſe to regard his acceptance of them as improbable, although he ſhould have joined in more adverſe acts againſt Ragoba, than that inſtanced by Mr. Francis of his complaint of the protection granted by the Engliſh to Ragoba, whilſt his own intereſt and ſafety appeared to be endangered by it.

I am not certain whether I may not miſconceive the tendency of this and the preceding objection, but they ſeem to me to imply that the late overtures made to the Preſidency of Bombay by Succaram Baboo and his party, through Mr. Lewis, may have been an artifice concerted between them and Nanna Furneeſs himſelf, not only to diſcover our intentions with reſpect to Ragoba, but to gain the poſſeſſion of his perſon and to deſtroy him. This would be a very dangerous policy both to the Miniſters themſelves, if they were ſincerely united in it, as it would draw on them a very unneceſſary ſcene of troubles, which from paſt experience of the ſucceſs which has generally attended the Engliſh arms, they have ſo great a cauſe to ſolicit, and particularly to Nanna Furneeſs, as it would place him preciſely and truly in the ſituation which it was intended to feign, and leave him at the abſolute mercy of his accomplices, if they choſe to convert a pretended plot againſt him into a real one. In effect I ſhould conſider the exiſtence of ſuch a deſign as in the nature of things impoſſible.

7th. Becauſe, admitting that a party has been formed to ſupport the pretenſions of Ragoba, ſuch party is either ſtrong enough to accompliſh their purpoſe without our aſſiſtance, conſequently our interference is unneceſſary; or if their own ſtrength be in itſelf unequal to the enterprize, they will then want an immediate and continued ſupport which the Preſidency of Bombay is in no condition to give them. In their letter of the 7th December they tell us, that their European battalions are greatly deficient of their proper complement, which they have no means or proſpect of completing: and that notwithſtanding they

7th. I agree with Mr. Francis, that the Preſidency of Bombay is unable to ſupport a continued war, but by ſupplies of men and money from Bengal. This is an argument to ſupply them with men and money, but it is not in itſelf an objection to their reſolution; if their own means are equal to its immediate execution, and to its ſupport until they can be aſſiſted from Bengal.

This Government can aſſiſt them with both men and money, and I truſt without feeling the want of either for the ſupport of its own concerns. By the laſt returns from Bombay, the groſs numbers of their different military corps ſtood as follows:

Artillery,	Rank and File	-	-	261
European Infantry,	D°	-	-	783
Sepoys	D°	-	-	5621
Irregulars		-	-	1231

give every encouragement, it is very difficult to raiſe good ſepoys on that coaſt. That they are unable to co-operate with the other Preſidencies, in caſe of an attack upon either of them; that limited as their power is, and unprovided as they are with reſources, they cannot exert themſelves as the occaſion requires, they can do no more than repreſent their ſituation and circumſtances to us, &c.

It follows then that the reſolution of the Bombay Preſidency, to carry Ragoba to Poonah, may involve us in a war, in which the ſafety of our poſſeſſions on the Maratta coaſt may be immediately hazarded, and which can no way be ſupported hereafter but by ſupplies of men and money from Bengal.

8th. Becauſe it is at all times the duty of this Council to give their utmoſt attention to the preſervation of peace in India, but at this juncture more particularly than at any other while a conſiderable part of the national force is employed in America, and while the apprehenſion of a war, with France and Spain hangs over the councils of the nation.

9th. Becauſe the requiſition made by the Preſidency of Bombay to that of Fort Saint George, of a body of troops for any purpoſe but that of immediate ſelf-defence without our conſent and approbation, appears to us highly irregular, and in its conſequences dangerous, as it tends to defeat the intention of the Legiſlature in the inſtitution of this Council; and to make it impoſſible for us to provide for the ſafety of the Britiſh Empire in India by any general plan of meaſures.

It is not poſſible that the Company's forces ſhould act under a ſteady and united direction for the general ſafety and defence of our poſſeſſions, or move together in any one plan of action, as long as the reſpective diſpoſition of the forces of each of the other Preſidencies is liable to be altered without our knowledge or conſent.

10th. Becauſe the reſolutions taken by the Preſidency of Bombay not only ſtand in direct contradiction to the authorities and engagements hereinbefore recited but more eſpecially to the inſtructions of this Council, unanimouſly agreed, on the 18th Auguſt laſt, which they appear to have totally diſregarded, and which it is our duty to ſupport and inſiſt

The force of this Preſidency was much leſs at the battle of Plaſſey. It was much leſs, when it was at the ſame time occupied in the defence of theſe provinces againſt the Shahzade, and in the expedition under Colonel Forde againſt Maſulipatam; and it was much leſs when unſupported by any country power, it wreſted the provinces of Bengal and Bahar from the hands of Coſſein Ally Cawn.

I have no doubt of their being in a ſtate to enter upon the meaſure which they have propoſed. The diſtance of Bombay from Poonah is but a march of four days. I am informed that Madajee Scindia and Tuckojee Holkar are both encamped in the neighbourhood of Poonah, with about 20,000 horſe. They are, if the aſſociation has taken place, in the intereſt of Ragoba. Hurry Punt Furkia was, I am informed, on the banks of the river Kiſtna, at a place called Kiſtna Teer, with the main army of the Maratta State, engaged in a war with Hyder Ally: he is repreſented to be attached to Nanah Furneeſe, but can afford him little ſervice on ſuch an occaſion and at ſuch a diſtance. Such is the preſent ſtate of the parties on which the event of an undertaking, ſuch as has been propoſed by the Preſidency of Bombay, is likely to depend, at leaſt ſuch I have gathered it to be from authorities unconnected with thoſe of Bombay. I ſhall not preſume to draw any concluſions from ſuch uncertain and variable materials; but I am ſatisfied that all appearances, ſuch as they are, are favourable, and convinced that it depends on the prudence of the Government of Bombay to prevent the Company's affairs from ſuffering any prejudice by the propoſed engagements; if they ſhould even fail to derive any inſtant benefit from it.

8th. The argument which is here introduced as an objection to the propoſed meaſure, would, in my judgement, be better applied to the defence of it. If the apprehenſion of a war with France and Spain hangs over the councils of the nation, we relieve them from a conſiderable ſhare of their apprehenſion, by eſtabliſhing a firm intereſt in the moſt powerful ſtate of India; and by checking in its firſt growth the ſeeds which the French have ſown of an alliance with it, and which, if ſuffered to grow to maturity, may prove fatal to the Britiſh poſſeſſions in India. At the ſame time it is the moſt unexceptionable way by which the French deſigns could poſſibly be obviated; as they have no oſtenſible or direct concern in theſe diſputes, but will be eventually cruſhed by the overthrow of their friends; whereas by waiting till they have acquired an eſtabliſhment in the Maratta Dominions, we ſhall be reduced to act openly againſt them, which we cannot do without an immediate additional hazard, nor without involving the two nations in a war.

9th. A like application was made by the Preſidency of Bombay to that of Fort Saint George in the year 1775, with which, in a letter written to the latter on the 7th September, we forbad their compliance.

The ſentiments expreſſed by the Court of Directors in the 45th paragraph of their commands of the 24th December 1776 on that interference, is ſo pointedly oppoſite to the objection now ſtated by Mr. Francis, that I ſhall inſert an extract of that paragraph as a complete reply to it.

" We are ſorry to obſerve, that you appear to entertain an opinion " of the controlling powers veſted in the Governor General and Coun- " cil of Bengal over our other Preſidencies, beyond what in our " opinion is authoriſed by the late act of the Legiſlature.

" This obſervation ariſes from your interference with our Governor " and Council of Fort Saint George, to prohibit them ſending " troops out of their own diſtricts for aid to our ſettlement of Bombay, " although the ſaid act expreſsly forbids any of the other Preſidencies " to engage in political negociations with the natives, or foreign " nations, without the participation and concurrence of the Supreme " Council; yet it certainly leaves each diſtinct Government power " to take from time to time ſuch ſteps as the immediate exigency of " their affairs may require for ſelf-defence or protection, or for the ne- " ceſſary aid or aſſiſtance to be given to other ſettlements; and on this " principle we muſt diſapprove your interference in this caſe."

10th. While I was preparing the Minute recorded on the 26th January, and written before the receipt of the late advices from Bombay, I cauſed the laſt of theſe expedients to be ſtated in a caſe, and referred to a learned Pundit for his opinion upon it. I intended it at that time for my own information only; and it was on the ſtrength of this opinion, that I declared the expedient to be impracticable in the Minute abovementioned; I ſhall now enter the queſtion ſtated to the Pundit, his anſwer, and note of Mr. Elliot's which accompanied it, and produce the originals of each at the Board for further ſatisfaction.

inſiſt on. I deſire the ſecond paragraph in that letter may be read.

The firſt point has undoubtedly afforded juſt cauſe of offence and jealouſy to the Maratta Government. We wiſh that Ragoba had been induced to accept the terms of conciliation lately offered to him by the Miniſters, to reſide at Benares, with a jaghire of five lacks of rupees per annum, in the neighbourhood of Calpee. Theſe conditions, though they effectually removed the objections formerly made by Ragoba againſt the terms ſecured for him by the treaty, were excepted to by him on account of the difficulty of proceeding to Benares; from the danger that he thought his perſon would be expoſed to in a journey by land through the Maratta Dominions; and his religious ſcruples againſt a voyage by ſea.

" We can ſee no reaſon to doubt, that " the preſence of Ragoba at Bombay will " continue to be an inſuperable bar to " the completion of the treaty concluded " with the Maratta Government; nor " can any ſincere cordiality and good " underſtanding be eſtabliſhed with them " as long as he ſhall appear to derive " encouragement and ſupport from the " Engliſh. On the contrary, we think " that although it may not furniſh ſufficient grounds for the actual renewal " of hoſtilities, it will ſo far eſtrange " the minds of the Miniſters at leaſt, as " to compel them to form connections " to the diſadvantage of the Britiſh Government; ſo that notwithſtanding " the forms of a reconciliation ſhould " exiſt, neither party will benefit by the " effects of it. We therefore think it " incumbent upon us to recommend to " your moſt mature conſideration the " dangerous effects of your perſiſting " ſtill to continue that protection to Ragoba, and to deſire you will do all " that lies in your power to remove the " obſtacles which oppoſe his departure " from Bombay; for this purpoſe we " think that he ſhould be required to " make choice either of a journey by " land, if Tuccojee Holkar and Madhajee Sindia will give proper ſecurity to " conduct him in ſafety, which we have " been aſſured they would do; or of a " voyage by ſea, which might be accompliſhed without affecting his religious " purity, if he were accommodated with " a veſſel fitted out and manned immediately under his orders, and by perſons of his own ſect, to be accompanied by one of the Company's marine veſſels for his protection. If both " theſe expedients ſhould be rejected by " Ragoba, we muſt naturally conclude " that it is not his intention to part with " his preſent aſylum, but that the objections which he has ſtarted to the " terms propoſed to him, are mere pretexts; and on this ground we repeat our injunctions, that he be " poſitively required to quit the Company's dependencies, as we ſhall hold you reſponſible for all the " conſequences of continuing the Company's protection to him, after ſuch a refuſal on his part."

Queſtion. A Brahmin of high caſt is deſirous of viſiting Bengal from Surat. It is propoſed, that he ſhall be attended by perſons of his own ſect, and that the veſſel on which he may embark for this voyage ſhall be navigated ſolely by Hindoos. Will this voyage in any ſhape affect his religious purity, or hinder him from performing the neceſſary and indiſpenſable rites and forms of devotion? Appendix. Nos. 27, 28, & 29.

Note from Mr. Elliot.

" I ſend you the ſolution to your queſtion by the Court Pundit, the " only one I could immediately find. He is a man much reſpected for " knowledge. He added in converſation, that a ſingle European, or " other Infidel, would preclude the Brahmin from making the voy- " age."

(Signed) " A. Elliot."

Tranſlate of the Pundit's anſwer.

" If all the men in the ſhip are Hindoos, and all Jowlbugharge,* or " men from whoſe hands it is not impure to receive water to drink, and " two or three Brahmins ſhould accompany him, and he eats, drinks " waſhes, and prays, &c. according to the Shaſter, then he will not " ſuffer in his caſt, and in the caſe ſtated he may come upon a ſhip.

(Signed) " Serree Ram Kiſhun Suema,
" the Court Pundit."

I am aſſured, that though it is cuſtomary for Hindoos to navigate veſſels on the weſt coaſt of India, yet they are always joined with Mahometan Laſcars, who are conſtantly employed in the moſt difficult manœuvres of the ſhip, and in the working of their guns; and the ſociety of ſuch men being themſelves polluted, is, as is well known, equally forbidden to the moſt ſcrupulous Hindoos with that of the profeſſors of a different religion: this expedient was therefore impracticable. What objections either Ragoba's diſtruſt of Madhajee Scindia, and Tuccojee Holcar, or their refuſal to give the requiſite ſecurities, might have created to the other expedient, we cannot know, becauſe time was not given for the trial of either; but had either been practicable, it ought not to have prevented the Preſident and Council of Bombay from accepting a propoſition which promiſed ſo much more effectual a conciliation of the differences ſubſiſting between them and the Miniſters, and at the ſame time accorded ſo perfectly with the declared wiſhes of the Court of Directors. It was not forbidden by our orders, for theſe profeſſed only to preſcribe the only means which had occurred to us for the firſt of theſe ends, nor had any reference to a caſe which we neither foreſaw nor imagined.

If the intentions of that Preſidency in this inſtance are juſtified by the Act of Parliament, as I have proved; if they were ſuch as the Company's orders not only juſtified but required, which I have alſo proved; no influences drawn by forced implications from the orders of this Government; can deprive them of their rectitude, which they derive from ſuch ſuperior warrants. In truth, whatever cauſe the Preſident and Council of Bombay have formerly given to this Government to charge them with a want of due attention to its authority, nothing could be more unjuſt than to impute that fault to them on this occaſion, if it be admitted, as it muſt, that the reſolution which they propoſed to take was ſuch as could not poſſibly wait the ſanction of this Government; as ſoon as it came in contemplation before them, and before they had either formed the plan of their operations, or propoſed the advantages to be obtained by them, they inſtantly apprized us of it, and thereby furniſhed an argument againſt themſelves, to charge them with the neglect of thoſe eſſential conſiderations, in their precipitancy to communicate to us the firſt ſuggeſtions of a deſign of ſuch importance to the political intereſts of the Company.

* Jowlbugharge is a term which includes nearly all the caſts of Hindoos, the very loweſt only being excepted.

Appendix. No. 30.

If the Board ſhould agree in the preceding reſolutions, I am of opinion that a copy of them ſhould be ſent to the Preſident and Council of Bombay, with an additional declaration, That we deem them ſolely reſponſible to the Company and the nation for all the conſequences of the meaſures they have taken, or may take on this occaſion, without our conſent and approbation; and that whereas they have not yet demanded of us any ſpecific ſupply, either of men or money, to ſupport the execution of the above meaſures, we are determined, that whatever aſſiſtance we may be compelled to give them, by the neceſſity of defending the Company's poſſeſſions on that coaſt, ſhall be ſtrictly confined to the objects of defence: and that we will never encourage or ſupport any plan of operations calculated to carry the Company's arms beyond that line without our conſent and approbation firſt had and obtained, or without the expreſs and ſpecific orders of the Company to that effect; that when we receive the further advices they promiſe to give us, of what is likely to be the iſſue of this buſineſs, we ſhall communicate to them our opinion and reſolution thereupon.

(Signed) Warren Haſtings.

Mr. Barwell—As a diviſion has unhappily ariſen on the preſent queſtion, on the meaſures adopted by the Government of Bombay, and the reſponſibility of the approbation expreſſed in the votes of this day, pointedly fixed on the approving members: that it may not be ſuppoſed I admit in the leaſt degree the objections that now appear upon the proceedings, I adopt entirely the Governor General's reaſonings upon the ſubject of them, and ſubſcribe my name as fully to his Minute, as if it had been written with my aſſent and participation.

Mr. Francis—Much might be ſaid in defence of thoſe opinions, which the Governor General has been pleaſed to canvaſs ſo minutely; but as the argument would turn chiefly on the conſtruction of words, on nice diſtinctions in forming ſuch conſtructions, and probable inferences deduced from thence, I ſhall not enter into it. I do not expect that ſuch an argument would be attended to at home, nor do I think it affects the principle on which a queſtion of the magnitude of that which is now before us ought to be determined. I ſhall leave it to a higher tribunal to determine, whether the caſe of imminent neceſſity, deſcribed by the Legiſlature, relates ſolely to meaſures of ſelf-defence, or includes all others, according to the opinion, and at the diſcretion of the ſubordinate Preſidencies? and whether, when the Company ſay, "That, if from any circumſtance our Governor General and Council ſhall deem it expedient, they have no objection to an alliance with Ragoba," they mean to refer that queſtion ſolely to us, or to ſubject it to a ſort of concurring juriſdiction in the Government of Bombay? If they meant the laſt, it might have happened, that the queſtion would have received two oppoſite deciſions; and that the inferior juriſdiction might, by acts done upon their own principles, decide it againſt our judgment and reſolutions. I ſhall alſo leave another queſtion untouched, viz. Whether the caſe of Ragoba's caſt is an object of ſuch importance to this Government, that we are to hazard a general war in India for the ſake of preſerving of it? I have but one more obſervation to make upon the Governor's Minute, in reply to my objection to the requiſition made by the Preſidency of Bombay for military aſſiſtance from that of Madras. He quotes a letter from the Company, from which he concludes, that in the opinion of the Court of Directors, we are not entitled to forbid ſuch requiſitions: I do not admit, that in any caſe whatever, eſpecially a caſe of ſuch great importance as the preſent, arguments are ever anſwered by authorities; but I contend, that the ſenſe of the Court of Directors, even in the paragraph ſo recited, does not ſtand in oppoſition to the opinion ſtated in my former Minute: it ſuppoſes, that the ſubordinate Preſidencies may lawfully apply for aſſiſtance to each other, "as the "immediate exigency of their affairs may require, for "ſelf-defence or protection." This caſe is included in that of the imminent neceſſity ſtated by the Legiſlature; and I have never affirmed, that ſelf-defence and protection did not authorize the ſubordinate Preſidencies to take meaſures tending to thoſe purpoſes only, without our previous conſent and approbation.

Mr. Barwell—I beg the occaſion on which the Bombay Preſidency made their application to Madras, the diſapprobation of this Government, the materials on which the above ſentiments on the Court of Directors are expreſſed, may follow in this place.

The Governor General—I believe it is expreſſed in the following letter, written by this Preſidency to Fort St. George, dated 7th September 1775.

Copy of a letter to Fort St. George, dated the 7th September 1775.

Underſtanding from a letter which we have received from the Preſident and Council of Bombay, dated 13th July, that they have applied to you for a reinforcement of 300 Europeans, and two complete battalions of ſepoys, to join their army now in quarters with Ragoba, we think it neceſſary to deſire, that you will not comply with this application, as we have judged it expedient to order that Preſidency to withdraw their army from the ſervice of Ragoba to their own garriſons, and confine their views and operations to the ſafety of the Company's poſſeſſions, including Salſette; truſting that a ſecure and honourable peace will be effected with the miniſterial party by Colonel Upton, on his arrival at Poonah.

Mr. Francis—I beg leave to move, that notice may be taken, in the preſent general letter, of the ſupply of 6,000 muſkets and 4,000 hand grenades, furniſhed by the Preſidency of Bombay to Hyder Ally, with our requeſt to them, that they will take it into their conſideration, and furniſh us and the Preſidency of Bombay with their ſentiments and inſtructions thereupon.

Mr. Wheler aſſents.

Mr. Barwell—I do not know the object of this queſtion. It appears to be ſuggeſted without conſideration, that this information muſt already have been given to the Company by that Preſidency; and to ſwell it into a degree of importance which the ſubject does not merit, the papers in courſe go home with the general intelligence from Bombay. I therefore am againſt the motion.

Governor General—I object to the motion. It may be mentioned in the general letter, as a propoſition made, but not agreed to. This will bring it equally before the notice of the Court of Directors, if an extract be added from the proceedings of the Preſident and Council of Bombay, of ſo much as relates to it.

Mr. Francis—I aſſent to the mode propoſed by the Governor General.

Reſolved, That the motion be notified to the Court of Directors, as a propoſition having been made, but not agreed to.

APPENDIX, No. 30.

Extract of a letter from the Governor General and Council in Bengal to the Court of Directors; dated 4th February 1778.

Par. 7. IN our letter by the Europa, dated 21ſt November, we mentioned the reſerve of the Preſident and Council of Bombay, in their communications to us: Secret Department.

after waiting till the 26th ultimo, in expectation of further advices on the important ſubjects which had raiſed our anxiety, we received a letter from them, dated the 7th December, incloſing a copy of the propoſals brought by Mr. Moſtyn from the Miniſters, for an accommodation with Ragoba, which he declined to accept, chiefly becauſe he did not think they contained an adequate proviſion for his perſonal ſafety.

8. On the 29th January we received another letter from Bombay, dated 12th December, adviſing us of overtures which had been ſecretly made by an Agent, in the names of Succaram Baboo, Moraba Furneſe, Bucherba Proonder, and Tuccojee Holcar, to Mr. Lewis, Mr. Moſtyn's ſubſtitute at Poonah, for the aſſiſtance of the Engliſh in replacing Ragonaut Row in the adminiſtration of the affairs of the Maratta Government. The Preſident and Council conſidering theſe overtures as made by the Maratta State, have agreed, that if the above perſons ſhould join in a formal application to them, for the Company's aſſiſtance in favour of Ragonaut Row, they would immediately grant it, and directed Mr. Lewis to communicate their intentions to the party with all poſſible caution and ſecrecy.

9. We immediately aſſembled for the conſideration of proceedings of ſo much importance; and after the moſt attentive deliberation, we came to the following reſolutions; but as they were not taken without much debate, and variety of opinions, we think it neceſſary to recommend to your peruſal the Conſultations noted in the margin, which are tranſmitted a number in the book packet.

Conſ. 26 Jan. 29 Dº. 5 Feb. See Appx. 27, 28, 29.

10. In the Conſultation 2d February, you will find a motion from one of our Members, to notify to you a ſupply of 6,000 muſkets and 4,000 hand grenades, which have been furniſhed by the Preſident and Council of Bombay to Hyder Ally, &c. but as we did not agree to mention it in the terms of the motion, we beg leave to quote the letter from Bombay, wherein this tranſaction is imparted to us; viz. "We incloſe for your notice, "copy of a letter from the Nabob Hyder Ally to our "Reſident at Onore: we have to obſerve, that we ſup"plied him with the muſkets therein mentioned by "permiſſion from the Honourable Company, for the "purchaſe of ſandal wood and pepper in his domi"nions."

11. We have juſt received a letter from the Preſident and Council at Fort Saint George, dated 16th ultimo, which contains a ſtate of the force and reſources of that Preſidency, with many other informations of conſequence; we have therefore cauſed a copy of it to be added to our laſt Conſultation for you notice.

12. In this letter the Preſident and Council have given us, as nearly as they could judge of them, an account of the probable views, intereſts, and connections of the different Country Powers adjacent to your poſſeſſions on the coaſt, with ſuch informations as they had received reſpecting them. It appears that the intention of Hyder Ally is wholly occupied in the defence of his own dominions againſt his natural enemies the Marattas, but that he has a vackeel at Pondicherry, who receives encouragement from the Governor Monſieur Bellecombe, and that this gentleman maintains a correſpondence with Hyder, by which he endeavours to ſecure him to the intereſts of the French.

13. The Maratta army oppoſed to Hyder's was greatly ſuperior to his; but he ſurprized them in the night of the 5th ultimo near the banks of the Jungabuddra, drove them acroſs that river, and obtained a conſiderable advantage over them.

14. We are further informed from Madras, of an application which they had received from the Preſident and Council of Bombay to hold in readineſs 200 Europeans, a battalion of ſepoys, and 50 artillery, to march to Anjengo if their ſubſequent engagements ſhould make it neceſſary to require them. Although the Preſident and Council at Fort Saint George did not think proper to comply with this requeſt, we have informed them of our reſolution to afford the countenance and ſupport of this Government to the undertaking at Bombay in favour of Ragoba, provided it be confined to the objects which have been defined; and we have earneſtly recommended it to them to grant a reinforcement of troops if the application ſhould be renewed. APPENDIX, No. 31.

Copy of a Letter from the Governor General and Council in Bengal, to the Court of Directors, dated the 16th February 1778.

Honourable Sirs,

1. IN addition to our advices from this department, dated the 4th inſtant, by the Kingſton, we have only to tranſmit duplicates of the letters from Bombay, therein referred to, with our proceedings on the ſubject, and copies of ſubſequent advices, which we have received from that Preſidency, and from Mr. Moſtyn ſince his return to Poonah. Theſe do not contain any account of the further progreſs of the negociations begun with Mr. Lewis, and we are very defective in many eſſential points of information, but we can collect from them that the Government of Poonah was in great confuſion. Mr. Lewis refers to a letter which he wrote to the Preſident at Bombay, on the 12th December, for the purport of a converſation which had paſſed between Moraba Furneſe and him, previous to the receipt of the orders of the 12th December; this we conclude is of ſome importance, as it muſt either have confirmed or diſapproved the authority of the firſt overtures made for the Company's aſſiſtance; but by ſome accident we are not furniſhed with a copy of it. A day had been fixed by Moraba for another interview, but in the mean time he ſuddenly retired from Poonah, to avoid a ſcheme which had been laid by Nana for ſeizing him, and it appears that he returned as ſuddenly: we are unacquainted with the cauſe, though Mr. Lewis mentions a conjecture, that it was at the invitation of Siccaram Baboo, who had it in view to engage Nana if poſſible in the aſſociation for introducing Ragoba. Secret Department.

2. On the 14th December, news was received at Poonah of the death of Ram Rajah, the Sovereign of the Maratta State, which was likely to increaſe the confuſion among the Miniſters, by the different intereſts which would be formed in the nomination of a ſucceſſor. And Nana was further diſconcerted, by a report which arrived ſoon after of the defeat of the Maratta army under Hurry Punt, in an engagement with Hyder Ally: he immediately went to Poonah in conſequence of it, where he had a long conference with Sitcaram Baboo.

3. This is the ſubſtance of the intelligence we have been able to collect from Mr. Moſtyn's letters; and he accounts for the imperfection of it, by informing us that guards had been placed by Nana's orders upon the Engliſh Reſidency, which notwithſtanding his remonſtrance to the Durbar, had not at the date of his letter been withdrawn.

APPENDIX, No. 32.

Bombay Secret Conſultations, the 6th January 1778.

Wedneſday, the 14th.

EARLY this morning Mr. Moſtyn ſet off for Poonah.

PRESENT,

The Honourable William Hornby, Eſquire, Preſident and Governor,
The W. John Carnac, Eſquire, Daniel Draper.
Nath. Stackhouſe, Will^m. Aſhburner.
Andrew Ramſay.

Read, and approved, our laſt Conſultation of the 2d inſtant.

The Preſident lays before us two letters from Mr. Lewis, one from Mr. Moſtyn, and one from Moraba Furneeſe, all entered hereafter.

It is reſolved, That nothing further can be done in the buſineſs, unleſs Succaram Bappoo joins in making application to us for the aſſiſtance of the Company to reinſtate Ragoba; as we cannot think of acting in any manner contrary to the late treaty, unleſs by expreſs deſire of the principal perſon with whom it was concluded.

Wm. Hornby,
Adjourned. Wm. Aſhburner,
Edw^d Ravenſcroft, Sec^y. D. Draper,
N. Stackhouſe.

The gentleman has at laſt begun to open himſelf, by a meſſage late this evening, and I will run all riſques of having a meeting with him to-morrow or next day: he wants to know how many troops we will ſupply, and if we will ſupply warlike ſtores.

Dated 6th January 1778.

I am this moment come from Moraba. He began the diſcourſe by telling me, that he was ready to join us for the purpoſe your Honour knew of: but, ſays he, if we once enter into it, let us go through heartily, and let there be no excuſe on the part of the Governor and Council afterwards, that they have received orders to make peace as they did before. I told him, that I thought the moſt likely method to avoid ſuch orders, would be for the four gentlemen formerly mentioned, to ſend ſuch a letter as was promiſed me. To this however he objected, ſaying, that he would not make uſe of any other perſon's name than his own; and that he could himſelf bring twenty thouſand men into the field, if your Honour and the Board thought proper to go upon the buſineſs in his name. He further added, that if the Council would declare their reſolution to act conformable to what he now ſaid, he would open himſelf entirely to me, and tell me how many more troops he could bring, and on whom he could depend for aſſiſtance: but, ſays he, it will be improper to explain myſelf further, until I know their anſwer; for the buſineſs muſt be managed in my name only. He alſo ſaid, that if the Engliſh and he once undertook the affair in a proper manner, he would anſwer to ſettle the Government in three months time. Before I left this gentleman, he made me promiſe, that I would write your Honour the above before I went to ſleep, and to requeſt that an anſwer might be ſent in five days from this date, if poſſible.

Dated the 9th January 1778.

Honourable Sir,

I addreſſed you the 7th at night from Compolee, incloſing two letters I met on the road from Mr. Lewis; I make no doubt of their having reached you. As there was nothing in their contents to prevent my proceeding, I ſet out the next morning, and arrived here yeſterday about 10 o'clock. Nothing occurred on the road, nor did the Government take the leaſt notice of me, not even by a complimentary meſſage, though they were publicly adviſed of my coming into town tha morning by Mr. Lewis. Immediately on my arrival I gave the neceſſary notice both to Nana, Mado Row, and Byrow Punt, and requeſted of the former that I might be favoured with an audience as ſoon as poſſible, not only to acquaint them with the iſſue of the buſineſs they had entruſted me with, but alſo the buſineſs I was charged with from your Honour, &c. He replied, that that day was their Sancrant, and that to-day was an unlucky one; he therefore could not ſee me, but to-morrow would conſider of it. I know no remedy but patience, but will uſe every endeavour to procure one as ſoon as I can; until when, I ſhall defer addreſſing the Board, and alſo forwarding the public packet for the Governor General and Council; not only that I may inform them with the determination of the Durbar, but it may be altogether unneceſſary from the letter you will receive from Mr. Lewis, and a letter I now forward you from Moraba. This letter I procured early this morning, and will I hope convince you of his ſincerity, and alſo confirm what Mr. Lewis has wrote you. I wiſh to God you may be able to undertake the buſineſs; ſuch another opportunity may never again offer. Sacram I firmly believe is concerned, and will aſſiſt privately all he can, but I am afraid will not yet be brought to give it under his hand. Moraba's deſire, that the buſineſs may be done in his name, is I judge to prevent Buchaba laying a prior claim to the Duanſhip, who is appointed by the Rajah, has never yet himſelf been the acting man, and indeed is unequal to the charge in theſe troubleſome times.

Yeſterday being a holiday, I could get little or no intelligence; and indeed the ſtrict watch that is kept over every one belonging to us will make it very tedious, as it can only be done by night. You may depend on my being as expeditious as poſſible.

Permit me to entreat an early anſwer to Moraba's letter, and that it will be ſuch as not to diſappoint all his hopes of concluding matters through us.

I remain, with real eſteem,
Poonah, Honourable Sir,
11th January 1778. Your moſt obedient ſervant,
Tho^s. Moſtyn.

Bombay Secret Conſultations, the 19th January 1778.

Honourable Sir, and Gentlemen,

I have the pleaſure of informing you that I arrived here the 10th, in the morning, without meeting any obſtruction, though not the leaſt compliment was paid me on the part of the Durbar, notwithſtanding they had been publicly adviſed by Mr. Lewis of my intentions to enter the town that morning; immediately on my arrival I gave the proper notice to the Durbar, and requeſted an audience as ſoon as poſſible. Nannah ſent me word that that day being a holiday, and the next an unlucky day, he could not conſider of it before the 12th. After repeated meſſages I at laſt obtained an audience on the 13th, at which were preſent Nannah Furneze, Mada Row, Jada Row, Byroo Punt, and Heſſorow, the ſon of Mada Row, when I delivered the letter from the Honourable the Preſident to the Peiſhwa, ſent ſome time ſince to Mr. Lewis, but which Nannah had declined receiving from that gentleman, unleſs conveyed to him through the hands of Mada Row, Jada Row, and Byroo Punt. I at the ſame time, agreeable to your inſtructions, remonſtrated in the ſtrongeſt terms on the diſreſpect ſhewn to the Company by the reſtrictions laid upon their Repreſentative, and demanded a poſitive and ſpeedy anſwer to every point of the letter. To which Nannah replied, That the Durbar would give ſuch an anſwer as was uſual with them; when I obſerved to him that none but a plain and direct anſwer would be received: I then told the Durbar that no anſwer had been ſent to a former letter from the Honourable the Preſident; on which they obſerved, it required no anſwer, that letter being only a reply to ſome letters the Peiſhwa had written him; but on my reminding them that it contained contained a demand for a Duſtuck for the two gentlemen who came to us from the French, they pretended to recollect it; and ſaid they would likewiſe give their anſwer thereto in writing. I then acquainted them with the iſſue of my commiſſion to Ragoba, to which I received no reply.

After I had taken my leave of the Durbar, knowing Byroo Punt has great influence with Nannah, I repeated to him the abſolute neceſſity of a ſpeedy anſwer to the above letter, which he promiſed ſhould be ſent me in two days; however from the knowledge I have of the dilatorineſs of this Government, not chuſing to place entire confidence in this promiſe, I wrote under the 14th to Mhado Row Jada Row that I hoped he would procure it me as ſoon as poſſible; and ſent a meſſage of the ſame kind to Byroo Punt. They replied that they had ſpoken to Nannah on the buſineſs after I had left him, who ſaid it was neceſſary he ſhould firſt conſult with Sacram Bappoo; in conſequence of which the incloſed correſpondence enſued; from which your Honour, &c. will plainly perceive Nannah is uſing every artifice to evade giving an anſwer; I ſhall therefore write to the Peiſhwa, in hopes of procuring ſome reply; and in the mean time beg leave to obſerve that the Chowkeys are ſtill continued. I ſhould have done myſelf the honour of addreſſing you before, but was induced from promiſes made me by the Durbar to wait a few days in hopes of being able to tranſmit you their anſwer to the Honourable the Preſident's letter.

On the evening of my arrival, I endeavoured to bring Moraba to an explanation, in conſequence of which he ſent me a letter for the Honourable the Preſident, which was forwarded the 11th; and notwithſtanding I have ſince frequently urged him, he declines being more explicit until an anſwer thereto.

The following, according to the beſt information I have been able to procure, is the ſtate of the different armies: Moodajee Bouncello is ſtill at Lackanwaddy Gaut, about 30 coſs to the eaſtward of Auringabad; Holkar continues at his own village of Banhjam, and by his refuſing to ſee Nannah, or any one he may ſend, appears to be determined on not coming to any terms with him; Madjee Scindy is endeavouring to raiſe contributions on Janojee Patancar's jaghire, near Rimutpore, has had a ſkirmiſh with him, in which Janojee was killed; this action it is ſaid has cauſed great diſcontent amongſt all the Maratta officers in Scindy's camp.

Hurry Punt has again been defeated by Hyder, and has retreated to Panchmal, on the northern bank of the Kiſtna, in hopes of receiving ſome aſſiſtance from Downſa, who is encamped at Narrain Pent, about twelve coſs from Hurry Punt. Hyder's army has croſſed to the northward of the Tongebodras in purſuit of him. The Durbar are uſing every endeavour to perſuade the Nizam (who, on account of a wedding in his family, has not yet left Hyderabad, as was reported) to join them againſt Hyder, but which he refuſed doing till they comply with the promiſes made him when he joined them againſt Ragoba, which are, their delivering him the forts of Aſhur and Amadanagur. I have reaſon to believe this intelligence can be depended on, having received it from ſeveral hands.

On my entering the town, obſerving ſeveral parties of horſe encamped about it, I ſent people to make enquiry of the numbers; from whoſe reports I find there are from 8 to 10,000, belonging to different officers.

Monſieur de Corcelle, the French gentleman who took our protection, having received aſſurances from people in whom he could confide, that he had nothing to fear, on the 14th at night delivered me a letter, tranſlate of which is incloſed, and immediately left the factory.

I am, with reſpect,

Poonah, Honourable Sir, and Gentlemen,
16th January 1778. Your moſt obedient ſervant,
Thomas Moſtyn.

PRESENT,

The Honourable William Hornby, Eſquire, Preſident and Governor,

The W. John Carnac, Eſquire, Daniel Draper,
Nath. Stackhouſe, Will^m Aſhburner,
Andrew Ramſay.

READ, and approved, our laſt Conſultation of the 14th inſtant.

The Preſident informs us, that he has received a meſſage from Ragoba, acquainting him that advice has been ſent him from Poonah, that an agreement has actually been concluded in writing for giving Row Dund or Choul to the French, but that the ſunnuds have not yet been iſſued.

It being of the utmoſt importance to aſcertain the truth of this intelligence, Mr. Moſtyn muſt be directed to ſpare neither pains nor expence for that purpoſe; and to ſend immediate advice of the reſult of his enquiries to us, and the Governor General and Council.

From the uniform conduct of the Poonah Government for a long time paſt, and from the repeated intelligence we have received, it is paſt a doubt that ſome agreement has been concluded between them and the French, of which indeed the Governor General and Council appear to be convinced, by their letter of the 20th October.——We think it very probable that the intelligence ſent by Ragoba may be true; and more particularly from the circumſtance of a French gentleman having been landed at Choul the 30th ultimo, from a veſſel directly from Pondicherry, who may have had ſome commiſſion from Mr. Bellecombe the Governor, which may have occaſioned the ceſſion of that place. The conſequences are of ſuch a ruinous nature to the intereſt of the Company, that it is reſolved to ſend inſtant advice of the intelligence we have received to the Governor General and Council; and to aſk them expreſsly, and demand an explicit anſwer, whether in caſe a body of French ſhould arrive and take poſſeſſion of Choul, or we ſhould receive certain advice of ſuch a meaſure being intended, we are to ſuffer them to proceed without interruption, or to uſe our efforts to prevent ſuch a ſettlement from taking place?

It is our fixed and deliberate opinion, which we think it neceſſary to record for our own juſtification, and to make the ſame known to the Governor General and Council, that nothing but a change in the preſent Adminiſtration at Poonah can ſecure the Company from the dangers and bad conſequences of an alliance between the French and the Marattas, and that there is no other method to avert the impending evils but by the Company's immediately taking a deciſive part.

Read the letter received this morning from Mr. Moſtyn.

We think Monſieur de Corcelle quitting our protection, appears a very extraordinary circumſtance, after what has paſſed; but we hope during his reſidence with Mr. Lewis, he has not made himſelf maſter of any intelligence of conſequence; Mr. Moſtyn muſt ſend hither and to Bengal a copy of his original letter.

Mr. Moſtyn muſt be directed to ſend advice of every material circumſtance to Bengal, at the ſame time he does to us, and particularly reſpecting the French, whereby much time will be ſaved.

Adjourned.

APPENDIX, No. 34.

Bombay Secret Conſultations, the 20th January 1778.

SIGNED the following letters to Mr. Moſtyn, and the Governor General and Council:

Sir,

Since we wrote you the 14th inſtant, we have received your letter, dated the 16th.

Monſieur Corcelle's quitting our protection, appears an extraordinary circumſtance after what has paſt; but we hope, during the time he lived amongſt the Engliſh, ſo much caution was uſed, that he did not make himſelf maſter of any intelligence of conſequence; we however direct that you tranſmit to us and to the Governor General and Council a copy of his original letter.

We have been informed by a meſſage from Ragoba, that the Durbar has actually agreed, by a written inſtrument, to put the French in poſſeſſion of Choul, but that the ſunnud is not yet iſſued; and as it is of the utmoſt importance to aſcertain the truth of this circumſtance, we direct, that you ſpare neither pains nor expence for this purpoſe; and ſend inſtant advice of the reſult of your enquiries, both to us and the Gentleman at Bengal, to whom you will punctually tranſmit every intelligence of importance, particularly reſpecting the French, at the ſame time you write to us; whereby much time will be ſaved.

We learn that a French gentleman from Pondicherry landed at Choul the 30th ultimo, and proceeded to Poonah, which makes us the more apprehenſive of the truth of Ragoba's information; you will therefore make all poſſible enquiries reſpecting this perſon and his errand at Poonah.

We are

Bombay Caſtle, 20th January 1778. Your loving friends, William Hornby, &c.

Gentlemen,

Incloſed is duplicate of our laſt letter, dated the 3d inſtant.

By the intelligence we have ſince received from Poonah, contained in the incloſed papers, it appears that Moraba, moſt probably from views of ambition, inſiſts on the buſineſs being carried on in his name only; upon which we immediately reſolved, that nothing further could be done, unleſs Saccaram Bappoo, the principal in the late treaty, joined in making a formal application to us; and we in conſequence ſent the neceſſary orders to the Reſident at the Durbar, as per copy ſubjoined to the letters from Poonah.

We have ſent orders for the recall of all the European infantry from the garriſons of Surat and Tannah; but from the diſtance of Broach, and the importance of that province, we judged it would be imprudent to weaken that garriſon, and therefore continued it exactly upon the former footing. We have alſo thought it improper to remove the detachment of artillery either from Surat or Tannah; the latter indeed is ſo contiguous, that we can always command its ſervice at an hour's warning.

We now have it in contemplation to throw our whole body of infantry into one battalion inſtead of two, as the companies are nearly reduced to a third of their complement.

On the 30th ultimo a French gentleman landed at Choul, from a ſnow commanded by a King's officer, which had come direct from Pondicherry, and proceeded to Poonah. On the 18th inſtant Ragoba ſent a meſſage, acquainting us he had received advice from Poonah, that it had been agreed by a written inſtrument, to give Choul or Row Dundah to the French, and that the ſunnud would be hereafter iſſued.

Combining the above circumſtances with Ragoba's intelligence, we are very apprehenſive that the French will ſoon be in poſſeſſion of Choul; and that the French gentleman had ſome commiſſion from Monſieur Bellecombe to the Durbar, which may have occaſioned the ceſſion of that place. We have however directed Mr. Moſtyn to ſpare neither pains nor expence to arrive at the truth on theſe points, and to adviſe you inſtantly of the reſult of his enquiry.

It is alſo extraordinary, that Monſieur de Corcelle, whom you were before adviſed had quitted Monſieur St. Lubin, and taken our protection, withdrew himſelf abruptly from our factory, and returned to Monſieur de St. Lubin. He delivered a letter on his departure, a tranſlation of which, as ſent us by the Reſident, is now incloſed, and we have directed him to forward you a copy of the original.

After the evidence already tranſmitted to you, it will be needleſs to inſiſt further on the certainty of ſome agreement being actually concluded between the French and the Poonah Government, of which indeed you ſeem fully convinced by your letter of the 20th October. Neither are any arguments neceſſary to prove the certain injury, if not total ruin, which muſt enſue to the Company's intereſts on this coaſt, if the French are once eſtabliſhed in a port within 12 miles from the mouth of our harbour. Our duty to the Company, therefore, prompts us to aſk you, and earneſtly to requeſt an immediate reply, whether in caſe a body of French ſhould arrive to take poſſeſſion of Choul, and we ſhould receive certain advice of ſuch a meaſure being intended, we are to ſuffer them to proceed without interruption, or to uſe our efforts to prevent ſuch a ſettlement from taking place?

It is our fixed and deliberate opinion, and which we think it neceſſary to make known to you for our own juſtification, in caſe what we apprehend ſhould happen, that nothing but a change in the preſent adminiſtration at Poonah can ſecure the Company from the dangers and bad conſequences of an alliance between the French and the Marattas; and that there is no other method to avert the impending evils, but by the Company's immediately taking a deciſive part.

Mr. Moſtyn arrived at Poonah the 10th, and incloſed is copy of the only letter we have received from him, giving an account of his reception and firſt audience. He has been directed punctually to tranſmit to you every intelligence of importance, and particularly reſpecting the proceedings of the French.

We are, with reſpect,

Bombay Caſtle, 20th January 1778. Gentlemen, Your moſt obedient ſervants, Wm Hornby, &c.

APPENDIX, Nos. 35 & 37.

Extract of Bengal Secret Conſultations, 23d February 1778.

PRESENT,

The Honourable Warren Haſtings, Governor General, Preſident,
Richard Barwell, Philip Francis, Edward Wheler, } Eſquires.

THE Governor General having ſent the following propoſition to the Secretary on Saturday afternoon, with directions to circulate it to the other Members of the Board, it was immediately ſent round.

The Governor General propoſes that the following draft of a letter be immediately written to the Preſident and Council at Bombay, in reply to their advices now before the Board, by the Ravenſworth, the Commander of which ſhip he underſtands will leave town this evening. He at the ſame time ſubmits to the conſideration of the Board and for their determination, the propoſitions included in the letter.

Gentlemen,

We have now to acknowledge the receipt of two letters from you dated the 3d and 20th ultimo, and two from Mr. Moſtyn under date the 19th and 24th ultimo.

We refer you to our letter of the 2d inſtant, a triplicate of which you will receive by this ſhip, for our reſolutions lutions paſſed on the receipt of your advices of the 12th December.

For the purpoſe of granting you the moſt effectual ſupport in our power, we have reſolved to aſſemble a ſtrong military force near Calpee, the commanding officer of which is to be ordered to march by the moſt practicable route to Bombay, or to ſuch other place as future occurrences and your directions to him may render it expedient.

Although the Event of the overtures which have been made to you yet remains doubtful, we cannot help being exceedingly alarmed at the ſteps which are taking by the French to obtain a ſettlement on the Malabar Coaſt ſo near to Bombay, and to eſtabliſh a political influence in the Maratta State, the immediate object of which muſt be the overthrow of your ſettlement, and the future conſequences dangerous to the Company's poſſeſſions in the other parts of India. We are therefore of opinion that no time ought to be loſt in forming and carrying into execution ſuch meaſures as may moſt effectually tend to fruſtrate ſuch dangerous deſigns; eſpecially as the ſeaſon is ſo far advanced that the rains might ſet in before we could furniſh you with any military aſſiſtance, if we waited for definitive advices from you. We propoſe therefore to give immediate orders for collecting the force above-mentioned. We ſhall direct it to march as ſoon as the ſtores ſhall be provided, and the other neceſſary preparations completed, unleſs from any immediate advices received from you we ſhall judge the proſecution of this deſign unneceſſary.

We ſhall uſe every precaution which can depend on our care and influence, for enſuring a ſafe and unmoleſted paſſage to the detachment, and obtaining regular ſupplies of proviſions on its march; and we earneſtly recommend to you to aſſiſt us in theſe objects; for this purpoſe we ſhall direct the commanding officer to adviſe you continually of his progreſs and wants, and ſhall place him under your command from the day on which he ſhall move with the forces under his charge.

Fort William, We are, &c.
23d February 1778.

P. S. Vide the Governor General's motion hereafter entered.

Read the following opinion delivered by Mr. Wheler.

I object to the Governor General's letter, intended to be written to the Preſident and Council of Bombay; becauſe, ſuppoſing the Board had already reſolved to grant that Preſident and Council a military force equal to the effectual ſupport of one part of the Maratta State againſt the other, which I do not think adviſeable, the route which the troops appointed for that ſervice are to take is neither fixed nor aſcertained, but left to the future determination of the Governor and Council at Bombay, or to the pleaſure of the commanding officer; and more particularly becauſe it is not, previous to the march of the troops, in any degree aſcertained, that the reigning powers through whoſe dominions it ſhall ultimately be judged expedient for them to paſs, are either in union or alliance with the India Company, or that they are diſpoſed to give ſuch aid and aſſiſtance to the ſupport of the detachment as the commanding officer may from time to time require, without which aſſiſtance and ſecurity I am apprehenſive we ſhall expoſe the detachment to imminent riſque.

Upon the whole I am of opinion, that the plan now propoſed for marching a ſmall detachment of troops into a diſtant and remote country, without firſt ſecuring the friendſhip and alliance of the governing powers, is contrary to all ſyſtem, and will prove deſtructive in practice.

To involve the Company in a diſpute with the French upon the ſubject of negociations which are ſaid to have been carried on for the purpoſe of obtaining a ſettlement on the Malabar Coaſt, and likewiſe for the purpoſe of eſtabliſhing a political intereſt in the Maratta State, require a more minute attention than the time allotted will admit; nevertheleſs, that part of the Governor's letter which acquaints the Governor and Council of Bombay that "no time ought "to be loſt in forming and carrying into execution ſuch "meaſures as may moſt effectually tend to fruſtrate ſuch "dangerous deſigns." is in my opinion extremely objectionable; becauſe a paragraph ſo looſely worded may involve not only the India Company but likewiſe the Engliſh nation, in a war with France; and becauſe I do not think we ſhould be juſtified in commencing hoſtilities againſt the French for the avowed purpoſe of depriving them of commercial advantages ſaid to be acquired by treaty. If therefore the French have already obtained, or are likely to obtain advantages from their negociations with the Maratta States, we ſhould endeavour to counteract thoſe advantages by negociation, and not by force; but above all, we ought to be particularly careful at this time to render our inſtructions to the Governor and Council of Bombay ſo plain, diſtinct, and obvious, as not to afford them the ſmall plea or pretence to become the aggreſſors, by commencing hoſtilities againſt the French; and as Mr. Moſtyn has given it as his opinion that no agreement has yet been made between the Marattas and the French, I am induced to believe that it will require no great ingenuity or addreſs to counteract their intentions.

Appendix. Nos. 35 & 37.

Governor General—I muſt beg leave in this place to reply in a very few words to Mr. Wheler's Minute, which I think is grounded on a miſconſtruction of my motion: I have not formally propoſed the route which is to be taken, becauſe the formation of the detachment, if it is to go, is the object that requires an immediate determination; but I do not propoſe that it ſhould be left either to the commanding officer or the Preſident and Council of Bombay: I have already determined the route in my own mind; theſe I will mention verbally to the Board; I hope it is not neceſſary yet to put them on record. I have had opportunities of ſtudying the intereſts and diſpoſitions of the different powers of Hindoſtan and the Decan, although we have had little intercourſe with them; and from the knowledge which I have obtained, I believe the march from Calpee, at leaſt as far as Burrampore, to be practicable and eaſy, and to lead through the country of our friends: beyond that I cannot anſwer; but the diſtance is ſo ſmall, that I have no doubt of making the remainder of our way good, whether it ſhall lead us to Poonah to Bombay, to Surat, or to Broach, even by force if it ſhould be neceſſary. Mr. Wheler has ſaid, that the following paragraph in the letter propoſed to be written to Bombay is ſo looſely worded, that it may involve not only the India Company, but the Engliſh nation, in a war with France; viz. "No time ought to be loſt in "forming and carrying into execution ſuch meaſures "as may moſt effectually tend to fruſtrate ſuch danger-"ous deſigns." I ſhould deſerve to forfeit the place I hold were I wantonly or ſtudiouſly to engage this Government in meaſures which ſhould have ſuch a tendency, if it could be avoided. The words which are above quoted are not the words in which the plan is deſcribed which we are to undertake, but they are the grounds or reaſons on which the plan is concluded. All the public advices from Bombay and Poonah, corroborated by intelligence through other channels, prove beyond a doubt, that the French have already formed a cloſe and intimate connection with the ruling adminiſtration of the Maratta State; have obtained poſſeſſion of a port, not a port of trade, but a door for the introduction of arms and troops into the Maratta Country, almoſt within ſight of Bombay; that they have promiſed a military aſſiſtance to the Marattas, which whether expected from France, or from their garriſons at the Iſle of Mauritius, may in the courſe of a few months be landed on the Maratta Coaſt. The French already affect to ſpeak of the port of Choul as their own. I have informed the Board of an expreſs, which I have every reaſon to believe has been lately ſent by Mr. Chevalier to the Malabar Coaſt, addreſſed both to Monſieur Bellecombe and

Appendix. Nos. 35 & 37.

and the Chevalier St. Lubin. I ſhall not be ſurprized if the next month's intelligence ſhould inform us that Monſieur Bellecombe, the Chief of all the French eſtabliſhments in India, has made his perſonal appearance at Poonah. It is, and always has been my opinion, and I believe that I have more than once expreſſed it on theſe records, that if ever the French make any attempts to regain their former power and influence in India, it will not be by a naval armament, which I repeat is impracticable, but by the previous poſſeſſion of a political eſtabliſhment in the dominions of ſome country power of the firſt conſideration. There are but two powers whoſe alliance would avail them, Hyder Ally and the Marattas; the former will no doubt, upon principles of good policy, keep upon good terms with them, but will never attach himſelf ſo cloſely to them as to become their dependant. The preſent rulers of the Maratta State are preciſely in that ſituation that will make them greedily catch at the offers of the French of their alliance, and to make any ſacrifices to obtain it; and I lay it down as a point incontrovertible, that if a detachment of much leſs than 1000 Europeans, with arms for diſciplining a body of native troops in the European manner, ſhall have once obtained a footing in the Maratta Country as the allies of that Government, all the native powers of Indoſtan united will lie at their mercy, and even the provinces of Bengal be expoſed to their depredations. The French therefore have now ſeized on the only means by which they can ever become formidable to us in India; and it is to avert the dreadful conſequences of ſuch a deſign that I have propoſed to ſtrengthen the hands of the Preſident and Council of Bombay, and to enable them to counteract it. It is impoſſible to form a plan completed for this purpoſe, becauſe it muſt depend upon circumſtances, and even in a great meaſure upon the operations of our enemies; it muſt be left to the Preſidency of Bombay, to whom nothing is neceſſary to be afforded on our part but a ſtrength adequate to the calls which they may have to exert it: I have therefore propoſed that the detachment which may be formed ſhall be ordered to march as ſoon as it is formed, to the aſſiſtance of Bombay, and this I apprehend is all that is at preſent neceſſary. I do not propoſe that they ſhould act againſt the French, but be ready to oppoſe any deſigns of the French; to oppoſe any deſigns of the Marattas, if the Marattas ſhould prove our enemies; or to aſſiſt the Marattas of that part of the Maratta State with which we are in alliance. There is nothing in this intention that can poſſibly involve the nation in a war with France, ſince the French are not the declared object of the preſent enterprize; and we have even the authority of the Peiſhwa and Miniſters themſelves to affirm, that the French have no connection or concern in their affairs, but have been received ſimply on the footing of hoſpitality, and that civility which is due from one ſtate to another.

Some time will be required to form and equip the detachment before it can march. It is not neceſſary to ſend any inſtructions to the Governor and Council of Bombay reſpecting the application to be made of this reinforcement, until it ſhall have actually begun to move. But I ſhall have no objection, and I think it highly proper, to enjoin them in the ſtricteſt manner, that they do not on any pretence become the aggreſſors, by commencing hoſtilities againſt the French, nor yet againſt the Marattas; but to continue to adhere, as they aſſure us they will do, to the ſtrict letter of the treaty ſubſiſting between the Company and the preſent adminiſtration of the Maratta State. I never underſtood or ſuppoſed that a formal grant by ſunnud has been made to the French of the port of Choul, but it is notorious that the French are in poſſeſſion of that port; and although Mr. Moſtyn does declare, nearly in the words made uſe of by Mr. Wheler, that a perſon well and officially informed, had aſſured him that he did not believe there was any agreement entered into between Monſieur St. Lubin and the Durbar; yet what he adds in the words immediately following, prove that Mr. Moſtyn himſelf did not mean by this expreſſion to contradict the belief that an agreement paſſed between Monſieur St. Lubin and Nana Furneſe; his words are as follows: "It therefore appears to me, that the "writing alluded to by my ſuperiors can be no "other than the private treaty between Monſieur St. "Lubin and Nana Furneſe, of which your Honour, "&c were informed under the 29th November." This mode of alluſion implies, that Mr. Moſtyn had not even a doubt of the private agreement which had paſſed between Nana Furneſe and Monſieur St. Lubin.

Since writing the above, I have verbally mentioned the precautions taken for ſecuring a free and peaceable paſſage for the detachment whenever it ſhall march; we cannot wait for their effects, becauſe the ſeaſon will be too far advanced; but if in the interval between the orders which may be iſſued for forming the detachment, and the time propoſed for the commencement of its operations, either the advices which we may receive from Bombay ſhall render their march unneceſſary, or any better means can be ſuggeſted for obviating and fruſtrating the deſigns of our enemies; in either caſe I will gladly agree to remand the troops to their reſpective corps; and as Mr. Wheler has ſaid, that if the French had already obtained, or are likely to obtain advantages from their negociations with the Maratta State, we ſhould endeavour to counteract thoſe advantages by negociation, and has even concluded with expreſſing his belief, that it will require no great ingenuity of addreſs to counteract their intentions. I hope he will point out the means by which a negociation of this kind can be conducted with ſucceſs, and the offers which may be made to induce the Miniſter to cancel his engagements with his new allies, and to accept of the friendſhip of the Engliſh Company in their ſtead. I aſk this not from any deſire of combating an argument, but of obtaining either ſuch lights as may be afforded on that ſide of the queſtion, and profiting by them for the peace and eaſier conduct of the Company's affairs, on a clear conviction that no negociation whatſoever will avail with the powers of this Company that is not immediately and pointedly directed to their intereſts or their fears.

Mr. Wheler—It is evident from the explanation which the Governor has now given of his letter, that no part of my Minute was either grounded upon error or miſconſtruction. The Governor aſſerts, that the French are now in poſſeſſion of a port, not a port of trade, but a door for the introduction of arms and troops into the Maratta Country, almoſt within ſight of Bombay. I requeſt that the Governor will favour this Board with his authority for that aſſertion, and likewiſe explain what he means by "Poſſeſſion."

The Governor General—I hope Mr. Wheler does not expect that I ſhall give up my time to the examination of all the voluminous papers which have been written upon this ſubject. That the French are in poſſeſſion of the port of Choul, has been aſſerted in the letters from Bombay and Poonah; in the intelligence tranſmitted from the Nabob of Arcot; in other papers of intelligence; and it has been charged to the Miniſter, as I think, in letters written from hence. The French ſhips have been for near theſe twelve months paſt at Choul; their goods have been landed at Choul, and continued there when the laſt advices were diſpatched from thence. This uſe of the port is preſent poſſeſſion. The ſunnud, or grant, can only give them property.

Mr. Wheler—I certainly do not mean to give the Governor any unneceſſary trouble: I thought the aſſertion a very extraordinary one, eſpecially as I had not met with any grounds for it upon the Company's Records. I do not conſider the landing of goods, without interruption for twelve months, as a proof of right, or poſſeſſion of a port.

Governor General—Whenever theſe Minutes ſhall be read in England, the Company will be poſſeſſed of much more more authentic evidence than can be given here, either in proof that the French are in poſſeſſion of Choul, or that they are not in poſſeſſion; it is unneceſſary, therefore for me to continue to affirm my belief of the fact, nor will any contradiction invalidate it.

Read the Minute delivered by Mr. Francis on the propoſed letter to Bombay, which was circulated on Saturday.

Mr. Francis—I diſapprove of, and object to, every part of the letter propoſed by the Governor General to be written to the Preſidency of Bombay; the meaſure, which it ſtates as reſolved on, viz. "of aſſembling a "force at Calpee, with conditional orders to march to "Bombay," has not yet been debated, or even propoſed in Council; much leſs have the objections to which ſuch a ſtep is liable, and the conſequences which may attend it, been duly conſidered. At preſent I have no idea of any arguments that can induce me to conſent to the march of four battalions of ſepoys into the heart of Indoſtan, through an immenſe tract of country, in which we have no alliance or connection whatſoever: no magazines, nor a ſingle place of ſtrength to retreat to: I will not be anſwerable for the conſequences of hazarding a detachment of our troops, which we can very ill ſpare upon an expedition in which they will probably be cut off, and for no purpoſe but to ſupport an offenſive war, which I do not doubt will ſoon become general.

I beg leave to ſay, that I am not at all alarmed at the ſteps ſuppoſed to be taken by the French for obtaining a ſettlement on the Malabar Coaſt. If the whole ſtory be not fabricated by Ragoba's party, to anſwer particular purpoſes, I have Mr. Moſtyn's opinion and authority for believing that no agreement has yet been made between the Marattas and the French, for putting the latter in poſſeſſion of Choul: the intelligence comes from Ragobà, and Mr. Moſtyn himſelf thinks there is no foundation for it; but admitting it to be true, what right have we to make uſe of force to prevent the French from obtaining ſuch a grant by negociation with an independant ſtate? Or will the members of a fictitious, not a real, majority of this Board, created by a caſting voice, run the riſque of engaging the nation in a war with France, with no better cauſe of quarrel, than that they are forming an advantageous treaty or alliance with the Marattas? If our's had been faithfully executed by us, and Ragoba diſmiſſed from Bombay, the preſent queſtion would never have exiſted.

The Preſident and Council of Bombay now aſk us, Whether they ſhall uſe their efforts to prevent ſuch a ſettlement taking place? The anſwer propoſed by the Governor, tells them, that "in our opinion, no time "ought to be loſt in forming and carrying into execu-"tion ſuch meaſures as may moſt effectually tend to "fruſtrate ſuch dangerous deſigns:" But what thoſe efforts and meaſures are to be, remains to be explained. I conclude, that military operations againſt the French are intended, as our former permiſſion would hardly be neceſſary to authorize any others; but the Bombay Preſidency at this moment tell us, that their troops are nearly reduced to a third of their complement; and before the intended detachment could reach Bombay, even if they met with no interruption in their march, the rains would be ſet in; they muſt march in the months in which the hot winds prevail with the greateſt violence in the upper parts of India; and when they arrive, the rains will prevent their acting.

In my opinion, we ought to forbid the Preſidency of Bombay from engaging in any offenſive operations whatſoever, and moſt particularly againſt the French. I ſhall reſerve what I have farther to ſay on this ſubject till the meeting of the Council.

(Signed) P. Francis.

Mr. Francis—No member of this Council makes a freer uſe of his privilege of dictating Minutes at the Board, than the Governor General. I do not complain of it; on the contrary, I liſten to him at all times with reſpect, with temper, and attention. Yet, as much time is loſt by delivering opinions in this manner, I muſt own I am unwilling to enter into a diſcuſſion of all the ſuppoſed facts, aſſertions, and arguments, ſtated in this laſt Minute. I fear it would be endleſs, and lead to no concluſion. Public advices not before the Board; general intelligence from different quarters; the ſuppoſed notoriety of facts not proved, and the language ſuppoſed to be held by the French on occaſions where their intereſts are concerned, may have weight with the Governor General; they have none with me; nor will they, I preſume, be deemed by our ſuperiors to be a ſolid and warrantable foundation for the important concluſions of facts propoſed to be drawn from them. One inſtance of the uncertainty of ſuch reports, as well as of the facility with which they are introduced into our debates as acknowledged facts, appears in the Governor's repeated aſſertion, that the French are now in poſſeſſion of Choul of which the only proof afterwards produced is, that ſome of their ſhips have been admitted into the port, and that they have been ſuffered to land their goods there. Choul is ſaid to be almoſt within ſight of Bombay; it would be very extraordinary if the French had actually taken poſſeſſion of that place, and the Preſidency of Bombay had never mentioned to us a fact from which they might have drawn inferences ſo favourable to their preſent deſigns. Mr. Moſtyn's letter of the 24th January, is the lateſt from that part of India; ſo far from intimating that the French were in poſſeſſion of that place, he denies the exiſtence of any agreement for that purpoſe, and ſays "he cannot think that Nanah "Furneſe will be ſo weak to do it until the required "aſſiſtance arrives." What may happen hereafter, I know not. My preſent opinion and reſolution muſt be founded on facts, and the authentic intelligence of facts, as they exiſt before me. I will not at preſent enter into any further conſideration of the Governor's Minute, but endeavour to bring back the queſtion on which this debate has ariſen, to its original ground.

The danger, ſtated in the propoſed letter to Bombay, is ſaid to ariſe from the ſteps which are taking by the French to obtain a ſettlement ſo near Bombay. The means recommended for obviating that danger, are, "that no time ought to be loſt in forming and carrying "into execution ſuch meaſures as may moſt effectually "tend to fruſtrate ſuch dangerous deſigns." An opinion given in this form, is plainly an inſtruction to the Bombay Council. The objection urged againſt it is, that the terms are not clear, direct, and ſpecific; and that in the only rational conſtruction which can be given to them, they amount to an authority from us to commence hoſtilities againſt the French, to prevent their being put into poſſeſſion of Choul. The caſe of an attack of the French againſt any part of the Company's poſſeſſions is not ſuppoſed, nor is it made the condition of our undertaking hoſtile meaſures againſt them. The letter, as it ſtands, refers only to their obtaining a ſettlement on the coaſt, and the neceſſity of our preventing it at all events. If the inſtruction recommended by Mr. Wheler, be now added to the letter, "That theydo not on "any pretence become the aggreſſors, by committing "hoſtilities againſt the French," I ſhall very much approve of it, becauſe I think it annihilates that part of the inſtructions to which I object; but then the form of the letter muſt be altered. I have nothing further to obſerve, but that the main queſtion, "whether a detach-"ment ſhall or ſhall not be ſent, and of what force it "ſhall conſiſt," has not yet been debated or propoſed; and that, before that queſtion is reſolved, the conſideration of the letter to Bombay is out of its place.

The Governor General—When the ſevereſt wounds are aimed at my public character, it is hard to deny me the privilege of ſelf-defence; but if I have taken up more of the time of the Board than I ought, in the Minute which I dictated at the Board this day, I do not not think that any perſon who ſhall read the preceding Minute and attend to the length of it will think it ſeaſonably prefaced with a complaint of that nature; I will however profit by the ſuggeſtion; both the preceding Minutes of Mr. Francis, both that written and that dictated by him, ſhall remain unanſwered, but by this ſhort remark, that they combat propoſitions which I have never made, and quote proofs as given by me even where I declared that I meant not to produce any; repeated arguments and aſſertions long ſince combated and refuted, and employed the attention of the Board on a verbal diſputation; for the whole that is ſaid and repeated of the paſſage quoted from my Minute by Mr. Wheler, is really ſuch. The propoſitions which were intended to follow the laſt Minutes of the Board in the military department, and which related to the ſtrength of the intended detachment, and the manner in which it ſhould be formed, have been ſent to the military ſecretary, and will be ſent in circulation to the other members of the Board, whoſe opinions may be more deliberately given by the ſame mode. It is neither my wiſh, nor did I introduce the practice, to ſpin out the time of the Board in deſultory and indefinite argumentations.

Appendix: Nos. 35 & 37.

Appendix. Nos. 35 & 37.

Mr. Francis—I do not know that any wounds whatſoever have been levelled at the Governor, or that his public character could poſſibly be in queſtion in this debate. I ſubmit to judgment, whether I have or have not ſtuck cloſe to the meaſure propoſed for deliberation. One thing I muſt beg leave to explain, becauſe I ſhould be ſorry to remain under the imputation of a failure in reſpect to the Governor General, or any member of this Board. The notice I took of the length of his Minute, aroſe from ſome words which he himſelf let fall in his anſwer to Mr. Wheler, "That he hoped that it was "not expected he ſhould give his time to the exa- "mination of voluminous papers, which have been "written on this ſubject." It appeared to me, that the queſtion did not lay a foundation for that anſwer. I ſhall be ready to conſider the papers when they are ſent in circulation. That mode of conducting buſineſs is convenient in matters of leſs importance, and I have no objection to it; but in a caſe of this very great conſequence, I hope the reſolution, whatever it may be, will be taken in council.

The Governor General—If the words I uſed in my reply to Mr. Wheler could contain any ſubject of offence, I ſuppoſe Mr. Wheler was the moſt competent judge of it, and did not require any other perſon to reſent it on his behalf. I meant thoſe words only as an excuſe for not replying to the queſtion which he put to me, and do aſſure him that they were dictated with temper, and with that reſpect to his character from which I never yet departed in any debate.

Since Mr. Francis objects to the mode which I propoſed for collecting the ſentiments of the Members of the Board, on the propoſitions which I mentioned that I had ſent to the Secretary in the military department, although it was in deference only to the objections which had been juſt urged by himſelf againſt Minutes dictated at the Board, that I propoſed to collect the opinions of the Members in circulation; I now bring them before the Board, deſiring only that they may be remanded, with the debates and opinions given upon them, to the military department.

Mr. Francis—I conſider myſelf as a party to every queſtion propoſed for the general information of the Board, let it come from whom it will, and of courſe intereſted in the anſwer to it. My remark was made on my own account. I did not preſume to ſpeak for any other member of the Board.

Mr. Barwell—The length of this debate has to me been quite unexpected; and I have declined taking a part in it, becauſe it is no more than a repetition of what has already paſſed upon the ſubject of the general intereſts of the Company, in influencing the Durbar of Poonah. The votes and reſolutions of the 2d inſtant are, or are not to be ſupported. They ſtand at preſent binding on the Council; and any attempts to prevent their operation or defend them, is ſimply ſubjecting the Company to the ill conſequences of miſcarriage in a point extremely intereſting to their affairs; and from the reſponſibility of which miſcarriage I hold myſelf exempted, ſhould it in fact, as I apprehend it will, ariſe from the difficulties thrown in the way of the executive power. Whatever meaſures in prudence and policy are propoſed upon the votes that are already paſſed, ought not neceſſarily to involve the propriety or impropriety of theſe votes. That queſtion is diſmiſſed totally, and the new one becomes of a very different nature, whether you will baffle the powers of the Government, or give way to them. I agree to the latter.

Mr. Francis—I underſtand it to be conformable to the ſentiments of the Board, that the Preſident and Council of Bombay ſhould be reſtrained from commencing hoſtilities againſt the French. I therefore propoſe, that the following paragraph may be added to the letter now reſolved on:

"We enjoin you in the ſtricteſt manner, that you do "not, on any pretence, become the aggreſſors, by com- "mencing hoſtilities againſt the French nor againſt the "Marattas; but that you continue to adhere to the "ſtrict letter of the treaty ſubſiſting between the Com- "pany and the preſent adminiſtration of the Maratta "State."

Governor General—As the preceding motion is taken from the words of my own Minute, I wiſh that it may be entered complete, with the addition of the following words, after the word adhere: "as you aſſure us you will "do." As the letter is concluded and partly ſigned, the propoſed addition can only be made in a poſtſcript, but I think it will appear too abrupt in the above form, and would therefore propoſe the following introduction and amendment:

"As we have no property or pretenſions to property "in the port of Choul, we cannot authorize you to uſe "any overt meaſures for preventing the French from "forming an eſtabliſhment at that place, however dan- "gerous their neighbourhood may be to your Preſi- "dency. This muſt be effected by other means; that "is, by an appeal to that power which alone can give "them the right of poſſeſſion. We think it neceſſary "alſo to add the following injunction; that you "do not, on any pretence, become the aggreſſors, by "commencing hoſtilities againſt the French directly, "nor againſt the Maratta State, but that you continue "to adhere, as you aſſure us you will do, to the ſtrict letter of the treaty ſubſiſting between the Company and the preſent adminiſtration of the Maratta State."

Mr. Francis—I acquieſce.

Agreed, That the poſtſcript propoſed by the Governor General, be accordingly added to the letter to Bombay.

No. 37.

The Governor General lays before the Board for their conſideration the following reply from Brigadier General Stibbert, to the queſtions propoſed to him the 2d inſtant, with his Minute upon it, containing five propoſitions, which he had ſent to the Military Secretary, intending that they ſhould be circulated by him.

Honourable Sir, and Sirs,

In compliance with your deſire, I now beg leave to offer you my ſentiments, "upon the propriety of aug- "menting the ſepoy eſtabliſhment, by new levies of "thirty private to each company, and making the "ſtrength of each battalion one thouſand men complete.

"Alſo upon the means of ſupplying the Preſidency of "Bombay with a military force, and the number which "may be ſpared from this eſtabliſhment."

With reſpect to the firſt, it is my opinion, that augmenting the ſepoy battalions to one thouſand ſtrong, would be improper, and at the ſame time not anſwer the ends propoſed from it, for the following reaſons:

1ſt. By being increaſed to the above number, they would be too unwieldy a body to manœuvre and move together without confuſion in the field, and with that celerity and compactneſs which is requiſite, and which ought to be particularly attended to in the formation of all bodies of troops, but more eſpecially in the ſepoy corps, amongſt whom, in time of action, it is well known to every officer who has ſerved with them, that it is with the utmoſt difficulty regularity can be preſerved, even in the beſt-diſciplined battalions.

2d. By increaſing the battalions to the number propoſed, would make them larger bodies than are required for the different ſervices for which they are generally detached and ſent out upon, particularly in the Company's provinces. This could only be remedied by breaking the battalions, which would introduce great confuſion into the ſervice, and be attended with many diſadvantages, but above all be greatly prejudicial to their diſcipline, and take off from that reſponſibility which every Captain has for the regularity and good order of his corps.

3d. There, where a larger number of men are required than the preſent ſtrength of the battalions, or with the ſmall augmentation that I ſhall propoſe, it will ſeldom happen that a thouſand men will be ſufficient for the ſervice; for in ſuch caſes generally two battalions, and ſometimes three, are neceſſary to be detached, to prevent every poſſibility (as far as prudence and human foreſight can do it) of a failure.

4th. To ſtrengthen the foregoing arguments, give me leave to obſerve, that the Honourable the Court of Directors, from their directions reſpecting the European regiments, ſeem to have adopted the ſame opinion, that a thouſand men are too large a body for one battalion; and it is to be preſumed they did not form their reſolutions thereupon without firſt taking the advice of the General Officers now in England, who have ſerved in this country.

But though I am of opinion that the battalions cannot with propriety be raiſed to one thouſand ſtrong, for the reaſons I have urged, I think they may with utility be augmented from their preſent eſtabliſhment of ſeven hundred to ſeven hundred and eighty, rank and file; that is, from 3 havaldars, 3 naicks, and 64 private, to 4 havaldars, 4 naicks, and 70 private each company. This is the ſame as to number, excepting a colourman, who ranked as havaldar, as the companies ſtood rank and file upon the old eſtabliſhment; and is as large a body as ought at any time to be formed into one battalion, and that can act together with force and advantage.

By this augmentation an increaſe will be made upon the whole 30 battalions, attached to brigades, now in the pay of the Company, of 2,400 men, rank and file, equal to three battalions, which may be drafted as the exigencies of the ſervice may require, and their numbers ſupplied by freſh recruits, without being much felt by their reſpective corps. My reaſon for propoſing one additional havaldar and naick to each company, is, that the number now allowed to the companies, as they ſtand at preſent, is not found upon many occaſions ſufficient for the duties of the battalion; beſides, theſe men, whenever draughts are wanted, will be ready to go with them: it will be moreover enlarging the door of preferment, and giving additional encouragement to emulation, a matter highly neceſſary to be attended to amongſt the lower ranks, and ſepoys. No augmentation will be required of the officers of higher rank, holding warrants; a ſmall addition of pay given to the Jamadars, would not be improper, as what they receive at preſent is not ſufficient to ſupport them in ſuch a manner as to keep them from aſſociating with the lower ranks and private men, and of courſe ſo as to be able to keep up that authority which they ought to maintain in their battalions.

For ſupplying the Preſidency of Bombay with a military force, I would recommend to the Board, that four battalions of ſepoys be immediately drafted for this ſervice from the four brigades, viz. one from each; and that theſe battalions be formed under the inſpection of the ſeveral commanding officers of brigades, by an equal proportion of drafts, of one non-warrant officer and ten private from each company of the three eſtabliſhed brigades, which will furniſh a body of 770 rank and file from each brigade, and be within ten men of the propoſed number of rank and file, for a battalion, which may be recruited. The Subadars and Jemadars for this new battalion, to be appointed by the Colonel of the brigade, from ſuch Jemadars and Havaldars of the ſeven battalions as are moſt deſerving of preferment; attention being had to ſeniority and length of ſervices, as far it can be done with propriety. The battalion to be formed from the temporary brigade in the following proportion, viz. ſeven battalions to furniſh eight non-warrant officers and 80 private each, and the two remaining battalions, ſeven non-warrant officers and 70 private each; which together will make a body of 770 rank and file, the ſame as to be drafted from the other brigades. The warrant officers to be preferred and appointed from the Jemadars and Havaldars of moſt merit, in the ſame manner as already mentioned ſhould be done from the eſtabliſhed brigades.

Appendix. Nos. 35 & 37.

To furniſh theſe four battalions with European commiſſioned and non-commiſſioned officers, and alſo to give a due proportion thereof to the temporary brigade, which I think is highly neceſſary, I would adviſe that the battalions in the eſtabliſhed brigades ſhould be reduced from their preſent eſtabliſhment, of Captain Commandant, 10 Subaltern Officers, one Serjeant Major, and 10 Serjeants, to one Captain Commandant, ſix Subalterns, and ſix Serjeants, including the Serjeant Major. By this reduction of commiſſioned and non-commiſſioned officers, 84 ſubalterns and 105 ſerjeants will be taken from the eſtabliſhed brigades were they complete, which will be more than the number wanted to give an equal proportion of both to the temporary brigade, and the new battalions to be drafted for the Bombay Preſidency. The number of ſubalterns and ſerjeants which I have here propoſed that the battalions of the eſtabliſhed brigades ſhould be reduced to, I would alſo recommend to be the fixed eſtabliſhment in future for every battalion (the Militia battalions excepted) throughout the ſervice. This number is calculated ſo as to have one ſubaltern officer and one ſerjeant to be poſted in time of action, or to ſend out upon ſervice, with each grenadier company, and the ſame to each grand diviſion of the battalion, compoſed of two companies, which, with the Captain and native officers, are fully ſufficient for leading on the men, and every other kind of duty.

The eſtabliſhment of European commiſſioned and non-commiſſioned officers, fixed by the late Lord Clive for a battalion of ſepoys, when he was Governor and Commander in Chief of this Preſidency, and when he regimented and brigaded the troops in the year 1765, was 1 Captain, 2 Lieutenants, 2 Enſigns, 1 Serjeant Major, and 4 Serjeants. It was afterwards in the year 1770 ordered to be 1 Captain, 3 Lieutenants, 3 Enſigns, 1 Serjeant Major, and 4 Serjeants; and in the year 1773 augmented to 1 Captain, 5 Lieutenants, 5 Enſigns, 1 Serjeant Major, and 10 Serjeants, as it ſtands at preſent; but this latter eſtabliſhment has been proved by experience to add no advantages either of diſcipline or otherwiſe, to the battalion. The ſerjeants, more than what are ſufficient to drill the recruits, or the number to be poſted as I have mentioned, are entirely loſt to the ſervice, in being taken from the regiments and put into the ſepoy corps. Beſides which, it is morally impoſſible for the regiments to ſupply the number of ſerjeants that are now wanted for the ſepoy corps, even upon a lower eſtabliſhment than eleven to each battalion, without ſelecting out all the beſt men, and promoting a great many who are totally unfit for the ſtation, and who can only be rendered uſeful by being kept in the ranks.

The four battalions I have propoſed to be formed by drafts from the four brigades, are, with two field pieces attached to each, full as great a force as I think can well be ſpared of diſciplined troops from this Preſidency, for the ſervice of the Preſidency of Bombay, keeping at the ſame time in view the defence and ſecurity of the provinces of Bengal and the Vizier's dominions, which altogether form an extent of country, for the defence of which, in caſe of a war or troubles, but particularly of an European war, the force we have at preſent on foot would in my opinion be rather inadequate, ſo as to give protection in every part, and repel the different attacks that may be made at the ſame time by the country powers and a foreign enemy. Europeans either of artillery or infantry can on no account be ſpared, as may be ſeen by the returns of the army.

The great difficulty which has been ever found in prevailing on the ſepoys to embark on board of ſhip, and the great deſertions that have always happened when this mode of tranſporting them has been adopted, render it neceſſary, as well as on account of their numbers, to conſider of the moſt eligible method of ſending the above detachment by land.

There are only two routes by which this can properly be done; one by the way of Cuttack, and through the Decan; the other from the weſtern provinces by the way of Calpee, Narva, Eugine, Brampoor, &c. The latter at Narva falls into the great public road from Delhy to the Decan, Surat, &c. and is much preferable to the former, both from its practicability (as I believe) for cannon, and on account of the ſhortneſs of its diſtance from the upper ſtations of our army. But the march of a body of troops with ſafety and diſpatch by this road, or any other, can only depend upon the friendſhip and aſſiſtance, which they may be aſſured of receiving from the Princes and Powers poſſeſſing the country through which they muſt paſs.

The greateſt part of the country lying between the diſtrict of Bundelcund and the river Nurbudda towards the ſouth-weſt of Eugine, is at preſent in poſſeſſion of the two Maratta Chiefs, Maddajee Sindiah and Tokajee Holkar, who both have very large armies on foot, and are eſteemed to hold a conſiderable influence in the Maratta Government: it will therefore be neceſſary to ſecure as far as poſſible the friendſhip and aſſiſtance of theſe leaders, for whatever troops may be ordered to march through their reſpective provinces. Tokajee is mentioned in the papers received from Bombay, which the Board have done me the honour to give me the peruſal of, to be one of the parties who are in the intereſt of and deſirous of placing Ragonaut Row at the head of the Maratta State, in whoſe favour the force in queſtion is intended to act in conjunction with the troops of Bombay, in which caſe, and ſhould Maddajee Sindiah be prevailed on to join the alliance, every difficulty will I think be at once obviated. Tokajee has at this time a conſiderable force in the neighbourhood of Gohud and Bundelcund, with the aſſiſtance of which, and the Zemindars of the diſtricts under his authority, in procuring proviſions and neceſſaries, whatever detachment Government may determine to ſend by the route I have recommended, might, I ſhould imagine, proceed with eaſe and ſafety till they could be joined by the friends of Ragonaut Row on the other ſide of the Norbuddar.

Proceedings of the Governor General and Council in their Military Department.

Governor General—As the letter juſt read from General Stibbert contains a variety of matters, which I ſuppoſe the Board would chuſe to conſider very maturely before they paſs any deciſive reſolutions upon them; I recommend, that it be ſent in circulation for the deliberate peruſal of the Members of the Board, previous to any reſolution which they may collectively form upon them; but there is one ſubject which may require an earlier attention to it. I hope that there will be no neceſſity to ſend any military aſſiſtance to the Preſidency of Bombay; but it is very probable they will require it; but it cannot be effectual unleſs it can reach them before the periodical rains. The mode by which the Commander in Chief has recommended a detachment may be raiſed for this ſervice, namely to draft 100 men from each battalion, would take up ſo much time, that before they could be drafted and formed into their reſpective corps, and aſſembled at the points from which the roads mentioned by him that lead to the other ſide of India, the rainy ſeaſon would approach ſo near as to render it impracticable for them to undertake the march. For which reaſon I ſubmit the following propoſitions to the conſideration of the Board:

1ſt. That a detachment be formed of ſix battalions of ſepoys from the firſt brigade, with their ordnance, one company of native artillery with its complement of ordnance, to be furniſhed from the field train of the 1ſt brigade at Allahabad, and two howitzers to be ſupplied from the ſame ſtation.

2d. That the troops which are to compoſe this detachment be directed to aſſemble at Korah, or in the neighbourhood of Calpy.

3d. That the ſtores for this detachment be furniſhed from the magazines neareſt to the place of rendezvous, and that the commanding officer be furniſhed with unlimited authority to indent for ſuch ſtores, and in ſuch quantities as he may deem neceſſary for the ſervice to be performed.

4th. That Colonel Leſlie be appointed to command this detachment, with one field officer from the firſt brigade, and one from the temporary brigade; and that Major Baillie be nominated to the charge of the artillery, with two additional ſubaltern officers of that corps to join the company ordered upon this ſervice.

5th. That Colonel Leſlie be directed to make the neceſſary preparations to conduct the detachment by the moſt practicable route to Bombay, or to ſuch other place in that neighbourhood as he ſhall be guided to by the Preſident and Council of Bombay, and that it be particularly recommended to him to provide the moſt effectual means of inſuring a ſufficient ſupply of proviſions during the courſe of the march.

Agreed, That the Governor General's propoſitions be circulated for conſideration, and that the Minutes which may be delivered thereon be entered on this day's proceedings.

The propoſitions delivered by the Governor General which are entered above having been circulated, they were agreed to by Mr. Barwell, and the following Minutes upon them were delivered by Mr. Wheler and Mr. Francis.

Mr. Wheler—In my Minute of yeſterday I have given my reaſons for diſapproving of the intended ſupport of one part of the Maratta Power againſt the other. But as it is already determined in Council to aid the meaſures of the Preſidency of Bombay, I am clearly of opinion that the detachment ought in every reſpect to be adequate to the ſervice required; and as I muſt ſuppoſe that now propoſed by the Governor is ſo, I accede to it, and likewiſe to the 2d, 3d, 4th, and 5th following propoſitions made by the Governor General.

24th Feb 1778.

Mr. Francis—Waving for the preſent all former objections to the general reſolution of ſupporting the Preſidency of Bombay in an offenſive war, undertaken without our previous approbation, I object to the march of the propoſed detachment to the Malabar Coaſt, as I am of opinion that ſo great a force cannot be ſpared from our eſtabliſhment eſtabliſhment, conſiſtently with the defence and ſafety of theſe provinces, which ought to be the principal object of our attention, or with the protection of the dominions of our ally the Nabob of Oude, who pays us a ſubſidy for the ſervice of the troops now ordered to Bombay. Their removal muſt neceſſarily leave a conſiderable part of his frontier defenceleſs and open to the Marattas.

If a reinforcement muſt be ſent to Bombay, I beg leave to repeat my opinion, that it may be ſpared with more ſafety, and proceed with greater expedition from Fort Saint George: as the firſt part of this opinion is ſupported by that of Brigadier General Stibbert, I deſire that the following paragraph from his letter to the Board may be recorded in this place. (Signed) P. Francis.

Extract of a letter from Brigadier General Stibbert, dated 16th February.

2d. Reſolved, That the troops which are to compoſe this detachment, be directed to aſſemble at Cora, or in the neighbourhood of Calpee, as ſhall be judged expedient by the commanding officer:

3d. Reſolved, That the ſtores for this detachment be furniſhed from the magazines neareſt to the place of rendezvous, and that the commanding officer be furniſhed with unlimited authority to indent for ſuch ſtores, and in ſuch quantities, as he may deem neceſſary for the ſervice to be performed:

4th. Reſolved, That Colonel Matthew Leſlie be appointed to command this detachment, with one field officer from the firſt brigade, and one from the temporary brigade; and that Major Baillie be nominated to the charge and command of the artillery, with two additional ſubaltern officers of that corps, to join the company ordered upon this ſervice:

Ordered, That a copy of theſe reſolutions be ſent to the Secretary of the Military Board, that they may be carried into execution under that department:

Ordered, That a copy of the above reſolutions be tranſmitted immediately to the Military Department, that they may be carried into execution.

Extract of Bengal Secret Conſultations, the 9th March 1778.

PRESENT,

The Honourable Warren Haſtings, Governor General, Preſident,

Richard Barwell,
Philip Francis,
Edward Wheler, } Eſquires.

The proceedings of the 5th inſtant read, and approved.

The Secretary having received the following propoſitions from the Governor General, with orders to circulate them for the concurrence of the Board, they were accordingly circulated, and received back, with the opinions which are entered after them.

The Governor General recommends the following propoſitions:

That Colonel Leſlie be permitted to take with him, for the ſervice of his detachment, ſuch of the general ſtaff officers belonging to the temporary brigade as he ſhall think proper.

That Lieutenant Colonel Fortnom be appointed Field Engineer to attend this expedition,

Mr. William Cator to be Pay-maſter,

Mr. Goold, Commiſſary of Muſters.

That Colonel Leſlie be empowered to nominate ſuch perſons for the regulation of the depot of proviſions, ſupplies of ſtores, and proviſion of draft and carriage cattle, as the ſervice may require.

That Colonel Leſlie be permitted to have a Quarter-maſter General and an Aſſiſtant Quarter-maſter General, alſo an Aſſiſtant Field Engineer, for this ſervice. The choice of perſons properly qualified for theſe appointments, the Board are pleaſed to leave with Colonel Leſlie.

That the Board deem it neceſſary Colonel Leſlie ſhould be authorized to make whatever diſburſements he ſhall think neceſſary on this ſervice: they do therefore direct the Pay-maſter to obey his orders in every particular, requiring his ſignature to all charges not allowed for in the firſt regulations of the ſervice; and for all ſuch extra diſburſements they ſhall deem the commanding officer reſponſible to them in their Board of inſpection.

I agree. (Signed) W. Haſtings.

Mr. Francis.—Having delivered my opinion at large on the general meaſure, it is unneceſſary for me to interfere in the detail of arrangements, which the majority of the Board may deem neceſſary for carrying it into execution. (Signed) P. Francis.

Mr. Wheler.—I ſhall not enter into the arrangements which the majority of the Board may deem neceſſary; it is ſufficient to ſay, that I have, and ſtill continue to object to their original plan. (Signed) Edw^d Wheler.

The Governor General's propoſitions being reſolved in the affirmative;

Ordered, That a copy thereof be tranſmitted to the military department, that the appointment and arrangements thereby formed may be carried into execution.

9th March.

The Governor General recommends, that the Reſident at the Vizier's Court be directed to reſerve the ſum of ten lacks of rupees for the pay and expences of the detachment formed under the command of Colonel Leſlie; that he convert as much of this ſum as he can into gold mohurs for the greater eaſe of conveyance, and alſo exchange; and that he wait the further orders of the Board for tranſmitting this treaſure to the detachment.

Agreed to.

Appendix. No. 36.

READ a letter from Mr. Moſtyn, as follows:

To the Honourable Warren Haſtings, Eſquire, Governor General, &c. Council at Fort William.

Honourable Sir, and Gentlemen,

Mr. Lewis addreſſed you laſt under the 29th November, and I have now the honour to inform you that I returned hither on the 10th inſtant.

On the 14th ultimo, the Durbar received certain advices of the death of Ram Rajah; but they have not yet placed a new Rajah at Settara.

Mr. Lewis on the 28th ultimo, having received intelligence, that two or three new Chokies had been placed as ſpies on the factory, ſent a meſſage to Madahrow Jaddaroi, complaining thereof, and requeſted to know the Durbar's reaſon for ſo doing; it being contrary to their promiſes of the Engliſh being treated in the ſame manner as heretofore. He received no other reply, than that he was ignorant of the matter; but would aſk Nanah Furneſe. Madahrow at the ſame time added, that Nanah wanted all Europeans to leave Poonah; and that if the Engliſh muſt have a vackeel here he thought a Carcoon with four or five people would be ſufficient for every purpoſe. On the 29th the Chokies abovementioned having ſtopped and abuſed a poor ſhop-keeper, who had only been to the factory for the payment of ſome trifling articles which had been bought of him, for preſuming, as they ſaid, to go to the Engliſh without their permiſſion, Mr. Lewis immediately ſent a perſon to Madahrow, to acquaint him with this inſtance of the inſolence of the Chokies, who directly ſent one of his people with the ſervant to explain the matter to Nanah, who, inſtead of liſtening to the complaint, aſked the ſervant, by what authority Mr. Lewis ſent people to turn away the Chokies from the place where, he Nanah, had ordered them to ſtay? The ſervant denied the charge, and told him the affair as it had really happened; to which Nanah replied, that he had been informed by one Madahjee Punt, a man whom he had placed upon the factory. That gentleman had ſent forty or fifty ſepoys to diſlodge the Chokies; but upon the ſervant requeſting that Nanah would ſend for the ſaid Madahjee Punt, and enquire into the affair, when he would find he had been greatly impoſed upon, Nanah refuſed complying therewith, ſaying, he was well convinced Madahjee Punt had told him the truth. Nanah then directed the ſervant to deliver Mr. Lewis the ſame meſſage as had been ſent the day before by Madahrow with reſpect to the Engliſh leaving Poonah, and deſired he would immediately write it to the Honourable the Preſident of Bombay.—Mr. Lewis requeſts leave to declare in his own vindication, that not a ſingle ſepoy was ſent, nor a word exchanged with the Chokies further than one of his ſervants aſking them, by whoſe orders they acted in giving ſuch treatment to any one who came to our factory.

In conſequence of Mr. Lewis's repreſentations to the Preſidency, the Honourable the Preſident wrote a letter to the Peiſhwa, which this gentleman was directed to deliver himſelf, and obtain an anſwer; but notwithſtanding he frequently applied for an audience for that purpoſe, Nanah abſolutely refuſed to give him one, ſaying, that he would not receive the letter from any one elſe than Madahrow Jadahroi and Byroo, who were appointed to tranſact the Engliſh buſineſs with the Durbar; and that if Mr. Lewis inſiſted on delivering it himſelf, he muſt go to Proonder for that purpoſe; he accordingly wrote a letter to Saccaram Pundit, informing him of the above circumſtances, and requeſting he would appoint a day for receiving the Preſident's letter, but Saccaram, by a meſſage through Madahrow, referred him back to Nanah.

Immediately on my arrival, I ſent proper notice thereof to the Durbar, and requeſted to have an audience as ſoon as poſſible; to which Nanah replied, that that day being a holiday, and the next an unlucky day, he could not take it into conſideration till the 12th; however, after repeated meſſages, I at laſt obtained an audience on the 13th, when I delivered the abovementioned letter, and duplicate of one from the Honourable the Governor General, on the ſubject of the ſhip Aurora: after making an apology for entering on buſineſs at my firſt viſit, contrary to the uſual cuſtom, I remonſtrated in the ſtrongeſt terms on the diſreſpect ſhewn the Company, by the reſtrictions laid on their Repreſentative; and demanded a ſpeedy and poſitive anſwer to every point in the letter from the Governor of Bombay: To which Nanah replied, that the Durbar would give ſuch an anſwer as was uſual with them. When I obſerved to him, that no other than a plain and direct one would be received. I then, agreeably to my inſtructions, acquainted them with the iſſue of the commiſſion they had given me to Ragoba; of which your Honour, &c. have already been adviſed.

When I had taken leave of the Durbar, I repeated to Byroo Punt, who attended me out, and has I know great influence with Nanah, the neceſſity of a ſpeedy anſwer, which he promiſed ſhould be delivered in two days; but as from the knowledge I have of the dilatorineſs of this Government, I did not place any great confidence in this promiſe. I wrote the next day to Madahrow and Byroo Punt, that I hoped they would uſe their joint endeavours to procure one as ſoon as poſſible; to which they replied, that they had talked with Nanah on the buſineſs, who ſaid it was neceſſary he ſhould firſt conſult with Saccaram Bapoo. Being now convinced that Nanah was uſing every artifice to evade giving an anſwer, I thought it neceſſary to addreſs a letter to the Peiſhwa, requeſting one, which I incloſed to Saccaram Bapoo, under the 16th. I beg leave to obſerve here, Gentlemen, that notwithſtanding my remonſtrances, the Chokies are ſtill continued on the factory; by which I am ſo ſtrictly watched, that it is almoſt impoſſible for me to have an intercourſe with any one in town.

Soon after my arrival Moraba Furneſe ſent me a letter for the Honourable the Preſident, which was forwarded under the 11th; in conſequence of which the Board have directed me to inform him, that they cannot take any part in the affairs of the Maratta Government, unleſs directly called upon by the perſons with whom the treaty was concluded.

By the beſt information I can procure, I learn that advices have within theſe few days been received from Hurry Punt, acquainting the Durbar that Monackjee Panoria, and the reſt of the Maratta officers mentioned in the laſt addreſs from hence, had actually joined Hyder's army, and together therewith, falling on Hurry Punt, had entirely defeated him, taking moſt of his heavy cannon, and plundering his Buzar; this officer has retreated to Pauncemahl, on the northern bank of the Kiſtna, in hopes of receiving ſome aſſiſtance from Downſa, who is encamped about twelve coſs from him. The Durbar have applied to the Nizam to join them againſt Hyder; but which he has refuſed, until they deliver him the forts of Aſſur and Amadnagur, agreeable to the promiſes made him on his joining the preſent Miniſters againſt Ragoba. I cannot take upon me to aſſure your Honour, &c. of the truth of the above, the ſtrict watch kept over me preventing my having that free communication with people on whom I can depend, which I could wiſh; but from Nanah Furneſe going ſuddenly to Proonder yeſterday, on account it is ſaid of the receipt of Hurry Punt's letter, I am inclined to beleive it is true, Tookajee Holkar and Madjee Scindy have received repeated orders from the Miniſters to join Hurry Punt, but have hitherto found means to avoid complying therewith; the former is at one of his own villages, about 15 coſs from hence, and the latter ſtill continues at Rimutpore. Indeed there ſeems to be a total diſaffection amongſt all the Maratta officers, which is attributed to the poverty of the Government.

Notwithſtanding the many aſſurances given by the Durbar in general, and the Miniſters ſeparately, that Monſieur St. Lubin ſhould be diſpatched from hence on Deccra (the 12th October laſt) I am ſorry to inform your Honour, &c. he is ſtill permitted to remain here, and is to all appearance in high favour with Nanah Furneſe, but I believe with no one elſe.

The incloſed packet to your addreſs was delivered me by the Honourable the Preſident and Council of Bombay.

To the Honourable Warren Haſtings, Eſquire, Governor General, &c. Council at Fort William.

Honourable Sir, and Gentlemen,

I did myſelf the honour of addreſſing you under the 19th inſtant.

Monſieur de Corcelle, the French gentleman who had taken our protection, as mentioned in a former addreſs, having received aſſurances from Cruſt Row Balol, in the name of Nanah, that no harm ſhould happen to him if he would leave the protection of the Engliſh, that gentleman on the 14th wrote me a letter (copy and tranſlate of which are now incloſed) and immediately quitted the factory; putting himſelf under the protection of Senhor Norronho, a Portugueſe officer in command of the artillery here, who has paſſed his word to Monſieur de Corcelle, that the Government do not mean him the leaſt injury, and with whom he actually now lives without having the leaſt connection with Monſieur de St. Lubin; nor do I ſuppoſe he will ever put it in the power of this gentleman to make a ſecond attempt on his life, in the infamous manner repreſented in Monſieur Corcelle's letter of the 5th November laſt, which has already been forwarded to you. My ſuperiors apprehending from Monſieur de Corcelle's leaving us ſo ſuddenly, that his coming to us at all may have been a ſcheme of Monſieur de St. Lubin's to get at a knowledge of what we were doing here, has induced me to be thus particular with reſpect to him; and I beg leave to aſſure you, Gentlemen, that he has not received the leaſt intelligence of conſequence during his reſidence in the factory: indeed it appears to me, that his ſole motive for running to the Engliſh was to ſave his life; and his reaſon for quitting them was, as he explained the matter, to convince his friends in France that he remained no longer under the Engliſh protection than was abſolutely neceſſary for that purpoſe.

The Honourable the Preſident and Council, in a letter dated the 20th, acquainting me they have received information that the Durbar had actually agreed by a written inſtrument to put the French in poſſeſſion of Choul, but that the ſunnud had not been iſſued, I made the ſtricteſt enquiry into the truth thereof, and have received aſſurances from the perſon whoſe province it is to draw out all ſunnuds, that no orders have been iſſued for that purpoſe, nor did he believe the Durbar had any intention of the kind, at leaſt until they ſhould be convinced that the French would afford them ample aſſiſtance; neither did he believe there was any agreement entered into between Monſieur St. Lubin and the Durbar, and if there was any ſuch he was totally ignorant thereof. It therefore appears to me, that the writing alluded to by my ſuperiors can be no other than the private treaty between Monſieur St. Lubin and Nanah Furneſe, of which your Honour, &c. were informed under the 29th November. I make no doubt that Nanah, in order to carry his ambitious views into execution, would readily give the French the above-named place, yet I cannot think he will be ſo weak as to do it until the required aſſiſtance arrives. Appendix. No. 38.

My ſuperiors likewiſe mention that they had received intelligence of a French gentleman having landed at Choul, and proceeded to Poonah. This perſon, who proves to be a Monſieur le Roy, arrived here the 8th or 9th inſtant; but I cannot pretend to ſay what may be his real motive for coming hither; he was diſpatched by Monſieur St. Lubin in Auguſt laſt, as was then given out by him, with orders to Monſieur Bellecombe, though I have ſince learnt that his real errand was to raiſe money at Pondicherry in the name of Monſieur St. Lubin with which he was to have purchaſed a cargo for this market; it appears, however, that he was diſappointed herein, for it is certain he brought no goods with him to Poonah. The day Nanah Furneſe ſet off for Proonder, he received a letter from the Soubadar of Choul, acquainting him with the arrival of two French veſſels; and that application had been made to him for permiſſion to land their cargoes, conſiſting of ſpices and copper, which he refuſed granting until he could receive the orders of the Durbar, but I am aſſured no ſuch orders were given before Nanah left town.

Since my laſt addreſs, intelligence has been received that Downſa after Hurry Punt's late defeat ſent a meſſage, requeſting he would remove from Paunce Mahl, which belongs to the Nizam, as his troops remaining there would ruin the country. Hurry Punt has in conſequence retreated to Serahpore, about 20 coſs to the northward of the Kiſtna. Madjee Scindy has lately had an engagement with part of the Rajah of Collapore's troops, in which he was defeated, and has been obliged to retreat ſeveral coſs. Hurry Punt's defeat ſeems to have thrown the Durbar into great diſtreſs; and it is imagined from their want of money, and the diſobedience of their Jaghire officers, that ſome changes muſt take place, but which way, it is impoſſible for me to ſay with any degree of certainty; however, you may depend, Gentlemen, I ſhall endeavour to gain the earlieſt intelligence in my power, and inform you of any material alteration.

Notwithſtanding my letter to Saccaram Bapoo, incloſing one for the Peiſhwa requeſting an anſwer to the Honourable the Preſident, as adviſed under the 19th, I have not yet been able to obtain one, though I am aſſured Saccaram and Nanah had a meeting at Proonder three days ago.

The incloſed packet in duplicate to your addreſs, was received this day, and ageeable to my ſuperiors orders, I now diſpatch them by the different routes of Maſulipatam and Benares.

The Honourable Warren Haſtings, Governor General, Preſident.

Richard Barwell, Philip Francis, Edward Wheler, } Eſquires.

READ, and approved, the proceedings of yeſterday.

Governor General—I have given the Board the trouble to meet in this department, although before ſummoned for the uſual diſpatch of buſineſs in the Revenue Council, that I might lay before them a letter which I received late laſt night, ſigned with the names of Meſſieurs Francis and Wheler: addreſſes of this kind I cannot but think in-

in themſelves irregular; and I hope Mr. Wheler will excuſe me in requeſting of him particularly, that when he ſhall have occaſion to communicate in writing to me in my public character, he will be ſo good as to make it the ſubject of a letter from himſelf only. I ſhall always pay him that reſpectful attention which it has ever been my ſtudy and even my inclination to give to his advice, his wiſhes, and opinions; but ſenſible as I am by experience of the fatal conſequences which ſooner or later muſt attend a diviſion of the Members of the Adminiſtration into decided and confirmed parties, I ſhould be wanting both in my duty and common prudence, if I conſented to to make myſelf inſtrumental to ſuch a ſchiſm formed againſt myſelf.

I have read the letter itſelf with great attention; I have compared it with the orders of the Court of Directors, to which it appears to allude; and clearly recollect the ſubſtance of the orders already iſſued for the march of the intended detachment to Bombay, which Meſſieurs Francis and Wheler in their letter mention it as their opinion ſhould be immediately countermanded; but I cannot perceive their connection. The orders from the Court of Directors particularly quoted by Meſſieurs Francis and Wheler, loſe their real meaning by that partial quotation; I ſhall therefore here repeat them at large, ſo far as they relate to the propoſition grounded upon them; they are as follow: "though that treaty is not "upon the whole ſo agreeable to us as we could wiſh, "ſtill we are reſolved ſtrictly to adhere to it on our "parts. You muſt therefore be particularly vigilant "whilſt Ragoba is with you, to prevent him from form- "ing any plan againſt what is called the miniſterial "party at Poonah; and we hereby poſitively order you "not to engage with him in any ſcheme whatever for "retrieving his affairs, without the conſent of the Go- "vernor General and Council, or Court of Directors." Theſe words imply an authority, equal by the conſtruction of them, to an expreſs order to engage with Ragoba in any ſcheme or plan for retrieving his affairs, which ſhall not be formed againſt what is called the miniſterial party at Poonah, and which ſhall have obtained the conſent of the Governor General and Council, or the Court of Directors. As the propoſal made for immediately countermanding the orders already ſigned for the march of the intended detachment to Bombay, is declared to be founded on the principle which influenced the above orders, I muſt requeſt, that the orders particularly alluded to may be ſhewn, and if they ſhall appear to have ſuch a tendency I will willingly conſent to their repeal.

Sir,

Having attentively conſidered the particular and poſitive inſtructions which the Court of Directors have given to the Preſident and Council of Bombay, in the laſt paragraph of their letter of the 4th July 1777 to that Preſidency, in regard to their connections and engagements with Ragoba, which they have been pleaſed to communicate to us in their general letter received this day, we think it our duty to take the earlieſt opportunity of ſubmitting to you our opinion, that as the Court of Directors declare their reſolution to adhere ſtrictly to the treaty concluded with the Marattas by Colonel Upton, and have particularly ordered the Preſident and Council of Bombay to prevent Ragoba from forming any plan againſt what is called the miniſterial party at Poonah; every meaſure taken or intended to be taken by that Preſidency, in conjunction with Ragoba, againſt the ruling power at Poonah, will ſtand in direct violation of the Company's preſent orders, and for that reaſon, excluſive of all others heretofore urged to the ſame effect, ought not to be ſupported or countenanced by this Government. On the ſame principle we beg leave to ſubmit our opinion to you, that all the orders already iſſued for the march of the intended detachment to Bombay ſhould be immediately countermanded.

We have taken this method of communicating our thoughts to you on a ſubject equally important and preſſing, as the meeting of the Board in Council will not in the ordinary courſe take place before Monday next, unleſs the contents of this letter ſhould induce you to think it adviſable to ſummon a Council before that day.

We have, &c.

Mr. Francis—An objection to the form in which Mr. Wheler and I thought fit to introduce the conſideration of a queſtion of ſuch importance as that contained in our letter to the Governor General, appears to me ſo very immaterial that I ſhall make no reply to it. I leave the letter to defend and anſwer for itſelf: the Court of Directors will judge whether it deſerves the ſtrictures which have been paſſed upon it.

A diſpute about the conſtruction of words might be endleſs; I will therefore not enter into it, but content myſelf with ſtating what I think the true ſenſe and meaning of the Company's preſent orders; every Member of the Board will judge for himſelf: it appears to me that, in the words quoted by the Governor General, there are three declarations on the part of the Company; the two firſt poſitive, and without any qualification; the third, conditional: their reſolution to adhere to Colonel Upton's treaty is poſitive; their order to the Preſidency of Bombay, to prevent Ragoba from forming any plan againſt the miniſterial party is alſo poſitive: the third declaration which forbids that Preſidency from engaging with him in any ſcheme whatever for retrieving his affairs, is not abſolute, but may be departed from, provided they have our conſent, or that of the Court of Directors. The true queſtion then is, Whether the late reſolutions taken at Bombay, and confirmed by the approbation of this Board, are or are not a violation of Colonel Upton's treaty? and, Whether they do or do not make a part of a plan concerted with Ragoba againſt the miniſterial party at Poonah? In my opinion they do. The information given us by the Preſidency of Bombay, in their letter of the 12th December laſt, of propoſitions made by or expected from the miniſterial party, in favour of Ragoba, appears to be totally without foundation. Does there exiſt any one fact, or the repreſentation of a fact, either from Bombay or Poonah, ſubſequent to the firſt information, that tends immediately or remotely to confirm or ſupport it? I affirm that there does not. If I am miſtaken the poſitive proof may be directly produced againſt me; yet the reſolution taken, and the orders given on the receipt of the firſt intelligence, and on the preſumption that that intelligence was well founded, remain in full force, and have been partly executed. We have remitted 10 lacks of rupees to Bombay; and we have given orders for forming a detachment nearly equal to a brigade, and for their march to and aſſembly at Calpee; the final orders for their march from thence to Bombay are not yet iſſued, but every preparatory ſtep is taken; and I take for granted the battalions are now on their march from their reſpective ſtations to Calpee. Theſe are the orders which, as Mr. Wheler and I meant, ſhould be countermanded. According to my underſtanding, the whole meaſure ſtands in direct oppoſition to the plain ſenſe and meaning of the Court of Directors, expreſſed in their letter now before us. I have acquitted myſelf of the duty which belongs to my ſtation, in contributing to bring the queſtion again under the conſideration of the Board, which I apprehend I am warranted in doing by the inſtructions received yeſterday, and muſt leave the determination of it to the ſenſe of the majority.

Mr. Wheler—Conſidering as I do that the orders already iſſued for the aſſembling of ſix battalions at Calpee, with the further deſign of proceeding to Surat, Bombay, or Poonah, are in direct contradiction to the orders of the Court of Directors, it became my duty to promote a further conſideration of thoſe orders, and if poſſible to prevent their being carried into execution. I imagine a letter, addreſſed to the Governor General jointly with Mr. Francis, whoſe opinion is well known to have concurred with my own upon this ſubject, would have more force and efficacy with the Governor General than my ſingle application: but I am ſorry to find it has had the contrary effect; and if I could flatter myſelf that the mode now recommended to me by the Governor would be the means of uniting our opinions, I ſhould be very ready to adopt the meaſure. I have done but my duty, in joining with Mr. Francis in an addreſs to the Governor; and I have no doubt but it will be conſidered as ſuch by thoſe who are ultimately to judge of the tranſaction.

Mr. Barwell—If the object of the preſent queſtion, agitated by a letter to the Governor General, is to prevent the interpoſition of this Government in ſuch political meaſures as may ariſe in the weſt ſide of India; and under any circumſtances whatever propoſes to decline giving the Preſidency of Bombay ſuch aid as may be neceſſary for its ſupport, I will venture to affirm, that it is not conſiſtent with any orders of the Company now received, nor conſiſtent with ſound policy.

The reſolutions that have already paſſed, for an effectual aid and ſupport of the Bombay Government, do not neceſſarily involve us in any meaſures that may not be conſiſtent with thoſe reſolutions. The defence and ſupport of one of the Company's ſettlements, and the giving them the means of being equal to any occaſions which may poſſibly call forth the exertion of our military ſtrength, cannot be imputed to us a breach of the treaty of Poonah, or a contradiction of any of the injunctions proceeding from the Company. In the vote that authorizes the Bombay Government to take a part in the ſcenes at the Poonah Durbar, the ultimate object of them is the tranquillity of India, and to ſecure our Government from deſigns clearly apparent to have originated with a faction at Poonah, for the introduction of the natural enemies of our nation, the French. The meaſures that have been reſolved do not in my opinion warrant a deduction of the conſequences that are imputed: they profeſs an entire different object; and I hope the public will ſo far vindicate the votes of the majority, as to give them that degree of credit ſo ſolemn an act merits. The national intereſts can only be my purſuit, and in ſupport of the Bombay Government ſecurity and peace to all our poſſeſſions, I adhere to my former opinions given on this ſubject, and am confirmed in them by a review of the precarious ſtate of parties at the Poonah Durbar. When once the blow has fallen upon Bombay, the greateſt exertions on our part will poſſibly fail to reſtore the ſplendour of the Engliſh Government.

Governor General—Mr. Barwell has ſo fully vindicated and explained the late reſolutions of the Board, that he has left me nothing more to add, but that as the objects of thoſe reſolutions are ſtrictly conformable to the Company's orders, ſo alſo was the means. We have not authorized, nor I truſt is it neceſſary to declare that we never will authorize, the Preſidency of Bombay to engage in any plan againſt what is called the miniſterial party at Poonah, while the treaty ſubſiſts inviolate on their part. A plan was ſuggeſted to us by the Preſident and Council of Bombay, which had for its object and means to engage in a plan for retrieving the affairs of Ragoba, in conjunction with the miniſterial party at Poonah, and at their invitation. The declared object of the reſolution for ſending a military reinforcement to Bombay, was, as it is expreſſed in our letter of the 23d February to that Preſidency, to grant them the moſt effectual ſupport in our power, but has no kind of relation, either direct or implied, to a violation of the treaty formed with the Miniſters at Poonah. I am againſt the motion for countermanding the orders iſſued for the march of the intended detachment to Bombay.

Reſolved, That the orders for the march of the detachment from the firſt brigade, be not countermanded. Appendix. No. 39.

APPENDIX, No. 39.

Extract of Bengal Secret Conſultations, the 23d of March 1778.

THE Governor General having propoſed the following letter to be written to the Preſident and Council at Bombay, it was circulated by his order for the ſentiments of the Members of the Board:

Gentlemen,

In the late diſpatches received from the Honourable Court of Directors by the ſhip Beſborough, we were furniſhed with a copy of their general letter to your Preſidency, dated the 4th July, and concluding with the following paragraph:

"65. Although we cannot but agree to the protection that you have given to Ragoba, conſidering the connection that you have had with him, by which we muſt ſuppoſe the Company benefited, yet we are under ſome apprehenſions that the Marrattas will think it a breach of the treaty entered into with them by Colonel Upton; for though that treaty is not upon the whole ſo agreeable to us as we could wiſh, ſtill we are reſolved ſtrictly to adhere to it on our parts. You muſt therefore be particularly vigilant whilſt Ragoba is with you, to prevent him from forming any plan againſt what is called the miniſterial party at Poonah; and we hereby poſitively order you not to engage with him in any ſcheme whatever in retrieving his affairs, without the conſent of the Governor General and Council of the Court of Directors, at the ſame time we think common humanity will warrant us in giving you orders to protect his perſon from violence, if any ſuch attempts ſhould be made by the partizans of the Miniſters."

We have given this extract at full length, becauſe we ſhall make it the ground-work of our inſtructions on that part of it which reſtrains you from forming any engagements with Ragoba without our conſent.

Although two years are paſt ſince the concluſion of the treaty made by Colonel Upton, yet it does not appear that one article of it has been accompliſhed, except thoſe which contain the declaration of peace between the Company and Marattas; and theſe, from the inefficacy of the reſt, and from the dangerous connection which has been formed by one of the ruling Members of the Maratta State and the French, ſtand on ſo inſecure a footing, that we can place no reliance upon them: we think it neither conſiſtent with good policy nor with our public duty, to ſuffer the intereſts of our employers to remain longer in this ſtate of ſuſpence and alarm; nor the obligation of the national faith to be made the inſtrument of a policy, which aims at the ruin and extirpation of the Britiſh influence in India, without making ſuch efforts as our means will afford, and the treaty will allow, to remove the former, and fruſtrate the latter.

Your late advices contain no grounds for any rational expectation or concluſion, but that the diſtractions and weakneſs of the actual adminiſtration at Poonah were ſo ripe for a change, as to make it probable that ſome great event will have taken place before you can receive this letter; and the objects of it anticipated or precluded, by your own application of the advantages which may have been preſented to you, to the more permanent ſecurity of our common intereſts.

Yet as the reverſe is probable, we ſhall proceed to give you ſuch inſtructions and authorities for your guidance, as are neceſſary; on the ſuppoſition, that the ſame adminiſtration remains, and that the treaty continues on the ſame footing as that on which it has ſtood for theſe two years paſt.

1ſt. We direct, That you demand immediate poſſeſſion of a country of three complete lacks of rupees, near or adjoining to Broach, conformable to, and in the manner provided by, the 5th Article of the Treaty: but as the execution of this article has been hitherto ſuſpended by the diſputes which have ariſen between you and the Miniſters, concerning the interpretation of the original words of the treaty, Jemma Caumil, which are rendered by the word complete, in Colonel Upton's Engliſh draft of it.

Although we muſt regard the advantage taken by the Miniſters in this inſtance as diſingenuous; yet as a proof of our reſolution to abide by the ſtrict letter of the treaty, even againſt the evident ſpirit and natural conſtruction of it, and againſt our own aſcertained intentions, we direct that if on enquiry, you ſhall learn that the technical meaning of the words Jemma Caumil is ſuch as the Miniſters have aſcribed to it, and ſuch as under that interpretation will juſtify them in their application of it to the value of the lands offered by them in virtue of the 5th Article of the Treaty, although eſtimated by you only at 2,10,000 rupees, you do accept the ſame as a full performance of that article: but if it ſhall appear to you, on valid authority, that the words Jemma Caumil mean in their official acceptation what their natural conſtruction implies, a complete rent, or a rent equal to the eſtimated ſum, you will in ſuch caſe inſiſt on the performance of the 5th Article of the Treaty, conformably to this interpretation: and if in either caſe the Miniſters ſhall refuſe to comply with your demand, we direct that you declare their refuſal to be a violation of the treaty.

2d. We direct that you demand immediate payment of the ſum of twelve lacks of rupees due by the 6th Article of the Treaty, or of ſo much of it as ſtill remains unpaid; and that the Pergunnah of Jambooſer be thereupon reſtored to the Miniſters, unleſs you ſhall have accepted of the ſame as an aſſignment, under ſuch engagements as ſhall have abſolved them from the literal performance of that article, and thoſe engagements have been fulfilled on their part; and if they ſhall refuſe to comply with the demand ſo made to them, that you declare their refuſal to be a violation of the treaty.

3d. We direct, That you keep poſſeſſion of the Pergunnahs of Chickley and Corial, the town of Veriow, the three villages of the Pergunnah of Chureaſſy, and the village of Batta Gang, which were ceded to the Company by Futteh Sing Guicawar, ſince the Miniſters have failed in producing the proofs that Futteh Sing did not poſſeſs power or authority to make ſuch ceſſions.

4th. We direct, That you cauſe a remonſtrance to be made to the Miniſters againſt the countenance afforded by them to the Chevalier St. Lubin; againſt the engagements formed between him and Nanna Furneeſe; and againſt the grant of the port of Choul made to him, or to the French nation through him, if you ſhall have obtained any ſatisfactory information, either that ſuch a grant has been actually made, or that the forms of office only are wanting to render it complete; though the grant without theſe forms may be equally effectual to the French, and equally dangerous to us; which appears to be the caſe, from the intelligence contained in Mr. Moſtyn's letter of the 24th of January laſt.

Although we do not inſiſt upon any poſitive right to demand the diſmiſſion of the Chevalier St. Lubin, nor the excluſion of the French from the port of Choul; yet we have a right to require a knowledge of the intentions of the miniſters in regard to theſe points, ſo far as they reſpect the treaty of peace ſubſiſting between the Maratta State and the Britiſh Government in India.

We therefore deſire, That you will demand from the Miniſters, a clear and ſatisfactory explanation of their intentions; and that you declare to them, that we ſhall take ſuch meaſures accordingly as prudence ſhall dictate, for the future ſafety of the Company's intereſts and poſſeſſions committed to our charge.

We recommend it to you to obtain if poſſible a copy of the engagements entered into by Nanna Furneeſe with the Chevalier St. Lubin, and a knowledge of the meaſures which may have been taken for their execution. We cannot view this intrigue without feeling the moſt alarming apprehenſions of the conſequences: in effect, this is the ſole motive of all the late meaſures taken for the ſupport of your Preſidency. We regard the Marattas as the only native, and the French as the only foreign Power in India, capable of effecting the influence which the Britiſh nation has acquired in it: the former were prevented from giving us any immediate or effectual trouble, by their internal diſtractions, and the inequality of their numbers to the effect of our diſcipline; the latter, by their want of territorial property, or an alliance which might ſupply it. An alliance formed between them would at once relieve all their mutual wants, and afford them all the requiſites to diſpute with us on equal terms the dominion of India, which we at preſent in a degree poſſeſs without a rival. By timely proviſions, and a ſpirited negociation, it may be prevented; but if it is once ſuffered to take effect, by the admiſſion of a French force into the Maratta State, which may be the work of a few months, all our efforts may prove inſufficient to defeat it, and the whole empire become the theatre of war between two European nations, backed by their reſpective allies, with the ſame calamities attending it, which we formerly experienced in the Carnatic; but rendered more dreadful by the ſuperior magnitude of the conteſt.

5th. We have informed the Peiſhwa and Miniſters of our intentions to ſend a military force for the defence of the Company's poſſeſſions on your ſide of India; and have deſired that they will iſſue the neceſſary orders, both for their ſafe paſſage and ſuch aſſiſtance as they may require on the march; aſſuring them, that the ſtricteſt orders will be given to the officer commanding this force, to conduct himſelf in every reſpect in a manner ſuitable to the peace and friendſhip which have been eſtabliſhed between the Maratta State and ours; and that we are reſolved moſt rigidly to adhere to the letter of the treaty, and to maintain the peace intended by it.

Theſe aſſurances we deſire you will cauſe to be repeated, and that you will make the ſame requiſition for a free paſſage and aſſiſtance to our troops.

6th. While Saccaram Baboo and Nana Furneeſe continue to hold the adminiſtration, and adhere literally to the treaty to which they are parties, we recommend and enjoin the ſame literal adherence to it on your parts.

This obligation will remain in equal force, if a change of government ſhould take place, and the new members of it ſhall declare the ſtate to be bound by the treaty, and pledge their own faith to it; but if the preſent or future members of the adminiſtration ſhall either directly infringe the treaty, or permit it to be infringed by perſons acting under their authority, or ſhall refuſe to fulfil the conditions of it, we, as authorized by the Company, do inveſt you with authority to form a new alliance with Ragoba, and to engage with him in any ſcheme which you ſhall deem expedient and ſafe for retrieving his affairs. The like authority we have already given you, in the caſe of your receiving a formal invitation to that effect from the Firſt Miniſter, Saccaram Baboo, in our letter of the 2d February: we at the ſame time recommended certain ſpecific advantages, which on ſuch an occaſion we were of opinion ought to be required as a compenſation for the Company's interpoſition; but under every circumſtance, we recommended to you in the moſt earneſt manner to make the eſtabliſhment of a laſting peace, which can only be effected by conditions of reciprocal advantage with the Maratta Government, and a total excluſion of the French influence, intereſt, and property, from the Maratta Government and country, your ſole general objects, as they are ours.

7th. We do not mean however to preclude you from any advantages which it may be poſſible to obtain by negociation, though we inſtruct you to be bound by the treaty, in caſe the new members of the Maratta State ſhall declare themſelves bound by that treaty, and ſhall pledge their own faith to it. But as a change in the adminiſtration at Poonah will probably enable you to gain political advantages highly beneficial to the Company and to the general intereſts of our nation, and to amend the defects in our preſent engagements, we leave it to you to purſue ſuch a policy as circumſtances ſhall warrant, independent of any particular intereſt of Ragonaut Row, whom you muſt regard in the great political objects of our Government as ſimply meriting our conſideration, and not neceſſarily connected or blended with them.

APPENDIX, No. 40.

Bengal Secret Country Correſpondence, No. 6.

To Mahah Rajah Mojee Bhooſila: written 22d Feb. 1778.

I HAVE received moſt authentic intelligence from different channels, that the French are now carrying on intrigues at Poonah; partly with a view of forming an advantageous alliance for their own nation, and partly with a view of deſtroying the friendſhip which has for ſome time ſubſiſted between the Engliſh and Maratta Governments. I have likewiſe learnt that the French Agent, St. Lubin, has met with great encouragement from ſome of the Chiefs; that a treaty has actually been concluded with him, and the valuable port of Choul granted to the French, which is only a few coſs diſtant from Bombay. The grant of this port not only marks an indiſpoſition towards us, but puts into the hands of the French an arſenal where they may collect military ſtores, and make preparations for attacking our poſſeſſions when we are unaware of their deſigns. I who have the ſuperintendance of the whole Engliſh force in India have nothing to fear from the exertions of a nation who are infants in ſtrength in India, and who muſt tranſport every ſoldier they have to bring into the field from a diſtant country, and over a wide ocean; and the conduct of ſuch of the Maratta Chiefs as may have joined the French in preference to the Engliſh intereſts, excited my pity for their want of wiſdom rather than my anger for their preſumption. It is my duty however to guard againſt the future effects of their intrigues; for if I permit the enemies of the King of England and the Company to gather ſtrength, though my own nation is too ſtrong to ſuffer in its intereſts from any thing they can do, the lives of many men may be ſacrificed in repelling attacks for which we might not be prepared in one part of our dominions, though we ſhould have more than ſufficient force on this ſide of India to puniſh our enemies for whatever loſs our Government might ſuffer from ſuch diſturbances.

For theſe reaſons I have reſolved to ſend a ſtrong military force to reinforce our ſettlement at Bombay; and and have directed a large detachment with a well-appointed artillery, and commanded by experienced officers, to aſſemble at Calpee, that they may be ready to march towards Bombay: there are two roads by which they may march, one by Souhah Malwah and the other through Berar. The road through Souhah Malwah is the ſhorteſt, but I have not yet formed any friendſhip with the Rulers of the countries ſituated on that road; and as my enemies are your enemies, and our wiſhes in all things the ſame, I have reſolved that my troops ſhall paſs through Berar in their way to Bombay; that by this means our friendſhip may be declared to all the world, and that the ſeeds of an alliance between the Engliſh and you, which has long been both my deſire and yours, may be ſown. The detachment will march in leſs than a month from this time, by which time I have no doubt you will have given orders for their free paſſage through your country, and have ſent information of your having given ſuch orders to Calpee. It will be better if you ſend a truſty perſon, and a part of your own army, to accompany ours. I aſſure myſelf you will give me this proof of your friendſhip, that the whole world may be a witneſs of its ſincerity; but as it is neceſſary to be certain of your conſent before the troops have proceeded too far, I deſire that if you ſhould not chuſe to comply with this requeſt, you will give notice of it to the Commander of the detachment, who will accordingly take another road. But this I will not ſuppoſe.

Appendix. No. 40.

To Dewagur Pundit: D°.

Of the ſame tenor as the foregoing, and requeſting he will employ his influence with his Maſter, to obtain his ready compliance for the march of the troops through his country.

To Modajee Bhooſila: written 25th February.

The day before yeſterday I diſpatched a letter to you on the ſubject of affairs here, and requeſting your permiſſion for a detachment of Engliſh forces to march through Berar in their way to Bombay; a duplicate of which letter accompanies this.

Since that time I have had further converſations with your vackeel Beneram Pundit, who has warmly diſſuaded me from ſending the forces by the route of Malwah, as highly inconſiſtent with the friendſhip ſubſiſting between us, and given me the fulleſt aſſurances that you will, with the greateſt pleaſure, comply with my requeſt, and will afford the detachment every poſſible aſſiſtance, by ſupplying them with proviſions, &c. and will ſend a truſty perſon with a part of your army, to accompany it to the place of its deſtination.

I have in conſequence written to Colonel Leſlie, the Commander of theſe forces, to repair with all expedition to Calpee, and from thence by Bundlecund to Berar, and proceed to Bombay; and that he will receive every kind of aſſiſtance from you in his march. I requeſt that immediately on receipt of this letter you will write to Colonel Leſlie at Calpee, ſignifying to him your compliance with the above requeſt; and will at the ſame time iſſue the neceſſary orders to your officers.

I have been induced to act thus from the firmeſt conviction of the ſincerity of your friendſhip, and full confidence in the aſſurances given me by your vackeel Beneram Pundit; but ſhould you nevertheleſs not think proper to give your conſent, you will give immediate intimation of your ſentiments to Colonel Leſlie, who will in conſequence take ſome other route.

To the Vizier: written 3d March.

I have received repeated and authentic intelligence that the French are now carrying on ſecret intrigues at Poonah with a view to form an advantageous alliance for their own nation, to enable them to acquire power and dominion in Hindoſtan; and alſo that their Agent, St. Lubin, has met with great encouragement from ſome of the Maratta Chiefs. As there can be no doubt of the uſe they would make of any force they might be ſuffered to acquire, namely, to attack the Engliſh and their allies, it is incumbent on us to apply an immediate remedy. Your Excellency's own intereſt, independent of every motive of friendſhip or alliance, requires your hearty concurrence in this meaſure. It is well known that the French can never attack Bengal by ſea with any proſpect of advantage, nor would they think of ſo warm an attempt: ſhould they be ſuffered to form alliances, and to become formidable, they would undoubtedly march from the weſtward, and make their firſt attempt againſt your Excellency's dominions. To prevent the poſſibility of this, and to enſure our future peace and tranquillity, I have determined to ſend a large military force to reinforce the Government of Bombay, and to enable it to cruſh immediately the French power in that quarter

quarter. For this purpoſe, I have directed Colonel Leſlie to march at the head of a large detachment, and well-appointed artillery, to Bombay. Mr. Middleton will more fully explain to you the nature of the plan, and will make application to you for your aſſiſtance and ſupport of it. I have no doubt but your Excellency, knowing that the future proſperity of your own dominions do eſſentially depend on our vigorous oppoſition againſt the common enemy, will cheerfully comply with every application which that gentleman ſhall make to you for aſſiſtance from your own brigade, or any other which it is in your power to furniſh.

To the Peiſhwa: written 23d March.

In conſequence of repeated and circumſtantial intelligence, of hoſtile deſigns forming againſt the Company's ſettlements on the other ſide of India, I have judged it expedient to detach a body of troops from the army for their defence. As the march of the detachment may probably lie through a part of the Maratta Dominions, I muſt requeſt you will give the neceſſary orders for allowing them a free paſſage, and direct ſuch aſſiſtance to be given them as they may require in their route.

The Commanding Officer is ſtrictly enjoined to obſerve ſuch a conduct in all reſpects, as is conſiſtent with the peace and friendſhip ſubſiſting between your Government and the Company.

I take this occaſion of repeating my aſſurances of the determination of this Government to adhere ſcrupulouſly to all the conditions of the treaty, and to maintain the peace inviolable as long as it ſhall be in our power to maintain it; and I flatter myſelf that you will likewiſe act on the ſame principles.

To the Rajah of Boondlecund: written 1ſt April.

Having lately come to the reſolution to diſpatch a conſiderable body of forces for the reinforcement of the Government of Bombay, which will march by the way of Calpee, through a part of your territory, I am to requeſt, that you will pay attention to all ſuch applications as may be made to you by Colonel Leſlie, the Commander of the detachment; and that you will afford him ſuch aſſiſtance as he may ſtand in need of, by ſupplying himwith proviſions and other neceſſaries.

I can have no doubt, from the friendſhip which ſubſiſts between us, that you will be glad to ſhew your attachment to the Company, by a ready compliance with my deſire, and have therefore directed Colonel Leſlie to apply to you in all caſes where your aſſiſtance can be of uſe to him; he has likewiſe received orders to obſerve the ſtricteſt regularity in his march through your territories; that ſo your ſubjects may not ſuffer any inconveniencies therefrom, but on the contrary be benefited by it. I could wiſh that you would ſend a truſty perſon to attend Colonel Leſlie on your part through your country, to receive his applications; and in caſe any ſtragglers from his army ſhould commit diſorders, to repreſent it to him, and procure redreſs.—For the reſt knowing me, &c.

N. B. The country of Boondlecund being under the juriſdiction of four different Chiefs, viz. Anzooder Sing, the chief of them, who ſucceeded to his father Hindoput, Surrumput Sing, Gomaun Sing, and Comaun Sing, who each poſſeſs a ſhare of the country; a letter of the ſame tenor as the above has been written to each of them; alſo one of the ſame tenor to the Chief of Bopaul.

To Benaram Pundit: D°.

I incloſe you letters to your Maſter, Maha Rajah Modajee Bhooſilah and Dewan Dewagurt Pundit, which I requeſt you will forward to them with all poſſible expedition, and accompanying them by letters from yourſelf, for which purpoſe I ſend you copies for your information.

If you have finiſhed the buſineſs for which you went to Benares, I wiſh you to proceed without delay and join Colonel Leſſie, who is very deſirous of ſeeing you, and of conſulting with you perſonally on many points relative to his march, which can be much better effected by an interview than by any other means.

To Beneram Pundit: written 4th April.

I have received your letter informing me of your arrival at Benares: I underſtand by the letters written by you to your brother, that Colonel Leſlie has deſired you to go to him to Cora, and that you have been much alarmed by the reports communicated to you from Dondo Pundit; I before deſired your brother to inform you of my wiſh, which I now repeat; that whenever you ſhall have finiſhed the buſineſs which was the original cauſe of your viſit to Benares, you will proceed to Colonel Leſlie, and aſſiſt him with your advice and ſuch communications as may be uſeful to him, until he ſhall have commenced his march. Dondo Pundit has no authority for any intelligence which he may pretend to have received from Calcutta; and you too well know the inventive diſpoſitions of the people of this place to give credit to rumours originating from them.

I have already communicated to you, in a confidential manner, all that was neceſſary for you to know, and have told you, that the object of the preſent undertaking was to reinforce and ſtrengthen the Preſidency of Bombay, and to enable them to fruſtrate any deſigns which may be formed againſt the peace and rights of the Company on that ſide of India: on this ſubject I have written more fully to Mr. Thomas Graham and to Colonel Leſlie; from either of whom, wherever you may be when you receive this letter, you will underſtand it.

APPENDIX No. 41.

Extract of Bengal Secret Conſultations, 23d March 1778.

THE draft of the letter propoſed by the Governor to be written to the Preſident and Council at Bombay, was returned, with the following minutes from Meſſrs. Francis and Wheler:

Mr. Francis—As the intended letter to Bombay profeſſes two general principles in which I concur: firſt, to make the Company's orders of the 4th of July 1777 the ground work of our preſent inſtructions: ſecondly, to make the eſtabliſhment of a laſting peace our ſole general object; I have only to conſider how far the inſtructions contained in this letter are conſiſtent with thoſe principles, with one another, with the meaſures already reſolved on, and with the motives originally aſſigned for thoſe meaſures.

The third paragraph ſtates as preliminary facts, that no one article of the treaty has yet been accompliſhed, except the declaration of the peace; and that a dangerous connection has been formed by one of the ruling Members of the Maratta State and the French.

From thence a general concluſion is drawn, that we are bound by policy and duty to make ſuch efforts as our means will afford, and as the treaty will allow, to remove the ſuſpence and alarm of our preſent ſituation, and to fruſtrate a policy which aims at our ruin and extirpation.

On this paragraph it is ſufficient to obſerve that we continue in the peaceable poſſeſſion of Salſette, alſo of the Maratta ſhare of the city and Pergunnah of Broach.

That the complete execution of the 5th Article of the Treaty has only been retarded by a diſpute about the literal meaning of the words Kamil Jumma, or in effect whether thoſe words mean a nett revenue of 2,10,000 rupees, or three lacks.

In our letter of the 18th of Auguſt laſt, we ſaid we underſtood underſtood the term to mean a groſs revenue, which I think decides the diſpute againſt us.

At all events we retain Chickley, Corial, and ſeveral other places, and enjoy the revenues thereof as pledges, until the ſunnuds for the country of three lacks ſhall be made out.

That the ſixth Article of the Treaty is alſo executed by the Marattas, ſince they have given and we have accepted of Jamboojeer, as a Mortgage to be held until the revenues collected from thence ſhall have liquidated the debt of twelve lacks.

Theſe important conceſſions having been made and fulfilled on the part of the Marattas, it ſeems juſt and reaſonable that ſome ſatisfaction ſhould be given them on our ſide; particularly that Ragoba ſhould be removed from Bombay with a proper proviſion for his eſtabliſhment in a private ſtation. In our letter of the 18th Auguſt, we were unanimous in conſidering his continuance at Bombay as an inſuperable bar to the completion of the treaty.

The ſecond ſuppoſed fact on which the preſent meaſures are built, is introduced as uſual, without proof; viz. "That a connection has been formed by Nana "Furneeſe with the French, and that it aims at our "ruin and extirpation." If any negociations have taken place with the French, we may trace them to their ſource in the protection given to Ragoba; his reſidence at Bombay; and the continued intrigues between him and that Preſidency. The true way to defeat the views of the French is to give the Marattas a ſolid proof of our good faith by diſmiſſing Ragoba. While the pretender to their government is ſupported by us, we give them too much cauſe for looking to France for aſſiſtance. The preſent meaſures, if carried into execution, will leave them without a choice. As for making uſe of ſuch efforts as our means will afford, and as the treaty will allow, it is a contradiction in ſenſe without ſaving appearances. The efforts in queſtion are hoſtile, which a treaty of peace and friendſhip cannot ſuppoſe or allow of.

The firſt inſtruction orders a peremptory demand of a country of three complete lacks, and leaves it to the Preſidency of Bombay to determine, whether Caumil Jumma means complete or not. In our letter of the 18th of Auguſt, we determined that it ſignified groſs. Is it meant that we ſhould go to war for the difference, while we have Chickley, Corial, Veriow, &c. in our hands, as a pledge for the ſecurity of the whole?

The ſecond inſtruction orders a peremptory demand of the twelve lacks, which the Marattas conſented to pay us towards the expences of the war. Is it meant that we ſhall renew the war for the immediate payment of this whole ſum, while the revenues of Jamboojeer are mortgaged to us for the gradual liquidation of it?

The third inſtruction decides, that Futty Sing had a right to make the ceſſions mentioned in the ſeventh Article of the treaty, and orders the Preſidency of Bombay to keep poſſeſſion of them at all events. This point ſeems to me very diſputable, and the deciſion of it in our favour, very likely to make the eſtabliſhment of a laſting peace impoſſible.

The fourth inſtruction ſuppoſes the fort of Choul to have been granted to the French. An aſſertion of the ſame nature was introduced into the debates on the 23d of February; and upon enquiry was acknowledged to be without proof. The remonſtrance againſt Monſieur St. Lubin is to be accompanied with the demands of a clear and ſatisfactory explanation from the Miniſters of their intentions, and a declaration that we ſhall take ſuch meaſures accordingly, as prudence ſhall dictate. Is it meant to declare war with the Marattas, if their anſwer ſhould not be ſatisfactory to the Preſidency of Bombay, or to the Governor General and Mr Barwell?

In the fifth inſtruction, a ſuppoſed intrigue of Nana Furneeſe with Monſieur St. Lubin, is ſtated, "as the ſole "motive of all the late meaſures we have taken for the "ſupport of the Preſidency of Bombay." The reſolution of the 2d of February, from which all the late meaſures have originated, was, "that our ſanction "ſhould be given to the plan which the Preſident and "Council of Bombay had agreed to form with the Ma-"ratta Government." Now it is not diſputed, that no ſuch a plan has ever been formed, and that Mr Lewis's account of propoſals made to him in the name of the Miniſters, in favour of Ragoba, was founded on ſome fallacy, and had produced no effect of any kind; yet the meaſures taken on the preſumption that ſuch a plan had been formed, are adhered to, and now imputed to another motive; that is, the firſt ground failing, another muſt be aſſumed. Appendix. No. 41.

The fifth inſtruction ſays, that we have applied to the Peiſhwa for a ſafe paſſage for our army through their dominions. Suppoſe they ſhould refuſe it: is it meant that the detachment ſhall march through their territories without their permiſſion, or without their conſent? If it be, this act alone is a declaration of war, which it is in vain to attempt to qualify, by any aſſurances of our pacific intentions? Such language, united with ſuch meaſures, is an inſult to common ſenſe; and much too plain, in my opinion, to deceive either the Marattas or the Court of Directors.

The ſixth inſtruction leaves it to the Preſidency of Bombay to judge whether or no the treaty is directly or indirectly infringed. If they determine that it is, they are at once "veſted with authority to form a new "alliance with Ragoba, and to engage with him in any "ſcheme which they ſhall deem expedient and ſafe for "retrieving his affairs." In the preſent temper and diſpoſition of that Preſidency, I preſume there cannot be a doubt in the breaſt of any of us, of the uſe they will immediately make of this extraordinary power; or that they will not be forward to avail themſelves of it before it can be recalled.

The ſeventh inſtruction ſuppoſes the probability of a change in the Adminiſtration of Poonah, from which more extenſive advantages may be derived. In this caſe it is left to them "to purſue ſuch policy as circum-"ſtances ſhall warrant, independent of any particular "intereſts of Ragoba." In the preceding article they are authorized to engage with Ragoba in any ſcheme for retrieving his affairs. In the preſent article they are inſtructed to gain as many advantages as they can without any concern for his intereſts. Excluſive of the manifeſt contradiction between the two inſtructions, and the hazardous as well as diſgraceful conſequences of not purſuing ſome one determinate ſyſtem, I apprehend that we are not warranted in giving ſuch unlimited power to the Preſidency of Bombay: their meaſures ought to be conſtantly ſubordinate to our Councils, and ſucceſſively directed by them. The peace of India, perhaps the fate of the Britiſh Empire in this part of the world, is involved in the queſtion, which we leave to their excluſive deciſion. Are we juſtified in relinquiſhing our juriſdiction, even for a moment, over ſuch queſtions?

Upon the whole it appears to me, that the real tendency of this letter, notwithſtanding any qualifying expreſſions interſperſed through it, is to provoke a war with the Marattas; that it ſeeks for cauſes of offence where none exiſt; that the language it holds to the Marattas is peremptory and hoſtile, and never uſed but when a rupture is predetermined; that the cauſes of complaint on which it urges a quarrel are trifling and exaggerated; that the facts it refers to, are either clearly diſproved, or taken for granted without evidence; and that the terms of the inſtructions contained in it, are in ſome places ambiguous, in others contradictory. Whether they are or are not conſiſtent with the pacific reſolutions, ſo clearly and poſitively expreſſed by the Court of Directors in their letter of the 4th of July, muſt be left to their judgment.

Mr Wheler—Having already diſſented to and proteſted againſt any interference on our part between the contending contending powers of the Maratta Government, and declared my disapprobation of the armament now under orders for Bombay, and the purposes for which it is to be employed, and in general to all the measures proposed to be taken by the majority of this Board relating to the Marattas, I shall not think it necessary in future to enter into a particular discussion of any proposition which may be made in the course of our correspondence with the Presidency of Bombay, by the Governor General or Mr. Barwell, as they have taken the whole responsibility on themselves, and must be answerable for the consequence of the measures already resolved on, and such as may of necessity follow. On the present occasion I shall content myself with making some short remarks on some parts of the draft of the letter to Bombay, laid before us by the Governor General, and leave the whole to be more fully discussed and decided on, by our superiors.

I agree with the Governor General, in wishing to make the 65th paragraph of the Company's letter to Bombay the ground of our instructions to the President and Council there: but I differ with him, in thinking this ought to be extended, as far only as they are restrained by it from forming any engagement with Ragoba without the consent of this Board. I wish to extend our instructions to what I deem the spirit and meaning of the whole order, to adhere to the Treaty of Poonah made by Colonel Upton, and even in the protection given to Ragoba, to be careful to avoid what the Marattas may think a breach of that treaty; and I am of opinion that we ought to give the fullest weight to that part which directs, that the Council of Bombay be "particularly vigilant whilst Ragoba is with them, to "prevent him from forming any plan against what is "called the ministerial party at Poonah," by which the late resolutions on this subject, and the present propositions, are I think entirely condemned.

I am not sufficiently acquainted with the consequences of the Treaty of Poonah to be able to enter into a particular refutation of what is asserted in the third paragraph of the Governor General's draft, that no one article of it has yet been accomplished; but the Court of Directors, who have constant information from Bombay, do not appear to be possessed with any such opinion, and declare, that they are resolved to adhere strictly to the treaty on their parts. With respect to the consequence to be expected from the French negociators at Poonah, I have already declared my opinion of them, and how far they ought to be opposed by us: any interference on our part between the contending parties of the Maratta Government, can only have the effect of forcing the other party to unite with the French, and thereby produce that very consequence which the Governor General proposes to guard against, of procuring them a powerful and useful ally, to enable them to dispute our dominion in India.

I object to and protest against the form and substance of all demands to be made by the Presidency of Bombay on the Maratta Government, and to the march of our troops through their territories, and to the powers proposed to be given to the President and Council of Bombay, to enter into any new engagements with Ragoba, or to avail themselves of any particular circumstances or change amongst the governing powers of the Maratta State, as subversive to the Treaty of Poonah: a violation of the Company's orders lately received; and tending to involve them, and perhaps the British nation, in a dangerous and most expensive war, which at this critical period may not be confined to India alone, and which proposes no adequate or reasonable purpose for incurring so great a risque.

(Signed) Edward Wheler.

Extract of Bengal Secret Consultations, 6th April 1778.

The Governor General delivers in the following answer to Mr. Francis's objections to the letter to the Presidency of Bombay on the 23d March.

Governor General—It is not perhaps incumbent upon me to make any reply to the minute delivered in by Mr. Francis, objecting to the proposed draft of a letter to the Presidency of Bombay, as I conceive that all the points brought by Mr. Francis as arguments against the instructions contained in that letter, have been fully canvassed in my former minutes upon the state of the Maratta in relation to the English Government; and I will venture to pronounce, that to an unbiassed reader, it will be proved by those minutes, and by the documents on which the arguments contained in them are founded, and which stand upon our records, that the seeds of a combination between the leading though not the principal members of the Maratta Administration, and an Agent who acts under the immediate instructions of the first Ministers of the French nation, are sown and have already taken deep root; that the Administration of Poonah have treated the Agent of that nation with all the attention due to the minister of an ally, whilst they have behaved to ours with an inattention and disrespect which in any European Court would be considered as a dismission disgraceful to the power he represented, and the consequence of which would be satisfaction or war; and that even allowing for the difference of manners to which such a conduct to our Minister may be imputed, the striking contrast in their behaviour to the French Agent, with whose nation I am on the whole to understand Mr. Francis supposes them not in alliance, and to ours to whom they are bound by treaty, marks too clearly to be doubted, that such conduct proceeds from some deeper cause than simply a difference of manners; and lastly, it will appear that the Treaty of Poorunder, dated the 1st of March 1776, hath not yet been carried into execution.

I have repeatedly and in the most formal manner declared, and I again declare it to be my opinion, that such is the state of affairs at Poonah.

It is unnecessary to seek further for the causes of the difference of opinion in the members of this Board upon the important questions which have lately been before it. We differ in the belief of the facts on which our decision is to be founded. Mr. Francis and Mr. Wheler appear to be for total inaction; Mr. Barwell and myself are for taking some steps which may secure us against the effect of intrigues, which we are persuaded are carrying on at Poonah, and we wish at the same time that what we do should be consistent with the Treaty of Poorunder.

I shall now proceed to examine the nature and force of the evidence by which I think the propositions I have above laid down are supported.

In a letter from Bombay under date the 10th May 1777, and entered in our Consultation of the 16th June, we are informed of the arrival of a French gentleman with his train, who afterwards turned out to be the Chevalier St. Lubin. We are likewise informed of the high respect shewn to him by the Durbar at Poonah, and of the suspicion, with the grounds of it, that the port of Chowl would be granted by the Ministers to the French. We find that Mahderow Bullob, an officer of the Government, was appointed to transact the French business.

In another letter from Bombay, dated the 21st June 1777, and entered in Consultation of the 18th August, is the following paragraph:

"We now find that the French Deputy at the Maratta "Durbar is no other than the celebrated Monsieur St "Lubin, and not Monsieur St. Laub, as we at first "imagined. At his first audience he was received with "a respect and ceremony greatly superior to what was "paid to our Resident. The two Ministers themselves, "Succaram and Nanah, having gone without the tent "walls, to meet him on his alighting from an elephant "provided for him by the Circar, and introduced him "into

" into the Durbar, whereas Mr. Moſtyn was only re" ceived by two inferior officers, and with much leſs
" ceremony. We have remonſtrated againſt the indig-
" nity ſhewn to the nation by this diſtinction ſhewn to
" the French, and the reſtrictions laid on Mr. Moſtyn
" and his attendants, ſo contrary to the law of nations,
" and inſiſted upon their allowing him the ſame privi" lege and freedom of communication as heretofore."

In Conſultation the 22d September, is entered a letter from the Bombay Council, incloſing a paper obtained by Mr. Moſtyn at Poonah, from an Engliſhman in St. Lubin's ſuite, ſaid to be the production of his Secretary's pen; in which it is ſtated that Monſieur de Sartine was the Miniſter who was entruſted with the management of the expedition to India; that he was ſo much intereſted in its ſucceſs as to viſit the ports where the ſhips intended for the expedition lay; that 3,000 men under the command of Monſieur Dennas, late Governor of the Iſle of France, were originally intended for the expedition; that St. Lubin was appointed Miniſter Plenipotentiary to the Maratta Court, and was bound to ſend an expreſs to Europe upon his arrival; of which, ſhould the contents be favourable to their views, the above-mentioned number of men would be ſent; &c.

The next information in order of time which came before us, was Mr. Elliott's letter, which he circulated amongſt the Members of the Board on the 1ſt October, though for the ſake of ſecrecy it was not thought proper at that time to put it upon record. It is to be found in Conſultation the 2d February. As I mean, however, this minute to contain a pretty full abſtract of the whole of the evidence of the French intrigues, and of the high authority from which they originate, I ſhall here quote that part of it which relates to the objection which I am now writing.

" Having been fortunate enough to obtain ſome in" telligence before I left Europe, in which the intereſt
" of the Eaſt India Company, and the influence of " Great Britain in India, appear to be deeply intereſted,
" I think it incumbent on me to take the earlieſt op" portunity of communicating it to your Honourable " Board; I am concerned at the ſame time to be under " the neceſſity of laying the facts only before you,
" without having it in my power to point out the chan" nel through which the intelligence was conveyed to " me, as my promiſe was moſt particularly taken before
" I was myſelf intruſted with it, that I ſhould conceal
" the names of the perſons from whom I received the " information. It was not without ſome difficulty that " I obtained permiſſion to inform the Governor Gene" ral and Sir John Clavering of this material circum-
" ſtance, and that only upon condition, that they
" ſhould not truſt it to the records of the Company,
" however ſecret they might be. The opinions which
" thoſe Gentlemen muſt form as to the authenticity of " the facts which I now propoſe myſelf the honour of " laying before you, will be a ſufficient juſtification of " me for addreſſing you in this letter.

" It appears, by the information to which I allude,
" that Monſieur Sartine, Miniſtre de la Marine of " France, has concerted with three or four of the prin" cipal Miniſters of that country a ſcheme, the object
" of which is the total overthrow of the Engliſh in-" tereſts in India; that he was ſenſible the force
" which France could herſelf bring againſt our ſettle-
" ments would prove inſufficient for ſo great an under" taking, and had therefore thought it neceſſary to
" the completion of his views to begin by intriguing
" with the country powers, and by endeavouring to ſe-
" cure them in the intereſts of France in oppoſition to
" thoſe of Britain; that for this purpoſe he was re-
" ſolved to ſend a perſon to India with full powers, in " the character of Agent; and likewiſe to ſend out per-" ſons, who in the information are called Des Exer-
" ceurs, to diſcipline the natives of India; and a con-
" ſiderable quantity of arms and military ſtores. The " perſon who was nominated to this office was deſcribed
" to me as one who had before been in India; he was
" to go to Pondicherry firſt, but to aſſume no public
" character, that he might not be ſubject to the ſuſpi-
" cions of the Engliſh; he is furniſhed with letters from " the Court of France to all the country Princes of any
" note in India, to be uſed at his own diſcretion; he
" likewiſe carries out preſents of conſiderable value,
" which he is to diſtribute as he may judge neceſſary.
" The ſubſtance of his inſtructions is as follows:—To " treat with ſuch of the country powers as he may have " reaſon to think will moſt readily aſſiſt the views of " France, and to form alliances with them in the name " of the King of France; to endeavour to perſuade the " country powers to fall upon the Engliſh ſettlements;
" and he is authorized to promiſe ſuch as will accede to " his propoſal, the warmeſt ſupport of his nation ſe" cretly, till hoſtilities are actually commenced, and " then openly. He is warned however in his inſtruc-
" tions, that France is not to take the lead in the war,
" but is to come in as an aſſiſtant only. The perſon
" from whom I learnt theſe particulars knew for certain " that the Agent ſailed from Marſeilles in the beginning
" of April laſt, but was unacquainted with his name,
" and unable to inform me for certain what road he had " followed to India, but ſeemed to be of opinion that " he muſt have paſſed over to Alexandria, in the inten" tion of embarking at Suez for India.

" Having informed you of what I venture to ſay may " be relied on as authentic, it will not be miſplaced," &c.

If we had no other proof of the authenticity of the information contained in this letter, but its agreeing ſo exactly in all the material facts with the intelligence tranſmitted to us from Poonah, in the paper I have already mentioned, and in the letters of Mr. Farmer and Mr. Madgett, entered in conſultation the 26th January, I ſhould hold it to be incontrovertible.

The ſame circumſtances brought from Europe, and traced in the capital of the Maratta Empire, upon the ſame ſubject, muſt be facts; the authenticity of Mr. Elliott's information does not, however, ſingly depend even upon this ſtrong ground, he takes upon him in his letter to pronounce it to be authentic, and he has communicated to me, as he would have done to Sir John Clavering had he been alive, which Mr. Elliott thought he was, when he drew up the letter, as will appear from the terms of it, the grounds upon which he makes the declaration; and I now declare that he has not in the ſmalleſt degree ſtated the authenticity of his information more forcibly than he is warranted from the nature of it. It is not therefore in ſupport of Mr. Elliott's letter, that I make the compariſon between the intelligence diſcovered in Europe and at Poonah; but it is to examine how far we ſhould give credit to thoſe parts of Mr. Madgett's letter, which are not corroborated by Mr. Elliott's. If the parts of his letter which admitted of proof are aſcertained by that proof's being obtained, we are I think bound to believe that the other parts of it are equally authentic, in ſupport of which we are ſenſible no proof could be obtained. The following is an extract of his letter:—

" I have heard it repeatedly mentioned by different
" gentlemen who were there, that there was ſome
" written inſtrument, to one ſide of which Nanab ſwore
" by the cow, and the other ſide Monſieur St. Lubin
" ſwore by the Holy Evangeliſt; that Nanab, further,
" kept the book Monſieur St. Lubin ſwore on."

Mr. Farmer in his letter to Mr. Hornby, an extract of which is here entered, uſes the following words on the ſame ſubject:

" They all perfectly agree in the circumſtances of the " ſummons given to attend at Nanab's to witneſs the " treaty. Nanab was ſworn by his Bramin, and St.
" Lubin by his Padre, and Nanab kept the book."

From the following extract of our letter to Bombay, under date the 20th of October, which is conſiderably before the letters from Mr. Farmer and Mr. Madgett were received by us, it will appear what was the unanimous opinion of the Board upon the ſubject of the French intrigues. The words with a black ſtroke under them are in Mr. Francis's hand writing. I know not why the great additional weight of evidence, brought before the Board ſince that period, ſhould have made him change his mind upon this important ſubject.

" The paper of intelligence obtained by Mr. Moſtyn " from a perſon lately in the ſervice of Monſieur St. " Lubin, and incloſed in your letter of the 2d of " Auguſt, has left no room to doubt of the commiſſion " with which he is charged from the Court of France; " and the ſecret conferences which he has been admitted " to hold with the Poonah Government, too ſtrongly " indicate that they may have liſtened to negociations " of a hoſtile nature to the Company. Monſieur St. " Lubin remains ſtill at the Maratta Court, and may " poſſibly by this time have entered into engagements " with the Peiſhwa of a dangerous tendency to the " Company's eſtabliſhments; at ſuch a criſis therefore, " every circumſtance is of conſequence, and we are " under great anxiety to learn the progreſs of his nego- " ciations."

I delivered in to the Board on the 2d of February 1778, extracts from the Perſian Correſpondence.

The evidence contained in thoſe letters appears to me to amount to proof.

Saccaram Babboo the firſt Miniſter, and whoſe name is one of the two affixed to the treaty, tells us, that Monſieur St. Lubin is come to Poonah with the character of Miniſter on the part of the King of France; that he brought a letter from his Royal Maſter to the Pundit Purdhaun (that is to the Peiſhwa) that friendſhip is the object of his negociation. This letter is from the firſt Miniſter, and eſtabliſhed incontrovertibly the character in which Monſieur St. Lubin came to India. It cannot then be aſſerted that St. Lubin is an adventurer. The Nabob of Arcot's vackeel details to his Maſter what paſſed between the French Agent and the Maratta Miniſter. The whole letter is worthy of the utmoſt attention, but I ſhall here quote only the following words:

" Succaram Pundit then ſaid (to St. Lubin) I will ap- " point ſome perſon to negociate your buſineſs for you; " it muſt be a perſon who is well verſed in your af- " fairs; I know of no one qualified for this buſineſs, ex- " cept Mado Row Sudaſhee." Mr. ——— not reliſhing this propoſal made anſwer, " he is employed in the negociations with the Engliſh, how is it poſſible we ſhould unite?"

The ſame vackeel mentions the Chevalier St. Lubin's deſire, that 10,000 ſepoys ſhould be raiſed to be diſciplined; the Aumil of Guyacawar mentions the ſame circumſtance. It muſt be obſerved how exactly this agrees with the information brought by Mr. Elliott from Europe who ſays, " That for this purpoſe he (Monſieur Sartine) " reſolved to ſend a perſon with full powers to India, " in the character of Agent; and likewiſe to ſend out " perſons who in the information are called Des Exer- " ceurs, to diſcipline the natives of India." I will here, for the ſake of bringing the whole ſubject into one point of view, introduce an extract of Mr. Madgett's letter which has been before quoted.

" Military ſtores, 15,000 muſquets, rejected from " the King's ſervice, were ſpared to him at a very low " price from the King's ſtores, by means of the influence " of Monſieur de Sartine; cloth of different ſortments " and colours, with a quantity proper for facing, for- " med alſo a part of the cargo, which I frequently " heard Monſieur de St. Lubin mention, was to clothe " the troops that might be raiſed in India for the pur- " poſe of the alliance: having perhaps forgot it in the " owner's cargo, he perſuaded an officer in the ſhip to " get made and bring out a conſiderable quantity of " buttons; the device of the buttons was given by Mon- " ſieur de St. Lubin; it is a fleur de lys in a creſcent, " which probably Monſieur de St. Lubin imagined to " be the Maratta ſtandard, and had therefore intended " it as emblematic of the alliance."

The Aumil of Guyacawar writes from Poonah upon the ſubject of the French Agent, " The expences are " great; how ſhould he be able to make ſuch preſents of " himſelf? From theſe circumſtances it is evident that " he is no impoſtor."

In Mr. Elliott's letter are the following words, " He " likewiſe carries out preſents of conſiderable value, " which he is to diſtribute as he may judge neceſſary."

Dewagur Pundit, the Duan of Moodajee Booſlah, writes to me, that an experienced Ambaſſador is arrived from France, &c.

In a letter from Mr. Lewis to the Governor of Bombay, which is recorded in our Conſultation the 16th February, we find, that Chokees were placed upon the Engliſh factory; and that none of the Engliſh Reſident's people could ſtir without being attended with one or two; and that the inſolence of the Chokees was carried ſo far as to have ill treated a ſhopkeeper who ſerved the factory with the common neceſſaries of life; the only ſatisfaction which the Durbar would give for an indignity greater than ever was borne by any nation, was a declaration that Nanah Furneſſe wanted all Europeans to leave Poonah, and that if the Engliſh muſt have a vackeel there, he thought a Carkoon was enough; we are informed nevertheleſs, that Monſieur de St. Lubin was cloſeted with Nannah Furneſſe for three hours on the ſame day.

The Governor and Council of Bombay in their inſtructions to Mr. Moſtyn, entered in the ſame Conſultation, direct him to obtain a ſatisfactory explanation of the indignity offered to the Company in the perſon of their Reſident; and to declare to the Durbar, that if they continue to treat their Reſident with the ſame indignity in future, it will be conſidered as a breach of the treaty, &c.

Mr. Moſtyn informs us in his letter of the 19th January, that he was promiſed an anſwer to his complaints in two days; on the 13th of January, that he has not only received no anſwer to his complaints, but the Chowkies are continued on the factory.

In anſwer to all this, I am told that I take a fact for granted without proof: I have ſtated my proofs, and I think they are clear and decided, and unleſs we could ſend a commiſſion to Poonah to take the evidence of the confidential officers of the Maratta Government, I know not how ſtronger proofs could be obtained, and I do not conceive, that upon a political queſtion, ſtronger could be required. I will quote the words uſed by Mr. Francis in a minute which he circulated on the 1ſt December laſt, from which it will appear what his opinions were at that time of the French deſigns.

" In the preſent ſituation of public affairs, and with " the opinion entertained by every member of this " Board, that the French are meditating deſigns againſt " ſome part of the Company's poſſeſſions in India, I " think we cannot be too watchful in obſerving their " motions, and taking early precautions againſt any " attempts they may poſſibly have in view; whether " ſuch attempts be likely to ſucceed or not, at this time " every new appearance on their part is a juſt object of " ſuſpicion."

In the minute to which I mean this as a reply, he ſhews, pretty clearly, that he does not ſo totally differ with me in opinion as he would appear to do; for he apologizes for the protection given by the Marattas to the French. The apology which he makes for them is, that our conduct in the protection of Ragoba has authorized them to ſeek for ſafety in the arms of our natural enemy. We do not then differ in the fact; we only differ in the cauſes which gave riſe to the connection. I ſhall not now enter into an argument with Mr. Francis upon the rectitude of meaſures which are paſt. It will be here ſufficient to ſay, that the Court of Directors made Ragoba's perſonal ſafety and indiſpenſable condition of their approbation of the treaty. It will ſcarcely be denied, that ſhould he be delivered up to the Miniſters, or driven naked and defenceleſs from under the protection of the Britiſh flag, his life muſt fall a ſacrifice to ſuch injuſtice. The conveyance of Ragonaut Row to Bengal by ſea, has already been under the conſideration of the Board, and proved to be impracticable. Mr. Francis, I cannot doubt, though he has introduced this ſubject by way of argument, would ſhudder at the thought of delivering over a man, to whom the Britiſh faith has once been pledged, to certain death. He ſays, nevertheleſs, that the true way to defeat the French views, is to give the Marattas a ſolid proof of our friendſhip by diſmiſſing Ragoba. The connection which he ſuppoſes to be formed between the French and the Marattas, and which he makes the ground-work of this propoſal, might poſſibly be diſſolved by adopting it; but if it ſhould not be diſſolved, we ſhould, by an untimely act of ſubmiſſion, contrary to hoſpitality, contrary to the inſtructions of our ſuperiors, and contrary to policy, give additional ſtrength to that power which has been proved to be in combination with our natural enemies, the French. The perſonal ſafety of Ragoba was an implied article of the treaty; no Member of this Board will, I apprehend, ſtain the Britiſh faith with ſo foul a reproach as to ſuppoſe it was not: if, however, it was not, the deciſion of the Court of Directors has made it ſo. The article of the treaty which relates to his perſonal reſidence, is incompatible with his perſonal ſafety; for it was ſtipulated, that he ſhould reſide in the heart of the Maratta Dominions. Mr. Francis may argue on this queſtion, as he has on another, that there is no proof that his life would not be ſafe in the place allotted for his reſidence. I muſt leave the deciſion of this queſtion to the conviction which every man will feel upon it in his own breaſt; and ſhall only ſay, that ſhould we try the experiment, and the proof afterwards come, it muſt be ſealed in blood. Mr. Francis ſeems to dwell upon an expreſſion uſed in the preface to the inſtructions to Bombay. He ſays, that to make uſe of ſuch efforts as our means will afford, and as the treaty will allow, is a contradiction in ſenſe without ſaving appearances. I am ſorry he ſhould think it worth while to play with words when deliberating upon the moſt important queſtions which can come before this Board. It is torturing words to make them convey a meaning which they do not imply. The efforts which our means will afford muſt be directed by future events, by neceſſity, or by policy. They may be productive of war; but they may be productive of harmony between the Engliſh and Maratta Government: if they ſhould be hoſtile, it muſt be upon the principle of no treaty of friendſhip and peace exiſting. The treaty might allow us to demand the payment of twelve lacks of rupees for the expences of the war; it might not however follow, that our means would allow us to make uſe of ſuch efforts as might enable us to enforce the payment of our due.

I ſhall here reply to that part of Mr. Francis's minute which alludes to the fifth inſtruction in the letter to Bombay, becauſe it is connected with the ſubject of which I am now treating. The impreſſion meant to be conveyed by it is, that not having originally approved the treaty of Poorunder, I was reſolved to break it at all events. Mr. Francis ſays, that all the late meaſures, originated from the reſolution of the 2d February; and upon the truth of this fact, he appears to reſt his proof of my determination on a breach of faith.

I ſhould draw this minute to an unwarrantable length were I to quote all the paſſages from my minutes, prior to that date which clearly diſprove the fact aſſerted: I am loth to ſuppoſe that Mr. Francis has made this the ground-work of his attack upon my meaſures, in hopes that the papers, which are upon record, are too voluminous to be read. In anſwer to what he has ſaid on that ſubject, particularly to theſe words, "The firſt "ground failing, another muſt be aſſumed," I quote the following extracts from my minute entered in Conſultation the 26th January, which was prior to the receipt of the letter on which the reſolutions of the 2d February were founded. Appendix. No. 41.

"That I may not appear to have drawn too forcible "a concluſion from the late tranſactions between the "Miniſters and the Chevalier St. Lubin, I beg leave "to call the recollection of the Board to a paper de"livered to them by Mr. Elliott on the 1ſt of October "laſt. From the compariſon of the intelligence con"tained in that paper, and brought immediately from "Europe, with the information obtained by Mr. Moſtyn "and Mr. Lewis at Poonah, and their exact agreement "in the moſt-eſſential points, I think it appears beyond "a doubt, that the French Agent there is entruſted with "a plan which has for its object the ſubverſion of the "Britiſh influence in India. We are in actual treaty of "friendſhip with the ruling adminiſtration of the Ma"ratta State; and our treaty was formed at a time "when they were engaged in a war with the Company; "from which they were releaſed by the treaty which we "granted them, and in the proſecution of which, had it "continued, they muſt have fallen. The treaty was "concluded by an officer of rank, deputed immediately "from this Government; and the attention of every "Prince and Chief in Hindoſtan was turned upon this "firſt negociation of the Britiſh power under the direc"tion of a general Government. It is diſgraceful to "us, that the Government at Poonah ſhould in any "ſituation, pay more attention, and ſhew more counte"nance to an Agent of the natural and known enemy "of our country than to ours; but when we are infor"med, that the French Miniſtry have formed a plan of "an offenſive alliance with the Maratta State; when we "are informed that an Agent of the French Miniſtry has "been received at Poonah, has been treated with the greateſt "confidence and marks of diſtinction, while our own is "diſregarded; that he has received from them the grant "of a port of trade within twenty miles of Bombay itſelf; "has exchanged mutual engagements with them, of which "his part is to ſupply them with arms and military force; "and even the common newspapers relate theſe tranſ"actions of univerſal notoriety; what concluſions are "we, who are immediately concerned in them, to form "from them? Are we, to regard them as the allowable "machinations of political intrigue, and quietly permit "them to operate to their laſt effect, if the Marattas "commit no overt act of hoſtility, or direct breach "of the treaty? Or ſhall we conſider the preparations "to a war as declaratory of an intended breach of "treaty, and take ſuch meaſures as the neceſſity of "ſuch a ſituation demands for enſuring and confirming "the treaty, and giving it that vigour which it yet con"feſſedly wants? Or, if that ſhould prove impracticable, "even to prevent the deſigns of our enemies, by openly "counteracting and oppoſing them?

"That a remonſtrance be made to the miniſters "againſt the countenance afforded by them to the "Chevalier St. Lubin, againſt the engagements we "underſtand have been formed with him, and againſt "the grant of the port of Chowl, made as we underſtand "to him, or to the French nation through him; that "though we do not inſiſt on any poſitive right to de"mand his diſmiſſion, nor the excluſion of the French "from the port of Chowl, yet as we have a right to re"quire a knowledge of the intentions of the Miniſters "in regard to theſe points, ſo far as they reſpect the "treaty of peace ſubſiſting between the Maratta State "and the Britiſh Government in India, a clear and ſatiſ"factory explanation be demanded of their intentions: "and that a declaration be made to them that we ſhall "take ſuch meaſures accordingly as prudence ſhall dic"tate for the future ſafety of the Company's intereſts "and poſſeſſions committed to our charge."

I ſhould apologize for the extreme length of this minute, and for the number of quotations I have been under the neceſſity of making from our records, with which every member of the Board muſt be ſuppoſed to be acquainted quainted, but the haſty manner in which Mr. Francis accuſes me of introducing ſuppoſed facts, as uſual without proof; and the aſſertion which he makes, that the cauſes of complaint, on which the letter urges a quarrel, are trifling and exaggerated; and that the facts it refers to are clearly diſapproved, or taken for granted without evidence, has forced me in my own defence to diſprove the aſſertions of Mr. Francis.

Let Mr. Francis and Mr. Wheler weigh the force of evidence upon which the proof of the combination between the French and Marattas is founded. Should they hereafter ſee the armies and fleets of France in alliance with the Marattas, the offspring of the preſent intrigues, and their propoſed inaction, triumphing over the Engliſh ſettlements in the weſtern parts of India, it would be a bad excuſe to their country and to themſelves, to ſay, "We had no proof that it would be ſo."

I am well aware of the innumerable cauſes which may ariſe between this time and the period intended for the execution of this plan, to prevent its being executed at all; had I the ſame conviction that the plan would be carried into execution, as I have that it exiſts, I ſhould not have propoſed that troops ſhould be ſent to reinforce our ſettlement at Bombay, but I ſhould have propoſed, that Engliſh armies from Calpee and Bombay ſhould have met at Poonah. Ido not therefore act upon the conviction that the French will ſend out armies to India for the purpoſe of effecting our overthrow; I acknowledge the chapter of accidents to be open, and that it is a voluminous one. I am convinced however that when Monſieur St. Lubin was diſpatched from France, it was the intention of that Government to back his negociations by force; and, as far as human foreſight can lead us, we have every reaſon to think that the French Adminiſtration will do every thing they intended, for St. Lubin's negociations appear to have been much more ſucceſsful than their moſt ſanguine expectations could have permitted them to hope. The line I have taken in conjunction with Mr. Barwell is ſtrictly conſiſtent with theſe principles; we tell the miniſters, that if they do not give us a clear and ſatisfactory explanation of their intentions, we ſhall take ſuch meaſures accordingly as prudence ſhall dictate, &c.

This declaration does not in any ſhape commit us. Prudence may dictate to us the neceſſity of reinforcing our ſettlement at Bombay, and no more. Such a declaration may however alarm the Adminiſtration at Poonah, and make them act with more good faith towards thoſe with whom they are in alliance; the requiſition for permiſſion that our troops ſhall paſs through their country, will give this declaration additional weight; and I think it is more than probable, that ſhould Nanah Furneſe, the patron of the French, ſtill wiſh to ſupport the views of that nation, he will be checked by Succaram Baboo, and his other colleagues in office. This leads me to anſwer the part of Mr. Francis's minute, where he aſks, what is meant to be done ſhould the Marattas refuſe a paſſage to our troops through their country? future events muſt decide this queſtion; the detachment is not yet marched; when it does march it may take another road, or march, but a part of the way. It is no declaration of war to aſk a free paſſage for our troops, from one of our ſettlements to another; and I will never give my conſent to a declaration of war, or to any act which is equal to it againſt the Marattas, whilſt they maintain their faith to us or whilſt we are not obliged to act in our own defence. The advantages of our military preparations muſt at all events be acknowledged. If the detachment reaches Bombay, it ſecures that ſettlement againſt every effort with which the French and Maratta intrigues appear to be pregnant. If it ſhould ſtop in the country of the Rajah of Berar, Poonah will be between an Engliſh army at Bombay and another in Berar. Its march may be ſuſpended, or it may be rendered wholly unneceſſary, by advices received from Bombay, that the members of that Preſideney have of themſelves effected the purpoſes for which it was formed, either before the detachment has made a conſiderable progreſs, or poſſibly before it has even moved from the ground of its firſt ſtation. But even in theſe caſes it may have been productive of ſome advantage by the confidence excited in our friends, and by the impreſſion which the rumour of ſo powerful a reinforcement may have made on the minds of a weak, unconſtitutional, and divided miniſtry; which abandoning all its hopes in the French alliance, may chuſe, on any terms, to ſolicit ours as their only reſource; or to yield into their hands, for the condition of perſonal ſafety, a power which they are unable to retain.

I ſhall now endeavour to prove my third propoſition, that the treaty of Poorunder paſſed on the 1ſt March 1777 is not yet executed; which will at the ſame time anſwer the only part of Mr. Francis's minute which remains unanſwered.

The firſt proof which is produced in that minute in ſupport of the opinion, that the treaty is executed, is, that we are in poſſeſſion of Salſette, and the Maratta ſhare of the city and Pergunnah of Broach.

It would be ſtrange indeed if we were not: we were in poſſeſſion of them when the treaty was concluded, and nothing but force could have wreſted them from us; and that force muſt have been greater than the whole Maratta Empire, unſupported by an European alliance, could have brought againſt us. This is not a very ſtriking inſtance to produce of the Maratta good faith.

It is ſtipulated in the treaty that Salſette and the other iſlands ſhould remain in our poſſeſſion. The only way by which this condition of the treaty could be accompliſhed was by ſilence and acquieſcence; but the treaty was ſcarcely ſigned when the miniſters reclaimed thoſe ceſſions, and have ſince repeated the requiſition not as a point of option but of right, with an intimation too ſtrongly implied to be miſunderſtood, that at a proper time they would uſe force to recover it; yet Mr. Francis inſtances this as one condition of the treaty which has been accompliſhed: ſurely it has not.

The 5th Article of the Treaty entitles us to a country of three complete lacks of rupees, &c. &c. This article is not executed; and Mr. Francis acknowledges it, for he ſays, "The complete execution of the treaty "has only been retarded by a diſpute about the literal "meaning of the Kaumil Jumma, &c." Mr. Francis ſays, "That in our letter of the 18th Auguſt, we de-"clared that we underſtood the term to mean a groſs "revenue;" which he thinks decides the diſpute againſt us: by no means; Mr. Francis has miſtaken or forgotten the point in diſpute. It is not a groſs revenue of three lacks which the miniſter offers, for that we ſhould have accepted, but lands which ſtand rated in the books at a revenue of three lacks. Our inſtructions to the Preſidency of Bombay upon this article in the letter quoted by Mr. Francis, are ſtrictly conſonant to thoſe which we have now given, as will appear from the peruſal of both.

Mr. Francis aſks, "Is it meant that we ſhould go to war? &c." The inſtructions direct the Council of Bombay to aſcertain the right; if we are wrong to relinquiſh our demands, if we are right to inſiſt on our right; and if not admitted to declare it a breach of treaty. It is extraordinary, that if upon proof it appears that we have rights, that we ſhould relinquiſh thoſe rights becauſe they are controverted by the Marattas. It is not very conſiſtent with the honour of this Government to yield at ſo critical a time to the dictates of an ally, the terms of whoſe alliance are not yet completed. To declare it will be a breach of treaty is not a declaration of war, but it is a declaration that we have a right to go to war, and will I have no doubt be ſufficient to ſecure us our right unleſs the Marattas ſhall be ſupported by an European ally.

Though I am not fond of commenting, I cannot help taking notice of a word uſed by Mr. Francis in the part of his minute which alludes to the execution of the 5th Article of the Treaty. He ſays, "The complete "execution of the 5th Article of the Treaty has only been "retarded by a diſpute about the literal meaning of the " words Kaumil Jumma." Any one not acquainted with the ſubject would infer from this expreſſion, that the execution of the treaty was delayed, till by looking into a dictionary we could aſcertain the meaning of a word. The treaty has been concluded upwards of two years, and this article by Mr. Francis's confeſſion is not yet accompliſhed. How long would he permit it to remain ſo?

He ſays, " We retain Chickley, Corial, and ſeveral " other places, and enjoy the revenue thereof as pledges " till the ſunnuds for the country of three lacks can be " made out."

We do not hold the places he mentions as a pledge: they are the ceſſions made to us by Futty Sing, and are our propetty, as will be ſeen in my anſwer to Mr. Francis's objection to the third inſtruction. Appendix. No. 41.

The 6th Article of the Treaty is equally unaccompliſhed. The Marattas agree to pay us ſix lacks within ſix months of the date of the treaty, and ſix lacks within two years of the ſame date, which laſt period expired on the firſt of laſt month.

Mr. Francis appears to object to the inſtructions propoſed for enforcing the execution of this article, upon a reliance that they will not be read by thoſe who read his objections. To contraſt his objection with the inſtructions is the ſhorteſt, but I am ſure the moſt concluſive of all replies to his obſervation.

Inſtruction.

2d, " We direct that you demand immediate payment of " the ſum of twelve lacks of rupees, due by the ſixth Article " of the Treaty, or of ſo much of it as ſtill remains unpaid; " and that the Pergunnah of Jambooſeer be thereupon reſtored " to the Miniſters, unleſs you ſhall have accepted of the ſame " as an aſſignment under ſuch engagements as ſhall have abſolved " them from the literal performance of that article, and thoſe " engagements have been fulfilled on their part; and if they " ſhall refuſe to comply with the demands ſo made to them, " that you declare their refuſal to be a breach of the treaty."

Obſervation.

" The ſecond inſtruction orders a peremptory " demand of the twelve lacks, which the Ma- " rattas conſented to pay us towards the expences " of the war. Is it meant, that we ſhall renew " the war for the immediate payment of this " whole ſum, while the revenues of Jambooſeer " are mortgaged to us for the gradual liquidation " of it?"

It will ſcarcely be denied, that a temporary mortgage of an open country from one nation to another, is not equal to ready money, which was our original agreement. War would mutually releaſe us from all our engagements, and the mortgaged country would be as much theirs as ours; but a ſum of money in our own treaſury would be indiſputably our own. I leave others, leſs unbiaſſed in their opinions than my opponent, to judge from this minute of the ſecurity we have, that peace will long exiſt between the Engliſh and Maratta Governments.

The deciſion that Futty Sing had a right to make the ceſſions he made to us, contained in the third inſtruction, is likely, Mr. Francis ſays, to make the eſtabliſhment of a laſting peace impoſſible.

To our letter of the 18th Auguſt I refer for a reply to this objection; it was a letter written by the unanimous conſent of the Board, and the line with a black ſtroke under it, is in the hand writing of Mr. Francis. An attentive reader will perceive, that the line to which I allude to forms the moſt forcible part of the argument in favour of our retaining the ceſſions, as it is meant to prove that Futty Sing's evidence did not make againſt our right.

" We encloſe for your information copies and tranſ- " lations of a letter written by Futty Sing, in reply to " a reference made to him by Colonel Upton on the " ſubject of his right to alienate any territories dependent " on him, and of ſunnuds granted at divers times to " the Guicawars. This letter from Futty Sing, though " it evades a poſitive and direct anſwer to the point in " queſtion, ſeems to diſavow any right in him to alienate " theſe poſſeſſions; but the concerns which he has in " the queſtion makes his perſonal evidence very ſuſ- " picious (eſpecially in the preſent inſtance, in which " it is oppoſed to his own perſonal act) ſince whatever " is relinquiſhed by the Company will revert to him.

" By the tenure on which all Jagheery poſſeſſions " are held, we doubt whether any part of them can be " legally alienated for ever by the Jagheerdar, but we " are not ſufficiently informed if the lands poſſeſſed by " the Guicawar family are of this nature. The anſwer " to the 7th requeſt, contained in the 4th ſunnud, " ſeems to allow of a right in them to diſpoſe of their " own diſtricts in any manner they pleaſed, without " obtaining the ſpecial concurrence of the Peiſhwa.

" The requeſt and anſwer are as follow:

" 7th requeſt. I ſhall commence war againſt the in- " dependent Moguls who have eſtabliſhments in my " ſhare, and recover my poſſeſſions from them at my " own expence; let not the Government concern itſelf " with them.

" Anſwer. Should you take any meaſures with re- " ſpect to thoſe diſtricts which are your own ſhare, the " Government has no concern in it.

" Agreed accordingly.

" Although the inference which we draw from this " paſſage is not concluſive, yet we think it ſufficient " to juſtify you in retaining poſſeſſion of the diſtricts " ceded by Futty Sing, until clear proof ſhall be afforded " by him or by the Miniſter, that he had no right to " make thoſe ceſſions. The detention of the country " for a few months longer, ſuppoſing it ſhould at laſt " be reſtored to Futty Sing, will be no breach of the " treaty on our part, as long as any material articles " of it remain unexecuted on theirs."

I have now I think anſwered every thing advanced in oppoſition to the late inſtructions to Bombay.

Mr. Francis and Mr. Wheler may perhaps conſider themſelves as little reſponſible for voices, which as the voices of a minority, are not effectual. Mr. Barwell and myſelf are in different ſituations. I could wiſh to have been joined by every member of the Board on this occaſion, becauſe I think unanimity would add vigour to our diſtant meaſures; and I hold them reſponſible for whatever effects may be produced by their oppoſition.

Mr. Francis—I beg leave to offer a few ſhort obſervations on the preceding minute: they are meant for explanation only, and not to continue the argument at a point of time when argument is uſeleſs.

1. With reſpect to the ſuppoſed connection between the Marattas and the French, and which is ſaid to aim at our ruin and extirpation, the Governor General aſſerts, that we do not differ in the fact for that I have admitted " that our conduct in the protection of Ragoba " has authorized them to ſeek for ſafety in the arms of " our natural enemies." The words in my former minute, from which this concluſion is drawn, are as follows: " While the pretender to their Government is " ſupported by us, we give them too much cauſe for " looking to France for aſſiſtance. The preſent meaſures, if carried into execution, will leave them " without a choice." I ſubmit to judgment, whether theſe words have relation to events which I expect to follow from the ſyſtem we are now purſuing, or to events which have already taken place?

2. The paſſage quoted from my minute of the 21ſt of December related to the number of French ſhips at that time at Chandernagore, and to the neceſſity of guarding guarding this country againſt the deſigns which that appearance ſeemed to indicate. I have uniformly and repeatedly declared my opinion, that Bengal is not in a ſtate of defence; and I have this reaſon, in addition to every other for oppoſing a reſolution, which not only tends to provoke a war without neceſſity, but immediately weakens us in that quarter, where all is at ſtake, and where our chief ſtrength ſhould be collected.

3. When I propoſed that Ragoba ſhould be diſmiſſed from Bombay, I never meant, and Mr. Haſtings knows it well, that he ſhould be delivered up a ſacrifice to his enemies; he has no right to ſuppoſe that I have departed from the opinion, in which the Board was unanimous on the 18th of Auguſt laſt, when the queſtion concerning the proviſion to be made for Ragoba's perſonal ſafety, was thoroughly diſcuſſed, and our ſentiments united thereupon; I deſire to be underſtood to adhere to the terms of our letter of the 18th of Auguſt, to the Council of Bombay on this ſubject.

4. The words of our letter of that date, and of the 20th of October, which the Governor General ſtates to be in my hand writing, were intended to correct and qualify other expreſſions in the Secretary's original draft, which appeared to me too ſtrong. I deem it highly irregular and uncandid to attribute to me excluſively or particularly, any language or opinions, which the Board, by their unanimous concurrence and aſſent, have adopted and made their own: to obtain that concurrence in queſtion, ſomething, I believe, was given up on both ſides. Since however the Governor General has quoted the correction as it ſtands in my writing, it is proper that the original draft may be compared with thoſe which I ſubſtituted in the room of them.

PRESENT,

The Honourable Warren Haſtings, Eſquire, Governor General, Preſident,
Richard Barwell,
Philip Francis,

} Eſquires.

The Governor General delivers in the following minute in reply to Mr. Francis's of the 10th inſtant; and deſires that it may be ſent round to the Members of the Board for their peruſal.

Mr. Francis—

10th April 1778.

I beg leave to offer a few ſhort obſervations on the preceding minute; they are meant for explanation only, and not to continue the argument at a point of time when argument is uſeleſs.

1ſt. With reſpect to the ſuppoſed connection between the Marattas and the French, and which is ſaid to aim at our ruin and extirpation, the Governor General aſſerts that, we do not differ in the fact, for that I have admitted " that our conduct " in the protection of Ragoba has authorized them " to ſeek for ſafety in the arms of our natural " enemy." The words in my former minute from which this concluſion is drawn, are as follow: " While the pretender to their Government is " ſupported by us, we give them too much cauſe " for looking to France for aſſiſtance: the preſent " meaſures, if carried into execution, will leave " them without a choice." I ſubmit to your judgment, whether theſe words have relation to events, which I expect to follow from the ſyſtem we are now purſuing, or to events which have already taken place?

2d. The paſſage quoted from my minute of the 21ſt of December, related to the number of French ſhips at that time at Chandernagore, and to the neceſſity of guarding this country againſt the deſigns which that appearance ſeemed to indicate. I have uniformly and repeatedly declared my opinion, that

Governor General—

My reply to Mr. Francis's obſervations, dated the 10th inſtant, on my minute of the 6th, ſhall be very ſhort; and to avoid the embarraſſment of quotations, I ſhall here inſert his obſervations at large with my own upon them in the oppoſite column.

1ſt. The words quoted by Mr. Francis from his minute have certainly, in the plain and obvious conſtruction of them, a relation to events which have already taken place ſince the aſylum granted to Ragoba, which I underſtand to be intended by the words " while the pretender to their Government is " ſupported by us," is of a date as old as the treaty, and of courſe the conſequence inferred from it by Mr. Francis, muſt allude to the paſt, not to the future. Whether the protection granted to Ragoba was conſiſtent with good faith, or contrary to it, is not now the queſtion. I have aſſerted as a fact, that the miniſters had looked to France for aſſiſtance, and Mr Francis not denying the fact, has barely aſſigned a reaſon for it; I am therefore juſtified in ſaying, that we do not differ in the fact.

2d. The whole tenor of Mr. Francis's minute of the 1ſt (not the 21ſt) December, was intended to prove, that the French had deſigns againſt our poſſeſſions in India. The circumſtance which at that time attracted his attention, and which he thought indicated ſuch deſigns, was the number of French ſhips lying at Chandernagore: it was my opinion delivered that Bengal is not in a ſtate of defence; and I have this reaſon in addition to every other, for oppoſing a reſolution which not only tends to provoke a war without neceſſity, but immediately weakens us in that quarter where all is at ſtake, and where our chief ſtrength ſhould be collected.

livered then, and formed many years before Mr. Francis came into the country, that either the French would never attempt the invaſion of Bengal by ſea, or if they did they muſt immediately fail in it, in conſequence of the natural difficulties which, independent of other cauſes, would oppoſe it. In oppoſition to Mr. Francis's preſent opinion, I declare it to be mine, that Bengal is now in a better ſtate of defence than it ever has been ſince the Engliſh were intereſted in its ſafety; that its beſt defence againſt the French is to render their deſigns abortive before their execution; and that if they do exiſt, as Mr. Francis himſelf ſuppoſes, it is a better policy "to "provoke the war," to uſe his words, if ſuch muſt be the conſequence of our preſent meaſures, than to wait till they are ripe for action, and have every engine prepared that can enſure their ſucceſs againſt us.

But I preſume it is now no longer neceſſary to dwell on this argument. However doubtful the ſuppoſition of the French engagements with the preſent rulers of the Maratta State were at the commencement of this conteſt, or even when Mr. Francis wrote the minute before me, that ſuppoſition is now reduced to a certainty, if any evidence can make it ſo. It is long ſince I acquainted the Board with the intention of Monſieur Bellcombe to viſit the Malabar Coaſt, and verbally ſince of his actual departure from Pondicherry. The laſt letter from the Preſidency of Bombay, dated the 8th of March, confirms this report, and expreſſes their opinion in terms to which I think Mr. Francis himſelf will now ſubſcribe, that the deſign of Monſieur Bellcombe "is not merely to ſupervise a ſettlement of ſo little importance as "Myhie, which, they hear, is the avowed motive; but is rather occaſioned by the negociations of Monſieur de St. Lubin."

With the duplicate of the ſame diſpatches I received a letter from Mr. Hornby, of a later date, expreſſing the ſame apprehenſion; and adding, that he had juſt heard a Captain in the Portugueſe ſervice ſay, "that the Governor of Goa had written to him, that he expected Monſieur Bellcombe there."

To theſe authorities I ſhall add that of Mr. Rumbold, on the following extract of a letter, which I have received from him, dated the 23d of March. "Monſieur Bellcombe embarked ſome time ago with one "hundred Europeans, ſome artillery, and a quantity of ſtores on a frigate. We have ſince heard of "their arrival at Mahé, on the Malabar Coaſt. Before he left Pondicherry, he wrote the Nabob, "that having received orders from his Court to viſit all the garriſons in India, belonging to his moſt "Chriſtian Majeſty, he was entering upon that ſervice, and would be abſent from Pondicherry about "five months; it is not improbable but he intends ſome aſſiſtance to the Marattas."

It is not without heſitation that I make this uſe of a private communication; but it appears to me ſo concluſive of the deſigns which have been long imputed to the French, that I have thought I could not with propriety withhold it from the knowledge of the Board, for whoſe information, and not for the maintenance of an argument, I have given it a place in this minute. What may be the real object of Monſieur Bellcombe will be better ſhewn by the event, which cannot be very remote, than by any reaſoning upon appearances; but theſe will at leaſt juſtify the preſent concluſion, that if a war ſhould enſue, we cannot have provoked it by any acts ſubſequent to them, and I have only advanced to meet it.

3d. When I propoſed that Ragoba ſhould be diſmiſſed from Bombay, I never meant, and Mr. Haſtings knows it well, that he ſhould be delivered up a ſacrifice to his enemies: he has no right to ſuppoſe that I have departed from the opinion, in which the Board was unanimous on the 18th of Auguſt laſt, when the queſtion concerning the proviſion to be made for Ragoba's perſonal ſafety was thoroughly diſcuſſed, and our ſentiments united thereupon. I deſire to be underſtood to adhere to the terms of our letter of the 18th Auguſt to the Council at Bombay on this ſubject.

3d. To diſmiſs Ragoba from Bombay without proviſion made for his perſonal ſafety, to diſmiſs him with ſuch a proviſion only made for his ſafety as cannot avail him, and to deliver him up a ſacrifice to his enemies, are in my ſenſe of them propoſitions of ſynonymous import. I had proved in a former minute, that one of the proviſions, ſuggeſted in our letter of the 18th Auguſt, to the Council of Bombay, for the ſafety of Ragoba, was totally impracticable; of the other, that is the faith of Toocajee Holcar and Madajee Sindia, pledged for his ſafe paſſage through their territories, no trial had been made; and Mr. Francis muſt allow that it was at leaſt capable of valid objections, but without having deigned to make any other reply to my proofs, except a trait of ridicule, by which he affected to repreſent this Government as precipitately reſolving on a war with the united provinces of France and the Maratta Empire in defence of the religious ſcruples of Ragonaut Row. If I have treated this as equivalent to a propoſition made for the ſacrifice of Ragoba to his enemies, for I do not know the preciſe words of my minute, I muſt ſtill abide by the ſame conſtruction of it.

4th. The words of our letter of that date, and of the 20th October, which the Governor General ſtates to be in my hand writing, were intended to correct and qualify other expreſſions in the Secretary's original draft, which appeared to me too ſtrong. I deem it highly irregular and uncandid to attribute to me, excluſively or particularly, any language or opinions which the Board by their unanimous concurrence and aſſent have adopted and made their own. To obtain that concurrence in the inſtance in queſtion, ſomething I believe was given up on both ſides. Since however the Governor General has quoted the correction as it

4th. Mr. Francis is too liberal in the uſe which he makes of the words "candour and regularity." After having in the preceding paragraph quoted for the third or fourth time my opinion, as it was included in the letter written to Bombay on the 18th of Auguſt laſt, he has no right to charge me in ſuch ſtrong terms with want of candour and regularity in quoting his opinions, as included in our letter of the 18th and 20th of October. It was not my intention to attribute thoſe opinions to Mr. Francis excluſively, but to ſhew that they were not the ſentiments of a majority in oppoſition to his; for which purpoſe I appealed to his hand writing in the draft of the letter. That theſe were his opinions at that time he does not deny, nor do I contend for more. The quotations of the original drafts do not contain the evidence for which they ſeem to have been intended, ſince the firſt draft, and his corrections of it, are in ſenſe the ſame; the 1ſt inſtance being no more than the change of a ſingle word for a periphraſis, I own of more preciſion, and perhaps of elegance; and the latter of the words probably for poſſibly, and alliance for engagements.

Bengal Secret Conſultations, 27th April 1778.

PRESENT,

The Honourable Warren Haſtings, Governor General, Preſident,
Richard Barwell, Philip Francis, Edw^d Wheler, } Eſquires.

The Governor General's minute, recorded in the Conſultation of the 15th inſtant, having been circulated agreeable to his deſire, Mr. Francis wrote the following in reply to it; a copy of which was ſent a number in the Reſolution's packet.

I will not continue to argue a queſtion on which I have already ſubmitted to judgment. If the event of the preſent meaſures ſhould ever force an enquiry into the origin and motives of them; the merit of thoſe perſons, who have promoted or oppoſed them, will not be tried by nice verbal diſtinctions, or by torturing particular expreſſions in debate to a ſenſe inconſiſtent with the general principles, avowed opinions, and uniform conduct of thoſe who uſe them. The enquiry will commence at the ſource of the meaſures in queſtion. The part unanimouſly taken by this Council in the firſt inſtance, that is when the treaty between Ragoba and the Preſidency of Bombay was firſt communicated to us, will be compared with the ideas which have ſince been adopted by ſome members of the Board on the ſame ſubject, and with the meaſures lately reſolved on and now in execution. A careful review of our debates will lead to a deciſive judgment on that point, which it is moſt material to the Governor General to eſtabliſh on ſolid grounds; viz. that the evidence on which it has been reſolved to ſend one fourth of our whole military eſtabliſhment from the frontiers of Oude to Bombay, is direct, authentic, and material. Much pains have been taken to collect it, and very high colourings induſtriouſly given, as I think, to facts of little moment. There muſt be a diſtreſs for evidence when recourſe is had to private letters, eſpecially in a caſe where, if the intelligence contained in them had been thought of conſequence, it would naturally have been communicated to us through the regular channel. Mr. Rumbold tells Mr. Haſtings, " that Monſieur Bellcombe " had embarked from Pondicherry with one hundred " Europeans, and ſome artillery and ſtores, and that it " is not improbable but he intends ſome aſſiſtance to " the Marattas." And Mr. Hornby ſays, " that he had " juſt heard a Captain in the Portugueze ſervice ſay, " that Monſieur Bellcombe was expected at Goa." Neither the facts nor the evidence are worth diſputing; nor do I think it eſſential to our ſafety to aſcertain the deſtination of an armament of one hundred men. It is probable enough that ſome low French Agents have been intriguing with the Marattas, and it is not impoſſible that they may have had hopes given them of being allowed an eſtabliſhment on that coaſt. Such eſtabliſhment, however, has not yet been granted them, nor would it ever if good faith on our part were preſerved to the Marattas. They can have no motive for introducing the French into their country, but to protect themſelves againſt that ſpirit of conqueſt which prevails in our Councils, and which they ſee is never to be ſatisfied.

The Governor General has quoted part of the laſt letter from the Preſidency of Bombay, dated the 8th March, to ſhew that the deſign of Monſieur Bellcombe is occaſioned by the negociations of Monſieur St. Lubin. What his deſigns may be I know not, but I believe it would be very little in his power to injure us, if it appeared by our conduct to the Marattas that we were ſincerely diſpoſed to keep the peace with them. There is another paſſage in the above letter which I muſt beg leave to point out to the attention of the Court of Directors, as it ſhews with what eagerneſs evidence is ſought for in ſupport of particular views, and how readily any evidence, with that tendency, is accepted.

On the 23d February Mr. Haſtings aſſerted at the Board, that it was notorious the French were in poſſeſſion of Choul. If it were ſo, they muſt have had poſſeſſion ſix weeks at leaſt before the intelligence of the fact could have reached us, that is about the middle of January; yet on the 8th March the Preſidency of Bombay tells us, " they much fear Monſieur Bellecombe's viſit will " be followed by the French taking poſſeſſion of Choul."

Whatever difference of opinion may now exiſt between the Governor General and me on the ſubject of our connection with the Marattas and the conduct we have obſerved to them, there certainly have been times in which we were agreed. There was a time when he thought * " the meaſures adopted by the Preſidency of " Bombay had a tendency to a very extenſive and inde- " finite ſcene of troubles, and that their conduct was " unſeaſonable, impolitic, unjuſt, and unauthorized." It is alſo not very long ago ſince he thought† " that there was " no reaſon to doubt, that the preſence of Ragoba at " Bombay would continue to be an inſuperable bar to " the completion of the treaty concluded with the Ma- " ratta Government, and that no ſincere cordiality and " good underſtanding could be eſtabliſhed with them, " as long as he ſhould appear to derive encouragement " and ſupport from the Engliſh."

* Vide Mr. Haſtings's minute, 31ſt May 1775.

† Letter to Bombay, 18 Aug. 1777.

If the Governor General departs from theſe opinions I am

I am not bound to follow him; if he adheres to them, we are agreed. In either caſe he is bound to prove, that the meaſures he now purſues are not built on thoſe which he has heretofore ſolemnly condemned.

(Signed) P. Francis.

The above minute having been circulated the Governor General wrote the following in conſequence; a copy of which was alſo ſent a number in the *Reſolution*s, packet.

I ſtill adhere to the opinions delivered by me on the 31ſt May 1775, and on the 18th of Auguſt 1777; they have no relation, at leaſt none apparent to me, to the preſent argument. It is not neceſſary that we ſhould withhold our ſupport of the Company's intereſts under charge of the Preſidency of Bombay, becauſe we had occaſion to cenſure their conduct in the year 1775, or becauſe expedients were recommended by us in the month of Auguſt 1777 for the removal of Ragoba from Bombay, and for a proviſion for his perſonal ſafety as the means of it. This is all that I think it requiſite to add, in reply to the minute laſt written by Mr. Francis. For the reſt I rely on the growing evidence of facts, on the events yet depending and perhaps not very remote, and on the ſuperior knowledge of the French deſigns which is poſſeſſed by thoſe who are to be the ultimate judges of our conduct. APPENDIX, No. 42.

Extract of Bengal Secret Conſultations, the 6th April 1778.

PRESENT,

The Honourable Warren Haſtings, Governor General, Preſident,

Richard Barwell, Philip Francis, Edward Wheler, } Eſquires.

THE Governor General lays before the Board the following drafts, which he has prepared, of inſtructions to Colonel Leſlie, and of a letter to the Preſident and Council of Bombay for their conſideration and approval.

Draft of inſtructions to Colonel Leſlie.

1ſt. Having thought proper to inveſt you with the command of the troops deſtined to reinforce the Preſidency of Bombay, we direct you to proceed with the ſame under your charge, by the moſt convenient and practicable route to Bombay, or to ſuch other place as you ſhall be directed to by the Preſident and Council of that Preſidency. We judge the road through Bundlecund and the province of Berar the moſt eligible, on account of our connection with the Rajah of Berar; and recommend it preferably to any other, unleſs his anſwers to the letters which have been written to him by our Preſident for that purpoſe, ſhall expreſs a diſinclination to allow a paſſage to the detachment through his territories; in which caſe your own judgment, and the opportunities of nearer enquiry, will beſt enable you to chuſe your own road. You will make it your firſt care to reconcile the Chief of the country through which it may lie, to your march; but if he ſhall refuſe his aſſent, we authorize you to proſecute it, even againſt oppoſition; obſerving the rules hereinafter preſcribed for ſuch caſes, if ever they ſhall happen.

2d. From the day on which you ſhall begin your march, you will obey all orders which you ſhall receive from the Preſident and Council of Bombay, except ſuch as ſhall be contrary to theſe inſtructions.

3d. Our Preſident informs us, that on the 4th of February laſt he wrote to Mr. Hornby, requeſting him to endeavour to obtain from Mahadajee Sindia and Tucoojee Holcar, paſſports for the march of a detachment through their territories, and their orders for ſupplying it with proviſions, in the caſe of ſuch a detachment being ſent, and ordered to take that route. A letter to the ſame effect has been ſince written by our Preſident to Moodajee Booſla, the Chief of Berar, a tranſlation of which we encloſe for your information. We recommend it to your attention to take every opportunity that ſhall offer in the courſe of your march, for cultivating a good underſtanding with theſe Chiefs, particularly the laſt mentioned; and we authorize you to make uſe of any expedient which you ſhall judge eſſentially neceſſary for enſuring your ſafe conduct and ſupplies of proviſions for your detachment; provided they ſhall not have a tendency to infringe the treaty exiſting between the preſent miniſters of the Maratta State and this Government, or involve this Government in future engagements. For your fuller guidance on this ſubject, we incloſe you a copy of the Treaty of Poorunder, and you muſt make it the ground-work of your negociations in the courſe of your march. It is needleſs to require your attention to the ſtate and intereſts of the petty Chiefs, whoſe poſſeſſions lie near your line of march; they may be of much ſervice to you in ſupplying you with proviſions, and facilitating your progreſs, from their natural enmity to the Marattas, and fear of their power.

4th. We recommend to you to obſerve the ſtricteſt attention to the ſafety of the inhabitants, and of their property, on your march; and that the moſt exemplary puniſhment be inflicted on all perſons detected in marauding, or acts of perſonal violence to the people.

5th. We enjoin you to uſe the greateſt circumſpection in avoiding every act which may, by any conſtruction, be imputed to you as hoſtile to the particular ſtates through which you paſs, or contrary to the treaty ſubſiſting between the Maratta Miniſters and our Government. You muſt not ſuffer yourſelf to be diverted from the proſecution of your march, by any new object, however plauſible, except only for the ſafety or ſubſiſtence of your troops, indiſpenſably requiring it. You are to be careful, on arriving near any new frontier, to obſerve the form of ſending to the Chief of the diſtrict a declaration of your pacific intentions, a demand of permiſſion to paſs through his country, and a requeſt for the neceſſary paſſports and aſſiſtance of proviſions; and if after ſuch precautions your march ſhall be impeded or oppoſed by force, you are to repeat the ſame declarations to the leaders in command of the forces prepared to oppoſe you, warning them not to commence a war by a cauſeleſs attack. So poſitively is your attention demanded to prevent any poſſible imputation of blame being thrown on your conduct, that you will not be authorized in acting offenſively, even ſhould the Governor and Council of Bombay require it, unleſs they ſhall have firſt declared that there is war, and ſhall point out to you whom you are to regard as friends and whom as enemies.

6th. We deſire that you will adviſe the Preſident and Council of Bombay of your progreſs as frequently as poſſible, whether you have any other occurrence of moment to communicate or not; for even ſuch information will be of itſelf not only ſatisfactory, but of the greateſt conſequence.

7th. We cannot preſcrib the time of your march; but require you to begin it as ſoon as you ſhall be fully provided for it.

To Bombay.

We have already written to you in duplicate, under date the 23d February. You will there find our ſentiments at large on the ſubject of the reinforcement of troops, which have been ordered to march to your ſide of India, with full inſtructions for your conduct in the ſervices intended to be effected by them.

From the high opinion we entertain of the experience and abilities of Colonel Matthew Leſlie, we have been induced to appoint him to the command of this detachment; and as we have every reaſon to rely on his activity, ſkill, and good conduct for the ſucceſs of the expedition, if the operations of the army are left to his judgment, we hope, and earneſtly entreat, that he may not be ſuperſeded

Appendix. No. 42.

Appendix. No. 43.

perſeded in the command, unleſs the exigency of the ſervice ſhould at any time make it abſolutely neceſſary for you to employ the whole of your European force, in conjunction with the troops of this Preſidency, and to give the command to an officer of ſuperior rank.

We have given inſtructions to Colonel Leſlie for his guidance in every occurrence that may happen; a copy of which we encloſe: for the reſt, we muſt leave it to you to furniſh him with ſuch orders from time to time, as the nature of the ſervice may require. The ſucceſsful iſſue of the preſent undertaking muſt neceſſarily depend, in a great meaſure, on a full and unreſerved communication of intelligence with Colonel Leſlie; we therefore recommend it to you to ſend him the earlieſt advices of every circumſtance that may ſerve either to guide him in his march, or in the execution of any ſervice that may be neceſſary for him to perform.

We are, &c.

Mr. Francis—I object to the orders for the march of the detachment, becauſe I conceive it will not be poſſible for them to begin their march before the end of this month, and becauſe the periodical rains, as I am informed, will be ſet in long before they can arrive at the place of their deſtination; as for the reſt, I am of opinion, that the pacific declarations contained in Colonel Leſlie's inſtructions, will have little weight in the minds of the powers of India, againſt the hoſtile act of forcing a paſſage through their country without their conſent.

Mr. Wheler—Having already objected to the armament preparing for Bombay, I ſhall only add for the reaſons aſſigned by Mr. Francis, that I likewiſe object to the march of the troops.

Mr. Barwell approves of the drafts of the letters above entered.

Governor General—It was a very early ſubject of my enquiry to know to what inconveniencies our troops would be expoſed by marching in the rains, which at firſt occurred to me as an inſurmountable obſtacle: I have every reaſon to believe, and am confirmed in this opinion by that of Colonel Leſlie, that the rainy ſeaſon, ſo far from proving an objection, will rather facilitate the march and prove a relief to the troops, which will ſuffer more from the exceſs in heats, and from drought in the elevated and open plains, through which they will probably paſs, than by the rainy ſeaſon, whenever it ſhall overtake them, as it certainly will; poſſibly too they will be leſs expoſed to the attacks of cavalry in the rains; and in reſpect to health, our own records afford us one inſtance, and I believe more, of our ſepoys, and even European infantry, recovering from a ſtate of ſickneſs by a march begun in the very height of the rains, as was the caſe in the laſt campaign of Colonel Champion.

Agreed, that the above letters be accordingly written, and immediately diſpatched.

Secret Department.

Extract of a letter from the Governor General and Council in Bengal to the Court of Directors; dated 20th March 1778.

Par. 2. THE negociations lately propoſed by a party of the Miniſters at Poonah to the Preſident and Council of Bombay, for the reſtoration of Ragoba to the principal authority in the Durbar, of which we have already adviſed you, appear by the ſubſequent letters we have received from that quarter to be entirely laid aſide, at leaſt for the preſent, as Moraba Furneſe, one of the principals mentioned in it, but apparently the only oſtenſible perſon concerned, had inſiſted on carrying on the buſineſs with the Preſidency of Bombay in his own name ſolely; and was informed by them, that they could not agree to take any part in the affairs of the Maratta State, unleſs expreſsly ſolicited by the members of that ſtate with whom the treaty was concluded; which made it neceſſary that Siccaram Baboo, whoſe name was included in the original overture, ſhould join with him in a formal requiſition for the aſſiſtance of the Engliſh. Moraba Furneſe ſoon after this quitted Poonah, with intention, as he reported, of proceeding on a religious duty to Pundapore; and we have heard nothing farther of the matter in agitation with him.

3. We have nevertheleſs continued to carry into execution the reſolutions which we formed on the 2d ultimo, for the aid and ſupport of the Bombay Preſidency, as the contentions among the Miniſters at Poonah ſtill ſubſiſt with unabated violence; and the confuſion likely to prevail in that Government as well from the repeated defeats of the Maratta army under Hurry Punt by Hyder Ally's forces, as from the probable increaſe of their inteſtine diviſions, may we think afford opportunities to the Preſident and Council at Bombay, aided as they will be by a reſpectable force, and ample reſources, to interpoſe with ſuch advantages as will be of the moſt eſſential conſequence to the Company's intereſts, and which if neglected might add new ſtrength to their enemies, and poſſibly hazard the ſafety if not the very exiſtence of that ſettlement. We cannot help making theſe reflections when we ſee the alarming ſteps which the French have been taking to ſecure an influence and connection in the Maratta Government, and obtain a port ſo cloſe to Bombay as Choul is, and when we alſo ſee the encouragement which they have met with. Their intrigues at this juncture can only be formed with an hoſtile intention to the Engliſh, and if attended with ſucceſs which there is every reaſon to ſuppoſe, an uninterrupted continuance of them would effectually ſecure; we think they muſt be productive of the moſt dangerous conſequences to the Company's poſſeſſions in India.

4. From theſe premiſes it is evident that no time ought to be loſt in taking every fair advantage that may offer to fruſtrate the deſigns of the French in their infancy, and to ſecure a permanent peace with the Marattas without openly oppoſing or counteracting the ſchemes of the French, which will be avoided by the plan we have adopted; as the object of our declared purſuit has no ſort of connection with them, we have therefore completed the extraordinary ſupply we reſolved to ſend of ten lacks to the Preſidency of Bombay, which we have the pleaſure to acquaint you was remitted by bills of exchange, at the advantageous rate of 100 Bombay rupees for 90 Sicca, and we have ordered a force conſiſting of ſix battalions of brigade ſepoys, and one company of native artillery, to aſſemble under the command of Colonel Leſlie at Calpee; they will have orders to march directly to Bombay, or to ſuch other place as they may be directed to by that Preſidency to ſupport them, in caſe of any attack made immediately upon your poſſeſſions, or in any operations which good policy may lead them to engage in, for the relief of that part of the Maratta Government with which we are in treaty, or for commanding and enforcing the due execution of the articles of the treaty, which to this day remain unaccompliſhed.

5. We have taken every precaution that appears neceſſary to ſecure a ſafe paſſage, and a conſtant ſupply of proviſions and ſtores for the uſe of this detachment in its route to Bombay, by letters which have been written to the different Chiefs, through whoſe countries it muſt paſs; and we have recommended the ſame to the Preſident and Council at Bombay, under whoſe orders and guidance we ſhall place the Commanding Officer, from the day on which he ſhall march; we have alſo directed the Reſident at the Vizier's Court to reſerve ten lacks of rupees in gold for the diſburſements of the expedition.

Par. 4. The detachment of ſix battalions prepared for the the reinforcement of the Preſidency of Bombay, is now under orders to march to that place, by the route of Bundlecund and Berar, as we hope from the friendly intercourſe which has long ſubſiſted with the Chiefs of thoſe diſtricts, that it will meet with no impediment in traverſing their countries.

5. Colonel Leſlie, who commands this detachment, having been furniſhed with inſtructions for his conduct, a copy of which will be found in the packet, we beg leave to refer you to them, and to a letter which we wrote to the Preſident and Council at Bombay on the occaſion, which accompanies them.

APPENDIX, No. 44.

Extract of Bengal Secret Conſultations, the 11th May 1778.

PRESENT,

The Honourable Warren Haſtings, Eſquire, Governor General, Preſident,

Richard Barwell, Philip Francis, Edward Wheler, } Eſquires.

RECEIVED the following letter from Bombay:

Gentlemen,

Mr. Moſtyn has already adviſed you of the revolution that has taken place in the Poonah Government.

Though on this important occaſion we earneſtly wiſh to ſend you the moſt perfect and diſtinct account of the meaſures we meant to purſue, yet ſuch is the uncertainty of our ſituation, that we have come to no further reſolution than to order all the troops we can poſſibly ſpare, to be held in readineſs to accompany Ragoba to Poonah, the moment matters are advanced to that ſtage as to render ſuch a meaſure proper. An Agent from Moraba had arrived here before his maſter had got poſſeſſion of Poonah, who only ſignified in general terms Moraba's deſire that no time ſhould be loſt in ſending Ragoba to join his party, but without making propoſals of any kind, either to him or us, neither have any yet been made to Mr. Moſtyn.

According to our advices Sacaram Bappoo, the Chief Miniſter, has joined Moraba; but we are ſorry to add, that a compromiſe is likely to be effected between the party of Nana Furneſe, upon their becoming ſecurity for the ſafety of his perſon and treaſures from Ragoba's reſentment.

The approbation you were pleaſed to give our plan for conducting Ragoba to Poonah was in a high degree gratifying to us, as our propoſal proceeded from the moſt firm conviction, that our acceding to the overtures which had been made was the only reſource left us for accompliſhing thoſe important objects we had in view. It is an unfortunate circumſtance, that whilſt we through the want of powers were unable to take a part, Ragoba's friends have found their own power ſufficient to procure them ſucceſs without our aſſiſtance, as we may not be able to procure the terms we ſhould have had a right to demand, had our interference been more timely. However, you may be aſſured, Gentlemen, we ſhall make the beſt ſtipulations we poſſibly can for the advantage of the Company, in which we ſhall be guided by your late inſtructions, and our treaty with Ragoba.

Whatever may be the other conſequences of this revolution, we hope at any rate it will defeat the deſigns of the French, on which point we inſtantly gave proper inſtructions.

Monſieur Bellcombe arrived at Mahé the 3d ultimo, with the Brilliant of 64 guns, and the Sartine, the ſhip that was at Choul laſt ſeaſon. They both ſailed to the northward on the 10th and 11th, and it was ſaid they were bound to Choul. Sir Edward Vernon ſailed from hence the 10th, with the Rippon, Coventry, and Seahorſe, and we expect will fall in with, and will accompany, the French ſhips up the coaſt.

The force Monſieur Bellcombe brought with him conſiſted, as we hear, of 300 Europeans, which he landed at Mahé, and received on board 140 of the garriſon: we are doubtful whether he has proceeded up the coaſt or remained at Mahé. Appendix No. 45.

Upon an attentive examination into the ſtate of our force, we find we ſhall only be able to detach from the Preſidency 300 European infantry, rank and file, two companies of artillery, 2,000 ſepoys, and 500 laſcars.

We ſhall ſend you further advices the moment we can write with more preciſion. We have been honoured with your letters of the 16th and 18th February, but have not yet received the new cypher. Since writing thus far, your three letters of the 26th February have come to hand.

We are, with reſpect, Gentlemen,

Bombay Caſtle, 5th April 1778.

(Signed) Wm. Hornby, &c. &c. Council.

This letter having arrived on the 9th inſtant it was immediately circulated for the information of the Board; the following motion was delivered thereupon by Mr. Francis, and the opinions of the other members taken as follow it. Vide Appendix No. 45.

APPENDIX, No. 45.

Minute of Mr. Francis, the 11th May 1778.

MR. FRANCIS—As this letter leaves us no room to doubt that a revolution has taken place in the Poonah Government, and as the re-eſtabliſhment of Ragoba, by whatever means it may have been effected, muſt immediately defeat the deſigns attributed to the French, and put an end to any negociations which they may have entered into with Nanah Furneſſe, and the party oppoſed to Ragoba, I conceive that the expedition under Colonel Leſlie can no longer be neceſſary, even on the principles on which it was undertaken. No pretence is left for marching an army acroſs India, to counteract any real operations, or ſuppoſed ſchemes of the French on the Malabar Coaſt, when the party which they were to aſſiſt, and without whoſe aſſiſtance in return no deſigns of their own could promiſe the moſt diſtant poſſibility of ſucceſs, is itſelf overſet.

For theſe reaſons I ſubmit my opinion to the Board, that immediate orders ſhould be diſpatched to Colonel Leſlie to ſuſpend the march of the detachment under his command: or, if they have already marched, to return forthwith to Calpee, or ſuch ſtation in the Nabob of Oude's dominions, as Colonel Leſlie may think moſt convenient.

Mr. Wheler—I concur with Mr. Francis in ſubmitting my opinion to the Board, that immediate orders ſhould be diſpatched to Colonel Leſlie to ſuſpend the march of the detachment under his command; or, if already marched, to return forthwith to Calpee, or ſuch other ſtation in the Nabob of Oude's dominions, as Colonel Leſlie may think moſt convenient.

Governor General—I do not agree to Mr. Francis's motion, as I think it would be highly impolitic and imprudent to ſuſpend the progreſs of the expedition on ſuch ſlight grounds. The detachment may eaſily return when we know with certainty that the Company's affairs on the other ſide of India are in ſuch a ſtate of ſecurity as not to require its aid. If it ſhould otherwiſe happen, its aſſiſtance would arrive too late, if it was now recalled, and it ſhould in ſuch an emergency be again ordered on ſervice.

Beſides we are not yet informed that the revolution has been effected. We ſcarcely know the firſt movements of it, and ſhould be liable to the imputation of levity and precipitancy, were we on ſuch weak grounds to annul a meaſure of ſuch importance in its deſign, its conſequences, and univerſal notoriety.

I am ſurprized that Mr. Francis ſhould ſtill attempt to diſcredit the ſuppoſition of the French intrigues at Poonah. Does he really regard the letters and preſents delivered to the Peiſhwa from the King of France, by the Chevalier St. Lubin; the written engagements declared clared by Mr. Moſtyn to have been interchanged by St. Lubin and Nonah Furneſſe; the extraordinary viſit made by Monſieur Bellecombe to that coaſt, and irreconcileable with any other motive, as facts of a doubtful nature? To my judgment they appear to bear the certain demonſtration of engagements actually formed, and mature for execution; and I ſhould deſerve to be deprived with ignominy of the office which I fill, if I neglected to uſe ſuch means as were in my power to defeat them.

Appendix. No. 45.

Upon this occaſion, I muſt take notice of a very ſtriking evidence afforded us in the letter now before us, not of the connection of Nanah Furneſſe with St. Lubin, but of the French Government with the adminiſtration at Poonah.

The Sartine, the veſſel ſaid to have accompanied Monſieur Bellecombe in his expedition to the Maratta Coaſt, is the ſame that brought Monſieur St. Lubin from France.

In the narrative delivered by Mr. Madgett to Mr. Lewis, it is ſaid that the Sartine was diſpatched to China on the 24th of Auguſt. The manner in which this is related, proves evidently that Madgett was himſelf impoſed upon in this concluſion of her deſtination, ſince he introduces it not as a political event, but merely as a fact, connected with other circumſtances, which were intended to fix a charge againſt Monſieur St. Lubin of having embezzled the cargo, and defrauded his owners. We now find, that inſtead of making a voyage to China the Sartine went directly to Pondicherry, and returned with Monſieur Bellecombe to the ſame coaſt, if not the ſame port, which ſhe quitted.

This circumſtance affords more than a preſumptive proof that Monſieur St. Lubin had imparted the effects of his negociations to Monſieur Bellecombe; that he had ſolicited Monſieur Bellecombe to fulfil the engagements which he had formed, and ſent the Sartine to Pondicherry for that purpoſe; that Monſieur Bellecombe had adopted the deſign, and had in compliance with it employed the Sartine in tranſporting the men and ſtores promiſed by St. Lubin's engagements, and himſelf gone in perſon to aid or conduct what might remain of the negociation.

I ſhall take this occaſion to offer a few remarks on the intelligence now received from Bombay, which I think may throw ſome lights on the ſtate of the Maratta Government, as it appears to have been circumſtanced at the time in which the letter was written, and may convince the Board of the neceſſity of proſecuting with vigour the meaſures which we have begun, until the deſigns of them ſhall be fully accompliſhed.

The Preſident and Council of Bombay inform us, that "an Agent from Moraba had been ſent to Bombay to "notify in general terms Moraba's deſire, that no time "ſhould be loſt in ſending Ragoba to join his party; "but without making propoſals of any kind either to "him or them, and that neither had any been yet made "to Mr. Moſtyn;" and that "a compromiſe was likely "to be effected between the party and Nana Furneeſe." This they mention with regret, and add "that it is an "unfortunate circumſtance that Ragoba's friends had "found their own ſtrength ſufficient to procure them "ſucceſs without our aſſiſtance."

I rather regard all theſe as fortunate circumſtances, if a proper advantage be made of them, and the following, are my reaſons for this concluſion:

Ragoba, naturally ſuſpicious and timid, as I am told he is, can never truſt his intereſts and perſon to the diſcretion of his new partizans; men who were lately his moſt inveterate enemies, and who even in their former connection with him betrayed him. He will have had more cauſe than the Government of Bombay to be alarmed at an invitation made to him, to put himſelf into their hands without any ſtipulation or propoſal either for his perſonal ſafety, or for the ſhare which he was to expect in the public adminiſtration. Nor could he be better pleaſed with the compromiſe made with Nana Furneeſe, when in additionto the perſonal diſaffection which he has ever borne to Ragoba in a more eminent degree than the reſt, and from which he will have departed only from the motive of urgent neceſſity, poſſeſſes the ſupport of Hurry Punt Furkia, the Commander in Chief of the forces, and engagements with the French nation, which if they are ever carried into effect will give him an abſolute and irriſiſtible command of the Maratta State.

With ſuch reaſons to diſtruſt the party which has recalled him to the chief adminiſtration of affairs, he muſt ſtrongly feel the oppoſite neceſſity of truſting to the protection of the Government of Bombay as his only and ſure reſource. That Government has eſpouſed his cauſe with a zeal far exceeding that which a political principle alone would have excited, a zeal heightened by common diſappointment, and a long perſonal communication of the ſame regrets, apprehenſions, and hopes.

Such being his ſituation, I cannot ſuppoſe that he will conſent to move from Bombay without an Engliſh military force, nor perhaps under any future ſituation of his affairs, however proſperous, to part with it while thoſe are in power to whoſe friendſhip he may think he can truſt.

The Preſidency of Bombay have a right to require conditions of equal advantage for that which they beſtow. Theſe are not likely to be unreaſonable, and whatever they may be, he is not in a condition to refuſe them.

The union of Nana Furneeſe with the party muſt inevitably produce this good effect. It will indiſpoſe every other member of the adminiſtration to the French alliance, by which, if it takes place, he alone will be a gainer. Had he fallen in the contention, it is not improbable that his adverſaries would have taken up the negociation where he left it, and one great, if not the only real benefit expected from the revolution, would have been loſt to us. In a word, I repeat that this accommodation muſt prove an advantage. It completes a ſyſtem of diſjointed and diſcordant parts, which the Government of Bombay may hold together, but no other power can; or by withdrawing their graſp, let it fall to pieces, and erect any other that they pleaſe in the room of it.

But to enable them to ſupport the character which I have aſſigned them in this important ſcene, they muſt poſſeſs the means both of ſurmounting all immediate obſtacles to Ragoba's elevation, and of maintaining him in the poſſeſſion of it, until his authority ſhall be thoroughly confirmed by the ſuppreſſion of every party capable of oppoſing it. The ſame means and the ſame opportunity will equally ſerve for the advancement and ſecurity of the Company's intereſts, which, as their primary concern, I cannot ſuppoſe will be neglected. For the firſt of theſe ends, the force which they tell us they propoſe to ſend will be ſufficient; it will preſerve the aſcendant of Ragoba over his aſſociates, and quiet his apprehenſions with reſpect to their fidelity—but it may prove an inadequate proviſion for future contingencies. The reinforcement which we have prepared for them, will render their ſtrength equal to any ſervice; I have no doubt of its having already produced ſome effect; for if we reflect upon the langour which followed the firſt overtures of the confederacy, and the ſudden execution of their deſign, in the ſame inſtant of time in which the knowledge of the armament formed by this Government muſt have reached the confederated party, we muſt attribute the former to a diffidence in their own ſtrength, and the latter to the confidence excited by their expected aid; which though not immediately intended for them, was profeſſedly calculated to counteract the deſigns of our common adverſary.

If in the criſis of ſuch a project we were to recall the detachment, it might alarm our friends and inſpire their enemies, who in effect are our's, with the hope of ſucceeding ceeding in any attempts to ſubvert all that has been already effected. By a perſeverance we ſhall be ſure of maintaining the ground which we may have gained; and if it ſhould be found neceſſary to let the detachment proceed to its deſtination, of commanding every point which we can wiſh for the Company. On the whole, I repeat, becauſe I think it concluſive of the preſent argument, that if the ſervices of the detachment ſhall not be wanted, nothing will have been loſt by its having marched, and it may be eaſily recalled; but if it ſhould be now withdrawn, and its aid ſhould be hereafter required, it will be too late to afford it.

All the difficulties which ſeemed at firſt to oppoſe the meaſure, have gradually diſappeared. The apprehenſion of having the whole force of an empire to contend with is removed by the late movements at Poonah; and the difficulty of ſubſiſting an army in ſo long a route is removed by the offer of ſupplies, and of every aſſiſtance, made by Moodajee Booſlah, the only power lying between the point of its departure, and the confines of Poonah. After ſuch pains taken to obtain them, ſuch advantages ought not to be lightly abandoned. Even the credit of our Government, in a meaſure which has attracted the attention and expectation of all Indoſtan, demands the proſecution of it.

(Signed) Warren Haſtings.

Mr. Francis—The letter from Bombay begins with theſe words:—"Mr. Moſtyn has already adviſed you of "the revolution that has taken place in the Poonah Go- "vernment." I conſider this as a fact, and I draw the ſame concluſion from it with the Preſident and Council of Bombay, that whatever may be the other conſequences of this revolution, they hope at any rate it will defeat the deſigns of the French.

It is not of moment to the preſent queſtion, whether I relinquiſh or adhere to my firſt opinion of thoſe deſigns, becauſe I ſuppoſe an event to have happened, which admitting ſuch deſigns to have exiſted, neceſſarily defeats the effect of them. If the Board do not believe the fact, they will of courſe continue the expedition on the principles on which it was undertaken. If they do believe it, I cannot comprehend how we ſhould be liable to an imputation of levity or precipitancy in ſuſpending the execution of a meaſure which an unforeſeen event has made unneceſſary.

Governor General—It matters not what interpretation the Preſident and Council of Bombay have put upon Mr. Moſtyn's letter to this Government, ſince it is a fact that Mr. Moſtyn's letter does not ſay that a revolution had actually taken place in the Poonah Government; it ſays only, that three only of the confederacy had joined their forces, amounting to thirty thouſand horſe and foot; that they expected to be joined by Succaram Baboo at the village of Courey; that fifty horſemen had been ſent into the city of Poonah by Moraba Furneſe, to aſſiſt at a proclamation made in the name of Ragoba; and that Nanah Furneſe, with an army of 5000 men, was encamped at the foot of the hill of Proonder, and had ſummoned all his friends and adherents to join him. Theſe are the only eſſential facts contained in Mr. Moſtyn's letter, and certainly do not amount to a decided revolution; neither can I conſider it as much more advanced by the looſe intelligence contained in the letter from the Preſidency of Bombay, that a compromiſe was likely to be effected between the party and Nana Furneſe. From what I know of the ſituation, intereſts, and connections of the different parties, I am convinced, that without the ſupport of an Engliſh force it will never be accompliſhed. It is not neceſſary in this place to detail my reaſons; it is ſufficient only to have ſhewn, that the work, though begun with every proſpect of ſucceſs, was very far from being accompliſhed at the period of which we are ſpeaking, and of courſe that the meaſure in queſtion is not rendered unneceſſary, as Mr. Francis has ſtated.

Mr. Barwell—I do not think the reaſons aſſigned by Mr. Francis will warrant an inſtant aſſent to his propoſition. I ſhall have no objection to acquieſce in it as ſoon as the great political meaſure has been ſecured, which was the object of the expedition projected to Bombay by this Government. Appendix. No. 46.

The majority of the Board being againſt Mr. Francis's motion, it is reſolved in the negative.

APPENDIX, No. 46.

Extract of Bengal Secret Conſultations, the 21ſt May 1778.

PRESENT,

The Honourable Warren Haſtings, Eſquire, Governor General, Preſident;

Richard Barwell, Philip Francis, Edw^d Wheler. } Eſquires.

RECEIVED the following letters from Fort Saint George:

Honourable Sir, and Sirs,

We have the honour to encloſe you a copy of a letter juſt received from Bombay, with a copy of our anſwer, for your information.

In conſequence of your letter to us of the 4th of February, we ordered the number of troops requeſted by the Gentlemen at Bombay to be in readineſs to march if it ſhould be thought neceſſary on a further application from them; but the ſeaſon is now ſo far advanced that it would be impoſſible for them to reach Anjengo, in time to embark before the monſoon breaks on the Malabar Coaſt. We propoſe therefore to hold them ſtill here in readineſs to proceed to Bombay the firſt favourable opportunity, ſhould the gentlemen there continue to be in want of them, and the ſituation of affairs will enable us to diſpenſe with this force. We ſhall in the mean time be obliged to you for ſuch information as you may think proper to afford us, regarding the aſſiſtance which you propoſe yielding from Bengal, and the deſigns you may have further formed in conſequence of the preſent ſtate of the Government at Poonah.

In your letter of the 4th February you acknowledged the receipt of our's dated the 16th January, and promiſed us your ſentiments upon it ſhortly; we hope in conſequence, that you will be pleaſed to favour us with them as ſoon as poſſible.

We have, &c.

Fort St. George, 29th April 1778. (Signed) Tho^s Rumbold, &c. Council.

To the Honourable Thomas Rumbold, Eſquire, &c.

Gentlemen,

We have received your letter of 13th February, and beg leave to congratulate Mr. Rumbold on the appointment to the Government of your Preſidency.

The Pattamars diſpatched from Madras the firſt of March, arrived here without any packet from you; but as ſeveral of the private letters which they brought concur in the intelligence, that you had ordered a body of forces to the aſſiſtance of this Preſidency, in conſequence of the requiſition we made in our letter of the 12th December, we can only impute our not having heard from you, to your packet having been intercepted by the Marattas; the Pattamars having informed us the packet of letters was ſtopt and opened near Poonah.

As the ſeaſon is ſo far advanced as not to allow of our waiting for more particular advice from you, we have judged it expedient to give immediate orders for a ſufficient number of veſſels proceeding to Anjengo to bring up the troops, which according to our accounts conſiſt of 200 European infantry, 50 artillery, and a battalion of ſepoys; and we hope we ſhall not be diſappointed in our our expectations, that our veſſels will find them at that place ready for embarkation.

We have thought it neceſſary to apprize the Commanding Officer at Palamcotta of our intentions, and we beg leave to encloſe a copy of our letter to him for your notice.

Mr. Moſtyn has adviſed you of the revolution which has happened in the Maratta Government; and in conſequence thereof we have judged it neceſſary to collect all the force we poſſibly can to accompany Ragoba to Poonah.

Sir Edward Vernon, in his paſſage down the coaſt, having fell in with the Brilliante and another French ſhip, which from the intelligence we had received, we had before ſuggeſted to him were coming with a deſign to form a ſettlement at Choul, a Maratta port cloſe to the mouth of our harbour, he has again returned hither in order to prevent their ſcheme taking effect; and we hope and truſt, that in conſequence of the late revolution we ſhall be able totally to deſtroy the French influence at the Court of Poonah, an object of the utmoſt importance to the Honourable Company.

We have, &c.

A true copy.

To the Honourable William Hornby, Eſquire, &c.

Honourable Sir, and Sirs,

We are much concerned to obſerve, by your letter of the 8th inſtant, that our's to you of the 15th January had miſcarried. We now tranſmit a duplicate, by which you will perceive, that from the poſture of affairs at that time we thought ourſelves under the neceſſity of declining an immmediate compliance with your requeſt for ſo large a body of troops as 250 Europeans and a battalion of ſepoys, to be aſſembled at Palamcottah, for the purpoſe of marching to your aſſiſtance. This miſcarriage of our letter gives us the more concern, as you have been led to ſend veſſels to Anjengo, in the idea that the troops had been collected at Palamcottah as you deſired, and were ready to march to Anjengo for embarkation.

We aſſure you, Gentlemen, that we paid every attention to your requeſt, and ſhould have been happy if the ſituation of affairs here had permitted us to comply with it in the extent you wiſhed; but circumſtanced as we then were, the meaſure appeared too unſafe and imprudent to be adopted: however, upon hearing from the Governor General and Council of Bengal, that their ſanction and aſſiſtance would be given to your proceedings, and upon their opening and recommending the deſign more fully to us, we then determined, notwithſtanding the incomplete ſtate of our eſtabliſhment, to order the troops you had before requeſted to hold themſelves in readineſs to march. They are now under theſe orders; but as the ſeaſon is too far advanced to ſend them to Anjengo, we ſhall keep them in readineſs to proceed to your aſſiſtance the firſt opportunity that offers, if your abſolute want of them ſhould continue, and no material change ſhould happen here in the mean time. But we muſt obſerve to you, that the number of our Europeans fit for duty is ſo ſmall and diſproportionate, that we deem it unſafe, even in the moſt favourable times, to detach any part of them upon ſo diſtant a ſervice; and we wiſh, therefore, that ſepoys only may be required, as we can with much leſs difficulty replace their loſs.

Private advices from Bengal mention, that the detachment ordered from thence were to winter at Korah, and afterwards proceed on their march.

A true Copy.

The following minutes having been delivered on the 16th inſtant on papers circulated from the military department, are ordered to be recorded in this place.

In circulation, 16th May 1778, three letters from Colonel Leſlie, dated 26th of April, 1ſt and 3d May.

Governor General—I have to propoſe ſubmitting the requeſts in Colonel Leſlie's letters to the conſideration of the Commander in Chief, and his opinion required on the propriety of complying with them.

Mr. Barwell—I acquieſce to Colonel Leſlie's propoſitions, as far as they may be judged proper by the Commander in Chief.

Mr. Francis—I muſt acquieſce in the above propoſal if it be unalterably determined that the detachment ſhall proceed; but I ſhould imagine the letters received this day from Mr. Moſtyn and Fort St. George, would naturally induce the Board to ſuſpend their march, at leaſt until the rains are over, or until ſome direct and poſitive intelligence ſhall be received of the deſigns imputed to the French, and ſome overt act of theirs tending to carry ſuch deſigns into execution. Whatever theſe may have been, the Preſidency of Bombay, in their letter of the 8th of laſt month to that of Fort Saint George, ſay, "that they hope and truſt that in conſequence of the "late revolution they ſhall be able totally to deſtroy the French influence at the Court of Poonah."

This influence, if we may believe Mr. Moſtyn, could not at any time have been very conſiderable, notwithſtanding any reports to the contrary induſtriouſly circulated by a low French Agent, whoſe infamous character is too well known in India to entitle him to the ſmalleſt degree of credit. Mr. Moſtyn, in his letter of the 19th April, ſays, "that when the Poonah Durbar "demanded of him, Whether he had written to us "on the ſubject of their having given a port to the "French, and appointed Monſieur St. Lubin to the "command of their artillery, and whether to his know-"ledge it was ſo? he replied, that he had not informed "us thereof, neither did know that any thing had been "yet done for the French."

As this is the caſe, and as we know with certainty that in November laſt there was no expectation of a rupture between the two Crowns in Europe, I truſt the Board will at leaſt ſuſpend the execution of a meaſure evidently tending to a rupture with France, and founded either on facts which appear to have been groſsly miſrepreſented, or on the ſuppoſition of deſigns which, if they ever exiſted, are defeated without our interpoſition.

Governor General—I muſt requeſt Mr. Francis's permiſſion to transfer the above minute to the Secret Department, to which the ſubject properly belongs.

Mr. Francis—Agreed. The other letters from Mr. Auriol came to me at the ſame time, and I wrote on this paper by miſtake.

A true extract.

20th May 1778. (Signed) Robert Kyd, Secretary.

The Governor General—I cannot diſcover any thing either in the letter from Fort Saint George, or in Mr. Moſtyn's, which ought to induce us to recall the detachment, or to ſuſpend its operations; on the contrary, the whole tenor of the letter proves the neceſſity of its proceeding.

Whatever hopes the Preſident and Council of Bombay may have entertained of the effects of the revolution, neither was the revolution accompliſhed at the time in which their letter was written, nor was the French influence in any apparent degree leſſened by their proſpect of it. Notwithſtanding Mr. Moſtyn's remonſtrances, and the promiſe made to him by the Miniſters on the 10th of April, that the Chevalier St. Lubin ſhould be diſmiſſed from Poonah, it is certain that he was not gone on the 19th.

Mr.

Mr. Francis has quoted a part of Mr. Moſtyn's reply to the miniſters, to which I ſhall add the remainder, and leave it to the impartial readers of theſe papers to form their own concluſions from both:

" But that from Monſieur St. Lubin's being permitted " to remain here, notwithſtanding you had been infor- " med of the promiſes made me by the Durbar, that " he ſhould be diſpatched as laſt Decera, together with " the aſſurances which Monſieur St. Lubin had given " to all the French ſettlements, that they had delivered " Choul into his hands, and that the French flag was " actually flying there; you, Gentlemen, might with " very great propriety imagine ſuch was abſolutely the " caſe; I then deſired they would inform me what were " the real intentions of the Durbar with reſpect to the " French: when Succaram Babboo replied, that they " had the diſpatching Monſieur St. Lubin under con- " ſideration: and I have ſince received aſſurances from " Moraba, that this matter ſhould be ſettled agreeable " to our wiſhes."

Neither to the ſuſpicions thus pointedly expreſſed by Mr. Moſtyn, nor to the direct queſtions put to them in my letters, have the miniſters made any reply, except an aſſurance given to Mr. Moſtyn, that they had the diſpatching of St. Lubin under conſideration, and that this matter ſhould be ſettled agreeably to our wiſhes. Not to deny a direct and formal charge, preferred by thoſe who have a right to a reply, is to admit it.

I have no authority for the belief, much leſs do I know with certainty, that in November laſt there was no expectation of a rupture between the two Crowns in Europe. But why is this ſuppoſed? neither is the deſign which has been attributed to Monſieur St. Lubin connected with ſuch an event; nor can a proviſion made by this Government, to ſtrengthen one of its dependencies, in any reſpect tend to it. Monſieur St. Lubin may bring men and arms to Poonah, and diſcipline half the Maratta army; our detachment may traverſe the whole empire of Indoſtan; and the peace between Great Britain, and France continue uninterrupted, and inſenſible of ſuch alien movements.

In the opinion which I delivered on a former motion made by Mr. Francis for recalling the detachment, I objected to the grounds of it as erroneous, and I intimated my belief that the attachment, which Hurry Punt Furkia, the Commander in Chief of the Maratta forces, was known to bear to Nana Furneſs, would prevent a reconcilation from being effected between Nana Furneſs and Ragonath Row. A circumſtance obſcurely related by Mr. Moſtyn, corroborates this opinion, and affords but too much reaſon for the ſuſpicions that Nana Furneſs in the refuſal to accept of the proffered terms of accommodation, and in the deſire which he has ſhewn to retire to the river Kiſtna, the ſtation of Hurry Punt Furkia, ſtill looked to that Chief for protection. I am informed, and by good authority, that the Maratta General ſuddenly marched towards Poonah on the firſt intelligence of the projected revolution and was followed by the army of Nizam Ally Cawn, with the ſame deſign as I underſtand of preventing or defeating it.

As it will not be exacted from me to act upon concluſions drawn from premiſes which I do not allow; and as the reſolution which has been taken to ſend a powerful military aid to the Preſidency of Bombay was founded on a ſuppoſed neceſſity of guarding the Company's intereſts in that quarter againſt impending dangers; while thoſe dangers exiſt or appear to exiſt, it will be my duty conſiſtently to ſupport and proſecute the meaſure undertaken at my inſtance. Theſe dangers originated from the intrigues of Nana Furneſs, the executive ruler of the Maratta State, and the Chevalier St. Lubin, a proclaimed miniſter of the Crown of France. Mr. Francis affirms that the grounds of this apprehenſion are all diſſipated by a revolution which by the expulſion of Nana Furneſs from the Government has at once diſabled him and annihilated the French influence in the Maratta Councils; and therefore he inſiſts on the repeal or ſuſpenſion of the intended aid, as no longer neceſſary even on the grounds on which it was propoſed to be given. Appendix. No. 46.

Theſe are not Mr. Francis's words, for I have not his minute at this time before me, but they contain his ſenſe, and I hope not diſcoloured in the expreſſion.

To this a ſummary view of the ſtate of the contending parties, as it is deſcribed by our lateſt advices, will be a complete anſwer.

Ragonaut Row, the intended Chief of the new adminiſtration, had not left Bombay nor was likely ſoon to leave it: his friends at Proonder had proclaimed a change of Government, but had neither reſolved on the form of it nor prevailed on their late competitor, even with all the terrors which are the uſual attendants of new dominion, to participate it with them. The French Miniſter remained undiſturbed at the capital, and two powerful armies were marching to the relief of Nana Furneſs. Such was the revolution which is now ſtated as a proof that our political affairs at Bombay are in a ſtate of quiet and ſecurity, and as a reaſon for repealing the meaſures which have been adopted for thoſe ends.

(Signed) Warren Haſtings,
Seen. (Signed) Edward Wheler.

Mr. Francis—I am not ſolicitous to refute opinions that differ from mine, when the meaſures they relate to are unalterably determined. My reply to the preceding minute is intended for my own juſtification, and to ſatisfy the Court of Directors, that if I perſiſt in a conduct oppoſed to the decided ſenſe of the majority, it is not from obſtinacy or paſſion, but that I have ſome reaſon of my ſide, and that I am not ſo ill adviſed as to endeavour to ſupport any opinion by appealing to evidence which proves directly againſt me.

It is ſaid that when the laſt letter from Bombay was written, the revolution at Poonah was not accompliſhed; that the French influence was not yet leſſened by the proſpect of it, and that Monſieur St. Lubin was not diſmiſſed on the 19th April.

The Preſidency of Bombay, in their letter to Fort Saint George of the 28th, ſay, " Mr. Moſtyn has adviſed " you of the revolution which has happened in the Ma- " ratta Government." That they were preparing to accompany Ragoba to Poonah with all the force they could collect, and that " in conſequence of the late revolution " they hope and truſt they ſhall be able totally to de- " ſtroy the French influence there." It appears by Mr. Moſtyn's letter of the 19th, that the Marattas had not delivered Choul to the French, nor engaged Monſieur St. Lubin in their ſervice; in this ſtate of things it ſeems immaterial to any eſſential intereſt of ours, whether Monſieur St. Lubin continues at Poonah or not.

In ſtating the facts, with the direct evidence that belongs to them, I meet the Governor General's argument on his own principles: I admit of a ſuppoſition deſtitute of all foundation, that the preſent expedition was undertaken to effect a revolution in the Maratta Government, conſequently that there is a neceſſity for its proceeding until ſuch revolution is accompliſhed; I allow it to be ſuppoſed, that the prevalence of French influence at the court of a neutral power would warrant our invading their country and taking poſſeſſion of their capital, and that as long as a French Miniſter is permitted to reſide there our military operations ought not to be countermanded. If the facts could by any means be accommodated to the concluſions drawn from them, the Governor General is ſtill bound to defend the principles on which they are formed: they are ſuch as I do not think neceſſary to diſpute: thoſe which I profeſs, and have ſteadily endeavoured to purſue, are taken from the higheſt authority, and founded, as I believe, upon true policy, on juſtice, and right reaſon: to preſerve the peace of India; to make the ſafety of Bengal the principal cipal object of all our deliberations; never to employ the Company's forces in distant expeditions; and in all our treaties with the country powers to take care that they be so framed, as neither immediately or eventually, if possible, to engage the Company in any disputes between those powers. It is not for us to examine the wisdom or weakness of a system established on such authority; it is our duty to conform to it.

The distance of time is sufficient to assure us, that in November last the peace between the two Crowns was not interrupted. A private letter from Constantinople, dated in December, and which every body here has seen, takes notice, that at that time there was no expectation of a rupture with France or Spain. The march of an English army across India in time of profound peace, is a measure too extraordinary not to attract the attention of the French Government and excite their suspicions: appearances may perhaps lead them to conjecture, that the real object of the expedition is only the plunder of Poonah, now supposed to be the richest city in India, but it will furnish them with reasons sufficient to charge us with disturbing the peace of India; to impute designs to us in which their own security may be concerned; and to justify their taking part in a quarrel which we alone have created. When a suspicion alone that the French are carrying on intrigues to the prejudice of our interest at Poonah is supposed to warrant the march of an army across India to counteract their designs, we cannot without manifest inconsistency affirm, that the march of this army gives them no ground of umbrage or alarm, or that it has no tendency to interrupt the peace between the two nations.

If the contests in the Maratta Government are really not ended by the late revolution, I cannot but apprehend, that by engaging in them we are laying the foundation of a general war in India, which cannot fail of extending to Europe. The French and English have usually began hostilities in this country as auxiliaries to some of the native powers, but they soon become principals. If the defence and security of our present acquisitions were not at all times the only object we ought to have in view, this certainly is not a season for provoking a rupture with France: every measure that prudence and moderation dictate ought to be taken to avoid it. If our political affairs at Bombay are not in a state of quiet and security, it depends on that Presidency to provide for their own safety, by disengaging themselves from quarrels in which the Company's interests are not concerned; but when they tell us, that they are collecting all the force they possibly can to accompany Ragoba to Poonah, it would be the grossest reproach to them not to conclude that neither Bombay nor any of the Company's possessions are in danger of being invaded in the absence of the army established for their defence.

If they deceive us in asserting that a revolution has happened in the Maratta Government; if it be true that the French Minister remains undisturbed at the capital, and that two powerful armies, of whose existence we have never been informed, are marching to the assistance of Nana Furnese, it does not follow that an expedition, which never had a revolution for its object, should not be countermanded until that revolution be completed. It does not follow that we have a right to march an army to Poonah, because the Minister of a Crown with which his Majesty is at peace, is permitted to remain there undisturbed; or that it would not be our wisest policy to suffer the competitors for the Maratta Government (if such competition still subsists) to decide their internal quarrels, or to waste their strength against each other without our interposition.

(Signed) Philip Francis.

APPENDIX, No. 47.

Extract of Bengal Secret Consultations, the 1st June 1778.

PRESENT,

The Honourable Warren Hastings, Governor General, President,

Richard Barwell, Philip Francis, Edward Wheler, } Esquires.

THE following minute from the Governor General was sent in since the last Council, and circulated. The minutes entered after it were returned upon it.

Governor General—By imputing principles for the purpose of reflecting on them, and by repeating facts which have been denied, and opinions which have been disputed, without any notice taken of the preceding reasonings upon them, a very short and simple question may be drawn out to an endless length, and the original subject lost in the changes which are rung upon it.

I do not allow the principles which Mr. Francis has imputed to me, and has been pleased to say he admits: of course it is unnecessary to reply to his inferences from them.

Mr. Francis still persists in affirming, that a revolution has been accomplished at Poonah, by which Ragoba has been restored to the chief administration of the Maratta State, the French influence destroyed, and the designs of St. Lubin defeated; to this I refer for a reply to the reply contained in my last minute on this subject and to time, the best arbiter in such a contest.

In Mr. Francis's minute of the 16th instant, he said, that "we know with certainty that in November last "there was no expectation of a rupture between the "two Crowns in Europe." To this I replied in my minute of the 20th instant. He now repeats the same insinuation for what purpose I can only conjecture: the same reply will serve for both.

If the march of an English army through a tract of country far remote from any possessions of the French, is likely to serve as a pretext for interrupting the peace between the two nations, I think it full as likely that the same effect may be inferred from any other given act of our Government. The simple operation of the revenue, whether for the alleviation or increase of the public taxes, may be construed to aim at the ruin of the French commerce in this country: the cantonments at Barrapoor may give umbrage by their vicinity to Ghiretty; and the unusual assemblage of our forces in the neighbourhood of the European settlements may be attributed to a design of plundering Chandernagore; yet the acts of Government ought not to be suspended, because such arbitrary constructions might be put upon them; neither ought we to withhold the assistance which the interests of our common masters require at their Presidency of Bombay, because there is a possibility that the French may take an unreasonable offence at it. It is sufficient that we neither commit, nor even afford the slightest shew of committing, any act of hostility against them, unless to arm ourselves against any hostilities which they may hereafter commit, may be termed such; but to remain quiet and passive, and to abstain from the necessary precautions of self preservation, because hostile designs have been imputed to the French, and therefore every such precaution must point at them as its object, would be to adopt a principle of humble forbearance, of which I have never yet read a single example in the British history; and which for the national honour, I hope will never appear in the latest annals of it. If in these reflections I have misconstrued Mr. Francis's words, I have unwillingly wronged him; and therefore for his vindication and my own I will here subjoin them.

"When a suspicion alone that the French are carrying "on intrigues to the prejudice of our interests at Poonah, "is supposed to warrant the march of an army across "India to counteract their designs, we cannot, without "manifest inconsistency, affirm, that the march of this "army gives them no ground of umbrage or alarm, or that " it has no tendency to interrupt the peace between the " two nations."

Mr. Francis has introduced four quotations from the Company's orders to juſtify his oppoſition to the preſent meaſures; of theſe quotations one only appears to me to be in point. To this, and to the others, if they are ſuppoſed to imply a prohibition to ſend a military aid to the Preſidency of Bombay, I ſhall oppoſe the following extract from their commands of the 5th February 1777, which as the moſt recent of courſe ſuperſede all orders of a prior date, in thoſe points in which they diſagree.

" His (Ragoba's) pretenſions to the ſupreme au- " thority, either in his own right of as guardian to the " infant Peiſhwa, appear to us better founded than " thoſe of his competitors, and therefore if the con- " ditions of the Treaty of Poonah have not been ſtrictly " fulfilled on the part of the Marattas, and if from any " circumſtances you ſhall deem it expedient, we ſhall " have no objection to an alliance with Ragoba, on the " terms agreed upon between him and the Governor " and Council of Bombay."

To obviate the inference which may be naturally ſuggeſted by this quotation. I think it proper to obſerve that an alliance with Ragoba is not the object of the meaſures which have been lately undertaken by this Government for the ſupport of the Preſidency of Bombay. Their declared object is to give ſecurity and permanenty to the peace of that ſettlement. It has fortunately happened that while we were in the purſuit of this object. Ragoba was offered to us as an inſtrument; the Company have warranted us to accept him as ſuch, and he is the moſt likely to prove effectual of any that we could have choſen: we have accepted him, and while his agency ſhall be neceſſary to the above end, and can be employed with a ſacred obſervance of every other engagement, I hope we ſhall continue to employ it.

As the grounds and deſign of the late meaſures which have been ſo violently conteſted by Meſſrs. Francis and Wheler, have been explained in the fulleſt detail in my minutes of the 22d January, 2d February, and 6th April; I hope I may have leave to refer to theſe for a fuller and more authentic comprehenſion of the ſubject, and even for the correction of any inaccuracies to which in theſe looſer debates I may have in advertently fallen; for ſuch I ſuſpect. (Signed) Warren Haſtings.

Mr. Francis.—On the preceding minute I ſhall only obſerve, that when I aſſert any thing as fact, I conſtantly give the evidence from which I draw my concluſion. Aſſertions ſo ſupported are not gratuitous. It ſeems the object of the expedition is to give ſecurity and permanence to the peace of Bombay. Beſides that Bombay has never been attacked, the deſcription of the meaſure is defective in point of accuracy and preciſion, and gives no clear determinate idea of the thing intended. Such general declarations may eaſily be accommodated to any event, or any purpoſe. It is proper the Court of Directors ſhould know that Monſieur Bellecombe, on whoſe viſit to the French ſettlements on the Malabar Coaſt ſuch violent ſtreſs was laid, as if the moſt alarming deſigns were to be inferred and the moſt formidable conſequences to be expected from it, is returned quietly to Pondicherry. I have this fact from Captain Panton.

(Signed) P. Francis.

Governor General—It was not my intention in theſe looſe debates, to deſcribe the deſign of the late meaſures with the accuracy and preciſion of formal inſtructions, but merely to ſtate their general and eſſential object. For a minuter detail I have referred to my former minutes which were written for that end.

I preſume that the fact which Mr. Francis relates on the authority of Captain Panton, was reported to him with many other circumſtances which had a relation to the deſigns which were imputed to Monſieur Bellecombe, and it is poſſible that the ſum of their evidence may amount to a proof of it. I hope that Mr. Francis will in candour add all the information which he has received on this ſubject from Captain Panton. Appendix. Nos. 48 & 49.

(Signed) Warren Haſtings.

Mr. Francis—Captain Panton did not mention any other particulars to me. The concluſion I meant to draw from the fact was, that admitting the French to have entertained hopes of obtaining from the Marattas an eſtabliſhment on the Malabar Coaſt, and to have formed a plan for ſecuring it, ſuch hopes and deſigns muſt now be diſappointed.

APPENDIX, Nos. 48 and 49.

Extract of Bengal Secret Conſultations, 21ſt May 1778.

THE following minutes were delivered upon the draft of a letter prepared by order of the Governor General, in anſwer to a letter from Fort Saint George, and laid before the Board for their approbation:

Mr. Francis—Letters of this great importance ought to be debated in Council, where the Members of the Board may receive information, if they want it, and any doubts that may occur to them may be cleared up.

I think the refuſal of a ſupply of money to the Preſidency of Fort Saint George, who tell us, " they have " none in their treaſury, nor any controul over the re- " ſources of the Carnatic," is too peremptory and unqualified; eſpecially conſidering the unexampled profuſion with which we have ſupplied Bombay. The reaſons for which it is ſuppoſed that a remittance to Madras may be made at any time, and with leſs difficulty in time of war than peace, appear to me ſpeculative and uncertain; nor do I ſee any neceſſity for aſſigning ſuch reaſons.

As for continuing the march of the detachment to Bombay, I have re-conſidered the ſubject with the utmoſt attention, and in every point of view, and muſt own I am unable to diſcover a tolerable pretence, much leſs a ſolid argument, for purſuing that meaſure, even on the principles on which it was undertaken.

A reſolution to ſend ſo conſiderable a portion of the force eſtabliſhed for the defence of theſe provinces, to the other ſide of India, will never appear warrantable in the eyes of the Court of Directors on any ground but that of clear irreſiſtible neceſſity, unleſs they ſhould have departed from their own moſt ſolemn and deliberate declarations and orders on this ſubject. In their letter of the 15th December 1775, par. 4, they ſay, " We " diſapprove all ſuch diſtant expeditions as may even- " tually carry our forces to any ſituation too remote to " admit of their ſpeedy and ſafe return to the protection " of our own provinces, in caſe of emergency."

In our original inſtructions they direct us, in all our deliberations and reſolutions, to make the ſafety and proſperity of Bengal our principal object. I ſtate theſe orders, out of many to the ſame effect, that the Board may have an opportunity of conſidering, before it be too late, whether it be poſſible to reconcile the preſent meaſures to thoſe principles of policy which the Court of Directors have ſo ſtrongly and urgently inculcated for the particular guidance of this Government.

(Signed) P. Francis.

Mr. Wheler—I ſubſcribe to the opinion of Mr. Francis, on the anſwer propoſed by the Governor General to the letter received from Fort Saint George.

Governor General—I deſire that the Secretary will acquaint Mr. Francis, if it is his deſire, that a meeting of the Board ſhall be held to take into further conſideration the letter propoſed to be written to Fort Saint George; I ſhall have no objection to the Council aſſembling to- morrow morrow morning for that purpoſe. The Secretary accordingly wrote to Mr. Francis, in conformity to the Governor General's minute.

Appendix. Nos. 48 & 49.

The Governor General having propoſed an addition to the letter to Fort Saint George, it was circulated, and the opinions of the Board, which are entered after it, were delivered thereon.

Governor General—I beg leave to recommend an additional clauſe to the letter propoſed to be written to the Preſident and Council of Fort Saint George, to the following effect: That if they ſhould ſee a proſpect of a continuance of the troubles at Poonah, we recommend to them to aſſemble a force near the northern frontier of the Carnatic, for the purpoſe of affording either a direct aſſiſtance to the Preſidency of Bombay, or a diverſion in their favour, in any way which they may judge moſt adviſable. (Signed) Warren Haſtings.

I diſapprove of the above clauſe to the letter propoſed to be written to the Preſident and Council of Fort Saint George, both becauſe I apprehend the military eſtabliſhment of that Preſidency is already too much weakened by the draft of the detachment now under orders for Bombay, to admit of a ſecond equipment; and likewiſe, becauſe I am of opinion that our interference in the troubles of Poonah was founded in bad policy, conſequently, the further we engage the more we ſhall involve the affairs of the Company.

(Signed) Edward Wheler.

The military eſtabliſhment of the Carnatic, including the Nabob's diſciplined troops, is equal to that of Bengal, though the territory which it has to defend is ſcarce equal to a tenth part of that which is guarded by the latter.

The detachment now under orders for Bombay cannot accompliſh its original deſtination before the month of November; it is of courſe not likely to proceed at all.

(Signed) Warren Haſtings.

Mr. Francis—I have heard of no troubles yet at Poonah, but if any have exiſted there, the late revolution muſt have put an end to them; neither have I heard that Bombay was likely to be attacked, conſequently can ſee no occaſion for ſending them aſſiſtance. The Preſidency of that ſettlement do not ſeem to think Bombay in any danger, when by their laſt letter we find that they were going to march the principal part of their force to Poonah. I diſapprove of the motion for theſe reaſons, and becauſe I think it rather too arbitrary and inconſiſtent to refuſe the Preſidency of Fort Saint George a ſupply of money, when they tell us they have not a rupee in their treaſury, and in the ſame letter to order them to aſſemble a force upon their frontiers, and perhaps to march into the Maratta country, which we know it is impoſſible for them to do without money.

It ſeems to be forgotten, that all the military operations now in agitation muſt be executed in the midſt of the rains.

I agree to the Governor General's motion. (Signed) P. Francis. (Signed) Richard Barwell.

Governor General—To Mr. Francis's minute I reply, that it has been ſuppoſed that the iſland of Bombay was in danger of immediate invaſion; that it will be too late to make remote propoſitions for the aſſiſtance of that ſettlement when it is engaged in actual hoſtilities; that Mr. Moſtyn's laſt letter, and the other advices from that quarter, afford us every reaſon to expect a ſcene of great troubles at Poonah; that our application to the Preſidency of Fort Saint George is not an order, nor have we a right to write to them on ſuch a ſubject with the ſtyle of command; that by declining to ſend them an immediate ſupply of money, we have not precluded them from every hope of ſuch aſſiſtance; and that when our own means and exigencies will admit, and their occaſions require it, I ſhall readily agree to relieve them.

I am ſorry Mr. Francis ſhould ſuppoſe me ſo inattentive to the ſervice which I have recommended, as not to have conſidered whether the ſeaſon of the year would admit of its execution. I have in a former minute declared, that I regarded the rainy ſeaſon as favourable to the expedition conducted by Colonel Leſlie: in the Carnatic it does not commence till the month of November.

(Signed) Warren Haſtings.

The above addition having been agreed to by a majority of the Board, and added to the letter to Fort Saint George, it was ſigned and diſpatched.

The Secretary lays before the Board the following letter, which he received from Mr. Francis in reply to his notification of the Governor General's offer of aſſembling a Council to take into further conſideration the letter to Fort Saint George:

To J. P. Auriol, Eſquire, &c.

Sir,

Having already delivered my opinion on the propoſed letter to Fort Saint George, and on the addition ſince made to it by the Governor General, and having no new matter before me, I have now no ground for making it my particular deſire that a Council ſhould be ſummoned for re-conſidering the ſubject. I beg you will return my moſt reſpectful thanks to the Governor for the offer contained in your letter.

No. 49.

The Governor General—As Mr. Francis, in his minute of the 19th May, has objected to our refuſal of a ſum of money to the Preſidency of Fort Saint George as being too peremptory and unqualified, and as nothing was further from my intention, nor from the plain conſtruction, of the letter itſelf, I ſhould be very glad if the opinions of the Board and this point may be brought to one point of argument. Part of the words of our letter which have been conſtructed too peremptory and unqualified is as follows: "we conſider the aid of the Com-"pany's reſources, whereſoever they may exiſt, as due "to the exigencies of all their ſettlements. On this "principle we ſhall always be ready to contribute every "means in our power to the relief of yours, whenever "they ſhall indiſpenſably require it, and we can afford "it, without ſubjecting the intereſts of our common "employers to a greater inconvenience in one place "than that which we ſhould attempt to avert in "another." This paſſage, and the whole tenor of the reſt, mark the intention of this Board to ſupply the Preſidency of Fort Saint George with money whenever their exigencies ſhall require it and we can afford it, but decline an immediate ſupply: for this I will ſtate ſuch reaſons to the Board as I hope will convince them of the propriety of this anſwer. By the ſtate of our two treaſuries of yeſterday's date, now lying before the Board, it appears that the amount of both was rupees ſeventy-two lacks ſeventeen thouſand one hundred and eighty-three: - - - - - - 72,17,183.

From this ſum the following muſt be deducted:

Depoſits - - -	12,39,658
Remains in the mint uncoined	12,22,914
Depoſit in the new Fort -	35,96,000
Remaining unpaid of the advances ordered to the Board of Trade	8,00,000
		68,58,572

From this account it appears that we cannot at this time command a larger ſum than three and a half lacks of rupees, were we diſpoſed to comply with the application from from the Preſidency of Fort St. George, unleſs we were to break in upon the fund which we have appropriated for our own extraordinary occaſions. Add to this conſideration the preſent ſeaſon of the year in which the collections are entirely at a ſtand, and it will appear that we ſhall meet with ſome difficulty in defraying our own ordinary expences; neither do the Preſident and Council of Fort Saint George require a pecuniary aid to relieve their actual wants, but only to ſerve as a fund to anſwer the exigencies of a war. To me it appears that ſuch a fund will be as ſafe and as effectual in our hands as in theirs; but if it ſhall be the opinion of the Board that at this time there is a probability that the Preſidency of Fort Saint George may be preſſed for means beyond their ordinary reſources, I ſhall very readily join in appropriating a ſum for that purpoſe, and in fixing a period for advancing it either by bills, or if theſe cannot be obtained, by remittances in ſpecie; in the mean time I recommend to the conſideration of the Board the advice offered to that Preſidency in our letter of the 7th April 1777, as it points out the natural and reaſonable means of enlarging their own reſources, without unneceſſarily exhauſting the currency of this country, and I deſire that it may be entered after this minute. I ſhall here leave the ſubject thus at large, either to be determined at this meeting of the Board; or, as it appears to me of too much importance for ſo precipitate a deciſion, to be more deliberately conſidered, and the opinions of the Board taken upon it in the interval between our meetings.

" It appears from the general tenor as well as the particular paſſages of the Nabob's letters, that he is " greatly indebted to Britiſh ſubjects in the ſervice of the " Company, or reſiding at Madras under their protection. " We have ſtrong grounds to conclude that he may have " granted to theſe creditors, tuncaws or aſſignments of " the revenues of the Carnatic, in the ſame manner as " he had formerly mortgaged to them the collections " of Tanjore. We cannot avoid expreſſing our diſapprobation of this act, if it has really taken place, be" cauſe it muſt evidently tend to leſſen the power of the " Carnatic, by depriving it of its reſources, and thereby " expoſe it to the danger of foreign invaſion. In this " caſe therefore we recommend to you, to require in " form of the Nabob, that he reſume all ſuch grants; " that he deliver to you an account of his debts con" tracted with the ſubjects of Great Britain, and ſuſ" pend the liquidation of them until he ſhall have fully " diſcharged thoſe due to the Company, or until you " may be furniſhed with inſtructions from the Court of " Directors reſpecting the demands of his private cre" ditors, as it is poſſible that ſuch inſtructions may " ſpeedily be received in anſwer to the reference which " you made to them on this ſubject in the courſe of the " laſt year."

Mr. Francis—The letter to Fort Saint George upon the whole amounts to a poſitive refuſal of their requeſt; the following expreſſion appeared to me too harſh and peremptory: " to theſe conſiderations we muſt add, " that we ſhall not think ourſelves warranted, even " under the moſt preſſing ſituation of your affairs, to " offer our relief, if it ſhall appear to us that you have " the means of it left in your own hands unapplied." Either the means herein alluded to could never be in their own hands, or their affairs could not be in the moſt preſſing ſituation.

When the draft of the letter was ſent round, the ſtate of our treaſury now preſented to the Board was not before me, nor is it mentioned or alluded to among the reaſons aſſigned for not granting the ſupply requeſted of us; if it had, I ſhould have thought it unanſwerable, becauſe as I deem the preſervation and ſecurity of Bengal of all others the moſt important object of conſideration to the Company, I ſhould never have approved of ſupplying the wants of the other Preſidencies out of the treaſury of this Government, already ſo nearly exhauſted; on the ſame principle I ſhould have endeavoured to diſcourage every enterprize likely to be attended with extraordinary expences, particularly the preſent expedition to Poonah. I conſider the money in the new fort as a reſource againſt a poſſible invaſion of theſe provinces, and not to be employed for any other ſervice but their immediate defence; deducting this ſum, and the others already appropriated from the balance in our treaſury, it appears that we are going to maintain a war on the other ſide of India, or military operations at leaſt in point of expence equivalent to a war, with an unappropriated ſurplus in our treaſury of three lacks and a half, and which from the ſeaſon of the year we are ſo little likely to increaſe, that we ſhall meet with ſome difficulty in our ordinary expences. In this ſituation of our affairs I certainly ſhall not be for ſending ſupplies of money either to Madras or Bombay, and I would aſſign the true reaſons of our conduct to thoſe Preſidencies. Appendix. Nos. 48 & 49.

Governor General—The ſtate of our two principal treaſuries is preſented to the Board every Monday morning, and a daily report I underſtand to be conſtantly made to every Member of the Board: it was to theſe treaſuries only that my minute alludes, as it is from theſe only that remittances could be made to the other Preſidencies; but Mr. Francis has carried his concluſions far beyond mine, and greatly miſunderſtood me if he ſuppoſes that I mean to repreſent the Company's reſources as exhauſted. The ſtate of our treaſuries at the Preſidency has ever been at its loweſt ebb in the three firſt months of the year; but this does not prove that our reſources are exhauſted; a fair ſtate of the Company's reſources can only be ſeen in the collective ſum of all their treaſuries, and the eſtimate of their growing reſources and diſburſements. The caſh in the principal treaſuries may be diminiſhed by means which proportionably augment that of the provincial, as is actually the caſe in the twelve lacks of rupees lately ordered to be granted to the Board of Trade at the Preſidency, in exchange of the provincial aſſignments formerly made to them. The general ſtate of the Company's treaſuries will make a number in the packet; and compared with that ſent home the laſt year near the ſame period of time, will better ſhew than any argument, the ability of this Government to ſupport all its expencies, whether external or internal.

Mr. Barwell—When I approved the draft of the letter to Fort Saint George, I did not decline to ſend the ſupply required by the Gentlemen of Fort Saint George from any idea of the inability of this Government to give it, but becauſe I did not know, and do not at this preſent moment know, under what circumſtances the extraordinary demand we have from that Preſidency was made; their reſources were the ſame the preceding year, and the year preceding that, and proved a ſufficient fund for defraying the expences of their Government. I know of no extraordinary charges to which the Preſidency of Fort Saint George has been ſubjected during this preſent year, nor do the Preſident and Council ſtate any deficiency in their ordinary funds; I therefore cannot ſuppoſe there is any very preſſing call, or that there can be any real neceſſity for impoveriſhing the Bengal treaſury to ſupply that of Madras; beſides, at this ſeaſon of the year, we have not the means of tranſporting bullion to the coaſt.

Mr. Wheler—I conſider the requeſt of the Governor and Council of Fort Saint George, of a ſupply of money from this ſettlement, rather to ariſe from the apprehenſion of ſome ſudden emergency requiring an increaſe of their expences, which their treaſury was in no degree prepared to anſwer, than from any augmentation of their eſtabliſhment: under theſe circumſtances I judged it reaſonable to comply with their requeſt, not being furniſhed at that time with an exact ſtate of our own treaſury, which I am now well convinced will not admit of. In a mercantile view many reaſons may be aſſigned in favour favour of an annual ſupply to that Preſidency; the only one I ſhall offer to the Board at preſent is, that every cargo from Fort Saint George to Europe, when ſold by the Company, nearly doubles its original coſt and charges, while thoſe from this ſettlement, which we are increaſing daily in moſt of the articles which are ſuppoſed to render them valuable, upon an average loſe upwards of 30 per cent.

APPENDIX, Nos. 50 and 51.

Extract of Bengal Secret Conſultations, the 21ſt May 1778.

PRESENT,

The Honourable Warren Haſtings, Governor General, Preſident.

Richd Barwell,
Philip Francis,
Edw^d Wheler,
} Eſquires.

Honourable Sir, and Sirs,

In your commands of the 9th March you are pleaſed to direct me to reſerve in my hands the ſum of ten lacks of rupees, for the pay and expence of the detachment ordered to be in readineſs to march to Bombay, and to wait your further orders for tranſmitting the ſame to the detachment. In conſequence of theſe inſtructions, I immediately prepared that ſum, converting as much of it as I poſſibly could into gold ſpecie, and packed it up in readineſs to be forwarded on the ſhorteſt intimation from the Honourable Board: but not receiving ſuch intimation, and learning from Colonel Leſlie that his final inſtructions and orders of march had been tranſmitted to him, I conclude that ſome accident muſt have befallen the orders which the Honourable Board ſent me on this head, or that they may not have adverted to the injunction they gave me to wait their further commands. I have therefore, in compliance with the moſt preſſing requiſitions of Colonel Leſlie, taken upon me to forward to him the ſum of twelve lacks of rupees (upwards of three lacks and thirty thouſand whereof are in gold mohurs) which the Honourable Board will perceive from a copy of the Colonel's eſtimate herewith encloſed, was deemed neceſſary for the ſervice.

The charge of the Nabob's Raſſaulah was neceſſarily included in Colonel Leſlie's eſtimate, as the ſtate of his Excellency's finances and reſources rendered it impoſſible for me to have attained immediately the requiſite advance from any other funds than thoſe I am at preſent in poſſeſſion of. I hope however in the courſe of the year, to reclaim a conſiderable part of this ſum, which for the preſent I have been obliged to the Vizier's debt with the Honourable Company, from the funds originally aſſigned for the maintenance of Abdul-nahman Cawn's Reſſaulah.

For the further information of the Honourable Board I beg leave to ſubmit to their peruſal copies of Colonel Leſlie's letters to me, regarding the diſpatch of the treaſure for the uſe of his detachment; which, I truſt, will juſtify my compliance with his requiſition, though not ſtrictly conformable to the orders I had received.

I have, &c.

Copies of letters from Colonel Leſlie to the Reſident at the Vizier's Court.

Sir,

As I have received the final orders of the Honourable the Governor General and Council to proceed on my march to Bombay, with all poſſible diſpatch; and by what I learn from Mr. Chandler, you have not yet received the Board's orders to remit me the treaſure deſtined for this ſervice.

The Paymaſter of this detachment (Mr. Cator) is not yet arrived, as he has been delayed by ſickneſs, and I think it is probable has orders to receive the treaſure from you, but has neglected in his indiſpoſition to tranſmit the order to you or to me; upon this ſuppoſition I have ſent an expreſs to him, to deſire, if he has ſuch an order, to tranſmit it to me immediately; and as I have not any money to defray the expence of the current ſervice, I am to requeſt that you will pleaſe to remit me, as ſoon as poſſible, ſome lacks of rupees, or ſend me credit for ſuch ſums as I may want for the current ſervice, leſt it ſhould ſuffer by delay for the want of it, which I ſhall hold myſelf accountable to you for, till ſuch time as you may receive the neceſſary orders from the Board, immediately from themſelves, or through Mr. Cator.

I have adviſed the Government with this circumſtance of delay, and of my having made this requiſition to you, leſt the ſervice ſhould ſuffer before their orders can arrive.

28th April 1778. (Signed) M^r Leſlie.

Sir,

I have been favoured with your letter of the 24th inſtant on the morning of the 27th, previous to which, on the night of the 25th, Mr. Chandler arrived here, as did Almaſs Ally Cawn on the morning of the 26th.

I am extremely obliged to you for your attention in ſending Mr. Chandler to this place, in order to ſee that the Vizier's injunctions and your own are duly executed by Almaſs Ally Cawn, by which I hope the ſervice will be furthered, and all obſtacles removed that have hitherto retarded it; and I hope, by this interpoſition, that the ſupplies I have demanded, which are very trifling to the abilities of the country, will be ſpeedily and effectually ſupplied, in order that I may begin my march without loſs of time.

I muſt refer you to Mr. Chandler for the progreſs we have made with Almaſs for your further information.

In my letter of yeſterday I informed you of the circumſtances of the delay in the ſupply of the treaſure. I now encloſe you an eſtimate of what I think will be wanting for the current expence of one month, which, you will obſerve, amounts to one lack ſeventy thouſand rupees; therefore I do ſuppoſe that not leſs than thirty thouſand will be neceſſary for contingencies, or that two lacks will be barely ſufficient, excluſive of the firſt expence of ſupply; as the Government have thought that ſix months ought to be provided, twelve lacks will be neceſſary, which I hope will be ſent to me as ſoon as poſſible.

Camp near Corah, I am, &c.
29th April 1778. (Signed) Math^w Leſlie.

Sir,

The Paymaſter of my detachment (Mr. Cator) being arrived, and having no other orders than to join me, I preſume the Governor General and Council thought my order for your ſending the ſum of money deſtined for the expence of my expedition, ſufficient for your doing ſo; and as they have put the Paymaſter entirely under my controul alone, I ſuppoſe it was not conſiſtent any order ſhould be ſent to him to receive it, or in the hurry of buſineſs the neceſſary orders for your ſending it have been forgot; let this be how it will, the ſervice muſt ſuffer if the treaſure is not ſent immediately. I therefore muſt repeat my requeſt to you, that a ſum, amounting to twelve lacks of Sicca rupees be ſent me with all expedition, pedition, for which I will grant my receipts, and become accountable to you.

We have received you letters of the 30th ultimo, and 1ſt, 6th, and 8th inſtant.

Inſtead of complying with the aſſurances which have been made by Mr. D. Barwell to Fyzala Cawn, we think it will anſwer the ſame purpoſe to addreſs a letter to him, confirming the obligation of this Government to abide by the guarantee of the treaty concluded by the Vizier with him, which you have engaged in by our authority, and the Governor General will write to him accordingly.

We authorize you to receive the amount of the obligation which Fyzala Cawn has delivered to Mr. Barwell for one lack of rupees, as a complimentary mark of his reſpect and attention to the Company for the part they have taken in his concerns.

We think it proper to expreſs our approbation of the conduct of Mr. Daniel Barwell in the tranſaction of the buſineſs on which you have deputed him to Fyzala Cawn, and we direct that he prepare and tranſmit to us through you an account of the expences which he has incurred by this expedition.

Having conſidered the earneſt requiſition of Colonel Leſlie for twelve lacks of rupees, with the eſtimate which he tranſmitted you of the monthly diſburſements of his detachment, we conſent to his retaining the additional two lacks with which you have ſupplied him, as we are convinced that the extraordinary charge of the cavalry, which was not provided for in the firſt eſtimate of the expence, will require that ſum to defray it; but we muſt nevertheleſs ſignify our diſapprobation of your having taken upon yourſelf to exceed our original orders on this ſubject without previouſly applying for our permiſſion. Directions were tranſmitted you, under date the 4th inſtant, for diſpatching the treaſure which we had ordered you to prepare, to Colonel Leſlie; but you acted properly in forwarding it before the receipt of thoſe orders, as the exigency of the ſervice required it, and you were acquainted with the uſe for which it was intended.

We are, &c.

To the Honourable Warren Haſtings, Eſquire, Governor General and Council.

Honourable Sir, and Sirs,

I have been favoured with your reſolutions of the 23d ultimo, through the Commander in Chief; and I cheerfully embrace the honour you conferred upon me, in the command of ſo conſiderable a part of the Honourable Company's troops; and the confidence and reliance you have placed in me demands my utmoſt gratitude; I am very ſenſible of this mark of your favour, which it will be my duty to deſerve.

I ſhall proceed with all diligence to collect together the equipment of this expedition, and hope with the power you have intruſted me, to be able to proceed upon it in due time, and that it may anſwer the purpoſe you intend. I beg leave to ſuggeſt to you that it will be abſolutely neceſſary it be attended with a corps of cavalry, in order to eſcort my ſtores and ſupplies, and preſerve my baggage and bazaars from inſult, and the frequent alarms that are given on marches of this kind by a ſtraggling cavalry enemy, as well as to preſerve my communication and correſpondence. I am therefore to requeſt you will permit me to take the firſt regiment of cavalry (now here) with me on this ſervice, which I flatter myſelf you will approve. I have ordered it in readineſs and to proceed with me to Calpee, where I hope to receive your approbation.

The artillery you have appointed to this command is very reſpectable, and I do not apprehend the Golundaze Company from this Brigade ſufficient to conduct it properly. You are pleaſed to add four officers from the firſt company to join it, and I muſt requeſt you will add twenty-five or thirty European artillery men, with ſome ſerjeants, and one hundred laſcars from the firſt company, that this artillery and the magazines may be properly conducted; and if you pleaſe to indulge me with a company of fifty men from the firſt regiment, as a guard to the whole, it will give it the neceſſary reſpect, and I hope you will ſee the neceſſity of this, and concur in my requeſt.

As you have not been pleaſed to take notice of any attendant ſtaff, I preſume you will have no objection to my taking my preſent with me, which I requeſt your concurrence in. And as this ſervice will require every aid, I muſt requeſt the favour you will pleaſe to order Lieutenant Frith, the preſent Brigade Major of the temporary Brigade, to join this detachment as Brigade Major, which it muſt neceſſarily have, and that another officer be ordered to do his duty here till his return; I ſhall take the liberty to take him along with me to Korah, where I hope to receive your approbation.

I preſume you will think a Commiſſary of Muſters neceſſary to aſcertain every thing you are pleaſed to require: a Judge Advocate alſo you may think requiſite; and I muſt requeſt your power for aſſembling general courts martial on Europeans, and to qualify any perſon to act as Judge Advocate; I requeſt alſo you will pleaſe to appoint ſome additional ſurgeons, which are abſolutely neceſſary for us. I muſt endeavour to procure what medicines I can from the firſt brigade.

I muſt requeſt alſo your inſtructions and orders relative to the neceſſary ſupply of money, and you will gratify me by putting it under the direction of Mr. Leſlie (my preſent Secretary), as Paymaſter, and I will become anſwerable for him. I have taken the neceſſary ſteps for procuring the draft and carriage cattle that may be wanted, by ſending to Korah, Calpee, and Bundlecund, to provide them, as alſo to ſecure my ſupplies of proviſions, which I have no doubt I ſhall be able to effect, but wiſh your requeſt to the Rajah of Bundlecund to give all the aſſiſtance in his power. There being no carriage cattle here attached to the Golundazes, I have requeſted Lieutenant Colonel Wilding to procure what number may be wanted at Allahabad, to be ſent to Suragepore; and that nothing may be wanting on my part, I propoſe ſetting out this night for Lucknow, to ſettle with Mr. Middleton what may be wanting on his part or the Vizier's, and to comply with your inſtructions relative to the arſenal there, which I ſhall report to you.

The Vizier not having a twelve pounder fit for the ſervice we are going upon, I have wrote to Lieutenant Colonel Upton to diſpatch with all expedition two twelve pounders from Chunar, and if cattle can be provided I hope they will be brought up by Captain M'Pherſon.

I ſhall hope for your general inſtructions to proceed, and have the honour to be, with the higheſt reſpect,

Honourable Sir, and Sirs,

Camp, Futty Gurr, your moſt obedient 14th March 1778. humble ſervant,
Matt^w Leſlie.

Governor General---It is with much reluctance that we conſent to any further drafts from our troops ſtationed in the Nabob Vizier's dominions; but if you ſhall judge it indiſpenſably neceſſary to join the 1ſt regiment of cavalry, or any part of it, to your detachment, we authorize you to do it, but we rather recommend that you apply to the Nabob for a party of his cavalry to attend you on this ſervice.

We cannot conſent to your requeſt that 25 artillery men, and a company of Europeans, be added to your detachment, though we are convinced that they would prove an addition of great ſtrength to it. We conſent to your taking Lieutenant Frith as your Brigade Major.

The other requiſitions contained in your letter have been already anſwered by our public orders already iſſued.

Mr. Francis—I think, that before we conſent to the detaching of a regiment of cavalry in addition to the troops already ordered to this ſervice, we ought to be furniſhed with the Commander in Chief's opinion, whether ſuch detachment of cavalry can be ſpared with ſafety from the defence of the great line of frontier which we have now to defend?

Governor General—I believe I already know General Stibbert's opinion. It was in deference to it that no mention was made of cavalry in the firſt propoſed arrangement; but as Colonel Leſlie will be reſponſible for the execution of the ſervice, and as the preferable object in my opinion is the intereſt of the enterprize, not the defence of the Nabob's dominions, which will be eventually better defended by it than a much larger force acting at home, I am of opinion, that the diſcretionary power which I have propoſed in the above draft of the letter to be written to him in reply to his, ſhould be given to him. I have too great a reſpect for General Stibbert, to aſk his advice on a point on which I myſelf formed a determined opinion.

Mr. Wheler—I agree to the draft of the letter to Colonel Leſlie, relying upon the foreſight and attention of the Governor General to the ſafety and ſecurity of the frontiers.

Mr. Barwell agrees to the draft.

Reſolved, That a letter be accordingly written to Colonel Leſlie.

The Honourable Warren Haſtings, Governor General, Preſident,

} Eſquires.

READ the following letter from Colonel Leſlie:

Gentlemen,

Although I have been arrived in this neighbourhood ſome days, I have delayed writing to you until I ſhould have croſſed the firſt diviſion of my detachment over the Jumma.

Purſuant to your directions every means in my power were uſed to reconcile the Chiefs holding the diſtricts between Culpee and Bundelcund to my march, and I received aſſurances of their willingneſs and ready aſſiſtance of proviſions. They alſo ſent a vackeel to me for my orders, and to receive my declarations of peace and protection to the inhabitants on my march; but the Kellidar of the fort waived acquieſcing to my application for the aid of his boats, and indicated in all his actions the hoſtility of his intentions.

Many attempts and threats were uſed to intimidate my workmen at the boats I had been able to collect, and at the inſtant their vackeel was in my camp, they commenced direct acts of hoſtility, and abſolutely fired at my people employed at the boats, which was retorted on them by the guard placed for their protection. In the afternoon they returned to the ſame attempts, and the officer then thought it neceſſary to puniſh them more effectually, and fired a few rounds from two ſix pounders that had been ordered there to cover the landing of the troops. This obliged them to retreat with the loſs of ſome men; ſome gabions that were thrown up before the party at the boats entirely ſecured them from the effects of their ſhot.

I had told the vackeel my intention of croſſing as yeſterday, but he was very ſolicitous for my delaying another day, and expreſſed his maſter's wiſh that I would croſs the river at 16 coſs higher up. I could not accede to either. The firſt was incompatible with the declaration I had made, having already delayed my paſſage of the river, with the expectation of ſeeing the vackeel, who confirmed to me the promiſes I had received from the Chiefs Ballajee and Gungadur, and the latter was leading me far out of my way, and therefore not to be complied with.

I explained theſe objections to the vackeel, and repeated my profeſſions of amity and protection to the country. And he left me on the pledge of peace to give the requiſite injunctions to the Kellidar's troops, and to ſend the boats, ſeemingly ſatisfied, and promiſed to return to me in the evening. This he did not perform, and the declared hoſtility the Marattas had ſhewn at the Gaut, gave me reaſon to expect ſome oppoſition. Yeſterday morning at day-break the troops reached the Gaut, conſiſting of three battalions and their guns. And on the firſt embarkation being formed on the oppoſite beach, the troops that had been collected at Culpee began to aſſemble. Colonel Goddard immediately diſpatched a meſſenger to their Chief, with a deſire to paſs unmoleſted; and was deſired to come on. However, before one battalion was quite formed, their horſemen began a diſtant fire with their matchlocks, and finding no immediate reſiſtance, their inſolence was ſo great great as to draw very near the troops in ſingle men to moleſt them, by which means two ſepoys were ſlightly wounded. The ſecurity of the people then required a reſiſtance, and the two guns placed for covering the landing, with a ſmall battery I had poſted for the ſupport of the troops, in poſſeſſing themſelves of the poſt they were to occupy, diſcharged a few ſhot amongſt them, which did execution.

The detachment marched from the beach, and met with no oppoſition, the Maratta troops retreating before them the whole way to the village, from whence they wheeled off through ſome rugged ground to a plain about a mile inland from the fort. Colonel Goddard had detached Major Fullarton, with four grenadier companies, to his left, to prevent any ſurprize in the rear of his detachment from the high grounds, with directions for their joining at the village, but the road being much interſected through the deep broken ground, he was led near a mile from the extremity of the village, almoſt intercepting the retreat of the troops from the fort; at this time the parties that had gone off with their baggage and effects to a poſt about three coſs on the Yellapoor road, were returning in ſearch of plunder, and to aid in harraſſing our troops, collected here to the number of about 1,200 men, they attacked the grenadiers with ſome ſuttrenals and rockets, and preſſed them ſo hard, that the 4th battalion, with two guns, immediately marched from the village to their relief; and the 7th battalion was ordered to follow. On the junction of the 4th battalion, a few rounds decided the conteſt, and the enemy retreated to Etowrah, the place where they had carried their effects. It was too far in the day, and the troops too much harraſſed by being a long time under arms, to think of purſuing them, and the detachment returned to the bank of the river, taking up their poſt between the village and the fort. The fort they found evacuated; Colonel Goddard therefore poſſeſſed it immediately. In this attack a few grenadiers were wounded, but none dangerouſly.

I have been thus particular to point out to you, Gentlemen, that the ſteps I have purſued, and the endeavours I uſed to obtain the acquieſcence of the Chiefs Ballajee and Gungadur, were conſonant to your orders, and ſuch as will obtain your approbation; and that the jealous diſaffection of the Maratta Chiefs alone has produced this firſt hoſtility. I do alſo aſſure you, that I will yet ſtrive to ſecure their peaceable admiſſion of my march. The fort of Culpee is an excellent hoſtage; this, together with the knowledge they now have that your troops will not patiently bear an inſult, may effect their ready acquieſcence.

Another vackeel from Ballajee is with me, who denies that the oppoſition has been made by authority, and ſolicits friendſhip from me: on proper pledges I will grant it; but the deceit they have already uſed, will not admit of my placing too much confidence in their profeſſions.

I have the pleaſure to acquaint you, that the officers and troops behaved with the greateſt alacrity, at the ſame time they obſerved the ſtricteſt diſcipline and regularity.

I have, &c.

No. 54.

The Governor General lays before the Board the following draft of an anſwer to the above letter, for their approbation:

We have received your letter, dated the 20th ultimo.

It affords us great ſatisfaction, and adds to the confidence which we before repoſed in your conduct, to obſerve the attention which you have ſhewn to our inſtruction in your endeavours to conciliate the Maratta Chiefs to the march of your detachment, and in your forbearance to retaliate their hoſtilities until the ſafety of your party made it neceſſary to repel them. Appendix. Nos.

We do not regret the oppoſition which you have met with, ſince it has afforded you an occaſion of proving the ſincerity of our profeſſions, and the Marattas to be the aggreſſors in this early act of hoſtility; at the ſame time that the ill ſucceſs which attended it cannot have failed to make an impreſſion which we hope will diſcourage them in their future attacks, for ſuch we ought to expect, nor can we doubt that this was made by authority, though diſavowed by their principals. We have leſs apprehenſion of their open hoſtilities than of their treachery, and therefore although you inform us that you ſhall not place too much confidence in their profeſſions; yet we think it neceſſary to repeat the caution, and to recommend that you do not ſuffer yourſelf by any appearances to relax from it. 53, 54, & 55.

We deſire that you will adviſe Mr. Moſtyn, the Company's Reſident on the part of the Government of Bombay at Poonah, of your proceedings, and of all ſuch occurrences as may require his explanation of them to the Government at Poonah, or the interpoſition of its authority to prevent the like attempts in others to interrupt the courſe of your march.

We are, &c.

Mr. Francis—The oppoſition made by the Marattas to Colonel Leſlie's paſſage over the Jumma, is to me, I confeſs, an unexpected event. I underſtood that great reliance had been placed on the ſolemn promiſes given us by the Maratta Chiefs of their pacific diſpoſition, and of their reſolution not only to permit the detachment to march quietly through their country, but even to give them every poſſible aſſiſtance. At any rate, I did not expect that they would have diſcovered a hoſtile intention to us until the detachment was engaged further in their country. As we at preſent know what we have to truſt to, and as it ſeems to be agreed that we ought to expect that they will do every thing in their power to interrupt the march of the army, it is my opinion that we ought not to attempt to proceed any further, at leaſt until the rains are over. I think that we hazard the ſafety of that army, on which perhaps the ſafety of Bengal and of the whole Britiſh empire in India may depend, by attempting to force a paſſage from one ſide of India to the other at this unfavourable ſeaſon of the year, and in the face of an enemy determined to oppoſe it. The Marattas have it in their power to diſtreſs, harraſs, and perhaps ruin any army that enters into their country in theſe circumſtances, without ever coming to an engagement. I wiſh the opinion of military men to be taken, whether it be probable that Colonel Leſlie's army under theſe difficulties can make good its paſſage from Calpee to Bombay, or how it is poſſible for them to enſure the neceſſary ſupplies of forage and proviſions during ſo long a march in the rains, if the Marattas are determined to do every thing they can to diſtreſs him? On theſe principles I cannot approve of the propoſed letter, except that part of it which recommends extraordinary caution, which undoubtedly ought to be obſerved if the expedition is to be continued.

Mr. Wheler—I agree with Mr. Francis, particularly in that part of his minute which recommends the taking of military opinions upon the preſent ſtate of the army under the command of Colonel Leſlie.

Mr. Barwell approves of the draft.

The draft of the letter to Colonel Leſlie being approved;

Agreed, That it be written and diſpatched accordingly.

Governor General—During a former period, in which my voice was excluded from an influence on the reſolutions of the Board, I made it a rule, from which I never deviated, to aſſiſt and ſupport every meaſure of the Council after it had received the ſanction of the concurrent opinions of a majority of its members, although though paſſed in oppoſition to my opinion. It was a duty which I owed to the ſervice, nor has even the change of influence ever induced me to depart from it. But meaſures which I deemed the moſt pernicious to the ſervice having been allowed to take their effect, I have ſupported them, and I do ſupport them even to this hour. I have a right to complain of the contrary conduct of Mr. Francis in particular, and of Mr. Wheler, who has invariably joined with him, in loading every meaſure of Government, originally undertaken againſt their opinions, with unremitted oppoſition. This is I believe the fifth time, if not more, that Mr. Francis has urged the recall of the detachment, after having thrown upon me and Mr. Barwell the entire reſponſibility of its appointment. I ſhould not feel ſo ſenſibly as I do the authority of two members of the adminiſtration, which ought to be applied ſolely to the promotion of the Company's intereſts, and the effectual proſecution of the regular acts of Government, thus employed to impede and counteract them, if their objections were derived from a ſtudied knowledge of the ſubjects, how erroneous ſoever the concluſions from them might be: but it is my hard lot to contend with either miſinformation or miſrepreſentation; for I will venture to ſay, that there is not a ſyllable of Mr. Francis's minute that is not built upon wrong grounds of fact. I will examine every part of it in the order in which it was dictated. The minute begins with theſe words: "The oppoſition made by "the Marattas to Colonel Leſlie's paſſage over the "Jumma, is to me I confeſs an unexpected event. I "underſtood that great reliance had been placed on the "ſolemn promiſes given us by the Maratta Chiefs of "their pacific diſpoſition, and of their reſolution not "only to permit the detachment to march quietly "through their country, but even to give them every "poſſible aſſiſtance." No ſuch declaration of the ſolemn promiſes thus given by the Maratta Chiefs appears on any part of our records, nor can I conceive why this aſſertion is ſo pointedly made, unleſs it be to ſuggeſt the danger of a march of the detachment through a country united under one government, and combining all its powers to deſtroy it from the banks of the Jumma to Bombay. I can ſay for myſelf, that I never entertained the ſame aſſurance of the pacific diſpoſition of the Chiefs of the Peiſhwa's immediate juriſdiction.

I proceed with the words of the minute. "At any "rate I did not expect that they would have diſcovered "a hoſtile intention to us until the detachment was "engaged further in their country. As we at preſent "know what we have to truſt to, and as it ſeems to be "agreed that we expect that they will do every thing in "their power to interrupt the march of the army, it is "my opinion that we ought not to attempt to proceed "any further, at leaſt not until the rains are over. I "think that we hazard the ſafety of that army, on "which perhaps the ſafety of Bengal, and of the whole "Britiſh empire in India may depend, by attempting to "force a paſſage from one ſide of India to the other at "this unfavourable ſeaſon of the year, and in the face "of an enemy determined to oppoſe it. The Marattas "have it in their power to diſtreſs, harraſs, and perhaps "ruin any army that enters into their country in "theſe circumſtances, without ever coming to an en-"gagement." I lament that ſuch alarming declarations cannot be confined to our records; and I lament the dangerous conſequences to which the Company's intereſts muſt be expoſed, both here and at home, by ſuch a denunciation pronounced by a member of this adminiſtration, and of univerſal ruin to the Britiſh empire, from the effects of a partial meaſure, which was unfortunately undertaken without his concurrence. A very ſhort reply will be ſufficient to diſſipate ſuch ill-grounded apprehenſions. The diſtricts which depend on the Chiefs who have commenced the firſt hoſtilities againſt the detachment, extend but to a ſhort diſtance from Calpee; three or four days, or at moſt a week, will be ſufficient for it to reach the borders of Bundlecund, a country neither ſubject to the Government of the Marattas, nor likely to be influenced by their example; from Bundlecund the route will lie through the diſtrict of Bopaul, which is under the Government of a Patan Chief, acknowledging no other ſubmiſſion to the Maratta State than the payment of the chout. I am not maſter of the exact geography of this country, but I can affirm that this diſtrict includes ſo narrow a ſpace, that it is neither mentioned in our maps, nor known at this diſtance but to perſons who have occaſionally paſſed through it. The reſt of the way, to the borders of Candeiſh, and of the countries which are contiguous to Poonah, lies in the dominions of Moodajee Booſla, who is at this time the moſt powerful of the Chiefs who bear the Maratta name, who holds his poſſeſſions in his own right, and independent of the Government of the Peiſhwa, even by the confeſſion of the members of that adminiſtration. From him I have received the warmeſt aſſurances of aſſiſtance, and even invitations, repeated to Colonel Leſlie as well as to myſelf, for the march of the detachment into his country. The knowledge which I have acquired of his political intereſts and objects is a warrant yet ſtronger for my confidence in his fidelity. If the ſafety of our detachment has been thus far ſecured, I think there is little danger from the oppoſition it may meet with in the remainder of its progreſs except the events of a war, ſhould a war be the conſequence, which in defiance of the moſt guarded precautions of human prudence, muſt ever be in ſome degree fortuitous; yet it is my opinion, that this undertaking is as little liable to adverſe conſequences as any expedition that has ever yet been ſet on foot by any one of the Engliſh Governments in India, and I am willing to ſtake my reputation on the event of it. Twice is the rainy ſeaſon repeated in this minute as an objection; the ſame objection has been before twice made by Mr. Francis, and very fully anſwered. It is hard to exact from me repeated anſwers to the ſame objections, without an argument urged to ſupport them. I ſhall content myſelf with appealing to my former reply, which is contained in my minute of

To proceed in the words of Mr. Francis's minute, "I "wiſh the opinion of military men to be taken, whe-"ther it be probable, that Colonel Leſlie's army, under "theſe difficulties, can make good its paſſage from "Culpee to Bombay, or how it is poſſible for them to "enſure the neceſſary ſupplies of forage and proviſions, "during ſo long a march in the rains, if the Marattas "are determined to do every thing they can to diſtreſs "him?" I do not deſire to conſult opinions on a meaſure already determined; but to ſtate the queſtion in the terms propoſed would be to deceive thoſe to whom it was put into falſe opinions, the neceſſary conſequences of falſe premiſes. The minute concludes in the following words:—"On theſe principles I cannot approve of the "propoſed letter, except that part of it which recom-"mends extraordinary caution, which undoubtedly "ought to be obſerved if the expedition is to be con-"tinued." The queſtion before the Board is, Whether a letter ſhall be written to Colonel Leſlie, conſiſting of two diſtinct points? The firſt is an approbation of his paſt conduct; the ſecond a caution, to beware of treachery. The reply given by two of the members, applies only to the laſt point included in the queſtion, with a total ſilence on the firſt; while the debates of the Board have been introduced, and conſumed the whole time of the morning, on a ſubject totally foreign from both.

It may ſuit the ſyſtem adopted, whatever that be, by the diſſenting members of this Council, to continue the ſame means which have been uſed to this time, to defeat the meaſures which have been adopted againſt their conſent. I declare in this place my unalterable determination to proſecute it to the utmoſt of my power to its concluſion.

Mr. Francis—What rules of conduct Mr. Haſtings may have preſcribed to himſelf, in former times, is not a queſtion I am concerned in. My conduct, I truſt, will want no apology, as long as it is guided by my own ſenſe of what my duty demands of me, though it ſhould not correſpond with his example. Neither do I know, nor do I mean to enquire, what thoſe meaſures are, which, though taken by the late majority in oppoſition to his opinion, and though of a nature the moſt pernicious to the Company's ſervice, he continues to ſupport; but this I do know, that all our meaſures were approved of by the Company, and none of them ſo ſtrongly as thoſe which received the greateſt oppoſition at this Board.

Admitting the rule alluded to by the Governor to be a good one, I conceive it does not ſtrictly apply to the preſent queſtion. In propoſing to ſtop the march of the detachment, I do not properly retard or embarraſs the execution of a meaſure already reſolved on, while all circumſtances continue the ſame. I propoſe a new meaſure on the ground of a new and unexpected event. With reſpect to the conſtant oppoſition which I am charged with having heretofore given to this meaſure, I avow the fact, and am glad to ſee it eſtabliſhed by teſtimony that cannot be diſputed. In referring to the pacific declarations of the Maratta Chiefs, I ſpoke from a ſtrong impreſſion of my memory, which I believe has not miſled me. Moodajee Booſla repeatedly promiſes to furniſh the army with all neceſſaries, and to conduct them with ſecurity through his territories. I did underſtand that Ballajee and Gungadur had given us aſſurances to the ſame effect. Their letters to Colonel Leſlie are full of amicable profeſſions, which were continued to him by their vackeels in his camp, even to the time when their troops were attacking his advanced parties. He now ſays, "that the jealous diſaffection of the Ma-"ratta Chiefs alone has produced this firſt hoſtility." I for my own part ſee no reaſon why all thoſe Chiefs ſhould not act on the ſame principles. Their general intereſt I conceive muſt be to prevent a foreign force from penetrating into their country, under any pretences whatſoever. What the particular conduct of Moodajee Bhooſla may be is uncertain; the proceedings of the other Chiefs give us no cauſe to rely on his good faith or pacific intentions. I for myſelf place no confidence in them. My objection to the march of the army, on account of the rainy ſeaſon, does not now ſtand on the ſame ground on which it was firſt urged; it was confined to that conſideration only, it is now united with that of a military oppoſition; either of theſe difficulties ſingly might perhaps be ſurmounted. It now appears that we have both to contend with.

I have no apprehenſion that my opinions given at this Board will reach the Marattas, or will have any effect upon the operations in the field. They are eaſy and obvious concluſions, from facts known to every body. If I am ſingular in drawing ſuch concluſions my opinion, though it ſhould be univerſally known, can produce no effect. I confeſs that I did not attend to the formality of approving Colonel Leſlie's conduct, which I ſhould not have objected to: my mind was filled with objects of more conſequence. To the concluding ſentence of the Governor's minute, I ſhall content myſelf with ſaying, that I neither have formed a ſyſtem of perſonal intereſt, nor am I able to deviſe one, which could be promoted or retarded by ſtopping the preſent expedition; neither am I peremptory in ſaying, that I ſhall, at all times and in all circumſtances, oppoſe it to the utmoſt of my power, becauſe a ſtate of facts may exiſt, to which I may be compelled by neceſſity to accommodate my conduct.

The Governor General—I will not lengthen a debate, which originally aroſe from a ſubject to which it does not regularly belong, and has run into others yet more foreign from it; but there is one point which demands my reply.

I have complained of the unfair application which Mr. Francis has made of the general and equivocal term "Maratta," which in the only ſenſe it will bear in his inferences, means only that part of the Maratta Government which acknowledges the ſovereignty and immediate authority of the Peiſhwa and his Miniſters; but the facts from which theſe inferences are deduced relate to a variety of powers and intereſts, which are entirely ſeparated from the Peiſhwa's Government, and which their original dependance on it has even converted by a neceſſary conſequence into an oppoſition to it. The greateſt part, at leaſt two thirds of the line propoſed for the march of the detachment, belongs to powers that acknowledge no obedience to the Maratta State properly ſo called; that of Bundlecund does not bear even the Maratta name; yet it will be impoſſible for any uninformed perſon to read Mr. Francis's minutes, even the latter, though dictated after he had been reminded of this eſſential diſtinction, without concluding from them that the whole country, lying between the preſent ſtation of the detachment and its termination at Bombay, was occupied by one power, and that power ready to act uniformly againſt the detachment in every ſtage of its progreſs. Appendix. Nos. 53, 54, & 55.

The promiſes given by Moodajee Bhooſla will not warrant the ſuppoſition with which Mr. Francis begins his firſt minute, and on which he expreſſes his diſappointment, ſince this Chief, though confounded in the general Maratta name, is not a dependent of the Maratta Government; neither will the aſſurances given by the Chiefs, Ballajee and Gunga Dur, juſtify Mr. Francis's expectations of a pacific conduct in the Maratta Chiefs, ſince their names were never mentioned before, and they are now only mentioned to ſhew that neither their conduct or intentions were pacific.

Yet one word more: it would lead me into a diſcuſſion too pointed and too perſonal, were I to reply to the latter part of the preceding minute, in which Mr. Francis is pleaſed to ſay that he is not able to divine one ſyſtem which could be promoted or retarded by ſtopping the preſent expedition: to this I ſhall briefly anſwer, that the diſgrace of thoſe who planned the preſent expedition; the irreparable loſs of the credit of this Government; and a perpetual diſtruſt in all its future acts, excluſive of the forfeiture of the advantages for which it was originally concerted, would be the infallible conſequence of ſtopping the preſent expedition. It would ill become me to connect ſuch conſequences with a ſuppoſed ſyſtem of party, how obvious ſoever the tranſition may be, and however warranted by univerſal practice, from the defeat of thoſe who have the conduct of affairs to the triumph of their opponents: a conſtant ſeries of oppoſition may likewiſe produce the effect of ſtamping on the authors of public meaſures the opprobrium of every failure of ſucceſs which may at any time attend them, at the ſame time that its public and popular influence eſſentially tends to prevent their ſucceſs.

No. 55.

The Governor General lays before the Board the following draft of a letter, which he propoſes, with their approbation, to write to the Peiſhwa and his Miniſters; and he further propoſes, that copies of it, and of the letter juſt received from Colonel Leſlie, be tranſmitted to Mr. Moſtyn; that he be informed of the directions given to Colonel Leſlie, to adviſe him of his proceedings, and of all occurrences that may require his explanation of them to the Poonah Government, on his application to that Government for the interpoſition of its authority to prevent any impediment to the march of the detachment; that he be alſo deſired to correſpond with Colonel Leſlie, and to inform him of any circumſtances that he may deem it uſeful for him to be acquainted with.

I ſome time ago informed you of my deſign to diſpatch a body of troops from hence to ſtrengthen the garriſon of Bombay, and requeſted that in conſideration of the friendſhip and treaty ſubſiſting between you and the Company, which it was my determination ſtrictly to abide by, you would give orders to all your Chiefs in the the ſeveral diſtricts through which the march of the troops lay, for their unmoleſted paſſage, and to ſupply them with ſuch aſſiſtance as they ſhould ſtand in need of. Notwithſtanding which, I learn from Colonel Leſlie the Commander of the detachment, that being arrived on the banks of the Jumna he halted, and wrote letters to Ballajee and Gunga Dur, the Chiefs of the diſtricts lying between their river and Bundlecund, under your authority, aſſuring them of his pacific intentions, and requeſting permiſſion for the march of the detachment through their territory: in anſwer to which he received aſſurances of friendſhip and aſſiſtance, which were confirmed to him by the arrival of a vackeel on their part; that he in conſequence prepared to croſs with his army, but before the firſt diviſion were fairly embarked a party of a horſe came down and fired on them, and on their arrival on the oppoſite bank they were oppoſed by a body of 1200 horſe, with the Kelladar of Culpee at their head. On this the Commander of the diviſion ſent a meſſage to the Kelladar to deſire he might paſs unmoleſted; and receiving an anſwer to come on accordingly advanced, but was fired on at a diſtance, which he in conſequence of the orders he had received, declined returning; emboldened by which the horſe advanced their attack ſo near the troops that ſeveral being wounded, it became neceſſary for their own ſafety to make a vigorous oppoſition, which was not effected without the loſs of many lives before the aſſailants were put to the flight; and our officers finding the fort of Culpee evacuated, took poſſeſſion of it as a pledge of their future goodbe haviour. I am convinced that theſe acts of hoſtilities muſt have been employed without authority from you or the Miniſters of your Government, becauſe of the treaty which ſubſiſts between you and the Company. The Preſidency of Bombay is ſituated at ſuch a diſtance from this, that any reinforcement which is ſent them muſt neceſſarily paſs through a variety of diſtricts ſubject to different Chiefs; and whatever conduct might be expected from ſtrangers with whom the Company have no connection, it could never be expected from you with whom they are on terms of friendſhip. Neceſſity required that the troops ſhould be ſent, and they muſt either paſs through part of your country, or not go at all. I was therefore remedileſs, but the moſt ſtrict injunctions were given to the Commander, to obſerve the moſt friendly conduct and regular diſcipline in his march which I am ſatisfied he will literally comply with.

I do not mean to demand ſatisfaction for what is paſt, as thoſe of your people who were the aggreſſors have received the puniſhment due to their temerity; but I am to requeſt that you will without delay iſſue ſuch poſitive injunctions to all the officers of your Government as may effectually prevent any thing of the like nature in future.

(To Siccaram and Ballajee Pundit, of the ſame tenor.)

The Board approving of the above letters, agreed that the Governor General be requeſted to order them to be written in Perſian, and that they be forwarded in the following letter to Mr. Moſtyn:

Sir,

Colonel Leſlie who commands the detachment ordered to proceed to Bombay having met with oppoſition in croſſing the Jumna at Culpee, we encloſe a copy of his letter to us on this occaſion, and of a letter which has in conſequence been written by the Governor General to the Peiſhwa, that you may be prepared to anſwer any remonſtrances that may be made to you by the Poonah Government on that ſubject.

We have directed Colonel Leſlie to adviſe you of his proceedings, and of all occurrences that may either require your explanation of them to the Maratta Government, or an application for the authority of that Government, to prevent his meeting with any further impediment in the courſe of his march through their dominions. We alſo requeſt that you will be regular in correſponding with Colonel Leſlie, and that you will apprize him of any circumſtances which you may deem it uſeful for him to be informed of.

To the Peiſhwa: written 9th June.

I ſome time ago informed you of my deſign to diſpatch a body of troops from hence to ſtrengthen the garriſon of Bombay; and requeſted, that in conſideration of the friendſhip and treaty ſubſiſting between you and the Company, which it was my determination ſtrictly to adhere to, you would give orders to all your Chiefs in the ſeveral diſtricts through which the march of the troops lay for their unmoleſted paſſage, and to ſupply them with ſuch aſſiſtance as they ſhould ſtand in need of. Notwithſtanding which I learn from Colonel Leſlie, the Commander of the detachment, that being arrived on the banks of the Jumna, he halted, and wrote letters to Ballajee and Gunga Dur, the Chiefs of the diſtricts lying between that river and Bundlecund, under your authority, aſſuring them of his pacific intention, and requeſting permiſſion for the march of the detachment through their territory. In anſwer to which, he received aſſurances of friendſhip and aſſiſtance, which were confirmed to him by the arrival of a vackeel on their part; that he in conſequence prepared to croſs with his army; but before the firſt diviſion were fairly embarked, a party of horſe came down and fired on them, and on their arrival on the oppoſite bank they were oppoſed by a body of 1,200 horſe, with the Kelladar of Calpee at their head. On this the Commander of the diviſion ſent a meſſage to the Kelladar to deſire he might paſs unmoleſted; and receiving an anſwer to come on, accordingly advanced, but was fired on at a diſtance, which he, in conſequence of the orders he had received, declined returning; emboldened by which, the horſe advanced their attack ſo near the troops, that ſeveral being wounded, it became neceſſary for their own ſafety to make a vigorous oppoſition, which was not effected without the loſs of many lives, before the aſſailants were put to flight; and our officer finding the fort of Calpee evacuated took poſſeſſion of it as a pledge for their future good behaviour. I am convinced that theſe acts of hoſtility muſt have been employed without authority from you, or the Miniſters of your Government, becauſe of the treaty which ſubſiſted between you and the Company. The Preſidency of Bombay is ſituated at ſuch a diſtance from this, that any reinforcement which is ſent them muſt neceſſarily paſs through a variety of diſtricts, ſubject to different Chiefs; and whatever conduct might be expected from ſtrangers, with whom the Company have no connection, it could never be expected from you, with whom they are on terms of friendſhip. I do not mean to demand ſatisfaction for what is paſt, as thoſe of your people who were the aggreſſors have received the puniſhment due to their temerity; but I am to requeſt that you will without delay, iſſue ſuch poſitive injunctions to all the officers of your Government, as may effectually prevent any thing of the like nature in future.

APPENDIX, Nos. 56 & 57.

Extract of Bengal Secret Conſultations, 11th June 1778.

PRESENT,

The Honourable Warren Haſtings, Governor General, Preſident,

Richard Barwell, Philip Francis, Edward Wheler, } Eſquires.

RECEIVED the following letter from Bombay.

Gentlemen,

We are ſtill in the ſame ſtate of uncertainty as when we laſt had the honour of addreſſing you on the 5th ultimo.

The new Durbar, after preſerving a long and myſterious ſilence with reſpect to their intentions towards Ragoba, had a meeting with Mr. Moſtyn on the 10th, when they deſired he would accompany a deputy, they intended ſending to Bombay with propoſals reſpecting Ragoba, but without making the leaſt diſcovery that could lead to any knowledge what ſhare of the Government they would admit him to, or whither they would admit him to any, which in fact is now optional with them.

They have ſtill continued to find pretences for delaying the diſpatch of their Agent; and the recollection of the former trifling propoſals committed to Mr. Moſtyn, ſuggeſted to us to hold up to him the propriety of his not quitting Poonah without ſome adequate commiſſion; but our ſentiments were conveyed to him in ſuch a manner, as to leave it to his diſcretion to act in this point as he might judge moſt good for the ſervice, and we have in a late letter given him a ſtill more explicit permiſſion.

The aſſurance they have given of breaking off their connections with the French, of which you have been adviſed by Mr. Moſtyn, make us willing to hope that the firſt and grand object of theſe meaſures we have propoſed to you may be accompliſhed by this reſolution; but as Monſieur St. Lubin is not yet diſmiſſed from Poonah, we ſhall not relax in our vigilance, or ſuffer ourſelves to be lulled into ſecurity by promiſes which are not confirmed by their actions; however, ſtill we can judge with more certainty of their diſpoſition; the opinion we have formed on the preſent ſituation of affairs, and of our deſire to ſave the Honourable Company from the heavy expences, and their troops from the danger and difficulties of a march from your provinces to this ſide of India, have led us to ſend an order to the officer in command of the forces you have been pleaſed to order to our aſſiſtance, not to advance any further, until he may again hear from us.

It is proper you ſhould be acquainted, that when we came to this reſolution, we had expectations of a reinforcement from Madras, which were indeed formed upon private advices; but the pattamers which brought theſe letters, having been ſtopped near Poonah, and their packets opened, we concluded the public advices from that Preſidency had been intercepted, and gave the more credit to the private.

Alſo that Meſſ. Draper and Stackhouſe did not concur with us in this reſolution, which they were of opinion was not warrantable by any change in our ſituation, either with reſpect to the deſigns of the French, the conduct of the Poonah Government, or our own military reſources.

Sir Edward Vernon, after leaving this place, fell in with the French ſhips the Brilliant and the Sartine, and immediately returned to the northward, taking his ſtation off Choul, with a reſolution to prevent the French from landing any troops there; he continued cruizing off that port till the 18th, when the French ſhips not making their appearance, he proceeded to the other coaſt.

We eſteem it incumbent on us to ſend Sir Edward Vernon a letter of thanks for his conduct on this occaſion, in which he diſplayed ſo pointed an attention to the intereſt and welfare of the Honourable Company. Appendix: Nos. 56 & 57.

We have ſince learned that Monſieur Bellecombe himſelf remained at Mahé, and that the Brilliant proceeded to Mangalore, where ſeveral artillery officers, two hundred men, and a large quantity of military ſtores, were landed for the ſervice of the Nabob Hyder Ally; and the ſhip after Sir Edward Vernon was out of ſight to the northward of her, returned to Mahé, to carry Monſieur Bellecombe back to Pondicherry. The Sartine is gone to Goa river, where ſhe may probably remain during the monſoon; and it is there ſaid the French were deterred from proceeding to Choul by the appearance of our ſquadron, and ſuppoſing that war was declared, and perhaps by the news of the revolution of Poonah; but we have learned that the Captain, who was at Choul, has ordered her up thither (to Choul).

No. 57.

Received the following letter from Poonah:

Honourable Sir, and Gentlemen,

I did myſelf the honour of addreſſing you laſt under the 19th ultimo; on the 25th I received a letter from the Honourable the Governor General, encloſing three for the Durbar, and acquainting me with your determination to ſend a reinforcement of troops to Bombay. As I apprehended the march of ſo large a body of forces through the Maratta Dominions might greatly alarm the Durbar, I thought it neceſſary to ſend Mr. Lewis to camp, not only to preſent the letters, but alſo to explain the cauſe of our apprehenſions, from the connection between Nana and Monſieur St. Lubin, and to apply for the neceſſary paſſports for the free paſſage of theſe troops, and their being ſupplied with a friendly Buzar. He accordingly ſet out the 28th ultimo, and returned the 4th inſtant, when he delivered me the minutes of his proceedings; to the encloſed copy of which I beg leave to refer you, from which your Honour, &c. may perceive, that no dependance can be had on what the Durbar jointly, or the Miniſters individually, ſay; for notwithſtanding their ſo publicly diſpatching me, of which they alſo adviſed the Preſidency of Bombay, and Moraba's aſſurances to Mr. Lewis, they have not to my knowledge taken one ſtep towards completing that buſineſs.

I cannot account for Moraba's evaſive behaviour reſpecting the duſtucks, in any other manner than the hopes he entertains of the troops not marching until the Governor General ſhall have received the Durbar's anſwers, agreeable to what he declared their vackeel had written, or that they will be recalled in conſequence of the late change in this Government; however to leave him as little room as poſſible for further evaſions, under the 5th inſtant I wrote Moraba a letter, demanding a deciſive anſwer, in writing, and declaring him accountable for any ill conſequences which may happen from the want of the duſtucks. But I am ſorry to inform you, that notwithſtanding this, and ſeveral meſſages I have ſince ſent him, I have not been able to procure an anſwer. Notwithſtanding Moraba's aſſertions to Mr. Lewis, Monſieur St. Lubin has not yet been to Proonder, though it is ſaid he is now ſent for; but from the equivocating conduct of the Durbar, both before and ſince Moraba has had the executive authority, it is a doubt with me whether they will diſpatch him, or even if they do, whether he will leave Poonah, as from the lateneſs of the ſeaſon, he will have it in his power to delay the time till the rains ſet in, when he will make the plea of its being impoſſible for him to go any where.

In conſequence of Hurry Punt's retreat to Mirzi, Hyder

Appendix. No. 58, 63 & 64.

Hyder has lately taken two ſmall forts, named Copallée and Behadurburrah, and was by the laſt accounts attacking the fort of Dánvar, about thirty coſs to the ſouthward, after the reduction of which it is ſuppoſed he will attack the latter place, particularly ſhould the reports of Hurry Punt's being on his march from thence to Proondur, by orders from the Durbar, be true.

The encloſed packet to your addreſs was received yeſterday, in duplicate from the Preſidency of Bombay. On the 9th I received a letter from the Chief of Maſulipatam, dated the 22d April, encloſing a packet for Bombay, from your Honour, &c. which was forwarded immediately.

PRESENT,

The Honourable Warren Haſtings, Governor General, Preſident,

Richard Barwell, Philip Francis, Edward Wheler, } Eſquires.

Mr. Lewis's Journal of his Deputation to the Maratta Camp.

Camp near Curreet, April 1778.

Tueſday, 28th. ARRIVED at Morabah's camp about five o'clock P. M. I immediately ſent to inform Morabah thereof, requeſting to know when I ſhould wait on him. He promiſed to give me a meeting at night; but in the evening ſent me word he could not ſee me until to-morrow.

Wedneſday, 29th. On account of ſome particular religious ceremonies Morabah was engaged in, this being a holiday, I had not an opportunity of ſeeing him until ſeven o'clock P. M. I found there Chintoo Wittul and Gopal Naique Tumbuckur. After delivering the letters from the Governor General, agreeable to Mr. Moſtyn's orders, I explained their contents, when Morabah aſked me, whom we had to fear? I told him, that in conſequence of the Governor General and Council being adviſed of the treaty with Monſieur St. Lubin, they had cauſe to imagine ſome evil deſigns were intended againſt the Company's ſettlements on the weſtern ſide of India; he immediately anſwered, that there was no treaty between this Government and that gentleman: I replied, that I ſincerely believed there was not; but that I was convinced there was one ſubſiſting between Nanah and him, the contents of which we had the greateſt reaſon to ſuppoſe were greatly to our prejudice, and that it was in conſequence of this treaty that the troops mentioned in the Governor General's letters, were coming to the aſſiſtance of Bombay; I therefore requeſted the neceſſary duſtucks for their freely paſſing through any part of the Maratta Dominions they might have occaſion to come to, as well as their being properly ſupplied with a friendly Buzar. Morabah confeſſed a knowledge of the treaty between Nanah and Monſieur St. Lubin, but ſaid, he could not give me an anſwer with reſpect to the duſtucks I required, until after the Durbar met to-morrow: he then aſked me how many battalions were coming? I replied I could not tell the exact number, but ſuppoſed about three or four. I then told him that the Governor and Council at Bombay had written to Mr. Moſtyn, that they thought it very extraordinary the Durbar ſhould not have explained themſelves with reſpect to the buſineſs they had requeſted he would accompany Tumbuckur to Bombay upon, and reminded him of the trifling occaſion they ſent him upon in Auguſt laſt; I added that the Governor and Council would not approve of a Member of their Board being ſent upon every trivial errand, and therefore requeſted Morabah would inform me what the Durbar had to ſay to Mr. Moſtyn, or if he did not chuſe to explain himſelf to me, to let me know if he would order Tumbuckur to acquaint Mr. Moſtyn with the particulars before he ſet out? Morabah replied, that he would ſpeak to me on this buſineſs before he diſpatched me: I then told him that it would appear very extraordinary to the Governor and Council, after what had paſſed with Morabah on the 9th, and at Nanah's tent on the 10th inſtant, all which Mr. Moſtyn had written to Bombay, that Tumbuckur had not yet ſet out; the reaſon of which I requeſted he would inform me; to this Morabah made no reply.

May 1778, Friday the 1ſt. This afternoon Morabah went to Sacaram Bapoo at Bury, where were alſo Nanah and Cruſtrow Beloh; what paſſed between them I cannot learn, but a hircarrah whom I ſent there informs me, that Nanah on his going away ſaid to Morabah, he might bring Dadah Saib to Poonah; but he requeſted Morabah would take care he did him no harm. However I look on this as a mere blind, as I am informed Moraba has told Tookajee Holkar that he does intend bringing Ragoba to Poonah before Decera, and has requeſted Holkar would ſend for Anundy Bhoy and her child immediately, and let the latter live with the young Peiſhwa in the fort; to which Holkar replied, that he had nothing to ſay to Savoy Badjeerow, (meaning Ragoba's ſon) but inſiſted on Dadah Saib's being brought directly. The public reaſon given for the meeting between Morabah and Sacaram, was the Beired Rajah and Havaldar of the Matcky, coming down to pay their compliments to Morabah; it is true they did come down, and the hircarrah informs me that after Nanah returned to his camp Morabah gave the Beil Bundah to the Rajah and Havaldar, and their people, in the name of Ragoba, that they ſhould not permit any one to go into either fort without his permiſſion.

I am alſo informed that Ragooputrow, Narroo Sunker's ſon, who is encamped with Holkar, has declared to him that unleſs he will force the Durbar to bring Ragoba immediately into government, he will march into the Conkan with his troops, amounting to about four thouſand men.

Saturday, 2d. This afternoon Saccaram Bapoo paid a viſit to Tookajee Holkar, from whence he came to the Pagoda, in the tope of which Morabah is encamped, and about four o'clock ſet off on his journey to Ninygam, a village about ſix coſs on this ſide Settera, in order it is ſaid to be married.

I have been informed from ſeveral perſons, that Morabah by the advice of Bapoo, has now laid aſide all thoughts of bringing Ragoba into Government. Buchabah Proondur particularly, on the 29th ultimo, ſent a meſſage acquainting me that Sacaram and Morabah had totally broken the agreement made with him and Holkar, and were reſolved that Ragoba ſhould not come to Poonah, but that he and Holkar were determined on bringing him, and wiſhed much the Engliſh would aſſiſt them. And at a viſit I paid Buchabah this evening, he ſaid he could not give me a private meeting on the ſubject as he had ſpies on him, but requeſted I would repreſent to Mr. Moſtyn he had already ſent me, and that whatever we might have to ſay on the buſineſs may paſs through the perſon who acts as my linguiſt.

Not having heard any thing from Morabah theſe three days, in the evening I ſent the linguiſt deſiring to know when he intended diſpatching me, as Mr. Moſtyn would be very deſirous of ſending the Durbar's reply regarding the duſtuck to the Governor General; when Morabah ſaid he would certainly ſend for and diſpatch me before ten o'clock in the morning.

Sunday the 3d. I ſent again at noon to Morabah to aſk, when he would diſpatch me? he replied, that as Mr. Moſtyn had ſo often ſpoke to the Durbar with reſpect to diſpatching patching Monſieur St. Lubin, they had ſent for him in order to give him his diſpatches, after which they would diſpatch Mr. Moſtyn to Bombay. About ſix P. M. Morabah ſent a meſſage, deſiring my attendance at the Durbar; I accordingly went, and found there Cruſtrow Belob, Chintoo Wittul, and Gopaul Naique Tumbucker. Morabah told me, that as the letters from the Governor General mentioned the troops he was ſending to Bombay to be on account of the French being here, he had ſent Monſieur St. Lubin in order to give him his diſpatches; and requeſted to know if in ſuch caſe we ſhould ſtill want the duſtucks I aſked for at laſt viſit, or whether the troops would be prevented proceeding? I anſwered that according to the Governor General's letter to Mr. Moſtyn, the troops would now have been near twenty days on their march, and that of courſe the duſtucks would be neceſſary to prevent any diſputes on the road; to which he anſwered, that the Durbar's vackeel had written them, the Governor General had told him the troops would not march until the Durbar's anſwers were received. I replied, that this was contrary to what the Governor General had written to Mr. Moſtyn, but that perhaps they might be ſtopped, ſhould the news of the change in government, which Mr. Moſtyn had diſpatched the day after it happened, reach Calcutta in time; but as this was very uncertain, I repeated my requeſt for the duſtucks being delivered me to prevent any bad conſequence which might happen for the want of them. Cruſtrow Belob then took up the diſcourſe, and mentioned again the letters they had received from the Governor General reſpecting Choul being given to the French, and Monſieur St. Lubin having the command of the Tope Connah, and made ſome trifling excuſes for Monſieur St. Lubin ſtaying here ſo long; he allowed that ſome kind of promiſes had been made that gentleman, but ſaid that they were given only with a deſign to amuſe him. I replied, that the Durbar beſt knew their own reaſons for detaining him, but that after the many equivocations they had been guilty of, until he arrived at ſome French or Engliſh ſettlement, we could not believe they really meant to ſend him away; and that Mr. Moſtyn had already replied to the other points. Morabah then ſaid, that the Durbar had hitherto acted very improperly in making ſo many evaſions about him, from which the Engliſh had an undoubted right to ſuſpect ſomething was intended againſt them, but I might however depend Monſieur St. Lubin ſhould be diſpatched in two or three days: to which I obſerved, that we expectedno leſs from him, and that it would convince us he meant to preſerve the friendſhip which had ſo long ſubſiſted between this Durbar and the Engliſh. Morabah then ſaid, that the Durbar really intended to have diſpatched Mr. Moſtyn and Tumbuckur at the time they mentioned, but that ſomething had intervened which prevented it. I replied, that the Durbar ſhould have ſettled every point before they ſent for Mr. Moſtyn in ſuch a hurry to camp; that it was not treating the Engliſh in a proper manner, making their Reſident run backwards and forwards upon every trifling occaſion, and it was what they would not ſuffer. Morabah immediately replied, that the real cauſe of Mr. Moſtyn's detention was a letter he had received from Ragoba, deſiring that Tumbuckur might not be diſpatched for ſome days; that Dadoo Punt arrived this day from Bombay with letters from Dadab Sahib, which would require a few days to conſider of; and that then the Durbar would poſitively ſend Mr. Moſtyn to Bombay. He then aſked me if I thought it would be proper he ſhould write a letter to the Governor, accounting for this long delay? I told him, that he undoubtedly ought to have done it before, in order to remove any bad opinion the Governor and Council might entertain from this trifling behaviour of the Durbar. Morabah then ſaid, he would write, and ſend it to Mr. Moſtyn to be forwarded, as well as the anſwer to the Governor General's letter. I repeated my requeſt for the duſtucks, but he ſtudiouſly avoided giving me a reply. After my return from the Durbar I ſent the linguiſt to Morabah, to know whether he would grant the duſtucks I had applied for; when he replied, that he was obliged to go to Jeſury to-morrow, where he ſhould remain two days, but that on his return he would conſider of it, and ſend his anſwer to Mr. Moſtyn. Received the following letter from Colonel Leſlie

Gentlemen,

I did myſelf the honour of addreſſing you on the 30th ultimo, tranſmitting to you a copy of a letter received from the Honourable Preſident and Council of Bombay.

The day before yeſterday I advanced with the principal part of the troops that form this detachment, with intention to take poſt on the banks of the Betowah river, leaving part of the park of artillery, the magazine, and one battalion of ſepoys, at Kalpee.

Yeſterday expreſſes arrived at my camp from the Reſident at Poonah, covering orders under date the 4th of May, that were diſpatched in quadruplicate from the Preſidency of Bombay, which require the proſecution of my march towards that quarter, in countermand of their former orders of the 22d April. Their original letter I now do myſelf the pleaſure to lay before you, together with the Reſident, Mr. Moſtyn's letters of advice, which accompanied it from Poonah. In conſequence of theſe inſtructions, I have diſpatched orders to the officer commanding at Kalpee to join my detachment with the magazine and troops under his charge, and ſhall wait his junction on the bank of the Betowah, from whence I ſhall proceed on my route through Bundlecund with all poſſible expedition.

I am ſorry to inform you, that the backwardneſs which the Maratta Chiefs have ſhewn to the performance of the engagements they have entered into with me, make me dubious of their real intentions. This circumſtance will in ſome ſhape protract my march; but you may be aſſured that I ſhall not be diverted from my direct route through theſe diſtricts by any reſentment of their duplicity, however their conduct may merit it, more than the ſecurity of my detachment may abſolutely require.

I have diſpatched coſſids in acknowledgment of the the letters I have received from Poonah and Bombay, and ſhall be punctually attentive to their deſire of being frequently informed of my advance.

Head Quarters, Meer Gawa, 5th June 1778. I have, &c. (Signed) Matw Leſlie.

To the Officer at Calpee, in command of the troops under orders for Bombay.

Sir,

I wrote you under the 3d inſtant, encloſing a letter from the Preſidency of Bombay. This is purpoſely to give cover to a letter in quadruplicate from the ſame place, which is diſpatched by different routes, as I am uncertain what road you mean to take; I ſhall therefore be obliged to you to inform me as ſoon as poſſible, that I may be enabled to place Dawk Hircarrahs between this place and you. The men who will deliver you theſe letters are any of them able to inform you of the beſt and ſhorteſt roads towards Poonah. Agreeable to the orders I have received both from Bengal and Bombay, I am uſing my endeavours to procure the neceſſary paſſports for your free paſſage through the Maratta Dominions. I have not yet a determinate anſwer from the Durbar with reſpect to them, but hope in a few days to be able to inform you with more preciſion; however, it will be neceſſary to be ſtrictly on your guard, and to avoid as much as lays lays in your power, the giving any cauſe of complaint; though, from the diſtracted ſtate of this Government, and the diſſentions amongſt the heads, I do not believe they will dare to oppoſe your march. You may depend I ſhall keep you adviſed of every material occurrence neceſſary for your knowledge, as ſoon as I know where to addreſs you.

Poonah, the 11th May 1778. I am, &c. (Signed) T. Moſtyn.

To the Officer at Calpee, in command of the troops under orders for Bombay.

Sir,

Notwithſtanding our letter of the 22d ultimo, we hereby direct, that on the receipt hereof you march forward with the troops under your command, agreeable to your orders from the Governor General and Council; and that you give us the moſt conſtant and punctual advice of your motions, and the route you purſue, that we may do all in our power to provide for the wants, and facilitate the march, of the army.

We are, &c.

No. 64.

Extract of Bengal Secret Conſultations, 22d June 1778.

Received the following letter from Bombay:

Gentlemen,

We have the honour to forward a triplicate of our laſt letter, dated the 2d inſtant, ſince when we have received your letter of the 23d of March.

We have not ſince received any further advices from the reſident at Poonah, nor taken your letter into full conſideration; and we only diſpatch this to acquaint you, that we have taken off the reſtraint we had laid on the march of the troops from Calpee, and directed the commanding officer to advance towards this ſide, agreeable to the orders he has received from you.

We ſhall do all in our power to facilitate his march, and to procure a ſafe and unmoleſted paſſage for the army, and write to you with all poſſible preciſion, the moment we have taken our reſolutions.

From the friendly intercourſe that has appeared for ſome time paſt to ſubſiſt between the French and Hyder Ally Cawn, of which we gave an inſtance in our laſt letter, we think it would be a very proper meaſure to keep a Reſident at his Durbar, to endeavour to penetrate and counteract their ſchemes; we therefore requeſt to know if you approve this meaſure, to which we preſume the Nabob can have no reaſonable objection, as we are aſſured both the French and Dutch maintain Reſidents at his court.

Having hitherto obtained no ſatisfaction from the Durbar for the concerned in the Aurora, notwithſtanding our repeated repreſentations, and the letter from the Governor General, we have fixed the amount of their loſs as a claim upon the revenues of Jamboofeer, after the Company's demands on account the twelve lacks and the country of three lacks are made good; and have reſolved to retain that Pergunnah until the ſum due to the ſufferers is diſcharged with intereſt; our proceedings, and the papers now tranſmitted by a ſea conveyance to Madras, will ſhew the care we took to examine and aſcertain the claims, and to do all poſſible juſtice to the Poonah Government; and we doubt not you will approve the method we have taken to obtain ſatisfaction for the merchants, whom it is our duty to protect.

It is with much concern we acquaint you, that by the London Gazette of the 16th December, juſt received from Buſſora, we learn that General Burgoyne with his whol army, conſiſting of 3,500 fighting men, was compelled to ſurrender to General Gates on the 14th of October, on condition of being tranſported to England from Boſton, and not to ſerve again in America during the war. General Howe remains in poſſeſſion of Philadelphia, with which place the fleet have in vain endeavoured to open a communication, and three of our ſhips have been deſtroyed in the attempt, viz. the Auguſta of 64 Guns, the Roebuck of 44, and the Merlin of 16. General Waſhington was encamped within a few miles from Philadelphia, and the Congreſs had removed to Lancaſter: General Clinton with a ſmall army had proceeded up the river of New York, and had met with ſome ſucceſs.

The Council at Buſſora have acquainted us that about the latter end of January, two French gentlemen arrived at Grain, from Surat in their way to Aleppo, and not chuſing to wait for the caravan, juſt preparing to ſet out from the former place, had come to Buſſora, from whence they had proceeded by water to Hilla: "they gave out that one of them was writer to the "French Chief at Surat, and the other a military officer "and that they were proceeding to Europe with letters "to the French Miniſtry, regarding a new ſettlement "that had been lately made by their nation at Choul." We doubt not theſe are the individual perſons mentioned in our letter of the 12th December; but the Council at Buſſora add, that through their impatience they had taken a route which did not promiſe much expedition.

Bombay Caſtle, 9th May 1778. We are, &c. (Signed) John Carnac, &c. Council.

Ordered, that the encloſures in the above letter be entered after the Conſultation.

Mr. Francis delivers in the following minute:

Mr. Francis—As a formal motion from me on the ſubject of the preceding letters would only be productive of uſeleſs debate, I ſhall content myſelf with laying my opinion before the Board, leaving it to their conſideration to adopt any part of it they may think proper. Theſe letters bring new matter, and of courſe a new queſtion before us. On the ſecond of May, the Preſidency of Bombay inform us, that the opinion they had formed of the preſent ſituation, added to other conſiderations, had induced them to ſtop the march of the detachment. In two days they ſuddenly change their reſolution without aſſigning any reaſon for it, and order the detachment to proceed. By this extraordinary omiſſion, I think they have failed very much in the reſpect they owe to this Government, and in their duty to the Company. If they act capriciouſly and without reaſon, common prudence dictates to us that we ought not to leave our army under ſuch direction: if they have reaſons for this change of ſyſtem, ſtrong enough to ſuperſede the arguments on which their firſt reſolution was founded, (which, conſidering the ſhortneſs of the interval, and that no event of any moment had happened in that time, is hardly conceivable) they deſignedly leave us in the dark with reſpect to the motives of their conduct; and make it impoſſible for us to act in concert, or in confidence with them. I can place no reliance in the wiſdom of men, whoſe councils in the determination of the moſt important queſtions, appear to fluctuate without plan, principle, or object; much leſs can I think it ſafe or honourable to co-operate in the ſupport of men who affectedly conceal the motives of their actions from us, though it be one of their principal duties to explain thoſe motives to us. Either way it is my opinion, that we ought not to ſuffer the detachment to proceed, until we are informed what change of circumſtances has induced the Preſidency of Bombay to revoke their reſolution of the 2d May; that reſolution we know was taken on ſolid ground, becauſe their reaſons for it were explained. We ought to be equally ſatisfied that the reaſons for revoking it are powerful enough to juſtify the change: it would but ill become the dignity of the Supreme Council of India to follow blindly the caprices of a ſubordinate Government, nor perhaps would it be quite conſiſtent with our ſafety, conſidering that the Preſidency of Bombay, even in this laſt act, endeavour to fix the reſponſibility of it upon us. They do not take it upon themſelves to juſtify the march of the detachment as an act of their own: they ſay only that they have taken off the reſtriction under which they had laid the commanding officer, and directed him to advance, agreeable to the orders he had received from us; we then are conſtituted the authors of the meaſure, and muſt be anſwerable for the event.

On what grounds they have proceeded I know not, but their own letter ſtates a fact to us which they ought to have compared with the actual circumſtances of Colonel Leſlie's army, and which I think ſhould have deterred them from expoſing it to a ſimilar event. In the ſame breath they order the detachment to continue its march acroſs India, forgetting every thing they had ſaid of the dangers and difficulties of ſuch a march; and tell us a Britiſh Army, attempting a Paſſage through North America, had been obliged to capitulate. It may be folly to draw omens from misfortunes; but it is equally want of wiſdom not to ſuffer example and experience to have any weight with us. Independant of this particular conſideration, I would wiſh the Board to conſider whether the unfortunate events in America ought not to have a general influence upon our meaſures here: whether this be a ſeaſon for hazarding offenſive operations of any kind; and, whether policy and prudence do not plainly dictate to us, that while the nation is ſo deeply engaged and preſſed on one ſide, with every thing to apprehend from the deſigns of France and Spain on the other, we ſhould ſtand on our defence, and not weaken or divide the force on which the ſafety of Bengal may depend.

Governor General—Whether Mr. Francis's minute is delivered as a motion, or merely as reflections upon the meaſures now before us, it equally claims the conſideration of the Board. Mr. Francis is conſiſtent with his conduct in repeating his inſtances for the recall of the detachment: I am equally conſiſtent in propoſing, that the meaſure which has been ſo deliberately reſolved on ſhall be proſecuted, ſince no new circumſtances have intervened to induce me to change my opinion; nor has Mr. Francis urged one new argument in ſupport of his, except the defeat of General Burgoyne in America, to which I hope he does not expect an anſwer. The reaſons given by the Preſident and Council of Bombay, in their letter of the 2d May, for ſuſpending the march of the detachment, were grounded on circumſtances of which they were not competent judges: the expence, the danger, the reſponſibility, were ours. In effect, theſe do not appear to me to have been the reaſons; we ſhall probably be informed of them with their promiſed letter, containing their reſolutions; but it is of little moment to the preſent queſtion, what were the motives for their conduct, either in ſuſpending the march of the detachment or in directing the proſecution of it. The original meaſure is ours, and all our reſolutions concerning it ought to proceed from our own knowledge of the circumſtances which have any relation to it.

I hope that our affairs in America are not in the deſperate ſituation in which they are deſcribed to be; but I ſee no connection between them and the concerns of this Government, much leſs can I agree, that with ſuch ſuperior advantages as we poſſeſs over every power which can oppoſe us, we ſhould act merely on the defenſive; and abruptly ſtop the operations of a meaſure of ſuch importance to the national intereſts, and to the national ſafety, as that in which we have now decidedly engaged, with the eyes of all India turned upon it. On the contrary, if it be really true that the Britiſh arms and influence have ſuffered ſo ſevere a check in the weſtern world, it is more incumbent on thoſe who are charged with the intereſts of Great Britain in the eaſt, to exert themſelves for the retrieval of the national loſs. We have the means in our power, and if they are not fruſtrated by our own diſſenſions, I truſt that the event of this expedition will yield every advantage for the attainment of which it was undertaken. It is not long ſince one of the many motions which have been made for the recall of the detachment, was ſupported by an argument drawn from the certainty that there was no probability of a war with France; and the deſigns attributed to the French in this quarter of the world were treated as chimerical and groundleſs: now we are told, that the nation is deeply engaged and preſſed on one ſide with every thing to apprehend from the deſigns of France and Spain; on the other, the concluſion drawn from this ſtate of appearances is, that we ſhould ſtand on our defence, and not weaken or divide the force on which the ſtate of Bengal may depend. The concluſion which I ſhould draw from ſuch premiſes is the very reverſe; not that we ſhould act upon the defenſive, and wait till the deſigns of our enemies are ripe, and they have choſen their own time to carry them into execution, but that we ſhould provide for the ſafety of Bengal, by obviating the impending dangers, and by rendering their attempts abortive, before the time deſtined for their birth.

Appendix, Nos. 58, 63, & 64.

Mr. Francis—As I do not mean to enter further into the general argument, I ſhall only obſerve that the new matter which I think theſe letters bring before us, ariſes in part from the profound ſilence of the Bombay Council on the motives of a poſitive reſolution: when nothing is ſaid in ſupport of the affirmative of any queſtion, that circumſtance alone is ſufficient to juſtify the negative.

My language and opinion, with reſpect to the deſigns of France, and the policy to be obſerved by this Government, will be found invariably the ſame. I do indeed believe that the ſchemes imputed to them of alliances with the Marattas, and of hoſtile projects on the Malabar Coaſt, were chimerical; their connections with Hyder Ally ſhew at leaſt that they have taken a very different turn: but I have conſtantly urged the neceſſity of arming in Bengal, and ſtanding in a poſture of ſecurity and defence here, without provoking a quarrel with France, as long as it could be avoided, becauſe I am inſtructed by the Company, and convinced by my own judgment, that we ought to make the ſafety and preſervation of Bengal our principal object.—As I find there are no public letters before the Board, to inform us of the particular circumſtances that attended Colonel Leſlie's march on the firſt day from Calpee, I beg leave to lay before the Board an extract of a private letter from Camp, to which I gave credit, and which I think deſerves our conſideration: I underſtand there are many private letters in town which give the ſame accounts:

"On their firſt day's march from Calpee, by the "little care that was taken to provide proper guides "they loſt their road; and although the ground they "propoſed to encamp upon was but eight coſs from "Calpee, yet they were eleven hours on the road, from "midnight till eleven o'clock; during this time they "marched above 30 miles, over a burning ſandy plain, "without a drop of water; between three and four "hundred ſepoys and followers of the camp died raving "mad with thirſt.

"Captain Crawford, one of the beſt and braveſt military "characters in India, died that day, according to the "opinion of the doctors, for want of a draught of "ſimple water; he died mad after two hours illneſs; "Colonel Parker, Major Fullarton, Captain Aſhe, Cap"tain Shoners, and about ten ſubalterns, were dan"gerouſly ill."

Governor General—May I aſk Mr. Francis the name of the writer of this letter, ſince it is delivered as authentic?

Mr. Francis—I have ſtated it to be a private letter, conſequently cannot mention the writer's name; nor would I have introduced it at all, if there had been any public letter from Colonel Leſlie, ſtating the circumſtances ſtances that attended his march: I do not find that he has even reported the death of Captain Crawford; but I can aſſure the Board with certainty that there are many letters in this town to the ſame effect.

Appendix. Nos. 58, 63 & 64.

Governor General—Of the death of Captain Crawford I received advice from Colonel Leſlie, written at the ſame time with his public letter to the Board; and confounding one letter with the other, did believe till this inſtant that it was mentioned in his public letter; I have not the letter by me, but will ſend it, or an extract of it, that it may be entered in this place. I believe that the troops muſt have ſuffered from the heat and want of water on the road; I did in effect foretell it in a minute dictated at this Board; but I believe that the anonymous extracts produced by Mr. Francis is a groſs exaggeration, and calculated more to conciliate the favour of the perſon to whom it was probably addreſſed, than to convey a ſtrict relation of the truth.

" I will addreſs you again to-morrow; I have ſent " the requiſite orders for the magazine to join me from " Calpee, and can aſſure you I ſhall do my utmoſt to " get on, though we have at preſent to ſtruggle with a " moſt inclement ſeaſon.

" I have had the misfortune to loſe Captain James " Crawford, who commanded the 4th battalion of " Sepoys, by a moſt violent fever which carried him off " in leſs than two hours. His private character, and his " acknowledged abilities in his profeſſion, are not un- " known to you.

" I bear more than my ſhare in the univerſal regret " and grief at this accident, not only by the loſs the " ſervice in general ſuſtains, but the preſent expedition " in particular. I have the honour to be,

" Dear Sir,

" Your faithful humble ſervant,

(Signed) " Matt[w] Leſlie."

I now return to Mr. Francis's laſt minute. I cannot agree with Mr. Francis, in terming the ſilence of the Preſidency of Bombay, new matter for a queſtion depending ſolely on our own reſolutions; but whatever, weight this argument may have on one ſide, it is equally counterpoiſed on the other, and leaves us juſt were we were with reſpect to the motives of our own actions. They were ſilent on the cauſes which induced them to ſuſpend the march of the detachment: they were ſilent on their motives for repealing this ſuſpenſion; and I for my own part am better pleaſed with the ſolicitude they have ſhewn, to make Colonel Leſlie acquainted with their laſt intentions, than if they had waited; and of courſe unneceſſarily impeded the ſervice, for the tedious official formalities of a public letter, detailing all their reaſons.

If Mr. Francis does indeed ſtill believe, that the ſchemes imputed to the French of alliances with the Marattas, and of hoſtile projects on the Malabar Coaſt were chimerical, I would beg leave to aſk him, but do not inſiſt on his anſwer, Whether he believes the character aſſumed by the Chevalier St. Lubin of a Miniſter from the Court of France to be falſe? and whether the atteſtations of it by Siccaram Baboo, and Nana Furneſe, the Miniſters of the Maratta State and the formal notification made by them to this Government, that the Chevalier St. Lubin had delivered letters and preſents from the King of France, were falſe, and for what purpoſe this colluſion was concerted? If it be admitted, that the Chevalier St. Lubin is Miniſter from the Court of France to that of Poonah, What is the object of his long reſidence, and what was the object of his miſſion? When the concluſion which I have drawn from each appearance, and which has been echoed by all the world, is pronounced chimerical, I have a right to require that ſome other be ſet up in its ſtead. Much ſtreſs has been laid on a former aſſertion, made by me, reſpecting the ſuppoſed grant to St. Lubin of the port of Choul. I had but repeated what I knew to be on our records; but could not immediately turn to the paſſages which related to it; and I truſted to time, the beſt diſcoverer of truth, to juſtify the opinion which I founded upon them. I now beg leave, in this place, to quote the following paſſage of a letter from Fort St. George, dated 16th January laſt, which mentions the grant of the port of Choul as a fact of undoubted notoriety. " With reſpect to " any connections which may have been formed by the " Maratta State, we can only ſpeak from conjecture. It " ſeems probable that ſome engagements may be in " agitation, or perhaps concluded between that ſtate " and the Soubah; and they have lately, we believe, " maintained a cloſe correſpondence with the French; " as appears from the proceedings of Monſieur St. Lubin " at Poonah, and the grant which they have given to the " French at Choul on the Malabar Coaſt, of which you " have lately been adviſed." I never ſuppoſed that a public grant or ſunnud had been executed for this purpoſe. This would not have ſuited the policy of either party. The preſent uſe of the port, and the promiſe of it in property, was all that the Chevalier St. Lubin could deſire, until his deſigns were ripe for execution. I believe moſt firmly, that ſuch a promiſe was made him by the ruling member of the adminiſtration; nay, I have been informed, and by an authority which (though I think myſelf not at liberty to mention it) merits my entire credit of it, that St. Lubin did make a purchaſe of a church ſtanding near the ſhore, for the purpoſe of eſtabliſhing a preſent ſtore houſe, and of converting it, with the ground around it, to a fortreſs hereafter. I ſhall now produce the laſt and moſt concluſive evidence of the reality of the engagements, executed between Nana Furneſe and the Chevalier St. Lubin, and even of the deſign to grant the property of the port of Choul to the latter. It is extracted from Mr. Lewis's diary. I ſhall inſert the paſſage at large, and deſire that the parts to which I allude may be marked with a line drawn underneath.

" Wedneſday 29th April. On account of ſome par- " ticular religious ceremonies Moraba was engaged in, " this being a holiday, I had not an opportunity of ſee- " ing him until 7 o'clock P. M. I found there Chintoo " Wittul and Gopaul Naique Tumbuckur. After deliver- " ing the letters from the Governor General agreeably to " Mr. Moſtyn's orders, I explained their contents, when " Moraba aſked me, Whom we had to fear? I told him " that in conſequence of the Governor General and " Council being adviſed of the treaty with Monſieur St. " Lubin, they had cauſe to imagine ſome evil deſigns " were intended againſt the Company's ſettlements on " the weſtern ſide of India. He immediately anſwered, " That there was no treaty between this Government " and that gentleman. I replied, that I ſincerely be- " lieved there was not; but that I was convinced there " was one ſubſiſting between Nana and him, the con- " tents of which we had the greateſt reaſon to ſup- " poſe were greatly to our prejudice; and that it was in " conſequence of this treaty that the troops mentioned " in the Governor General's letter were coming to the " aſſiſtance of Bombay. I therefore requeſted the neceſ- " ſary duſtucks for their freely paſſing through any part " of the Maratta dominions they might have occaſion " to come to, as well as their being properly ſupplied " with a friendly Buzar. Moraba confeſſed a knowledge " of the treaty between Nana and Monſieur St. Lubin, " but ſaid he could not give me an anſwer with reſpect " to the duſtucks I required, until after the Durbar met " to-morrow.

" Sunday 3d May about 6 P. M. Moraba ſent a " meſſage deſiring my attendance at the Durbar. I ac- " cordingly went and found there Cruſtrow Belol, Chin- " too Wittal, and Gopaul Naque Trumbuckar. Moraba " told me that as the letters from the Governor General " mentioned the troops he was ſending to Bombay to be " on account of the French being here, he had ſent for " Monſieur St. Lubin, in order to give him his diſ-

" patches

" patches, and requeſted to know if in ſuch caſe we " ſhould ſtill want the duſtucks I aſked for at my laſt " viſit, or whether the troops would be prevented pro- " ceeding? I anſwered, that according to the Gover- " nor General's letter to Mr. Moſtyn, the troops would " have been near twenty days on their march, and that " of courſe the duſtucks would be neceſſary to prevent " any diſputes on the road; to which he obſerved, that " the Durbar's vackeel had written them, that the Go- " vernor General had told him the troops would not " march until the Durbar's anſwers were received. I " replied that this was contrary to what the Governor " General had written to Mr. Moſtyn, but perhaps they " might be ſtopped ſhould the news of the change in " Government, which Mr. Moſtyn had diſpatched the " day after it happened, reach Calcutta in time; but as " this was very uncertain I repeated my requeſt for " the duſtucks being delivered to me, to prevent any " bad conſequences which might happen from the " want of them. Cruſtrow Beloll then took up the diſ- " courſe, and mentioned again the letters they had re- " ceived from the Governor General, reſpecting Choul " being given to the French, and Monſieur St. Lubin " having the command of the Toff Counah, and made " ſome trifling excuſes for Monſieur St. Lubin ſtaying " here ſo long; he allowed that ſome kind of promiſes " had been made that gentlemen, but ſaid they were " given only with a deſign to amuſe him. I replied, " that the Durbar beſt knew their own reaſons for de- " taining him; but that after the many equivocations " they had been guilty of, until he arrived at ſome " French or Engliſh ſettlement, we could not believe " that they really meant to ſend him away; and that " Mr. Moſtyn had already replied to the other points. " Moraba then ſaid, that the Durbar had hitherto acted " very improperly in making ſo many evaſions about him, " from which the Engliſh had an undoubted right to " ſuſpect ſomething was intended againſt them; but I " might, however, depend Monſieur St. Lubin ſhould " be diſpatched in two or three days."

Mr. Francis—My private belief is not ſtated as an argument that ought to weigh with the Board, but merely to clear the conſiſtency of my own conduct and opinion, in anſwer to an objection urged againſt it. In many of our late debates I have formally admitted the poſſibility of the ſchemes and negociations ſaid to be carrying on between the French and the Marattas, but at the ſame time have contended that all ſuch ſchemes and negociations have totally failed of ſucceſs. The fact beyond all queſtion is, that the French at this day are not in poſſeſſion of Choul: and I preſume it will not be diſputed that they are engaged in connections with Hyder Ally, who is at war with the Marattas, and that they have furniſhed him with military aſſiſtance.

With reſpect to Monſieur St. Lubin, he is an Agent of ſo low an order, and a perſon of a character ſo infamous in India, that I cannot believe he was ever intruſted with a letter from the King of France. What his deſigns have been, or what inſtructions he may have received from his employers, I know not. It is ſufficient, for the ſupport of every argument in which I have taken a part on this ſubject, that his hopes, whatever they were, have been diſappointed, and that his deſigns are actually defeated.

Governor General—As Mr. Francis has ſhifted the grounds of the queſtion, I am not bound to continue the argument, but in anſwer to one paſſage only which is directly applied to the preſent ſubject of debate. As Mr. Francis is now pleaſed to ſay, that he cannot believe that he was ever entruſted with a letter from the King of France, I beg leave to enter here for the third time the ſtrongeſt proof which a fact of that nature can admit, the declaration to which I have before alluded of the miniſters themſelves, in the following extracts of their letters to me. With reſpect to the French connections with Hyder Ally, thoſe I admit, and ſhall hereafter explain, as well as the inconſiſtency imputed to what I alledged on this ſubject in the minutes delivered by me on the 11th June.

Appendix. No. 59 & 61.

Extracts of letters from the Poonah Durbar to the Governor General.

" Monſieur Le Chevalier de St. Lubin, on the part of " the King of France, lately arrived on board ſhip on " this coaſt, and landed at Rio Dunda belonging to the " Government; from whence he tranſmitted a letter to " Seremunt Row Sahib Row Pundit Purdhaun, containing " a requeſt of audience to treat with him, which if " granted they would wait on him and fully explain to " him the ſubjects of their miſſion. As friendſhip has ſub- " ſiſted from time immemorial between the French na- " tion and the illuſtrious family of Seremunt Sahib, and " moreover in compliance with the duties of hoſpitality, " an order for their approach was ſent from the preſence. " When the aforeſaid gentleman arrives, the ſubjects " of their negociation will be explained."

" I ſome time time ago wrote you information of the " approach of a perſon deputed by the King of France " to this quarter. Monſieur Chevalier de St. Lubin has " lately been honoured with an audience of the Pundit " Purdhan Peiſhwa Sahib, of ſtrengthening and con- " firming the ancient friendſhip which ſubſiſted between " the two nations, and he alſo ſpoke on the ſubject of " their ancient intimacy and connexion."

" As the rainy ſeaſon was ſet in violently, Mr. Le " Chevalier has been delayed on this account. The " duties of hoſpitality, both to friends and ſtrangers, " are incumbent on Chiefs of high rank."

APPENDIX, Nos. 59, and 61.

Extract of Bengal Secret Conſultations, 11th June 1778.

THE Governor General—I forbear in this place to comment upon the preceding letters. I ſuppoſe that the orders ſent by the Preſident and Council of Bombay to Colonel Leſlie muſt have been received; but as it is poſſible they may have been intercepted, I propoſe that a letter be written to Colonel Leſlie, informing him of the ſubſtance of this order, and confirming it by an order from this Board; but that he be directed to complete the preparations which he has been making for the equipment of his detachment, and that he hold himſelf in readineſs to march on immediate warning.

Mr. Wheler—I feel myſelf very much averſe to throwing any difficulty or embarraſſment upon the ſubject now before the Board.

The queſtion as it ſtands I can approve of in part, but without ſome further explanation, I fear I cannot entirely accede to it; the firſt part of the letter, adviſing Colonel Leſlie of the ſubſtance of the Bombay letter, and the confirmation of this Board, is acceded to, and likewiſe that he be directed to complete the preparation which he has been making for the equipment of his detachment, as I have reaſon to fear he is very ill provided and prepared for ſo long and hazardous a march. As to the laſt part, " that he holds it in readi- " neſs to march on immediate warning," I do not conſent to it, unleſs the order ſhall previouſly receive the ſanction of this Board; I likewiſe think it ſhould be aſcertained, whether Colonel Leſlie ſhould with his army recroſs the Jumna, or if not, where and how he is to diſpoſe of it during the approaching rains.

Mr. Francis—Conſidering the nature of the advices received yeſterday from Bombay, I own I had not the leaſt doubt that the preſent extraordinary Council was ſummoned with a view to countermand the expedition, and to recall our forces to the defence of our own dominions. The Preſidency of Bombay tell us, " that the " opinion they had formed on the preſent ſituation of " affairs,

Appendix. Nos. 59 & 61.

" affairs, and their desire to save the Company from the " heavy expence, and their troops from the dangers and " difficulties of a march from our provinces to that side " of India, had led them to put a stop to the march of " the army." After such a rebuff as this from the Government, in support of whose projects these extraordinary steps have been taken here, and after so plain a declaration from them, that they will not take any part in the responsibility of a measure so expensive, so dangerous, and so difficult, I confess I had no thought that any idea of persevering in the execution of such a measure could still prevail at this Board. I was in hopes that nothing would be required of me to-day, but to join as I should have done, heartily in approving the reversal of measures, which I had constantly opposed and condemned; the motion by no means answers my expectations, or comes home to my opinion.

I think we should immediately send orders to Colonel Leslie to recross the Jumna, and to station his troops in such places as may be most convenient and most easily made for their reception during the rains; I can never agree to their halting on the other side of the river: if it be in an enemy's country, the army must be exposed to many of the dangers and difficulties which would attend their march, and probably be forced into acts of hostility, which may produce a general war. If it be meant that they shall quarter in the territories of the Rajah of Bundlecund, I suppose it may be done without danger, but it must be attended with the ruin of his country, at the same time that our army is detained from the defence of our own frontier. It is in vain for me to say more on a subject which has been so often discussed; I must leave it to the majority to decide as they think proper. One circumstance only I think it necessary to point out to the attention of the Court of Directors. We have been hitherto told that the French were engaging in dangerous negociations with the Marattas, and this fact has often been pressed upon the Board as a reason for the part we have taken in their affairs. It now appears by the letter from Bombay, that Monsieur Bellecombe had sent a ship of war to Mangalore, where several artillery officers, two hundred men, and a large quantity of military stores, are landed for the service of the Nabob Hyder Ally. But Hyder Ally is at war with the Marattas, and has lately obtained some advantages over them; it is impossible then that any intrigues between the French and the Marattas can have taken effect if ever they existed. The conclusions therefore drawn from that supposed fact fall to the ground, and if we act consistently with our reasonings, the measures built on those conclusions must fall with them.

Mr. Barwell—It seems to be the sentiments of Mr. Wheler and Mr. Francis, that the detachment should continue embodied, and remain under the command of Colonel Leslie. The only proposition contained in either of the votes, that appears at all to militate against the orders proposed by the Governor General, is that the troops shall be directed to recross the Jumna. Considering the policy that renders it necessary to continue the detachment embodied, I see no reason for restricting the officer in command of it from chusing that station for the troops he may in his judgment conceive best calculated either to facilitate his progress, or to enable him to return to the provinces. From the time that has elapsed in preparing this force, the readiness in which it is to be kept to march at a minute's warning, is equally calculated for offence and defence, and whilst it is not advanced to a greater distance than thirty or forty cos from the frontier of Oude, or Rajah Cheyt Sing's dominions, I will venture to affirm that our powers of defence are greatly increased. In giving my opinion for the proposed order to Colonel Leslie, I do not think it essential to go back into the policy that gave rise to the armament at Calpee, though I think it necessary to propose an addition to the quotation made from the Bombay letter by Mr. Francis, following the words " landed " for the service of the Nabob Hyder Ally;" " and the " ship, after Sir Edward Vernon was out of sight to " the northward of her, returned to Mahé, to carry " Monsieur Bellecombe back to Pondicherry. The Sartine is gone into Goa river, where she probably may " remain during the monsoon; and it is there said, that " the French were deterred from proceeding to Choul by " the appearance of our squadron, and supposing that " war was declared, and perhaps by the news of the " revolution at Poonah, but we have learnt that the Captain who was at Choul, has ordered her up thither (to " Choul.)"

Mr. Francis—I have not made myself understood. My opinion is, that the expedition should be absolutely counrermanded, and Colonel Leslie's present command of course dissolved as soon as he has quartered his troops on this side the Jumna, in the best manner the season will permit; after the rains the several detachments of which his army is composed, ought to be remanded to their former stations.

Governor General—If I had thought it necessary to have replied minutely to the objections which have been made to this question, Mr. Barwell has precluded me, by anticipating all that I could have said upon the subject; but there is an observation which Mr. Francis has introduced, and expressed as it is, to be foreign from the question of which I am compelled to take notice, by the solemn reference which he has made of it to the Court of Directors. Mr. Francis has said, " One cir- " circumstance only I think it necessary to point out to " the attention of the Court of Directors; we have " been hitherto told that the French were engaging in " dangerous negociations with the Marattas, and this " fact has often been pressed upon the Board as a reason " for the part we have taken in their affairs. It now " appears, by the letter from Bombay, that Monsieur " Bellecombe had sent a ship of war to Mangalore, where " several artillery officers, two hundred men, and a " large quantity of military stores, were landed for the " service of the Nabob Hyder Ally." Mr. Barwell has properly added the context of this quotation, and thereby restored it to the proper sense implied and intended by both. By this method of selecting partial passages, and by an artificial application or combination of them, of which I have too frequently had occasion to complain in the contest in which I have been unfortunately involved with Mr. Francis, it is in his power not only to pervert the original meaning of the text, but to draw any conclusions he pleases from them, however opposite to the sentiments of those who wrote them. I am in possession of materials, received through channels too remote for the possibility of their having been suggested by the knowledge of what has happened on the other side of India, by which I learn that the destination of the troops, which were landed from the Brilliante at Mangalore, were for Choul. The additional sentence of the Bombay letter, which Mr. Barwell has desired to be inserted, may serve in part to explain the apparent inconsistency of troops intended for the service of the Marattas, being converted to that of the enemies, nor will it be difficult to comprehend the cause of so sudden change in the conduct of Monsieur Bellecombe, on the difficulties presented to him, if we suppose him to have been reluctantly compelled into the support of a system formed independent of his authority, and that his own inclinations led him to prefer another alliance, which I have reason to believe was the case.

Mr. Francis—I beg leave to say that my argument is not answered; I state it as a fact which is not disputed, that the French have lately sent military assistance to Hyder Ally, who is at war with the Marattas. From this undisputed fact, I conclude that, even admitting any negociations whatsoever to have been carried on between the French and the Marattas at a former period, and even admitting the private information to which the Governor General refers to be authentic (though to this Board it could be no evidence before it was mentioned) ſtill it is true, that the French have now taken part with Hyder Ally; of courſe we have nothing to fear from thoſe dangerous intrigues, which, to ſave time and argument, I will admit to have taken place between them and the Marattas, nor any reaſon to perſevere in the execution of meaſures, which were adopted with a profeſſed view to counteract thoſe intrigues. This argument I take to be ſtrict, and in point; I ſubmit to judgment, whether it is anſwered by general complaints of unfair quotations, which conſidering that the letter quoted it before the Board, and will be before the Court of Directors, would be no leſs injudicious than they would be unfair.

Governor General—I will anſwer Mr. Francis's argument in the manner in which he requires; ſtill complaining, as I have a right to complain, of the partial ſelection of facts for the purpoſe of maintaining his opinion. It is true that the Preſident and Council of Bombay write, that they had learnt that the Brilliante proceeded to Mangolore, where ſeveral artillery officers, two hundred men, and a large quantity of military ſtores, were landed for the ſervice of the Nabob Hyder Ally: they do not aſſert this for a fact, nor do they aſſert that the report, which they thus repeat to us, went further than the landing of the troops, and the ſimple intention of employing them for the ſervice of Hyder Ally; in effect, this intelligence conſiſts only of conjectural concluſions from an unaſcertained fact; to this obſcure intelligence, and to this vague inference drawn from it, I deſire leave to oppoſe the following extract from Mr. Moſtyn's letter, containing the recital of an authenticated fact, admitting but of one concluſion, namely, that the Chevalier St. Lubin, the public and avowed Miniſter of the Court of France, was ſtill retained at Poonah in defiance of all the remonſtrances of our Agent there, and of the Preſident and Council of Bombay; and that the ſame countenance was ſhewn him by the Members of the new Adminiſtration as he had before received from the ruling Members of the former Government: hence I conclude, in oppoſition to Mr. Francis's concluſion, that we have yet ſtronger grounds than ever, both for the conviction of the French intrigues with the Maratta State, and for the fear of their conſequences. "Notwithſtanding Moraba's aſſertions "to Mr. Lewis, Monſieur St. Lubin has not yet been "to Proonder, though it is ſaid he is now ſent for; but "from the equivocating conduct of the Durbar, both "before and ſince Moraba has had the executive autho- "rity, it is a doubt with me whether they will diſpatch "him, or even if they do whether he will leave Poonah, "as from the lateneſs of the ſeaſon he will have it in "his power to delay the time until the rains ſet in, "when he will make the plea of its being impoſſible for "him to go any where."

Mr. Francis—I did underſtand from the Governor General's preceding Minute, that the facts had been admitted.

Bengal Secret Conſultations, 11th June 1778.

Reſolved, That the following letters be written to Colonel Leſlie, to Bombay, and to Mr. Moſtyn:

Sir,

By a letter which we have received from the Preſident and Council of Bombay, under date the 2d May, we are informed, that the aſſurances given by the new Miniſters at Poonah, of their breaking off the connection with the French, had made the Preſident and Council willing to hope that the firſt and grand object of the meaſures thus propoſed to us, might be accompliſhed by the late revolution in the Government of Poonah; but as Monſieur St. Lubin had not been diſmiſſed, and they were uncertain whether the new Miniſtry were ſincere in their promiſes, they did not mean to be relax in their vigilance toward the intentions of that Government; however, until they could judge with more certainty of their diſpoſition, the opinion which the Preſident and Council had formed of the preſent ſituation of affairs, and their deſire to ſave the Company from the heavy expence, and our troops from the dangers and difficulties of a march from theſe provinces to the weſt ſide of India, had induced them to ſend you an order not to advance any further until you ſhould hear again from them.

Appendix. No. 60.

We conclude, that ere this you have received their orders, and put a ſtop to the march of the detachment in conſequence; but leſt they ſhould have been intercepted, or by ſome accident prevented from reaching you, we think it proper to confirm them, by directing them to halt accordingly, until you ſhall receive further orders on the ſubject from the Preſident and Council at Bombay or from us; but you will nevertheleſs continue the preparations which you have been making for the equipment of the detachment under your command, until they ſhall be completed; and we further direct, that you hold it in readineſs to march on immediate warning.

We are, &c.

Gentlemen,

We have received your letter of the 2d ultimo.

Leſt the orders which you inform us you have ſent to Colonel Leſlie ſhould have been intercepted, or by any accident prevented from reaching him, we have confirmed them by injunctions to halt with the detachment under his command where he now is, on the other ſide of the Jumna; but to hold himſelf in readineſs to continue his march on immediate notice.

We are, &c.

Sir,

We have this day received your duplicate letter of the 12th ultimo, encloſing one from the Preſident and Council of Bombay, dated the 2d of the ſame month.

For want of the copy of Mr. Lewis's proceedings, which are ſaid to be encloſed in your letter, we are much at a loſs to comprehend the facts which you allude to; but we obſerve, with great concern upon the whole, that the new Miniſters, by a dilatory and evaſive conduct, have already furniſhed grounds to diſtruſt the ſincerity of the intentions which they had profeſſed to you: we therefore wait with impatience for more clear and deciſive advices of their proceedings; and we requeſt you will not delay to acquaint us with them by every opportunity.

In conſequence of the letter from the Preſident and Council of Bombay, wherein they inform us that they had thought it proper to ſend orders to Colonel Leſlie not to advance any further with the detachment under his command, until they ſhould be able to judge with more certainty of the diſpoſition of the new Government, and to furniſh him with inſtructions for his conduct; we have confirmed theſe orders, by directing him to halt accordingly where he now is, but to hold himſelf in readineſs to continue his march on immediate notice.

Letter from Bombay.

Gentlemen,

ENCLOSED we have the honour to forward a triplicate of our laſt addreſs, dated the 20th inſtant.

Having ſince received ſome material advices from Mr. Moſtyn, we now forward copies thereof by a ſhip bound to Madras, the conveyance by ſea being at this ſeaſon the moſt expeditious.

We alſo encloſe copies of two French letters which lately fell into our hands: they are from the Commander of the French ſnow, mentioned in our letter of the 20th

Appendix. No. 62.

January to have arrived at Choul, and having been put on board a veſſel at Damaun, of whoſe deſtination he was ignorant, came into our poſſeſſion, after having been carried to Buſſorah and back again. As you will now have theſe letters before you, it is needleſs for us to make any comments.

The Reſident at Tellicherry has lately adviſed us, that he has received certain information that the number of men landed at Mangalore from the Brilliante was only 12 artillery, 12 infantry, and one officer, inſtead of two hundred men as before adviſed.

We have received the new cypher from Captain Roddam; and are, with reſpect, &c.

Extract of Bengal Secret Conſultations, the 15th June 1778.

PRESENT,

The Honourable Warren Haſtings, Governor General, Preſident;

Richard Barwell, Philip Francis, Edward Wheler, } Eſquires.

RECEIVED the following letter from Colonel Leſlie:

Gentlemen,

I had the honour to addreſs you on the 20th inſtant, with the information of the firſt diviſion of this detachment having paſſed the Jumna; the park of artillery, magazine, ſtores, &c. with two battalions of the 2d diviſion and the Nabob's cavalry, croſſed a few days following; and I have been delayed commencing my march from Calpee by the negociations the Maratta Chiefs have been carrying on with me for the re-eſtabliſhment of peace. This day I have received their final acquieſcence to my free paſſage through their country, and their promiſed aid of proviſions; for their faithful performance of which I am to be attended by a perſon of rank, and to retain poſſeſſion of the fort of Calpee, ſo long as it may be neceſſary for the convenience of my communication with theſe provinces.

The terms upon which theſe matters are adjuſted are contained in the encloſed Paper, which I now lay before you, and ſhall be happy if in this endeavour to effect the ſpirit of your inſtructions I may merit your approbation.

It was my intention to have advanced a part of the troops to-morrow morning; but an expreſs letter, which I have received by this day's poſt from the Honourable the Preſident and Council of Bombay, and tranſmitted by your Reſident at Benares, poſitively forbids my advance, as unneceſſary in the preſent ſtate of affairs at Poonah, and directing me to wait their further orders. Under cover I have the honour to lay before you a copy of their letter. Your inſtructions, requiring my ſtrict compliance with the orders of the Preſident and Council of Bombay on my croſſing the Jumna, entirely prohibits my taking any meaſures upon the preſumption of what may be your ſentiments on the preſent occaſion; but as the ſituation of Calpee will not admit of my taking poſt there ſo long as it may be before I receive their promiſed inſtructions, I ſhall extend my front to the banks of the Betowa river, about 10 coſs on the road to Chatterpore, in which ſituation I ſhall be moſt conveniently ſituated for putting in execution any orders you may pleaſe to honour me with, and I ſhall be ready to purſue my march if the Preſidency of Bombay ſhould require it. I eſteem my advance thus far from Calpee neceſſary to ſupport the appearance of my progreſs, that the Chief of Berar may not conclude himſelf neglected, and I ſhall addreſs him to this purport: the preſumptuous Chiefs of this diſtrict will alſo be convinced by this ſtep, that their efforts have not in any ſhape tended to retard the march of the detachment. I earneſtly ſolicit your directions for my conduct in this ſituation of affairs, and whatever orders I may receive in the interim from the Bombay Preſidency ſhall be complied with, and immediate notice thereof tranſmitted to you.

I have the honour, &c. &c.

Head Quarters, Calpee, 30th May 1778. (Signed) Matt^w Leſlie.

Tranſlation of a letter from Colonel Matt^w Leſlie to Gangadhur Pundit, dated the 27th May 1778.

Upon my approach to Calpee I wrote to you and your brother Balagee, informing you that I ſhould proceed to the ſouthward through your country; that I had no hoſtile intentions towards you; that I ſhould be careful in preventing my troops and their followers from committing depredations or moleſting the inhabitants during my march through your country; that I required your friendly aſſiſtance in ſupplying me with grain, and ſuch other neceſſaries as I might require of you for the ſervice of my Camp; and that whatever neceſſaries I might be ſupplied with, I would pay a proper price for them.

In your anſwers to my letters, you expreſs the higheſt reſpect for the Engliſh, likewiſe your inclination to encreaſe that friendſhip which you had before eſtabliſhed with them; and you ſeemed happy that this event would afford you an opportunity of evincing your readineſs to oblige the Engliſh Government.

After ſuch very friendly expreſſions and aſſurances, I little expected the reception of an enemy on croſſing my troops at Kulpee Gaut: as I have already given you my ſentiments very fully on the conduct of your people towards me, I judge a repetition unneceſſary; but as you have ſolicited me to make you acquainted with ſuch circumſtances as I may deem material for my ſervice, I do therefore ſtipulate the following articles:

1ſt. That my troops are to have a free and unmoleſted paſſage through your country.

2d. That you will cauſe the troops to be ſupplied with proviſions and other neceſſaries during their march through your country, for which a proper price ſhall be given.

3d. That the communication to and from my Camp be kept open and protected, and that you afford every aſſiſtance required of you on this ſubject.

4th. As your people of your own accord did evacuate the town and fort of Kulpee, I am now in poſſeſſion of both; I therefore judge it expedient to retain the fort by placing a ſmall guard in it, as a ſecurity for the performance of your promiſes to me; I likewiſe require a man of credit, reſpect, and of your confidence, who ſhall proceed with me; and if upon my arrival at Chatterpore I ſhall have experienced the effects of your friendly intentions and readineſs to give me aſſiſtance, I ſhall then direct the return of your friend, and order the guard to be withdrawn from the fort, and you put in poſſeſſion of it.

5th. That no bodies of your troops are at any time to appear near my line of march; if they do, I ſhall conclude that their intentions are hoſtile.

Theſe are my demands, and as I cannot doubt your good intentions towards the welfare of your country, I ſhould ſuppoſe you will immediately comply with them. I once more aſſure you, that my intentions towards you and your country are moſt friendly, and I ſhall be attentive in preventing my troops and their followers from committing the ſmalleſt irregularities during my march through your country: I want not the aſſiſtance of troops, as I have no hoſtile intentions towards any one.

(Signed) P. Hay,
P. Tranſlator.

To the Officer at Calpee in command of the troops under orders for Bombay.

Sir,

From the preſent ſituation of affairs in this quarter, we think it neceſſary to deſire that you will not advance further towards Bombay until you hear again from us.

We are, &c.

Bombay Caſtle, 22d April 1778. (Signed) Wm Hornby, &c. Council.

Reſolved, that the following letter be written to Colonel Leſlie:

Sir,

We have received your letter of the 30th ultimo.

We approve of the intention you expreſs to move the detachment to the banks of the Betowa river, for the purpoſe of encamping them. We leave the choice of the ground in that ſituation to your judgment, but forbid you to advance any further than the line on which you propoſe to encamp, till you receive orders to that effect.

We alſo think it neceſſary to forbid the application of the treaſure conſtituting the military cheſt for the expedition, which was ſent to you from Lucknow, to the pay or any other expences of the detachment, until you ſhall receive orders either from the Preſidency and Council of Bombay or from us, to continue your march; but in the mean time you will cauſe the diſburſements of the Paymaſter to be made from the uſual ſupplies, which the Reſident at the Nabob's Court has been directed regularly to furniſh you with.

Fort William, 15th June 1778. We are, &c.

Agreed, That the following letter be written to Mr. Middleton:

Sir,

Having ordered Colonel Leſlie with the detachment under his command to halt on the banks of the river Betowa till further orders, we think it proper that the treaſure conſtituting the military cheſt for the intended expedition, ſhould be reſerved unapplied till he may find it neceſſary to proceed; we therefore direct that you continue to furniſh the regular and neceſſary ſupplies for the pay and expences of this corps during the continuance of its ſtay in that place.

We have received your letter of the 29th ultimo.

APPENDIX, Nos. 65 & 66.

Bengal Secret Conſultations, dated 29th June 1778.

PRESENT,

The Honourable Warren Haſtings, Governor General, Preſident;

Richard Barwell,
Philip Francis,
Edward Wheler,
} Eſquires.

RECEIVED the following letter from Bombay:

Gentlemen,

We have been favoured with your letter of the 6th ultimo, encloſing copy of your inſtructions to Colonel Leſlie.

Our letters of the 2d and 9th inſtant have been already forwarded in duplicate.

In the firſt of theſe letters we acquainted you of having directed the Commander of the Bengal detachment not to advance without further advice from us; and in the latter, of our having taken off that reſtraint, and directed him to move forward agreeable to his inſtructions from you. Appendix Nos. 65 & 66.

When the late change was effected in the Poonah Government, we at firſt entertained hopes it would be followed by all the good conſequences our propoſed meaſures were intended to produce, but we more particularly depended that the French influence at the Maratta Court would be deſtroyed by that event: for theſe and the other reaſons mentioned in our letter of the 2d inſtant, we judged it beſt to ſtop the march of the Bengal detachment till we could form a more certain judgment of the diſpoſition of the adminiſtration.

Having indulged theſe hopes as far as probability will warrant, we think we can no longer in prudence take our meaſures upon ſuch expectations; and your letter of the 23d March more fully explaining your views, and giving us authority to demand proper explanations from the Durbar on certain points, we then judged it expedient to order the Bengal detachment to advance; which from the nature of your orders prior to that letter, we did not think could anſwer any end adequate to the expence and danger of the march; for we beg leave to obſerve, that after the plan for Ragoba had miſcarried, it was impoſſible for us to defeat the deſigns of the French, and not to break the Treaty of Poonah.

Every letter we have received from Poonah ſince the revolution, and the uniform tenor of the conduct of the new Adminiſtration, evidently prove that they ſtill mean to continue the ſame line of evaſive conduct ſo long purſued by that Government; we doubt not but your advices from Mr. Moſtyn will have impreſſed you with the ſame opinion. Though the executive power is tranſferred from Nanah to Moraba, the former is ſtill in office, and a member of the Durbar: the latter, as far as we can judge, ſeems inclined to tread in the footſteps of his predeceſſor, and unwilling to part with any ſhare of his power to Ragoba, may ſeek to ſecure the whole to himſelf by the ſame means. Monſieur St. Lubin is ſtill permitted to remain at Poonah, although his diſmiſſion was the firſt object of our inſtructions to Mr. Moſtyn after the change in the Adminiſtration took place, and he received every ſatisfaction on that head that promiſes could give, ſo long ago as the 10th of laſt March. Notwithſtanding the requeſt then made in public Durbar to Mr. Moſtyn, to accompany their Agent to Bombay, with propoſals reſpecting Ragoba, we find by his lateſt advices, that they have been only trifling with him, nor have they to his knowledge yet taken one ſtep towards ſettling that buſineſs, though the ſeaſon is now ſo late. The treaty ſtill remains on the ſame footing on which it has ſtood theſe two years paſt, nor has the new Government taken any meaſure whatever for fulfilling the unexecuted articles.

Such being the ſituation of affairs, we could not, with your orders before us, wait any longer in expectation of propoſals from Poonah; we have, therefore, given Mr. Moſtyn inſtructions to the following purport, being exactly agreeable to the directions contained in your letters of the 23d of March.

Firſt, We have directed him in the name of this Government, and under your authority, to call upon the new Adminiſtration to declare, expreſsly whether they conſider the Maratta State as bound by the Treaty of Poonah, and to pledge their own faith to it.

Secondly, We have directed him, agreeable to the ſaid treaty, to demand immediate poſſeſſion of a country of three complete lacks of rupees, near or adjoining to Broach, in the manner ſtipulated by the fifth Article, and in caſe the Miniſters ſhall refuſe to comply with this demand, we further directed him to declare their refuſal to be a violation of the treaty.

It is neceſſary to obſerve, that we directed Mr. Moſtyn to ſignify to the Miniſters at the time he made his demands, that we were willing to receive, in full completion of the 5th Article, a country that will produce to the Company three lacks of rupees a year in the groſs revenue, revenue, without any allowance being made for the charges of collection.

Appendix. Nos. 65 & 66.

Thirdly, We have directed him to acquaint the Miniſters that we have orders from you to keep poſſeſſion of the countries ceded to the Honourable Company by Futty Sing, ſince they have failed in producing the proofs required by the treaty; that Futty Sing Guicawar did not poſſeſs power or authority to make ſuch ceſſions.

Fourth, We directed him to make a proper remonſtrance, agreeable to the terms of your letter, againſt the countenance afforded to the Chevalier St. Lubin, againſt his being permitted to continue at Poonah, notwithſtanding the promiſes we have received ſince the late change in the Government, and to demand from them a clear and ſatisfactory explanation of their intentions with reſpect to the French, declaring to them that the Governor General and Council will take ſuch meaſures as prudence ſhall dictate for the future ſafety of the Company's intereſt, and poſſeſſions committed to their charge.

In this place we think it our duty to requeſt to be informed what meaſures you propoſe to purſue, in caſe their anſwer on this occaſion ſhould not prove ſatisfactory, or their future conduct ſhould give us reaſon for apprehenſion, as our being furniſhed with timely inſtructions may be of the utmoſt importance.

Fifthly, As we have experienced ſo much equivocation and delay in the conduct of the Poonah Government, we thought it neceſſary, in addition to the points laid down by you, to direct Mr. Moſtyn to deliver his demands in writing; and at the ſame time to acquaint the Miniſters, that we expected an immediate and explicit anſwer likewiſe in writing; but that if ſuch an anſwer was not returned within fourteen days from the time of the delivery of our demands, we ſhould conſider any further evaſion or delay as a refuſal, and take our meaſures accordingly.

The ſettlement made by Colonel Upton reſpecting Jambooſeer having been agreed to by us, rendered it unneceſſary to make the ſecond of the demands enjoined in your letter. You will pleaſe to bear in mind, that our claim on Jambooſeer has been encreaſed by the further demands for an equivalent for the loſs the Company have ſuſtained by the delay of the Miniſters in making over the country of three lacks, and for reſtitution of the loſs ſuſtained by the merchants concerned in the Aurora, which we have fixed as charges on the revenues of that province.

The reſolutions we have taken, will put the conduct of the new Adminiſtration to a clear teſt; and their anſwer will enable us to form a judgment of the footing we are to be on with that Government.

The anſwer Mr. Moſtyn has received from the Durbar to his application for paſſports and ſupplies for the Bengal detachment, amounting to a denial, we gave him directions, which he had anticipated, to make a direct application for that purpoſe to Tookajee Holkar himſelf, and to Mhadjee Scindy; to both of whom the Preſident has likewiſe written, and given them the aſſurances directed in your letter. Mr. Lewis's report, tranſmitted to you by Mr. Moſtyn, will place the conduct of the durbar on this point in a clear light, and give you a further idea of their views and intentions. In a letter juſt received, he further acquaints us, that being uncertain which route the army would take, whether by the road of Ugein and Indoor, or through the Toll Bopall country, which lies upon the Nerbudda, to the eaſtward of the two former, and is the road generally taken by the Pattamars, he had, in order to provide as much as poſſible for our troops having an unmoleſted march, written to the Nabob of that country, and had been aſſured by his vackeel at Poonah, that there was not the leaſt doubt of the Nabob readily complying with his requeſt.

We have acquainted Colonel Leſlie with our proceedings reſpecting the paſſports, and directed Mr. Moſtyn to communicate conſtantly with him. We have alſo, with a further view of expediting his march, directed Colonel Leſlie to correſpond with Mr. Moſtyn, and ſhall ourſelves give him every intelligence and advice that can be of ſervice.

We beg leave to ſuggeſt to you, that if on any future occaſion it ſhould be neceſſary to ſupply us with a reinforcement of troops, the eaſieſt and beſt method would be to ſend troops hither directly from Madras, which can be replaced from your eſtabliſhment if neceſſary.

Mr. Moſtyn has been inſtructed to obtain, if poſſible, a copy of the engagement entered into by Nana Furneſe with the Chevalier St. Lubin, and a knowledge of the meaſures which may have been taken for its execution. The intelligence tranſmitted in our laſt letter, adds much ſtrength to our ſuſpicions, that a grant has been given or promiſed them for the port of Choul.

The route by Mazulipatam appearing to be the moſt expeditious for the conveyance of advices, we beg leave to recommend to you to tranſmit your original letters through that city.

We are, &c. &c.

No. 66.

Bengal Secret Conſultations, 29th June 1778.

Received the following letter from Mr. Moſtyn:

Honourable Sir, and Gentlemen,

My laſt reſpects waited on you under the 12th inſtant. On the 13th I received an anſwer to the letter: I therein informed you I had written to Moraba, on the ſubject of paſſports for the troops you are ſending to Bombay, telling me, that as theſe troops are coming on account of the French, he had ſent for Monſieur St. Lubin, in order to diſpatch him; after which he ſays, he ſees no neceſſity for the troops continuing their march, or for his granting duſtucks. Although this letter is no direct reply to my requeſt, I could not but conſider it as a refuſal: however, to avoid if poſſible all future altercation on this buſineſs, I thought it my duty to write Moraba a ſecond letter, deſiring he would re-conſider the matter, and again declaring him anſwerable for any ill conſequences which might enſue from his refuſal; telling him, as the troops had undoubtedly begun their march, I had not authority to countermand them, nor would the want of paſſports ſtop their proceedings. To this I received Moraba's anſwer on the 16th, referring me to his laſt.

Finding from Moraba's anſwer that there was no proſpect of obtaining paſſports from the Durbar, and as the march of our troops may probably lay through Madjee and Tookajee Holkar's countries, I embraced the opportunity of a perſon I could truſt going to Scindy, to write him a letter, requeſting he would favour me with orders to his officers for our forces having a free paſſage through Ugein, as well as their being ſupplied with a friendly Buzar; and that no time might be loſt in conveying them, I encloſed Scindy a letter to the commanding officer of our troops, which I requeſted he would forward with the above orders. I did intend to have made a like application to Holkar as ſoon as I could find a proper channel through which to apply to him, being apprehenſive a direct application might have given offence to this Durbar: however, my ſuperiors having lately directed me to make immediate application both to Scindy and Holkar for paſſports, I wrote the latter under the 24th inſtant, and am in hourly expectation of receiving anſwers from each. It being uncertain which route our troops will take, whether by the road of Ugein, Indoor, or through the Toll Bhopall country, which lays upon the Nurbedah to the eaſtward of the two former, and is the road our Pattamars generally take; to provide, therefore, as much as poſſible for our troops having an unmoleſted march, I have written a letter to the Nabob of that place, which I prevailed on his vackeel here to forward with one from himſelf, requeſting, in caſe they take that route, he will grant them a free free paſſage, and afford them every aſſiſtance in his power; which the vackeel aſſures me, he makes no doubt his maſter will readily comply with.

On the 13th Monſieur St. Lubin went to camp, and the next day had a meeting with Moraba, who then told him that as the Engliſh had taken amiſs his ſtaying here ſo long, it was neceſſary he ſhould go away for a time; but that he might depend this ſhould not occaſion any difference in the friendſhip between the French and this Government. On the 17th in the afternoon, Morabah, Buchabah, Chintoo Wittul, and Cruſtrow Belol, paid Monſieur St. Lubin a viſit at his tent; and after ſtaying with him about half an hour, returned to Moraba's tent, whither Monſieur St. Lubin followed them ſhortly after, and ſtaid with them ſome hours. Morabah then made him a preſent, and diſpatched him. On the 20th Nanah came down from the fort, where he has reſided for ſome time paſt, to pay a viſit to Sacaram Bapoo at Bury, when they ſent for Monſieur St. Lubin, in order to take leave; and he accordingly waited on them. Notwithſtanding theſe appearances of Monſieur St. Lubin being diſpatched, it is beyond a doubt with me, that he has no real intentions of leaving Poonah, or at leaſt if he does, that he will ſpeedily return; and that the Durbar are in hopes, by publicly diſpatching him, to lull us into a belief of their good intentions, whilſt they have recourſe to the French for aſſiſtance, a door for which has already been opened by Monſieur St. Lubin's negociations with Nanah, and which have been lately taken up by Morabah, as your Honour, &c. will pleaſe to obſerve by the encloſed copy and tranſlate of a letter I have received from a perſon at camp, who, from the knowledge I have of him, I do not think would deceive me. The intelligence contained in this letter, of Morabah's tranſactions with Monſieur St. Lubin, has been ſince confirmed by two perſons, whoſe employs in the Government ſervice are ſuch as to afford them frequent opportunities of knowing what paſſes.

Conformable to my Superior's orders, I ſhall deliver a remonſtrance to the Durbar on the ſubject of the French, and make a demand for the immediate compliance of the treaty of Proondur, as ſoon as they can be properly tranſlated into the Maratta language. I have already acquainted you, Gentlemen, that I am aſſured the French have not got a grant for the port of Choul; but by the report of Mr. Lewis's proceedings at camp, forwarded in my addreſs of the 12th, it appears, that Cruſtrow Belol confeſſed before him at the Durbar, a promiſe thereof had been made Monſieur St. Lubin; and I am convinced the French will not only get that, but much more, the moment the French can afford the promiſed aſſiſtance. Although I have hitherto failed in my endeavours to obtain a copy of the engagements entered into between Nanah Furneſe and Monſieur St. Lubin, I have lately been fortunate enough to procure the encloſed copies of ſome letters written by the latter to the viceroy of Goa and the Governor of Damaun, which prove, that he had made ſome agreements of the kind. I am not acquainted with any ſteps having been taken by the Durbar for the carrying this ſcheme into execution, excepting Monſieur St. Lubin being permitted to remain here, in direct violation of the moſt ſolemn aſſurances to us that he ſhould be ſent away, and the preſent conduct of the Durbar.

On the 27th I received a note from a perſon at camp, informing me, that in conſequence of our troops coming from Bengal, and a report of Hyder's army marching this way, the Durbar had determined on ſending Chintoo Whittul and Gopal Naique Tumbuckur to meet me, and requeſt I would proceed to Bombay. They accordingly viſited me yeſterday, and informed me they were ſent purpoſely to requeſt I would accompany the former on the buſineſs the Durbar had already ſpoken to me about. I replied, that I did not ſee any neceſſity for my going, unleſs the Durbar would explain themſelves, which was now become the more neceſſary from the evaſive manner they had hitherto acted in this affair. To this they gave me the ſame anſwer the Durbar had before done, that it was to aſſure Ragoba they were his ſincere friends. I immediately replied, that I conſidered their preſent requeſt as a mere fineſſe, intended only to ſtop the march of the troops we expected from Bengal, and to gain time; for had they been ſincere, the Durbar would long ſince have diſpatched me on this buſineſs, and ſent Monſieur St. Lubin away, but that I was convinced, from the extraordinary attention Morabah and the Durbar had paid him, the former had taken up Nanah's plan, and entered into ſome engagements with the French. This they poſitively denied, though they acknowledged Monſieur St. Lubin had made a tender thereof to Morabah, who told him, that as long as this Government continued in friendſhip with the Engliſh they would not enter into an alliance with any other European nation, and that Morabah had abſolutely diſpatched him. I told him, that I conſidered his being publicly diſpatched as done with a view to blind us, and perhaps ſome others; but that I was poſſeſſed of what I deemed a ſufficient proof of my allegation, producing the encloſed copy of a letter written by Monſieur St. Lubin to the Viceroy of Goa, under the 26th April, which I had a few hours before luckily procured. They anſwered, it was very poſſible Monſieur St. Lubin might have written in that manner; but they ſaid, they defied me to produce any writing from the Durbar: upon which I obſerved, that it was the art of this Durbar not to give any thing under their hands, that they might have an opportunity of denying their own words. It was therefore for this reaſon, before I would give credit to Monſieur St. Lubin being finally diſpatched, or my promiſe to accompany Chintoo Wittul to Bombay, that I inſiſted on the Durbar giving me a writing, with their Sicca affixed, declaring they had not at preſent, nor would in future have, ſo long as they continued in friendſhip with the Engliſh, any treaty with the French, nor ſuffer them to trade in any of the Maratta Ports, being exactly conformable to the promiſes made me by Sacaram Bapoo when I was diſpatched by the Durbar to Bombay in Auguſt laſt. This they promiſed to deliver me, together with a letter for the Preſident, accounting for my being detained ſo long here; and requeſted I would ſend the Linguiſt with Tumbuckur to camp to bring them. The Linguiſt accordingly ſet off this morning; and if he returns in time with the above paper, I ſhall accompany Chintoo Wittul, who leaves Poonah to-morrow, otherwiſe will follow him as ſoon as I receive the paper.

Appendix. No. 66.

From the information contained in the letter from camp, mentioned in the foregoing paragraph, it appears to me that this ſudden embaſſy has been ſet on foot in conſequence of Hyder's army advancing this way ſince Hurry Punt's retreat, and our forces coming from Bengal, by which they judge we are determined to be no longer trifled with, and that they are in hopes thereby to amuſe us until the rains ſet in, which will cauſe a delay of four or five months, by which time, if ever, they ſuppoſe Monſieur St. Lubin can perform his promiſes. That the Durbar have already ſhewn their willingneſs to enter into engagements with the French, highly prejudicial to our Honourable Employer's intereſt, all accounts I have received agree; and though I do not imagine it will be in Monſieur St. Lubin's power to comply fully with his engagements, yet it is poſſible the French may be able to bring ſuch a force as to give them the ſuperior influence in this Durbar, the dangerous conſequences of which are too plain to need my pointing out.

Madjee Scindy is come from Rimutpore to Javer, a village within eight coſs of Proonder. You will already have perceived, Gentlemen, from Mr. Lewis's report, that Holkar had been very urgent with Morabah to keep his engagement for bringing Rageba into Government; he ſtill continues preſſing Morabah on this ſubject, in which, from the beſt information I can procure, Scindy heartily concurs; and it appears to me that theſe two Maratta officers are by no means ſatisfied with the preſent conduct of the Durbar. Hurry Punt has been for ſome time paſt near Pundapore.

Since writing the above I have received a letter from Madjee Scindy, informing me that he has forwarded my letter to the Commanding Officer of our troops, with an order to his own officers for their free paſſage through his country, and that he had forwarded another to me by one of his own Hircarrahs; the latter, however, is not yet come to hand.

Tranſlate of a letter from a perſon at Proonder, dated the 21ſt Rabellacor, and received the 19th May 1778.

At noon I received your note by Shahjee, and obſerved the contents thereof. Morabah has had two Councils regarding the French. He told Monſieur St. Lubin, that he had made an agreement with Nanah to bring 2000 Europeans within fifteen months, which he has not yet complied with; but that if it is in his power to fulfil that engagement, Morabah deſired he would ſend for them with ammunition, ſo as to be here before the battalions can arrive from Calcutta, which Monſieur St. Lubin has agreed to, and diſpatched a letter expreſs to his place.

The contents of the letter wrote by the Durbar to Bengal, are as follows:—"Colonel Upton concluded a "treaty between our two Governments; where then is "the neceſſity of your ſending troops into my country? "If it is on account of Monſieur St. Lubin remaining here, "I have, in conſideration of our friendſhip, diſpatched "him; and you may depend, I never will do any thing "that ſhall injure you. The French brought goods "here to ſell, which is the reaſon of their ſtaying ſo "long, but he now intends to go away, and I have ac-"cordingly given him leave: I therefore wiſh you "would recall your forces, and prevent a breach in our "friendſhip. I hope you will pay no attention to what "the Bombay Gentlemen may have already written, or "ſhall hereafter write you on this ſubject. With reſpect "to Ragoba, I have determined to bring him here; "but as Hurry Punt is coming hither with a large force, "it is neceſſary he ſhould be conſulted on it; for ſhould "Ragoba be brought without his concurrence, it will "probably create ſome diſturbances. He will ſoon be "here, and I ſhall ſatisfy the troops that are with him; "after which Ragoba ſhall be ſent for. I deſire you will "write to the Bombay Gentlemen, not to make any "diſturbances."

The following is the contents of a letter written by this Durbar to Europe:—"There is friendſhip ſubſiſting "between our Governments; beſides, a treaty was "concluded with the Gentlemen of Bengal, of which "you are acquainted, and with which I am complying. "Notwithſtanding this, the Bengal Gentlemen are "ſending their forces into my country, which will "make a difference in our friendſhip. This is not right; "I therefore hope you will ſend poſitive orders both to "Bengal and Bombay on this ſubject."

The following is the contents of a letter from the Durbar to the Nabob:—"The Engliſh are ſending "forces from Bengal with bad intentions; ſhould they "make any diſturbances, I ſhall ſend for your forces, "and hope you will aſſiſt me with your army. The "Engliſh alſo intend to bring Ragoba by force, which "will cauſe a diſpute with them; therefore, in con-"ſideration of our friendſhip, it is neceſſary you ſhould "attend with your whole army."

Monſieur St. Lubin is diſpatched, and Morabah wants him to go away, in order to haſten the troops he has promiſed; but he ſays he will remain here, and ſend a man with letters for him, This they are at preſent conſidering about.

A true copy of the tranſlate.

Minute of Mr. Francis.

It ſeems to me that the following paragraph in the letter from Bombay will require particular conſideration: "In this place we think it our duty to requeſt to be in-"formed what meaſures you propoſe to purſue in caſe "their anſwer on this occaſion ſhould not prove ſatis-"factory, or their future conduct ſhould give no reaſon "for apprehenſion; as our being furniſhed with timely "inſtructions may be of the utmoſt importance;" and I wait to hear the Governor General's ſentiments upon it. There is another part of the letter in which I would beg leave to propoſe a paragraph in reply:—"We beg leave to ſuggeſt to you, that if on any future "occaſion it ſhould be neceſſary to ſupply us with a "reinforcement of troops, the eaſieſt and beſt method "would be to ſend troops hither directly from Madras, "which can be replaced from your eſtabliſhment if ne-"ceſſary." On the 2d February I ſubmitted my opinion to the Board on this point, in the following words:—"Suppoſing it a point determined by the "majority, that a reinforcement of troops ſhould be "ſent to Bombay, I think it had better go from the "coaſt, and if neceſſary be replaced from hence, than "directly from Bengal to Bombay; on this principle, I "yield to the propoſition." On the 23d February, I again urged this opinion in the following words:—"If a reinforcement muſt be ſent to Bombay, I beg "leave to repeat my opinion, that it may be ſpared "with more ſafety, and proceed with greater expedition "from Fort St. George." I would now propoſe, that we ſhould tell the Preſidency of Bombay, that we are convinced of the propriety of their opinions in this particular, and conformably to their advice, if any future occaſion ſhould make it indiſpenſably neceſſary to ſend them a reinforcement of troops, they ſhall be ſent directly from Madras, and not from this place. I do not mean this motion to be taken into conſideration now, but defer it till the anſwer to the letter ſhall be propoſed.

READ the following letter from Colonel Leſlie:

Col. Leſlie, 9th June.

Gentlemen,

In my former letters I had the honour to acquaint you, that I deemed the poſſeſſion of the fort of Calpee neceſſary, both for ſecuring my communication with the Korah province, and enſuring the accompliſhments of the engagements the Maratta Chiefs of theſe diſtricts had entered into with me. With this view I ſolicited the orders of the officer commanding the temporary brigade, that I might employ ſuch part of the battalion of Sepoys, Sepoys, commanded by Captain Rawſterne, which was ſtationed in the neighbourhood of Toonga, as this ſervice might require. He accordingly put Captain Rawſterne under my command, and I have directed that officer to take poſt at Kalpee, with ſuch part of his battalion as are not required with the Aumil, and to wait there my further orders. I ſhall detain him there no longer than I may conceive the poſſeſſion of the fort neceſſary to the ſervice of the expedition; and I hope to receive your concurrence to this meaſure.

I am ſorry to inform you of the demiſe of Captain James Crawford, who commanded the 4th battalion of Sepoys, who expired ſuddenly, the 3d inſtant, of a violent fever. His character and abilities as an officer make him a ſevere loſs to the ſervice in general, and to this expedition in particular.

I have the honour, &c. &c.

Head Quarters, Jelallpore, 9th June 1778. (Signed) Matth Leſlie.

The Governor General—As it appears from the poſtſcript of a duplicate letter received from Mr. Moſtyn that he had "received the paſſport from Madajee Scindia, "which ſhould be immediately forwarded to Colonel Leſlie," as it is poſſible that Colonel Leſlie may chooſe the route of Malva, which appertains to the jagheers of Madajee Scindia and Tuckajee Holkar, I muſt beg leave to move, that poſitive orders be ſent to Colonel Leſlie, to march through the province of Berar, and on no account to take any other road, unleſs he ſhall receive a direct and expreſs refuſal from Moodaja Booſla, the Chief of Berar, to admit the detachment within his territories. As that Chief may be more ſafely truſted than any other power lying between this and the other ſide of India, on account of the long and friendly intercourſe which has ſubſiſted between his family and this Government, and the detachment will continue, during a conſiderable part of its progreſs, within the reach of our orders for its recal in caſe of neceſſity, by its line of march in that route inclining to the borders of Bengal, until it ſhall have reached the centre of Berar; but if it ſhould have proceeded by the way of Malva, it may be difficult to recall it before it ſhall have marched too far; this will be better underſtood by an inſpection of the map than by words. As an additional motive for this propoſition, it is to be obſerved, that on the firſt application to Moodajee Booſla, for permiſſion to the army to march through his country, he not only expreſſed an inſtant compliance, but wrote letters immediately to Colonel Leſlie inviting him to come by the way of his country, and ſent a perſon of conſequence with a military eſcort to the banks of the Nurbudda, which are the borders of his dominions, to receive and conduct the detachment. With Madajee Scindia this Government has had no connection, and he has been always repreſented as a partizan of Nana Furneſe, which may render his offers ſuſpicious, although I have lately received a letter from him, being the firſt that he has written to me ſince I have been in this Government, containing profeſſions and overtures of friendſhip.

Agreed to the Governor General's motion: And,

Reſolved, That the following letter be immediately written to Colonel Leſlie:

To Colonel Leſlie.

Sir,

By a letter which we have juſt received from Mr. Moſtyn, we underſtand that he has procured and tranſmitted to you a paſſport for the detachment under your command, to proceed through the dominions of Madajee Scindia. As it is poſſible that this circumſtance may have induced you to prefer the route of Malva to that of Berar, we think it neceſſary to give you poſitive injunctions to purſue your march through the province of Berar, and by no means to follow any other road, unleſs you ſhall receive a direct and poſitive refuſal from Moodajee Booſla, the Chief of that diſtrict, to admit the troops within his territories, which, from the long and friendly intercourſe ſubſiſting between us, and from the intention of compliance expreſſed in letters from him, we cannot ſuppoſe will be the caſe. PRESENT,

The Honourable Warren Haſtings, Governor General, Preſident;

Richard Barwell, Philip Francis, Edward Wheler, } Eſquires.

The Board think it proper, before they proceed any further in the conſideration of this buſineſs, to annul the letter to Colonel Leſlie prepared yeſterday and now laid before them for ſignature, and to direct him, on the grounds of the information now received, to proceed with the detachment under his command to Berar, a country on his road to Bombay, which is at the ſame time contiguous to Bengal, and convenient for the return of the troops, if it ſhould appear expedient to recal them for the defence of the provinces. The following letters are therefore written to Colonel Leſlie, and ordered to be diſpatched to him this evening by expreſs Pattamars.

APPENDIX, No. 68.

Extract of Bengal Secret Conſultations, the 9th July 1778.

PRESENT,

The Honourable Warren Haſtings, Governor General, Preſident;

Richard Barwell, Philip Francis, Edward Wheler, } Eſquires.

THE Governor General delivers in the following minute:

I ſtate the war with France as a fact of undoubted certainty. It is the part of this Government to conſider in what manner it is likely to affect the Britiſh poſſeſſions in India, and to provide accordingly for their ſecurity. This muſt comprize and limit all our operations. In the view of this opening ſcene, the relative conditions of the parties engaged in it will merit our firſt attention, and cannot fail to engage it by the ſtriking contraſt which appears between them; and I mention it becauſe I think it an eſſential point in the conſideration of our firſt and perhaps our future meaſures.

Great as the power is which the Britiſh Nation has acquired in India, compared with that of its rival, its general line of action is and muſt be purely defenſive: it can gain, the French loſe nothing. Even the capture of Pondicherry, and of the other poſſeſſions of the French, will yield no poſitive advantage to the Engliſh, although it will deprive the French of their inſtruments of attack, and thereby affect our own ſafety.

From this point, therefore, all our concluſions muſt originate, and all our meaſures be ſo laid as to obviate or to oppoſe the probable deſigns of our enemies. Their firſt attempts will be againſt Bombay or Fort Saint George, Bengal will be their laſt, at leaſt their diſtant object.

The Preſidency of Fort Saint George poſſeſſes in itſelf the complete means of defence; we can add nothing to them but in the effects of our political arrangements; we have already yielded it a large ſupply of treaſure. It requires no other preſent aid.

Bombay

Appendix. No. 68.

Bombay requires every thing. Weak in itſelf and intangled rather than ſtrengthened by its diſſipated poſſeſſions on the Continent, it can only defend itſelf againſt a direct invaſion, and to that it is perhaps equal if it has to contend with the French alone; but this is unlikely. The laſt advices from Poonah contain ſuch evidence as the event itſelf muſt ſoon refute or realize, of an engagement actually made by the French Miniſter there, to bring a large military force to Poonah, profeſſedly deſigned to act with that Government againſt Ragoba, who at that time reſided at Bombay under the Engliſh protection.

In effect this is the obvious policy which the French ought to adopt if they ſeek to regain their influence in India, and it is no longer to be doubted that they have adopted it. They have beſides an ancient claim to the alliance of Nizam Ally, which beſides is enſured by their accidental union in a common cauſe, the defence of the ruling Adminiſtration at Poonah; of which his letters to Mr. Rumbold and the Nabob of Arcot afford an undoubted proof.

It is then certain that the French mean to eſtabliſh a firm intereſt at Poonah. It is probable that they will effect it. The conſequences may be the attack of Bombay, or without it the re-union of the vaſt powers of the Maratta State under its preſent Government, ſtrengthened by ſo formidable an alliance and a prædatory war, brought by their united forces into the dominions of our Ally the Nabob of Owde, or even into the heart of our own.

To guard againſt ſuch conſequences ought, in my opinion, to be our firſt object, both for the immediate defence of Bombay, and the future ſecurity of Bengal. We cannot ſend ſuccours directly to Bombay. If Bombay ſhould be attacked by the French, unſupported by a Maratta alliance, I have already ſaid, that I hope its preſent force is equal to its defence; but if it ſhould be attacked, or in certain danger of being attacked by the French and Marattas in alliance, an offenſive war muſt be undertaken in defence of Bombay.

The detachment under Colonel Leſlie may be employed in this ſervice. It can be ſpared without danger to Bengal, which is ſecure from a preſent invaſion, and can ſoon be replaced; but it conſiſts of a force too inconſiderable to engage ſingly in ſuch a conteſt, unleſs it can be aſſiſted by an Ally equal in power, or ſo nearly equal to that of the Peiſhwa, as to give our united ſtrength a degree of ſuperiority over the combination to which it would be oppoſed; the undertaking would be too hazardous. Moodajee Booſla, the Chief of Berar, anſwers to this deſcription. His family has always borne a conſiderable rank among the Powers of India. His father, Rágogee, ſubjected the Provinces of Bengal to the Chout, under the Government of the moſt able Chief that ever ruled them. His elder brother, Iannoagee, attacked and burnt the city of Poonah, at a time when the power of the Peiſhwa far exceeded its preſent ſtate, and the Maratta Conſtitution, excepting Berar, was undivided. His dominions extend from the ſea coaſt of Oriſſa, and from the weſtern borders of Bengal to the neighbourhood of Aurengabad. His revenue, though not proportionate to their magnitude, is conſiderable; and his ſtanding forces are numerous, excluſive of the militia, which in all the Maratta States is always ready to join their regular armies when they take the field. While the conteſt prevailed between Ragonaut Row and the miniſterial party, Moodajee ſided with the former; his brother with the latter. This conduct drew on him the reſentment of the Miniſters, who, as ſoon as they were freed by the interpoſition of this Government from the dread of their great competitor, encouraged and ſupported the Nabob Nizam Ally Cawn in an invaſion of his country, which at that time had not yet recovered from the diſtractions occaſioned by the contention between the two brothers. On this occaſion he was glad to purchaſe a peace of Nizam Ally Cawn, with the loſs of ſome forts of conſequence, the remembrance of which he ſtill retains, with a determination to avail himſelf of the firſt opportunity to reclaim them.

As the provinces which are now united under the Government of Berar, are a conſtitutional part of the Maratta empire, a natural enmity muſt ever ſubſiſt between thoſe who poſſeſs the ſovereign authority, and the Rulers of Berar; the former looking to the recovery of their unalienable rights, the latter jealous of their independency: thus Moodajee may be conſidered as the certain enemy of the Peiſhwa into whatever hands the fluctuating ſtate of the parties at Poonah may throw his adminiſtration; but a late event has given Moodajee pretenſions to a rank even more elevated than that of the Peiſhwa. I need not inform this Board that the power which the Peiſhwas have poſſeſſed for about forty years paſt, is an uſurpation on the ſovereign authority veſted by the Conſtitution in the Rajah; Raja Saboo, the laſt who retained it, having no children, adopted Moodajah Booſla, and as I am informed, deſigned him for his ſucceſſor; but Ballajee, the Peiſhwa or Prime Miniſter, had the art to deprive Moodajee of the benefit of this intention, and to transfer the inheritance to Ram Raja, who was alſo an adopted ſon of Raja Saboo, and an infant at his death. Ragoogee, the father of Moodajee, inſtantly marched to Poonah with a formidable army, and by a negociation of a day obtained, for a ſurrender of his ſon's actual pretenſions, a large acceſſion of territory, and other advantages, ſtill reſerving a future claim to the Rajaſhip, and refuſing to commit himſelf by any formal deed in an acknowledgment of the title of Ram Raja. From that time the grandeur of his family may be dated. Ragojee continued to authenticate all his public acts by the name of Saboo Raja, and on the ſeals which have been affixed to all the letters which I have received from Shabajee Booſla, and even ſince his death from his brother Moodajee, they are ſtiled the vaſſals of Saboo Rajah. I know not with certainty what are Moodajee's preſent views. Ram Raja died in December laſt, and the ſucceſſion is either ſtill vacant, or but lately filled; Moodajee's rights are ſtill in force, and unqueſtionably ſuperior to any other.

I muſt ſuſpend the thread of this narrative to relate a tranſaction which brings it nearer to the concerns of this Government. An alliance with the Booſla family has been long its object; and conſiderable advances were made to the attainment of it in the Adminiſtration of Lord Clive. In the latter end of the year 1773 Shabajee Booſla ſent a vackeel to me with letters, containing general profeſſions of attachment, but expreſſed with ſuch warmth as induced me to aim at a formal connection with him. Finding the vackeel an intelligent man, I ſent him back furniſhed with a plan for that purpoſe. Unfortunately, Shabajee fell by the hands of his brother a little before the vackeel's return, and the negociation dropped; but Moodajee himſelf ſoon after adopting his brother's line, again deputed the ſame vackeel to Calcutta; but many cauſes, which it is unneceſſary to enumerate, prevented me from improving the diſpoſition of this Chief. A conſtant intercourſe of letters, and in ſome degree confidential, has been kept up between us. On a falſe rumour of the death of Ramraja, foreſeeing the uſe which might be made of this new diverſion in the Maratta policy, I employed the Agency of the vackeel to excite the ambition of Moodajee to aſpire to the ſovereign authority; which ſuch an event, then probable at leaſt, from the infirm ſtate of the Raja, and the diſtractions at Poonah, ſeemed to preſent to him, and I intimated the ſame advice in a letter which I wrote at the ſame time to Dewangur Pundit, the Miniſter of Moodajee Booſla, and the man whoſe counſels have long guided the affairs of that Government. While theſe letters were on their way the Raja died. No anſwers were given, for the purport required none; but every letter ſince received from Moodajee and his Dewan has repeatedly and urgently preſſed the diſmiſſion of the vackeel, for the purpoſe, as expreſſed, of communicating with him on ſome affairs of the greateſt importance. The vackeel is at this time with Colonel Leſlie.

From theſe facts it will appear that Moodajee Booſla is by intereſt and inclination likely to join in an alliance with this Government, and that two advantages may be offered to him as the inducements to it. The firſt is the ſupport of his pretenſions to the ſovereign power, the ſecond the recovery of the captures made on his dominions by Nizam Ally. On our parts, we ſhall poſſeſs a powerful barrier on our frontier, an alliance which may counterbalance, and if properly employed, may totally overthrow the preſent power of the Maratta State, and give us a laſting aſcendant in its operations, and for ever diſſipate all the deſigns which the French have at this time ſo wiſely and hitherto ſucceſsfully concerted for their aggrandizement and our deſtruction. A more fortunate concurrence of circumſtances could ſcarcely have been conceived than thoſe which appear of themſelves to draw the two States of Berar and Bengal into a decided and laſting union by the powerful bonds of common intereſt and common danger. The Poonah Government is the natural enemy of Moodajee. It is ours by their connection with our natural and declared enemy the French. Nizam Ally for the ſame reaſon is the decided adverſary of both; and the contiguity of our reſpective territories in the wildeſt and leaſt valuable parts of both, and of courſe the leaſt ſubject to competition and incroachment, renders their union important and eſſential to the ſtrength of both.

On theſe grounds I recommend that a Company's civil ſervant be immediately deputed to Moodajee Booſla with full powers to form a treaty of alliance between that Chief and the Company on the terms herein above ſtated. Theſe may be hereafter detailed in his inſtructions.

The Governor General—It was my intention, had the time permitted it, to have extended the above Minute into other details, immediately required for the internal defence of theſe provinces. I can now only ſtate thoſe which are moſt urgent in ſhort propoſitions. The reaſons, if neceſſary, may be given ſeparately.

Firſt, I propoſe that three additional battalions of ſepoys be immediately formed upon the plan recommended by General Stibbert.

Secondly, That Raja Cheyt Sing be required in form to contribute his ſhare of the burthen of the preſent war, by conſenting to the eſtabliſhment of three regular battalions of ſepoys, to be raiſed and maintained at his expence.

Thirdly, That the militia corps be re-eſtabliſhed for the defence of the city of Calcutta; and for this purpoſe, if it ſhall be found neceſſary hereafter, I would further recommend, that the Commiſſioner of law ſuits, with the aſſiſtance of the Company's attorney and ſtanding council, be inſtructed to prepare a bill for its legal incorporation.

Fourthly, That the Maſter Attendant be directed to conſult ſome of the moſt able ſeamen of this port upon the means of forming ſuch an addition to our marine eſtabliſhment as may be moſt effectual for the communication of immediate intelligence of the approach of an enemy's fleet or ſingle ſhips of war, and for cutting away the buoys, and uſing ſuch other precautions as may be neceſſary for guarding this port and its commerce againſt the effects of a ſurprize.

Fifthly, That the opinion of the Chief Engineer be alſo taken with reſpect to the other means which may be neceſſary to prevent or impede the progreſs of an enemy by the entrance of the river.

Sixthly, That the Commander in Chief be requeſted to furniſh the Board with ſuch a general plan of defence as he ſhall judge neceſſary, in addition to the preſent diſpoſition of our army, and in the ſuppoſition that the detachment now employed under Colonel Leſlie may not return for a length of time into the provinces; and to attend the Board with it when prepared.

Seventhly, The propoſitions with which I ſhall now conclude I offer with much diffidence and heſitation: it has been the conſtant ſubject of my thoughts ſince our laſt meeting; and though I now incline to recommend it, I ſee the objections to it in a ſtrong light, as added perhaps to thoſe which may be ſuggeſted by other Members of the Board may induce me to change it; but I will briefly ſtate it. The war having been notified to us, though not by authority, yet confirmed by evidence of ſuch ſtrength as to amount to a degree of certainty next to abſolute, ſhall we proceed upon it as upon the grounds of a war declared and notified in all its forms? or ſhall we wait the confirmation of it, which it is probable we may not receive for this month or ſix weeks yet to come? The conſequence of our determination on this queſtion, if in the affirmative, will be inſtantly to detach a military force to guard the approaches of Chandernagore, to demand the ſurrender of that town, and to appoint Commiſſaries to take poſſeſſion of the public ſtores, ſhipping, and private effects of the inhabitants. This combined queſtion I propoſe for the determination of the Board. Appendix No. 68.

The firſt queſtion being conſidered is agreed to. Ordered, That the Secretary to the military department do prepare and lay before the Board an eſtimate of the expence of the above augmentation, and of that which will ariſe from the increaſe of men to the preſent eſtabliſhment lately ordered in the military department.

The ſecond queſtion conſidered.

Mr. Francis—On the ſuppoſition that the detachment now employed under Colonel Leſlie will not return for a length of time into the provinces, I acquieſce in the propoſal relative to Raja Cheyt Sing; but I think he ſhould be informed, that this additional charge will not be impoſed on him beyond the continuance of the preſent war.

The Governor General—The qualification propoſed by Mr. Francis is conſonant to my intention in the queſtion, and is implied in it; I ſhould have no objection to its being expreſſed in an additional clauſe: that our reſolution upon this ſubject may be unanimous, I agreed to add to the queſtion the following words, "and "to be diſbanded at the end of the war;" but perceiving that the difference in our opinions upon the ſubject ariſes not from a diſagreement reſpecting the requiſition ſimply conſidered by itſelf, but from a different underſtanding of the right of the Company, to exact under any preſſure of affairs more than the ſum ſtipulated by the ſunnud granted to Cheyt Sing, and the pubbooleat given by him in return, I muſt adhere to the queſtion as it ſtands, wiſhing to avoid the queſtion of right; if however we cannot agree upon this point, ſtill I would wiſh to have the requiſition made in the words of the queſtion, and leave the deciſion of future right to our ſuperiors.

Mr. Wheler—Wiſhing to avoid the queſtion of right, I acquieſce in the motion; but I think it ſhould be qualified in the manner propoſed by Mr. Francis.

Mr. Barwell—An acquiſition of revenue and military force I ſuppoſe to have been annexed to the grant of the Zemindarry of Benares and Gauzipore to the Company; any military eſtabliſhment, independant of the Engliſh adminiſtration, in the heart of the Company's dominions, may, in the time of danger, be turned againſt thoſe intereſts which under another policy it would protect. I have long regarded the military eſtabliſhment of Benares under the Rajah's native officers, and not ſubject to the diſcipline, command, and regulation, of our own battalions, as a defect: I therefore moſt heartily agree to the preſent propoſal for three diſciplined battalions to be kept up, and paid by the Rajah; and ſincerely hope the Company will direct, that the whole force of Benares and Gauzipore under the Zemindar be placed upon the ſame footing as the regular military force of the Preſidency.

The Governor General—I agree to the queſtion in the original terms of it, deeming it a right inherent in every Government to impoſe ſuch aſſeſſments as it judges expedient for the common ſervice and protection of all its ſubjects, and we are not precluded from it by any agreement ſubſiſting between the Raja and this Government.

Reſolved, That Rajah Cheyt Sing be required in form to contribute his ſhare of the burthen of the preſent war, by the eſtabliſhment of three regular battalions of ſepoys, to be raiſed and maintained at his expence; and the Governor General is requeſted to write to him to that effect.

The Board agree to the third queſtion.

To the fourth agreed. } Orders are accordingly iſſued
Agreed to the fifth. } by the Secretary.
To the ſixth agreed.

APPENDIX, No. 69.

Extract of Bengal Secret Conſultations, the 11th July 1778.

PRESENT,

The Honourable Warren Haſtings, Eſquire, Governor General, Preſident;

Richard Barwell, Philip Francis, Edward Wheler, } Eſquires.

MR. FRANCIS—In addition to the reſolutions already taken, and in reply to the Governor General's motion introduced yeſterday, I ſhall ſtate my opinion of the farther meaſures which we ought to purſue in the preſent juncture, as briefly and as clearly as poſſible; declaring at the ſame time that I do not mean either to ſupport my own opinion, or to oppoſe that of any other member, by a controverſy, which at this time can have no good effect.

1ſt. I am unalterably of opinion that the detachment under Colonel Leſlie ſhould be immediately recalled within the provinces, becauſe I think that the ſecurity of Bengal is the firſt and moſt eſſential of all objects to this Government: as ſuch the Company have invariably conſidered it. I will quote one paſſage, out of a multitude that might be found in the letters from the Court of Directors, to ſhew how ſtrongly they have inculcated this object, and made it the baſis of their whole political ſyſtem in India. In a letter to Fort Saint George, dated the 17th March 1769, they ſay, "the preſervation of "our preſent influence in the Bengal provinces is the "great object of our attention. All political connec"tions in the reſt of India are only important as they "may affect us there.

"Every acceſſion of influence or poſſeſſion elſewhere, "which by dividing our troops may prevent the exer"tion of our whole force, in caſe we ſhould be at"tacked in that quarter, is hazarding a ſubſtance for "a ſhadow."

Admitting a ſuppoſition, that the firſt attempts of the French may be made in another part of India, which can only be matter of conjecture, ſtill I think we are bound, by every rule of policy and prudence, to make our principal preparations of defence in that quarter where our moſt eſſential intereſts are at ſtake. Conſidering the extenſive frontier we have now to guard, I cannot think that Bengal is in a ſtate of defence, much leſs of ſecurity, while the force under Colonel Leſlie is engaged in any diſtant operations.

2d. I think the Preſidency of Bombay ſhould be directed to make ſome conceſſions to the miniſterial party at Poonah, and to endeavour to come to an accommodation with them as ſoon as poſſible. If we were to relinquiſh every one of the points which have been in diſpute between us ſince the concluſion of the treaty, we ſhould neither give up any thing that originally belonged to us, nor indeed any thing that is worth our keeping. Territorial acquiſitions on that ſide of India, are inconſiſtent with the Company's true intereſt, and no leſs contrary to their avowed fundamental policy.—When we ſee that even their favourite acquiſition of Salſette is attended with an annual loſs of 1,40,849 rupees; that is, that the expences of maintaining the different eſtabliſhments there exceed the revenues of the iſland by ſo great a ſum; we ought, I think, to be deterred by this deciſive experiment from wiſhing to gain more in that part of India, or even to keep a great part of what we have gained.

By purſuing even now a plan of moderation with the Marattas, we ſhall probably take the moſt effectual courſe for defeating the deſigns of the French, and inducing the Marattas to relinquiſh any engagements they may have formed with them. To introduce a European army either French or Engliſh, into their country, can never be a meaſure of choice with the Poonah Government, much leſs can they be urged by any thing but neceſſity to make their country the ſeat of war.

At the ſame time that we ſend theſe inſtructions to Bombay, I think that at all events it might be adviſable to ſend them a reinforcement of two or three battalions of ſepoys, but they ſhould go from Madras, and be replaced from hence if neceſſary. The whole force of Bombay, in my opinion, ſhould be employed upon a defenſive plan only, to which with the above reinforcement it will be adequate; that is, to the defence of Bombay, Salſette, and the iſlands and poſts immediately adjacent; for as to the acquiſitions of territory made by the late treaty, in the ſuppoſed caſe of their being attacked by the united force of the French and of the Marattas, I would not think of defending them. —For this opinion I cannot aſſign a ſtronger reaſon than that with which the Governor's Minute furniſhes me, viz. that "Bombay is weak in itſelf, and entangled "rather than ſtrengthened by its diſſipated poſſeſſions on "the Continent, and that it can only defend itſelf "againſt a direct invaſion."

3d. If by undertaking an offenſive war in defence of Bombay is be meant to continue the march of Colonel Leſlie's detachment from our frontier to Poonah, I am entirely againſt it. I need not repeat the reaſons I have ſo often urged for this opinion, but I will ſtate one which has not yet been mentioned: admitting that the French may have intended to begin their operations on the Malabar coaſt, it is not unlikely that, when they ſhall have heard of our having ſtripped Bengal of ſo conſiderable a part of its defence, they may ſuddenly turn their views this way: at all events I do not think that detachment can be ſpared without danger to Bengal.

If a treaty of peace and alliance can be formed with Moodajee Booſla, on the uſual terms, of having the ſame friends and the ſame enemies (which we may interpret and uſe hereafter as we think fit) ſome advantage may be made of it; but I cannot think that his friendſhip, or that of any Maratta Chief, is worth purchaſing at the expence of ſuch engagements as are propoſed to be offered to him, viz. "to ſupport his pretenſions to this "ſovereign power of the Maratta State, and the re"covery of the captures made on his dominions by "Nizam Ally." I know not whither ſuch engagements may lead the Company's arms, or how long they may implicate us in the political conteſts of the country powers. Our general line of action is, and muſt be purely defenſive: the inſtructions we have given to the Preſidency of Fort Saint George to cultivate the friendſhip of Hyder Ally are formed on this principle, and it makes part of the Company's fundamental policy, repeatedly inculcated in their inſtructions to their ſervants, to avoid becoming parties in any diſputes between the Powers of India. On one particular occaſion they have gone ſo far as to ſay, "that this rage for negociations, treaties, "and alliances, has private advantage more for its "object than the public good." This remark is not meant to be applied to the propoſal before us, but it ſhews the general ſenſe the Company entertain of treaties and alliances with the country powers.

(Signed) P. F

The Governor General—I ſhould be very unwilling to anſwer the above Minute under the painful impreſſion which it has laid upon my mind, and indeed I hope it will be altogether unneceſſary, as it conſiſts (excepting one diſtinct propoſition) of points of mere controverſy, upon which every thing has already been ſaid that can be ſaid on both ſides of the queſtion; and it is yet my ſincere and anxious hope, that whatever differences of opinion may ſubſiſt on ſubjects long agitated, or which may not reſpect the new ſtate of our affairs, our reſolutions reſpecting every meaſure for the defence of the national poſſeſſions in India may be unanimous, and our meaſures poſſeſs that degree of vigour and conſiſtency, which they can only derive from a cordial, a temperate, and a confidential communication of opinions. One ſingle obſervation I ſhall make upon Mr. Francis's Minute, becauſe it applies to the eſſential part of his objections; namely, that the meaſure which I have propoſed is formed on grounds purely defenſive: though it ſhould lead to offenſive operations, its objects are the immediate preſervation of Bengal, and the protection of theſe the moſt valuable parts of the Britiſh poſſeſſions in India, from an invaſion not very diſtant, if we confine all our operations within the boundaries of our dominions and of our Ally the Nabob of Owde There is one propoſition contained in Mr. Francis's Minute which will merit the conſideration of the Board; and although I fear that it is too late, ſince the engagements between the adminiſtration at Poonah and the French Miniſter have been carried to too great lengths to admit of their retracting on either ſide, it may yet be given in inſtruction to the Preſidency of Bombay, but it ought not to be the motive for a ſuſpenſion of any ſingle meaſure which will be neceſſary for the ſupport of the general intereſts of the Company committed to our charge, on the ſuppoſition that theſe engagements have already taken place. I beg leave to add one more obſervation, ſuggeſted by Mr. Francis's Minute, and encouraged by the candid declaration with which it is introduced. It is undoubtedly the duty of every Member of this Board to contribute his ſentiments on all affairs, but more eſpecially on ſuch as thoſe at preſent under our conſideration; but I preſume to offer it as my opinion, that it is equally the duty of every Member of the Board to afford his utmoſt aſſiſtance to the execution and ſucceſs of every meaſure that has ever been adopted, although originally paſſed againſt his judgment, and to proſecute it with the ſame ardour as if it had received his primary concurrence. I hope it is needleſs to purſue this ſubject: I will leave Mr. Francis the advantage of an undiſputed ground in the many objections forcibly ſtated in his Minute, rather than contribute to diſturb the temper of our Councils by a debate which can produce no good effect but that of perſonal vindication.

Now give me leave to recal the attention of the Board to the ſubject regularly before it. The queſtion in brief is, ſhall negociations be undertaken for a treaty of alliance with the Rajah of Berar? an affirmative or negative is all that is now neceſſary. The conditions of this alliance will be the proper ſubject of a future debate, and will be contained in the inſtructions to be given to the perſon who will be employed in the commiſſion for conducting the negociation. I ſhall prepare them without delay.

Mr. Wheler—I think it abſolutely neceſſary, before I give my affirmative or negative, that I ſhould know the extent and nature of the treaty which the Governor General propoſes to form with the Rajah of Berar, and I am the more deſirous of an explanation on this head from the queſtion being now ſtripped of that introduction which preceded it in the Governor's former motion, and which I fear I cannot aſſent to.

Mr. Francis—I agree with Mr. Wheler.

Mr. Barwell—I agree to the propoſition. When the objects of the treaty come under conſideration, I ſhall give my affirmative only to ſuch points as may be advantageous and uſeful to this Government. Appendix. No. 70.

Reſolved, That negociations be undertaken for a treaty of alliance with Moodajee Booſla, the Rajah of Berar.

The Governor General—I beg leave to recommend Mr. Alexander Kynynnround Elliott to be employed on this commiſſion. Independently of the perſonal confidence of which from long experience I think him worthy, I have made choice of Mr. Elliott for this ſervice, on account of his intimate knowledge of the political ſtate of this Government, in relation to the other powers of the country; having given him, under the preſcribed oath of ſecrecy, an early and continued acceſs to the official records of this department, and employed him in an eſpecial manner in all my communications with the Government of Berar, ſince his return to Bengal. I flatter myſelf that his general abilities, and the qualifications which he poſſeſſes for a truſt of this kind, will not need my recommendation of him to the Members of this Board.

Reſolved, that Mr. Elliott be accordingly appointed the Miniſter and public Agent of this Government at the Court of Moodajee Booſla, Rajah of Berar, for the purpoſe of negotiating a treaty of alliance with that Chief.

APPENDIX, No. 70.

Bengal. Secret Conſultations, the 18th July 1778.

THE Governor General lays before the Board inſtructions for Mr. Elliott, which are as follow, viz.

Copy of Inſtructions to Mr. Alexander K. Elliott.

We hereby appoint you our Agent and Miniſter, and inveſt you with full powers to negociate and to conclude a treaty with Moodajee Booſla, the Rajah of Berar, or the Rajah for the time being; and that you may be completely enabled to accompliſh our intentions in this commiſſion, we give you the following inſtructions, leaving it to your diſcretion to effect them in any mode which your judgment, formed on the actual ſtate of that Government, and the intelligence which you ſhall receive concerning the neighbouring ſtates, and from the Preſidency of Bombay, ſhall ſuggeſt; and to agree to ſuch other conditions as are not expreſſed in theſe inſtructions, but ſhall be conformable to their general tenor, or not contrary to them; and you are to obſerve this diſtinction in the articles of agreement which you ſhall conclude with the Rajah of Berar, viz. that although all are to be, and we hereby declare that they ſhall be, immediately binding on this Government, and on every other of the Company's Preſidencies, yet ſuch as are in their nature permanent muſt be referred to us for their confirmation; but ſuch as are intended for preſent or temporary purpoſes, are to be carried into execution without waiting for our ſanction, and ſhall be equally binding as if they had received our ſpecific ratification.

Firſt, It is our firſt deſire to eſtabliſh a perpetual alliance with the Government of Berar on the terms of mutual defence: to accompliſh ſuch a connection, it muſt be conſtituted on principles of mutual intereſt and mutual confidence; theſe principles you muſt make the ground-work of your negociation in every part and ſtage of it, taking eſpecial care that the demand for our aſſiſtance, and its duration, ſhall be optional in the Ruler of Berar; that it may be inſtantly yielded, and that the proviſion made for it be ſo guarded as to preclude the dependants of this Government, to whoſe conduct the execution of this part of the treaty may be committed, from acquiring an undue influence or exerciſing any kind of authority in the countries belonging to our Ally.

On

Appendix. No. 70.

On the principles thus premiſed the following ſtipulations may be formed:

1ſt. That there ſhall be a perpetual alliance of friendſhip between the Engliſh Eaſt India Company, and the Rajah of Berar and his ſucceſſors, each party ſolemnly engaging to regard the friends of the one as the friends of the other, and the enemies of the one as the enemies of the other; and that this condition ſhall ſubſiſt independently of all others in this treaty.

2d. That a certain force, conſiſting of battalions of ſepoys, to which may be added a corps of native artillery, be ſtationed in ſome convenient place within our own frontier, and in the neighbourhood of his, to be always ready for inſtant motion on a requiſition in writing from him, and for any military ſervice which he may preſcribe within the line of his dominions, but not to paſs beyond it.

That for the maintenance of this corps a monthly ſubſidy be fixed, equal to their probable expence; that is to ſay, for each battalion of ſepoys in quarters 10,000 rupees per month, and in the field 13,000 rupees; and for a company of native artillery in quarters 4,000 rupees, in the field 5,000 rupees; that ſuch regular and aſſured funds ſhall be aſſigned for the ſubſidy as may prevent future diſagreements on this ſubject, and not leave it in his power to withhold it.

That each party ſhall be at liberty to cancel this engagement whenever it ſhall be judged inconvenient to their reſpective intereſts, or incompatible with their means, or to propoſe a reduction of the force, but not of the proportionate rate of ſubſidy for the remainder, giving one year's previous notice.

3dly. That if at any time it ſhall be neceſſary to require the aſſiſtance of a body of cavalry for the defence of Bengal, the Raja ſhall engage to afford the ſame within two months after the requiſition made to him for any force not exceeding 10,000 horſe of the fixed eſtabliſhment of his Circar; their pay, diſcipline, and internal command to remain ſubject to their own officers, but the general command ſubject to the officer commanding the Engliſh forces acting in junction with them; their pay to be defrayed by the Company at a ſtipulated rate for each rank, from the day on which they ſhall enter the borders of Bengal, until the time requiſite for their departure from the ſame, eſtimated by daily marches of five coſs from the day of their diſmiſſion. In the clauſe reſpecting this article, care muſt be taken to diſtinguiſh the cavalry of the regular and paid eſtabliſhment from the native militia and infantry of every denomination; which muſt be totally excluded from compoſing any part of the ſtipulated aid; their occupations and all their operations conſiſting ſolely in plunder. Although this article is propoſed to complete the ſyſtem of reciprocal defence, yet if the Raja ſhall object to it, we do not regard it as an indiſpenſable clauſe, but you may make a merit of receding from our claim to it.

Such are our ideas of the general limitations which ſhould be preſcribed for a defenſive alliance, and we direct you to make them the ſubject of your firſt propoſitions, allowing you to change, or qualify, or add to them, in any manner which in the courſe of your negociation you ſhall judge fitting, provided ſuch alterations be ſtrictly conſonant to the principles which we have dictated as eſſential to it.

When you ſhall have mutually agreed on the plan of propoſed treaty, you muſt tranſmit it to us for our confirmation or correction, according to the diſtinction which we have laid down in the introductory part of theſe inſtructions.

Second. But as it may be neceſſary to enter upon an immediate train of active and offenſive operations with the aſſiſtance of Moodajee Booſla, if it can be obtained, we ſhall proceed to give you ſuch inſtructions as may be proper for that effect; firſt explaining the object of our views, and ſtating the grounds of our expectations from Moodajee Booſla.

By conſecutive intelligence received from the Preſidency of Bombay, and from their Miniſter at the Court of Poonah, it appears that the Chevalier St. Lubin, an agent deputed from the Court of France, has entered into an engagement with the ruling members of the Maratta State, to bring a large European force, and a proportion of military ſtores to Poonah, to be employed in their ſervice, or, as we may conclude, in promoting the reciprocal advantages of the French and Maratta nations.

War having been lately declared between Great Britain and France, it is not to be doubted, that the Preſidency of Bombay will feel the firſt effects of this combination: the capture of that place by the French, and the recovery of the iſland of Salſette, and the diſtricts poſſeſſed by the Government of Bombay on the Continent, rendering ſuch an enterprize equally eſſential to the intereſts and views of both. We conceive alſo, that although ſuch may be their immediate deſign, and we are warned by the Court of Directors to expect, that the firſt attempt of the French will be on Bombay, yet we believe, that the principle of their union looks to deſigns of much greater conſequence, though yet remote, and may affect the peace and ſafety of theſe provinces. An early apprehenſion of theſe effects induced us to authorize the Preſident and Council of Bombay to carry into execution a plan which was propoſed to them in the month of December laſt, by a party formed among the principal members of the Maratta Government, to exclude Nana Furneſs from the chief authority which he then poſſeſſed, and to reſtore Ragonaut Row to the place which he formerly held in the Adminiſtration; and for the ſame purpoſe, the detachment under Colonel Leſlie, which is now on its march towards Berar, was formed. The deſign failed; a change was effected by means in which neither the Preſidency of Bombay nor Ragonaut Row had any ſhare. Nana Furneſs was diveſted of authority, but was ſoon afterwards re-admitted into the Adminiſtration, which has ſince conſiſted of Saccaram Babboo, Moraba Furneſs, and Nanah Furneſs. Theſe Miniſters appear to have been all united in the reſolution of oppoſing the pretenſions of Ragonaut Row. He has now no party left among the Marattas with whoſe aid he could venture to aſſert them; nor under any circumſtances could that Preſidency now afford him their aſſiſtance, without departing from the immediate care of their own ſafety. Thus deprived of the reſource on which we depended in the partizans of Ragonaut Row, deeming it indiſpenſably neceſſary to prevent, or to counteract the deſigns which may have been projected by the Miniſters and the French in their alliance, and too hazardous to allow the detachment to proceed on its firſt deſtination without the ſupport of a powerful alliance; we are therefore deſirous of joining our forces, and our intereſts with thoſe of Moodajee Booſla, for effecting that purpoſe, or others more conducive to the ends of it.

Our reaſons for giving this preference to Moodajee Booſla, and our expectations of finding him well diſpoſed to enter heartily into our views, are briefly theſe: his dominions lie between Bengal and the dependencies of the Peiſhwa, and border on both. A natural jealouſy has ever ſubſiſted between his family and the Government of Poonah. This has been heightened into a confirmed animoſity by acts of mutual violence. He has ſtrong pretenſions, if not an abſolute legal right to the ſucceſſion of the Rauje or ſovereign authority of the Maratta State, vacant by the death of the late Ram Raja, and the Nabob Nizam Ally Cawn, who has always been connected with the French, and is now in cloſe union with the Miniſters of Poonah, is from his ſituation the natural enemy of the Government of Berar, and perſonally that of Moodajee.

Although we have no doubts either of the engagements which are ſaid to exiſt between the Miniſters of Poonah and the Chevalier St. Lubin, or of the inability of the Preſidency of Bombay to engage in any new undertaking for the reſtoration of Ragonaut Row; yet theſe are facts on which we wiſh you to obtain the moſt certain knowledge, as you muſt be guided entirely by them in the line of your negociations.

As there is a conſtant intercourſe between the Courts of Naugpore and Poonah, you will not find it difficult to learn the actual ſtate of affairs at the latter; and that you may be leſs liable to diſappointment or deception, we ſhall give directions to Mr. Moſtyn to keep up a conſtant correſpondence with you, and to inform you of the moſt ſecret tranſactions of that Adminiſtration during your continuance at Naugpore.

If from his advices or the information you can collect on the ſpot, you are aſſured that the Preſidency of Bombay have not entered into any new engagements, either with Ragonaut Row or any other party among the Marattas, which may claſh with the tenor of the following inſtructions; if you ſhall at the ſame time underſtand either that a French force is actually arrived at Poonah, or is expected, or that the Chevalier St. Lubin is ſtill there; or if you are convinced from other circumſtances of the exiſtence of the engagements which we ſuppoſe to have been formed between him and the Miniſters, or even if no circumſtance ſhall have come to your knowledge that may afford you cauſe to doubt it: in theſe caſes we authorize you to make an offer to Moodajee Booſla, to unite with him in a direct and open war with the miniſterial party at Poonah; and we give you a full and abſolute diſcretion to concert with him ſuch a plan for conducting the ſame as you ſhall judge moſt conducive to the ends which we propoſe from it, and to which your whole attention muſt be directed; namely, to defeat the combination of the French and Marattas, to prevent the latter from aſſiſting the French in their deſigns on Bombay; and further, if it can be effected, to eſtabliſh ſuch an intereſt and connection between our Government and that of the Marattas as may enſure the future ſupport and aſſiſtance of the Maratta State againſt the French, or any other power that may be in enmity with us.

But if you ſhall have reaſon to believe that the Preſidency of Bombay have commenced any negociation or entered into any engagements either for the firm eſtabliſhment of peace with the Poonah Miniſtry, or for the reſtoration of Ragonaut Row, or for any other purpoſe which may prove incompatible with the operations which we have above authorized; you will in ſuch caſe ſuſpend your negociations until you ſhall have received authentic information, either from Mr. Moſtyn or the Preſidency of Bombay, of the the nature of the engagements either projected or executed by them; and you will ſo conduct yourſelf as to conform to their meaſures if you can conſiſtently with the prior attention which you will give to our views; or at leaſt not to engage in any offenſive plan which ſhall be contrary to that of the Preſidency of Bombay. Remembering that a defenſive alliance with Moodajee Booſla being the permanent object of your commiſſion, you are to ſuffer no conſideration whatever to divert you from that object but the refuſal or inability of Moodajee Booſla to accede to it, or the ſafety of Bombay rendering it impracticable.

You are to obſerve that the treaty at preſent ſubſiſting between the Company and the Peiſhwa, even admitted to be in its fulleſt force, can by no conſtruction affect our connection with the Government of Berar, which we not only regard as poſſeſſed of a ſovereign and independant power in fact, but we have a right to deem it ſuch with the Poonah Government from the teſtimony of the Miniſters themſelves, who on a requiſition made by Colonel Upton on the part of this Government, that Moodajee Booſla ſhould ſubſcribe to the treaty, excuſed themſelves by declaring in effect though not in expreſs terms, that they had no right or power to compel him.

And if you ſhall receive any aſſurances from the Preſidency of Bombay, or from Mr. Moſtyn, that the engagements between the French and the Miniſters are diſſolved, and that the latter do not entertain any deſigns hoſtile to the poſſeſſions of the Eaſt India Company, you muſt in that caſe regard the treaty between the Company and the Peiſhwa as poſſeſſing full force, and abſtain from any poſitive engagement with Moodajee Booſla which may be contrary to it; but this, as we have already obſerved, muſt not prevent you from concluding any engagement with him of a defenſive kind, or even of an offenſive, with reſpect to other powers or ſtates who are not under their ſubjection. Even in the caſe thus ſuppoſed, it will be no breach of our faith with them to agree to ſtation an Engliſh force near the weſtern borders of Berar; and we even recommend it as a guard upon their fidelity, and as a ready means of counteracting any attempts which they may make in violation of it. Appendix No. 70.

Having deſcribed the ends which we propoſe to derive to the Company from an offenſive alliance with Moodajee Booſla, we ſhall next proceed to thoſe which we may reaſonably expect in return; for we cannot ſuppoſe that he will hazard the peace of his own Government without proſpect of ſome advantage adequate to the riſque, nor could we rely equally on his engagements unleſs his intereſt, by being involved in them, were made a pledge for his ſincerity and zeal in the performance of them.

The points which appear to us the moſt likely to excite his ambition, are the aſſertion of his pretenſions to the inheritance of Ram Raja, and the recovery of the conqueſts which have been made from his country by Nizam Ally.

The latter is a more diſtant object, and at this moment appears to us foreign from our preſent intereſts; you may receive any propoſitions which he may make to you upon this ſubject; you may treat upon them; but you muſt refer them to us for concluſion, unleſs he ſhall require it as an indiſpenſable condition of his forwarding our views in the weſtern part of India, and even in that caſe your engagements muſt be confined to the places originally appertaining to the Government of Berar, and wreſted from it ſince the death of Iannove. We are not unaware at the ſame time of the probability of our being called upon immediately to oppoſe the French in the dominions of Nizam Ally, ſhould he openly and avowedly join the French, or ſhould he join the miniſterial party at Poonah in declared alliance with the French.

We authorize you to agree to ſuch terms as may be propoſed by the Rajah of Berar, if you ſhall be perſuaded that the execution of them will tend to the accompliſhment of our views in oppoſition to the ſchemes and intereſts of our enemies the French, and in ſuch caſe you are authorized to fulfil your part of the agreement without waiting for our ſanction.

With reſpect to the former, if from the ſtate of Moodajee's forces, his reſources and connections, compared with thoſe of the Miniſters of Poonah, you ſhall be clearly of opinion that the chances of ſucceſs are conſiderably on his ſide, and he ſhall require our aſſiſtance in the undertaking, we empower and direct you to enter into an expreſs treaty to that effect.

The conditions which may be required for our participation in an enterprize of ſuch magnitude muſt of neceſſity be left to your judgment, both in the choice and mode of ſecuring them. Our immediate ends will be effectually anſwered by it, if it is attended with no other effect than the excluſion of the French influence from the Maratta State, and the introduction of our own in its ſtead. But the poſitive advantages, if it ſucceeds, will be all on his ſide, and theſe will therefore at leaſt entitle us to ſome return, beſides the proviſion effected by it, of ſecurity from future contingencies.

The reimburſement of our charges in this expedition, from its commencement to the period of its return to our own frontier, or of a ſum ſuppoſed equivalent to them, ought to be made the firſt ſtipulation.

Appendix. No. 70.

The confirmation of the ceſſions made to the Preſidency of Bombay by Ragonaut Row and Futty Sing Gaycwar and to this Government, by the Peiſhwa in the treaty of Poorunder, may be demanded.

On this ſubject you will receive as inſtructions whatever may be written to you by the Preſident and Council of Bombay, but exerciſe your diſcretion in the execution of them. In the mean time the Secretary will furniſh you with extracts of ſuch parts of our letters to the Preſidency of Bombay as have a relation to this ſubject, and from them you will take the general line of your conduct reſpecting it.

On this ſide India we deſire no acceſſion of territory, but ſhall prefer the improvement of our connection with Moodajee Booſla on the footing propoſed in the firſt part of theſe inſtructions to any other ſtipulations.

As ſoon as you have agreed to the plan of military operations to be undertaken by our forces in alliance with thoſe of Moodajee Booſla, you will give due notice thereof to Colonel Leſlie, or the officer who ſhall be in the command of the detachment now under his orders, that he may carry his part of it into execution. To this effect orders will be written to Colonel Leſlie, who has our preſent directions to continue his march till he ſhall have entered the province of Berar, and to remain there; you will alſo give immediate advice to the Preſidency of Bombay of the treaty when concluded, tranſmitting extracts of ſuch parts as have any relation to them, or a copy of the whole, unleſs it ſhall contain any matters which may require immediate ſecrecy.

We think it proper to caution you againſt encouraging any propoſals from Moodajee, to take a part in any deſigns which he may entertain to the prejudice of his brother Bimbajee, and againſt any interference in the competitions of his family.

To obviate any miſconception of the extent of your commiſſion, we think it proper to explain that we do not mean to continue it to the perſon of Moodajee Booſla, nor to the local juriſdiction of Berar; but that it extends to his ſucceſſor in the event of his death, or any change in his Government before or during the courſe of your negociation, and to the Government dependant on him or his ſucceſſors under any change or argumentation of it.

You will correſpond with Colonel Leſlie, or the officer in the command of the detachment now under his charge, concerting with him ſuch meaſures as you may think neceſſary for the ſucceſs of your negociation, or the ſafety of the Company's poſſeſſions, and conſulting him on any points of information which you may require concerning the ſtate of the country he may paſs through, or the views, forces, and circumſtances of the different Chiefs who govern it.

We have notified your appointment to the Preſident and council at Bombay to Mr. Moſtyn, and to Colonel Leſlie, in letters, of which we encloſe copies for your information.

You will be furniſhed with a cypher, in which you may correſpond with the Preſidencies of Fort Saint George and Bombay, and Colonel Leſlie; obſerving that the words written in red ink, which have been inſerted for the occaſion, are only to be uſed in your correſpondence with us. We are, &c.

Fort William, the 18th July 1778. (Signed) Governor General and Council.

Mr. Francis's Minute on the Inſtructions to Mr. Elliott.

Fort William, 15th Auguſt 1778.

Mr. Francis—Having already declared my entire concurrence in one general principle laid down by the Governor, viz. "that notwithſtanding the ſuperiority "of the Britiſh force in India, its general line of action "is and muſt be purely defenſive;" and having repeatedly ſtated to the Board my opinion of the wiſdom of thoſe inſtructions which the Court of Directors have conſtantly given us, and which we ought to conſider as the baſis of the Britiſh policy in India, viz; "to make the "defence and ſecurity of Bengal at all times the princi-"pal object of our care; never to employ the Company's "forces on diſtant expeditions; and never to engage the "Company in diſputes between the country powers, "but to leave thoſe powers to be a check upon one "another, without our interference;" I cannot but expreſs the ſtrongeſt diſapprobation of a plan which has for its object a union of forces and intereſts with one of the Indian States againſt another, and which, in order to engage the former to unite in a direct and open war againſt the other, propoſes to engage the Company's arms in an enterprize of no leſs magnitude and extent than the attainment of the ſovereignty of the Maratta ſtate for our Ally, and the recovery of any conqueſts heretofore made by the Soubah of the Decan over the Rajah of Berar. I conſider the propoſed treaty as not only ſubverſive of all the general principles of policy which ought to direct this Government, but as highly dangerous and inexpedient in itſelf at all times, and more eſpecially at the preſent criſis, at a time when our whole force is wanted for the defence of the Company's poſſeſſions, to which object alone I conceive it is or may eaſily be made adequate. I will never conſent to ſend any part of it upon diſtant expeditions, far from the protection of our frontiers, or to employ it in ſupporting any projects of intereſts in which we have no concern; defence alone ſhould be our object. With reſpect to Bengal and Fort Saint George, we have nothing to fear if we make a proper uſe of the means in our poſſeſſion, and apply them ſteadily to wiſe and attainable purpoſes; that is, if we do not ſuffer the firſt to be divided, and the ſecond to be waſted in ſupport of projects in which diſtant ſhadows are purſued at the expence of ſolid and ſubſtantial intereſt. With reſpect to Bombay, which it is ſaid cannot now afford Ragoba their aſſiſtance without departing from the immediate care of their own ſafety, the true and only way of putting that place in a poſture of defence, is to ſend them a reinforcement from Madras, and they tell us ſo themſelves. As for Colonel Leſlie's detachment, I very much fear they will never derive any aſſiſtance from it.

Theſe remarks and objections are of a general nature. I come now to the particular inſtructions propoſed for Mr. Elliott, and ſhall conſider them in the order in which they ſtand.

I object to the powers propoſed in the preamble to be given to Mr. Elliott; and whereas his commiſſion propoſes to have two objects, I cannot help expreſſing my ſurprize, that our ſanction to him ſhould be thought neceſſary for coming to a concluſion with the Rajah of Berar, upon that which is by far the leaſt hazardous and exceptionable of the two meaſures, I mean the defenſive treaty, but that he ſhould be allowed to follow his own judgment in concluding and carrying into execution the terms of our offenſive alliance, for the ſupport of enterprizes of uncommon magnitude and extent, without waiting for our ſanction. Againſt all ſuch abſolute and diſcretionary powers I hereby moſt ſolemnly proteſt, and I declare, that I ſhall never deem this Government bound by any agreement entered into by him in the execution of his preſent commiſſion, without the previous knowledge and approbation of this Board.

1. I object to the defenſive treaty on the terms propoſed, becauſe I think our preſent frontier is as much as we are able to defend, and will not admit of our ſubjecting any part of our force to march beyond it at the requiſition of the Rajah of Berar; becauſe, without paſſing the moſt diſtant limits of his dominions, ſuch requiſition may carry our army into the heart of Indoſtan, at a vaſt diſtance from Bengal, and to a ſituation too remote to admit of their ſafe and ſpeedy return to the protection of our own provinces in caſe of emergency; becauſe, on the other hand, I never can approve of our calling in ten thouſand Maratta horſe, in any caſe, to the defence of Bengal, being thoroughly convinced that ſuch allies would only diſtreſs and ruin the country, and never do us real ſervice againſt an enemy; and laſtly, becauſe I have no idea, that if Moodajee Booſla has a ray of underſtanding, and reflects on the fatal conſequences which the Nabob of Owde has experienced from his connections with this Government, and which took their origin from a treaty of ſubſidy, he will ever ſuffer an Engliſh army to eſtabliſh themſelves in this country under any pretences whatſoever.

2. The plan of an offenſive union with Moodajee Booſla ſeems to be founded on a ſuppoſition that Ragoba has no party left, and that the Preſidency of Bombay have or will abandon him. On my principles it is immaterial whether this ſuppoſition be well founded or not, becauſe I think it highly impolitic to implicate ourſelves in the ſupport of either of theſe perſons, but is very material to the ſucceſs of the plan now propoſed that no miſtake ſhould be made in this matter. I do not believe that the Preſidency of Bombay will eaſily relinquiſh their connections with Ragoba; if they ſhould not, it is worth conſidering what our ſituation may be, and what appearance our conduct will have in the eyes of the world. In the firſt inſtance, we have a treaty with the Peiſhwa, which we break or renounce in favour of Ragoba: we authorize the Preſidency of Bombay to execute a plan for reſtoring him to the Adminiſtration, and we ſend a detachment of troops acroſs India to ſupport that plan The preſent meaſure ſuppoſes a third diſtribution of power and a third competitor for it, to be ſupported by our alliance; and it is not impoſſible, that while this Government is uniting its forces and intereſts with thoſe of Moodajee Booſla on one ſide of India the Preſidency of Bombay may be equally engaged on the other, in executing the plan which we have already authorized in conjunction with Ragoba.

All theſe difficulties and inconveniences are ſuppoſed to be obviated by the conditional inſtructions given to Mr. Elliott, and the confidence repoſed in his caution and prudence. I need not queſtion the perſonal qualifications of any individual, when the truſt propoſed to be veſted in him is ſuch as I would repoſe in no man. The caſes, in which he is authorized to unite with Moodajee Booſla, in a direct and open war againſt the miniſterial party at Poonah, with full and abſolute diſcretion to concert the plan of operations with him, are to depend on Mr. Elliott's knowledge, or on his perſuaſion of the exiſtence of many facts, concerning which it is very poſſible he may be miſinformed; but the conſequences of a miſtake, either in point of judgment or information, may be fatal.

I do not pretend to know what the nature of Moodajee Booſla's pretenſions may be to the ſucceſſion of the Ram Raja. It is a queſtion of no ſort of importance to this Government, unleſs we voluntarily involve ourſelves in it. But if it were poſſible for me to entertain an idea of engaging the company's arms in the ſupport of ſuch pretenſions, the precipitation with which the concluſion of ſuch an engagement is preſſed, and the implicit confidence propoſed to be placed in Mr. Elliott's ſole judgment and diſcretion to decide upon meaſures which may affect the very exiſtence of the Britiſh power in India, would be ſufficient to deter me from giving any countenance to the meaſure. I ſhould be guilty of a breach of truſt, if in an inſtance of this magnitude, I conſented to ſurrender the powers of this Government to the diſcretion of any individual. To that part of the inſtructions, therefore, in which we are "to impower and direct Mr. "Elliott to enter into an expreſs treaty for ſupporting "Moodajee Booſla's pretenſions, if he ſhall be clearly of "opinion that the chances of ſucceſs are conſiderably on his "ſide; and to leave the conditions of our participation in "an enterprize of ſuch magnitude in Mr. Elliott's judgment "both in the choice and mode of ſecuring them;" I ſhall only ſay, that I believe ſuch a truſt was never yet repoſed in a public miniſter; and that I ſhall never conſider myſelf as a party to any terms concluded without my knowledge. Appendix No. 70.

The ſecond condition relative to our aſſiſtance againſt Nizam Ally, is at firſt ſtated as a ſubject of negociation, to be referred to us for concluſion; but it is preſently added, "unleſs Moodajee Booſla ſhall require it as an indiſpenſable condition, &c." that is, in effect, we tie and unbind Mr. Elliott in the ſame breath. In the end, we authorize him to agree to ſuch terms as may be propoſed by the Rajah on this point, if he (Mr. Elliott) ſhall be perſuaded, that the execution of them will tend to the accompliſhment of our views; and in ſuch caſe, he is authorized to fulfil his part of the agreement, without waiting for our ſanction.

The firſt propoſition tends to lead the Company's arms into the heart of Indoſtan againſt the Maratta State, in the ſupport of Moodajee Booſla's pretenſions to the ſucceſſion of the Ram Raja. The ſecond may carry them into the Decan, in ſupport of his claims againſt Nizam Ally; and in both caſes, the deciſion is referred to the ſole judgment and diſcretion of Mr. Elliott. In my opinion, both the object and the means need only to be ſtated to enſure their condemnation.

After ſuch an extraordinary delegation of powers to Mr. Elliott, it does not ſeem that farther explanations were neceſſary to obviate any miſconception of the extent of his commiſſion. The laſt article, however, baniſhes every idea of limitation in this reſpect; neither the death of the Prince, with whom he is ſent to treat, and on whoſe perſonal views and diſpoſition towards us great ſtreſs has heretofore been laid, nor any change in the Government, is to affect the execution of the plan. The treaty is to be executed with his ſucceſſor, whoſoever he may be; perhaps a minor, perhaps an uſurper, perhaps a man hoſtile to the Engliſh intereſt, and it is to extend to the Government dependant on him, under any change or augmentation of it; that is, we conclude our treaty with a Prince, who either may not have half the territory now poſſeſſed by Moodajee Booſla, or who may have extended his dominion to the other ſide of India. In the latter caſe, it would be prudent at leaſt to ſpecify, in the defenſive treaty, what thoſe limits ſhould be which, the Company's troops are not to paſs, and within which the Rajah of Berar may employ them on any military ſervice he thinks proper.

Mr. Wheler's Opinion on the inſtructions to Mr. Elliott

Fort William. 18th July 1778.

Mr. Wheler—The Minute now before the Board, and on which I am called to deliver my opinion, was received by me in circulation at nine laſt night, and I am abſolutely required to give my opinion on a ſubject of this great magnitude before ten this morning: thus circumſtanced, I believe it cannot be expected that I ſhould enter into a full diſcuſſion of the various articles which compoſe the Governor's Minute before us; but that it will be ſufficient for me to declare my general ſentiments on the whole queſtion; reſerving to myſelf the right of a fuller diſcuſſion, ſhould I find it neceſſary hereafter.

But I muſt here obſerve, that Mr. Francis has expreſſed himſelf ſo ably and fully upon the ſubject, that little more is neceſſary for me than to concur with him moſt heartily in his diſſent and proteſt, and likewiſe in the ſeveral opinions delivered by him upon the propoſitions contained in the Governor's Minute.

I am entirely againſt all diſtant expeditions and connections, as contrary to the Company's inſtructions, their fundamental policy, and particularly inexpedient at this time.

I join heartily with Mr. Francis, in thinking that our whole whole force ought to be retained here for the defence of our own territory and thoſe of our Ally the Nabob of Oude; and that this ſo far from being diminiſhed by detachments ſhould be materially increaſed on this emergency. I have a very unfavourable opinion of entering into alliances with Maratta Princes, which they uſually maintain no longer than it is for their own intereſt.

Appendix. No. 71.

I am againſt the detachment under Colonel Leſlie advancing further into the Maratta territory, leſt they either meet with ſome fatal diſaſter, or we ſhould be unable to procure their return, when we may want them for the defence of Bengal.

I am at a loſs to conceive how we ſhall be able to fulfil ſtipulations with Moodajee Booſla for forwarding his pretenſions either to the dignity of Peiſhwa, or on the dominions ſaid to be taken from him by Nizam Ally; how our army is to act, or be ſupplied at that diſtance, or what good effect ſuch meaſures are to produce, either for the defence of Bengal or Bombay, other than of driving thoſe ſtates, from apprehenſions of our ambitious views, entirely into the arms of the French, and compelling them to form a general alliance for extirpating us from Indoſtan. What will then avail our alliance with the Rajah of Berar? how are we to depend on his faith; or to get back our detachment, when it will be moſt material to us?

For my part I apprehend the moſt melancholy conſequences: with theſe impreſſions it will not be wondered if I here enter my diſſent and proteſt againſt the expedition, the treaty now propoſed, and the powers propoſed to be given to Mr. Elliott, to bind this government in meaſures, which I deem neither wiſe nor expedient, and which it is highly probable we may hereafter be unable to fulfil, and thereby add our preſent propoſed Ally to the number of our enemies.

Mr. Barwell's opinion on the Inſtructions to Mr. Elliott.

Mr. Barwell—I agree to the inſtructions as they now ſtand: the arguments oppoſed to the policy that has dictated the intended treaty with Moodajee Booſla do not in my opinion weaken the grounds on which it has been regulated. The defence of Bengal is no leſs an object of it than the defence of the weſtern poſſeſſions of the Company on the Peninſula. The objections urged to the powers delegated to our Ambaſſador I conceive are fully anſwered by a reference to the map, at the inſtant the reader ſhall reaſon on the means by which it is propoſed to effect the ſafety of the Company's poſſeſſions. The time and opportunity would be loſt by a reference, in participating the reſponſibility annexed to a meaſure of ſuch a magnitude. I diſclaim every other rule for my judgment but the very object Mr. Francis himſelf propoſes. We differ as to the means; I adopt ſuch as in my opinion will prove moſt efficacious; he, ſuch as he conceives better calculated to the ſecurity of thoſe intereſts we have mutually in view.

APPENDIX, No. 71.

Bengal Secret Conſultations, 18th July 1778.

PRESENT,

The Honourable Warren Haſtings, Eſquire, Governor General, Preſident;

Richard Barwell,
Philip Francis,
Edwd Wheler,
} Eſquires.

THE Governor General having prepared inſtructions for Mr. Elliott, on his deputation to Berar, now lays them before the Board.

Mr. Wheler, Mr. Francis, and Mr. Barwell, deliver in their opinions on this ſubject.

The Governor General delivers in the following Minute:

The preſent criſis calls for action not for debate. I think it improper to waſte my time, or to conſume that of the the Board in the latter, when it can be better employed, and when I know that no argument will avail. Whenever I ſhall find it neceſſary to reply to the objections and proteſts of Meſſrs. Francis and Wheler, I ſhall addreſs myſelf to higher powers. I ſhall therefore now proceed to ſuch other propoſitions as I think neceſſary for the concluſion of this buſineſs.

In the firſt place, I move that the office draſts of the inſtructions, after they are written fair for Mr. Elliott, be ſealed and authenticated in any manner that the Board may think proper, and depoſited in ſome ſecret and ſecure place; and that they be not entered in the Conſultations until Mr. Elliott ſhall have concluded his negociations, or ſhall have made ſuch a progreſs in them as may make a longer concealment unneceſſary. The ſame caution was obſerved with the inſtructions which were delivered to me by the late Council, in the year 1773. When I was deputed from them to treat with the late Vizier at Benares, the effect was anſwerable to the intention; the ſubject of my negociation remained a profound ſecret, not only to the time of my interview with the Vizier, but from the private manner in which it was conducted, it was unknown, and ſcarcely ſurmiſed, till the concluſion of the treaty of courſe divulged it. I own I do not expect the ſame caution on the preſent occaſion, for I am ſorry to add, that the ſubject of Mr. Elliott's commiſſion is already known; yet it may have this good conſequence, that what now only paſſes as a report, wanting that authentication which the original documents, though but in poſſeſſion of a few, would give them, may ſtill continue a report, and either die away, or be little heeded. If the Board approve of this motion, it will be equally proper, that the Minutes which have been delivered upon the ſubject of the inſtructions be alſo kept back from our Records depoſited with them. Copies may notwithſtanding be taken to be ſent to the Court of Directors by the firſt and ſubſequent diſpatches.

2dly. I move that letters be written to the Preſident and Council of Bombay, to Mr. Moſtyn, and Colonel Leſlie, to inform them that Mr. Elliott is deputed to the Rajah of Berar, to treat with him on the part of this Government; to requeſt that the Preſident and Council of Bombay will adviſe Mr. Elliott of all occurrences in which the political intereſts of the Company, or of that Preſidency in particular, are concerned; and to inſtruct him upon any points reſpecting his negociation, which either their own ſituation and circumſtances may ſuggeſt, or on which he ſhall requeſt their advice. That to prevent any oppoſition of meaſures, they refrain from any engagements that may be hoſtile to the actual adminiſtration at Poonah; except ſuch as ſhall be neceſſary for the defence of their own poſſeſſions, until they ſhall have received our further information concerning the particular object and deſigns of the preſent negociation, ſhould it be found neceſſary to require their co-operation with them; and that Mr. Moſtyn may have their directions to correſpond with Mr. Elliott, and to inform him conſtantly of the ſtate of affairs at Poonah, both ſuch as reſpect the concerns of that Preſidency with the Maratta State, and the views, connections, and ſtrength of the different parties at Poonah; that our letter to Mr. Moſtyn requires from him the ſame communication. That Colonel Leſlie be required to conform to ſuch engagements as ſhall be concluded in our name with Moodajee Booſla, and as reſpect the forces under his command.

The

The Governor General's firſt propoſition being reſolved in the affirmative; the inſtructions to Mr. Elliott, and the Minute thereon, are accordingly ſealed up and depoſited in the Secretary's office.

Mr. Wheler acquieſces to the ſecond propoſition.

Mr. Francis—If the treaty be concluded Colonel Leſlie muſt conform to it.

Mr. Barwell agrees to the ſecond propoſition.

The ſecond propoſition being reſolved in the affirmative; the following letters are written to the Preſidency Bombay, Mr. Moſtyn, and to Colonel Leſlie:

To the Honourable William Hornby, Eſquire, Preſident and Council at Bombay.

Gentlemen,

Upon a mature and full conſideration of the different views and connections of the country powers of Hindoſtan, we think that an alliance with Moodajee Booſla, the Raja of Berar, may be attended with the greateſt utility in providing for the defence of the Company's poſſeſſions in the preſent war; we have therefore deputed Mr. A. K. Elliott with full inſtructions to negociate and conclude a treaty with that Chief: we requeſt that you will correſpond with Mr. Elliott; adviſe him of any occurrences that may affect the general political intereſt of the Company's ſettlements, and of your's in particular; and inſtruct him upon any points reſpecting his negociation, which either your own ſituation and circumſtances ſhall ſuggeſt, or on which he may apply to you for information and advice.

The ſucceſs of the meaſures we have entruſted to Mr. Elliott muſt depend in a great meaſure upon their preſent ſecrecy; he will however notify to you ſuch articles as he may agree to with the Raja; in the mean time to prevent any ſteps of a contrary tendency on your part, we requeſt that you will refrain from forming any engagements of a nature hoſtile to the actual adminiſtration at Poonah, excepting ſuch as may appear abſolutely neceſſary for the defence of your own poſſeſſions.

We alſo requeſt that Mr. Moſtyn may be enjoined to communicate to him conſtantly the ſtate of affairs at Poonah, both ſuch as concern the intereſts of your Preſidency with the Marattas, and the views, connections, and ſtrength of the different parties in that Government.

Fort William, the 18th July 1778. We are, &c.

P. S. Both Colonel Leſlie and Captain Elliott are poſſeſſed of copies of the ſmall cypher B, formed in 1755.

To Thomas Moſtyn, Eſquire.

Sir,

Having thought it neceſſary to depute Mr. A. K. Elliott, to Naguipore, to treat with Moodajee Booſla, the Chief of Berar, on certain points which we deem eſſential to the welfare of the Company's ſettlements in India, we requeſt that you will correſpond with him, and communicate to him, from time to time, a particular ſtate of the affairs and tranſactions at Poonah, both as far as they concern the immediate intereſts of the Company, and the views, connections, and ſtrength of the different parties in the Maratta Government.

Fort William, the 18th July 1778. We are, &c.

To Colonel Leſlie.

Sir,

Having thought it neceſſary to depute Mr. A. K. Elliott to treat with Moodajee Booſla, the Rajah of Berar, on certain points which we deem eſſential to the welfare of the Company's poſſeſſions in India, we direct that you correſpond with him on ſuch ſubjects as may be neceſſary for his information, as well with reſpect to the views, connections, and forces of the ſeveral Chiefs who govern the countries through which you may or have paſſed, as to their different ſituations and circumſtances; and that you conform to ſuch articles and engagements as he may conclude on behalf of this Government with Moodajee Booſla, as far as they may reſpect the forces under your command. Appendix. No. 71.

Fort William, the 18th July 1778. We are, &c.

Mr. Francis—I agree with the Governor General, that this is a time to act, and that none ſhould be waſted in debate. Mr. Wheler's Minute and mine have occaſioned no other delay than what was neceſſary for reading them. There are two points however, of which no notice is taken in the inſtructions, and which I think ſhould be provided for; I ſubmit them to the Governor's conſideration as they occur to me.

The firſt is, that Mr. Elliott is not inſtructed to correſpond with Colonel Leſlie's or to concert any meaſures whatever with him; yet caſes may occur in which Colonel Leſlie's opinion, as well with reſpect to the ſtate of the country he has paſſed through, and the views and forces of the different Princes who govern that country, as to the actual ſituation and circumſtances of his own army, may be very neceſſary for Mr. Elliott's information and guidance in the conduct of his negociations.

The ſecond is, that no proviſion is made for a caſe, which, whether probable or not, deſerves conſideration, as the conſequences of it may materially affect the ſucceſs of Mr. Elliott's negociations: I mean the poſſibility that Colonel Leſlie's march ſhould have been ſtopped either by direct oppoſition, or any other unforeſeen difficulties; or that he may have received a check in attempting to croſs the Cane River. In his letter of the 24th June, he informs us, "that he is not at preſent able to ſay "what part they will take, whether they mean to oppoſe "his march or not; their forces are collected between "Chatterpore and Pannah, on the banks of the Kaine "River, where Anrood Sing's forces, with Ballajee and "Beſſa Pundit, have taken poſt," we cannot be abſolutely certain of the event. It is poſſible at leaſt that ſome miſchance may have happened, and ſuch a poſſibility ought to be provided for.

The Governor General—The firſt propoſition I think very proper; although it comes within the line of his inſtructions, I have no objection to its being made a ſpecific part of them. I think it unneceſſary to make any proviſion in the inſtructions for the caſe ſuppoſed in the latter part of Mr. Francis's minute: it is included in the former.

Mr. Wheler—I agree to the firſt; and as the ſecond is a precaution which cannot be attended with any inconvenience by being inſerted in Mr. Elliott's inſtructions, I ſee no objection to its making a part of them.

Mr. Barwell—I think both theſe points included in the inſtructions, and the repetition of them unneceſſary.

Agreed, that the firſt part of Mr. Francis's Minute be added to Mr. Elliott's inſtructions.

The 20th of July the Governor General moves, that Mr. Elliott's appointment be notified to the Preſidency of Fort St. George; that they conſider whatever intelligence he may tranſmit to them as the authentic intelligence of a public Miniſter; and that they correſpond with Mr. Elliott, informing him of any events which relate to peace or war, but particularly of any changes in their political ſituation with Nizam ul Mulk. 20th 177

N. B.—The above were excluſive of the allowances made to the Colonel's ſuite.

The Governor General moves, That Mr. Elliott draw the ſame fixed allowances as Colonel *Upton, viz.

Lieutenant Colonel's pay and double full batta fixed ſalary, contingencies, including moonſhies, ſervants, &c. That Mr. Farquhar attend Mr. Elliott as Aſſiſtant, and be allowed Captain's pay and double batta. The Governor General ſuppoſes, that the whole expence of Mr. Elliott's deputation, excluſive of the neceſſary preſents, will not much exceed his perſonal allowances, as above ſtated, and thoſe of his Aſſiſtant; that he has every reaſon to believe that Mr. Elliott will be attended from Cuttack to Naigpore by a troop of the Rajah of Berar's cavalry; but ſhould this not be the caſe, he propoſes that Mr. Elliott be authorized to diſburſe ſuch ſums as may appear to him reaſonable in procuring a military eſcort. The Board agree to the Governor's motions, and alſo to Mr. Elliott's credentials, which are dated 20th July 1778.

Letter of Credence to Mr. Alexander Elliott: written the 20th July 1778.

To Alexander Elliott, Eſquire.

Whereas an intercourſe of friendſhip has long ſubſiſted between this Government and that of Berar, and it is our deſire, and we believe it to be that of Modajee Bhooſila, the Rajah or Chief for the time being of Berar, to confirm and perpetuate the ſame by a formal treaty of alliance, We the Governor General and Council, in virtue of the powers veſted in us by the King and Parliament of Great Britain, and by the Engliſh Eaſt India Company, to direct and controul the political affairs of all the Company's ſettlements in India, relying on your fidelity, prudence and integrity, have deputed you to proceed to Naigpore, or to ſuch other place where the Rajah ſhall reſide, and to negociate and conclude with Maha Raja Modajee Bhooſila, or the true Rajah for the time being of the province of Berar and its dependencies, a treaty of peace and friendſhip between him and his heirs and ſucceſſors on the one part, and the Engliſh Eaſt India Company on the other, on ſuch terms as ſhall be for the mutual benefit, honour, and ſatisfaction of both parties; and we hereby give you full powers to that effect, declaring that we will ratify and confirm whatever ſhall be ſo concluded by you in our names, and on our behalf, according to the inſtructions with which we have furniſhed you for that purpoſe.

Given in Fort William, under our hands and the ſeal of the Company, this 20th of July 1778, in the year of our Lord, or 24th of Jumma See Aſſanee 1192 Hejeree.

APPENDIX, No. 72.

Extract of a letter from the Governor General and Council in Bengal, to the Court of Directors, dated 17th Auguſt 1778.

Secret department.

Par. 5. With ſuch circumſtantial evidence before us we thought that no time ſhould be loſt in proceeding upon it as fact, and therefore agreed to take ſuch immediate meaſures as we judged neceſſary for the ſecurity of your poſſeſſions committed to our charge. We ordered Colonel Leſlie with his detachment to halt when he ſhould arrive within the diſtrict of Berar, and to wait there for further orders. We wrote to the Preſidency of Fort St. George, recommending it to them to aſſemble a ſufficient force in the neighbourhood of Pondicherry with all poſſible expedition, to be ready to inveſt that place the moment that a confirmation of the news ſhould arrive. We adviſed them to open a negociation with the Nabob Hyder Ally, who lately had made repeated applications to their Preſident to ſolicit an alliance with the Company. We ordered the balance of caſh which had accumulated in the hands of our Reſident at Owde to be immediately ſent down to the Preſidency, and called for ſuch accounts as might enable us to determine the ſtate of our immediate reſources.

6. At the enſuing meeting of the Council the Governor General propoſed a plan for an alliance with Moodajee Booſla, the Rajah of Berar, a powerful Chief, with whom a friendly intercourſe had long ſubſiſted, and who on many occaſions had manifeſted a diſpoſition uniformly amicable to the Company. As the plan is particular and worthy of your attention, we beg leave to refer to it, and to the Minutes which have been entered upon it; contenting ourſelves in this place with informing you that we have accordingly appointed Mr. Alexander Elliott with full powers and inſtructions to negociate and conclude a treaty of alliance with Moodajee Booſla. As the ſucceſs of Mr. Elliott's endeavours muſt be governed in ſome meaſure by the ſecrecy in which the powers of conceſſion confided in him are preſerved, we have thought it neceſſary for the preſent to keep his inſtructions from our records; a copy, however, with the Minutes upon them, is made a ſeparate number in the packet for your information.

26. The ſituation of affairs in the north-weſt quarter is nearly as follows: Colonel Leſlie, with the detachment under his command, notwithſtanding the promiſes of friendſhip which were delivered to him from Ballajee and the other Maratta Chiefs poſſeſſing the diſtricts about Calpee, met with ſome ſlight oppoſition from their troops in croſſing the Jumna. They retired before the advanced party when they had landed, and after ſome ſkirmiſhes retreated, leaving the fort of Calpee evacuated, which Colonel Leſlie in conſequence took poſſeſſion of. He then continued his march without further moleſtation till his arrival at Chatterpore, where he was obliged to halt for the purpoſe of repairing his gun carriages, which had been a good deal ſhaken by the badneſs of the roads.

27. When the detachment had been ſome days at Chatterpore, the above Chief continued to manifeſt the ſame ſpirit of jealouſy and oppoſition which he had at firſt diſcovered, by joining with the inferior Rajahs to throw every obſtruction and annoyance in the way that he could accompliſh. He publiſhed the ſtrongeſt prohibition to the inhabitants to furniſh grain or any kind of refreſhment to the troops; haraſſed their foraging parties; intercepted their proviſions, and drove away their cattle. In this ſtate of affairs Colonel Leſlie received intelligence of the unfortunate end of Captain Munro, who was cut off in his way to join the detachment; he therefore reſolved, from theſe combined outrages, to attack the principal ſtation of the enemy at the fort of Mow, about three coſs weſt of his encampment, where they had about 600 cavalry, and 2,000 matchlock-men, with a train of eleven pieces of cannon. Lieutenant Colonel Goddard was accordingly diſpatched patched with three battalions and a body of horſe; and after having forced his way through ſome breaches in the wall of circumvallation, he engaged and drove the enemy out of the fort. The diſperſed parties have ſince withdrawn to Rajegûr, on the banks of the river Kain, where Ballajee having aſſembled his men, ſtill declares his intention to oppoſe the progreſs of our troops.

28. By our laſt advices per Northington, you were fully informed of the change in the Government at Poonah, by the reverſion of the principal direction of affairs from the hands of Nana Furneſe to thoſe of Moraba Furneſe; of the different invitations which Moraba had given to Ragoba; and of his propoſal to charge Mr. Moſtyn with powers to conduct that Chief to Poonah. After having amuſed our Reſident for ſome time with reiterated promiſes and protractions, it evidently appeared that the profeſſions he made were calculated merely to deceive; while the real object of his intentions was nothing more than to eſtabliſh his own authority in the Government.

29. Mr. Moſtyn, after waiting a conſiderable time for the propoſed overtures to be made to Ragoba, and deſpairing of them at length, from the inſincerity of the Miniſters, and their apparent adoption of Nana's ſyſtems, which were unfavourable to the Engliſh, formally made the demands of them, which were enjoined by our letter to the Preſident and Council of Bombay, under date the 23d March. He repeatedly ſolicited their anſwer to each ſeparate article, but ineffectually, till many days after the time limited in his requiſition had elapſed.

30. About this time another revolution took effect in the adminiſtration at Poonah. Nana Furneeſe, by a conſiderable ſum of money, which he engaged to pay to Madajee Scindia and Tuccojee Holcar, having gained thoſe Chiefs over to his aſſiſtance, wreſted the Government again from the hands of Moraba; who, finding his influence and power thus failing him, applied in earneſt, as we underſtand, in concert with the principle perſons who adhered to him (among which number the name of Tuccojee appears, notwithſtanding he had been induced by a pecuniary conſideration to ſeem to ſide with Nana, and is repreſented, in conjunction with Madajee Scindia in perſon, to have compelled Moraba to ſurrender the Sicca, which was the enſign of his office, to Nana Furneeſe) to Mr. Moſtyn, offering preciſe terms to fix Ragoba in the place of Regent, if the Preſidency of Bombay would agree to bring him with the Company's forces to join their party; and delivering at the ſame time under the ſeal of the Peiſhwa, ſatisfactory aſſurances in reply to the demands which had been inſiſted upon by Mr. Moſtyn, for the accompliſhment of the treaty.

31. We have juſt received expreſs advices from the Select Committee at Bombay, dated 25th July, of which we ſend a copy in the packet, containing their proceedings on the above propoſals, which Mr. Moſtyn, being duly authorized by the party, had delivered to them in perſon; alſo other anſwers to the Reſident's demands, which Nana Furneſe upon re-aſſuming the Government at Poonah, had cauſed to be given to Mr. Lewis after Mr. Moſtyn's departure.

32. Theſe are pronounced by the Select Committee to be vague, evaſive, unſatisfactory, and amounting to a refuſal, aggravated by a compariſon with Moraba's anſwers. They therefore, in virtue of the authority given by our letter of the 23d March, proceeded to declare the anſwers of Nana a violation of the treaty; and on theſe grounds, urged by Nana's avowed predilection for the French, the proſpect of inevitable war with that nation, and the means which they would poſſeſs conjointly with the Marattas, to cut off the ſupplies required by the iſland of Bombay from the Continent, they proceeded to conſider and attend to the offers made in favour of Ragoba. In conſequence of which they have reſolved to purſue the moſt practicable way of placing him in the Regency of Poonah, by means of their own forces, aided by Colonel Leſlie's detachment, and ſupported by the party and troops of Moraba and Tuccojee, if the advices which they may receive from Europe, or from us, before they can begin their operations in September, ſhall not render a different plan of meaſures expedient.

Appendix. No. 73.

33. The general tranſactions of this Government with the Nabob of Owde being of ſuch a nature as not to require ſecrecy, and the buſineſs of war furniſhing additional matter for our private department, we have tranſferred our correſpondence with the Reſident at Owde, and various other ſubjects, to the public Records; and ſhall only mention in this place, that the Nabob having conſented to Captain Oſborne's plan, for raiſing a battalion of ſepoys for the protection of the Douab, which we recommended to him, Captain Oſborne is accordingly employed in forming this corps.

34. Nudjiff Cawn having made peace with the Seicks, is again deſirous of receiving Major Hannay as an Agent from this Government; and has addreſſed the Governor General, requeſting that he may be permitted to repair to his Court. We have in conſequence directed the Major to viſit Nudjiff Cawn, with the Vizier's conſent, and to report to us any propoſals which he may have to offer to our conſideration.

35. We have this day taken into conſideration the advices from the Select Committee of Bombay, mentioned in the foregoing part of this letter; and have approved of their reſolutions, under certain proviſoes, which will appear in the extract of our proceedings, encloſed a number in the packet.

We have the honour to be,
Honourable Sirs,
Fort William, your moſt faithful humble ſervants,

APPENDIX, No. 73.

Perſian Correſpondence; received 20th May 1778.

From Moodajee Bhoſila: received 24th May 1778.

YOUR agreeable letter under date the 3d of Rubbeeul-awal reached me on the 27th of the ſame month (26th April) and afforded me the greateſt pleaſure. You write that you have appointed to the command of the detachment deſtined for the reinforcement of Bombay, Colonel Leſlie, an officer of abilities, experience, and approved bravery, and one who is poſſeſſed of your entire confidence, and have directed him to correſpond with me; that he will accordingly apply to me on every occaſion where he may ſtand in need of aſſiſtance and ſupport, which may probably frequently happen; and you requeſt that regarding his letters in the ſame light as if written by yourſelf I will afford him every degree of aſſiſtance he may require, and conſider him as every way worthy of my entire confidence, and that I will always reckon you as my moſt warm and ſincere friend. An invariable regard to the duties of friendſhip is highly commendable and praiſeworthy, and I have accordingly replied to your ſeveral letters on this ſubject in the ſame manner which friendſhip dictated, and hope that my repeated letters have ſafely reached you. It is near twenty days ſince truſty Agents have been diſpatched from this to the Nurbudder where they wait the arrival of Colonel Leſlie, and for the greater ſecurity I have written to that gentleman to give him information of my Agents being in waiting for him there. As the veil which ſeparated us is now removed, and we are ſo intimately connected with each other, I have regarded whatever you have written me as proceeding from the dictates of friendſhip, and your wants I regard as my own. You will therefore ſend him in full confidence, and on his arrival on the banks of the Nurbudder, he will find every kind of aſſiſtance and ſupport from my

Envoys,

Envoys, both with reſpect to proviſions and other neceſſaries, as well as inſtructions for his route. I have not yet heard from Colonel Leſlie; as ſoon as I do, I ſhall return him a ſatisfactory anſwer.

From Modajee Bhoſila: received 4th July 1778.

I have been favoured with your agreeable letter in reply to two of mine, and expreſſing your pleaſure at the proofs of my ſteady friendſhip in my ready compliance with your requeſt, reſpecting a free paſſage for your troops, in having deputed a truſty perſon to meet them on the banks of the Nurbudder, and invited the Commander to advance with confidence and ſecurity; and adding, that by the bleſſing of God the greateſt advantages will be derived to our reſpective ſtates by our intimate union; alſo, that you have, agreeably to my deſire, directed Beneram Pundit to repair to the Commander of the forces, and accompany him, and doubt not of his compliance. This letter reached me on the 4th of Jummadee-ul-awul, 3d of April, and made me very happy by its contents. Your many friendly letters, reſpecting the diſpatch of your forces to Bombay, which are filled with profeſſions of the moſt ſincere and perfect friendſhip, and of the mutual advantages which will accrue therefrom to our reſpective ſtates, have taken ſuch deep root in my mind, that I am not only perfectly convinced of them, but entertain even ſtill greater expectations from ſo intimate an union. With reſpect to the intrigues and connection of the Poonah Miniſters with the French, and their eſtrangement from the Engliſh, you obſerve, that although you do not implicitly credit all the various reports you have received on this ſubject, yet it is the duty of a Ruler of a State to be always on his guard, and prepared againſt every event, and that my remarks on this ſubject were very juſt and proper. The matter ſtands thus: it has been the invariable practice of my family ſteadily to purſue a friendſhip once contracted, and to act with the greateſt candour, and to give ſuch friend every neceſſary piece of intelligence which comes to our knowledge; this, by the bleſſing of God, you have already had, and will have ſtill further proofs of. The good faith and integrity of the Engliſh nation is alſo become a proverb, and are moſt firmly impreſſed on my mind, they are clearly proved to me by the intimate and unreſerved communications which you make in the courſe of the correſpondence which has been eſtabliſhed between us. God, who penetrates the ſecrets of the heart, knows the ſincerity of this declaration, which is ſufficient.

Whilſt my Son, and my Miniſter Dewagur Pundit were at Poorunder, all that they ſaw there was afterwards communicated to you by the latter. In your firſt letter on this ſubject, you write that the Poonah Miniſters had received the French vackeel, and granted him the port of Choul Bunder, and a topekana, and eſtranged themſelves from you, and formed connections with the enemies of the King of England; and that it was incumbent on you to guard againſt their deſigns; I therefore, with a view of diſcovering their real intentions, wrote letters, in which I ſlightly alluded to theſe matters, and now ſend you, for your inſtruction, the ſubſtance of the Peiſhwa's reply to me and Luckman vackeel. You muſt likewiſe have received continual advices from that quarter, and will receive further. The Peiſhwa informs me likewiſe, that he has written to Calcutta aſſurances of his ſteady adherence to the treaty, and information of his having given the French vackeel his diſmiſſion: this letter if it has reached you, will alſo give you further information.

The whole to be deduced from this is, that it is ſound policy, and the duty of the Ruler of a State to attend to all the advices he receives; to ſearch into the truth of them, and to take his meaſures on whatever is proved true; keeping himſelf conſtantly on his guard, and prepared againſt every event. You are bleſſed with wiſdom and experience; it is therefore unneceſſary for me to dwell on ſuch ſubjects to you. I have written two or three different letters to Colonel Leſlie, and have received a letter from him, accompanying one from you. My Agents have been waiting near two months on the banks of the Nurbudder, in expectation of the arrival of the forces; I do not yet know if they have croſſed the Jummun. As the rainy ſeaſon is at hand, and they have a long march before them, and have not yet arrived on this ſide the Jummun, I requeſt you will inform me if they are to advance or not, that I may give inſtructions to my Agents accordingly. I am much pleaſed that you have, agreeable to my deſire, ſent Beneram to join the detachment; it was highly proper.

I have not replied to the Peiſhwa's letter, but ſhall do it in whatever manner you intimate to me. I wait your reply, which I beg may be expeditious.

Knowing me ever anxious for your welfare, favour me with frequent accounts of your health, views, and the ſtate of affairs, which will be the means of encreaſing our friendſhip.

Encloſure in the above.

Copy of a Letter in the Hindoo language from the Peiſhwa to Maha Raja Modajee Bhoſila and Luckman Row vackeel; received at Nagpore the 5th of Jummadee-ul-Awul, 4th of April 1778.

The particulars reſpecting the French are as follows: This is a powerful ſtate, and every power is deſirous of ſending Ambaſſadors to cultivate its friendſhip, and ſeek its connection. To refuſe admittance to the Ambaſſadors of the French Monarch, or other powers charged with propoſitions of friendſhip from their Maſter, would be highly improper, and not to hear their repreſentations would be inconſiſtent with the credit and dignity of the ſtate. It is the duty of the Ruler of a State to make himſelf acquainted with the affairs of every ſtranger; for which purpoſe it was neceſſary to admit the French vackeel to an audience, and he was treated in a manner becoming the dignity of this ſtate.

When a treaty of friendſhip and union has been eſtabliſhed with the Engliſh, ſo that no ſhadow of difference remains, to break this connection for the ſake of an alliance with the French, would not only be a proof of the greateſt folly, but would be totally unprofitable. The report of the grant of a fort to the French, and topekanna to their Ambaſſador, is entirely groundleſs; the matter is this: when the French vackeel arrived, he brought with him merchandize; and by my permiſſion landed them at Readunda; part of them he ſold there, and part at Poonah and Poorunder. His ſtay here ſo long is ſolely to collect in the money for the goods.

At what period have the French ſhewn themſelves, or what great action have they performed, to induce any one to ſeek their friendſhip or connection? and for what purpoſe ſhould a fort and topekanna be entruſted to them? I have given them neither one nor the other; I have of my own accord given the French vackeel his diſmiſſion to his own country; his ſtay is ſolely to collect the amount of the merchandize he has ſold; it would be improper forcibly to drive him away; but I underſtand he will ſhortly depart. It is therefore improper that the Engliſh Chiefs ſhould form any ſuſpicions of this quarter on that account, and I am convinced they will not give way to any ſuch. I have not, nor will ever deviate a hair's breadth from the duties of friendſhip to them. You will therefore (this is addreſſed to the vackeel) repreſent this matter in a clear light to the Rajah, and cauſe him to write letters, explaining it ſatisfactorily, to Calcutta; I have likewiſe written to Calcutta on this ſubject to remove all doubts which may have ariſen. Should this matter be repreſented differently by any news-writer, you will pay no degree of credit to it.

From Dewagur Pundit: received 6th July 1778.

I have been honoured in an happy hour with your gracious letter, which afforded me the greateſt ſatisfaction, and by its contents gave great pleaſure to the Rajah. The ſending Beneram Pundit to accompany the Commander of the Detachment was highly proper; the great and mutual advantages which will naturally be produced by the unreſerved communication of your mutual ſentiments in the correſpondence which has been eſtabliſhed between you and the Rajah, by which your friendſhip will be carried to the higheſt pitch, will appear at a proper opportunity. The ſubſtance of a letter from the Peiſhwa to my Maſter and Luckman Row is ſent for your information. For further particulars permit me to refer you to my Maſter's letter.

To Maha Raja Modajee Bhoſila: written 24th July.

I have already written you a full account of the affairs of this quarter, and of my deſign to depute Mr. Elliott to conclude a perpetual treaty of friendſhip and alliance between you and the Company, on ſuch terms as may be for the mutual benefit, honour, and ſatisfaction of both parties. That Gentleman took leave of me on the 20th inſtant, or 24th of Rubbee-aſſanee, and begun his journey to Naigpore, where he will have the pleaſure of delivering you this letter. I have already written you ſo fully on the abilities, prudence, and worth of this gentleman, who poſſeſſes my entire eſteem and confidence, that it is needleſs to enlarge on the ſubject. I ſhall therefore only repeat that nothing has paſſed between you and me, either by letters or through Beneram Pundit, but what he is informed of, and that he has full power from the Government to negociate and conclude a perpetual treaty of alliance with you, in ſuch manner that whatever he concludes in our name and on our parts, we will ratify and confirm.

I requeſt that you will regard him as myſelf, and pay equal attention to whatever he ſhall repreſent to you, and treat him with every mark of honour and regard.

To Dewagur Pundit, D°

Containing the ſubſtance of the above letter, with this addition. I rely on you that you will exert yourſelf ſo warmly with your Maſter as to enſure a fortunate iſſue to the negociations entruſted to Mr. Elliott, which will be productive of the moſt advantageous conſequences to both ſtates; I am too well acquainted with the wiſdom of the Maha Rajah's Government and of your adminiſtration, to propoſe any thing which will not add to the power of the Maha Rajah, and to the reputation of his Miniſters.

To Modajee Bhoſila: written 27th July.

I have already written you repeatedly on the ſubject of my deſign to depute Mr. Elliott to conclude a treaty of perpetual friendſhip and alliance between you and the Company.

That gentleman took leave of me the 20th inſtant, 24th of Rubbee-aſſanee, and as he means to proceed with the greateſt expedition, I doubt not but you, agreeable to my requeſt, will uſe every means in your power to prevent any delay or obſtructions to his journey. I hope he will arrive almoſt as ſoon as you receive this letter.

He is a gentleman of my own houſe, and particularly attached to me, and of great abilities; he poſſeſſes my entire confidence, and is inveſted with the fulleſt powers from this Government, which has the controul of all the Engliſh poſſeſſions and forces in India, to conclude a firm treaty with you in our name and on our behalf, and whatever he ſhall ſo conclude we will confirm and ratify.

I therefore requeſt that you will regard him in the ſame light as myſelf, and pay equal attention to whatever he ſhall repreſent to you, as if it had proceeded from my own mouth.

The advantages to be mutually derived from ſo intimate an union as I propoſe to form with you, will be evident to you who are poſſeſſed of the greateſt judgment and penetration; and I doubt not but you will enter warmly into the propoſals which will be made to you by Mr. Elliott, and conclude with him a treaty on ſo firm a baſis as may continue to our lateſt poſterity.

APPENDIX, No. 74.

From the Nabob Nizam ul Dowlah to the Governor. No date: received 21ſt June 1778.

I AM given to underſtand, that the gentlemen at Bengal have wrote to you to prepare warlike ſtores, &c. in order to aſſiſt Ragonaut Row; and that you are accordingly making preparations for that purpoſe. When the Company at Madras have entered into a ſolemn treaty with me, that wherever my enemies are theirs ſhall be alſo, what conſiſtency is there in their giving their aſſiſtance to Ragonaut Row, my profeſſed enemy? either the gentlemen of Bengal are not acquainted with the engagements of thoſe at Madras, or if they are, they ſuppoſe that theſe engagements are thoſe of the Company at Madras, and not of the Company of Bengal; which of theſe two am I left to ſuppoſe? If you have not already acquainted them with the treaty which ſubſiſts between us, you ought to do it now; but if the gentlemen at Bengal in ſupporting Ragonaut Row are determined to make war with the Pundit Purdhaun Madherow, I ſhall be obliged, in conſideration of the treaty ſubſiſting between him and me, to give him every poſſible aſſiſtance on my part.

You, Sir, will be pleaſed to communicate theſe particulars to the Governor of Bengal, and acquaint me with the reſult of it. What ſhall I ſay more?

From the Nabob Nizam Ally Khan: received 23d July 1778.

When a merchant of Bengal formerly came here with rarities, and curious productions of that quarter, I diſcourſed with him on the treaty which ſubſiſted between me and Row Pundit Purdhaun, Madho Narrain Row, of the deceitful murder of Narrain Row by Ragonaut Row, his expedition againſt me, the war which enſued, his ſubſequent defeat, and the renewal of my engagements on the firmeſt baſis with Pundit Purdhaun; all which particulars I enlarged upon to the ſaid merchant, that he might give you a minute detail of them, which I doubt not he did. Some time ago, when Colonel Upton quitted Poorunder, and returned by the route of Hyderabad, he paid me a viſit: I took the opportunity of diſcourſing largely with him of the bad faith and invincible villainy of Ragonaut Row, and of the renewal of the treaty between me and Pundit Purdhaun, and ſhewed him the treaty which the Governor of Madras had contracted with me, of which (if you are deſirous of it) I will ſend you a copy for your inſpection. The treaty I allude to declares, that my enemies are the Company's and the Company's enemies mine; that the Company ſhall not protect the enemies of my Government, and in like manner, I ſhall not protect the enemies of theirs; I therefore aſked Colonel Upton, "whilſt ſuch "a treaty ſubſiſts, what is the motive of giving refuge to "Ragonaut Row, the inveterate enemy of my Govern-"ment, and labouring at his eſtabliſhment?"—Colonel Upton replied, "The King of England, who has ſent out "a Company to Bengal (Council I ſuppoſe he means) "did it ſolely with this view, that they might fully inform "themſelves of all the treaties which had been contracted "with every power, and comply with the terms of them."

It ſeems that the Nizam of Bengal is unacquainted with this treaty, as I have received repeated advice that the deſign of eſtabliſhing Ragonaut Row is again taken up, and that he is levying armies; what can be the deſign of this I cannot fully penetrate. When it is clearly expreſſed in the treaty, that the enemies of my Government are the enemies of the Company, and the enemies of the Company my enemies, to what can I attribute this deſign, except your ignorance that ſuch treaty exiſts, or by ſuppoſing that the treaty being made by the Company at Madras, is not binding on the Company at Bombay? one or other of theſe ſuppoſitions I muſt abide by. My meaning in what I have above written is this; that if you have any quarrel with Pundit Purdhaun, on any other account than that of Ragonant Row, it matters not to me, I have nothing to do with it; but if you engage in hoſtilities with Pundit Purdhaun on account of Ragonaut Row, as I am inviolable in my engagements, and am bound by a firm treaty to Pundit Purdhaun in caſe Ragonaut Row makes war on him, it becomes my indiſpenſable duty, in conſequence of ſuch engagement, to give my aſſiſtance to Row Pundit Purdhaun: you will in ſuch caſe refer to the treaty I have before alluded to. It was neceſſary to intimate theſe particulars to you, and I have accordingly done ſo.

Should you aſk, why did the rulers at Poonah receive a French vackeel? the anſwer is this: after the departure of Colonel Upton, and his arrival with you, freſh advices were received, that preparations were making at Bombay to bring back Ragonaut Row. In the mean time a French vackeel arriving at Poonah, in conſequence of the reports which prevailed univerſally that Ragonaut Row was again becoming formidable, the Poonah Miniſters detained him with them, arguing thus: if the peace eſtabliſhed by Colonel Upton is preſerved, it is well; in caſe it ſhould be broken, it is political to have the French vackeel. On theſe grounds they detained him; notwithſtanding which, when I heard it I wrote to them in the ſtrongeſt terms, on the impropriety of their keeping a French vackeel with them, and they accordingly gave him his diſmiſſion, and I doubt not he is already ſet off.

APPENDIX, No. 75.

To the Nabob Nizam ul Dowlah: written 24th July.

YOUR friendly letter arrived in a fortunate hour, and made me happy by its contents. You write—[Here follows a repetition of the ſubſtance of this letter.]

The fact is this: it is now more than a year ſince an Agent from the court of France arrived at Poonah, and commenced a negociation with the Miniſters there, for the formation of an alliance between the French and the Marattas; nearly about the ſame time we were informed, by authentic advices from England, that the King of France had formed the plan of an alliance with the Marattas, for the purpoſe of aſſiſting him in his hoſtilities againſt the Engliſh; and we have ſince received a certain knowledge, that engagements have actually been executed between the Miniſters of Poonah, and the French Agent, in conſideration of which the latter is to bring a force of Europeans and military ſtores to Poonah; and this engagement ſubſiſts, notwithſtanding the friendſhip which was contracted between the Maratta State and the Company, and notwithſtanding the changes which have taken place in that Adminiſtratron; of this I repeat that I have a certain knowledge: In the mean time war has been declared between the Engliſh nation and the French. The foreknowledge of all theſe circumſtances induced me to prepare a force to be ſent to Bombay; not for the ſupport of Ragonaut Row, to whom this Government is under no engagement, nor to make war with the Miniſters with whom we are in friendſhip, but in conformity to the duties incumbent on this Government, charged with the care and protection of all the Engliſh poſſeſſions in India, for the purpoſe of ſecuring the Preſidency of Bombay, which is now expoſed to a war with our declared enemies the French, and may be alſo involved in one with the Marattas, for ſuch are their apparent deſigns. If theſe deſigns really exiſt, we ſhall certainly oppoſe them with all our power; and the Miniſters, by making themſelves our enemies, are alſo yours, and by treaty you are bound to oppoſe them as ſuch, not to take a part with them: if, on the contrary, the deſigns attributed to them have been erroneouſly furmiſed, or they, refraining from the dictates of enmity and bad faith, ſhould relinquiſh them, we ſhall undertake nothing prejudicial to their intereſts, but our friendſhip and the ſucceſsful operation of our arms will eventually prove a benefit to them. The ſum of all I have ſaid is this: we are the friends of the Peiſhwa and of the Miniſters of Poonah, and ſhall continue whilſt they are our friends; we ſhall be their enemies, if they compel us to be ſuch by becoming our enemies; and you, by the treaty which you have quoted, and the precepts which you have preſcribed for my conduct, will remain their friend, or become their enemy, from the ſame cauſes.

As I wiſh to preſerve inviolable the friendſhip and engagements which ſubſiſt between you and the Company, I have thought proper to give you this explanation of my conduct, and have no doubt but you, actuated by the ſame motives, will adopt ſuch meaſures as may tend to the confirmation and daily increaſe of our friendſhip, which muſt be attended with the greateſt mutual advantages.

Knowing me ever anxious for your welfare, let me frequently have the pleaſure to hear from you.

APPENDIX, No. 76.

From Nizam ul Dowlah: received 28th January 1779.

I HAVE received the letter you did me the favour to write, and perfectly underſtand the contents of what you ſay in reply to my former letter, as well as on the ſubject of your determination to preſerve the faith of former treaties; your having no intention to ſupport Ragonaut Row, or wiſh to engage in hoſtilities with the Poonah Miniſters.

The good faith I have found in the Company exceeds what I have experienced from any other power, and imagining that you might not be acquainted with all the treaties executed by the Company, I formerly wrote you full information on that head, and God be praiſed you are ſteady and firm in your adherance to former treaties? with reſpect to what you write on the ſubject of Ragonaut Row, the conduct you have purſued is ſuch as faith of treaty required.

I formerly in the ſtrongeſt terms deſired the Poonah Miniſters not to give encouragement to the French vackeel: they are now aſhamed of their conduct, and have not the leaſt idea of connecting themſelves with the French; but ſhould the leaſt ſymptom of ſuch a deſign be proved on them, I will give immediate information to you, and withdraw myſelf from my engagements with them. you may be perfectly aſſured of this.

Let me frequently have the pleaſure to hear from you the events and occurrences of that quarter.

Enclosures in a letter from Mr. Moſtyn: received 31ſt July 1778.

N° 1. Copy of a letter from Ballajee Jennarjam to Nizam ul Dowlah.

THE diſturbances on foot owe their riſe to certain perſons who ſet juſtice at defiance, and have invited Dada from Bombay; but your ſacred mind may be perfectly ſatisfied that they will effect nothing, for Siccaram Baboo is joined with me: I hope that when I require troops troops from you, you will diſpatch Zuffer ul Dowlah Bahadre to this quarter with the greateſt expedition, and that your Highneſs will repair in perſon to Aurungabad, and canton there; that awed and terrified by your vicinitude, no perſon may be able to get head; the ambitious Engliſh will not effect any thing: we ſhall manage the Engliſh by means of the French, whoſe vackeel is with us, with whom we have entered into a treaty. After the preſent diſturbances are quelled, we ſhall call in his troops, and act in the moſt vigorous manner, to be a future example to others. You will learn further particulars from the Arzee of Kiſhen Row Billal. I have nothing to add but aſſurances of my reſpect.

N° 2. Copy of a Treaty concluded through the vackeel Monſieur St. Lubin, by Ballajee Jennajun, as follows:

After an end is put to the diſturbances of Moojee Pundit, which will ſhortly be eaſily effected, you ſhall call forces from your own country, and in conjunction with the army of Seremunt Saib; which ſhall join you; you will act in the moſt vigorous manner; for which ſervice a Jaghire ſhall be beſtowed on you from the Peiſhwa's Sirkar; but you muſt remain quiet at preſent; the opportunity of acting will ſhortly preſent itſelf, and the nation which has preſumptuouſly ſet itſelf up and adopted maxims of injuſtice, and by its influence protected many perſons who ſet right at defiance, ſhall be properly dealt with, and receive the puniſhment due to their actions. Dated the 15th of Rubbee Aſſaine in the 19th year of the reign, or 13th of May, Anno Domini 1778.

APPENDIX, No 78.

Intelligence from the Decan: received the 23d of June 1778.

RAGONAUT Row before he began his march from Bombay, diſpatched Ummajee Mahadar to Hyder Naig, informing him, that the Engliſh of Bombay were of his party; and that, if he wiſhed to promote his intereſt, he would march from the Jungbudder, and join him; and by means of their united force, his affairs would be ſatisfactorily concluded. Hyder Naig replied, that he was then engaged in a war, but that as ſoon as it was at an end, he would attend to his intereſts. Ummajee Mahadoa is ſtill with him (3d of Rubbe Aſſanee, 1ſt May.)

Siccaram Pundit, Nanna Purnaveeſe, &c. have written to Hurry Pundit Purdkea and Scindia. It appears that they can do nothing without the concurrence of Hurry Pundit Purdkea, who is become very powerful, having near 60,000 horſe with him, excluſive of the force under Scindia and Dhouſa. Nanna Purnaveeſe and Hurry Pundit are in their hearts united in the deſign to keep the Government in the hands of Mhadoo Row, the ſon of Narrain Row, and to give the Dewanny to Bajee Row, the ſon of Ragonaut Row, an infant of three years old, with Moraba Purnaveeſe for his Naib, and to leave the adminiſtration in the hands of Ragonaut Row, until Madlo Row and Bajee Row arrive at the age of maturity; but that he ſhall conduct the buſineſs with the advice of Nanna Purnaveeſe and Siccaram Pundit, to keep up an union amongſt the ſeveral Chiefs, and to tranſact the buſineſs on the former plan.

Extract of Bengal Secret Conſultations, the 18th July 1778.

THE Governor General—As the time will not admit of any delay in raiſing the three battalions of ſepoys, which are to be maintained by Rajah Cheyt Sing, I propoſe that the Commander in Chief be deſired to give orders immediately for that purpoſe.

Agreed to. The following letter is therefore written to Brigadier General Stibbert.

To Brigadier General Giles Stibbert.

Sir,

We have already acquainted you with our reſolution, to cauſe three battalions of ſepoys to be raiſed and maintained at the expence of Rajah Cheyt Sing, for the defence of the Company's poſſeſſions: as the preſent criſis will not admit of delay, we requeſt that you will give the neceſſary orders for raiſing and forming theſe corps with all poſſible expedition.

Fort William, 18th July 1778. We are, &c.

To Rajah Chite Sing, D°

War having been declared between the Courts of Great Britain and France, by the former on the 18th of March, or 18th of Suffer, and by the latter on the 30th of March, or 1ſt of Rubbee-ul-awal 1192, Hejeree, I am to requeſt of you, in my own name and that of the Board, as a ſubject of the Company, bound to promote their intereſt on every occaſion, to contribute your ſhare of the burden of the preſent war, which will equally affect your intereſt and ours. It has been determined by the Board, that an eſtabliſhment of three regular battalions of ſepoys, to be commanded by Britiſh officers, be raiſed and maintained at your expence, and employed on ſuch ſervice as the ſituation of affairs may require. I have no doubt but, regarding this meaſure equally conducive to your own and the Company's intereſt, you will with the greateſt readineſs comply; and I hope you will intimate your conſent without delay.

From Maha Raja Chite Sing: received 30th July 1778.

I have been honoured by the receipt of your gracious letter, communicating the intelligence of a war having broke out between the Courts of Great Britain and France; and deſiring me to take on myſelf a ſhare of the burden of expence. My patron, I am the ſervant of the Sirkar. I will write you more fully hereafter. On all occaſions I am hopeful of your Highneſs's favour and ſupport.

Appendix No. 80.

From Rajah Chite Sing: received 28th September 1778.

I HAVE been honoured by your gracious letter, deſiring that I will, as a ſubject of the Company, take on myſelf the payment of five lacks of Muchledar rupees, as my proportion of the expence of the preſent war, and pay them to Mr. Graham: although I have no ability left, and the great burden of expence I laboured under from the time of the deceaſe of the late Rajah, till the expiration of the Nabob Vizier's authority over me is well known to God and your Excellency; yet ſolely with a view to a compliance with your orders, and to prove my fidelity, having ſold and pledged every thing belonging to me, I will make good the aforeſaid ſum in inſtalments in ſix or ſeven months. Although by parting with my effects, which are clearly neceſſary, I am left in a ſtate of inability for the future, yet you will ſhew me ſuch favour, that I ſhall again recover myſelf.

As a time is required for the ſtate of my effects, and raiſing the money, I hope from your kindneſs, that the officers of Government may take from me in different payments the ſaid ſum in Sonaut rupees; as I ſhall not be able to procure this ſum in Muchledar rupees; and that you will be graciouſly pleaſed to affix your ſignature to my requeſts, that I may apply myſelf with ſatisfaction and aſſiduity to the buſineſs of the Sirkar.

To Rajah Chite Sing, Do

I have been favoured with your letter, intimating your conſent to the requiſition made to you by this Government ment as a ſubject of the Company, to bear a part of the expence of the preſent war: I am pleaſed with your ready compliance; of this indeed I could have no doubt, as your intereſt is equally concerned with the Company's in the ſucceſs of it. The expence of keeping up three regular battalions has been calculated and found to amount to five lacks of rupees per annum, at which rate your annual ſubſidy has been accordingly fixed; I am therefore to deſire in the name of this Government, that you will pay immediately to Mr. Thomas Graham the ſum of five lacks of Muchledar rupees. Thus you will perform your duty to the Company, and ſecure their favour and ſupport.

Extract of Bengal Secret Conſultations, the 4th May 1778.

PRESENT,

The Honourable Warren Haſtings, Governor General, Preſident;

Richard Barwell, Philip Francis, Edward Wheler, } Eſquires.

READ the following letters and encloſure from the Reſident at the Nabob's Court.

Honourable Sir, and Sirs,

I do myſelf the honour to encloſe you muſter returns of his Excellency the Vizier's body guard, and the three battalions commanded by Major Hannay, for the month of February laſt. I have, &c.

Lucknow, 20th March 1778. (Signed) Nath^{l} Middleton, Reſident at the Vizier's Court.

Honourable Sir, and Sirs,

Encloſed I have the honour to tranſmit you my accounts for the Hindoo month of Faugun, or from the 12th February to the 13th March 1778, Engliſh ſtile, agreeably to the accompanying liſt.

I have, &c.

Lucknow, 4th April 1778. (Signed) Nath^{l} Middleton, Reſident at the Vizier's Court.

Honourable Sir, and Sirs,

I have been duly honoured with your commands of the 9th March; and have the pleaſure to acquaint you, that after being fully aſſured by Mr. Barwell of Fyzoola Cawn's neither keeping up any conſiderable force, holding improper correſpondence or connections, or appearing in any reſpect to have violated the engagements he entered into in his treaty with the late Nabob Sujah ul Dowlah, I communicated to the Vizier the Honourable Board's permiſſion to me to guarantee on the part of the Honourable Company, the treaty ſubſiſting between him and Fyzoola Cawn; provided his Excellency ſhould give his concurrence to that permiſſion.

The Nabob having approved of the purpoſes of Mr. Barwell's miſſion, and being aſſured from his report, and other concurrent circumſtances, that Fyzoola Cawn's conduct furniſhed no grounds of accuſation by which he could be juſtified in an infringement of the rights confirmed to him by treaty, readily and without heſitation conſented to a renewal of the treaty under guarantee of the Honourable Company only, ſignifying his expectations that ſome complimentary preſent, conformable to conſtant cuſtom, and ſuitable to his rank ſhould be made him by Fyzoola Cawn on the delivery of the Khelaut: as I could not entertain a doubt from Fyzoola Cawn's anxiety for the completion of this buſineſs under the ſanction of the Honourable Board, but that he would of his own accord be ready to ſhew the Vizier ſuch marks of gratitude and reſpect as would manifeſt his due conſideration of the great obligation conferred on him, I preſumed to aſſure his Excellency he might certainly expect to receive on the occaſion an acknowledgement not diſparaging to his rank and dignity, nor betraying in Fyzoola Cawn a deficient ſenſe of the benefits he derived from an alliance with his Excellency.—From what I was able to diſcover in my converſation with the Vizier, I have reaſon to believe he looks not to any ſum which could be conſidered as a pecuniary acquiſition, but confines his expectations merely to ſuch complimentary nuzzers as are uſually offered in token of reſpect by a ſubordinate to a ſuperior power on ſimilar occaſions: I have therefore taken upon me to deſire Mr. Barwell to repreſent this matter in its proper light to Fyzoola Cawn; and I have no doubt but that Chief's concurrence in whatever may be reaſonable and proper, will cloſe the negociation in a manner entirely ſatisfactory to the Vizier.

I have the honour to encloſe for your peruſal copies of the Vizier's treaty with Fyzoola Cawn, and of the obligation which I have entered into in conſequence of the authority you were pleaſed to delegate to me on the part of the Honourable Company; and for your more particular information. I muſt alſo beg leave to trouble you with a complete tranſcript of my correſpondence with Mr. Barwell on the ſubject of his miſſion, commencing with my original inſtructions, which I hope will meet with the Honourable Board's approbation.

In obedience to your commands I have reſerved a ſum in my hands amounting to ten lacks of rupees, for the uſe of the detachment under orders of march for Bombay, which I am converting as faſt as I poſſibly can into gold mohurs; but ſo ſmall is the circulation of gold currency in theſe parts, and ſo much is it the practice among men of property to hoard it up, as riches eaſily concealed, that I am afraid I ſhall not be able to procure any conſiderable amount within the time it may be wanted. The Honourable Board, however, will pleaſe to reſt aſſured that no endeavours or aſſiduity on my part ſhall be wanting to ſecure as large a ſum as poſſible; as gold coinage, from the facility of carriage, muſt be infinitely preferable to ſilver ſpecie, which would be extremely bulky and difficult of conveyance.

The reſervation of ſo conſiderable a ſum for the ſervice of the Bombay detachment has neceſſarily fruſtrated my intention of making the Honourable Board an immediate remittance; however as the ſeaſon of the heavy collections is now arrived, and the harveſt to all appearance a very promiſing one, I flatter myſelf I ſhall ſhortly have repleniſhed my treaſury, ſo as to admit of my carrying my former intention into effect, leaving a ſufficiency for the exigencies of the current ſervice.

I have, &c.

Lucknow, 10th April 1778. (Signed) Nath^{l} Middleton.

APPENDIX, No. 82.

From Nejif Khan: received 10th Auguſt 1778.

A LONG ſpace of time has elapſed ſince I have had the pleaſure to hear from you, which gives the greateſt pain to a heart which abounds with affection for you, and to which the news of your welfare would communicate the greateſt pleaſure. I hope from your ſincere regard for me, that you will number me amongſt your moſt zealous friends, and will frequently make me happy by your letters.

In the courſe of laſt year you were kindly pleaſed to diſpatch Major Hannay, to ſtrengthen and confirm the ties between us. The wars in which I was then engaged with Zabita Khan, the Seiks and Mahrattas, would not admit of my diſmiſſing a certain perſon, or of my inviting Major Hannay to come to me and acting agreeably to the pleaſure of the Engliſh Chiefs. From theſe events the negociations commenced laſt year were ſuſpended.

As I am deſirous at all times and on all occaſions to comply with the will of the illuſtrious Chiefs, to which I will never act contrary, I requeſt that you will now give directions to Major Hannay to repair to me without delay. God willing, on his arrival, every thing ſhall be done agreeable to the will of the illuſtrious Chiefs. My zeal and attachment to the Company is firmly rooted in my heart. Your Excellency may be fully aſſured that I will never take any ſtep which may be diſagreeable to the illuſtrious Chiefs; and if the circumſtances and particular occurrences of the times, all the particulars of which are well known to you, neceſſarily cauſed a delay in my compliance with the wiſhes of the illuſtrious Chiefs, you muſt not impute it to me as a fault. I am with my whole heart and ſoul attached to the Company, from whom I have alſo expectations of great advantages. How can it then be ſuppoſed that I would act in ſuch a manner as to deſtroy them? Your Excellency may rely on this with the moſt implicit confidence, and ſend Major Hannay, when every thing ſhall be conducted agreeably to your wiſhes.

Knowing me entirely attached to you, I hope that till I have the happineſs of a meeting with you, you will favour me with frequent letters and commiſſions, which will be the cauſe of the greateſt joy to me.

Intelligence of tranſactions at the Royal Durbar, from the 1ſt of Rujjub to the 4th, or from the 26th to the 29th of July: received the 20th Auguſt.

A newspaper was preſented from the Camp of Nejif Cooley Khan, mentioning, that the ſaid Khan had taken from the fort of Shaheepore ſeveral pieces of artillery, and a magazine of grain, and had diſtributed the latter amongſt his ſepoys; that having given the fort into the charge of one of his creatures, an Afghan, he marched from thence with Afraſcal Khan, againſt the fort of Kaeſur, where the ſons of Chatter Jaut reſide, who not being able to oppoſe him, commenced a negociation for the payment of a further tribute, which is not yet concluded.

An Arzie was then preſented from the Nabob Mujed-ul-Dowlah, ſetting forth, that the Nabob Zoolfikar-ul-Dowlah had conceived a hatred to him, and was coming to the preſence with a determination to proſecute his evil intentions againſt him; that this circumſtance, joined to the clamours of the ſepoys and the ſervants of the Mohul, had placed him in the moſt alarming ſituation. His Majeſty having peruſed it, replied, the ſervants of the Mohul, &c. will undoubtedly inſiſt on the payment of their dues, and with reſpect to his accuſation of the Nabob Zoolfikar-ul-Dowlah, why does he act in ſuch manner as to draw on himſelf his hatred and reſentment, he points himſelf out as the object of his vengeance; we are therefore remedileſs. At this inſtant news was brought that the ſepoys had ſurrounded the houſe of the Nabob Mujed-ul-Dowlah in a clamorous manner, on which his Majeſty ſent a meſſage to Litafut Ally Khan, to go and appeaſe the diſturbance; ſoon after which an Arzie was preſented from the Nabob Mujed ul-Dowlah, that Litafut Ally Khan had quelled the diſturbance, but that he had no money in his hands from whence to pay them their arrears, and notwithſtanding he had made the moſt preſſing inſtances to the jewellers to lend money on the royal jewels to receive them in pawn, agreeable to his Majeſty's directions for raiſing money for defraying the expence of the nuptials of the Princeſſes, they had abſolutely refuſed to lend any money on them. His Majeſty having read it, ſaid, it is plain that Mujed-ul-Dowlah's evil day is arrived.——Hiſſum-ul-Dowlah made attempts of the ſame nature, and met with the chaſtiſement of his demerits. Mujed-ul-Dowlah has acted treacherouſly, and embezzled the income of the provinces, and when having no other reſource I ordered our jewels to be depoſited and money raiſed on them, he has contrived to fruſtrate his intent. It is plain from this that he deſigns to ruin himſelf after the example of Hiſſum-ul-Dowlah. Appendix. No. 84.

Intelligence of Mujed-ul-Dowlah.

At a muſter taken of the ſepoys there were great clamours for their arrears, and many of the Najeeb ſepoys inſiſted on immediate payment from Roſſe Khan their Chief, over whom they placed a guard. The Nabob being alarmed ſtationed guards at his houſe, with orders to oppoſe and chaſtiſe any of the Nejub ſepoys who ſhould attempt to enter; on hearing this a party of them went and attacked the houſe and penetrated to the burradery; in this dilemma the Nabob ſent to Litafut Ally Khan, who came and appeaſed the rioters with a promiſe of full payment in three months, and the diſtribution of 16,000 rupees amongſt them in part of their arrears.

Untajee and Babojee Holcar have excuſed their not repairing to the preſence immediately, having their hands full of buſineſs, and promiſed to go as ſoon as they have leiſure; this is a great diſappointment to Mujed-ul-Dowlah, who told their vackeel that if they came before the arrival of Nejif Khan they might obtain what they pleaſed, but after that event their coming would be needleſs.

Goolloo, the eunuch, brought more jewels from his Majeſty, with a meſſage to Mujed-ul-Dowlah to borrow 30,000 rupees on thoſe and the former jewels, and to depoſit them with the lender. The Nabob ſent for jewellers, and again preſſed them to lend money on them; but they would on no account conſent, ſaying they would never agree to receive the royal jewels in pawn; that they had much rather be baniſhed the city.

The Nabob Nejif Khan ſet out from Deeg for Ackberabad on the 3d of Rujjub, 28th of July, and arrived there on the 5th of Rujjub, or 30th July.

Intelligence of the Nabob Aſoph ul Dowlah, from the 5th to the 8th of Rujjub, from 30th of July to the 2d of Auguſt.

The Nabob is highly diſpleaſed again Hoſſein Reza Khan and Hyder Khan: Mr. Middleton ſpoke to him in their favour, and was anſwered by the Nabob, "Theſe "two unfaithful wretches have ruined both my family "and my dominions; ſpeak not in their favour." The Nabob then directed Meaun Ulmaus to appoint officers of his own, and ſend them into the diſtricts under his charge, and to pay a nuzzir of ten lacks of rupees, and he would appoint him to the Niabut in the room of Hoſſein Reza Khan. Meaun Ulmaus half conſented, but it is not yet certain what will be the event.

READ the following letters from Colonel Leſlie:

Honourable Sir, and Sirs,

I beg leave to tranſmit you herewith a duplicate of my addreſs to you of the 13th inſtant; ſince that period little alteration has happened in this quarter.

The troops of Anrood Sing, alarmed by the ſwelling of the Kaine from the heavy rains that have lately fallen, precipitately croſſed the river, with intentions to cover the road to Panna; and they have poſted themſelves between between the pass of Moncaow and the bed of the river, having thrown up entrenchments with strong breast works along the opposite bank, to defend the passage of the river. The Rajah himself is there with his principal ministers and officers, and Himut Cawn, who was the Chief Sirdar at Mhow, has joined him with most of his troops. By all accounts they are in great consternation at the ill success of their treacherous designs. Their troops are much disheartened by the loss they suffered at Mhow, and are much disgusted at their being kept in the field during this season, labouring under the want of provisions and of cash: they have even declared they will not stand an attack of our troops, whatever their Chiefs may wish to undertake.

Ballajee is, I am informed, making preparations to receive me on the Sagur route; and I have had very certain intelligence, that a freebooter, formerly in the service of Janoojee, is on his march to join Ballajee with a body of near 5,000 cavalry.

Yesterday evening I received an express from Mr. Boddam, Chief of Surat, covering a letter from the Bombay Presidency. They contain news of a most interesting nature to the Company's affairs; and left any delay should happen in the consequence of this intelligence immediately to Calcutta, I deemed it necessary to transmit copies of them to the Honourable the Governor General, by an express coffid last night. Authenticated copies of these letters I now do myself the honour to lay before the Board.

My train of carriages have undergone a thorough repair during my stay here, and I am using all speed in completing my deficiencies of draft and carriage cattle. A very few days will enable me to prosecute my march, I hope, as I now only wait the collecting the small stock of grain to attend my camp; which precaution appears absolutely necessary by the steps Ballajee is taking to obstruct my advance, and the junction of these troops will afford him a greater opportunity of attempting it. You may depend on my utmost attention to the wish expressed in the Bombay Presidency's letter in using all expedition; and every faculty of mine shall be exerted, to effect as speedy an advance as can be made through a tract of country yet but little known, and the delays I must expect to encounter at this season of the year, by the swelling of the many nullas and rivers which this country abounds with.

I am, with the highest respect, &c. &c.

To Colonel Leslie: received July 24th, noon.

Sir,

We received your letter of the 14th May, and hope soon to hear you are well advanced on your march.

Mr. Mostyn has obtained from Tookajee Holcar, and transmitted to you, orders for the free passage of the army under your command through his dominions; so that we flatter ourselves, you will meet with no obstructions or impediments in your march to this place.

We have no further instructions or information to add to those contained in our letter of the 5th instant, already forwarded by seven different routes, only that you will pursue your march with all possible diligence, which we doubt not will be accelerated by a circumstance Mr. Boddam will apprize you of, and to which you will give full credit. We do not mention it ourselves, there being less danger of a letter from Surat being intercepted, and it does not appear you are furnished with a cypher.

We are your most obedient humble servants,

(Signed).

APPENDIX, No. 85.

Letter from the Governor General and Council.

Gentlemen,

WE have received your letters, dated the 25th ultimo, by the Terrible.

Received at Bombay 27th Sept. 1778. Sel. Com.

That no time may be lost in conveying our sentiments to you, we send this by different routes, to acquaint you, that we approve your resolution of the 21st July, and authorize you to assist Ragoba with a military force, to conduct him to Poonah, and to establish him in the Regency there, on the following express provisions:

First. That it do not interfere with any engagement formed with Moodajee Bouncello by Mr. Elliott, and previous notice to you by him.

Second. That your latest advices from Europe shall be equal to an assurance, that the force required for this service may be spared, without endangering the safety of Bombay, in the event of a French invasion.

Third. That the engagement you may form with Ragoba himself, or Moraba and his associates, be not contrary to those concluded with Moodajee by Mr. Elliott, and notice to you; nor of a hostile tendency to the Government of Berar.

We are,
Gentlemen,
your most obedient servants,
Warren Hastings,
Richard Barwell,
Philip Francis,
Edward Wheler.

Fort William, 17th August 1778.

P. S. We have received the letters from the President and Council, dated 31st May, 3, 12, 18, and 25 June, and 6th July.

APPENDIX, No. 86.

Extract of Secret Letter from Bombay, dated 14th March 1778: received in London 29th July 1778.

Par. 2. ENCLOSED is duplicate of our address by that ship * in the Secret Department. We therein fully mentioned the overtures which had been made to us through Mr. Lewis, for the assistance of the Company to carry Ragoba to Poonah, and our reasons for not proceeding further in the business.

* The Hawke.

3. We have since had the satisfaction of receiving the most complete sanction and approbation of the Governor General and Council, to the plan and principle upon which we had determined to proceed; which that you may the more clearly comprehend, we enclose a copy of our Minutes, and of the letter and resolutions of the Governor General and Council in consequence.

4. The failure of this promising scheme may in a great measure be ascribed to the distrust entertained by Ragoba's friends, of our want of power to fulfil our engagements. Moraba's words to Mr. Lewis were "If "we enter into business, let us go through it heartily; "let there be no excuse on the part of the Governor "and Council afterwards, that they have received or- "ders to make a peace, as they did before." This objection may be now entirely removed, if the party are sincere in the attachment they have professed for Ragoba, and are really desirous of the Company's assistance to conduct him to Poonah. We therefore transmitted to Mr. Mostyn, on the 10th instant, a copy of the resolutions of the Governor General and Council, and have not heard from him since.

5. The necessity of taking some measures to anticipate the designs of the French, and to counteract the party in the Poonah Government, inimical to the Company, appears every day more imminent. The Governor General and Council's approbation is too much confined to the particular plan proposed to them, without giving us any more general latitude to act as circumstances ſtances might require, which we had very ſtrongly preſſed them to do; ſo that at laſt we may be obliged either to hazard the conſequences of acting without authority from them, or paſſively behold the very exiſtence of the Company endangered, without making an effort to preſerve it.

10. From Mr. Moſtyn's advices there appears little or no proſpect of the diſputed articles of the treaty being adjuſted, or of obtaining ſatisfaction on any one of the points given in charge to him; of which indeed we almoſt give up all hopes whilſt the preſent Government ſubſiſts.

11. Your ſervants at Madras have acquainted us, in a letter dated the 15th January, that they did not think it ſafe or prudent to ſpare the whole or any part of the force we had wrote for; becauſe, as they ſay, the preſent poſture of affairs gives them reaſon to apprehend a war with France, and their eſtabliſhment was incomplete and inſufficient for the defence of the poſſeſſions belonging to the Nabob, the Company, and the Rajah of Tanjore, whom they had taken lately under their protection; becauſe the unfiniſhed ſtate of the fortifications there and at Tanjore would render it unſafe to detach any part of the force ſtationed for their ſecurity, even was their eſtabliſhment complete.

APPENDIX, No. 87.

Bombay Secret Conſultations, the 29th March 1778.

PRESENT,

The Honourable William Hornby, Eſquire, Preſident and Governor,

The W. John Carnac, Eſquire, Daniel Draper,
Nath. Stackhouſe, Wm Aſhburner,
Andrew Ramſay.

Honourable Sir,

I ADDRESSED you early yeſterday morning, and this is purpoſely to adviſe you of the revolution I have ſo long expected. About noon Morabah accompanied by Chintoo Wittul and Narro, Sunker's ſon, with about 10,000 horſe, came and encamped on the other ſide of the river, and immediately ſent 50 horſe into town, 25 of which went to the Palace, and the reſt through all the ſtreets, directing the inhabitants in Ragoba's name to open their ſhops, and not to run away, on pain of puniſhment, for they had nothing to fear; the appearance of ſo large a force without knowing who they were, had put the town into the utmoſt confuſion, and every body was moving off as faſt as poſſible; at one o'clock Morabah came into town, and went directly to the Palace to pay his reſpects to Perwettybah, who immediately inveſted him with the Sirapan of Duan, and preſented him with the Mutalick, Sicca, Cataree, Nobut, and Terree Putca; Morabah after removing all the old chowkies out of the palace, and placing his own people, alſo putting a chowkie on the houſe of Nannah's duan, and receiving the compliments of Viſſagee Punt Beney, Sadaſſew Ramchunder, and Janabah, the Governor of the town, being the only people of conſequence left, returned accompanied by them to his tent on the other ſide of the river. This letter would have been diſpatched in the evening, but having ſent my man to Morabah with compliments of congratulation, and to learn what further ſteps he intended to take, I waited for his return. He is this moment come, and gives me the following particulars: on his arrival at Morabah's tent he found Morabah with Butchaba Pronaur and Chintoo Wittul, were gone to meet Holcar, who is come and encamped about three coſs off; that Sacram had left Pronder and reached Cowree about ſix coſs diſtant, and would join Morabah in the morning; that the whole of their forces now here amounted to 30,000; this intelligence I have had confirmed by other hands, with the addition, that Cruſt Row Belal and Mhada Row Jada Roi, were both coming. On Morabah's return from Holcar, my man met him, but had only time to give my compliments, when Morabah deſired him to ſtay; that he muſt go to his victuals, having eat nothing all day, come 15 coſs in the morning, and been buſy ever ſince: my man waited until near 11 o'clock, and finding he did not come out, ſent to deſire to ſpeak to him; he was ſent for, but there was ſuch a concourſe of people to pay their reſpects, that Morabah could only return his compliments, and requeſt I would ſend him again in the morning. I am alſo informed, that after all the party is met they intend to march to Pronder; it may therefore be ſome days before I ſee Morabah, unleſs he ſends for me; in which caſe I ſhall not heſitate going, as Sacram and in ſhort the whole of the Government except Nannah, are here, I do ſuppoſe, they will determine ſoon to ſend ſome perſons of conſequence to Bombay to ſettle matters and to attend Ragoba if he comes; in which caſe it is probable they will deſire me to accompany them; therefore to ſave time I ſhould be glad to have your directions on this point. I am ſorry to find the party are likely to ſucceed ſo eaſily, for I ſee no reſource Nannah has but to come into Morabah's terms, or to fly into one of his forts, which are Logur and Perletgur, but the latter is by moſt judged to be the place; ſhould Nannah condeſcend to make up matters, I fear it may induce the party to comply wholly with Ragoba's treaty; and ſhould Ragoba refuſe to accept of their invitation on any other terms, Morabah and his party may look upon themſelves as abſolved from the oath they gave to Ragoba, which is the reaſon of their having made this effort, and think no more of them. Our conſideration ſeems now to be, whether it would not be more advantageous for the Company to recede ſomething, and thereby fix Ragoba in the Government with a body of our troops, and remain in ſtrict friendſhip with the Maratta State, and conſequently entirely ſhut out our natural enemies the French, and all other Europeans, than by perſiſting in a full compliance of the treaty, have Ragoba thrown upon our hands without any further proſpect; at variance with this Government, leave all hopes of any future advantage from them even by the preſent treaty, than what we are in abſolute poſſeſſion of, and give them on opening to admit the French or any other power they pleaſe. This is only conjectural, and what has occurred to me may be the caſe; for I cannot tell what may be their ultimate reſolutions on this head until I talk with them.

The revolution has ſet the French Captain at liberty to come here; I ſaw him this evening, and he tells me he has received a letter from Monſieur Picot, dated Myhie the 29th January informing him that his ſhip would leave Pondicherry the 5th February, in company with the Brilliante; that Monſieur Bellcombe was on board the latter, and purpoſes proceeding in her up the coaſt as high as Surat, where he intends ſtaying the rains. I know not what may be his views, but by the time he reaches Myhie he will have full knowledge of Lubin's conduct and character here, not only from the officer of the veſſel he ſent up, but alſo from a black ſpy who talks French, he ſent here in the character of a merchant, and who found means to get to live with Lubin, by which means he got at all his proceedings. He alſo learnt from the Captain every thing reſpecting him, and what paſſed between the Durbar and Lubin. Lubin at laſt heard this man often viſited the Captain, and ſuſpecting his errand, acquainted Nannah therewith, who directly ordered him to be watched and if poſſible ſeized; in conſequence the fellow was one day purſued, but got off by running into the Captain's houſe and deſired to be ſecreted; this raiſed the Captain's curioſity, and he queſtioned the man particularly; when he candidly confeſſed his errand, and that he was employed by Bellcombe, who having heard various reports concerning Lubin and the Captain, ſent him to know the truth, and that he was ordered to meet Bellcombe at Myhie; the man further told the Captain he came to

Poonah

Appendix No. 87.

Appendix, No. 88.

Poonah in company with two Madras Pattamars bound to Bombay, who promiſed to call on him in their way back; one of theſe Pattamars was ſeized, ſuppoſing him to be the man, but Nannah finding his miſtake only kept him one night, and next morning ſent him with a guard out of town, to prevent his making a complaint to me; this affair happened about twelve days ago. Theſe circumſtances, with the views of the alteration in the Government, will I hope induce Bellcombe to lay aſide his ſcheme of coming up to Surat. Monſieur Lubin has already met with ſome diſgrace by Morabah's taking away the elephant lent him to carry his colours; and I flatter myſelf he will ſoon be glad to quit Poonah, unleſs detained by the Captain, who has thoughts of complaining to Morabah for money owing to him by Lubin, and get him made a priſoner: if the Captain cannot do this he is in hopes Bellcombe, who is a relation to Belfond the owner of the Sartine, will ſtop at Choul and demand of the Government that Lubin be delivered up to him. I will uſe my endeavours that Lubin be ſent away before this can happen, otherwiſe it may lead to an intercourſe by no means for our intereſt.

As I do not intend to addreſs you publickly until I have talked with Morabah or Saccaram Bappoo, or ſomebody for them, I beg you will be pleaſed to lay before the Board ſuch parts of this letter as you may judge neceſſary and proper.

Poonah, the 27th March, one o'clock, morning.

I am very reſpectfully, Honourable Sir, your moſt obedient ſervant, Tho' Moſtyn.

The following letter to Mr. Moſtyn was immediately ſigned and diſpatched from the Council Table.

Sir,

The Preſident has laid before us your letter dated the 27th at one in the morning.

In the preſent unſettled ſtate of the new Government, and until we receive more particular advices from you, we cannot give any preciſe directions for your conduct; but as you are well acquainted with our views and ſentiments, we do hereby empower you to act as you may think moſt conſiſtent with thoſe views and the intereſt of the Honourable Company, until we can give you more particular inſtructions.

As it will be of the utmoſt importance to effect the diſmiſſion of Monſieur Lubin from Poonah before the arrival of Monſieur Bellcombe, you will uſe your utmoſt addreſs to effect this point; but in ſuch a manner as not to appear too anxious about it, which the new Government might endeavour to take advantage of.

Bombay Caſtle, 29th March 1778. 6 P. M.

We are, your loving friends, William Hornby, &c.

APPENDIX, No. 88.

Bombay Secret Conſultations, the 6th April 1778.

PRESENT,

The Honourable William Hornby, Eſquire, Preſident and Governor,

The W. John Carnac, Eſquire, Daniel Draper, Nath. Stackhouſe, Will^m Aſhburner, Andrew Ramſay.

READ the letter received yeſterday from the Governor General and Council, &c.

If the French ſhould now ſucceed in getting an eſtabliſhment at Choul, the conſequence muſt reſt entirely with the Governor General and Council, as we have done every thing in our power to defeat their deſigns; not only by our repeated repreſentations at the Court of Poonah, and our application to Sir Edward Vernon, but by the reference we made to the Governor General and Council, whether we ſhould not purſue more active meaſures, to prevent the execution of a plan ſo replete with dangers to the Company's poſſeſſions. Their anſwer, now before us, confines our efforts to an appeal to the Maratta Government; and if that ſhould fail of ſucceſs, the conſequences, as we ſaid before, muſt reſt with them.

The Preſident lays before us, a letter to him from Mr. Moſtyn, as entered hereafter; by which we find there was to be a meeting of the principal members of the new Government about the 4th or 5th of this month, when we may expect to receive propoſals reſpecting Ragoba, and be at more certainty with regard to their intentions, until when, we cannot come to any direct reſolutions.

However, if the terms expected by the Company ſhould become a ſubject of diſcuſſion between Mr. Moſtyn and Morabah, he muſt conſtantly give him to underſtand that we ſhall expect a full confirmation of the grants made by Ragoba; it will be time enough hereafter to relax in our demands, if we ſhould find it neceſſary

The Preſident acquainting us that Ragoba expreſſes much impatience to go over to the continent, and talks of ſetting off in a few days, a deputation muſt be ſent, to repreſent to him the impropriety of ſuch precipitation, and that matters are not yet arrived at ſuch a ſtage, as to admit of his quitting Bombay with prudence or decorum; no forces having yet marched from Poonah to meet him, nor any perſon of conſequence come to invite him. They muſt alſo obſerve to him, it will be proper to ſettle ſome terms previous to his departure, and receive what offers he may make on the occaſion.

Meſſrs. Carnac and Ramſay are appointed a Committee for that purpoſe, through whom our intercourſe with Ragoba muſt be conducted till matters are ſettled.

Mr. James Sibbald is to act as interpreter to the Committee, after being previouſly ſworn to ſecrecy.

Adjourned.

Edw^d Ravenſcroft, Secretary.

Wm Hornby, John Carnac, D. Draper, N. Stackhouſe, Wm Aſhburner, Andrew Ramſay.

Honourable Sir,

My laſt reſpects were dated the 28th, and informed you Morabah, with the whole army, had marched to Cowree to meet Sacram. Yeſterday morning they all proceeded to Currut River in front, and about two coſs from Pronder, and this night at eleven o'clock, to my very great mortification, I am from ſeveral hands aſſured all matters are accommodated; but in what manner, they all are or chuſe to appear ignorant, except a Carcoon belonging to Tombacker, who was directed to inform me of all that paſſed. He ſends me word, a man from Tombacker arrived this afternoon, and acquaints him, Nannah has agreed to every thing Morabah propoſed regarding Ragoba; but inſiſted Sacram and Morabah ſhould ſtand ſecurity that his life ſhould be ſafe; that they were all to meet, and a general reconciliation to take place this afterooon, and to-morrow afternoon the child would be brought down to receive the compliments of Morabah (who has never ſeen him) and of the other Miniſters and officers; and for this purpoſe Morabah to day ſent to town for ſome jewels and clothes to preſent him; and in three or four days after, he expected they would all come to Poonah. He further ſays, that Sacram wanted to appoint people to the different offices now, but Morabah deſired it might be deferred until Ragoba came, when he would appoint whom he pleaſed. If this man's information is true, which I ſhall know to-morrow night or next morning, I do not expect to hear any thing from them until they come to Poonah.

At nine o'clock this evening I was honoured with yours and the Board's command of the 29th. Be aſſured, Sir, I will exert every nerve for the benefit of my employers. I am perfectly convinced of the importance portance and utility Baſſein would be to us; but I very much fear this Government will not, on any conſideration, be brought to relinquiſh it; and we muſt wait and watch for a future opportunity to accompliſh this point. The diabolical ſcheme of Nanah to introduce the French, the moſt deſtructive one ſurely that could have been thought on for us, has totally changed our ſyſtem of politics; and it ſeems to me beſt at preſent, if we cannot do as we will, to do as well as we can; therefore I have been thinking, if we cannot do better, to endeavour to get Jamhooſeer made over in perpetuity, in lieu of all demands we have upon this Government, both for the Company on account of the late war, and for the merchants loſſes, and get rid of this endleſs ſource of diſpute; as much more as we can for our expences and trouble on account of Ragoba ſince the war, and ſecurity in hand for any troops we may aſſiſt Ragoba with; for they have not money to give us. All this I mean excluſive of Upton's treaty: I mention theſe particulars, that no time may be loſt when I come to talk with Morabah, and wiſh to be favoured with your ſentiments on this head.

I would wiſh that you would not permit Ragoba to come over, until I have talked and ſettled matters with Morabah; but the objection ſhould appear to come from Ragoba, which he can with great propriety make; by obſerving, that no one of ſufficient conſequence was come over to accompany him; and I know no force is yet come down to receive him. I am alſo pretty clear Morabah (if he can be believed) will not take any further ſteps in this buſineſs, without acquainting us; nor does he expect Ragoba will come over, without proper people being ſent to receive him, or that he will truſt himſelf without a body of our troops to accompany him the whole way, and I think to remain: I judge two battalions and a train. As to Dada Punt, he wiſhes to diſtinguiſh himſelf; but Tombacker told me he was only ſent with the letters, and no doubt he may be directed to ſound the ground, and poſſibly ordered to wait and come with Ragoba, but who I hope will not be in too great a hurry; if he is, our buſineſs may be ruined. I hope in a few days to give you all particulars, and think the whole may be accompliſhed in a little more than a month. I will take care the neceſſary orders are given for bullocks, &c. I know not well what to do with the Chickley, &c. Pergunnahs: I could wiſh to have them deferred being ſettled for the preſent, as I know Morabah and Holkar mean to place Govind Row in the Guzerat Country. Poſſibly ſome lucky circumſtance may turn up from the change, or that Ragoba will have influence enough with Govind Row, to let us keep them.

You may depend I will uſe every endeavour for the knight's being diſpatched, and with the neceſſary precaution. Morabah, the day he marched for Cowree, removed the old guard and placed one of his own, with orders not to ſuffer any thing to be carried out of the garden where he lives, but not to prevent his going about where he pleaſes. I hear he is keeping people at his own expence, but this I believe is to protect himſelf againſt the Captain, who ſwears vengeance againſt him.

The letter from Morabah is delivered to Tombacker's Carcoon, who will forward it to-morrow morning at Gun-fire: I remain with much reſpect,

Poonah, Honourable Sir,
31ſt March, your moſt obedient ſervant, midnight. Thomas Moſtyn.

Bombay Secret Conſultations, the 7th April 1778.

Signed the following letter to the Reſident at the Durbar:

The Preſident has laid before us your letter, dated the 31ſt March; in conſequence of which we think it neceſſary to direct that you do not at preſent give the Durbar any hopes that we will recede in the leaſt degree from the ſtipulations made for the Company, in the treaty with Ragoba. It will be ſoon enough to relax from our demands ſome time hence, if we ſhould find the ſame neceſſary. Appendix No. 89.

We do not doubt your diligence or addreſs; but our anxiety on account of the French leads us to repeat our directions, that you exert yourſelf to the very utmoſt to defeat their deſigns. The conduct of the new members of the Durbar on this occaſion will be a criterion to us to judge of their diſpoſitions towards the Company.

APPENDIX, No. 89.

Bombay Secret Conſultations, the 10th April 1778.

RECEIVED the following letter from Mr. Moſtyn at Poonah:

Honourable Sir, and Gentlemen,

My laſt reſpects were dated the 6th; and early this morning I was favoured with your commands of the 7th.

On the 8th I received a letter from the Durbar, ſealed with the Maratta ſicca, requeſting I would repair to his camp with all poſſible expedition; I accordingly arrived the ſame evening. Yeſterday afternoon I had a meeting with Morabah, when he informed, that the reaſon for the Durbar ſending for me, was to requeſt I would accompany Gopul Naigue Tumbacker, who they were going to ſend to Bombay with propoſals regarding Ragoba; to which I replied, I thought it was proper the Durbar ſhould inform your Honour, &c. thereof in writing; which he promiſed ſhould be done. This afternoon Morabah ſent to requeſt I would meet him at Saccram Bappoo's tent; accordingly, a ſhort time after he had paſſed I ſet out, but before I had reached Saccram's camp they had gone to Nanhab's encampment cloſe to Pronder Hill, whither Tumbacker deſired I would alſo go. On my arrival Nanhab received me in the public tent, where he deſired I would wait a few minutes, as the Durbar were in Council. In a ſhort time I was introduced, when I found the Durbar aſſembled in form, viz. Butchaba Pronder, Sacram Bappoo, Morabah, Furneeſe, Nannah Furneeſe, Cruſt Row Belil, Nuda Row Sada Roi, Gopal Naigue Tumbacker, Buchaba's brother, and Cruſt Row's ſon. After the uſual compliments, Sacram began the converſation by ſaying, that the Durbar had formerly requeſted I would go to Bombay on ſome buſineſs for them, and they now made a requeſt I would accompany a perſon they were going to ſend to Bombay on the buſineſs which Morabah had already acquainted me with; to which I made the ſame anſwer as I had done to Morabah, when they delivered me the encloſed letter for the Honourable the Preſident, referring me to Morabah for further particulars on this buſineſs. Sacram then ſaid, that the Durbar had received a letter from the Governor General, mentioning his having been informed that this Government had given a port to the French, and appointed Monſieur St. Lubin to the charge of the Tope Konnah here; he therefore aſked me, if to my knowledge ſuch was the caſe? I replied, that no ſuch circumſtances had to my knowledge taken place, but that I was not ſurprized the Governor General and Council, finding the Durbar, notwithſtanding their ſolemn promiſes to diſpatch us laſt Decera, had detained him until this time, ſhould believe ſuch was the caſe. I then deſired they would inform me what were their real motives with reſpect to the French; when Sacram replied, that they then had under conſideration the diſpatching Monſieur St. Lubin. I have alſo received aſſurance from Morabah, both yeſterday and this evening, ſince his return to his tent, that this point ſhall be ſettled as we wiſh.

I ſhall ſtrictly obey your commands, with reſpect to not not giving the Durbar any hopes of your Honour, &c. receding in the leaſt from the treaty entered into with Ragoba, indeed, I have ever endeavoured to inſtil this idea into the minds of the Miniſters, and have always recommended, as the moſt eligible method, their ſending a proper perſon to ſettle affairs both with your Honour, &c. and Ragoba at Bombay; which you will pleaſe to obſerve by the foregoing I have effected, and hope my conduct will meet with your approbation.

I am, very reſpectfully,

Camp near Curret, 10th April 1778. Honourable Sir, and Gentlemen, your moſt obedient humble ſervant, Thomas Moſtyn.

APPENDIX, No. 90.

Bombay Secret Conſultations, the 16th April 1778.

RECEIVED the following letter from Mr. Moſtyn.

Honourable Sir, and Gentlemen,

I have been honoured with your commands of the 8th inſtant.

Before the receipt of your letter, a pair of Pattamars, diſpatched from the Preſidency of Madras on the 3d, acquainted me that they had been ſtopped at Baramooty, and ſent from thence to Morabah, who had ordered them to me. I immediately ſent the Linguiſt to repreſent to him that this was the ſecond time our Pattamars had been ſtopped ſince the late change in Government, and requeſted he would prevent the like in future; to which he replied, that he was extremely ſorry it had ſo happened, but that he having given orders to ſtop all letters, to prevent an improper correſpondence from the other party, and his having forgot in the hurry of buſineſs to except Engliſh letters, his Chowkies had of courſe intercepted them; he had however iſſued the neceſſary orders for our Pattamar's paſſing freely. The Pattamars, your Honour, &c. mention to have been ſtopped at Barramooty, came to me at Poonah; I aſked them particularly if any letters had been taken out of the packet? when they declaring there had not, and that only the wax-cloth covering had been opened, I directed them to proceed to Bombay; however on the 12th inſtant, in conformity to your orders, at a meeting I had with Morabah, I made a ſecond repreſentation to him, and aſked him if he had taken any letters from thoſe Pattamars? when he repeated his aſſurances of the foregoing day, and declared he had not taken any letter, nor did he know of any one elſe doing ſo.

The Durbar having been much engaged for ſome days paſt, I had not an oppurtunity of meeting with Tumbacker until this morning, when he aſſured me, that he ſhould be inveſted with full powers to ſettle both with your Honour, &c. and Ragoba; that a full Durbar is to be held to-morrow for his final inſtructions and diſpatch; that he is to leave this place to-morrow night, and after ſtaying a day or two at moſt at Poonah, ſhall proceed with all expedition to the Preſidency by the way of Tannah, in order to avoid going in a boat.

I am, very reſpectfully,

Camp near Curret, 14th April 1778. Honourable Sir, and Gentlemen, your moſt obedient humble ſervant, Tho⁸ Moſtyn.

Bombay Secret Conſultations, the 20th April 1778.

Received the following letter from the Reſident at Poonah.

Honourable Sir, and Gentlemen,

I addreſſed you laſt on the 14th inſt. and not having heard any thing from Morabah concerning Tumbacker's leaving the camp, notwithſtanding his aſſurances that he ſhould do ſo as the next evening, on the 16th at night I ſent to requeſt Morabah would inform me the reaſon thereof: when he replied, that matters were not fully adjuſted with the Durbar; but that they were all to meet the next morning at his tent, and deſired I would meet them. Accordingly yeſterday, about eleven o'clock, I waited on the Durbar, where I found aſſembled Butchaba, Morabah, Chintoo Wittal, Tookajee Holcar, Narroo Punt, (Holcar's Duan) Dadoo Punt Pootneſs, Gopal Naigue Tumbacker, and one of Holkar's principal officers. Morabah began the diſcourſe by telling me, that every body preſent requeſted I would ſhew Ragoba they confirmed the agreement formerly made with him, and to deſire that he would not believe what any malicious perſons might write to the contrary.

The Durbar not mentioning any thing of empowering Tumbacker to ſettle terms with your honour, &c. agreeable to what he had aſſured me on the 14th; I endeavoured to ſound the intentions of the Durbar with reſpect to what they meant to do for the Company, by obſerving to them that there had been two treaties entered into, and the other by Colonel Upton, with the late Durbar; when Morabah replied, that this point would be eaſily ſettled after Dada Sahib's arrival at Poonah; and indeed this method, which I hope will meet with your approval, will in the preſent ſituation of affairs, I am of opinion, be moſt for the intereſt of my employers, as well as Ragoba's credit, who I make no doubt will for his own honour conſider the treaty made with him as the only legal one. It is true he may perhaps at firſt be under ſuch reſtrictions as not to be able immediately to comply therewith; yet if he acts with prudence, and endeavours to conciliate the minds of the miniſters, and convince thoſe who have been in the oppoſition that he means faithfully to obſerve any agreement he ſhall make, now for the ſafety of their perſons and property, I make no doubt he may in a ſhort time have the uncontrouled management of affairs.

No notice being taken at the above meeting with the Durbar of Tumbacker's departure, I ſent the Linguiſt to deſire he would inform me when he was to ſet off; he replied, that he did not ſuppoſe it would be until Morabah's man, Daddoo Punt, who arrived from Bombay in the morning, and was immediately returning thither, ſhould either return to camp, or write to them; but that he would ſend me word as ſoon as he could ſpeak with certainty. The arrival of Daddoo Punt explains in ſome ſhape the Durbar's reaſon for detaining me ſo long, he having brought a letter with him from Ragoba, and I apprehend ſome terms to be ſettled with his friends here, to which he is carrying their anſwers.

In the evening I took my leave of Morabah, when he delivered me a letter to be preſented to the Honourable the Preſident on my arrival.

I am with reſpect,

Poonah, 18th April 1778. Honourable Sir, and Gentlemen, your moſt obedient ſervant, Tho⁸ Moſtyn.

APPENDIX, No. 92.

Extract of the Secret Letter from Bombay: dated 26th April 1778; received in London 21ſt December 1778.

2. THE ſeveral letters from Mr. Moſtyn, entered in our ſhip diary ſince the departure of the Hawke, will inform you of his proceedings, and all material occurrences at Poonah, till the 29th ultimo; when the Preſident received advice from him of a revolution which had taken place in that Government on the 26th.

3. On that day Morabah Furneeſe and his party, after having marched from their different ſtations, met and encamped cloſe to Poonah, which they immediately took poſſeſſion of, and without any oppoſition or bloodſhed, removed the guards placed by Nannah Furneeſe, at the palace, and other officers of Government, making proclamation clamation in the name of Ragoba for reſtoring peace and good order in the city.

4. Morabah, after having aſſumed the office of Duan, and made his arrangements at Poonah, proceeded to have an interview with Sacaram Bappoo, the late Chief Miniſter, with whoſe concurrence he appears to have proceeded from the beginning, as you will recollect Morabah made uſe of his name in his firſt overtures to us, and they have acted in concert ever ſince.

5. Nannah Furneeſe, the other Miniſter, after heſitating for ſome time what conduct to purſue, we are aſſured has agreed to all the terms Morabah has propoſed reſpecting Raboba, on conditions that Morabah and Saccaram would be ſecurity for his perſonal ſafety.

6. The Confederacy having thus accompliſhed their purpoſe without our aſſiſtance, and having no further oppoſition to expect from Nannah Furneeſe, preſerved a long and moſt myſterious ſilence with regard to their intentions toward Ragoba. Morabah had indeed, a few days before he took poſſeſſion of Poonah, ſent at Agent to Ragoba, to preſs him to join the party without a moment's delay, but did not make any propoſals of any kind either to him or us.

7. It was not till the 10th of this month that Mr. Moſtyn was deſired to meet the Durbar, when he was acquainted they were going to ſend Gopal Naigue Tumbacker (who is a perſon of conſideration) to Bombay, with propoſals regarding Ragoba, and a requeſt made to him to accompany this perſon. We were in daily expectation of their arrival till the 20th, when we received advice from Mr. Moſtyn, that the Durbar had not yet given Gopal his final inſtructions, and it ſeemed even then very uncertain when he would ſet out, though they profeſſed ſentiments of great reſpect and regard towards Ragoba.

8. We can draw no very favourable concluſions from this dilatory conduct of the Durbar; and as we do not think it conſiſtent that the Company's Reſident ſhould come to Bombay upon every requiſition from the Durbar, before he is ſatisfied ſuch a meaſure is really neceſſary, or may be attended with benefit to the Company's affairs, we have expreſſed our wiſhes to Mr. Moſtyn, but in ſuch a manner as not to lay an abſolute reſtraint upon him; that he ſhould not quit Poonah before he is convinced his coming here will anſwer ſome buſineſs of importance; and we have obſerved to him, that he may with great propriety demand from the Durbar, before he ſets out, the nature of the buſineſs they want to intruſt to him, that he may judge whether it is of ſufficient conſequence to require his preſence here. The recollection of the trifling propoſals they committed to him on his laſt journey to Bombay makes this precaution the more neceſſary.

9. In this uncertain ſituation are affairs at preſent: we can neither write or determine any thing deciſive, until we know the terms Morabah and his party mean to offer to Ragoba.

10. It is a moſt unfortunate circumſtance, that whilſt we, through the want of powers and Saccaram Bappoo's extreme caution, were prevented from taking a part, Morabah and his party have found their own ſtrength ſufficient to gain their point without our aſſiſtance. We did, as adviſed in our addreſs by the Cormorant, do all we could to remove their ſcruples the moment we received the ſanction and approbation of the Governor General and Council to our plan, and Morabah promiſed to give us the deſired inſtrument, under the hand of Sacram Beppoo, the Chief Miniſter, without whoſe expreſs ſolicitation we were prohibited from engaging in their ſcheme; and are not without ſuſpicion, that when the Confederacy found they might be certain of our aſſiſtance in caſe of neceſſity, they reſolved to make trial if they could do without it; and unhappily they have met with ſucceſs.

11. It now ſeems to be optional with them to what ſhare of the Government to admit Ragoba, or whether they will admit him to any ſhare at all. Their fears for the ſtability of their Government ſo long as Ragoba remains with us, and the demonſtrations we have given of our attachment to him, are now his beſt ſecurity, and we ſtill hope will lead them to offer conſiſtent terms to him. All that we can write about the terms for the Company muſt be mere conjecture, though we have inſtructed Mr. Moſtyn not to give the Durbar the leaſt hopes we will recede from Ragoba's treaty. We can only aſſure you, that we will endeavour to procure the moſt advantageous ones we poſſibly can; and we firmly believe, if Ragoba is admitted to a ſufficient influence in the Government, he will confirm his former grants made by the treaty of Surat.

12. Immediately on receiving advice of the revolution, we gave orders for our forces and military apparatus to be held in readineſs, to accompany Ragoba to Poonah, the moment matters are advanced to that ſtage.

13. Ragoba is extremely ſanguine on the occaſion; and betrays ſo much impatience to move towards Poonah, that we find it neceſſary to ſend Meſſrs. Carnac and Ramſay, as a deputation from us, to expoſtulate with him on the precipitancy of his conduct, and to endeavour to moderate his impatience. Their conferences with him are recorded; to which we beg leave to refer you.

22. Two of Ragoba's principal domeſtics having applied to us for a loan of rupees 15,000, we complied with their requeſt, as they ſtand high in his confidence, and might be of ſervice to the Company, in the turn affairs were then likely to take.

23. Ragoba, at one of his conferences with Meſſrs. Carnac and Ramſay, took occaſion to expreſs his wiſhes, that when he was reinſtated at Poonah, the Company would afford him their aſſiſtance to recover the large and valuable territories diſmembered from the Maratta dominions, during the weakneſs of the late Adminiſtration, by grants to the Nizam and other Powers. He was acquainted, we could give no anſwer to ſuch a propoſition; and it is at his particular deſire we mention this matter to you, and requeſt your orders and ſentiments on the ſubject.

24. Having hitherto received no ſatisfaction from the Durbar to the ſufferers by the wreck Aurora, notwithſtanding our repeated repreſentations, we have fixed the amount of their loſs as a claim upon the revenues of Jamboofeer, after the Company's demands on account the twelve lacks, and the country of three lacks, are made good; and have reſolved not to reſtore the Pergunnah till the ſum due to the ſufferers is diſcharged, with intereſt. Our proceedings will ſhew the care we took to examine and aſcertain the amount for which the Poonah Government was anſwerable, according to treaty, with all poſſible juſtice to both parties; and we doubt not you will approve the method we have taken to obtain ſatisfaction for merchants trading under your protection.

25. The Governor General and Council, in purſuance of their reſolution for ſupplying us with money to ſupport the engagements they concluded we ſhould form in favour of Ragoba, have remitted us bills to the amount of nine lacks and a half out of ten lacks, the propoſed ſupply; ſo that if matters at Poonah turn out to our wiſhes, we ſhall leave a ſufficient command of money to anſwer every purpoſe.

CONSIDERING

Appendix. No. 94.

CONSIDERING the ſtation Mr. Moſtyn holds at Poonah, we think it is not conſiſtent that he ſhould come to Bombay upon every intimation from the Miniſters of ſuch a deſire, unleſs he is firſt ſatisfied that ſuch a meaſure is neceſſary, or may be of benefit to the Honourable Company's affairs. In the preſent caſe we do not wiſh Mr. Moſtyn ſhould quit Poonah before he is convinced that his coming here will anſwer ſome purpoſe of conſequence; and we think he may with very great propriety demand from the Durbar before he ſets out, the nature of the buſineſs they now want to entruſt to him, that he may judge whether it is of ſufficient importance to require his preſence here. This precaution appears the more neceſſary from the recollection of the trifling propoſals they committed to him on his laſt journey to Bombay; though we do not mean by the above to reſtrain Mr. Moſtyn from acting in this point as he may judge moſt for the Honourable Company's intereſt.

From the preſent ſituation of affairs, we do not think there is any proſpect of our having occaſion for the Bengal troops this ſeaſon; and therefore in order to ſave the heavy expence that will be incurred by their marching forward, it is agreed to write to the Commanding Officer at Culpee to remain there till he hears further from us.

Meſſrs. Draper and Stackhouſe are clearly of opinion that the Governor General and Council having been induced, by our advices of the 7th of December laſt, to order a body of troops to the aſſiſtance of this Preſidency, and they do not think our ſituation is ſo much altered either with reſpect to the Marattas, the probable deſigns of the French upon Choul, or our own military reſources, as to juſtify the countermanding the march of theſe troops; they do not therefore concur in the above reſolution, which will throw the whole reſponſibility upon us in caſe of accidents. Another reaſon for their opinion is, that it ſeems very uncertain whether any reinforcement will be ſent from Madras, no public advices having been yet received of any ſuch intention in the Preſident and Council, though a public Pattamar arrived laſt night.

The majority hereupon eſteem it neceſſary to obſerve further in vindication of their reſolution, that the difficulties of the march from Culpee to Bombay are ſo great as to make the attempt next to impracticable, and they would not upon any account expoſe the Company's troops to ſuch dangers without the moſt abſolute and imminent neceſſity. Beſides, it is totally out of our power to procure ſupplies of proviſions for them on the march, or paſſes from the different Powers through whoſe countries they muſt come, as deſired by the Governor General and Council. The majority allow that the Governor General and Council may have in a great meaſure been led to that reſolution by our advices, but at the ſame time their apprehenſions of a French war muſt have been a further inducement to them to order ſo conſiderable a body of troops, which by our advices from Europe of a much later date than they could have at Bengal, we do not ſee any reaſon to apprehend: and therefore the majority think the ſubjecting the Honourable Company to ſo heavy an expence as would unavoidably attend the march of the Bengal troops would not be warrantable.

Meſſrs. Carnac and Ramſay lay before us a report of their late conference with Ragoba; which is ordered to be entered after this conſultation.

Adjourned.

No. 93.

Bombay Select Conſultations, 22d April 1778.

The ſubject of a Conference between the Committee and Ragoba, 10th April 1778.

The Committee acquainted Ragoba, that for material reaſons the Board would wiſh him to poſtpone his intentions of moving to Mahim on Monday next, unleſs he was very much bent upon ſo doing. They informed him, that the Honourable the Preſident had juſt received a letter from Mr. Moſtyn, of the 8th inſtant, adviſing, that he was that evening to have an interview with Moraba, who had propoſitions to make on the part of the Miniſtry, and that, until the reſult of the conference was known, he could wiſh that no freſh ſteps ſhould be taken either by Ragoba or the Board. Ragoba replied, that he did not regard deferring his intentions of moving a few days, would the Board but poſitively fix upon a time for his march; and hoped that the reſult of the interview with Moraba would occaſion no material alterations in the Reſolutions of the Board, as he well knew that unleſs the Engliſh would declare in the moſt open manner their determination to ſupport him in his juſt rights, and take ſome immediate ſteps to convince the preſent faction at Broach of ſuch our intentions, that even thoſe who had already declared in his favour, would begin to waver through dread of reſentment from the other party; and he would aſſure the Board, that the propoſitions they would receive would be very unbecoming his dignity to accept. The Committee aſſured him he might rely upon the friendſhip of the Company, and in having their ſupport in all his juſt and legal rights and pretenſions; but that at the ſame time the Board thought it adviſable to wait the overtures that might be expected in conſequence of the aforeſaid interview. With this he appeared ſatisfied; but expreſſed a wiſh of moving on Monday next to a ſpot of ground near the Mount, provided the Board approved of it. The Committee acquainted him, that the Board by no means wiſhed to put any reſtraint upon his inclinations, and would make known to them his deſire in this particular. He took occaſion to mention his earneſt deſire of ſeeing the Company in poſſeſſion of the places ſtipulated for in his late treaty with them; and obſerved, that his principal motive for wiſhing to march by the way of Callian was, that Viſſagee Punt would moſt probably be thereby induced to make an early acknowledgement of obedience to his Government, when he meant to embrace the opportunity of putting the Company in poſſeſſion of Baſſein: he alſo expreſſes a deſire of ſeeing a ſtatement of his accounts with the Company, as he was unacquainted with the expences and charges incurred by the aſſiſtance of their troops in the late ſervice; as alſo of the collections made from the Pergunnahs aſſigned over to the Company. The Committee acquainted him his requeſt ſhould be complied with; and then took their leave, aſſuring him, that the moment any freſh advices arrived from Mr. Moſtyn, that they ſhould be made known to him.

APPENDIX, No. 94.

11th July 1778.

To the Honourable William Hornby, Eſquire, Preſident and Governor, &c.

Members of the Select Committee at Bombay.

Honourable Sir, and Gentlemen,

MY laſt reſpects were dated the 17th inſtant.

By a hircarrah whom I keep at camp, I learn that Morabah, Buchabah, Chintoo Vittul, and Cruſtrow Belol, on the 17th in the afternoon, paid Monſieur St. Lubin a viſit viſit, and that ſhortly after their return to Morabah's tent, Monſieur St. Lubin followed them, where he ſtaid until eight o'clock, when Morabah made him a preſent; that on the 20th Nanah came down from the Matchy to pay Saccaram a viſit at Bury, when they ſent for Monſieur St. Lubin to take leave, and accordingly waited on them. Notwithſtanding theſe appearances of Monſieur St. Lubin being diſpatched, it is ſtill a doubt with me whether he will leave Poonah, but even if he does, it will only be in order to lull us into a belief of the good intentions of this Durbar, whilſt they have recourſe to the French for aſſiſtance, a door for which has already been opened by Monſieur St. Lubin's negociations with Nanah, and which have been lately taken up by Morabah; as you will pleaſe to obſerve by the encloſed copy and tranſlate of a letter I have received from a perſon at Proonder, who, from the knowledge I have of him, I do not think would deceive me; but as he is not in the Government's ſervice, and might poſſibly be deceived by the perſon from whom he received his intelligence, therefore, though this letter was received the 19th, it containing matters of ſuch importance I thought it proper to wait until I could receive a confirmation thereof from ſome other quarter, that the loſs of a few days would not be attended with ſo much prejudice as a miſrepreſentation.

From a perſon, whoſe employ in the Government's ſervice is ſuch as to give him frequent opportunities of knowing what paſſes, I have received information that when Cruſtrow Belol was laſt in town, it was agreed between him and Monſieur St. Lubin to make the ſame propoſal to Morabah as he had formerly done to Nanah with reſpect to the French aſſiſting him; that in conſequence thereof Cruſtrow went firſt to Proonder in order to prepare Morabah; and that Monſieur St. Lubin on his firſt viſit accordingly made the propoſal, when Morabah replied, he would conſider of it; but that in the mean time receiving intelligence from Moodajee Bouncello of our troops coming from Bengal being near Naugpore, Morabah diſpatched Monſieur St. Lubin at his ſecond viſit.

I am informed by a man, who ſays he is a doctor in Scindy's employ, but has for ſome time paſt reſided in Poonah, that Senhor Norronho a few days ago wrote a letter to the perſon who tranſacts his buſineſs in Poonah, acquainting him of his having received information from Cruſtrow Belol, that Monſieur St. Lubin had engaged with Morabah to bring five hundred Europeans hither in forty days, and that Morabah had promiſed him, Lubin, the command of the Toff Counah. The man farther added, that in conſequence of this promiſe, Monſieur St Lubin had inveigled away almoſt all Norronho's people, by advancing them from fifteen to twenty rupees a man, and promiſing to make good the arrears of pay due to them, but at the ſame time ordered them to remain quiet in Poonah, until he ſhould call for them; however, that Senhor Norronho getting intelligence of this tranſaction, has, by paying out of his own pocket the arrears due to them from Government, induced all his people to return to his ſervice, and they accordingly went to him at Proonder on the 21ſt. This man further tells me, that eight Europeans, who have lately deſerted from our ſervice, entered into that of Monſieur St. Lubin on the 20th, that he has two men, one a Frenchman named Le Bourchadiez, who came from Mahé, the other a Portugueze, at Bombay, purpoſely to entice our Europeans to deſert, and that theſe people ſent them to Panwell in two boats, which Monſieur St. Lubin has provided for that purpoſe, and which are conſtantly employed between that place and Bombay. It will undoubtedly appear ſomewhat ſtrange that Cruſtrow Belol, who is Monſieur St. Lubin's Agent, ſhould give the information above-mentioned to Senhor Norronho; it is therefore neceſſary, in order to explain this point, to inform your Honour, &c. that as Cruſtrow was the perſon who brought Norronho from the Mogul's into this government's ſervice, he has always conſidered him as immediately under his protection.

I have thought it neceſſary to be thus particular in mentioning the different accounts I have received of Morabah's tranſactions with Monſieur St. Lubin, and the honours paid the latter ſo far ſuperior to any they have ever ſhewn the Engliſh, in order that you may, Gentlemen, be better enabled to judge of the probability of his having formed a connection ſo highly prejudicial to our honourable employers' intereſts. I am convinced of the impoſſibility of the French ſupplying two thouſand men; but at the ſame time I think it is very probable that they may have it in their power to ſend five hundred at leaſt, as ſoon as the ſeaſon will admit; at any rate, all accounts agree, that the new Adminiſtration have entered into ſome engagements with the French very dangerous to our exiſtence on this ſide India. Appendix. No. 94.

On the 22d, I received your commands of the 16th; and, conformable to your directions, immediately forwarded the letters encloſed therein for Colonel Leſlie, with one from myſelf, by different routes.

The remonſtrance and demands you have been pleaſed to order me to make to the Durbar, is drawn out, and ſhall be ſent as ſoon as it can be properly tranſlated into the Gentoo language. I have already acquainted you, Gentlemen, that I am aſſured the French have not got a grant of Choul; but that promiſe thereof was made to Monſieur St. Lubin, appears from Cruſtrow Belol's confeſſion at the Durbar before Mr. Lewis; and I am convinced they will not only get that, but much more, the moment they can afford the aſſiſtance Monſieur St. Lubin has promiſed. I have uſed every poſſible means to obtain a copy of the engagement entered into between Nanah and Monſieur St. Lubin; but as no other perſon than thoſe two, with the Linguiſt of the latter, were employed in drawing it up, it is totally impoſſible; nor do I know of any ſteps having been taken for the carrying it into execution, excepting Monſieur St. Lubin being permitted to remain here, in direct violation of the moſt ſolemn aſſurances to us, that he ſhould be ſent away, and the preſent conduct of the Durbar. Conformable to your orders, I have written a letter to Holkar, on the ſubject of paſſports, and am hourly in expectation of receiving his anſwer, as well as one from Madjee Scindy, to the letter I formerly adviſed I had written him.

On the 23d, one of the Pattamars diſpatched by the Honourable the Preſident with letters to Holkar and Scindy, came and informed me that they had all been ſeized at Culvern, immediately on their croſſing Tanna river, and carried to Billapore, the Subadar of which place ſent them to one Dandaker, the officer commanding the troops at Gallican, who diſpatched three of the Pattamars under charge of two of his own ſepoys with the letters to Morabah, detaining the other a day longer; and after plundering him of the trifle he had, being five rupees, told him he might go about his buſineſs, when the man made the beſt of his way to me. I have acquainted Holkar of this circumſtance, deſiring he would apply to Morabah for the letters. I have likewiſe written to Morabah, expreſſing my ſurpriſe at this conduct, deſiring, ſhould he not have delivered the letters, that he would ſend them to me.

Monſieur St. Lubin returned from Proonder laſt night, being ſupplied by Morabah with twenty-five peons, two jaſſoods, and four camels, which it is given out are to attend him as far as Surat.

Tranſlate of a Letter from a perſon at Proonder; dated the 21ſt Rabellacar, and received the 19th May 1778.

At noon I received your note by Shirbjee, and obſerved the contents thereof. Morabah has had two councils regarding the French. He told Monſieur St. Lubin, he had made an agreement with Nanah to bring 2,000 Europeans within fifteen months, which he had not yet complied with; but that if it is in his power to fulfil that engagement, Morabah desired he would send for them with ammunition, so as to be here before the battalions can arrive from Calcutta; which Monsieur St Lubin agreed to, and dispatched a letter express to his place.

Monsieur St. Lubin is dispatched, and Morabah wants him to go away in order to hasten the troops he has promised; but he says he will remain here, and send a man with letters for them; this they are at present considering about.

Honourable Sir, and Gentlemen,

I late last night received the Secretary's letter of the 22d, and shall obey your orders for fowarding the packets to the Governor General and Council.

After closing my last address to your Honour, &c. I received a note from Morabah, enclosing three letters for the Governor General, being answers to those delivered by Mr. Lewis, which he requests I will forward.

This morning I received a note from Proonder, acquainting me, that in consequence of our troops from Bengal advancing, and a report of Hyder's army marching this way, Morabah Sacaram and Holkar had a consultation; when they determined on sending Chintoo Wittul and Gopal Naigue Tumbuckur to meet me: the latter arrived this morning, and the former was to leave Proonder about noon. This evening Gopal Naigue sent a message, desiring I would send the Linguist to him; who on his return informed me that he confirmed the note so far that they will meet me to-morrow, to request I will accompany Chintoo Wittul to Bombay with proposals respecting Ragoba. You may depend, Gentlemen, I shall advise you of the particulars of the conversation as early as possible.

Poonah, I am very respectfully, &c. &c.

Extract of a Letter from Mr. Mostyn to the President, dated Poonah the 26th May, and read in Council the 2d of June.

The remonstrance the Board have been pleased to direct me to make to the Durbar, I could wish had not been sent; I have advised them it shall be delivered as soon as translated; but for the following reasons I intend to detain it until I can be favoured with your answer to this letter: First, because the Durbar, to pursue their present plan of amusing you and gaining time to carry their views respecting the French into execution, will undoubtedly promise to comply therewith. Secondly, because it entirely debars us from all further expectation either for ourselves or Ragoba, and we may be saddled with him as long as he lives. Thirdly, because the Durbar are amongst themselves much divided; Holkar urging them to bring Ragoba, in which Scindy will most likely concur: and also seeing us determined to be no longer trifled with, should they be inclined to make any offers worth our acceptance, this remonstrance will certainly put a stop to them.

Lastly, Because the time fixed for the Durbar to deliver their answer, and by the time it can be transmitted to you, the rains will be set in, therefore the delay of a few days can be of no material consequence, in case you should still think it proper to be delivered. Therefore I flatter myself you will approve my conduct, and speedily favour me with your commands on it. Excuse me, Sir, for having given my sentiments thus freely, and I beg leave to entreat you will put a favourable construction on them; my only wish being, that you should be informed of every thing that can be of any use in your deliberations upon this important matter. Scindy is advanced within twelve cos's of Proonder; I hourly expect an answer from him and Holkar regarding the districts; your letters to them you will perceive by the public addres's are stopt, and carried to Morabah; I have wrote both Morabah and Holkar about it. By a note from Proonder this evening, I am informed the Durbar have intelligence that the Bengal forces are on the banks of the Nerbedah, and taking the road for Brampore, but as I have had repeated reports of this I don't give entire credit to their being advanced so far, as I think I should have heard from them by this time if they were. From Butchaba I learn to-night that the Durbar has wrote to Moodajee Bouncello, to desire the officer of our troops in a friendly manner to return; if he will not, then to endeavour to make him by force, and should he want any assistance to advise them the (Durbar) but I am under no apprehensions on his account, as I hear he stands well with the Bengal Gentlemen. The only danger I think to be apprehended for the army is their want of provisions, from their having no horse with them to forage.

To the Honourable William Hornby, Esquire.

Honourable Sir,

Agreeable to what I wrote you last night, this morning both Tombiker and Chintoo Wittul waited on me, when they informed me they were sent on purpose to request I would accompany Chintoo Wittul to Bombay, with some proposals to Ragoba. I made the same objections I had done to the Durbar before, that I did not see any necessity for my going unless the Durbar would explain themselves, particularly after the evasive manner they have behaved with respect to this business. They made me the same answer the Durbar had done, that it was to assure Ragoba of their good intentions towards him. I told them that I considered this all finesse, only intended to gain time and stop our troops from Bengal advancing, for had they been sincere the Durbar would long since have dispatched me, and sent away Monsieur St. Lubin, but that I was convinced from the extraordinary attention Morabah and the Durbar had paid him, the former had taken up Nana's plan, and entered into the same engagement with Monsieur St. Lubin. This they positively denied, though they acknowledged Lubin had made the tender to Morabah, who replied, as long they were in friendship with the English this Government would not enter into any alliance with any other European nation, and that he, Morabah, had absolutely dispatched him. I replied, that it was very true, Monsieur St. Lubin had been publicly dispatched, but it was only with a view to blind us, and perhaps others; however, that I had in my possession what I esteemed as a sufficient proof of my allegation; and produced copy of a letter written by Monsieur St. Lubin to the Captain General of Goa, by Monsieur De Sauty, which I luckily this morning procured. They answered it was possible Monsieur St. Lubin might have written in that manner, but denied my being able to produce any writing from the Durbar: upon which I observed it was the art of this Durbar not to give any thing under their hands, that they might have an opportunity of denying it, and that it was for this reason, before I could give credit to their having finally dispatched Monsieur St. Lubin, on a promise to proceed to Bombay with Chintoo Wittul, that I insisted on a writing from the Durbar with their seal affixed, to the following effect: "That in order to satisfy "the English Company, they declared they had not at "present, nor would have so long as they continued in "friendship with the English, any treaty with the "French, or suffer the French to trade in any of their "ports," being exactly conformable to the promises made me by Saccaram Bappoo, Nanak Furnese, Madah Roe Jadee Roe, and Byro Punt, when I was dispatched to Bombay in August last. This they promised to deliver me,

me, with a letter for the Preſident, accounting for the Durbar's having kept me here ſo long; and requeſted I would ſend the Linguiſt in company with Tumbiker, who returns this evening to camp to bring them, which I conſented to. Chintoo Wittul informed me he ſhould ſet off on the 30th. If the Linguiſt returns with the above papers in time I ſhall accompany him, otherwiſe will follow as ſoon as I receive them, agreeable to the permiſſion the Board have already given me. Encloſed is a copy of the letter from Lubin to the Captain General of Goa, mentioned above; Mr. Lewis being taken ill, and I having been much employed in ſeeing a number of people to-day, I take the liberty to requeſt you will favour me in laying the above before the Board.

Chintoo Wittul informs me he ſhall be four days in going to Panwell, where he will wait two days for me, by which time I hope you will order a proper boat to carry him over.

I have not been able to procure the written intelligence from B ——— to day, but he has promiſed to ſend it me in the morning.

I remain very reſpectfully,
Honourable Sir, &c.

APPENDIX, No. 95.

Letter from Bombay to Bengal.

Gentlemen,

Bombay, 3d June 1778. SINCE cloſing our letter of the 31ſt ultimo we have received further advices from Mr. Moſtyn, copies of which, and of the correſpondence between Monſieur de St. Lubin and the Portugueſe Governments of Goa and Damaun, now wait on you.

By his laſt letter to the Captain General at Goa, written long after the late change in the Poonah Government, it is indiſputably evident that Nanah's engagements with the French have been taken up by the new Adminiſtration.

Upon the inſpection of theſe letters, we reſolved to make a repreſentation to the following effect to the Governors of Goa and Demaun:

"That we have reaſon to believe ſchemes are "concerting between the French and the Poonah Go- "vernment, which have for their objects the annoyance "and detriment of the Britiſh nation; but that, from "the alliance and good harmony ſo happily ſubſiſting "between his Moſt Faithful and his Britannic Majeſty, "we have every reaſon to hope, and ſhall rely, that "the Portugueſe will not in any ſhape interfere or take "any meaſure that may promote the ſucceſs of the "French ſchemes, which in the end would prove "equally ſubverſive of the Portugueſe influence in "India."

You will obſerve Mr. Moſtyn's reaſons for deferring to make his demands on the Durbar, and our orders to him to abide by his former inſtructions, which we doubt not you will approve. Any offers the Durbar may now make to Ragoba can only be intended to gain more time, and the more important objects we have in view cannot be put to the hazard upon the mere hopes of advantage to him.

We have no certain accounts of the Bengal detachment; reports at Poonah ſay it has reached the Nerbudda: we have, however, thought it neceſſary that the commanding officer ſhould have timely inſtructions whither to direct his march; and as Surat, in point of ſituation, accommodation, and every other reſpect, appeared to us the moſt eligible place, we have reſolved to ſend inſtructions to Colonel Leſlie to direct his march to that city, unleſs from circumſtances he ſhould think it expedient, or it ſhould prove more convenient to him to proceed to Broach: in which caſe we have given him a diſcretional power for that purpoſe.

The Chiefs of Surat and Broach will be directed to ſpare no expence to open a correſpondence with Colonel Leſlie, and to afford him all poſſible aſſiſtance to expedite his march. Appendix, Nos. 95 & 96.

It is neceſſary to obſerve to you, that the rainy ſeaſon on this coaſt may be expected to ſet in about the 10th or 15th of June.

You will therefore bend your march with all expedition to that city, unleſs from circumſtances you ſhould think it expedient, or it ſhould prove more convenient to you, to proceed to Broach; in which caſe we hereby give you a diſcretional power for that purpoſe.

Mr. Boddam, the Chief of Surat, and Mr. Gambier, the Chief of Broach, are directed to ſpare no expence to open a correſpondence with you, and to give you every information reſpecting the roads, and every other aſſiſtance that may be neceſſary; and you will not fail to communicate conſtant and punctual advice of your ſituation and wants to either or both of theſe gentlemen, accordingly as you may reſolve to proceed, in conſequence of the diſcretional power we have now given you.

We have the pleaſure to acquaint you, that Mr. Moſtyn, the Reſident at Poonah, has obtained from Mhadjee Scindia, and tranſmitted to you, the proper paſſports for the ſafe conduct of the army under your command through his country, as well as orders to his officers for all neceſſary ſupplies of proviſions. We hope ſoon to obtain the like orders from Tookajee Holcar, and flatter ourſelves you will in conſequence have an unmoleſted and well ſupplied march through the Dekan.

We muſt ſtrongly recommend and enjoin your finding ſome method to correſpond either with us or ſome of the gentlemen above-named, as we cannot but be under anxiety until we receive ſome certain advice of your ſituation, and are apprehenſive your letters muſt be intercepted. We are,

APPENDIX, No. 97.

Extract of Bengal Secret Conſultations, the 17th Auguſt 1778.

PRESENT,

The Honourable Warren Haſtings, Eſquire, Governor General, Preſident;

Richard Barwell, Philip Francis, Edward Wheler, } Eſquires.

RECEIVED the following letters from Mr. Moſtyn, and from Mr. Lewis his deputy, at Poonah.

Honourable Sir, and Gentlemen,

I did myſelf the honour of addreſſing you laſt under the 29th May, and the next day forwarded the paſſport and order from Madjee Scindia, therein mentioned, to Colonel Leſlie.

My Linguiſt having written me from camp, that Morabah did not ſeem inclined to deliver the writing reſpecting the French, which he was ſent in company with Gopaul Naigue Tumbuckur to receive, but that Morabah ſaid, if he did give it, I muſt likewiſe give one, certifying that the enemies of this Government were thoſe of the Engliſh; I directed him to acquaint Morabah, that what he demanded was unneceſſary, it being already ſettled by treaty, and that the one I demanded related merely to the French, who were not thought of when the late treaty was made; ordering him at the ſame time to make another application, and if Morabah refuſed, or made any evaſion, to return to me without loſs of time; he accordingly arrived here the 3d, but I am ſorry to inform your Honour, &c. without the writing; and though Morabah told him he would forward it to me either as that day or the next, I have not heard any thing further about it, nor do I believe the Durbar have any intentions of delivering it.

In conſequence of a letter from the Preſident of Bombay, Madjee Scindy on the 3d ſent me another duſtuck and order to his officers for the free paſſage of our troops through his country, which have alſo been forwarded to Colonel Leſlie. I have not yet received any from Tookajee Holkar, though I have ſtill hopes thereof.

On the 5th in the evening Saccaram Bapoo had a meeting with Madjee Scindy, as had Hurry Punt, who is arrived from Pundapore the ſame night, and the next day Morabah likewiſe met him. Yeſterday I received a letter from camp, informing me that Madjee Scindy and Hurry Punt arrived at Proonder the day before, when they paid a viſit to the Peilhwa, who came down from the fort for that purpoſe, at which were alſo preſent Saccaram Bapoo, Nanah Furneſe, Cruſtrow Belol, and Madabrow Jahdahroi: from Buchabah, Morabah, and Holkar not attending, it appears to me that a party is formed by the former againſt the latter. It is not yet in my power to ſay how affairs will turn out, but it is poſſible the executive part of Government may again revert to Nanah; though I imagine it will require ſome time before it can be carried into execution, and that it will not be decided without bloodſhed.

Notwithſtanding the aſſurances from the Durbar that Monſieur St. Lubin was diſpatched, he is ſtill permitted to remain here, and within theſe few days has pleaded ſickneſs in order to delay time until the rains ſet in.

The encloſed is copy of the paper I have delivered to the Durbar in conſequence of my ſuperior's orders.

I am, &c. &c.

Poonah, the 10th June 1778. (Signed) T. Moſtyn.

To the Miniſters of the Poonah Durbar.

It is now upwards of two years ſince Colonel Upton concluded a treaty with you, and yet nothing has been done on your part towards the accompliſhing it; I am therefore directed by the Governor and Council of Bombay, and under the authority of the Governor General and Council, to call on you in the name and behalf of the Honourable Company, for explicit anſwers to the following articles:

Firſt. I demand to know whether you conſider the Maratta State as bound by the treaty made at Proonder by Colonel Upton, and whether you will pledge your own faith to the due obſervance thereof?

Second. Agreeable to the ſaid treaty I demand immediate poſſeſſion of a country of three lacks of rupees, near or adjoining to Broach, in the manner ſtipulated by the fifth article, by which we mean three lacks groſs revenue, that is, without any allowance for charges.

Third. I am alſo directed by the Governor and Council of Bombay to acquaint you that the Governor General and Council have directed them to keep poſſeſſion of the countries ceded to the Honourable Company by Futty Sing Guicawary, ſince you have failed in producing the proofs required, that Futty Sing Guicawar did not poſſeſs power or authority to make ſuch ceſſions, and that they will accordingly keep poſſeſſion of thoſe countries.

Fourth. I have made frequent remonſtrances to the Durbar on the impropriety of their conduct in countenancing Monſieur St. Lubin, and have as often received aſſurances from them that he ſhould be ſent away; notwithſtanding which, I am ſorry to obſerve, you ſtill permit him to remain here. In a letter I lately received from you, you ſay Monſieur St. Lubin is diſpatched; but this I cannot conſider as a ſufficient anſwer, and therefore do now, in conſequence of orders from the Governor and Council of Bombay, demand of you a clear and ſatisfactory explanation of your intentions with reſpect to the French; that is, whether in future you mean to admit any of their ſhips into your ports, or have any further connections with them? declaring to you that the Governor General and Council will take ſuch meaſures accordingly as prudence ſhall dictate, for the future ſafety of the Company's intereſts and poſſeſſions committed to their care.

Fifth. As the Honourable Company have ſuſtained a loſs of two years revenue by your delay in making over the country of three lacks, conformable to the treaty made with Colonel Upton, and you have failed in making good to the merchants concerned in the ſhip Aurora, the loſs they ſuſtained by that ſhip, amounting to R^s 1,97,705. 3. 84. with intereſt from the 27th Auguſt 1776, being the date of Colonel Upton's letter, adviſing you had agreed to reſtore the ſhip and cargo; I am directed by the Governor and Council of Bombay to inform you they will charge the amount of theſe two articles to the revenues of Jamboſeer, and that when the ſum, for which it was originally mortgaged, with theſe two aſſignments, are paid off, they will be ready to reſtore the ſaid pergunnah to you.

We having experienced ſo much equivocation and delay in all your proceedings, I am ordered to ſend you this in writing, to which I have ſigned my name and fixed the Company's ſeal, and demand from you an explicit anſwer likewiſe in writing with your Sicca affixed thereto; which, if not ſent me in fourteen days from the date hereof, the Governor and Council will conſider any further evaſion or delay as a refuſal. Dated in Poonah this 4th day of June 1778.

A true copy.
(Signed) Tho^s Moſtyn.

Honourable Sir, and Gentlemen,

My laſt reſpects waited on your Honour, &c. under the 10th inſtant.

In the evening after I had diſpatched the above addreſs, I received intelligence that Madajee Scindia, having ſent 5,000 men to eſcort him, Nanah had fled to him, conveying with him his own people, amounting to about 2000 men and his Bazar, &c.; that Nanah, ſoon after his arrival at Scindia's camp, wrote to Morabah, requiring him to deliver over the Sicca Cuttary and Jerry Putkey, which the latter refuſed complying with; and that ſeveral of Morabah's inferior officers had received notes from Nanah, ordering them to attend him; but that they, ſo far from obeying theſe orders, had all declared their reſolution to ſtand by Morabah.

On the 20th, one of my own hircarrahs informed me, that it was reported in Morabah's camp, Nanah had promiſed nine lacks of rupees each to Holkar and Scindia, five lacks of which was immediately paid to either, and the remainder was to be paid as the next day; in conſequence of which, Holkar, who was encamped in the rear of Morabah, advanced to his front, and Scindia, who was the front of the other party, alſo advanced; and theſe two officers joining, now form one camp between Morabah and Nanah. What may be the real motives for this junction, I cannot pretend to ſay, though I make no doubt they have ſome ſcheme in agitation againſt ſome of the Miniſters. Append. No. 97.

On the 12th at noon I received a letter from Morabah deſiring that I would ſend him a copy of the papers regarding the French; the one delivered by my Linguiſt having been miſlaid, and at the ſame time earneſtly requeſting I would go to him at camp. To this I replied; that having delivered the Durbar a paper on the 4th, in which every thing neceſſary was mentioned, and to which a plain and direct anſwer would be expected in the time limited, the paper he requeſted was of no conſequence: I at the ſame time excuſed myſelf from waiting on him, for the reaſons I had formerly given him through Gopaul Naigue Tumbuckur; but told him, if he had any thing particular to offer, and would deliver it in writing, I would forward it to Bombay, and obtain him an anſwer as ſoon as poſſible. The reaſons here alluded to, were the evaſive and trifling treatment, both myſelf and Mr. Lewis had met with at the different times we went to camp, and the extraordinary attention paid by the Durbar to Monſieur St. Lubin; but I was more particularly led to evade going, by a letter I had received that morning from a perſon in Scindia's camp, informing me, that Nanah either had written or would write me, to requeſt I would go to him; and being convinced from the ſituation the Government is in, that the parties in general would take for granted, the Engliſh would ſupport whichever I ſhould viſit, it appeared of too much conſequence for me to decide. Having received the letter from Nanah, I immediately addreſſed my ſuperiors, requeſting their orders on the ſubject; in the mean time excuſing myſelf in the politeſt manner to Nanah. On the 22d I was favoured with my ſuperiors' anſwer, dated the 18th, wherein they ſay, they think no objection could lay againſt my viſiting Morabah, as the Miniſter with whom I have lately tranſacted all buſineſs in behalf of the Maratta State, without any reference to them.

On the 17th I received another letter from Morabah, expreſſing his concern that I did not wait on him, he having ſome particular buſineſs to ſpeak to me about, which he ſaid he had ſent a man to explain to me. The man told me he was empowered to promiſe an immediate compliance with the paper I delivered the 4th, for which purpoſe ſunnuds ſhould be accordingly inſtantly given for the country of three lacks, and the other articles agreed to in every point, and to deſire that he would bring over Ragoba with our forces. I replied, that it was not in my power to give an anſwer to this requeſt; but if they were ſincere in this application, Morabah and his party ought to loſe no time in writing to the Preſidency of Bombay. I added, that in caſe of compliance it would be expected that the treaty made with Ragoba ſhould be adhered to: to which the man replied, that neither Morabah nor any of his party would make mention of the treaty; for as it had been made by their maſter, it reſted entirely with Ragoba to act therein as he thought fit. On the 21ſt the man returned to me, bringing with him letters from Morabah and Bucheba to the Honourable the Preſident and me, anſwers to the paper I delivered the 4th, and duſtucks for the free paſſage of the forces you are ſending to Bombay through the Maratta dominions; but there being ſome alteration neceſſary in the anſwers to the articles, I propoſed to the man his returning with them to camp, and obſerved to him, that as the above letters mentioned Holcar being joined with them, it would be better if he alſo wrote: upon which the man conſented to return, and deſired my Linguiſt might accompany him to ſee the papers were properly drawn out. The Interpreter accordingly accordingly ſet out the 23d, and returned the 26th in the evening, when he informed that Morabah had conſented to every point of the articles which he had ſeen the Sicca affixed to, as alſo to the ſunnuds for the country of three lacks; that Holcar had alſo written letters, in which he declares he is firmly attached to Morabah, and agrees to whatever they do, and expreſſes his earneſt deſire that we will aſſiſt with our forces in bringing Ragoba hither; and that though theſe papers and letters were all ſealed in his preſence, neither Morabah nor Holcar choſe to truſt them with the Interpreter to bring down, as the Government they ſaid would in a few days be entirely in Nanah's hands, by whoſe people the Gauts between this and Proonder were already ſo ſtrictly watched, that not a man could paſs without being ſtripped and ſearched, which indeed happened to the Interpreter, but they added, as it had been agreed by the parties that Morabah ſhould retire to the village of Bhole, about ten coſs to the northward of Poonah, for which place he ſhould paſs through the town in two or three days, he would take that opportunity of ſending theſe papers and letters to me by one of his own people. The Interpreter further tells me, that on the 25th Morabah and Buchaba paid Holcar a viſit; that Scindy in the mean time coming in, the two officers retired to a private room, where, after conſulting ſome time, they ſent for the two Brachmans, when they told Morabah he muſt deliver up the Sicca Cuttary and Jerry Putkey to Nanah; which Morabah refuſed, ſaying, that as he had received them from Perwetty Bhoy he ſhould return them to her.

On the 25th Madarow Jadary, who came into town the day before, ſent me a letter from Nanah, written in the name of the Peiſhwa, which referred me to Madajow for ſome circumſtances he was ordered to tell me, and deſired I would go to his camp. Upon my ſending to Madarow to know what theſe circumſtances were, and what Nanah had to ſay to me that he required my attendance, he mentioned the excuſe I ſent to Nanah, as already recited in the former part of this letter, that Baboo and Nanah thought it very extraordinary my delivering a letter directed to all the Peiſhwa Miniſters, with the Company's ſeal affixed at the top, and that the Miniſters only wanted to talk with me on the ſubject thereof. I have therefore written to the Peiſhwa in reply, that as we found ſo much evaſion and prevarication in his Miniſters ever ſince the late treaty, it was abſolutely neceſſary every thing ſhould be done in writing. I had therefore on the 4th inſtant, delivered certain articles not a letter, to which I had ſigned my name and affixed the Company's ſeal, to ſhew that their anſwer muſt have both the Sicca and Mortab affixed thereto, and to which, agreeable to the orders I received from my ſuperiors, I had demanded a plain and poſitive anſwer in fourteen days from that date; but notwithſtanding they had exceeded that time by ten days, I had not yet received one; and that, as it would therefore only be loſing time to talk about the articles, not having it in my power to ſay any thing until I received the Miniſter's anſwers, I hoped the Peiſhwa would excuſe my attendance; adding, if the Miniſters had any thing particular to ſay, I requeſted they would give it me in writing, when if I found it material enough I would readily wait on them.

On the 12th I received paſſports from Tuckojee Holcar for the free paſſage of our troops through his country, which were forwarded the next day to Colonel Leſlie, and on the 22d alſo forwarded him the duſtuck from the Durbar mentioned above.

Having procured copies of a letter Nanah has lately written to the Nizam, and of a paſs he delivered to Monſieur St. Lubin, when that gentleman viſited him under pretence of taking leave on the 20th ultimo, I now encloſe copy of them for your notice, and which as they have been explained to me, ſhew Nanah's real views with reſpect to Ragoba, the Engliſh, and the French; but not being able to get them properly tranſlated here, I am under the neceſſity of forwarding their Perſian copies.

All roads being ſtopt by Nanah's people, who have ſtrict orders to ſeize all letters, I have written this on country paper, for the greater convenience of conveyance, and its greater ſafety.

Morabah paſſed the town yeſterday, and in his way ſent me the letters, &c. agreeable to what is mentioned above, with a paper containing ſundry articles to be ſettled between his party and Ragoba, which he requeſts the Board's mediation in. The whole party having requeſted I will go to Bombay on this occaſion, and I having my ſuperior's permiſſion for ſo doing, whenever I may find it neceſſary I ſhall accordingly proceed thither as ſoon as I poſſibly can without giving umbrage to the preſent adminiſtration.

I am, &c. &c.

Poonah, 30th June 1778. (Signed) T. Moſtyn.

Read, the following letters from Bombay:

Gentlemen,

We encloſe duplicates of our letters of the 31ſt ultimo, and 3d and 12th inſtant, and likewiſe another copy of Mr. Baldwin's letter.

Colonel Leſlie has adviſed us of his having arrived oppoſite to Kalpey the 14th ultimo, and of his intention to proſecute his march in a few days. We do not apprehend he can reach this coaſt until after the rains, but as his early arrival will be of the utmoſt importance, we ſhall direct him to expedite his march as much as poſſible. Mr. Moſtyn has ſucceeded in obtaining paſſports from Tuckajee Holcar as well as Mhadajee Scindy, which he has tranſmitted to Colonel Leſlie.

We find, by Mr. Moſtyn's advices, that a party is now formed againſt Morabah, and that it is poſſible the executive part of Government may again revert to Nanah, though not without oppoſition. Both parties have deſired an interview with Mr. Moſtyn, who on that occaſion referring to us for inſtructions, we thought, that as Morabah held the Sicca, and was the acting Miniſter with whom he had lately tranſacted all buſineſs on the part of the Maratta State, there would be an impropriety in his viſiting Nanah, and that it might have a bad effect; whereas no objection could lay againſt his viſiting Morabah, whenever he might find it neceſſary, without any regard to their party diſputes. On the 19th, the term we have limited for receiving the Durbar's anſwer will expire.

As the preſence of his Majeſty's ſquadron at this place might be our preſervation in caſe of an attack, and it can be of little ſervice, and is only expoſed to danger from a ſuperior fleet, on the coaſt of Coromandel, we now write to Sir Edward Vernon, by a veſſel expreſs, deſiring he will immediately come round to Bombay by the ſouthern paſſage; in which caſe he may arrive here in Auguſt.

Encloſed is a general return of our forces for laſt month.

We are, &c. &c.

Extract of Bengal Secret Conſultations, the 17th Auguſt 1778.

Copy of a letter from Mr. Moſtyn to the Honourable William Hornby, Eſquire.

Honourable Sir,

The foregoing is copy of my addreſs under the 17th, which unfortunately was ſeized near the top of the Gotts, and carried to Logur, and the letter ſent to Nanah. I hope to recover it unopened, otherwiſe it will irritate him exceedingly. When I diſpatched it, I knew not that the Chowkies extended far beyond the town; but Jaſſoods are now ſpread all over the country, even in all the bye-roads. Mr. Farmer diſpatched a pair of Pattamars yeſterday; they proceeded as far as the Gotts in the night, but finding every avenue guarded, they were obliged to ſecrete his letters; and one returned this evening to acquaint us thereof. I am alſo informed, that five pair of our Pattamars, with one from Chintoo Wittul, and another belonging to Naro Sunker, who were coming from Bombay, were all ſtopped on the Gotts; one man only belonging to us got off; but the letters are all carried to Logur, from whence they will be ſent to Nanah. Theſe impediments will make our correſpondence tedious, not only from the neceſſity of every thing being wrote in cypher, but the Pattamars will alſo be obliged to go much round about, and can only travel by night. Let me requeſt, Sir, your letters may be made up as round as poſſible, and that you will ſend them by the Poonah Pattamars, and I will venture my life they will come ſafe, though perhaps take a little more time.

I can add nothing but what the public addreſs will inform you, for it is paſt my power to gueſs what are the real intentions of Scindia and Holkar; every thing ſeems to depend upon them. However, I do not believe Morabah's affairs are ſo deſperate as the Junto make them; if they were, he would not remain quiet at Proonder, nor his family in Poonah. I am rather inclined to think ſomething is intended againſt the other party; but the better to blind them into a belief of ſecurity, Todkajee and Scindia permit them to go on. From the general letter you will learn how the different armies are ſituated. I cannot think they can long remain in this ſtate; and I have hopes Monacjee Ponercah, and Badjee Punt Burba, who are hourly expected, will turn the table in favour of Morabah; and I think Scindia's ſcheme, in moving from Sacaram and Nanah, is to afford thoſe officers an opportunity to attack them. I have juſt now received a chit, informing me, that the man from Morabah, who was to have come two days ago, will be with me this night; therefore permit me to requeſt your ſpeedy determination, with reſpect to my proceeding to Bombay. The putting into cypher, and copying the letter to the Committee, has taken up ſo much time, it could not be ready laſt night; I was therefore obliged to keep it until now. The Perſian papers encloſed to the Board are in a character. Mr. Farmer could not take upon him to tranſlate, and I was afraid to truſt them with any one elſe. I think they are inconteſtable proofs of Nanah's intentions; and it behoves us ſeriouſly to determine to fruſtrate them. I hope you will ſoon have a fair opportunity. I remain with much reſpect,

Honourable Sir,
your moſt obedient humble ſervant,
Poonah, (Signed) Thomas Moſtyn.
the 21ſt June 1778.

P. S.—The man is arrived, and I make no doubt matters will be ſettled in two days, agreeable to what is mentioned under the 17th. If you loſe this opportunity, I have no hopes of any one hereafter joining you, or making any more offers.

Bombay Secret Conſultations, the 17th of June 1778.

The Preſident and Council of Bombay wrote to the Court of Directors as follows, viz.

"On the 26th of March a change was effected in the "adminiſtration at Poonah by Morabah Furneeſe, who, "without oppoſition or bloodſhed took poſſeſſion of "that city, aſſumed the executive power from Nanah "Furneeſe, and appeared to act in all affairs of Govern- "ment in concert with Saccaram Bappoo; they had ſo "taken their meaſures, as to impreſs, we may ſay, a "general belief that this revolution was intended in "favour of Ragoba.

"We for ſome time entertained hopes that this change "would be followed with the moſt favourable conſe- "quences to the Company and to Ragoba, and we more "particularly depended that the French influence at the "Maratta Durbar would be deſtroyed by that event. Appendix. No. 97.

"The following extract of our letter to the Governor "General, dated the 20th of laſt month, will in a few "words ſhew you how far theſe expectations have been "realized, the terms we are likely to be on with the "Poonah Government, and the inſtructions laid down "for our conduct by thoſe gentlemen, which, though "given before the revolution, were ſtill applicable to our "then ſituation.

"Every letter we have received from Poonah ſince "the revolution, and the uniform tenor of the conduct of "the new adminiſtration, evidently prove, that they ſtill "mean to continue the ſame line of evaſive conduct, ſo "long purſued by that Government; we doubt not but "your advices from Mr. Moſtyn will have impreſſed you "with the ſame opinion. Though the executive power "is transferred from Nanah to Morabah, the former is "ſtill in office, and a member of the Durbar; the latter "as far as we can judge, ſeems inclined to tread in the "footſteps of his predeceſſor, and unwilling to part with "any ſhare of his power to Ragoba, may ſeek to ſecure "the whole to himſelf by the ſame means.

"Monſieur de St. Lubin is ſtill permitted to remain at "Poonah, though his diſmiſſion was the very firſt object "of our inſtructions to Mr. Moſtyn after the change in "the adminiſtration took place, and he received every "ſatisfaction on that head that promiſes could give, ſo "long ago as the 10th April. Notwithſtanding the re- "queſt then made to him in public Durbar to accompany "their agent to Bombay with propoſals reſpecting Ra- "goba; we find by his lateſt advices, that they have "been only trifling with him, nor have they to his "knowledge yet taken one ſtep towards ſettling that "buſineſs, though the ſeaſon is now ſo late. The treaty "ſtill remains on the ſame footing on which it has ſtood "theſe two years paſt, nor has the new Government "taken any meaſures whatever for fulfilling the unexe- "cuted articles.

"Such being the ſituation of affairs, we could not, "with your orders before us, wait any longer in expec- "tation of propoſals from Poonah; we have therefore "given Mr. Moſtyn inſtructions to the following pur- "port, being exactly to the directions contained in your "letter of the 23d of March.

"Firſt, We have directed him to demand from the "new adminiſtration, an expreſs avowal of the treaty "concluded by Colonel Upton.

"Secondly, The immediate poſſeſſion of a country of "three lacks, ſtipulated by the fifth article of the ſaid "treaty, and to declare a refuſal to be a violation of the "treaty.

"Thirdly, To acquaint the Durbar we have orders "from Bengal to keep poſſeſſion of the Guicawar ceſ- "ſions, ſince they have failed in producing the proofs "required by the treaty, that Futty Sing did not poſſeſs "power to make ſuch ceſſions.

"Fourthly, To make a remonſtrance againſt the "countenance afforded to the Chevalier de St. Lubin, "and to demand a clear and ſatisfactory explanation of "their intentions with reſpect to the French, declaring "to the Miniſters, that the Governor General and "Council will take ſuch meaſures accordingly as pru- "dence ſhall dictate, for the future ſafety of the Com- "pany's poſſeſſions.

"We thought it neceſſary to direct Mr. Moſtyn to "deliver theſe demands in writing, and to acquaint the "Miniſters, that we expected an immediate and explicit "anſwer, likewiſe in writing; but that if ſuch an an- "ſwer was not returned within fourteen days, we ſhould "conſider any further delay or evaſion as a refuſal, and "take our meaſures accordingly.

"Mr. Moſtyn delivered his demands on the 4th in- "ſtant, when it was ſignified to the Miniſters, that Jam- "booſeer would be reſtored, on their making good the "balance of the twelve lacks, the loſs you have ſuſtained "by

Appendix. No. 99.

" by their delay in making over the country of three " lacks, and the amount due to the concerned in the " Aurora.

" The Governor General and Council, on the Poonah " Government refuſing to comply with theſe demands, " or in any other ſhape infringing the treaty, have " authorized us to conclude an alliance with Ragoba.

" We have lately obtained from Mr. Moſtyn very " ſtrong evidence, that Nanah's engagements with the " French have been taken up by the new adminiſtra- " tion; and the ſame gentleman diſcovered, that ap- " plication had been made by Monſieur de St. Lubin " to the government of Goa, for permiſſion for two " French regiments to paſs through the Portugueze " territories to the aſſiſtance of the Poonah Miniſters; " on which head we have made a proper repreſentation " to the Governor of Goa.

" Our lateſt advices from Poonah inform us, that a " party is formed againſt Morabah; and that it is not " unlikely the executive part of government may again " revert to Nanah Furneeſe. Both parties ſeem prepar- " ing to come to extremities; and it is not improbable " but one or both may make application to us for aſſiſt- " ance. In this critical ſituation, you may be aſſured " we ſhall proceed with the utmoſt caution and circum- " ſpection, and take no ſteps but what may appear, " on the moſt attentive conſideration of every circum- " ſtance, as beſt ſuited to enſure the ſafety and welfare " of your poſſeſſions."

The 8th of July 1778, the Board at Bombay addreſſed the Court as follows; viz.

" By the advices received from Mr. Moſtyn ſince that " period, we now find, that the change we then had " reaſon to think would take place in the Poonah Go- " vernment, has really happened; the adminiſtration " having reverted into the old channel, and the execu- " tive power veſted in Nanah Furneſe; in conſequence " of which, that government is now again in the ſame " ſituation it was at the time the treaty was concluded " by Colonel Upton.

" Our laſt letter from Mr. Moſtyn is dated the 3d " inſtant, in which he informs us, that not having re- " ceived from the new adminiſtration an anſwer to the " demands he made under the 4th ult. and having " received from the other party every neceſſary paper " and credential for ſettling our demands upon that State, " and bringing Ragoba again into government, he had " at their requeſt determined to proceed immediately " hither, to lay the ſame before us, and propoſed ſetting " off as ſoon as he had received the proper paſſports for " that purpoſe."

APPENDIX, No. 98.

Extract of Bombay Secret Conſultations, the 6th July, 1778, RECEIVED the follow letter from the Reſident at Poonah.

Poonah, Letter from.

Honourable Sir, and Gentlemen,

My laſt reſpects were dated the 29th ultimo: the ſame evening I received another letter from Nanah, requiring my attendance at camp in the name of the Peiſhwa; as alſo one from Mhadjee Scindia, telling me that he underſtood there was ſome difference between the Durbar and us, with reſpect to the late treaty, he would get it ſettled, and therefore requeſted I would go to him; to the former I have made the ſame reply as formerly adviſed, and to the latter, that I ſhould be very happy to meet him; but as this could not be done without diſguſting the miniſters whom I had for certain reaſons refuſed, I hoped he would excuſe me for the preſent.

Yeſterday I received in the evening a note from Keſſorow, the ſon of Mhaderow Jaderow, requeſting I would ſend the Linguiſt to him as he had ſomething to ſay; the Linguiſt accordingly went when Keſſorow told him, that as Morabah had got poſſeſſion of the articles I delivered the 4th ultimo, he was directed to requeſt I would deliver another copy thereof; to this I replied in writing, that I did not underſtand this behaviour, being certain that the paper is in Nanah's poſſeſſion, if not, it was very extraordinary that he did not apply for a ſecond copy, when he deſired I would go to camp purpoſely to talk on theſe articles on the 25th ultimo, or that Mhaderow at a viſit he paid me the 27th, ſhould not have aſked for a copy, but on the contrary repeated the articles to me verbatim, and preſſed me to go to camp, to talk upon them; and that it therefore appearing perfectly clear to me, the Durbar ſo far from meaning to give an anſwer, only wanted to trifle with me, and by obtaining another copy, have it in their power to ſay they did not receive the articles until the 2d inſtant, when they would expect a further time of fourteen days to anſwer; I could not comply with their requeſt; to this, Keſſorow replied in writing, that in conſideration of our friendſhip, I ought to deliver the copy in queſtion.

From the above meſſage I make no doubt it will appear clear to your Honour, &c. that the Durbar have no real intention of replying to that paper; and as I have received every neceſſary paper and credential from the other party for ſettling our demands and bringing Ragoba into government, with which they have earneſtly requeſted I will proceed to the Preſidency, and lay before the Honourable Board for your final determination, I judge it neceſſary to comply with their requeſt, and intend ſetting out as ſoon as I can receive the proper duſtucks, which I hope will be in a few days.

I was in hopes of receiving an anſwer from the preſent Durbar to the paper delivered the 4th ultimo, which would have afforded me an opportunity of leaving Poonah under pretence of laying them before you, without giving the leaſt to ſuſpect the real motive of my journey; but being diſappointed therein, I have been under the neceſſity, as the only means left to prevent ſuſpicion, of making uſe of your Honour, &c.'s name by writing to the Peiſhwa, it is by your orders, I proceed.

I am informed that Holcar and Scindia are preſſing Nanah for the balance of the money promiſed them as mentioned in my addreſs of the 20th ultimo, which Nanah is endeavouring to evade by ſaying that he has no money with him, but will come to Poonah to raiſe it. To this, however, the officers object, and inſiſt on its being paid there; Nanah has in conſequence ſent for all the Shroffs, both Bramins and Guzarattees, to Proonder, but I underſtand they have agreed amongſt themſelves not to lend a rupee, and it is imagined this will bring on a freſh diſpute.

Monſieur St. Lubin left this place the 9th inſtant, with an intent as it is publicly given out, of proceeding to Damaun, though I am privately aſſured that he will not go further than Dannoo, where I ſuppoſe he will remain until Nanah is ſatisfied whether he can comply with his engagements.

I am, very reſpectfully,

Poonah, 3d July 1778. Honourable Sir, and Gentlemen, your moſt obedient Servant, Thomas Moſtyn.

APPENDIX, No. 99.

Letter from Mr. Moſtyn, dated 13th July 1778.

Bombay Sel. Conſns. 21 July 1778.

To the Honourable William Hornby, Eſquire, Preſident and Governor, &c. Select Committee, Bombay.

Honourable Sir, and Gentlemen,

CONFORMABLE to what I wrote you under the 3d inſtant, I left Poonah the 6th, and have now the honour to lay before you ſundry letters and papers from Morabah and his party, as per enclosed liſt, and hope my my conduct in the whole of this buſineſs will meet with your Honour, &c.'s approbation.

On the 5th I received another letter from Scindia, requeſting I would go to him, as he wanted to ſettle the articles; but as I had ſo often refuſed both him and the Durbar, telling him that it was not in my power to talk on the articles, as your Honour, &c. required a plain and direct anſwer in writing, and being convinced it was a ſcheme of Nannah's to delay time, I thought my going to camp at Scindia's requeſt might appear as if I meant to trifle only with them: I therefore wrote to Scindia, deſiring that he would ſend me the Duſtucks, for which I told him I ſhould ſtay that day only; I alſo added, that if he had any thing particular to ſay, and would deliver it me in writing, I ſhould lay it before your Honour, &c. and procure him an anſwer.

I likewiſe encloſe copy of my addreſs to the Honourable the Governor General and Council under the 30th ultimo. I am, very reſpectfully,

The Row Saheb State has fallen into diſorder, which cannot be ſettled without the preſence of the proper maſter; the Row Saheb being a minor, your Honour, &c. will therefore join your army with Dada Saheb, and ſee him come to Poonah. I have communicated ſome matters regarding the coming of Dada Saheb to Thomas Moſtyn, Eſquire, and have diſpatched him to your Honour, &c. by whoſe verbal information you will know all. Your Honour, &c. will have no ſcruples in your mind, and manage ſo that Dada Saheb's coming may take place immediately.

No. 3. Tranſlation of a Letter from Mhaderow Narrain Peiſhwa, dated 2d June 1778.

After compliments.

Mr. Moſtyn has repreſented to me, that there is a treaty in force between the Circar and the Company, and they continue in terms of friendſhip; for that reaſon it is proper no manner of agreement ſhould be made or entered into with Monſieur St. Lubin, a Frenchman, who is come to this Circar, and is permitted to reſide at Poonah. To this I anſwer; that hitherto no agreement has been concluded between him and this Durbar; neither ſhall any be made hereafter; and I never will hold with him or his nation any ſort of friendſhip, or permit the French ſhips to come into any of my ports, either for trade or otherwiſe: this will continue ſo long as the Honourable Company and I remain in friendſhip. I have not any occaſion to depend on the French nation. Your Honours, &c. will alſo act agreeable to the treaty. Appendix. No. 99.

Tranſlation of a Letter from Tookajee Holcar, dated 20th June 1778. No. 4.

After compliments:

Diſorders have ariſen in the government of Row Saheb Pundit Pradhan, owing to which, ſome enemies of the State have grown powerful; therefore, without the preſence of Dada Saheb, theſe diſorders cannot be put a ſtop to, nor can the government be ſettled. I have had a conference on this head with Morabah Dada and Butchebah, wherein we have agreed to bring Dada Saheb to Poonah; and both the aforeſaid perſons have communicated the ſame to Mr. Moſtyn, and written letters to him on the buſineſs. We are heartily agreed, ſo that your Honour will ſee that Dada Saheb comes here immediately with your forces; and entertain no doubts reſpecting us; but do what is ſettled by Mr. Moſtyn with the two governments' officers. I want very much to have the government properly ſettled; and your Honour is likewiſe a friend to this State. You will know the reſt of the verbal information of Mr. Moſtyn. I am hearty in the buſineſs, and ſo are the two above-mentioned Chiefs.

After compliments:

I have delivered to Mr. Moſtyn a liſt of every article of my terms, which he will communicate to you, and you will take the ſame into conſideration, and ſee every article agreed to. Your Honour will mediate between the parties, and get the articles confirmed under the ſeal of the Company, and ſend them to me; all which, and other matters, I have communicated to Mr. Moſtyn; who will acquaint you of the ſame. I have not any other intention than to be on friendly terms with you, and your Honour will do the ſame on your part.

Tranſlation of a Letter from Moraba to Ragoba. No. 6.

I ſwear that no obſtacle will ariſe on our ſide. Three Sunnuds, in the name of Maderow Narrain Peiſhwa, to deliver to the Engliſh of Bombay, the Pergunnahs of Deſborah, Hanſood, and Ahmood. Dated 15th Rabillaker. No. 9.

No. 10. Demands made by Mr. Moſtyn, on the part of the Government of Bombay; with the anſwers.

Appendix. No. 99.

1ſt. The ſix articles already delivered are to be agreed to, and anſwered under your Sicca, in a column oppoſite to each article. Should Dada Saheb beſides give us an additional grant of territory, you will aſſiſt therein, and ſend Sunnuds accordingly.

Anſwer. The above mentioned ſix articles have been already determined on, and anſwered by an inſtrument which is ſealed and delivered, and ſhall be obſerved; you will do the ſame on your part. Beſides which, we agreed to Dada Saheb's giving you additional Jaghire.

2d. The pay and expence of the Engliſh troops, who will come with Ragobah, are to be defrayed in ready money, according to the terms ſettled with Ragonaut Row, in the treaty of Surat, which treaty you will agree to; or if ready money is not paid, particular countries ſhall be aſſigned over for the ſame purpoſe.

Anſwer. You will ſhew the article in the treaty of Surat reſpecting the pay of the troops to Chintoo Wittul; if he approves of it we will abide by what he may ſettle; whatever may be ſettled we will either pay in ready money, or aſſign over countries near the ſea coaſt, which you will reſtore on the money being paid; we agree to Dada Saheb's treaty.

3d. On Dada Saheb's arrival either at Bellapore or Panwell, Butcheba and the Subedar's ſon are to come and compliment him.

Anſwer. Conſidering the preſent ſituation of affairs, none of us can conveniently come. You will bring him over the Ghauts, and we are ready for his ſervice in all things. You will do the buſineſs without fail.

We agree to the above as it is written. Dated 15th Rabillaker.

No. 11. Anſwers under the Sicca and Mortab to the paper of demands delivered by Mr. Moſtyn to the Poonah Durbar, the 4th June 1778.

Sicca.

Firſt. We agree to obſerve the treaty of Poorunder, and will willingly perform the ſame: you will do the ſame on your part.

Second. Sunnuds are iſſued for the country of three lacks, according to the treaty. You allege there is a difference between the Cahmil Jumma and the preſent revenues; into which we ſhall hereafter enquire and do what may be neceſſary. If it appears on a juſt examination, that the revenues fall ſhort of three lacks, villages will be given from the Pergunnah of Occlaſeer to make up the difference: if on the contrary there ſhould be an exceſs, you will diſmember villages from the Pergunnah of Hanſood, and reſtore them to the Circar.

Third. The proofs from Futty Sing mentioned in the treaty of Poorunder not having been produced to this day, we now agree to your keeping the country of one and a half lack of rupees, given the Company by Futty Sing Guicawar.

Fourth. Monſieur St. Lubin, the Frenchman, is already diſpatched. No treaty is concluded with him, nor will any be hereafter, ſo long as we are in friendſhip with you. A letter is written to the Governor on this ſubject.

Fifth. You ſpeak of the ſtipulations made by Colonel Upton reſpecting the country of three lacks, to which we anſwer that we ſhall obſerve the agreement made by the Circar. The juſt amount due on that account, according to the treaty, ſhall be paid in ready money, or out of the revenues of Jambooſeer, as may be ſettled; which Pergunnah ſhall be reſtored after the amount is paid.

Sixth. We have anſwered your five articles oppoſite to each other, agreeable to which we will act.

We agree to the ſix articles, in the above manner.

Mortab.

Tranſlation of a Memorandum delivered to Mr. Moſtyn by Morabah.

No. 12. A true friendſhip ſhould ſubſiſt between us; regarding which, a letter to me, under the Company's ſeal, is required to the following purport:

That ſeveral points have been agreed to between us by an inſtrument under the Company's ſeal, which we will obſerve: you will have no objection or doubts in your mind about the ſame; our friendſhip will be continued to the end of time, and you will cultivate the ſame on your part.

Memorandum of Articles given in by Mr. Moſtyn, and anſwered under the Sicca.

No. 13. Futty Sing has given the Company a territory of one lack and a half of rupees, to which you will have no objections.

Anſwer. This article is anſwered in the reply to the paper of demands given in to the Durbar by Mr. Moſtyn.

You will ſettle reſpecting the pay of the troops that are to accompany Ragoba, in the ſame manner as ſtipulated by the treaty of Surat; or leave the ſame to be adjuſted by Chintoo Punt, giving him a proper power for that purpoſe.

Anſwer. Chintoo Punt has authority and inſtructions on this point, as mentioned in a former paper. We agree to the treaty made with Ragoba.

The Circar have given us, by the treaty concluded by Colonel Upton, a country of three lacks of rupees. The Pergunnahs ſhall be Ahmood, Desborah, and Hanſood. Any difference there may be in either of the revenues of theſe diſtricts ſhall be ſettled, as mentioned in paper No. 11.

Anſwer. This paper has been alſo already anſwered.

We

We have mutually agreed to reſtore Ragoba; it now remains to be ſettled, to what place we ſhall bring him, and where you will come and join him. We will come to the foot of the Ghauts; but it is very difficult to get above them. After we have got above the Ghauts, there can be no obſtacle; but that enterprize will be very difficult.

Holcar is equally engaged with you in this buſineſs; you will therefore deſire him to confirm the ſame to one of my people.

To tranſport the artillery, ſtores, &c. Ten thouſand biggaries, and two thouſand bullocks will be wanting. We will bring as many Laſcars as our Bundar can afford: but the reſt muſt be ſupplied by you.

I will endeavour to get your articles confirmed; but you muſt ſend ſome perſon with letters for the Governor and Chintoo Punt.

Anſwer. The principal officers and their armies are now here, and when it is convenient we will adviſe you thereof. You may now go to Bombay; and when you have ſettled every thing, let us know; and ſend the articles, according to our agreement. All our time and attention are taken up in the buſineſs. We have given you full powers; but the matter muſt be kept a ſecret. Appendix. No. 100.

Anſwer. The Subedar has had a meeting with Bapoojee, and ſatisfied him, and given him his letters.

Anſwer. You have every thing. We on our part will aſſiſt with as many as our ſituation will permit; but you muſt not make any delay on this account.

Anſwer. I have delivered to you letters for the Governor, and deputed a proper perſon; but no letters for Chintoo Punt; your being there will be ſufficient.

Our treaty is not to be diſcovered to any perſon, not even to Chintoo Punt.

We agree to the above, the 29th Jamdillowah.

Articles propoſed for a Treaty by Mora Baberow and Mahiput Row Trimbuck.

No. 14

Article 1ſt. The Peiſhwa being a minor, the State has fallen into diſorder, for that reaſon we have agreed that Dada Saheb ſhall come, in order that the government may be ſettled; but the Sicca, &c. ſhall be continued in the name of Maderow Narrain, and until he comes of age Dada Saheb ſhall conduct the government, through our hands as the principal miniſters.

2d. Dada Saheb will not keep any of his preſent attendants near him, nor liſten to their evil counſel; he may ſettle on them reaſonable appointments, but not let them approach near him.

3d. In conſequence of the diſorders that have prevailed in the State for theſe four years paſt, Ragoba may have intentions to puniſh particular perſons; he muſt not entertain any thoughts of that kind, but baniſh all enmity from his heart in a general amneſty. If any one hereafter ſhall raiſe diſturbances againſt the State, Dada Saheb, in conjunction with us, will inflict the proper puniſhment; and the Engliſh ſhall never at any time interfere with us in this point; the Engliſh ſhall not, without our advice, make an alliance with any power that may affect us.

4th. The Engliſh army that will accompany Ragoba ſhall remain ſo long as we may have occaſion for it, and be diſmiſſed when he may think proper; to which you will make no objection.

5th. Whenever we may hereafter at any time require your aſſiſtance, you will ſend an army well equipped for our ſervice.

6th. Whatever grants have been made to any perſon for ſervices to government, ſhall be confirmed by Ragoba.

7th. We will on our parts faithfully obſerve the treaty concluded during the government of the late Nanah and Row Saheb.

8th. The ſeveral principal officers belonging to the Peiſhwa's government, and the dependants on him, are to be provided with ſuitable appointments, according to their rank: but ſtate of the government's finances muſt be conſidered.

9th. We confirm the treaty concluded by Colonel Upton, and agree to the further demands made by Mr. Moſtyn, according to what is wrote in our anſwer to thoſe demands.

10th. Should any Chiefs of the government want to bring in Dada Saheb, without our participation, you will not conſent thereto; you muſt bring him in through our interpoſition alone, and not through any other; the late Mhaderow took the government as chief Miniſter out of our hands; but you will uſe your intereſt to reſtore us to our places, and will not ſupport any perſons that may endeavour to prejudice us in Ragoba's favour, but ſupport us.

11th. You will without fail bring Dada Saheb to Poonah, according to our wiſhes, aſſiſting him with troops and warlike ſtores as may be neceſſary to accompliſh it.

12th. The King and other Chiefs in Hindoſtan have made encroachments on the territories belonging to the Circar and its officers, which you will get reſtored by force, and aſſiſt us in our endeavours for that purpoſe.

13th. Govind Row and Futty Sing having made an equal diviſion between them of the Guicawar's country, you will ſee this agreement punctually complied with. Govind Row ought to receive the revenues of his ſhare from the time the diviſion was firſt made, but Futty Sing has withheld it. An equivalent thereof muſt therefore be given and continued to Govind Row. You will not favour Futty Sing, who ought not to charge Govind Row with half of the countries he gave to the Engliſh. You will aſſiſt Govind Row in all things.

14th. This Circar has ſuſtained a loſs on account of the diſturbance raiſed by Sudabah. The effects, &c. he had in his poſſeſſion ought to revert to the Circar. You will aſſiſt in this buſineſs, and not protect whoever may be in poſſeſſion thereof.

15th. The management of the Guicawar buſineſs is to be in the hands of Gopal Naigue.

APPENDIX, No. 100.

Copy of a Letter from Mr. Moſtyn, dated 27th June, 1778.

To the Honourable William Hornby, Eſquire, Preſident and Governor, &c. Select Committee, Bombay.

Honourable Sir, and Gentlemen,

On the 22d inſtant I was honoured with your commands of the 18th.

On the 21ſt, the man mentioned in my laſt to be

Appendix. No. 100.

ſent by Morabah, returned to me with Letters from Morabah and Butchebah both to the Honourable the Preſident and me, with the anſwer to the paper I delivered the 4th, and Duſtucks for the free paſſage of our troops coming from Bengal through the Maratta dominions. The letters from Morabah and Butchebah were to requeſt we would bring over Ragobah with our forces, and to aſſure that Holcar was ſtrictly joined with them; but there being ſome alterations neceſſary in the anſwer to the paper, and not having received any letter from Holcar on the ſubject, which I told the man was likewiſe abſolutely neceſſary, he agreed to return to Morabah, at the ſame time deſiring that my Linguiſt might accompany him to ſee that the papers were drawn out in a proper manner, to receive the Sunnuds for the country of three lacks, and letters from Holcar to the Honourable the Preſident and myſelf, which I conſented to. The Linguiſt accordingly ſet out on the 23d, and returned laſt night, when he informed me that Morabah had agreed to the articles in every point, which he had ſeen properly ſealed, as alſo the Sunnuds for the country of three lacks, and letters from Holcar to the Honourable the Preſident. That Holcar had alſo written the letters declaring he is firmly attached to Morabah and Butchebah, and that whatever they do he agrees to, and expreſſing his earneſt deſire to bring Ragobah here; that Morabah had drawn up ſundry articles which he wiſhes to have ſettled between his party and Ragobah, through the mediation of your Honour, &c. and that though theſe papers were all ſealed, neither Morabah or Holcar choſe to truſt them with the Linguiſt to bring down, as the government would in two days be in the hands of Nannah, by whoſe people they were ſo ſtrictly watched that not a man could paſs without being ſtopped and ſearched, which indeed happened to the Linguiſt; but ſaid as it had been agreed between the parties that Morabah ſhould reſide at the village of Bhole, about ten coſs northward of Poonah, for which place he ſhould paſs through the town on Sunday, he would take that opportunity of ſending theſe papers to me by one of his own people. Morabah requeſted, that the utmoſt ſecrecy might be obſerved, until matters were entirely adjuſted, and we began to act; and ſaid, that he would acquaint us when he and Holcar were ready to co-operate with us, but could not now take upon himſelf to ſay the exact number of troops he could join us with. The Linguiſt further tells me, that the day before yeſterday Morabah and Butcheba viſited Holcar; that whilſt they were with him, Scindia came in, when the two officers retired to a private tent; that after conſulting ſome time, they ſent for the others, and told Morabah that he muſt give up the Sicca Cuttary and Jury Putkey to Nanah; which he refuſed, ſaying, that as he had received them from Perwetty Roy, he ſhould return them to her. The Linguiſt alſo ſays, he heard at camp that Badjee Punt Burwah and Monackjee Phaneria hearing of the junction of Holcar and Scindia, imagined that Morabah was left entirely to himſelf; and fearing that the Kiſtnah would fill ſo much by the rains, as to prevent their retreat, they had haſtily retired to the ſouthern bank of that river, from whence they are plundering the country round.

On the 25th Mhaderow Jaderow, who came into town the day before, deſired I would ſend a man to him, as he had ſomething particular to ſay. I complied therewith by ſending my Gentoo writer, to whom he delivered the following meſſage; viz. that when I came from Bombay he ſent a Jaſſood to pay his compliments to me, who I ſaid was not a proper perſon; that ſome time ago I delivered a letter directed to all the miniſters of the Peiſhwa, with the Company's ſeal affixed at the top, at which Nannah and Bappoo were much ſurprized, but that he had excuſed this to them, by telling them I was unacquainted with their method of affixing ſeals: that the Peiſhwa had lately ſent me a letter deſiring I would go to camp, but inſtead of anſwering it in the manner I ſhould have done, I had written an anſwer to Ballajee Janourdeen (alias Nannah) that I ſhould not go without orders from Bombay, which they thought very extraordinary, as there could be no objection to my Vackeel attending the government; that Nannah Bappoo and Madajee Scindia having ordered him to preſent their compliments to me, and deſire my attendance at their camp, he had repreſented to them that it was neceſſary they ſhould write a letter to me on the ſubject, which they have accordingly done; he now ſent it to me, requeſting I would take into conſideration and fix a day for going to them, when he would accompany me. This letter, written in the name of the Peiſhwa, and ſealed with the Muttalic Sicca, mentions, that Mhaderow will acquaint me with ſome circumſtances, and deſires I would accompany him to camp. As I ſuppoſed the circumſtances here alluded to were no other than the meſſage above recited from Maderow Jaderow, I ſent him the following reply: that I could not conſider a Jaſſood as a proper perſon to meet me on my firſt arrival (which was the caſe when I came here in March 1777) particularly as I was convinced the Durbar knew better from their behaviour to Monſieur St. Lubin; that ſo many people being in poſſeſſion of the Muttalic Sicca, it was impoſſible for me to know from whom letters ſealed therewith came; if therefore there was not ſome fixed rule for my conduct, I might attend upon any officer poſſeſſed thereof, who might chuſe to write me in the Peiſhwa's name: and as Morabah was the perſon to whom the Durbar laſt referred me for tranſacting buſineſs with the government, I did not conſider myſelf at liberty to obey the ſummons mentioned by Maderow; that the Durbar having ever ſince the late treaty acted in ſo evaſive a manner, it was become abſolutely neceſſary to do every thing in writing, which was the reaſon of my delivering the paper the 4th inſtant; that it was not a letter, but certain articles to which I ſigned my name and fixed the Company's ſeal, to ſhew them that their anſwer muſt have both the Sicca and Mortab affixed thereto; and with reſpect to the ſeal being at the top of that paper, and my name at the bottom, I obſerved to him that it was exactly conformable to their own method of affixing the Sicca at top and the Mortab at bottom, and not through ignorance of their cuſtoms, as he pretends to ſay. As the circumſtances mentioned by Mhaderow appeared to me too trifling to need my attendance at camp, I this morning ſent another meſſage to him, deſiring to know if he had any further particulars to inform me of, and what it was Nannah wanted to talk to me on; telling him, if only on the articles, it was unneceſſary, becauſe they explained themſelves, and I was directed to demand an anſwer in a certain time, which had now been exceeded eight days; but if Nannah had any other particular buſineſs, I deſired he would deliver it in writing; when, if it appeared of conſequence ſufficient, I would immediately wait on him: to which Mhaderow replied, that he had no further particulars to inform me of, and that the buſineſs Nannah wanted me for was to talk on the articles and the increaſe of our friendſhip. This more fully points out their view in ſending for me to be nothing more than to delay time, and to evade giving an anſwer to the paper in writing; and as from the exceſs of time your Honour, &c. may judge it a refuſal, I have thought it moſt prudent to evade going, and from experience I am convinced it is the only method of drawing any thing from them in writing. Nannah having again got the power of government, I make no doubt but the ſame, if not greater obſtructions will be thrown on our communication with the town as formerly, which will of courſe render my future intelligence very imperfect.

The letter mentioned in my laſt to have been ſtopped by Nannah, has in conſequence of my application been returned to me unopened; as have alſo a large packet coming from Madras for Bombay which was immediately forwarded by a pair of Pattamars, thoſe from Madras, being taken ſick and unable to proceed; and a packet with

with the Honourable Company's ſeal for the Captain General at Goa, with ſeveral private letters from that place; which were all immediately forwarded.

I am informed that Nannah has lately ſent an order to Monſieur St. Lubin to leave Poonah, and that he has in conſequence been ſupplied with camels, bullocks, &c. for his baggage, and a guard; but he now pleads, that his Linguiſt being at Nannah's camp, he cannot ſet out until his return. Notwithſtanding Nannah has given this order, I am convinced it is only done with a view to blind us; for where can he go at this ſeaſon of the year?

The Duſtucks mentioned in the former part of this letter, were forwarded to Colonel Leſlie on the 22d.

I am, very reſpectfully,
Honourable Sir, and Gentlemen,
your moſt obedient ſervant,
Thos Moſtyn.

Poonah, 17th June 1778.

APPENDIX, No. 101.

Bengal Secret Conſultations, 17th Auguſt 1778.

Honourable Sir, and Gentlemen,

CONFORMABLY to what Mr. Moſtyn wrote under the 30th ultimo, he proceeded to the Preſidency the 6th inſtant; a few hours after he had ſet out a Government's Carcoon came to the factory, with the Durbar's anſwers to the paper delivered the 4th ultimo; but on finding Mr. Moſtyn was gone, refuſed to deliver them, ſaying he had received poſitive orders to follow him, and deliver them into his own hands; however, the next evening he returned, telling me he had received freſh orders from his maſter to deliver them to me. The original I have forwarded to Bombay, and now encloſe copy of tranſlate for your obſervation.

Your commands of the 8th, and duplicate of thoſe of the 11th June, have been received, the former on the 9th and the latter on the 11th inſtant; immediately on receipt of the firſt, I wrote a letter to the Peiſhwa, requeſting to know how I ſhould convey that from the Honourable the Governor General to him; and on the 18th received an anſwer, deſiring I would ſend it to Proondur, which I have accordingly done, with another from myſelf, requeſting, as the readieſt way to prevent all diſputes between your troops and thoſe belonging to this Government they may meet with on their march, that he would ſend me a Duſtuck for their free paſſage through the Maratta dominions, which I would forward to Colonel Leſlie; but Nanah Furneſe being now the only Miniſter, I cannot ſay I have the leaſt hopes of this requeſt being complied with, as he views the march of theſe troops with a very jealous eye. It is neceſſary to obſerve here, Gentlemen, that in the month of January laſt, the Honourable the Preſident of Bombay forwarded a letter from the Peiſhwa to me, with directions to deliver it myſelf, but both Nanah Furneſe and Saccaram Bapoo refuſed receiving it, unleſs I ſent it through the hands of the two people appointed to tranſact the Engliſh buſineſs with the Durbar; and that at the time of the receipt of the Honourable the Governor General's letter, one of theſe people was at Nanah's camp, and the other ſaid he was ſo ill as to be unable to tranſact buſineſs; in order therefore to avoid all diſputes on this head, and to prevent my receiving a ſecond inſult, I judged it the beſt method to write the Peiſhwa as before recited, and hope it will meet with your approbation. The copy of my proceedings, mentioned by your Honour, &c. to be wanting, was forwarded in the original packet of the 12th May, via Benares.

On the 1ſt Monſieur St. Lubin left Poonah, with an intent, it is publickly given out, of proceeding to Damaun, but Mr. Moſtyn received private aſſurances that he would not proceed any further than Damaun, where it is imagined he will remain until Nanah ſees whether he is able to perform his engagements.

On the 10th Madjee Scindy, at the requeſt of Nanah Furneſe, ſent two thouſand men to the village of Bhele, to ſeize Morabah, and the next day they arrived, and encamped with him on a plain, about a mile without the town. Nanah and Scindy not agreeing what ſhall be done with him, Morabah ſtill remains encamped, guarded by three hundred horſe, the reſt having rejoined Scindy. Appendix. No. 101.

A perſon in Scindy's camp informs me, that Holcar has been obliged to deliver up his Duan, and two of his officers, to Nanah; that Nanah and Scindy have appointed another man to be Holcar's Duan; and that every one, whether Brahmins or officers, who joined Morabah, had been ſeized, and conſiderable fines demanded from them; amongſt the reſt is Buchabah Proondur.

From the beſt intelligence I have been able to procure, I learn that Saccaram Bappoo has not been in the leaſt conſulted on the late tranſactions; and I am even aſſured, that it is Madjee Scindy's intention ſhortly to ſeize and confine him; in which caſe I much doubt whether Scindy's ambition will not lead him to take the Government entirely into his own hands.

I am, &c. &c.
Wm Lewis.

Poonah, the 20th July 1778.

Tranſlation of the Poonah Durbar's Replies to the paper delivered by Mr. Moſtyn on the 4th June, received the 7th July.

Firſt. A treaty was made between the Circar and the Engliſh, to which they affixed their ſeals; the Engliſh ought to keep it faithfully, and the Circar will do the ſame.

Second. Conformable to what is written in the 5th article of the treaty, I have offered you a country, but you would not ſettle and take it. There is no agreement to give you a groſs revenue of three lacks, according to the treaty. You may ſettle and take it to day, and the Circar will ſettle and deliver it. The delay is on your part, not on the Circar's.

Third. It is mentioned in the treaty, that when proofs ſhall be produced, under Futty Sing's hand, that he has no power to give away any country; the Engliſh would deliver up Chickley, &c. country. Futty Sing ſent two letters, directed to Colonel Upton; alſo copy of the Peiſhwa's Sunnud, with his ſeal, which were delivered to Colonel Upton, ſhewing that this power is not with the Gnicawar, but with the Peiſhwa. A receipt for the ſaid letters and papers was taken from Colonel Upton, with his ſeal affixed thereto, which is in the poſſeſſion of the Circar. Conformable to the treaty, Chickley, &c. Pergunnah ought to be reſtored to the Circar. What you now write being contrary to the treaty, is very extraordinary, and much ſurpriſes me.

Fourth. There is no agreement between Monſieur St. Lubin and this Government.

Fifth. You would not receive the country of three lacks, agreeable to the treaty; if you will now receive the country, I have this to obſerve about the two years arrears of the revenues: you muſt debit the amount of the collections that have been made theſe two years from that country; and whatever collections have been made in the Pergunnahs of Chickley, &c. muſt remain depoſited with the Engliſh, and further, that according to what is written in the treaty, you muſt deduct the value of the Chickley, &c. Pergunnahs; and whatever may be the difference, either on one ſide or other, ſhall be paid. I do not perfectly underſtand what you have wrote about the ſhip. I have ſent to call you, and after your arrival I ſhall talk with you, conformable to what I have written to Colonel Upton.

A true Copy.
Edward Raverſcroft,
Secretary to the
Select Committee.

Lewis, Mr. Wm. Letter from.

APPENDIX, No. 102.

Extract of Bombay Select Consultations, the 26th July 1778.

RECEIVED a letter from Mr. Lewis at Poonah.

Honourable Sir, and Gentlemen,

My last respects were dated the 11th instant. The same night I received information, that Morabah had been seized by two thousand men belonging to Scindy; and that they were encamped with him on the plain close to the town, from whence they were to proceed next day to Poorunder. That he still remains upon the plain, guarded by three hundred horse only, the rest being returned to camp.

By messages I have lately received from a man at camp, I learn that Holcar has been obliged to deliver up his Duan; and that every one, whether Bramins or officers, who joined Morabah, have been seized, and considerable fines demanded from them. Amongst the rest are Vissajee Punt and Butchebah Proondur; the latter was taken the 14th instant. The same person yesterday sent me word, that Nannah had the day before ordered a body of men to surround our factory; and that Scindy getting notice thereof, immediately sent to him to desist, which Nannah was obliged to comply with.

I have not received an answer from the Peishwa, to the letter I wrote, informing him of my having received one for him from the Governor General and Council, as mentioned in my last address. I have not therefore yet been able to deliver it; indeed, at present there does not appear to be any proper Government. Nannah, it is true, has the name, but Scindy is in fact the Minister, for the former dares not do any thing without his permission; Sacqram is not even consulted; and I was told yesterday, that it is Scindy's intention to confine him in a very short time; in which case I make no doubt he will go a step further, and by also confining Nannah, seize the Government.

I am, very respectfully,
Honourable Sir, and Gentlemen,
Your most obedient humble servant,
Poonah, 17th July 1778. William Lewis.

APPENDIX, No. 103.

Appointment of a Select Committee at Bombay, by the Court of Directors, 10th April 1778.

To the Honourable William Hornby, Esquire, President and Governor of Bombay, John Carnac, Esquire,
Colonel Charles Egerton, and
Daniel Draper, Esquire.

HAVING appointed George Wombwell, Esquire, Chairman of our Court, William James, Esquire, our Deputy Chairman, and William Devaynes, Esquire, to be a Committee of Secrecy, we hereby direct that all orders and instructions which you shall receive from our said Committee of Secrecy, be observed and obeyed with the same punctuality and exactness as though they had been signed by thirteen or more Members of the Court of Directors.

And having also thought proper to appoint a Select Committee for transacting all political, military, and naval affairs, and likewise all such as may require secrecy at our settlement of Bombay, it is our order, and we hereby direct, that the said Select Committee do consist of William Hornby, Esquire, our President and Governor, or our President and Governor for the time being, John Carnac, Esquire, the Second Member of our Council, or the Second Member of our Council for the time being, Colonel Charles Egerton, our Military Commander in Chief, or our Military Commander in Chief for the time being, and Daniel Draper, Esquire, the Fourth Member of our Council, or the Fourth Member of our Council for the time being.

If our Military Commander in Chief shall at any time be absent from the Presidency, then our order is, that our President and the Second and Fourth Members of our Council shall be a Select Committee for the purposes aforesaid, during the absence of the Commander in Chief from the Presidency.

We direct that all orders and instructions shall be issued in the name of the President and Select Committee, and that all such orders be implicitly obeyed by every person in service, or enjoying our protection, civil or military, on pain of suspension from the service, or of forfeiting our licence and protection.

If our Select Committee shall think fit to suspend any person or persons from our service, such person or persons shall not be restored, otherwise than by the said Committee, except by order of the Court of Directors.

We direct that at every meeting of our Select Committee, when all the Members shall be present, the President shall have a casting vote, and that in all cases where the Committee shall not be unanimous, the minority shall co-operate in carrying into execution the resolutions of the majority.

In case of a vacancy by the death or removal of any of the Members of our Select Committee, it is our order that every such vacancy be forthwith filled up by the next Member of our Council in rotation, except in cases where we may think fit to make particular exceptions. We are

APPENDIX, Nos. 104, 105, and 106.

Bombay Select Consultations, the 21st July, 1778.

PRESENT,

The Honourable William Hornby, Esquire, President and Governor,
John Carnac, Esquire,
Colonel Charles Egerton,
Daniel Draper, Esquire.

THIS meeting being appointed to take into consideration the situation of affairs with the Marattas;

Reference being made to Mr. Mostyn in the several letters from Moraba, Butchebe, and Tookajee Holcar, and it being also judged necessary to consult him on some other points before we take our resolutions on the papers before us, he is now summoned to attend the Committee.

Mr. Mostyn attending accordingly, and being made acquainted with the cause of his being summoned, delivered himself to the following purport:

He refers to his former letters and to the papers he brought from Poonah, for an explanation of the views of Morabah and his party, which are in short to place Ragoba in the Government as Regent, on this express condition, that the Sicca shall continue in the name of the Peishwa Mhaderow Narrain, and with some other restrictions which they consider necessary for their own safety and continuance in office, and for the internal peace and good order of the Government: these restrictions he doubts not will also appear to us, from a knowledge of Ragoba, to be both just and requisite. He particularly enforces to our attention, that these papers were regularly executed under the Sicca during the time Morabah was the acknowledged Minister, though the change in favour of Nanah Furneese took place immediately after. With respect to Nanah's views and intentions, tions, he doubted not, they muſt be very apparent to the Committee, from the whole tenor of his conduct ever ſince the treaty of Poorunder; and that his anſwer now before us, to the paper of demands, will prove beyond contradiction that he never means to comply with that treaty; that his deſigns with reſpect to the French will appear obvious upon a review of the advices from Poonah, and more particularly by the paper he delivered to Monſieur St. Lubin the day he had his audience of leave; copies of which have been already tranſmitted to the Committee and to the Governor General and Council.

Mr. Moſtyn then proceeds, That on an attentive ſurvey of the different parties at Poonah, their views and intentions with reſpect to us, the French, and Ragoba, there appears to him no alternative but to take part with Morabah; and that it ſhould be done without the ſmalleſt delay, conſidering the preſent ſituation of affairs with France, for ſhould we be attacked at this place in the courſe of the war, and the executive power of the Maratta State remain in the preſent hands, there is not a doubt but the French will receive every aſſiſtance in the power of Nanah to give, whilſt we ſhall be confined in our own ſettlements, and deprived of every ſupply whatever from the Continent.

Should we determine upon taking part with Moraba Mr. Moſtyn thinks it neceſſary to obſerve to us, that at preſent the greateſt part of the Maratta forces are aſſembled on Poorunder plains; but that they muſt neceſſarily ſeparate in all next month, on account of the rains and the want of forage, and the neceſſity of Nanah's ſending the forces immediately depending on him to oppoſe the progreſs of Hyder, whoſe army is now actually inveſting Meritz: that the uſual time for their again aſſembling, is about Deſſera, or the beginning of October, when it generally takes up near two months before they are collected; but of the motions of the armies, Moraba can beſt keep Mr. Lewis well informed, who may alſo be directed to be attentive thereto himſelf. If the army ſhould diſperſe, as he ſuppoſes it will, he recommends the beginning of September for the commencement of our operations, of which Moraba alſo ſhould have advice, that he may be ready to co-operate.

To facilitate our meaſures, and prevent as far as may be all oppoſition, placards might be iſſued in proper time by Ragoba, declaring his intentions are to continue the Sicca in the boy's name, and to preſerve the Peiſhwa Government without doing injury to any one who does not oppoſe his juſt deſigns, or fly; commanding all officers to join him, and ſummoning the Miniſters to attend him. To give the greater weight, the Honourable Company's ſeal may be affixed thereto.

Mr. Moſtyn having concluded what he had to ſay, the following queſtions are put to him by the Committee:

Queſtion. What ſervice can be rendered by Morabah, Butchebah, and Holcar, equivalent to the conceſſions they demand on the part of Ragoba?

Anſwer. He doubts not they will be able to aſſiſt him with a body of thirty thouſand horſe; and that having Chiefs of ſo much power and influence to co-operate with us in our plan for reſtoring Ragoba, and openly eſpouſing his cauſe, will enſure a ſpeedy and ſucceſsful iſſue; whereas it would otherwiſe be more difficult, and take up much time. He further ſignifies his belief, that if we proceed in concert with the above Chiefs, Mhadjee Scindia will not oppoſe Rogoba, or ſeparate himſelf from Tookajee Holkar.

Queſtion. If Nanah Furneeſe remains in the chief management of the Maratta State during ſo long a minority, what are the conſequences reaſonably to be apprehended?

Anſwer. Every injury to the Company it can be in his power to offer, and an aſſociation with the French for their annoyance and deſtruction.

Queſtion. What are his reaſons for believing the paper delivered by Nannah to Monſieur St. Lubin, and Nannah's letter to the Nizam, to be genuine and authentic? Appendix Nos. 105, 106.

Anſwer. He procured them by means of the Vackeel of the Rajah of Toll Bhopall, who obtained them from the Pharanovees, or Perſian writer to the Government, to whom he pays an annual penſion of rupees 5,000 for intelligence. Their contents were afterwards in part confirmed by the Gentoo writer to the Government. Mr. Moſtyn deſires theſe circumſtances may be kept inviolably ſecret, as the parties would certainly loſe their lives if any diſcovery was made that this information was obtained from them.

Mr. Moſtyn was alſo particularly queſtioned reſpecting the country about Poonah, and the roads and paſſes between that place and Bombay. He ſays, that Rajematchy is the only one of the paſſes defended by a fort; that the others have no other obſtacles but what are raiſed by nature; and that the principal one, called Bhore Gaut, may be approached by water, within the diſtance of ſix coſs, and may be eaſily ſecured, by advancing a ſingle battalion, with light field pieces, the ground being ſuch that the Maratta horſe cannot act, if any oppoſition ſhould be intended; but ſo little difficulty does he apprehend, that he would have no objection to accompany the battalion himſelf.

He is deſired, with the aſſiſtance of ſuch charts as he may have, and ſome capable perſon out of the engineer's office, to frame the beſt map he can of the country fifty coſs round Poonah; and having given us very clear and diſtinct information on the ſeveral ſubjects propoſed to him, he is permitted to withdraw.

No. 105.

The Committee then proceeded to the conſideration of the Durbar's anſwers to the paper of demands preſented by Mr. Moſtyn, and tranſmitted by Mr. Lewis, ſince Nanah Furneeſe reſumed his place in the adminiſtration.

Theſe anſwers having been carefully compared with the demands, and conſidered with the utmoſt deliberation, reſolved, by an unanimous vote, That the anſwers are in the higheſt degree vague, evaſive, and unſatisfactory, and amount to a refuſal, which is aggravated on a compariſon with the anſwers given by the preceding adminiſtration, as per No. 11.

Reſolved unanimouſly, That we are authorized, by the letter from the Governor General and Council, dated the 23d of March, to declare the Durbar's anſwers to be a violation on their part of the treaty of Poorunder, and that conſequently we are freed from all obligation laid on us by that treaty, and at full liberty to purſue whatever meaſures we may deem expedient and ſafe, for the ſubverſion of a party in that Government, connected with the French in ſchemes hoſtile to the Company, and for eſtabliſhing an adminiſtration at Poonah with which we can maintain a ſecure and permanent alliance.

Reſolved unanimouſly, That the ſituation of public affairs in Europe, and the reſtoration of Nanah Furneeſe to the executive power of Government at Poonah, render it a caſe of indiſpenſable neceſſity that meaſures ſhould be taken with all poſſible expedition to effect theſe two points.

Reſolved unanimouſly, That for the accompliſhment of theſe purpoſes we purſue the moſt practicable meaſures for placing Ragoba in the Regency at Poonah, with this ſpecial proviſo, that the Government and Sicca be conducted in the name of the Peiſhwa during his minority, and ſurrendered on his attaining the legal age.

No. 106.

The meaſures to be purſued being next diſcuſſed, the articles propoſed by Morabah and his party are conſidered; when it is agreed, That it will be proper and requiſite to make equitable and ſecure terms for them with Ragoba, but that it will be better to ſettle the articles reſpecting the internal management of the Government when Ragoba is eſtabliſhed at Poonah. The article reſpecting reſpecting the diſputes between the Guicawars will be determined with more propriety by Ragoba and Morabah without our interference; and that reſpecting the recovery of the territories ſeized by different powers during the late troubles, might lead us into meaſures totally inconſiſtent with our plan, and repugnant to treaties formed by other Preſidencies.

Upon the moſt attentive conſideration of every circumſtance, the moſt ſafe plan, the moſt promiſing of ſucceſs, and the leaſt liable to diſappointment, appears to be;

To aſſure Morabah and the party of our good diſpoſition towards them; that we ſhall heartily join in the propoſed plan; and that they may depend on our paying the utmoſt regard to their intereſt and pretenſions in whatever engagements we may make with Ragoba, provided they on their part faithfully perform their promiſes:

To revoke our orders to Colonel Leſlie, for marching the army into quarters at Surat and Broach, and to direct him to move to the ſouthward, quitting the Guzerat country, and purſuing the moſt eligible route to the town of Juneir, about thirty miles to the N. E. of Poonah, and near to a fort in the intereſt of Morabah, diſtinguiſhed in Jefferies's map by the name of Ziner. He muſt be directed in his march to avoid approaching Aurungabad or part of the Nizam's dominions, and rather to take the Brampore road, and through the country of Buglana. By the time he approaches Ziner we can ſend him orders either to act in proſecution of our plan, by ſecuring the paſſes and effecting a junction with our force and Ragoba, or to proceed on to Bombay, according as our advices from Europe may render expedient, which, about the beginning of September, when it will be proper to begin our operations, we may expect to receive, to a very late date, by the way of Suez; and by that time we may alſo obtain the ſentiments of the Governor General and Council.

To direct Mr. Lewis to ſend us conſtant and punctual advice of the motion of the Maratta armies.

To recommend to the Governments of Bengal and Madras, to demand of Mhodajee Bouncello and the Nizam to obſerve a ſtrict neutrality at leaſt, if they will not aſſiſt Ragoba.

To proceed in our preparations, without communicating our reſolutions to Ragoba, till matters are more ripe; and in the terms to be made with him for the Company, to look to nothing further than the performance of the treaty of Surat, the total excluſion of the French, and the payment of our expences.

Theſe ſeveral heads of our plan are all unanimouſly agreed to, and the ſecretary is directed immediately to prepare the neceſſary advices agreeable thereto.

APPENDIX, No. 107.

Copy of a Letter from the Select Committee of Bombay, to Colonel Leſlie.

To Colonel Leſlie.

Sir,

THE Honourable the Court of Directors having been pleaſed to inveſt us as a Select Committee, with full powers for conducting all political and military operations, you will in future receive all inſtructions from us, and are to addreſs your correſpondence accordingly.

Since the letter from the Board of the 19th ultimo, we have received your letters of the 6th and 14th.

We hope you have already effected a paſſage over the Nerbuddah; for the ſituation of affairs is ſuch, that inſtead of continuing your march through the Guzerat province to Surat or Broach, we now find it expedient to direct, that you proceed more ſoutherly, and purſue the moſt eligible route to the town of Juneer, about thirty miles to the north-eaſt of Poonah, and near to the fort diſtinguiſhed in Jefferies's map by the name of Ziner. By taking this courſe you will find the weather more moderate, and the road more practicable than in the Guzerat province; but we would recommend to you to avoid approaching Aurungabad, or any part of the Nizam's dominions; and rather to take the Brampore road, and through the country of Buglana.

Excluſive of the Duſtucks already ſent from Tookajee Holkar and Mhadjee Scindy, Mr. Moſtyn has lately forwarded to you paſſports from the Poonah Durbar; ſo that we hope you will have an unmoleſted march through the whole of the Maratta territories; but you are nevertheleſs to be ſtrictly on your guard.

The Chief of Surat and Mr. Lewis at Poonah will have orders to ſend you the beſt information they can obtain reſpecting the road you are now directed to take, and we ſhall ſend you further inſtructions as you approach, or as we may ſee neceſſary.

We ſhall rely on your adviſing us frequently of your progreſs, and are, Sir,

Your moſt obedient humble ſervants,

APPENDIX, No. 108.

Extract of Bombay Select Conſultations, the 25th July 1778.

SIGNED the following letter to the Governor General and Council, to be tranſmitted by the Terrible bomb ketch.

To the Honourable Warren Haſtings, Eſquire, Governor General, &c. Council at Fort William. Fort William, Letter to.

Gentlemen,

The Honourable the Court of Directors, in their commands of the 10th April laſt, having been pleaſed to appoint us a Select Committee for the management of all military and political buſineſs at the Preſidency, we encloſe for your information an extract from their ſaid commands, and requeſt that your future inſtructions on theſe ſubjects may be addreſſed to us.

The advices from the Board here and from Mr. Moſtyn, will have acquainted you of the late tranſactions at Poonah, by which matters are brought to ſuch a ſtate, that it became abſolutely neceſſary to take the moſt ſpeedy and deciſive reſolutions for our conduct.

Having therefore ſeriouſly conſidered the ſituation of affairs with the Marattas, the proſpect of an approaching rupture with France, and every other circumſtance neceſſary to be attended to, the reſult of our deliberations is contained in the encloſed copy of our proceedings, which we loſe not a moment in tranſmitting to you by a veſſel expreſs, with copies of every neceſſary paper.

We flatter ourſelves you will approve theſe reſolutions. The monſoon has been ſo uncommonly ſevere, that we ſhall ſcarcely be able to begin our operations ſooner than the beginning of September, by which time we hope to receive your ſentiments.

We requeſt, if you think it neceſſary, that you will apply to Mhodajee Bouncello and the Nizam, to obſerve a ſtrict neutrality in the diſpute.

We have ſubjoined to the extract of the Company's letter, the paragraph reſpecting the ſituation of public affairs in Europe, though we are adviſed a packet for you was forwarded at the ſame time with ours.

The ſervice of this veſſel (the Terrible) being much wanted, we requeſt ſhe may be immediately returned.

We are, with reſpect,
Gentlemen,
Your moſt obedient humble ſervants,

Bombay Caſtle, 25th July 1778.

William Hornby,
&c. Select Committee.

The 31ſt of July 1778, the Select Committee at Bombay wrote to the Court as follows; viz.

" Mr. Moſtyn arrived here from Poonah the 12th " inſtant, with letters from Morabah, Butcheba, and Tooka- " jee Holkar, and a moſt ſatisfactory reply to the de- " mands made on the Durbar, accompanied with Sun- " nuds for the country of three lacks, and propoſals for " our aſſiſtance on placing Ragoba in the Government. " Theſe were all regularly executed under the Sicca, " whilſt Moraba was chief miniſter, but ſoon after- " wards Nannah Furneeſe, by the aſſiſtance of Madew " Scindia, regained the chief place in the adminiſtration, " and deprived Moraba of his office and the Sicca.

" A few days after Mr. Moſtyn had quitted Poonah, " and after Nannah had reſumed the executive part of " Government, another and a very different reply to our " demands was ſent to Mr. Lewis by the Durbar, and " by him tranſmitted to us, of which a copy is now en- " cloſed.

" By this ſecond revolution at Poonah, and the proſ- " pect of an approaching war with France, affairs were " brought to ſuch a ſtate that it became abſolutely ne- " ceſſary for us to take the moſt ſpeedy and deciſive re- " ſolutions for our conduct; and after proper tranſlations " had been made of the papers brought by Mr. Moſtyn, " and Colonel Egerton, who had not hitherto aſſiſted at " our Secret Conſultations, had referred to the records " to inform himſelf fully on the ſubject; we on the 21ſt " inſtant, after full conſideration of every neceſſary " circumſtance, unanimouſly agreed to the following " reſolutions, which we think it proper to convey to you " in the moſt expeditious manner.

" That the anſwers delivered by the Durbar ſince " Nannah Furneeſe reſumed the adminiſtration, are in " the higheſt degree vague, evaſive, and unſatisfactory, " and amount to a refuſal; which is aggravated on a " compariſon with the anſwers given by the preceding " adminiſtration.

" That we are authorized by the letter from the Go- " vernor General and Council, dated the 23d March, " to declare the Durbar's anſwer to be a violation on " their part of the treaty of Poorunder, and that conſe- " quently we are free from all obligation laid on us by " that treaty, and at full liberty to purſue whatever " meaſures we may deem expedient and ſafe, for the " ſubverſion of a party in that Government, connected " with the French in ſchemes hoſtile to the Company, " and for eſtabliſhing an adminiſtration at Poonah, with " which we can maintain a ſecure and permanent al- " liance.

" That the ſituation of public affairs in Europe, and " the reſtoration of Nannah Furneeſe to the executive " power of Government at Poonah, renders it a caſe " of indiſputable neceſſity that meaſures ſhould be taken " with all poſſible expedition to effect thoſe two points.

" That for the accompliſhment of theſe purpoſes we " purſue the moſt practicable meaſures for placing Ra- " goba in the Regency at Poonah, with this ſpecial pro- " viſo, that the Government and Sicca be conducted " and continued in the name of the Peiſhwa during his " minority, and ſurrendered to him on his attaining the " legal age.

" At this ſeaſon of the year it is impoſſible for us to " take any ſteps in proſecution of theſe reſolutions, " further than making the neceſſary preparations. In " the beginning of September, when it will be the " proper time to commence our operations, we may " expect to receive advices from Europe to a very late " date, by the way of Suez, by which we ſhall be able " to judge how far it may be prudent to detach any " part of our force from Bombay, and in the mean time " we have ſent orders to Colonel Leſlie to march with " the army under his command to a place called Zinir, " about 30 coſs to the N. E. of Poonah, inſtead of pro- " ceeding to Surat or Broach, as before ordered. That " officer, by advices juſt received, dated the 3d of this " month, was then advanced no further than Chatter- " pore in the Bundlecund country, at no great diſtance " from Coulpy; ſo that the order we have given him, " cannot give any further alarm to the Poonah Miniſters, " until our plan is ripe for execution, and our forces " ready to act on this ſide in conjunction with Ragoba.

" Moraba and his party had engaged to join Ragoba " with all their forces, as ſoon as he had paſſed the " Ghauts; but we cannot place much dependance upon " them, at leaſt for any immediate aſſiſtance, as Nanah " Furneeſe, upon ſuſpicion of their deſigns, has ſeized " and confined moſt of this party, and even ſecured the " perſons of Moraba and Bucheba themſelves; yet ſo " much is the Poonah Government weakened by the in- " teſtine diviſions which have ſo long ſubſiſted, that " we hope we ſhall be able to effect our point without " much difficulty, even if Moraba ſhould not be able " to join us; and we doubt not when it is ſeen that we " openly eſpouſe Ragoba's cauſe, but many principal " Maratta officers will declare for him, as his claim and " family are in general favoured by them, and Nanah's " oppreſſive Government deteſted.

" In the terms to be made with Ragoba for the Com- " pany, we propoſe to look to nothing further than the " performance of the treaty of Surat, the total excluſion " of the French, and the payment of our expences."

The 29th of December 1778, the Select Committee addreſſed the Court as follows, viz.

" Our addreſs of the 31ſt of July will have informed " you how matters then ſtood with the Poonah Go- " vernment. In purſuance of the reſolutions then com- " municated, we on the 12th of October, on the mo- " tion of Mr. Carnac, gave orders for proceeding forth- " with in the execution of our plan for reſtoring Ragoba. " The limits of an over-land addreſs will not permit us " to enter into a detail of the ſeveral circumſtances of " our preparations and negociation, which will be com- " municated by the firſt ſea conveyance. It will be " ſufficient to acquaint you, that on the 25th ultimo, " we concluded a treaty with Ragoba, by which the " Honourable Company were bound to aſſiſt him with a " body of 4,000 men to conduct him to Poonah, and to " place him in the regency of the Maratta Government " during the minority of the infant Peiſhwa."

We have the honour to encloſe a copy of the treaty, and of the manifeſto, publiſhed when our forces landed on the continent, which we hope will be approved of by you; and we beg leave moſt heartily to congratulate you on the proſpect of retrieving thoſe valuable acquiſi- tions loſt by the treaty of Poorunder, and of reſtoring ſuch a government at Poonah as will greatly contribute to the general ſecurity of your poſſeſſions in India.

READ the letter received yeſterday from the Governor General and Council.

This letter, and the reſolutions to be taken in conſe- quence, being of the moſt important nature, the ſub- ject was very ſeriouſly conſidered; but it is judged beſt to defer for a few days fixing upon any preciſe meaſures, as we have every moment reaſon to expect ſome in- telligence of the ſucceſs of our operations againſt Pondi- cherry, as well as advice from Colonel Leſlie and other quarters.

It is remarked as extraordinary in the Governor General and Council having kept us ſo much in the dark, reſpecting respecting the object of their negociation with Moodajee Bouncello, and the nature of the commission they have given to Mr. Elliot, especially when it appears by their letters, the interests of this Presidency may be so considerably affected thereby.

APPENDIX, No. 110.

Bengal Secret Consultations, 28th September 1778.

READ the following letter from Mr. Lewis at Poonah:

Honourable Sir and Gentlemen,

I did myself the honour of addressing you last, under the 20th ultimo.

Nanah Furneese having made Madjee Scindy a present of three lacks of rupees, in order to induce him to consent to Morabah's being sent a prisoner to Amdanagur, it had the desired effect; for on the 24th July, Scindy removed his people, giving Morabah into charge of five hundred horse, and wo hundred foot, belonging to Nanah, who set off with him the same evening to the above place. It was at one time determined on sending Buchabah Proonder prisoner to Pontabgur, close to Pundapore; but Scindy afterwards objected thereto, as it belongs to Nanah, and proposed his being sent to Solahpore, on the Kistna; but Nanah being apprehensive that Hyder's troops would release him, it was finally determined on confining him in Chundur, close to Settora; but on his being sent there, the Kelledar refused to take him in, alledging that Buchabah was as much his master as either Sacaram or Nanah; he has therefore at last been sent to Wundun, a fort close to the before-mentioned, belonging to Bhimrow Panjee.

Nanah Furneese, Sacaram Bapoo, Madjee Scindy, Tookajee Holcar, Hurry Punt, and Purjobram Bhow, have all lately come from Proondur, and encamped on the plain just without the town, with their forces, amounting in the whole to about twelve thousand men; and I am assured, that within a few days the Durbars have been consulting how they shall oppose Colonel Leslie's march, but are much puzzled what officer to send; for Sacaram and Nanah, being mutually afraid of each other, will not consent to Scindy's going, as they consider him as the umpire between them. Hurry Punt has declared his resolution of not stirring from hence without the Ministers, who are afraid to trust Holcar with a command; and Purseram Bhow must return to Meritz, Hyder's army being encamped on the other side of the Kistna, with a determined resolution of attacking it as soon as the season opens. However, in order to do all in their power to prevent Colonel Leslie's advancing, they have sent private orders to the different Rajahs and officers through whose districts the Colonel will be obliged to march, to use every endeavour, without coming to action, to harrass him, and prevent his proceeding; particularly recommending the his receiving supplies of provisions; at the same time telling them, should they find their efforts to oblige him to retreat ineffectual, they are to deny having authority from this Government for the opposition they may make, which that Durbar will likewise do, in case of a complaint of their behaviour from your Honour, &c. I have already acquainted Colonel Leslie with these orders, and recommended to him not to trust any proffers of service from Madjee Scindy's officers; being apprehensive, from his general character for deceit, that he may have given the like orders.

I am also informed, that the Durbar, in order the more securely to carry on the above scheme, have determined on sending a person of consequence to Bombay, with proposals to Ragobah; though, as far as I can learn, they are to be nearly the same as those sent by Mr. Mostyn last year.

Enclosed I have the honour to forward three letters, from the Durbar, in answer to those from the Honourable the Governor General, received with your commands of the 8th June; and beg leave to observe, gentlemen, that I have not received an answer to the application I made for a Dustuck for the free passage of your troops through the Maratta dominions, as mentioned in my last address.

I am very respectfully, &c.

Poonah, the 6th August 1778. (Signed) Wm. Lewis.

APPENDIX, No. 111.

Extract of Bombay Select Consultations, the 12th October 1778.

PRESENT,

The Honourable William Hornby, Esquire, President and Governor,

John Carnac, Esquire, Colonel Charles Egerton, Daniel Draper, Esquire.

THE Committee being assembled, Mr. Carnac delivers in the following minute:

Mr. Carnac is sorry to observe, that "although we "had by an unanimous vote pronounced the treaty of "Poorunder to have been infringed in almost every article, not a single step has yet been taken in prosecution "of our resolution of the 21st July, and to avail ourselves of the opportunity afforded by the distractions "in the Bramin Ministry, to exclude Nanah from any "share in the Peishwa government, who, ever since he "has had the lead thereat, has been incessantly plotting "mischief against us, and to invest in his room, during "the minority of the Peishwa, Ragonaut Row with the "chief administration of the Maratta State, to which he "has the fairest claim, and whose pretensions good policy requires us to support, on account of the close connections we have had with him, and of his known "favourable disposition towards us. The times will "not allow of further delay: and if we do not soon "openly espouse the cause of Ragonaut Row, there is "great danger that the happy moment for establishing "his authority, so essential to our welfare, will be irrecoverably lost. It is not to be doubted that the "French have been invited to Cheul by Nanah, and "should he be joined by four or five hundred men of "that nation (which it may be expected will be the case) "it is to be apprehended he will with their aid acquire "such a preponderancy in the government, as to be "able to baffle our utmost efforts, and perhaps to "usurp the dignity of Peishwa. The degree of power "Nanah actually possesses is already so considerable, "that if he be suffered to retain it, the most serious "evils must ensue to the Company from his avowed "enmity to the English, and the French will be "admitted to the exclusive trade and intercourse with the "Marattas, which by a timely exertion we might have "secured, and without which our possessions on this side "of India are scarcely worth our holding. Mr. Carnac "entertaining these sentiments, is inclined to believe we "were warranted, by the most urgent plea of necessity "in behalf of the Company's interest, to give our most "strenuous assistance to Ragonath Row, for procuring "him the office of Regent, even independently of the "Governor General and Council; how much more "then must he think it incumbent upon us so to do, "when we have their express sanction of the measure; "especially as in the present state of affairs there is no "risque likely to be incurred by the settlement, during "the short time the troops may be supposed to be employed in effecting this service? We do not conceive "we ought to be deterred from our purpose, as it has "been argued we should, by the paragraph in the Governor General and Council's letter to us, dated 17th "August, respecting any engagements formed with

" Moodajee Bouncello by Mr. Elliott, and previous notice to us given. By a ſtrict attention to the words and to the context, nothing more ſeems to be meant, than that we ſhould enter into no final engagements with Ragonath Row, which may be contrary to ſuch as ſhall be concluded with, or of a hoſtile tendency to the Government of Berar. If the letter is to be underſtood as containing a direction that we are abſolutely to undertake nothing till we have advices from Mr. Elliott of the nature, progreſs, and reſult of his commiſſion with the Bouncello, it would be tantamount to a prohibition of the expedition we had meditated, and which they have approved, by ſuſpending it to ſo diſtant a period as to leave us little or no hopes of ſucceſs.

" It will be proper here to remark that there is no reaſon to believe Moraba's party is ſo depreſſed but that, in conjunction with the other favourers of Ragoba, they may render us material ſervice in the execution of our plan; however, at all events Mr. Carnac deems it our indiſpenſable duty to uſe every endeavour to anticipate, if poſſible, the French in ſo important a point, as the having the prevailing influence at the Maratta Durbar.

" Our conduct muſt appear ſtrangely inconſiſtent to our honourable employers, if, after having ſo earneſtly and repeatedly lamented to them, as we have done, our misfortune in being precluded by the controlling power of the Bengal Government, from taking advantage of theſe lucky circumſtances which have occurred, we ſhould now remain wholly inactive, when that Government has given us a full latitude to act, and has provided us with the neceſſary reſources to do it with vigour and effect."

The ſubject of this minute being taken into conſideration, it is thought neceſſary, before we come to any reſolution, to conſult Mr. Moſtyn on ſome points; who attending accordingly, the ſubject of debate was communicated, and the neceſſary papers read to him, he delivers himſelf as follows:

" If the Committee are determined to take any meaſures for placing Ragoba in the Regency of the Poonah Government, it evidently appears to me the ſooner it is undertaken the better; the leſs oppoſition you will meet with, therefore the greater certainty of ſucceſs, of which indeed I have not in my own mind a doubt, and I do not conceive there can offer a more favourable criſis than the preſent, and for the following reaſons:

" Firſt. The army is at preſent diſperſed, and though this is the time for their beginning to join, it will be at leaſt ſix weeks before they are aſſembled; and even then I do not ſuppoſe a man will move until they are in ſome meaſure ſatisfied for the arrears due to them, now three years, except a few partial payments, and the advance of a further ſum for the enſuing ſeaſon, which is uſually two months pay: this, it is well known, the Government is in no capacity to do, and the diſunion amongſt the party now in power, particularly Saccaram Bappoo and Nanah, which you, gentlemen, are well acquainted with, will prevent their adopting any effectual means to remove this difficulty: they will not advance any money themſelves; none but Nanah is indeed able to do it, and no one elſe, while their diſſentions continue, will lend.

" Secondly. Another very material reaſon why it ſhould be deferred as little as poſſible is, that Holcar, with ſeveral other Maratta officers, now adherents of Moraba, will naturally conclude, if you let ſlip this opportunity, that you have quite given up Ragoba's cauſe, and be under the neceſſity, for their future ſupport and ſecurity, to take part with Nanah: It may occur to you, gentlemen, that Morabah being under ſome reſtraint in Ahmednagur, little aſſiſtance can be expected from him; but I have reaſon to believe, and from pretty good information, that whenever he is convinced of your determination to eſpouſe Ragoba's cauſe, and are landed on the Continent, he can eaſily effect his enlargement, and join you on the other ſide of the Gauts with his friends.

" Thirdly. That with reſpect to the diſtance of Colonel Leſlie's detachment, though it might be of more utility if nearer, yet I am of opinion, they may in their preſent ſituation render material ſervice, by keeping Madjee Scindy (in the neighbourhood of whoſe capital they now are) in awe, ſhould he be inclined to oppoſe us; but this I think, from his known character, he will not venture to do, when he finds a reſpectable Engliſh army along with Ragoba, but be one of the firſt to make his ſubmiſſion, not only from the immediate danger he will apprehend on account of Colonel Leſlie's army, but in future, from his knowledge of the influence the Engliſh have over the King, which might deprive him totally of his Jaghier north of the Nerbedah; and the ſooner you begin, the ſooner, in my humble opinion, will Colonel Leſlie be able to advance, as it will no doubt put an immediate ſtop to the oppoſition and delay he has and will otherwiſe continue to meet with.

" Fourthly. But what appears to me the moſt weighty reaſon of all is, that by any further delay, the danger there is of the French gaining an influence at the Maratta Court, which I took the liberty to mention under the 21ſt July, and which is fully ſtated by Mr. Carnac; and I can aſſure you, Nanah will ſpare neither pains nor expence to procure aſſiſtance from them; in which caſe I much fear it will render any future attempts very hazardous, if not wholly impracticable.

" As you have been pleaſed to favour me with the peruſal of the Governor General and Council's letter of the 17th Auguſt, it is my duty to inform you, from what knowledge I have of the Maratta Government, I do not apprehend any engagement you may have formed with Ragoba, can interfere with the treaty Mr. Elliott may enter into with Moodajee Bouncello, unleſs in one inſtance, that of placing Moodajee in the Rajaſhip. They are both Miniſters of the Rajah, and their government entirely diſtinct; however, to prevent a poſſibility of the two treaties claſhing, an article may be inſerted in your's, with Ragoba to provide againſt it."

On full conſideration of all circumſtances, it is reſolved by a majority of the Committee, Mr. Draper only diſſenting thereto, that we forthwith carry into execution the plan agreed to under the 21ſt July laſt, for conducting Ragoba to Poonah, and placing him in the Regency during the minority of the young Peiſhwa; and that the neceſſary meaſures for that purpoſe be undertaken as ſoon as poſſible.

APPENDIX, Nos. 112, 113, 114, 115, 116, and 117.

Bombay Select Conſultations, the 19th October 1778.

MR. DRAPER acquaints us he will deliver in his reaſons in writing for diſſenting to the above reſolution.

At a Select Committee; Preſent, as in the preceding one.

Mr. Draper now lays before us his reaſons in writing for diſſenting to our reſolution of immediately conducting Ragoba to Poonah, as entered at length after this conſultation.

" To the Honourable William Hornby, Eſquire, " Preſident and Governor, &c.
" Select Committee at Bombay.

" Honourable Sir, and Sirs,

" I am concerned that after concurring with your " Honour, &c. not only in the reſolutions of the 21ſt of " July, but with the Board at large in every other ſince " the

Appendxi. Nos. 112 to 117

" the 10th December laſt, for conducting Ragonath Row to Poonah, in quality of Regent, I ſhould think it my indiſpenſable duty, from the difference of circumſtances ſince the firſt mentioned period, to diſſent to the reſolution you came to the 12th inſtant for doing it at this juncture, and which I have been further induced to from thinking it a meaſure, all circumſtances conſidered, the moſt important which has ever been agitated at this Preſidency, and for the following reaſons.

" Firſt, Becauſe of the expreſs conditions contained in the Governor General and Council's letter of the 17th Auguſt.

" Secondly, Becauſe of the reſtraint Moraba, Bucheba, and their adherents, ſtill appear to be under.

" Thirdly, Becauſe of the remote diſtance of Colonel Leſlie's very conſiderable reinforcement.

" Fourthly, Becauſe of the very great deficiency in our European force, to the laſt eſtabliſhment ordered by the Honourable Company.

" As to the firſt point, becauſe though the Governor General and Council have approved the plan of the 21ſt July, it is only on the following expreſs conditions:

" That it do not interfere with any engagement formed with Moodajee Bouncello, and previous notice to you by him.

" On this it muſt be obſerved, that we have not yet received a ſingle line from that gentleman; but may ſhortly expect it, conformable to the Governor General and Council's letter of the 18th July, wherein they tell us, that Mr. Elliott would ſend us ſuch articles as he might agree to with the Rajah; that in the mean time, to prevent any ſtep of a contrary tendency on our part, they requeſted we would refrain from forming any engagements of a nature hoſtile to the Government at Poonah, except ſuch as may appear abſolutely neceſſary for the defence of our poſſeſſions. Mr. Moſtyn remarks in his minute, delivered the 12th inſtant, that he does not apprehend any engagement we may have with Ragonath Row, can interfere with the treaty Mr. Elliott may enter into with Moodajee, except that of placing him in the Rajaſhip, which poſſibly may be the very object they may have in view; as we have had reaſon to think, from what the Governor and Council have communicated to us, that it is a negociation of a very extenſive nature, and meant to comprehend the Company's general intereſts. Mr. Moſtyn, to prevent their and our treaty claſhing, propoſes, that an article may be inſerted in ours to provide againſt it; but I refer it to your Honour, &c. whether, conſiſtently with the ſecrecy the Governor General and Council have enjoined us in this reſpect, and much leſs without exciting the jealouſy of the Maratta Government, any ſuch article could be propoſed? The words contained in the latter part are ſo very expreſs and ſignificant, and ſo much enforced by being repeated in the third, that I cannot adopt any other than their literal meaning, eſpecially as by doing it, the whole political ſyſtem the Governor General and Council may intend to eſtabliſh, may be entirely unhinged.

" Second Condition, That our lateſt advices from Europe ſhall be equal to an aſſurance, that the force required for executing the plan of the 21ſt July, may be ſpared without endangering the ſafety of Bombay in the event of a French invaſion. Your Honour, &c. will, I hope, excuſe my differing with you on this point, as I know of no ſuch advices; on the contrary, you will give me leave to remark, that the general tenor of the Honourable Company's commands this ſeaſon, ſtrongly inculcate our merely attending to our own defence, without intimating the leaſt idea that they expect we ſhould be able to undertake any offenſive meaſure. The Governor General and Council have certainly been equally attentive to our defence; as they, near a twelvemonth ago, recommended our withdrawing our Europeans from the ſubordinates, which has accordingly been done; and your Honour, &c. are ſenſible that in their letter of the 11th July, they even recommended our evacuating Tannah, and the other forts on Salſette for the ſame purpoſe; and with reſpect to our aſſiſting in the propoſed reduction of Myhie, ordered us to do it in a manner conſiſtent with our ſafety; which, they added, muſt be particularly attended to. I am in hopes we ſhall not be attacked by the French the current ſeaſon; but it is no more than hope; and ſo far am I from concurring with your Honour, &c. that a ſufficient force for the intended ſervice can be ſpared from Bombay, without endangering the ſafety of it in the event of a French invaſion, that I apprehend we ſhall have few more than the Bandarees and miſerable militia to depend on; for as to recalling any part of the deſtined force, after it has left the iſland; in caſe of ſuch an event, I think it cannot, in common prudence, be truſted to.

" Mr. Moſtyn in his minute, delivered the 12th inſtant, ſeems very preſſing for our embracing the preſent juncture; but if I miſtake not, he has been equally ſo ſince the 10th December laſt, and I conclude it muſt have eſcaped him, that on the 21ſt July, in anſwer to the firſt queſtion put to him by your Honour, &c. he replied, that he judged Moraba Bucheba and Tookajee Holcar might aſſiſt us with 30,000 horſe; ſuch a conſiderable aſſiſtance, conſidering that the two former are under reſtraint, and the latter greatly ſuſpected, I think cannot now be reaſonably expected; in which caſe, according to Mr. Moſtyn's opinion at that time, the ſervice will become more difficult and tedious; which is corroborated by the 4th article of the treaty propoſed by Moraba and Maheputt Row Trimbuck, even on the ſuppoſition of the above mentioned aſſiſtance, viz. The Engliſh army that will accompany Dada Sahab ſhall remain as long as we may have occaſion for it, and be diſmiſſed when we may think proper, to which you will make no objection;" alſo to part of the 10th Article, viz. " If the undertaking ſhould take up time you will afford ſuch an increaſe of men and ſtores as may be neceſſary to accompliſh it, which, after the main body is gone, I apprehend we ſhould be much at a loſs to make good.

" Third Condition. That the engagement you may form with Ragonath Row himſelf, or Moraba and his aſſociates, be not contrary to thoſe concluded with Moodajee by Mr. Elliott, and noticed to you, nor of a hoſtile tendency to the Government of Berar.—Having fully remarked on the firſt condition, to which this is ſimilar, I have only to allow that it would be eaſy to avoid entering into any agreement with Ragonath Row or Moraba, of a hoſtile tendency to the Government of Berar, but for the objection noticed under the firſt condition.

" Regarding the ſecond point, becauſe it appears by a letter received from Mr. Lewis, a few days after tranſmitting our plan of the 21ſt July to the Governor General and Council, that they were then only acquainted that Moraba and Buchebah were ſeized and confined by Nanah Furneeſe, and that their adherents, whether Brâmins or officers, had been ſeized, and conſiderable fines demanded of them; alſo that Tookajee Holkar, had been much diſgraced by the appointment of a Duan contrary to his inclination, which the Governor General and Council could not be apprized of for ſome time after the 17th Auguſt, nor of their ſubſequent alteration of confinement, otherwiſe that they might not have approved the plan in the manner they have done: and as to Mr. Moſtyn's remark, that Holkar with ſeveral other Maratta officers, now adherents of Moraba, will conclude that your Honour, &c. have quite given up the cauſe of Ragonath Row, and be under the neceſſity of taking part with Nanah Furneeſe, I imagine it may be eaſily obviated by giving them intimation to the contrary.

" With

" With reſpect to the other point, becauſe it was re-
" ſolved the 21ſt July, and orders ſent to Colonel Leſlie
" the day following, to bend his march to Junieer,
" about 30 miles N. E. of Poonah, by which time we " could order him to act either in proſecution of the " plan, by ſecuring the paſſes and effecting a junction
" of our forces and Ragonath Row, or to proceed on to " Bombay, according as our advices from Europe might " render it expedient. But it ſeems that your Honour,
" &c. as well as Mr. Moſtyn, are now of a different " opinion, notwithſtanding that the Colonel in his laſt
" letter from Rajee Ghur, dated the 25th of Auguſt,
" aſſures us that he ſhall be attentive to the alteration
" we had thought it expedient to direct in his route from
" the Nabedah, and notwithſtanding that his deſtination
" hither is in conſequence of an urgent repreſentation of " a want of aſſiſtance for this very ſervice.

" Fourthly. Becauſe, although I am not acquainted " with the exact deficiency in our European force, I am
" ſenſible that it is a lamentable one, compared with " the laſt eſtabliſhment ordered by the Honourable
" Company in April 1775, of 312 artillery and 1200
" infantry, and indeed it cannot be better deſcribed than
" in our letter of the 8th ultimo to Sir Edward
" Vernon; and I beg leave to remind your Honour, &c.
" that when you propoſed conducting Ragonath Row,
" to Poonah in December laſt, you judge it abſolutely
" neceſſary to requeſt the Preſident and Council at Fort
" Saint George to hold in readineſs a very conſiderable
" body of European artillery and infantry, with a bat" talion of Sepoys to repair hither to aſſiſt in our then
" intended operations, and we have ſince that period re" ceived no reinforcement of Europeans, but what has " been recalled from the ſubordinates.

" But notwithſtanding the foregoing reaſons, which " have induced me to differ from your Honours, &c.
" reſolution of the 12th inſtant, I beg leave to aſſure you
" I am too well convinced of the neceſſity of removing
" Nanah from the adminiſtration of affairs in the Ma-
" ratta Government, and reinſtating Ragonath Row in " quality of Regent, for the welfare of this Preſidency,
" and the certain advantages we may expect to reap from
" it, in conſequence of the treaty concluded at Surat,
" not to concur in it, whenever it can conſiſtently and " ſecurely be done; and which it appears to me may " be effected with more propriety, and a much greater " probability of ſucceſs, in about two months, as we " may by that time hope the reſolutions, with reſpect
" to Mr. Elliott's negociations, may be removed, that " Colonel Leſlie may arrive at the deſtination ordered " him in July, and that the Honourable Company's " expected ſhips, as alſo the ſquadron, may then be " with us; but at any rate, I moſt ſincerely wiſh the " plan your Honour, &c. have adopted, may be attended
" with all imaginable ſucceſs.

" Being with reſpect,

Bombay, " Honourable Sir, and Sirs, 16th Oct. 1778. " Your moſt obedient and moſt
" humble ſervant,
" Daniel Draper."

No. 113.

Extract from a Conſultation held the 26th October.

Preſent the ſame as the foregoing.

In reply to the reaſons alledged by Mr. Draper, for diſſenting from the reſolution of the Committee under the 12th inſtant, the other members who concurred therein have only to obſerve, that in their opinion the ſucceſs of the meaſures determined upon, the abſolute neceſſity whereof Mr. Draper admits depend upon its being immediately undertaken; and the execution will become much more difficult, if not altogether impracti-cable, by being ſuſpended to ſo diſtant a period as that gentleman propoſes: it is certain that very advan-tageous offers have been made by Nanah through Monſieur St. Lubin to the French nation, in order to engage their aſſiſtance in ſupport of his uſurped authority; and if a junction of their forces with him be once effected, they will acquire ſo predominant an influence at the Poonah Durbar as will occaſion a perpetual warfare be-tween the Marattas and us, whereby the Company's poſſeſſions on the weſtern ſide of India muſt be rendered inſecure and unprofitable; they therefore deem themſelves bound in duty to their honourable maſters to prevent (if poſſible) an accident ſo ruinous to their intereſts, by a timely interpoſition of the only reſource that is left, namely, to take advantage of the preſent diviſions amongſt the Bramin Miniſters, to eſtabliſh Ragonath Row in the Regency, and to aſſiſt him with as conſider-able a part of our force as we can ſpare for that pur-poſe. Although it is near two months ſince we had the firſt advice from the Governor General and Council, of their having deputed Mr. Elliott on an important embaſſy to the Government of Berar, we have as yet no information whatever of or from him, and it is hard to gueſs when we may; but it is no way likely the degree of ſupport we mean to give Ragonath Row can be at all affected by any negociation that may be concluded with Moodajee Bouncello, for even ſuppoſing it ſhould be recommended to him to aſſert his pretenſions to the Rajahſhip of Sattara, and that he ſhould in conſequence aſſume that dignity, it is moſt probable he would continue the Huſht Prandaun Go-vernment, taking care to reduce them to their original ſubjection to the Rajah; and the ſovereignty being in the perſon of Moodajee, who is in friendſhip with the Bengal Adminiſtration, it would perhaps be more for the general intereſt, that the Huſht Prandaun, a council of eight, ſhould be dependant.

Appendix Nos. 113 to 116.

No. 114.

The Secretary now lays before us a draft of the letter from Ragoba to the principal Maratta officers, to be cir-culated on his landing on the Continent; which being approved, is ordered to be explained to Ragoba, and if approved by him a proper number of copies muſt be made in the country language, and the Company's ſeal, and Ragoba's private ſeal affixed thereto.

No. 115.

Extract from a Conſultation held in Bombay,
4th November 1778.
Preſent as before.

As we hope the forces will be ready to move the next Spring, about the 20th of the month, it is thought ne-ceſſary to fix the method of carrying our plan into exe-cution; and as the appointment of a committee is thought beſt ſuited for the purpoſe, the Preſident pro-poſes that Meſſrs. Carnac, Egerton, and Moſtyn, ſhould be the committee appointed; and they are appointed accordingly.

The ſaid committee will conſider of the further ar-rangements neceſſary for the intended ſervice, and wait upon Ragoba to communicate our intentions to him, and the conditions to be previouſly ſtipulated with him; in which they muſt enjoin him to obſerve the utmoſt ſecrecy.

No. 116.

7th November 1778.
At a Committee; preſent as before.

The Preſident acquaints us, that he has ſummoned this meeting at the deſire of Colonel Egerton; who ac-quaints us, that having through miſapprehenſion aſſented to the appointment of the committee to accompany the army to Poonah, he now withdraws his aſſent, and diſ-ſents thereto, for which he explains his reaſons in writing as follow:

" A committee having been appointed a few days " ago, of Mr. Carnac, myſelf, and Mr. Moſtyn, to " treat with Ragoba, as I conceived, for the immediate " tranſaction of buſineſs on this iſland, I gave my con-
" ſent

Appendix. Nos. 117 to 120.

" ſent thereto; but having ſince diſcovered by accident, " that it is the intention of the ſaid Committee to ac- " company me in that capacity on the intended expe- " dition; I deſire to know if that was the Honourable " the Governor's deſign, when he made the propoſal " for forming it at the Board; and ſhould that be the " caſe, to declare, that I find myſelf neceſſitated not " only to withdraw my aſſent to the meaſure, but even " to enter my proteſt againſt it, for the following " reaſons:

" Firſt, Becauſe I deem it diametrically oppoſite to " the Intentions of the Honourable the Court of Di- " rectors.

" Secondly, Becauſe it is morally impoſſible any ne- " gociation can take place on the road, on which the " commanding officer, with the Poonah Ambaſſador " (who will of courſe proceed with the army to his ſta- " tion) cannot immediately receive the orders of the " Honourable the Governor and Select Committee.

" Thirdly, Becauſe it appears very clearly, from the " commands of the Honourable Directors of the 10th " April laſt, received per ſhip Caranja, paragraph the " 3d, that in the commanding officer's abſence, the Select " Committee is to conſiſt, till his return, of the Ho- " nourable the Governor, the ſecond and fourth in Coun- " cil. This can, I think, bear only one interpretation, " viz. that the perſons above-mentioned, and not a part " of them, are competent to act in that capacity."

After the diſcuſſion of this matter, the Preſident puts the following queſtion, in which Meſſrs. Carnac and Egerton decline voting:

Whether two members of this Committee can be detached from the Preſidency at the ſame time, upon any temporary ſervice? and whether the two remaining members are, in their abſence, competent to form a Committee?

Mr. Draper votes in the negative on this queſtion, being of opinion it is the Company's meaning, that none of the civil members of the Committee ſhould be detached from the Preſidency when the commanding officer will likewiſe be abſent, as it would occaſion the ſame inconvenience they have guarded againſt in the paragraph reſpecting the commanding officer.

The Preſident is of opinion, that from the laſt paragraph, in caſes of great emergency, as in the preſent, two members may be abſent, or even he himſelf, if the ſervice ſhould require it; and that the remainder can form a Committee in the abſence of the other two.

The queſtion being therefore determined in the affirmative by the Preſident's caſting vote, it is the reſolution of the Committee, that the remaining two members, in the abſence of the other two, are competent to form a Select Committee; and therefore our former appointment of the committee to accompany Ragoba ſtands confirmed.

No. 117.

11th November 1778.

At a Committee; preſent as before.

Mr. Carnac delivers in his opinion on the general queſtion propoſed at our laſt meeting, as follows:

" It having been judged highly neceſſary, that our " utmoſt endeavours ſhould be exerted to effect the re- " moval of the preſent Miniſters of the infant Peiſhwa, " who are avowedly and inveterately hoſtile to us, and " to place the chief adminiſtration of affairs in the " hands of Ragonath Row, of whoſe good diſpoſition " towards us we have every reaſon to be aſſured; Mr. " Carnac is of opinion, the Company are ſo deeply in- " tereſted in the event of ſuch a meaſure, that the con- " ducting of it cannot with propriety be entruſted to " any ſingle perſon, but that a committee ought to be " appointed for the purpoſe; and as there can ſcarcely " be any other political buſineſs of equal importance, " he thinks one of the civil members of the Secret " Committee ought to be nominated for that ſervice. " He does not conceive that the temporary abſence of " one of the civil members, during the ſpace of time " that may be required for the accompliſhment of the " buſineſs we are now about to undertake, can be con- " ſtrued into a vacancy, or that the powers of the Secret " Committee are to be ſuſpended during the abſence of " ſuch members."

When Mr. Draper acquaints us, that he likewiſe apprehended, from our minute of the 4th November, that the object of the committee's appointment was only confined to ſettle the arrangements of Ragoba, previous to his quitting the iſland, and was not meant to accompany the army to Poonah, as he thought the committee for that purpoſe was hereafter to be appointed; he alſo begs leave to obſerve, that in the opinion he gave on the 7th inſtant, he did not mean to imply that this Committee was not competent to tranſact buſineſs in the ſickneſs or accidental abſence of two of the members, but only that it was not according to the meaning of the Company's orders, that any two of themembers ſhould be detached from the Preſidency on any temporary ſervice.

18th November 1778.

At a Committee; all preſent.

Colonel Egerton now delivers the following minute, in reply to Mr. Carnac's, entered under the 11th inſtant.

" Colonel Egerton entirely agrees with Mr. Carnac, " that the placing the chief adminiſtration of the Poonah " Government in the hands of Ragoba, is a matter of " ſuch important concern to the Honourable Company " that it ought by no means to be entruſted to the ma- " nagement of any one perſon ſingly; and therefore moſt " heartily acquieſces in the appointment of a committee " for modelling the buſineſs on the ſpot, before any " ſteps were taken publicly and avowedly for his ſup- " port; and when it may be effected and ratified with " the ſanction and approbation of the Select committee, " nothing more can remain to be done, but to effect " their orders by the due and vigorous exertion of the " military power; for which purpoſe he flatters himſelf " the Honourable Directors deem the ſervices of the " committee needleſs.

" The Colonel's objection was ſolely to the deviation " from the Honourable Directors' plain order, that in " the abſence of the commanding officer the Select Com- " mittee is to conſiſt of the Honourable the Governor, " the ſecond and fourth in Council; he therefore wiſhes " you ſeriouſly to conſider beforehand, what diſagreeable " conſequences ſuch a deviation will be liable to, par- " ticularly in the preſent caſe, when it may be thought " unneceſſary, as any unforeſeen occurrences can in a " couple of days be communicated to the Select Com- " mittee, whoſe powers ſhould not be ſubject to the " ſmalleſt ſhadow of cavil or diſpute."

APPENDIX. Nos. 118, 119, and 120.

Bombay Select Conſultations, 11th November 1778.

At a Committee; preſent as before.

THE circular letter intended to have been iſſued by Ragoba on his landing on the Continent having been explained to him by the committee, he at firſt made ſome exceptions againſt it, particularly to that clauſe reſpecting his carrying on the Government as Regent only during the minority, and the Sicca being continued in the Peiſhwa's name. After the proper arguments on the occaſion had been urged by the committee, and afterwards by Mr. Moſtyn, his objections appeared to ſubſide, and he ſeemed very ready to agree to the terms, on condition we would lend him three lacks of rupees, and indulge him in ſome other articles of warlike ſtores; but having expreſſed a deſire that the letter might be left with him for further conſideration, it was accordingly left with him, and to our great ſurprize it was returned yeſterday to the Preſident, accompanied with a paper containing ſundry alterations of a very material nature, which he propoſed ſhould be made therein. Theſe will appear by the letter itſelf as drawn out by the Secretary, and the letter altered as propoſed by him, both entered hereafter. The alteration he has made in the very title is itſelf an inſuperable objection. Mr. Moſtyn acquaints us that Mookia Purdhan is the title only due to the Peiſhwa himſelf; but when we obſerve that he has totally omitted the clauſe reſpecting the footing on which he is to aſſume the Government, and promiſing to continue the Sicca in the boy's name, we cannot heſitate a moment in declaring that we cannot proceed further without entirely renouncing the principles we have acted upon, and upon which we obtained the ſanction of the Governor General and Council: Reſolved, therefore, that the committee be deſired to wait upon Ragoba, and to acquaint him expreſsly that unleſs he will accede to the propoſed conditions we muſt immediately give up his cauſe, and proceed no further in the buſineſs; that the alterations above noted, and the omiſſion he propoſes, are totally inadmiſſible, but that we will agree to his being ſtiled Punt Purdhan, which Mr. Moſtyn acquaints us will be his proper title, and was the title uſed by Badjuar in the treaty of the year 1739; and that we cannot pay any attention to his other requeſts until this point is firſt ſettled. The committee muſt alſo expreſs our ſurprize at his having ſo greatly receded from what he had declared both to them and to Mr. Moſtyn, reſpecting thoſe points, which we cannot account for otherwiſe than by imputing it to the advice of evil counſellors, who are in the intereſt of his enemies, and have prevailed on him to raiſe thoſe objections, purpoſely to defeat his expectations from us. They muſt alſo obſerve to him, of how much importance it is that no time ſhould be loſt in moving with our forces, as our preparations cannot much longer be kept ſecret, and when diſcovered to the Miniſters, muſt greatly increaſe our difficulties, if not defeat the whole ſcheme.

In ſhort, the committee muſt be very explicit with him, and give him plainly to underſtand that his compliance with the terms offered is a ſine qua non.

Circular Letter as drawn out by the Secretary from Ragonath Row Ballajee Badjuar, to all the Mootſeddees, Sirdars, and ſubjects of the Maratta State.

You will no doubt hear with pleaſure that the Government of Bombay, with the ſanction and concurrence of the Governor General and Council of Calcutta, have now determined to ſupport my cauſe with vigour, and with the aſſiſtance of the Almighty to place me in the Regency of the Maratta empire, which you all know is my juſt right. The Governor and Select Committee have been moved to this reſolution in my favour by the unjuſt conduct of the preſent Adminiſtration of Poonah, who have violated in almoſt every article the treaty concluded with the Honourable Company in March 1776, and by their great deſire to ſee peace and good order reſtored to the Maratta empire, which has been ſo long involved in troubles and confuſion, and experienced ſo many calamities by miſmanagement and the diſcord of oppoſite factions.

That no officer or ſubject of the Maratta State may be deterred from following the dictates of his duty by any ſuſpicion of the rectitude of my intentions, I do in the moſt ſolemn manner avow and declare thus in the face of the world, that my only view is to remove the Government out of the preſent improper hands, and to take upon myſelf the Regency during the minority of the young Peiſhwa Madarow Narrain; in the mean time I ſhall conduct the affairs of Government as Regent, and continue the Sicca in the Peiſhwa's name, without doing injury to any one who does not oppoſe my juſt deſigns, or endeavour to abſcond, and ſhall bury in oblivion all paſt injuries from every perſon whatever, unleſs provoked by any new act of enmity after this notice. Appendix. Nos. 119 & 120.

I now call upon you, and require you immediately to join my forces and the Engliſh army, and to attend me to Poonah, where I hope, by the divine bleſſing, to ſettle the Government upon a firm and ſolid footing, and aided by the advice of upright and wiſe miniſters, to reſtore the Maratta empire to its former happineſs and ſplendour.

In further confirmation of what is herein contained, the Governor and Select Committee of Bombay have cauſed the ſeal of the Honourable Company to be affixed.

No. 119.

Circular Letter (as propoſed by Ragoba) from Ragonath Badjerow Mookia Purdhan, or head Miniſter.

To all the Modſeddies, Sirdars, Jaghierdars, and ſubjects of the Maratta State:

You will no doubt hear with pleaſure that the Government of Bombay, with the ſanction and concurrence of the Governor General and Council of Calcutta, have determined now to ſupport my cauſe with vigour, and with the aſſiſtance of the Almighty to place me in the Regency of the Maratta empire, which you all know is my juſt right. The Governor and Select Committee have been moved to this reſolution in my favour by the unjuſt conduct of the preſent Adminiſtration at Poonah, who have violated in almoſt every article the treaty concluded with the Honourable Company in March 1776, and by their deſire to ſee peace and good order reſtored through my hands to the Maratta empire, which has been ſo long involved in trouble and confuſion, and experienced ſo many calamities by the miſmanagement and diſcord of my ſervants.

That no officer or ſubject of the Maratta State may be deterred from following the dictates of his duty by any ſuſpicion of the rectitude of my intentions, I have in the moſt ſolemn manner granted this, and declare thus in the face of the world, that my only view is to remove the Government out of the preſent improper hands, and to take upon myſelf the Regency, without doing injury to any one who does not oppoſe my juſt deſigns or endeavour to abſcond, and ſhall bury in oblivion all paſt injuries from every perſon whatever: but after this notice you will, without making any freſh acts of enmity, come and join my forces, and attend me to Poonah, where I hope, by the divine bleſſing, to ſettle the Government upon a firm and ſolid footing, and reſtore the Maratta empire to its former happineſs and ſplendour.

In further confirmation of what is here contained, the Honourable the Governor and Select Committee of Bombay have cauſed the ſeal of the Honourable Company to be affixed.

No 120.

16th November 1778.

At a Committee; all the members preſent except Colonel Egerton, indiſpoſed..

Mr. Carnac lays before us a report of the Committee's conference with Ragoba in conſequence of the reſolution of our laſt meeting; and further acquaints us, that Ragoba had at laſt agreed to wave his demand for having it ſtipulated in the treaty, that if the child ſhould be proved ſpurious, he, Ragoba, ſhould be declared Peiſhwa; and had put his Sicca to the circular letter as drawn out by the ſecretary, after a few alterations of no material conſequence, on condition that we would engage to repreſent to the Honourable Company, in the ſtrongeſt terms, his moſt ſolemn declaration that the child is ſuppoſititious, and that he can produce the real father and mother, and alſo that he will point out to them the extreme injuſtice of his being obliged to hold the Government in the name of ſuch ſuppoſititious child, and that he will requeſt to receive their explicit orders by the earlieſt conveyance, how we are to proceed in caſe he ſhould produce unqueſtionable proofs of his allegation, and and whether they will permit him then to assume the Government in his name, which on such proof will be his undoubted right. That Ragoba further requested it might be mentioned to the Honourable Company, that in case the child should prove to be really the son of Narrain Row, he wished in such case an equal partition might be made of the Government and country agreeable to what he says is the Gentoo law.

Resolved, since Ragoba is so earnest in his request, That a representation to the above effect be made to the Honourable Company, Ordered, that a proper number of copies of the circular letter be made in the Gentoo language, and that it be entered after this consultation in the form it now stands.

Ragoba's relation of the transaction between him and Mr. Shaw, respecting the grant of Ahmood, as stated in the Committee's conference, being next considered, the Broach records are referred to, where we cannot discover any trace of the promise Ragoba mentions, but on the contrary, it appears by the proceedings of the chief and council, under the 8th June 1775, that the cession of Ahmood was a voluntary gift from Ragoba to the Honourable Company, and that the grant passed through the proper forms, by which a considerable expence was incurred; the grant itself is entered upon the Broach records, under the 25th September of the same year;

Resolved, therefore, That Ragoba has no right to expect from us the performance of the promise said to be made by Mr. Shaw on that account, but that we will consent to receive the cession of Ahmood on the same terms he has offered Hansood, namely, as a mark of the regard to the Honourable Company; and mention it to them in that light.

As a supply of money will be absolutely necessary to enable Ragoba to proceed; Resolved, That a loan be made him of three lacks of rupees: which the state of our treasury at Bombay and Surat will enable us to make without inconvenience, and the season for collection now coming on.

His request for a supply of military stores, as specified in the annexed list, being next considered, it is agreed to let him have 1,500 stand of arms with their accoutrements, and four or five guns and their carriages, with the particular gun he points out, and the flints and gunpowder. We cannot spare any howitzers, but it must be represented to Ragoba, that our army will carry a sufficient train and ammunition, and that any thing further will only be an incumbrance; and therefore such only of the articles as he may have occasion for will now be delivered; and the remainder afterwards.

APPENDIX, Nos. 121, 122, 123, and 124.

Bombay Select Consultations, the 18th November 1778.

THE draft of the proposed treaty with Ragoba is now laid before us by the Secretary; and having been seriously and deliberately discussed, article by article, it is, after a few alterations, approved.

Ordered, that a translation thereof, in the Maratta language, be immediately made, and sent to Ragoba for his inspection, who must be desired to fix a short day to meet us, to execute and exchange the treaty.

Articles of Agreement and Treaty between the Honourable William Hornby, Esquire, President and Governor, and the Select Committee of Bombay, on the part and behalf of the Honourable United English East India Company, on the one part; and Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan, on the other part; done and concluded at Bombay this day of November, in the year of our Lord 1778.

Article 1st. The treaty concluded by Colonel Upton with Siccaram Pundit and Ballajee Pundit, Ministers, in behalf of the Peishwa and the Maratta State, having been violated by those Ministers in almost every article, the Governor and Select Committee of Bombay, with the sanction and concurrence of the Governor General and Council, do hereby engage and agree in behalf of the aforesaid Company, to assist Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan to the utmost of their power, to put him in possession of Poonah, and to place him in the Regency of the Maratta empire during the minority of the young Peishwa Maderow Narrain, hereby declaring that the true intent and meaning of this treaty is not to alter the form of Government, or to interrupt the peace between the Honourable Company and the Maratta State, but only to remove the Administration out of the present improper hands, and to place in the Regency the man who has the justest title to that office.

2d. Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan, on his part, doth hereby engage and agree to accept the office of Regent, which he is to exercise with full power during the minority of the Peishwa Maderow Narrain, in whose name he further engages to continue the Sicca and conduct the Government; but Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan, having expressed his doubt of the legitimacy of the Peishwa Maderow Narrain, the Governor and Select Committee of Bombay do hereby engage, on Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan his strong solicitations, to request explicit orders from the Company, whether, in case he should prove to their satisfaction that the child is suppositious, they will place him in the Peishwaship, which, on such proof, will be his unquestionable right; and whether, in case the child should prove to be really the son of Narrain Row, they will guarantee to him an equal division of the Government and country, on the Peishwa attaining the age of seventeen, agreeable to what Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan says he is entitled to by his birthright, according to the Gentoo law.

3d. The Governor and Select Committee of Bombay do hereby stipulate, and Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan, for their satisfaction, and that his upright intentions may appear manifest, doth hereby engage, and agree, that the person of the Peishwa Maderow Narrain shall be kept under the charge and custody of such persons as may be agreeable to the Select Committee.

4th. Morabah Furneese, Butcheba Pronder, and Tookajee Holcar, having invited Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan to take upon himself the Government as Regent and promised their assistance, Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan doth hereby engage, upon their performing their promise to his and the Select Committee's satisfaction, that he will shew favour to them according to their ranks in settling the offices of Government, and that their persons and fortunes shall be unmolested.

5th. Any articles respecting the internal management of the Government, or the appointment and removal of officers, can be better settled by Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan on his part faithfully promising to observe the terms mentioned in the circular letter, with respect to the personal safety of those whom he may be of opinion have injured him.

6th. In consideration of the assistance to be afforded by the Honourable Company for placing Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan in the regency at Poonah, Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan doth hereby engage to confirm and ratify the former treaty concluded with him at Surat in March 1775, and to cede and make over to the Honourable Company for ever, the several places and territories granted by the said treaty, which were restored by the treaty of Poorunder, and Bassein and its districts, and the island of Kennery, which were not put in possession of the Company. The several acquisitions which will devolve to the Honourable Company by virtue of this treaty, are as follow:

Bassein fort and town, and the whole of its districts and dependencies in the fullest extent, according to the just and fixed boundaries of that province.

Jamboosier and Orpad. In the same full and ample manner as ceded by the Treaty of Surat.

The iſland of Kennery.

An aſſignment upon the Purgunnah of Occlaſier for the ſum of rupees 75,000 per annum, as ſettled by the 8th article of the Treaty of Surat.

There being ſome ſmall places known by the name of the Autgoms, always annexed and actually making a part of the iſland of Salſette, which have been withheld from the Company by the Poonah Miniſters, Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan doth hereby engage and agree that the ſaid Autgoms ſhall be ceded to the Honourable Company.

7th. In addition to the ſeveral grants and ceſſions hereinabove ſpecified, Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan doth hereby engage and agree to cede and make over for ever the Purgunnah of Ahmood and Hanſood; which grants are to be conſidered as an inſtance of his good will and affection to the Honourable Company.

8th. All the places herein ceded to the Honourable Company are to be conſidered as their ſole right and property from the day this treaty is executed, without any claim of chout to the Maratta Government, or any other demand whatever, and may be taken poſſeſſion of by the Company's people whenever they think proper; for which purpoſe Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan doth with theſe preſents deliver the neceſſary orders to the Maratta officers to ſurrender the ſaid places. Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan doth further promiſe and engage, that immediately after taking charge of the regency at Poonah, he will execute and deliver to the Government at Bombay regular Sunnuds, under the Peiſhwa's Sicca, for the ſeveral ceſſions granted to the Honourable Company by this treaty.

9th. Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan engages to pay and make good the charges and expences of the army and ſtores with which he is now to be aſſiſted, which he hereby faithfully promiſes to make good in ready money, as ſoon as the ſituation of his affairs will poſſibly permit; and for the further ſecurity of the Honourable Company, till the account due for the expences of the army is fully diſcharged, when all right and title there to on the part of the Honourable Company will be relinquiſhed.

10th. Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan engages to pay in full for the body of forces, conſiſting of 4000 men, with which he is to be aſſiſted, the ſum of two lacks and a half of rupees per month, which the Governor and Select Committee of Bombay agree to accept without further account in full of every expence attending the army, and is to commence from the day the forces leave Bombay.

11th. Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan faithfully promiſes to diſcharge his preſent debt to the Honourable Company, as ſoon as the ſtate of his finances will permit, agreeable to an account which will be delivered to him.

12th. The Engliſh forces are to continue with Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan until the object of this treaty is accompliſhed, which is to place him in the Regency of Poonah; and when that is effected, they are to be at all times ready to aſſiſt Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan with their forces, ſo far as may be conſiſtent with their other engagements, or the ſituation of their own affairs will permit.

13th. The ſeveral treaties and agreements ſubſiſting between the Government of Bombay and the Maratta Government are hereby ratified and confirmed in as full force, as when they were firſt concluded, unleſs otherwiſe provided for in the treaty.

14th. After the eſtabliſhment of Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan in the Regency at Poonah, there ſhall be a firm peace and alliance between the Honourable Company and the Maratta Government; Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan engages never to aſſiſt the enemies or moleſt the dominions of the Company in any part of India, nor to make war or commit depredations in the Carnatic, or any other part of the dominions of their ally the Nabob of Arcot: the Governor and Select Committee of Bombay in like manner engage in behalf of the Honourable Company, not to aſſiſt the enemies of Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan. Appendix No. 121.

15th. Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan hereby engages and agrees that no European ſettlements ſhall be allowed to be made on the maritime coaſts, or any other parts of the Maratta dominions, without the conſent of the Company, or of their repreſentatives being previouſly obtained, and that no manner of intercourſe or connection ſhall be maintained between the Maratta Government and the French nation; any failure in which ſtipulation will be conſidered as a breach of the alliance between the Maratta Government and the Honourable Company.

16th. When the contracting parties have mutually interchanged this treaty, it will be ſent to Bengal for the ratification of the Governor General and Council.

17th. Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan doth hereby ſtipulate and engage, that the Engliſh ſhall enjoy all their former privileges and freedom of trade within the Maratta dominions without interruption; and he further engages to give all poſſible encouragement to the Honourable Company's trade, and to promote, as far as he can, an excluſive vend to the Engliſh for European commodities in the Maratta dominions.

18th. If any article of the preſent treaty ſhould interfere with any engagements formed by the Governor General and Council, not yet known to the Select Committee of Bombay, ſuch article may be altered or amended as may be neceſſary.

The foregoing articles having been mutually agreed to by the Governor and Select Committee of Bombay, on the part of the Honourable Company, and Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan, the contracting parties have interchangeably affixed their hands and ſeals, and the ſeal of the Honourable Company, in Bombay Caſtle, the day and year above written.

19th November 1778.

The Secretary, by the Preſident's order, ſent round the following note to the Members; on which they gave their opinions ſubjoined to the note.

To the Worſhipful John Carnac, Eſquire, &c.
Members of the Select Committee.

Gentlemen,

The 16th article of the propoſed treaty, as ſettled yeſterday by the Committee, appearing to the Preſident, on further reflection, to be a greater conceſſion than the Gentlemen at Bengal are by law entitled to, and not only unneceſſary in this caſe, but a precedent which may be very dangerous to the influence and dignity of this Preſidency; he has therefore ordered me to new model this article, and I have the honour to ſend it round for your opinion.

I am with reſpect,
Thurſday, Gentlemen, &c. &c.
19th November 1778. Edward Ravenſcroft. Sec^y.

I conceive the Act of Parliament obliges us to ſubmit the propoſed treaty to the controul of the Governor General and Council; and therefore prefer the article approved of yeſterday to that now propoſed to be ſubſtituted for it. Daniel Draper.

I in a great meaſure agree with the Preſident; however, as our determination of this matter may be attended with ſerious conſequences, I think it ſhould be fairly debated in the Committee; and after hearing a full diſcuſſion of the arguments in favour of the ſeveral opinions, we ſhall be better able to reſolve.

John Carnac.

I have this moment received the act; and therefore will not delay giving my opinion; viz.

That

Appendix. Nos. 122 & 123.

That in this whole affair, we are bound to proceed with the ſanction and approbation of the Supreme Council, which is already obtained for our private juſtification; but it is needleſs to make any public mention thereof in the treaty.

Charles Egerton.

No. 122.

Extract from a Conſultation held in Bombay, 21ſt November 1778.

The Committee, except Mr. Draper, indiſpoſed, aſſembled in the Preſident's chamber, who is alſo much indiſpoſed; when he communicates to them a letter from Mr. Lewis, and one from Ragoba to the Gentoo Tranſlator; by which it appears, and which is likewiſe confirmed from various quarters, that the Miniſters have got intimation of our intentions, and are making preparations to oppoſe us.

Reſolved, upon this intelligence, that it is neceſſary no time ſhould be loſt in moving the forces: and as the ſpring tides now ſerve, and the Colonel acquaints us the preparations are in ſufficient forwardneſs, reſolved, That the firſt diviſion under Captain Stewart, be embarked with to-morrow night's tide, and proceed to Apta to ſecure Bhore Gaut; and that another diviſion proceed immediately after, to ſecure Bellapore Fort for a magazine, and ſupport the firſt diviſion, in caſe of neceſſity; and that the remainder of the forces proceed afterwards with all expedition.

The Preſident deſires that Mr. Carnac will take upon him the execution of the neceſſary meaſures to forward the intended ſervice; and acquaints him, that he has given orders for ſecuring all the boats and ſmall craft of this iſland and Salſette; and deſires that Mr. Carnegie may be immediately ordered to ſend the boats from Caranja, which, being beſt acquainted with the navigation of Apta river, will be moſt proper to tranſport Captain Stewart's diviſion.

The boats are to be arranged in diviſions, under the command of marine officers.

Ordered, That all communication between this iſland and the continent be immediately ſtopped, and advice ſent to Mr. Lewis, that he may take the neceſſary meaſures for his own ſecurity.

The ſeveral neceſſary points muſt be adjuſted with Ragoba as ſoon as poſſible; for which purpoſe Mr. Moſtyn will immediately wait on him.

The 16th article of the propoſed treaty being now reconſidered, the Act of Parliament is referred to; wherein we find it laid down, "that it ſhall not be lawful for "any Preſident and Council &c. to make any orders "for commencing hoſtilities, or declaring or making "war, againſt any Indian princes or powers, without the "conſent and approbation of the Governor General and "Council firſt had and obtained." It therefore certainly follows, that it is lawful for us to do and perform the things aforeſaid, when we have obtained ſuch conſent and approbation, which is the preſent caſe: and the propoſed article appears the more unneceſſary and ſuperfluous, after the recital in the firſt article, that we have proceeded with the ſanction and approbation of the Governor General and Council. Such a ſtipulation muſt create much diſtruſt and doubt in Ragoba; and certain we are, that it would entirely deſtroy the conſequence and dignity of this Government in the eyes of the country powers, and be attended with many bad conſequences to the Company's intereſts; for after we have proclaimed in our negociation, that we have obtained the conſent of the Governor General and Council, which is neceſſary to be done, as their controlling power is univerſally known, if, when we come to the point, we declare that we have no authority to conclude a final engagement, in what trifling light muſt we appear, and what power will waſte time in treating with us? Reſolved, therefore, for the above reaſons, and thoſe recorded in our proceedings under the 9th inſtant, and becauſe we have adhered ſtrictly to the principles upon which we obtained the ſanction of the Governor General and Council, that the 16th article of the propoſed treaty, as it now ſtands, is highly improper and unneceſſary; and that the following be ſubſtituted in lieu thereof, which will provide equally well againſt our treaty interfering with the engagement Mr. Elliott may form with Moodajee Bouncello, and which was our ſole object in the article as firſt drawn out.

Amended article. If any article of the preſent treaty ſhould interfere with any engagement formed by the Governor General and Council, not yet known to the Governor and Select Committee of Bombay, ſuch article may be liable to be altered or amended, as may be neceſſary.

No. 123.

22d November 1778.

At a Committee; all preſent but Mr. Draper, indiſpoſed.

Meſſrs. Carnac and Egerton, Mr. Draper being indiſpoſed, met in the Preſident's chamber, who ſtill continues very indifferent; when Mr. Moſtyn reports that he had a conference with Ragoba, on the ſubject of the propoſed treaty, who objected to ſeveral parts thereof, and promiſed to ſend ſome of his people this morning to meet Meſſrs. Carnac, Egerton, and Moſtyn, in order the more fully to explain his objections.

If the final execution of the treaty ſhould take up more time than we expect, Ragoba muſt be deſired in the mean time to put his Sicca to ſome of the letters to be ſent over with Captain Stewart's party, which we before agreed is to embark this evening.

Immediately on the Committee's breaking up, Meſſrs. Carnac, Egerton, and Moſtyn, had a meeting with four agents from Ragoba, with whom they had a tedious conference of upwards of four hours, which ended without any thing concluſive being ſettled. The principal objections made by the agents were, firſt, to the article providing for the ſecurity of the child's perſon; in which they want to have ſpecified, the place of his reſidence, the perſons names who were to have the charge of him, and alſo the fort wherein he might be kept, ſhould he be under Ragoba's orders. Secondly, To the article reſpecting Moraba, &c. which they wanted to have altered in ſuch manner as to leave him entirely dependant on Ragoba's pleaſure, and to be conſidered by him in the diſtribution of the offices, as he might think their ſervices might merit. Thirdly, they inſiſted an expreſs article ſhould be inſerted, ſtipulating that the Select Committee ſhould not in any ſhape interfere in ſettling the internal Government.

The agents declaring they had no power to relax from theſe demands, and Meſſrs. Carnac, Egerton, and Moſtyn's arguments being ineffectual, the conference broke up.

The Poonah Committee particularly deſired the agents to get ſome of the circular letters, ſigned by Ragoba, to be ſent with Captain Stewart's party; and the Company's Linguiſt waited on him for that purpoſe, but Ragoba refuſed to ſign the circular letter till he executed the treaty.

The Committee ſend a meſſage to Ragoba, deſiring him to meet them at 10 o'Clock to-morrow morning; which he agrees to.

At 11 P. M. Captain Stewart's diviſion, having embarked in the afternoon, weighed with the tide, and ſtood over to the Apta river.

23d November 1778.

At a Committee; all the Members preſent.

Ragoba now meets the Committee according to appointment, when, after a conference of near ſeven hours, he agreed to execute the treaty, with ſome ſmall alterations which were made at his earneſt deſire, and promiſed to put his Sicca to ſome of the circular letters this evening.

Previous to his taking leave, he requeſted the intended loan might be enlarged from three to four lacks of rupees, pleading, as he had obliged us in the affair of Ahmood, he had a right to expect that favour; which being a very juſt plea, it is agreed to grant his requeſt, and cannot doubt but the Honourable Company will approve the loan, conſidering the valuable acquiſitions we ſhall gain from them by the treaty.

Ragoba deſiring that the treaty, when fair copied, may be ſent to him to execute, the Secretary is ordered to get it ready with all expedition, when it will be ſent to him by a deputation.

No. 124.

Ragoba then took his leave of the Committee with the uſual ceremonies.

The ſecond diviſion of the troops, under the command of Lieutenant Colonel Cay, proceeded to Bellapore.

Ragoba returned ſix of the circular letters, executed under his Sicca, which were immediately counterſealed with the Company's ſeal, and four of them ſent over to Captain Stewart.

Colonel Charles Egerton proceeded in the yatch to Billapore.

The Committee met in the Preſident's chamber, and executed the treaty, which in the evening was ſent to Ragoba by Mr. Moſtyn.

The Committee, except Colonel Egerton, with the army, aſſembled in the Preſident's chamber.

Mr. Moſtyn reports, that Ragoba, notwithſtanding his promiſe at the meeting with the Committee, after the treaty had been fully canvaſſed, and every article particularly explained to him, ſtill refuſed to ſign it, unleſs an addition was made to the third, more fully providing for the charge of the child's perſon, in caſe Perwettyboy ſhould decline the offer; and that he likewiſe objected to the article ceding over the Aurgoms, alledging, that they were not anciently annexed to the diſtrict of Salſette, and inſiſting, that the value of this ceſſion ſhould be aſcertained, and not to exceed a certain ſum.

As we much wiſh to remove all doubts from Ragoba, and to give him ſatisfaction, ſo far as we conſiſtently can; reſolved, that we conſent to the following additions being made to the diſputed articles:

To the 3d. "In caſe Perwettyboy ſhould refuſe to "undertake the charge, the child ſhall be put under the "care of any of his relations by the mother's ſide."

To the 6th. "But although the Governor and Se- "lect Committee have even underſtood that the Aurgoms "made a part of the iſland of Salſette, yet if the con- "trary ſhould be made plainly to appear, they will give "up their claim."

But as we have experienced ſo much evaſion and delay on the part of Ragoba; reſolved, that the following meſſage be ſent to him, if he ſhould not agree to the treaty with the above additions:

"That we are determined not to permit of any fur- "ther additions being made in the treaty. That if he "refuſed to execute it in its preſent form, we ſhall drop "all connection with him, and take poſſeſſion of the Go- "vernment of Poonah, in the name of the Peiſhwa, and "carry it on in his name, until we receive orders from "Bengal whom to appoint Regent; and that in the mean "time we ſhall not permit of his continuing ſuch a "number of armed men on the iſland, but ſhall inſiſt "on their being immediately diſmiſſed."

27th November 1778.

At a Committee, preſent;

The Honourable the Preſident and Mr. Carnac,

Colonel Egerton being with the army, and Mr. Draper indiſpoſed.

Mr. Moſtyn reports that Ragoba is not ſatisfied with the addition made to the 3d article, and wanted to have it ſtipulated, that in caſe the perſons ſpecified therein ſhould decline the charge; the child ſhould then be put under the charge of ſuch perſons as may be agreeable to him (Ragoba) and to the Select Committee.

Appendix. Nos. 124 to 126.

As the dangerous tendency of this clauſe is obvious, by giving Ragoba an abſolute negative in the choice of guardians for the child, and we cannot be too guarded in every ſtipulation that regards its ſafety; it is reſolved at all hazards to reject the propoſed addition: but ſtill, as we are very anxious to have the treaty concluded, and unwilling it ſhould be known at Poonah that any diſagreements ſubſiſt between us and Ragoba; it is agreed to conſent to the following addition being made to the 3d article, which is the furtheſt we can go to ſatisfy Ragoba: and in this place we judge it proper in juſtice to him to declare, that we firmly believe the many objections he has raiſed to the 3d article do not proceed from any evil deſigns againſt the child, but occaſioned entirely by his fears that we ſhould place the child under the charge of Moraba, or ſome of the great officers, which would give them too great an aſcendancy; for if any of them ſhould have the child in their hands they will in fact have the Government.

Further addition to the 3d.

"But in caſe all theſe ſhould decline the truſt, the "child ſhall then be diſpoſed of in ſuch manner as may "be deemed moſt adviſable for his ſecurity, and for the "honour of the contracting parties."

Mr. Moſtyn acquaints us that he delivered the meſſage to Ragoba agreed to yeſterday, as he ſtill hoped the matter would be accommodated, which is approved.

In the afternoon Mr. Sibbald, the Company's Interpreter, was ſent out to Ragoba with the propoſed addition to the article; which after much argument he agreed to, and the neceſſary alterations having been made to the treaty, Ragoba put his Sicca to it this night.

The treaty with Ragoba as finally ſettled and executed is as follows.

THE treaty concluded by Colonel Upton with Sicaram Pundit and Ballajee Pundit, miniſters in behalf of the Peiſhwa and Maratta State, having been violated by thoſe miniſters in almoſt every article, the Governor and Select Committee of Bombay, with the ſanction and concurrence of the Governor General and Council, do hereby engage and agree, in behalf of the aforeſaid Honourable

Appendix. No. 126.

Honourable Company, to aſſiſt Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan to the utmoſt of their power, to put him in poſſeſſion of Poonah, and to place him in the Regency of the Maratta empire, during the minority of Mhadarow Narrain, the infant Peiſhwa; hereby declaring, that the true intent and meaning of this treaty is not to alter the form of Government, or to interrupt the peace between the Honourable Company and the Maratta State; but only to remove the adminiſtration out of the preſent improper hands, and to place in the Regency the perſon who has the juſteſt title to that office.

Article 2d.

Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan, on his part, doth hereby engage and agree to accept the office of Regent, which he is to exerciſe with full power during the minority of the Peiſhwa Mhadarow Narrain; in whoſe name he further engages to continue the Sicca and conduct the Government: but Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan having expreſſed his doubts of the legitimacy of the Peiſhwa Mhadarow Narrain, the Governor and Select Committee of Bombay do hereby engage on Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan his ſtrong ſolicitation, to requeſt explicit orders from the Company, whether, in caſe he ſhould prove to their ſatisfaction that the child is ſuppoſititious, they will place him in the Peiſhwaſhip, which, on ſuch proof, will be his unqueſtionable right; and whether, in caſe the child ſhould prove to be really the ſon of Narrow Row, they will guarantee him an equal diviſion of the Government and country, on the Peiſhwa's attaining to the age of ſeventeen, agreeable to what Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan ſays he is entitled to by his birthright, according to the Gentoo laws.

Article 3d.

The Governor and Select Committee of Bombay do hereby ſtipulate, and Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan for their ſatisfaction, and that his upright intentions may appear manifeſt, doth hereby engage and agree, that the perſon of the Peiſhwa Maderow Narrain ſhall be kept under the charge and cuſtody of ſuch perſons as may be agreeable to the Select Committee, who wiſh that the child may be committed to the charge of Perwettybhoy, if ſhe will undertake the charge; and in ſuch caſe the Matchy of Poorunder where the child is kept muſt be guarded with a party of the Company's troops, and Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan may keep a Chowkey on the outſide of the gate to ſee that no improper perſons be admitted: but no perſon whatever muſt have admittance to the child's preſence without permiſſion of Perwettybhoy. In caſe Perwettybhoy ſhould refuſe to undertake the charge, the child ſhall be put under the care of any of his relations on the mother's ſide; but ſhould all theſe decline the truſt, the child ſhall then be diſpoſed of in ſuch manner as may be deemed moſt adviſable for his ſecurity and for the honour of the contracting parties.

Article 4th.

Morabah Furneeſe, Butchebah Pronder, and Tookajee Holcar, having invited Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan to take upon himſelf the Government as Regent, and promiſed their aſſiſtance, Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan doth hereby engage, upon condition of their performing their promiſes to his and the Select Committee's ſatisfaction, and behaving like faithful obedient ſervants, that he will ſhew favour to them according to their ranks and ſervices in ſettling the offices of Government, and that their perſons and fortunes ſhall be unmoleſted.

Article 5th.

The Governor and Select Committee engage not to interfere in the appointment or nomination of officers to the forts, army, artillery, or revenues, or in the management of the Government; provided nothing be done in breach of any of the articles of the preſent treaty, Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan on his part faithfully promiſing to obſerve the terms mentioned in the circular letter, with reſpect to the perſonal ſafety of thoſe whom he may be of opinion have injured him.

Article 6th.

In conſideration of the aſſiſtance to be afforded by the Honourable Company for placing Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan in the Regency at Poonah, Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan doth hereby engage to confirm and ratify the former treaty concluded with him at Surat the 6th March 1775, and to cede and make over to the Honourable Company for ever the ſeveral places and territories granted by the ſaid Treaty, which were reſtored by the Treaty of Poorunder and Baſſein, and its diſtricts, and the iſland of Kennery, which were not put in poſſeſſion of the Company. The ſeveral acquiſitions which will devolve to the Honourable Company by virtue of this article are as follows:

Baſſein fort and town, and the whole of its diſtricts, and its dependencies in their full extent, according to the juſt and fixed boundaries of that province.

Jamboſer and Orpad, in the ſame full and ample manner as ceded by the Treaty of Surat.

The iſland of Kennery.

An aſſignment upon the Pergunnah of Occlaſeer for the ſum of 75,000 rupees per annum, as ſettled by the 8th article of the Treaty of Surat.

There being alſo ſome ſmall places known by the name of the Outgoms always annexed, and actually making a part of the diſtricts of Salſette, which have been withheld from the Company by the Poonah Miniſters, Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan doth hereby engage and agree that the ſaid Outgoms ſhall be ceded to the Honourable Company: but although the Governor and Select Committee have ever underſtood that Outgoms made a part of the diſtricts of Salſette, yet if the contrary ſhould be made plainly to appear they will give up the claim.

Article 7th.

In addition to the ſeveral grants and ceſſions herein ſpecified, Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan doth hereby engage and promiſe to cede and make over the Pergunnahs of Ahmood and Hanſood, which grants are to be conſidered as an inſtance of his good-will and affection to the Honourable Company. The conditions upon which they were formerly granted not having, as he declares, been fulfilled.

Article 8th.

All the places herein ceded to the Honourable Company are to be conſidered as their ſole right and property from the day this treaty is executed, without any claim of chout to the Maratta Government, or any other demand whatever, and may be taken poſſeſſion of by the Company's people whenever they may think proper; for which purpoſe Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan doth with theſe preſents deliver the neceſſary orders to the Maratta officers to ſurrender the ſaid places. Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan doth further promiſe and engage, that immediately after his taking charge of the regency at Poonah he will execute and deliver to the Government at Bombay regular Sunnuds under the Peiſhwa's Sicca for the ſeveral ceſſions granted to the Honourable Company by this treaty.

Article 9th.

Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan engages to pay and make good the charges and expences of the army and ſtores with which he is now to be aſſiſted, which he hereby faithfully promiſes to make good in ready money as ſoon as the ſituation of his affairs will poſſibly permit; and for the further ſecurity of the Honourable Company he by theſe preſents aſſigns over the Pergunnah of Verſal and the remainder of Occlaſeer, the revenues of which are to be collected by his Aumildars, and paid to the Honourable Company till the amount due for the expences of the army is fully diſcharged; but in caſe of failure

failure therein theſe Purgunnahs are to be put in poſſeſſion of the Company, and the revenues collected by them till the ſaid amount is fully diſcharged, when all right and title thereto on the part of the Honourable Company will not interfere with the ſaid Purgunnahs.

Article 10th.

Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan engages to pay in full for the body of forces, conſiſting of 4,000 men, with which he is to be aſſiſted, the ſum of two lacks and half of rupees per month; which the Governor and Select Committee of Bombay agree to accept without further account, in full of every expence attending the army, and is to commence from the day the forces leave Bombay.

Article 11th.

Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan faithfully promiſes and engages to diſcharge his preſent debt to the Company, as ſoon as the ſtate of his finances will admit, agreeable to an account which will be delivered to him.

Article 12th.

The Engliſh forces are to continue with Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan until the object of this treaty is accompliſhed, which is, to place him in the Regency at Poonah; and when that is effected, they are to be at liberty to return to Bombay. The Company will be at all times ready to aſſiſt Ragonath Row Budjerow Purdhan with forces ſo far as may be conſiſtent with their other engagements, or the ſituation of their own affairs will permit.

Article 13th.

The ſeveral treaties and agreements ſubſiſting between the Government of Bombay and the Maratta Government, are hereby ratified and confirmed, and ſhall be held and continued in as full force as when they were firſt concluded, unleſs otherwiſe provided for in this treaty.

Article 14th.

After the eſtabliſhment of Ragonath Row Budjerow Purdhan in the Regency at Poonah, there ſhall be a firm peace between the Honourable Company and the Maratta Government. Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan engages never to aſſiſt the enemies, or moleſt the dominions of the Company in any part of India; nor make war or commit depredations in the Carnatic, or any other part of the dominions of their ally the Nabob of Arcot. The Governor and Select Committee in like manner engage in behalf of the Honourable Company, not to aſſiſt the enemies of Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan.

Article 15th.

Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan hereby engages and agrees that no European ſettlements ſhall be allowed to be made on the maritime coaſts, or in any other part of the Maratta dominions, without the conſent of the Company, or of their repreſentative, being previouſly obtained; and that no manner of intercourſe or connection ſhall be maintained between the Maratta Government and the French nation, any failure in which ſtipulation ſhall be conſidered as a breach of the alliance between the Maratta Government and the Honourable Company.

Article 16th.

Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan doth hereby ſtipulate and engage that the Engliſh ſhall enjoy all their former privileges and freedom of trade in the Maratta dominions without interruption, and he further engages to give all poſſible encouragement to the Honourable Company's trade, and to promote as far as he can, an excluſive vend to the Engliſh for European commodities in the Maratta dominions; but the Honourable Company will make no ſettlement therein without permiſſion from Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan.

Article 17th.

If any article of the preſent treaty ſhould interfere with any engagement formed by the Governor General and Council, not yet known to the Governor and Select Committee of Bombay ſuch article may be liable to be altered or amended, as may be neceſſary. Appendix, No. 127.

The foregoing articles having been mutually agreed to by the Governor and Select Committee of Bombay, on the part of the Honourable Company and Ragonath Row Badjerow Purdhan, the contracting parties have interchangeably affixed their hands and ſeals, and the ſeal of the Honourable Company in Bombay Caſtle, the day and year above written.

APPENDIX, No. 127.

Bombay, 7th December 1778.

The Diary and Proceedings of John Carnac Eſquire, Colonel Charles Egerton, and Thomas Moſtyn Eſquire; appointed by the Honourable the Preſident and Select Committee of Bombay a Committee to accompany Ragonath Row to Poonah.

A PACKET from the Honourable the Select Committee directed to John Carnac Eſquire, Colonel Charles Egerton, and Thomas Moſtyn Eſquire, the Committee proceeding to Poonah, having this day been delivered to Meſſrs. Carnac and Moſtyn, they embarked on board the yatch for Panwell, in order to meet Ragoba, and proceed with him from thence to join the army under the command of Colonel Egerton, now on its march towards Bhore Gautt. Monday, 7th.

Landed at Panwell at ſix A. M. and hearing that Ragonath Row had paſſed that place in his way from Callian, determined alſo to proceed with the utmoſt expedition; the want of bullocks, &c. for the tranſport of our baggage, prevents our ſetting out this day; but expecting a ſupply from the commiſſary of the army, hope to be able to proceed early to-morrow. Learnt that the army was laſt night at Coyoke: the inhabitants of Panwell had moſtly deſerted with their effects. Tueſday, 8th.

Burwa, 9th December.

Proceeded to Burwa; where finding that Ragonath Row was up in the fort of Purbull, where he had been three days, ſent him a meſſage acquainting him with our arrival. He ſent word in return that he ſhould come down to-morrow morning: that Amrut Row with all his baggage, guns, &c. were ordered to march from Panwell to Burwa, and when they arrived he would accompany us to the army. Wedneſday, 9th.

At eight P. M. received a letter from Amrut Row directed to Mr. Carnac, wherein he informed him, he had his father's orders to march and join him at Panwell, but the want of bullocks for the tranſport of his baggage had prevented him; that the bullocks which he had hired had been taken for our army; that he was endeavouring to procure others, and would march to join him to-morrow morning. A village near the fort of Purbull deſerted.

Chintoo Wittol waited on us, and acquainted us in the name of Ragonath Row, that he requeſted we would remain at Burwa this day; that to-morrow he would certainly come down and ſettle with us about proceeding to the army: though our preſent delays do not appear in the leaſt to retard the marching of the army, yet in purſuance to the injunctions of the Honourable the Select Committee to expedite as much as poſſible our march to Poonah, it was thought fit to avail ourſelves of this opportunity to urge to Ragonath Row the neceſſity of this point; Thurſday, 10th.

Appendix. No. 127.

point; and therefore a letter was written by Mr. Carnac in return to this meſſage, acquainting him, that from his meſſage of yeſterday it was hoped he would have come down this morning, and therefore that he (Mr. Carnac) had propoſed to proceed to Chowke this afternoon; but that in conſequence of his meſſage by Chintoo Wittol, that he would certainly come down to-morrow, and deſiring he would wait till then, he had determined to remain where he was, but earneſtly entreated he would loſe no time, as his affairs required the utmoſt diſpatch; and any further delays might be attended with inconveniencies by giving his enemies time to ſtrengthen themſelves, that he therefore depended on having the pleaſure of ſeeing him to-morrow morning.

This afternoon, Amrut Row came from Panwell on a viſit. The receipt of his letter was mentioned to him, and he was deſired to be expeditious in forwarding the baggage of his father Ragonath Row from Panwell. He ſaid it would be here to-morrow, and that he ſhould return inſtantly for that purpoſe.

Friday, 11th. At about one, P. M. Ragonath Row came to us.—After previous complimentary diſcourſe, the utility of his ſpeedy appearance above the Gautts being repreſented to him, he acquieſced therein; and it was ſettled, that as ſoon as Amrut Row had joined him, he would proceed directly with us to Condolah, and there remain till the army and heavy baggage had come up, and act in purſuance to the advice we might give him, relative to the remaining point of reaching Poonah. He deſired we would proceed on to Colipore, where he would follow us to-morrow, with Amrut Row, whom he expected at Burwa this morning. In conſequence of this, we determine to proceed on to Chowke, in our way to Colipore. Arrived in the evening, and found it almoſt deſerted.—Many complaints made of our Sepoys plundering.

Saturday, 12th. At about two, P. M. decamped from Chowke, where Ragonath Row was juſt arrived, and proceeded on to Colipore. At half paſt ten at night, a meſſage came from Ragonath Row, informing us that ſome of his cannon and heavy baggage not being come up, would prevent him from proceeding on to Colipore to-morrow. Colipore chiefly deſerted, and complaints brought of our Sepoys plundering.

Colipore, 13th December 1778.

Sunday, 13th. This morning intelligence was received that Ragoo Ram of Vambory, Tapkeer, and Bandy, left Poonah laſt Monday, with 1,500 horſe and 3,000 foot, in order to come down Dew Gautt, towards Tully Gonſalah, which is about twelve coſs to the ſouthward of Bhore Gautt. As it ſeems probable that the enemies of Ragonath Row, if they mean to act with vigour, ſhould advance a body of men into the Conkan, as well to diſtreſs us for proviſions on our march, by cutting off our communication with Panwell, as to endeavour to ſeize the perſon of Ragonath Row, whom they may have heard has not yet joined our army, we think it requiſite to apprize him of this intelligence, and deſire that he will immediatly move forwards to the army at Campoly. It is alſo neceſſary that Colonel Egerton ſhould be acquainted with the receipt of this intelligence, and to direct Lieutenant Harvey at Panwell to be on his guard, and to have boats ready for ſhipping off any ſtores at a moment's warning.

From John Carnac, Eſquire, to Ragonath Row.

I received your meſſage laſt night, acquainting me, that ſome of your heavy cannon being ſtill behind, you ſhould not be able to leave Chowke this day, and requeſted I would therefore remain at Colipore till you could join me.

It is neceſſary to inform you, that I this morning received intelligence, that Ragoo Ram of Vambory, with 1,500 horſe and 3,000 foot, together with Tapkeer and Bandy, left Poonah on Monday laſt, with an intention of coming down Dar Gautt, into the Conkan. As your perſonal ſafety is the firſt thing that muſt be attended to by your friends, I muſt take the liberty to adviſe you to ſecure it, by joining the Engliſh army at Campoly as ſoon as poſſible. In full confidence that you will follow my advice, I ſhall immediately proceed towards that place, and hope at fartheſt to have the pleaſure of ſeeing you there to-morrow.

Colipore, 13th December 1778. J. Carnac.

To Colonel Charles Egerton, Commander in Chief of the Engliſh Forces, Campoly.

Sir,

Meſſrs. Carnac and Moſtyn have directed me to acquaint you, that intelligence has been received this morning, of the march of 1,500 horſe and 3,000 foot from Poonah, on Monday laſt, with the intention of coming down Dew Gautt, towards Gonſalah, about twelve coſs to the ſouthward of Bhore Gautt. If the enemies of Ragonath Row mean to oppoſe him with vigour, it ſeems probable that they ſhould advance a body of men into the Conkan; and therefore they have thought it requiſite to appriſe you of this intelligence having been received, that you may take ſuch meaſures in conſequence as may appear to you expedient.

They further direct me to inform you, that they mean to proceed from hence this day, towards Campoly; and that they hope to be able to join you, with Ragonath Row, to-morrow or next day at fartheſt.

I am,

Colipore, 13th December 1778. Your obedient humble Servant, W. G. Farmer, Secretary to the Council.

To Lieutenant Harvey, at Panwell.

Sir,

Meſſrs. Carnac and Moſtyn have directed me to acquaint you, that intelligence has been received of the march of a body of troops from Poonah towards the Conkan; and they have thought fit to adviſe you of this, that you may be on you guard, and have boats in readineſs to tranſport to Billiapore the detachment with you, and ſuch ſtores as may be at Panwell.

Should not the armed boats which you mentioned to them when at Panwell, have yet been ſent you; you will pleaſe immediately to forward a copy of this letter to Bombay, as an inſtance of the expediency of its being ſent forthwith. I am, Sir, Colipore, 13th December 1778. Your moſt obedient Servant, W. G. Farmer, Secretary to the Council.

Hull, 13th December 1778.

At ſix in the evening arrived at a tope near the village of Hull, about three miles from Campoly. The inhabitants of the village all fled.

No anſwer being yet received from Ragonath Row to the letter addreſſed him by Mr. Carnac, and, contrary to our hopes, no appearance of his advancing this evening nearer to our army under Colonel Egerton, the following reflections occur on the retardment that ſeems ſtudiouſly to have been made of his junction with our forces. There is no point which his enemies have ſo ſtudiouſly aimed at as to poſſeſs themſelves of his perſon, for many evident motives. In the ſituation which Nanah Furneeze appears to be, to us it ſeems probable, that he would attempt this as his laſt and moſt certain reſource for retaining the government, and for defeating the hopes of the party that may be formed in favour of Ragonath Row. It ſeems beyond a doubt, that he receives certain intelligence of every thing that paſſes relative to Ragoba, and perhaps ſome of the perſons in his confidence may be engaged with Nanah Furneeze to embrace any opportunity to ſeize and carry him off. It muſt be owned, that if the conduct of Ragonath Row has been regulated by ſuch treacherous adviſers, it concurs ſtrongly with other circumſtances, to warrant the ſuppoſition that a deſign is formed for ſeizing him. He was firſt led to Callian; from thence to the fort of Purbull, where he remained four days. When he came down, he promiſed promiſed to leave his heavy baggage behind him, and proceed directly to our army. This was almoſt a propoſal of his own. The next day he ſent word, that one of his heavy cannon being retarded, he ſhould remain at Chowke a day longer; and now, notwithſtanding the advice that was this day ſent him, he ſtill remains at Chowke, which is at leaſt eleven miles from our army at Campoly, a diſtance that renders it impracticable to afford a timely aid, ſhould any deſign be formed by his enemies to poſſeſs themſelves of his perſon. Theſe ſeveral circumſtances concurring with the advice received at noon, of the march of a body of men on Monday laſt towards the Conkan, render it our duty to take the beſt means in our power for effectually ſecuring the perſon of Ragonath Row, whoſe ſeizure would be equally diſgraceful, diſtreſſing, and diſadvantageous to us, in the preſent ſtate of our connections with him. This may be done, we apprehend, by advancing a further guard inſtantly for his protection, and acquainting him inſtantly with our apprehenſions and our intentions to advance this guard. It was therefore reſolved to ſend Mr. W. G. Farmer directly to Colonel Egerton, at Campoly, to ſtate our ideas to him, and recommend it to him, to order a further guard of not leſs than 300 Sepoys, to be immediately advanced to Chowke, for the protection of Ragoba. A meſſage was alſo ſent to Ragonath Row as above ſtated.

At ten at night Mr. Farmer returned from Campoly, and informed us, that having acquainted Colonel Egerton fully with our opinions, as above ſet forth, the Colonel returned for anſwer, that the army was but juſt come to its ground, and that it would be harraſſing the men too much to march them back ten or eleven miles to Chowke; that he apprehended the guard now with Ragonath Row was ſufficient for the ſecurity of his perſon, and if it was not thought ſufficient, it would be much eaſier for Meſſrs. Carnac and Moſtyn to advance the guard with them, than to ſend one from the army.

Monday, 14th. No anſwer being yet received from Ragoba to the letter ſent him yeſterday, Mr. Sibbald was ſent at about nine A. M. to repreſent ſuitably to him our apprehenſions of what might poſſibly be the deſigns of his enemies; and to engage farther to him our wiſhes, that he would effectually ſecure his perſon by advancing nearer to our army.

Received the following letter at nine A. M.:

To W. G. Farmer, Eſquire, Secretary to the Committee appointed to accompany Ragonath Row.

Sir,

I am directed by Colonel Egerton to acquaint you, that he has received your letter of this date, and that he is much obliged to Meſſrs. Carnac and Moſtyn for the intelligence they have ſent him. He thinks there is nothing to be apprehended from any oppoſition the enemies of Ragonath Row may attempt againſt him in the Conkan; but he will however take ſuch meaſures in conſequence as to him ſhall appear neceſſary.

The Colonel is very glad to hear he may ſo ſhortly expect the pleaſure of ſeeing Ragobah and Meſſrs. Carnac and Moſtyn, at Campoly.

I am, Sir,

Campoly, 13th December 1778. Your obedient humble Servant,

M. Murray,
Secretary to Colonel Egerton,
Commander in Chief.

At about ten A. M. an anſwer was received from Ragonath Row to the letter written him yeſterday, of which the following is a tranſlate:

To John Carnac, Eſquire.

After compliments:

You ſent me a letter, in which you mention news being received of the march of the horſe, &c. of the Bharobies to the Conkan, and recommend me to move on to Campoly. I alſo got intelligence that their horſe was come to the Gautt; but now they are gone back: ſhould they perchance come down, I will ſeize them; there is nothing to fear. I have great trouble to get bullocks and people for my cannon and baggage; but I will uſe my beſt endeavours, and to-morrow or Tueſday will arrive at Campoly: you will pleaſe to ſend me 300 men. Why ſhould I write more?

13th December.

At about ſix in the evening Mr. Sibbald returned from Ragonath Row, and brought an anſwer in ſubſtance the ſame as the foregoing letter. He further expreſſed himſelf much obliged for the attention ſhewn to his ſafety; and though, by the detachment with him and his own guards, he apprehended no danger, yet if convenient he would farther wiſh to have the force ſent him propoſed by Mr. Carnac. Mr. Sibbald had perſuaded him to advance beyond Colipore; as he is now within about a mile from hence, it does not appear requiſite to advance any further guard for his protection.

At about eight this evening the following letters were received under cover, to Mr. Wm. Lewis, from the camp at Campoly:

To William Lewis, Eſquire, at Poonah.

Sir,

This is purpoſely to encloſe you duplicate of a letter to the Honourable Select Committee, together with one wrote yourſelf on the 31ſt ultimo.

Since my laſt, I have left Ballagee's territories, and am arrived within four coſs of Seronge, which I leave upon the right, and proceed towards Bhopall.

I have met with no material interruption ſince my laſt letter: upon the day of quitting Ballagee's territories, his troops made their appearance, and made repeated attempts to carry off the baggage, &c. in all which they were however baffled; for knowing the deceitful character of the Maratta, I had, notwithſtanding his peaceful and amicable profeſſions, obſerved the moſt particular precautions againſt any treacherous deſigns he might intend to me.

The nature of the ſervice I am engaged in requiring me to avoid all unneceſſary delays, I am proceeding towards Narbuddah, and ſhall at preſent defer giving the chaſtiſement due to Ballagee's conduct.

Camp, 4 coſs from Seronge, 12th Nov. 1778. I am, Sir, Your moſt obedient Servant, Thomas Goddard.

To Captain James Stewart.

Honoured Sir,

A letter came from Goa, dated the 3d of October, written by William Bolts, and directyd to Monſieur St. Lubin: he mentioned in his letter, he ſent what news he could pick up, viz. the French have acknowledged the avowed independency of the Americans, but Spain will not join them; Pruſſia has declared war with Auſtria for their pretenſions in Bavaria; the Ottoman Porte has declared war with Ruſſia; ſome ſay 16, others 22, ſhips of war have ſailed from Toulon, which ſome ſay are deſtined for America, others ſay for India; that Hyder Ally has given him a factory at Billeapatam, one at Mangalore, and one at Canvaar, in the neighbourhood of Goa; the Nabob of Scindy has given him a factory at Tattah and Shabunda; he deſires St. Lubin to acquaint Nanah Furneeze that he was very willing to ſerve Nanah if he pleaſes, in making an union between the Poonah Durbar and Hyder Ally; and promiſes the utmoſt ſecrecy, fidelity, and obedience to Nanah's command and inſtructions; he alſo mentions, that if Nanah does not employ him in this affair, he will ſhortly return to Bombay. The Eaſt India Company ſend out 21 ſhips under convoy this year, and two regiments of infantry are deſtined for Bombay: he deſires St. Lubin to ſend him Nanah's determination concerning the affair of Gogah, but he is not anxious about it, becauſe Scindy and Dumaon will be ſufficient for him in this part of India. Thomas Barnes explained this letter to the Durbar, and gave me this extract.

Appendix, No. 127.

Appendix. No 127.

To the Honourable William Hornby, Eſquire, Preſident, &c. Select Committee, Bombay.

Gentlemen,

The occaſion of the preſent diſpatch is to forward you a letter from Colonel Goddard, ſent under cover to the Reſident at Poonah; as a letter he writes at the ſame time to Mr. Lewis informs us generally of the contents of his diſpatch to you, and as we have not your expreſs permiſſion to open letters directed to you, we have forborn to take that liberty at preſent, but beg leave to ſubmit to you the propriety of having this permiſſion in future, as a ſpeedy knowledge of the contents of advices both from the Governor General and Council, and from Colonel Goddard, may hereafter be very important to us in our negotiations.

We have alſo thought fit to forward to you without loſs of time, copy of a letter from Dadajee Adowjee at Poonah to Captain Stewart; becauſe as it ſeems this Mr. W^m Bolts means ſhortly to proceed to Bombay, you will be able to judge of the danger of admitting to an Engliſh port a man who under neutral colours appears to be immediately connected with our moſt dangerous enemies, both in Europe and this country: the mode in which this intelligence was obtained by Dadajee Adowjee appears to be through Thomas Barnes, an Engliſhman who has been long in the ſervice of the Poonah Government, and is uſually employed by them to explain intercepted letters written by Europeans.

Although we arrived at Panwell ſo long ago as the 8th inſtant, yet owing to the various delays of Rogonath Row, whom we wiſhed to keep as near to us as poſſible, we have not yet joined Colonel Egerton: as theſe delays have in no ſhape we believe retarded the march of the army, they cannot have had any material conſequence; but as the appearance of Ragonath Row above the Gautts muſt tend to encourage his partizans, and to expedite the accompliſhment of what a the Committee have in charge, by inducing thoſe partizans either to join him or to act openly and deciſively in his favour, we have never ceaſed to urge to him the propriety of proceeding expeditiouſly; and having once brought him to conſent to leave his cannon and heavy baggage to come on at leiſure, we hope in a day or two to be able to adviſe you of his being at Condolah.

The 13th inſtant we received intelligence of the march of 1500 horſe and 3000 foot from Poonah towards the Conkan. If the enemies of Ragonath Row mean to act vigorouſly, it ſeemed to us they would endeavour to intercept our communication with Bombay, as well in the hope of diſtreſſing us by cutting off our ſupplies of proviſions and ſtores, as perhaps with a view to attempt ſomething againſt the perſon of Ragonath Row, whom they muſt have known went firſt to Callian, and afterwards up to the fort of Purbule; we therefore adviſed Colonel Egerton of the receipt of this intelligence, and have perſuaded Ragonath Row to advance nearer to our army: There has yet been no advice of theſe troops having entered the Conkan; on the contrary, it appears to us by a letter yeſterday from Ragonath Row, that they had advanced to the Gautt, but retired again.

Tueſday, 15th. Dadojee Adowjee alſo writes to Mr. Lewis under the 11th inſtant, that Sacaram and Nanah have diſpatched one Amrut Row to Sattarah, with orders to proclaim a new Rajah, and to procure from him a Succa to Mhadoo Row Narrain.

P. S. We are juſt adviſed that two ſix pounders were yeſterday got up the Gautts by hand, and are now with the erachment at Condolah under Captain Stewart.

Campoly, 15th December 1778.

At ſix in the evening arrived at the camp at Campoly The Secretary to the Committee ſent the following ſummons to Colonel Egerton and Mr. Moſtyn:

To Colonel Charles Egerton, and Thomas Moſtyn, Eſquire.

Gentlemen,

I am directed by Mr. Carnac to requeſt you will pleaſe to meet him at his tent to morrow at ten o'clock, in order to open and peruſe a packet from the Honourable the Select Committee of Bombay, addreſſed to John Carnac, Eſquire, Colonel Charles Egerton, and Thomas Moſtyn, Eſquire, the Committee proceeding to Poonah.

I am, with reſpect,
Gentlemen,
Your moſt obedient humble ſervant,
W. G. Farmer,
Secretary to the Committee.

Camp at Campoly,
15th December 1778.

Received a letter from Dadajee Adowjee at Poonah to Captain Stewart, dated the 14th inſtant, forwarding one from the Nabob of Tall Bopaal to Mr. Lewis, which he could not read; but that he had learned that Colonel Goddard was arrived at Tall Bopaal, and had ſtaid there eight days; that the 13th inſtant a new Rajah was proclaimed at Sattarah, but that the Sicca was not yet arrived; that ſome perſon had deſired him to acquaint Mr. Lewis that Rogojee Angria, who was a relation of Scindia's, and entirely devoted to the Miniſters, intended, to offer Ragoba 1000 horſe for his ſervice, with a view to betray him.

The letter from the Nabob of Tall Bopaal mentioned the arrival of the Bengal army in the diſtrict of Bopaal, and that agreeable to what had been written him, he (the Nabob) ſhould furniſh the Colonel with grain, and afford him any other friendly aid in his power.

In conſequence of the contents of the letter received yeſterday from Dadajee Adowjee, Mr. Carnac at nine A. M. ſent Mr. Sibbald to Ragoba, to adviſe him of the intelligence received relative to the treacherous deſigns of Angria; to caution him againſt thoſe deſigns; and to adviſe him to advance nearer to our army. Wedneſday, 16th.

Select Committee.

To John Carnac, Eſquire, Colonel Charles Egerton, and Thomas Moſtyn, Eſquire.

Gentlemen,

You are well informed of the ſeveral ſteps that have led to the concluſion of a new treaty with Ragonath Row, by which the Honourable Company are bound to aſſiſt him with a body of forces, to conduct him to Poonah, and to place him in the Regency of the Maratta empire.

As the welfare, and we may almoſt ſay the exiſtence, of this Preſidency, will depend on the ſucceſs of the meaſure we have embarked in, we have thought it proper to commit to you the execution of our plan; and you are appointed a committee, and by the accompanying commiſſion veſted with the neceſſary powers to concert and conduct all political and military operations in the courſe of this expedition; relying upon your zeal, addreſs, and judgment, to bring the buſineſs to a ſpeedy and happy concluſion.

Upon receipt hereof, Meſſrs. Carnac and Moſtyn are to proceed with all convenient expedition to Panwell, where the army intended for this ſervice is now encamped, under the command of Colonel Egerton. Ragoba proceeds by the way of Tannah; and as ſoon as he has joined the army, we direct that you urge him to march without loſs of time to Poonah, a meaſure which we truſt will be effected with little difficulty or oppoſition, as the paſſage of the Ghauts is already ſecured by Captain Stewart's diviſion; and we have ſtrong reaſons to believe that a very general diſpoſition prevails amongſt the Maratta Officers and people in favour of Ragoba and his pretenſions.

You will not fail ſtrongly to inculcate to Ragoba the neceſſity of his making himſelf maſter of Poonah without a moment's loſs of time, and take the utmoſt care to keep him ſteady to this point, which ought to be and muſt be his firſt object; for according to the treaty we are only bound to put him in poſſeſſion of Poonah, and to place him in the Regency of the Maratta empire; and it is equally for his intereſt and the Company's, that it ſhould be accompliſhed in the moſt expeditious manner poſſible.

We ſhall deliver to you herewith a number of circular letters under Ragoba's Sicca, and the Company's ſeal, and a tranſlation thereof for your notice. Theſe are to be ſent to the principal officers, and diſperſed over the country, that our intentions in bringing over Ragoba may be made known to all ranks of people; and if after this declaration your march ſhould be oppoſed by the Poonah Miniſters, or their adherents, we hereby authorize you to repel force by force, and to conduct Ragoba to Poonah againſt all oppoſition.

If overtures ſhould be made on the march to Poonah by any of the Maratta Chiefs or Miniſters, you will aſſiſt Ragoba with your beſt advice, and promote to the utmoſt of your power any accommodation that you may judge favourable to our views, which are to connect Ragoba with men of influence and eſtimation in their own country, and well inclined to the Honourable Company; and in this light we muſt regard Morabah Furneeſe, Tookajee Holcar, and Butchebah Pronder, in the foremoſt rank.

We flatter ourſelves that from the experience Ragoba has had of our attachment, and his confidence in your judgment and regard to his intereſt, that he will pay great attention to your advice upon all occaſions; and the better to ſecure your influence we recommend to you to cultivate his good opinion by every conſiſtent method. We are likewiſe very earneſt in our injunctions that you uſe every means in your power to conciliate the minds of the people in general to the Engliſh, and to the undertaking we are engaged in: for which purpoſe no violence muſt be offered to the perſons or property of thoſe who remain quiet in their habitations, and every act that can give offence to the religious ſcruples of the Gentoos muſt be carefully avoided.

After Ragoba is put in poſſeſſion of Poonah, you are to ſee him placed in the Regency, and the Sicca put into his hands, with all the uſual forms and ceremonies, and upon the terms ſtipulated in the 2d article, from which we cannot admit the ſmalleſt deviation; our part of the treaty will then be performed; but here will begin a taſk, in which the utmoſt delicacy and judgment will be neceſſary on your parts, to ſecure on a firm and permanent footing the advantages by which we were attracted to this expedition, and on which the ſafety of this Preſidency will ſo much depend, namely, the entire ſubverſion of the party in the French intereſt, and filling the offices of truſt under the Poonah Government with perſons well diſpoſed towards the Honourable Company.

By the copy of our treaty with Ragoba, now put into your hands, you will ſee the limitations we are under with regard to our interference, in the appointment or nomination of the officers of Government. You are well acquainted how much Ragoba's jealouſy was excited by our ſtipulations in favour of Morabah Furneeze, Butcheba Pronder, and Tookajee Holcar, which you will ſee duly performed; and for the reſt, it muſt be your rule, by a line of judicious conduct, to make the perſons you approve of, the men of Ragoba's own choice. We could wiſh, and we imagine, Morabah will expect to be Ragoba's Dewan, though it is not improbable that Ragoba may for ſome time at leaſt conduct the executive part of Government himſelf, but this is entering upon a matter ſo much depending upon future circumſtances, that that we ſhall wave ſaying any thing further at preſent, as we ſhall have ſufficient time to give you more explicit inſtructions when we are better informed.

It will be particularly requiſite, that Ragoba ſhould, as ſoon as poſſible, place the forts in the Conkan, and upon the ſea coaſt, under the charge of perſons we can depend upon for obedience to his orders, and that will oppoſe the admiſſion of the French into any part of the Maratta dominions; on which head you muſt deſire Ragoba to give them immediate and particular inſtructions, according to the terms of the treaty.

The perſonal ſafety of the young Peiſhwa is a point wherein our own reputation, and the honour of the nation are ſo deeply concerned, that we give it you in charge with the moſt implicit confidence of having our intentions faithfully executed, and that every precaution be taken your prudence can ſuggeſt, or the treaty will warrant, to prevent any poſſibility of injury happening to him.

The other parts of the treaty that will reſt with you to ſee executed, are to receive from Ragoba the monthly ſtipend for the payment of the forces, and the Sunnuds under the Peiſhwa's ſeal, for the ſeveral places ceded to the Honourable Company, which we ſhall rely on your care to ſee punctually performed as ſoon as Rogoba's circumſtances will permit.

As it is highly proper that this garriſon, conſidering the ſtate of affairs with France, ſhould be in a reſpectable ſituation, we recommend it to you, and hereby give you a diſcretional power, to return to Bombay ſuch part of the forces as you may think can be ſpared, whenever you may judge the objects of this expedition are brought to ſuch a point as to admit of the force being leſſened with propriety.

We recommend and enjoin as a point very eſſential to the ſucceſs of this expedition, that the utmoſt harmony and good underſtanding be obſerved among yourſelves; and in order to avoid all miſtakes or miſconceptions, we think it proper to deſcribe the following line between the powers of the committee and the commanding officer, which muſt be ſtrictly obſerved by both.

All political intercourſe with Ragoba muſt be confined entirely to the committee, who are to have the ſole management of all matters of negociation.

The execution of the general plan of the expedition, being as before mentioned entruſted to the committee, it is our intention and order that the deciſion and determination on points that may appear to them conducive to the accompliſhment thereof, ſhall reſt ſolely with the committee, and the commanding officer hereby enjoined punctually to comply with all requiſitions made to him in writing by the committee on all ſuch points.

On the other hand, the committee is hereby expreſsly prohibited from interfering in the detail of the duty of the army, or from preſcribing to the commanding officer, in reſpect to the mode of march or encampment, or the method of carrying any military meaſure into execution, all of which are the diſtinct province of the commanding officer.

We have given orders to the commanding officer agreeable to the above, and directed him to appoint a guard, and treat the committee with all proper reſpect.

The correſpondence with this Board muſt be conducted ſolely by the committee, who muſt likewiſe adviſe the Governor General and Council of all material tranſactions. Mr. Lewis left the Company's cypher buried at Poonah, but we now furniſh you with a copy of one we framed for our correſpondence with the late Colonel Leſlie, which will ſerve your purpoſe till your arrival at Poonah.

A regular diary muſt be kept of all your proceedings and the motions of the army, in which every circumſtance of moment muſt be punctually recorded, and two copies thereof delivered to us on your return.

Your expences will be defrayed by the Honourable Company, and we permit you to keep a table at their charge ſuitable to your ſtation.

The accounts of your paymaſter and commiſſary of the army muſt be ſubject to your ſuperintendence and controul, and you will take care they are forwarded to the Preſidency, at ſuch ſtated times as you may judge reaſonable. The paymaſter has been furniſhed with a lack and a half of rupees; and ſhould that ſum be expended before you can obtain a ſupply of money from Ragoba, we have given authority to thoſe officers to paſs their neceſſary drafts upon us, ſubject to your approbation.

Mr. Wm Gamul Farmer is appointed your Secretary and Maratta Tranſlator, for both which offices he is to be paid an allowance of three hundred rupees per month. Mr. James Rivett is ordered to the aſſiſtance of Mr. Farmer, in his buſineſs of Secretary, and is likewiſe to act as chaplain to the army.

Mr. James Sibbald, who is under order for an embaſſy to Hyder Ally, is to act as your Interpreter, and is to be diſpatched to Hyder's court from Poonah, whither we ſhall ſend his inſtructions in due time.

We wiſh you all poſſible ſucceſs and honour in the diſcharge of your important commiſſion, and are,

Gentlemen,

your moſt obedient

Bombay Caſtle, 5th December 1778. humble ſervants,

Circular Letter from Ragonath Row Budjerow Punt Purdhan.

To all the Mootſeddees, Sirdars, Jaghiredaars, and ſubjects of the Maratta State.

You will no doubt hear with pleaſure that the Government of Bombay, with the ſanction and concurrence of the Governor General and Council of Calcutta, have now determined to ſupport my cauſe with vigour, and with the aſſiſtance of the Almighty to place me in the Regency of the Maratta empire, which you all know is my juſt right. The Governor and Select Committee have been moved to this reſolution in my favour by the unjuſt conduct of the preſent adminiſtration at Poonah, who have violated, in almoſt every article, the treaty concluded with the Honourable Company in March 1776, and by their deſire to reſtore, through my hand, peace and good order to the Maratta empire, which has been ſo long involved in trouble and confuſion, and experienced ſo many calamities by miſmanagement and diſcord.

That no officer or ſubject of the Maratta State may be deterred from following the dictates of his duty, by any ſuſpicions of the rectitude of my intentions, I have in the moſt ſolemn manner granted this circular letter; and declare thus in the face of the world, that my only view is to remove the Government out of the reſt of improper hands, and to take upon myſelf the full power of Regent, during the minority of the young Peiſhwa Madoo Row Narrain, without doing injury to any one who does not oppoſe my juſt deſigns, or to endeavour to abſcond: and ſhall bury in oblivion all paſt injuries from every perſon whatever, unleſs provoked by any new acts of enmity after this notice.

I now call upon and require you immediately to join my forces and the Engliſh army who are with me, and to attend me to Poonah, where I hope, by the Divine Bleſſing, to ſettle the Government upon a firm and final footing, and to reſtore the Maratta empire to its former happineſs and ſplendour.

In further confirmation of what is herein contained, the Honourable Governor and Select Committee of Bombay have cauſed the ſeal of the Company to be affixed.

A true copy.

Edwd Ravenſcroft,
Secretary to the Select Committee.

Purſuant to the reſolutions of the committee this day, the ſecretary wrote the following letter to the Commander in Chief of the army.

To Colonel Charles Egerton, Commander in Chief of the Engliſh forces at Campoly.

Sir,

I am directed by the committee appointed to proceed with Ragonath Row, to Poonah, to encloſe you a copy of the commiſſion from the Honourable the Select Committee at Bombay, veſting them with the neceſſary powers to concert and conduct all political and military operations in the courſe of the preſent expedition; and to require you to publiſh the ſaid commiſſion in the general orders to the army under your command.

I am, with reſpect,

Sir,

your moſt obedient humble ſervant,

Campoly, December 16th 1778. W. G. Farmer, Secretary to the Committee.

APPENDIX, No. 128.

Extract of Secret Letter from Bombay to the Court of Directors, dated 29th December 1778.

OUR addreſs of the 31ſt of July will have informed you how matters then ſtood with the Poonah Government. In purſuance of the reſolutions then communicated, we, on the 12th of October, on the motion of Mr. Carnac, gave orders for proceeding forthwith in the execution of our plan for reſtoring Ragoba. The limits of an overland addreſs will not permit us to enter into a detail of the ſeveral circumſtances of our preparations and negociations, which will be communicated by the firſt ſea conveyance; it will be ſufficient to acquaint you, that on the 25th ultimo we concluded a treaty with Ragoba, by which the Honourable Company were bound to aſſiſt him with a body of 4000 men, to conduct him to Poonah, and to place him in the Regency of the Maratta Government, during the minority of the infant Peiſhwa.

We have the honour to encloſe a copy of the treaty, and of the manifeſto publiſhed when our forces landed on the Continent, which we hope will be approved by you; and we beg leave moſt heartily to congratulate you on the proſpect of retrieving thoſe valuable acquiſitions loſt by the treaty of Poorunder, and of reſtoring ſuch a Government at Poonah as will greatly contribute to the general ſecurity of your poſſeſſions in India.

According to the plan we had concerted, a detachment of grenadier Sepoys was ſent off the 22d of laſt month, under the command of Captain Stewart, who fortunately ſecured the paſſage of the Ghauts without oppoſition on the 25th, and took poſt there; the remainder of the forces left Bombay the 23d, and took poſſeſſion of the fort of Bellapore, which guards the entrance of Panwell river, where they were joined by Colonel Egerton, who took on him the chief command of the army.

The force detached on this ſervice conſiſts of 172 artillery, 549 European infantry, and 2689 Sepoys, all officers included, together with 500 artillery Laſcars; which we truſt, all circumſtances conſidered, will be able to bring the buſineſs to a happy concluſion.

By our lateſt intelligence from the army, we find them, at the 26th of this month, at Captain Stewart's poſt at Condilah, on the ſummit of the Gauts. They have hitherto met with no oppoſition; but we are adviſed that the Miniſters are aſſembling an army to oppoſe their march, when they make their appearance about the Gauts.

Ragoba left Bombay a few days after our forces, and is now with them, and a ſmall body of his own troops at Condilah. We hear he is already joined by a party of horſe, and we flatter ourſelves, that when he is a little farther advanced, a number of the principal Maratta officers will declare in his favour.

The management of the expedition, and the ſettlement of the Government at Poonah, is entruſted to a committee, conſiſting of Meſſrs. Carnac, Egerton and Moſtyn, who are entruſted to conduct Ragoba to Poonah with all poſſible expedition, and to place him in the Regency, on the terms mentioned in the treaty. They are then inſtructed to uſe their utmoſt judgment and addreſs in ſettling the Government upon a firm and permanent footing, and effecting the ſubverſion of the party in the French intereſt, and filling the offices of truſt with perſons well diſpoſed towards the Honourable Company. Appendix. N°s. 128&129.

We have the moſt ſanguine hopes of a happy iſſue to this undertaking, as we have ſtrong reaſons to believe a very general diſpoſition prevails amongſt the Maratta officers and people in favour of Ragoba and of his pretenſions; and the fall of Pondicherry muſt damp the expectations of Nannah Furneeſe, of aſſiſtance from the French. The approach of the Bengal detachment will alſo greatly diſtract the efforts of that party, in the ſame degree that it will give encouragement to the friends of Ragoba; and if the enterprize ſhould prove more difficult than we expected, we ſhall be able, with their aſſiſtance, to overcome all oppoſition.

APPENDIX, No. 129.

Extract of Bombay Select Conſultations, September 5th 1778.

SIGNED the following letter to Sir Edward Vernon:—

To Sir Edward Vernon, Knight, Commodore, and Commander in Chief of His Majeſty's ſhips in the Eaſt Indies.

Sir,

We were extremely concerned to obſerve by your letter of the 15th July, that the neceſſity did not ſtrike you ſo forcibly as it did us, of the ſquadron's being removed immediately to this place, which, on the ſuppoſition of a war with the French nation, is moſt likely to be the firſt object of their operations in India.

As you have taken the letter from the Preſidency at Madras, as the ground for your determination of continuing on the coaſt of Coromandel, we think it material to ſtate to you in reply our reaſons for being of opinion that the ſquadron could render more important ſervice to the nation, and to the Company, by making Bombay its preſent ſtation; and if they appear to you of ſufficient weight to occaſion an alteration in your ſentiments, we cannot doubt but you will ſtill comply with our former requeſt.

The moſt favourable and probable opportunity for the French to attack Bombay, will be undoubtedly early in the commencement of a war, before the arrival of a Britiſh fleet in India ſufficiently powerful to contend with them at ſea, and whilſt we have no other reſources for defence than our own garriſon; ſuch is exactly our preſent ſituation, if the war is commenced, with this further diſadvantageous circumſtance, that our force conſiſts almoſt wholly of Sepoys, though we have drained every European we poſſibly could from our ſubordinate ſettlements.

Thus circumſtanced, if the French proceed upon a plan of ſurprize, and proportion their armament to our garriſon, the ſtrength of which muſt be pretty well known to them, the preſence of his Majeſty's ſquadron under your command, even in its preſent force, might be the means of preventing an attack, but it cannot poſſibly be denied that it would in any caſe be greatly inſtrumental in repelling it; and the number of men which could be landed from the ſhips would be of the moſt important ſervice in the defence of our works, and prove the preſervation of the place, eſpecially when it is conſidered, as before obſerved, that our force in Europeans is very ſmall.

The

Appendix. No. 130.

The Governor and Council at Madras are pleaſed to allow, if we rightly comprehend their meaning, that it is probable the French will early form a deſign upon Bombay, before they proceed to what is conceived to be their main object in caſe of war, namely, a powerful attack upon the Company's poſſeſſions at Madras or Bengal, which they add would be rendered much more difficult and hazardous by proceeding with reſpect to Bombay upon any other plan; it therefore certainly follows, that the ſafety of this place, which is of ſo much conſequence in itſelf, and ſo eſſential to the ſecurity of the Company's other valuable poſſeſſions, ſhould be the firſt object of attention, in preference we think to the annoyance of the enemy's poſſeſſions.

We will allow the protection your ſquadron will afford to the Company's ſhipping on the coaſt, to be an argument of much weight in ſupport of your reſolution, but ſtill we hope you will think the ſafety of this Settlement a ſuperior conſideration.

We hope we ſhall ſtand excuſed for expreſſing our apprehenſions for the ſafety of His Majeſty's ſquadron if you perſiſt in your preſent reſolution; for as we are informed by the Secret Committee of the Court of Directors, that the three ſhips of the line for Madras would not fail before the beginning of Auguſt, we think it very poſſible, before they can arrive in India, the French may obtain ſo decided a ſuperiority by ſea as to make your continuance on the coaſt extremely hazardous, and Bombay the more eligible ſituation, where we expect a ſhip of 64 guns, which we are informed by the ſame authority was to convoy the Company's ſhipping to this Preſidency.

We have the honour to encloſe two packets, received from England by the way of Buſſora on the 3d of this month; and are, with reſpect,

Sir,

Your moſt obedient ſervants,

Bombay Caſtle, 8th September 1778.

APPENDIX, No. 130.

Campoly, 16th December 1778.

Wedneſday, 16th.

THIS day received the following letter from Colonel Goddard, directed to Mr. Lewis at Poonah, and forwarded from thence by Dajadee Adviojjee:

William Lewis, Eſquire.

Since my laſt of the 12th inſtant, from within four coſs of Seronge, I have been favoured with both yours of the 9th October and 1ſt November, written in cypher. As the figures do not in any reſpect correſpond with thoſe of the cypher tranſmitted me by the Select Committee, I have not been able to diſcover the meaning of your letters; I muſt wait therefore for a key to them, till I receive the cypher compoſed by the Honourable the Supreme Board, which I expect in a few days, and which I am led to believe will anſwer to the figure of your letters.

I have the pleaſure to encloſe you a letter for the Honourable Select Committee, informing them of my arrival at Bhopal, from which place I propoſe marching to-morrow morning towards the Nerbuddah, and croſſing near the Gauts of Huſſengabad, diſtant about 18 coſs. I have acquainted them with the treacherous conduct of Ballajee, and the ineffectual attempts made by him in conjunction with the troops belonging to the Bilſah Chief, to carry off the baggage, and cut off the ſupplies of proviſions.

They have alſo uſed their endeavours, by threats and menaces, to prevail upon the Nawab Mahomet Huat Chawn to concur in their views of preventing our paſſage acroſs the Nerbuddah, which they affirm to be in obedience to the orders of the Peiſhwa Phurdhan Maderow.

Hitherto I have experienced the moſt friendly behaviour from the Nawab, and if he adheres to his engagements of ſupplying me with grain, &c. I ſhall have every reaſon to be ſatisfied with his conduct. I ſhall write you again ſoon; and remain,

Sir,

Your moſt obedient humble ſervant,

Nov. 26th 1778, Camp at Bhopal.

*Tho*s Goddard.

Received alſo at the ſame time a letter from Dadaja Adowja at Poonah, to Captain Stewart, dated the 13th inſtant; in which he mentions the receipt of two letters from Colonel Goddard, one for Mr. Carnac and one for Mr. Lewis, both which he then forwarded. That by the reports at Poonah, Scindia and Holkar had taken an oath to act with the miniſters; Nanah having further prevailed upon Scindia, by a preſent of three lacks, that Mhadjee Scindia was firſt to go againſt the Engliſh troops, and if he was worſted, Holcar was to aid him; that on the 11th inſtant Nanah had diſpatched Bhimrow Ponſia, and Ramchund Gunneiſs, with ſome guns, to Fullegaon: That the miniſters were deſirous to try their ſucceſs in an engagement with us; and if they were defeated, it was then to be left to Saccaram to make the beſt peace he could with us: That Nanah Furneeſe was for diſpatching troops through the different Gauts into the Conkan. For the information of the Committee, Mr. Lewis delivered different letters received by him ſince his departure from Poonah; one from Colonel Goddard, dated camp near Rimlaſſey, October 31ſt 1778, received at Bombay 1ſt December 1778.

To Wm Lewis, Eſquire, Reſident at Poonah.

Sir,

Encloſed I have the pleaſure to tranſmit you a letter for the Honourable the Governor and Select Committee at Bombay, which I requeſt you will forward to them with all expedition. Nothing very material has occurred ſince my laſt of the 4th inſtant, which I hope has arrived ſafe; it contained accounts of the death of Colonel Leſlie, and of my intention to proceed on my march from Raje Ghur, which I did on the 8th in the morning; and am now near Rimlaſſy, a town belonging to Ballajee, about 12 coſs from Gunge Berondah, which you will find laid down in Mr. Smith's route about the ſame diſtance from Bilrah, by which road I mean to march.

A Vakeel, named Ragoo Ram, yeſterday waited upon me from the Poonah Durbar, with a letter in the name of the young reigning Peiſhwa Punndit Purdhan Mhadoo Row; which after mentioning the friendſhip exiſting between himſelf and the Engliſh, and expreſſing a ſurprize at the hoſtilities committed at Kalpy, requeſts to be informed of my intentions in marching through the Maratta empire. In reply to this I have told him, that in obedience to the orders of my maſters I am marching from one Engliſh ſettlement to another; and that my wiſh and object is to preſerve peace and amity with every State and Chief I may meet with on my route. I have explained to him the conduct of Gungahder at Kalpy, which drew upon him the Engliſh arms, and of that fortreſs having been again reſtored to him, as a proof of our friendly and pacific views. I conceive this embaſſy muſt have been ſent unknown to you from Poonah, having before received no intimation of it; and I learn the Vakeel left Poonah near two months ago. This however muſt have been much about the time of your laſt letter, which is dated September 2d. I hope ſoon to hear from you, and beg you will communicate to me any circumſtance you can relative to the Poonah Durbar, by which my operations may be poſſibly effected.

I am, Sir,

Your obedient humble ſervant,

Camp near Rimlaſſy, October 31ſt 1778.

*Tho*s Goddard.

Different Letters from Dadajee Adowjee, dated 27th and 29th November, and 2d December 1778.

At about noon Mr. Sibbald returned with a meſſage from Dada Saheb to Mr. Carnac, thanking him for his friendly friendly caution; that he thought he had nothing to apprehend from Ragojee Angria, who had preſented him with an elephant and 25 horſe; that he ſhould advance, and encamp within a mile of us.

At a Committee; PRESENT,

John Carnac, Eſquire,
Colonel Charles Egerton.
Mr. Moſtyn indiſpoſed.

Read, and approved, the minutes of the laſt committee.

Colonel Charles Egerton now delivers in to the Committee the following minute:

"The commiſſion granted to the Committee appointed to attend Ragoba to Poonah, bearing date Bombay Caſtle, December 5th, 1778, being in my opinion highly contradictory to a paragraph in the inſtructions accompanying the ſaid commiſſion, and repugnant to the military powers veſted in me as Commander of the forces of the Preſidency of Bombay, and now in the field, I do moſt ſtrenuouſly proteſt againſt publiſhing the ſame at preſent in general orders.

"I do alſo proteſt againſt this commiſſion reſting military authority, and alſo to the mode in which it was granted; together with many articles of the inſtructions appertaining to the ſaid commiſſion, for ſuch reaſons as I ſhall hereafter exhibit at a more reaſonable opportunity."

For the foregoing reaſons the Colonel is of opinion, that the commiſſion ſhould not at preſent be publiſhed in general orders to the army; and farther, that according to the letter of the commiſſion appointing the committee, he holds any meeting incomplete and informal without the preſence of every member, and therefore the order iſſued to him in conſequence of the reſolution paſſed at the laſt meeting of Mr. Carnac and himſelf, was in his opinion of no validity, till he ſhall have received farther inſtructions from his ſuperiors at Bombay, or till the recovery of Mr. Moſtyn permits him to attend in committee.

Mr. Carnac is of opinion, that the ſickneſs of one of the members of the committee diſenabling him to attend, does by no means render the proceedings of the other invalid. According to the general rules of the Company's ſervice, a majority of any board can form a legal meeting of it; and that therefore the Colonel was bound to have obeyed the requiſition ſent to him in conſequence of the reſolution paſſed at this laſt meeting; however, being unwilling to enter into any diſcuſſion on the ſubject, he conſents to refer the matter to the judgment of our ſuperiors at Bombay, and therefore propoſes that the minutes of the laſt committee, relative to the publiſhing the commiſſion, together with the minutes now made, ſhould be inſtantly forwarded, with an addreſs to our ſuperiors, requeſting their inſtant deciſion on theſe ſeveral points, as, according to the opinion entertained by the Colonel, it ſeems to him (Mr. Carnac) of no utility to meet again in committee; and that of courſe the buſineſs committed in charge to them muſt remain at a ſtand till ſuch deciſion comes, or till the recovery of Mr. Moſtyn, which he is ſorry to obſerve, by the accounts of the ſurgeons, is very doubtful, and at beſt not likely to be for ſome days.

The Colonel concurs in opinion with Mr. Carnac, relative to the tranſmitting, with an inſtant addreſs to our ſuperiors, the minutes he makes mention of; but differs in opinion with him as to his general concluſion; for though he (Colonel Egerton) thinks fit to inſiſt that the point which immediately relates to himſelf, viz. the publication in general orders of the commiſſion to the army under his command, ſhould be diſcuſſed in a full committee, yet he is far from thinking that this propoſal can give any impediment to the conduct of affairs committed in charge to the committee, as Mr. Carnac and himſelf can meet, deliberate, conduct, and give final anſwers to Ragoba relative to thoſe affairs. Appendix. No. 130.

Mr. Carnac obſerving that from the accounts of the ſurgeons there is great room to apprehend Mr. Moſtyn may not recover, thinks it requiſite to obſerve to our ſuperiors the very great loſs the Company will ſuſtain at this critical juncture by his death, and how much it may probably impede the execution of the material points they have in charge, both from the want of local knowledge, and particular ability and acquaintance Mr. Moſtyn poſſeſſes in Maratta affairs; and becauſe that moſt of the engagements formed at Poonah were immediately formed with him; and that the perſons he treated with, looking immediately to him, may now be backward in making freſh overtures to the committee. To which the Colonel concurs.

Mr. Stibbald now lays before the committee a paper, as entered hereafter, containing intelligence tranſmitted from Ragoba, with which he was made acquainted by Naro Gopal and Trimbuck Ballerow. With reſpect to his propoſal of having a body of men from Bombay, we are ſenſible that from the ſtate of the garriſon it is impoſſible to accede to it.

Mr. Carnac lays before the committee the following minute.

"As the ſpeedy arrival of the army upon the Ghauts, and their being puſhed forwards as quickly as poſſible, is very eſſential to the eaſier accompliſhment of the ſervice on which the army is now employed, the enemy having thereby ſo much the leſs time to prepare and collect themſelves; and as our troops have been hitherto but very ſlow in their progreſs, they having diſembarked at Pancook 25 days ago, and yet are little more than the ſame number of miles diſtant from it, it is much to be regretted that a more expeditious mode had not been found out for conveying to the top of the Ghauts the ordnance ſtores and baggage, than the one at preſent purſued. It appears to Mr. Carnac, that much labour, time, and a conſiderable expence, are unneceſſarily waſted in the making a carriage road up the Ghaut; and that with the ſame number of people now employed for this purpoſe, every thing intended to be caſted up might have been carried up by hand with more eaſe, ſecurity from accident, and diſpatch; and from the converſation he has had with many on the ſubject, he is inclined to believe this to be the general opinion. The Commander of artillery has actually paſſed ſome of his guns beyond the road conſtructed by Major Snaith, and by a route wide of it, which may be adduced as a teſtimony that this part of the new-made road at leaſt was wholly needleſs."

As an anſwer to Mr. Carnac's minute might be productive of altercation and argument, the Colonel defers ſaying any thing on the ſubject till he has an opportunity of having his conduct properly ſcrutinized by his ſuperiors at Bombay.

(Adjourned.)

John Carnac,
Cha' Egerton.

Campoly, 20th December, 1778.

This morning Ragoba ſent Naroo Gopal and Trimbuck Sunday 20th. Ballerow to Mr. Carnac, to inform him of the following intelligence he had juſt received from the enemy's camp.

That the miniſterial forces, under the command of Bhim Row Ponſia, Badjee Punt Joſey, and Guneiſh Punt, conſiſting of 10,000 horſe, 15 pieces of cannon, and a large number of Bhondaars, were encamped at Wurgaon, 3 coſs on this ſide Tullagaong, in order to haraſs our troops and obſtruct their march, ſo ſoon as they might make their appearance above the Ghauts; and that a body of 5,000 horſe were ordered to proceed down Kurſora Gaut, with an intent to cut off our communication with Panwell.

Appendix. No. 130.

That Nanah Furneeze, Saccaram Bapoo, Madjee Scindia, and Tookajee Holcar, were encamped near Poonah with 5,000 horſe; but whether they meant to join the main body at Wurgaon, was not yet known.

Ragoba deſired the above perſons to acquaint Mr. Carnac, that he ſubmitted it to his conſideration, whether it would not be adviſable to have a detachment of Sepoys, with 2 guns, ſent from Bombay, to be kept below the Gauts, in order to protect our convoys of proviſions, and to keep the communication open with Panwell.

Ragoba is confident that the miniſterial party have adopted the above plan, as they make no ſcruple to declare that it is the only likely mode of haraſſing and diſtreſſing the Engliſh troops; being unequal to an actual engagement with ſuch a body of forces as we have now in the field.

Monday, 21ſt. Diſpatched the following addreſs to the Honourable the Select Committee at Bombay.

To the Honourable William Hornby, Eſquire, Preſident, &c. Select Committee at Bombay.

Gentlemen,

On the 15th inſtant Meſſieurs Carnac and Moſtyn arrived at this place, and on the evening of that day, Mr. Carnac directed the Secretary to the committee to deſire the attendance of Colonel Egerton and Mr. Moſtyn at his (Mr. Carnac's) tent on the following day, in order to open a packet from you, directed to Mr. Carnac, Colonel Egerton, and Mr. Moſtyn. The latter gentleman being indiſpoſed, the meeting was held by Mr. Carnac and Colonel Egerton only.

Mr. Moſtyn being ſtill indiſpoſed, thoſe two gentlemen only again met this day, conformable to a ſummons ſent by Mr. Carnac, when it was agreed immediately to tranſmit the whole of both days proceedings for your conſideration, From the nature of the doubts and queſtions that have ariſen, you will no doubt perceive the neceſſity of favouring us with your deciſions as ſpeedily and as explicitly as poſſible, as, from the nature of the ſervice, and the accidents common to all men, it may frequently happen that only two of the members can attend in committee.

The particulars of the intelligence received from Ragoba are, That the miniſterial forces, under the command of Bhim Row Ponſia, Badjee Punt Joſey, and Gunneſs Punt, conſiſting of 10,000 horſe, 15 pieces of cannon, and a large number of Bhondaars, were encamped at Wurgaon, 3 coſs on this ſide Tullagaon, in order to haraſs our troops, and obſtruct their march ſo ſoon as they might make their appearance above the Gaut; and that a body of 5,000 horſe were ordered to proceed down Kurſora Gaut, with an intent to cut off our communication with Panwell: That Nanah Furneeze, Saccaram Bappoo, Mhadjee Scindia, and Hurry Punt, were encamped near Poonah with about 5,000 horſe; but whether they meant to join the main body at Wurgaon, was not yet known.

Ragoba ſays he is confident the miniſterial party have adopted the above plan, as they make no ſcruple to declare, that it is the only likely method of haraſſing and diſtreſſing the Engliſh troops, being unequal to an actual engagement with ſuch a body of forces as we have now in the field; and he therefore directed the perſons whom he ſent with this intelligence to acquaint the committee, that he ſubmitted it to their conſideration, whether it would not be adviſable to have a detachment of Sepoys ſent with two guns from Bombay, to be kept below the Gaut, in order to protect our convoys of proviſions, and to keep the communication open with Panwell?

The above intelligence from Ragoba generally correſponds with the contents of a letter received from Dadajee Adowjee, at Poonah, except that he mentions the miniſterialiſts were determined to engage us, and that Holkar had engaged to aſſiſt them; which latter circumſtance we hope and truſt will prove untrue. If the miniſterialiſts mean to act with vigour, it ſeems to us probable they may adopt the plan mentioned by Ragoba.

For theſe two days paſt, Ragonath Row has been encamped cloſe to us: He had determined to have proceeded up the Cocindar Gaut, and had abſolutely marched for that purpoſe; but, fearful of the conſequences of his being widely ſeparated from us, and from the whole tenor of his conduct lately, having reaſon to apprehend that treacherous deſigns were formed relative to the ſeizure of his perſon, Mr. Sibbald was deputed by Mr. Carnac to repreſent to him the apprehenſions entertained and the unneceſſary riſque he at beſt expoſed himſelf to, by proceeding up another Gaut, whilſt we had one open, and guarded by our own troops. He paid due attention to theſe repreſentations; and this night, at midnight, being a lucky hour, he has determined to march up Bhore Gaut to Condolah.

We are, with reſpect,
Gentlemen,
Your moſt obedient ſervants,

Camp at Campoly, 20th December 1778.

Jn° Carnac,
C. W. Egerton.

P. S. Laſt night Ragonath Row proceeded up the Gaut.—December 21 1778.

At about 3 P. M. received the following letter from the Honourable the Select Committee at Bombay.

To John Carnac, Eſquire, Colonel Charles Egerton, and Thomas Moſtyn, Eſquire.

Gentlemen,

We have received a letter from Meſſrs. Carnac and Moſtyn, dated the 15th inſtant, and authorize you to open any packets addreſſed to us, which may come to your hands.

Having juſt received a letter of importance from the Governor General and Council, we tranſmit an extract of all the material parts for your information; and we have in conſequence ſent orders to Colonel Goddard to move forward with all poſſible expedition, although we doubt not he will already have proſecuted his march, in conſequence of our former orders.

Our lateſt advices from Colonel Goddard are dated the 26th ultimo, from Bhopaal, within 18 coſs of the Nerbuddah, which he hoped to croſs in five or ſix days at Huſſengabad, and in two days more enter the country of the Berar Rajah.

We hope ſoon to hear of your having aſcended the Gauts, with the army and ſtores; and ſtrongly recommend to you to proceed with all poſſible expedition, and to urge Ragoba, ſo as that no delay may ariſe on his part.

You will correſpond with Colonel Goddard on all neceſſary points, and we have directed him to ſend you advice of his motions. A packet is now encloſed for him in duplicate, which is ſent open for your peruſal; and you will forward it by ſeparate conveyances, in the moſt ſecure and expeditious manner.

We now return five paces of Pattamars, arrived from the army with advices; and are,

Gentlemen,
